A German woman and two children, going to Bayou Sara, and a French woman, going to Cook's Landing, were lost, and probably a few others. No cabin passengers are missing.

The boat was insured for $25,000. The books and papers were saved.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—The rain-fall last night was heavier than ever known before in many years. Weather today cloudy, with occasional showers.

NORWICH, CONN., Aug. 9.—Rain has fallen here since Friday night to the depth of twelve inches. Yantic and Shetucket rivers are heavily swollen. The storm is without a parallel for years.

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 10.—The city is ablaze with enthusiasm, celebrating the Democratic victory of last Thursday. There is a torchlight procession and speaking at various points in the city. Among the speakers is Mayor W. F. C. Gregory, of Petersburg, Virginia. The best of feeling is existing. The State is Democratic by not less than ten thousand majority, with seven Democratic Congressmen, and the Legislature is three-fourths Democratic.

ATCHISON, KANSAS, Aug. 10.—The grasshoppers have literally devoured everything in northern and southwestern Kansas and Nebraska. The damage inflicted on vegetation is far greater than in 1866. The corn crop through all this region is totally destroyed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Dispatches from Milwaukee announce the death of Bishop Whitehouse, of Illinois, in that city this morning.

FOREIGN.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—It is reported here that the German government has notified its representatives abroad that the time has arrived to recognize the Spanish republic. Relations between France and Italy are very satisfactory.

The attitude of the Spanish representative here is most conciliatory, and difficulties with Spain are at an end. Senor Castelar is expected at Versailles, charged with a mission of negotiating for the recognition of the republic of Spain.

ROME, Aug. 9.—Eight leaders of the Internationals were arrested here, and other arrests have been made in Florence and other Italian cities. Papers were seized showing that the Internationals were making great progress in Italy.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—There is great excitement in this city in consequence of the receipt of the intelligence of the escape of Marshal Bazaine from the Island of Sainte Marguerite some time during Sunday night. The details of the manner in which he escaped are not known, except that he used a rope-ladder and got on board a vessel bound for Italy. The night was dark and stormy.

The journals of this city declare the government will act promptly and energetically in punishing all who connived at his flight.

Crops.

MR. EDITOR: A word from some of the crops, if you wish. For the distance of twenty-five miles in West Feliciana parish I saw, about the thirteenth of July, only two fine cotton crops.

The cotton crops around Jackson, in East Feliciana parish, are only ordinary. Some of them are very poor, and are what they are through the perseverance of the farmers. Many had to plant their cotton seed two and three times. The corn crop is good.

July 15.—In Wilkinson county the corn is very good. The cotton is good, being of good color and two and three feet high; but on many places the grass is growing luxuriantly, very much, of course, to the injury of the cotton.

On the south side of the Homochitto river I found the finest cotton seen in this county or the former two parishes. What I saw was about five feet high, of good color and quite clear of grass. I saw only a small portion of the crop, but Mr. Davis said that he had two or three hundred acres in the same condition.

Adams County, July 16.—The corn is tolerably good. The cotton along the Woodville road is of good height and color, but exceedingly grassy. The finest cotton seen in the county is on St. Catherine's creek. Heard in Natchez that the cotton worm had appeared in the country.

Concordia Parish, July 16.—Near Vidalia the cotton is good. Up the southern or western side of Lake Concordia the cotton near the lake is generally good, sometimes "taken with grass."

There is little or no corn. The cotton planted since the going off of the water is doing comparatively nothing. It has grown but little in three weeks—scarcely enough to be perceptible.

I learn that in Tensas parish the corn is destroyed by the cut worm, and the cotton injured by the same worm.

Catahoula Parish, July 17.—On Sicily Island the crop is splendid. Very little or no poor or grassy cotton seen. Most if not all of the corn is fine.

Franklin Parish, July 21.—On the Bayou Mason side of Franklin parish, and in the eastern part of Richland parish, the potato, corn and cotton crops are very good. The potato vines look well. One month ago the corn in many places was suffering through want of rain; but the recent rains have caused it to flourish. The youngest and the most young corn seen is in Franklin and Richland parishes. Its being young is said to be advantageous. The cotton, though high and broad, has not, in many cases, a good crop of forms; but is finer-looking and cleaner than elsewhere, unless Sicily Island be excepted.

So far as we know what is best for the crops, these parishes and counties have had too much rain.

Yours far awhile,

LOUIS J. ANA.

JULY 1874.

A SCOTCH correspondent of the Interior, sympathizing satirically with a widowed mother who lives so far from the church that she cannot send her children to Sunday school, moans out:

"Waes me! and will they hae nae chance to skirl awa in sic edifyin' melody as 'Oh! ain't I glad I'm in this army!' and sic brave hi diddle diddle singing every Lord's day, to the praise o' him 'who sitteth upon the circle o' the heavens.' And will they never hae a chance to read sic moral buiks as 'Red-eyed Zeke, or Death in the Pot,' or the 'Broken-nosed Cannibal,' or the 'Dread Mystery o' Puckerbrush?' Weel, weel, sin' ye can na hae a' these, mak the maist o' what ye possess."

THE expression "grace for grace" may mean grace answering to grace—grace which was in accordance with grace already given; grace preparatory to what is yet to come. Has not the Father given you such grace as you had capacity to receive? If there had been more room you would have had more; if you had exercised more faith he would have given you more joy; if you had possessed more hope you would have had more realization. He has always come up to, even gone beyond, the measure of our expectancy.—Spurgeon.

From the Work.

MORTON CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: On the seventeenth instant we closed a six days' meeting in the town of Merton. The presence of the Holy Spirit was manifest. Seventeen united with the church, and the membership was greatly strengthened. We are indebted to Bros. J. D. Hays and J. M. Weems for effective ministerial assistance.

In 1872 the Brandon District Conference resolved to have a district camp ground. A place every way suitable was selected near Morton. The land (thirty-six acres) was purchased and deeded to the church. Very little has been collected, and no buildings erected on the ground as yet; but at the third Quarterly Conference for this circuit a series of resolutions were passed which speak as though we intended to have a camp meeting this fall, whether the other circuits in the district help us or not. If we can raise the means and have the time we expect to prepare for a large meeting; if not, then we intend to have a meeting on a small scale, so as to at least make a beginning. We call on our brethren, especially in the district, to help us. Any moneys collected for this purpose should be sent to Captain Thomas C. Tibbs, Morton, Mississippi, who is treasurer of the building committee.

C. MCDONALD, P. C.

MORTON, MISS., July 21, 1874.

MONTGOMERY DISTRICT CONFERENCE, ALABAMA.—Mr. Editor: We have just had a most refreshing season at the District Conference of the Montgomery district at Notasulga. About eighty members were present. All the charges were represented. Dr. Wadsworth is absent at the springs on account of feeble health. Bro. Perdue was engaged in a hot battle on his work and could not come. The most exciting questions were "denominational schools" and "the temperance cause." The district stands like a stone wall against the evil of the liquor traffic, but differed as to the method of meeting the evil—whether to have the specific law proposed by the General Conference, or to rely upon the present discipline. The laymen presented such a determined front against the evil that a majority were persuaded that we need no further legislation.

Dr. Andrews represented the interests of the Southern University in a very able and eloquent speech. May its results be seen for many days to come.

The Conference elected to the Annual Conference: J. H. Swearingen, John G. Motley, local preacher, H. C. Armstrong and James H. Judkins. Alternates—J. S. C. Glenn, local preacher, I. Hill, George N. Gilmer and W. J. Gantier.

Rev. H. D. Moore was present and represented the interests of the Alabama Conference Female College, in Tuskegee, in a very felicitous speech. May her halls be crowded during the next term.

B. B. ROSS.

TUSKEGEE, ALA., July 27, 1874.

RICHLAND, MISSISSIPPI.—Mr. Editor: In this neighborhood intemperance has prevailed to an alarming extent since the war. Many of our best citizens and brightest intellects have been seriously damaged from the effects of rum. Men would candidly admit that their course led to temporal ruin and eternal death, but still went on, regardless of consequences. A few months ago a seemingly spontaneous temperance reform commenced, and so great a change has it wrought in this community that within a circle of twenty-five miles there cannot be found a white dram-drinker; and in other communities I find that this good work is going on in the same way. Soon after this great temperance movement general interest was manifested on the subject of religion. Several protracted meetings have been held, both by Methodist and Baptist denominations, and scores have joined the armies of Israel under the banner of the cross, while backsliders have been restored and the church thoroughly revived. This revival is unlike any I have seen for many years, in that there is little sensational preaching. Reason is appealed to, and the Holy Spirit rivets conviction. The silent tear is seen trickling from the eyes of many who have made no demonstrations save serious attention to the preached word. All seem to have given up profanity and rejoice at the reformation. The tongue of infidelity is silenced, and the hand of Jehovah appears as visible as when the water flowed at the touch of Aaron's rod. Bro. J. M Boone is our circuit preacher. May God spare him health and aid in his mission.

M. J.

AUGUST 3, 1874.

BAYOU CLEAR, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We have just brought to a close a protracted meeting of seven days, and I hasten to inform you of the good work. Bayou Clear is one point out of nine in the Big Cane and Evergreen circuit.

A word or two for the church. In 1872 Bro. C. Keener commenced to preach here in a private house, with eight or ten members. He next occupied an old barn, but ere the year closed he had raised a church, which now stands as a monument of his indefatigable Christian zeal.

Throughout the entire meeting we had the presence and felt the power of God, illuminating every feature, burnishing every tear-drop, hallowing every melody, inspiring every prayer, until the soul seemed to have climbed the angelic ladder, and was bathed in the bliss of eternity.

The morning prayer and experience meetings were indeed Pentecostal blessings. Here we searched our hearts; here we seated memory as president over the past, and called upon action to rule the present; so that the future, into which the present was every moment introducing us, might grow brighter and brighter. Our times are in God's hand.

Bro. F. White came to our assistance, and rendered invaluable service with his soul-stirring sermons and prayer.

We have thirteen members to receive into the church; previous to this meeting we had received twenty-five, making a total of thirty-eight.

Your brother in Christ,

A. E. CLAY, J. P.

P. S.—Bro. Owens is now engaged erecting a temple for the Lord at Evergreen, and hopes to have it completed for the District Conference in September, when we hope to be favored with the presence of one of our beloved Bishops.

A. E. C.

JULY 18, 1874.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: This Conference met at Brookhaven, Mississippi, on Thursday, July 16, and was presided over by Bishop Wightman.

The attendance of ministers and lay delegates was large, and the proceedings were very interesting.

The circuits and stations were called in their order, and each particularly inquired into as to its finances, Sunday schools, spirituality, etc. Some of the reports were encouraging, showing activity on the part of preachers and people. In some places Sunday schools, prayer meetings and class meetings are attended to, and there has been an increase of membership. Reports were not so favorable from other circuits. Upon the whole the churches are in as good condition as could be expected.

The preaching during the session was unusually good. Sermons were delivered by Revs. George F. Thompson, William Wadsworth, P. A. Johnson, C. G. Andrews, president of Centenary College, W. E. M. Linfield and the Bishop.

This was the first visit of Bishop Wightman to this community. His speeches to the Conference were well timed and stirring. His sermons were listened to with delight by large and appreciative congregations on Saturday and Sunday.

President Andrews delivered a very strong address on education and in support of Centenary College.

President Johnson, in response to an invitation, followed with a very encouraging report of the prosperity of Whitworth College.

A resolution introduced by I. V. Enochs was unanimously passed, pledging the church in this district to renewed activity in collecting money for the support of worn-out preachers and widows and orphans.

The following were elected delegates to the next Mississippi Annual Conference: Rev. J. W. Wetherne, Archy Steele, J. F. Enochs and T. J. Hunter. Reserves—L. B. McLaurin and R. W. Millsaps.

Clinton, Mississippi, was selected as the place for holding the next District Conference.

The Conference closed with a very feeling address from the Bishop, exhorting harmony among the brethren, unity of spirit and a greater spirituality among the ministry.

R. W. MILLSAPS, Sec.

SELMA DISTRICT CONFERENCE ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The Conference convened at Rehoboth, in Wilcox county, on Thursday, the ninth of July, and continued till the following Sunday. The attendance was very large, every pastor, except one, and nearly all the other members, being present.

In the absence of any Bishop our worthy and efficient presiding elder, Bro. A. J. Briggs, took the chair. Bro. E. S. Starr was elected secretary.

After the organization of the Conference the reports of the pastors were received. From their reports a great deal of information concerning the church in all of its operations was obtained. While the church is not, except in two or three charges, in a state of revival power, yet there are many encouraging signs indicating a favorable condition. The pastors have been faithful, self-sacrificing and laborious. Discipline has been generally well administered. Very little outbreaking sin appears anywhere. Drunkenness and dram drinking have been banished from the church within the bounds of the district, and almost everybody seems to be hopeful of better times in the near future.

The finances of the district are exceedingly prostrated from three successive failures in crops. Very little has been raised for the support of the ministry. The presiding elder has generously given to his preachers nearly all of what has been raised. How these noble soldiers of the cross have stood so manfully at their posts, with brave, cheerful faces, and voices attuned to praise, amidst the privations they have had to suffer, is no small matter of wonder. And now that the Lord hath again smiled upon us, and the full harvest is near, surely the first fruits should be offered to him in an abundant support of our brethren.

A few of the Sunday schools are doing finely; a number do not take our Sunday school literature; and there is some Methodist material in several union schools within the district, that are not working satisfactorily. There was some interesting discussion on union schools, which, we think, will result in good.

On the subject of education there seems to be a commendable interest felt; and, we think, with returning ability to educate their children, the people will show themselves ready to support our institutions of learning. The Southern University, at Greensboro, the Alabama Conference Female College, at Tuskegee, and Centenary Female College and Centenary Male Institute, at Summerfield, were all recommended to the public as worthy of patronage.

Religious services were held every morning and evening. The preaching was good, characterized by more than an ordinary amount of spirituality. We had with us, as visiting brethren, Rev. A. M. Jones, of Camden, Rev. H. D. Moore, president of the Alabama Conference Female College, and Dr. A. S. Andrews, president of the Southern University, who all preached to the edification and delight of large and attentive congregations, and whose presence will be greeted with joy at our next District Conference, which will be held at Choctaw Corner.

JOHN MASSEY.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The eighth session of the Shreveport District Conference met in Pleasant Hill, Louisiana, July 22, Rev. Dr. N. M. Skipworth, presiding elder, presiding.

The committee on temperance reported a gracious return of public sentiment to something of its former soundness, and offered the following resolution, which, we are glad to say, was passed unanimously:

"Resolved, That we heartily approve the action of the late General Conference upon the subject of temperance, and hope that the Louisiana Annual Conference will ratify it."

A resolution was also passed urging disciplinary measures against all offenders in this line.

On the general state of the church the committee reported a steady growth.

A memorial to the Annual Conference, praying a change in the law constituting the representation in the District Conference, was also passed.

On Shreveport district we have one hundred and thirty members of the District Conference. Common sense teaches that it is impossible to assemble such a body, and, if once assembled, we would have to go to Louisville or to New Orleans to get them entertained. We therefore ask that the law shall read as follows: "1. All the preachers, both traveling and local, in the district. 2. One layman for each forty members, or additional three-fourths fraction thereof, from each circuit, station or mission, to be elected from the circuit at large by the Quarterly Conference; Provided, that no circuit, station or mission shall be denied two lay delegates."

On Sabbath, the twenty-sixth, was a great day in Pleasant Hill. Love feast at nine o'clock was a season long to be remembered. At eleven o'clock Bro. Pipes preached the funeral of the saintly and glorified H. L. Smith, one of the preachers of this district. He had been laboring on the Beulah circuit, but was called by the great Head of the church to cease from his labors on earth and to join the triumphant hosts around his throne. He was personally endeared to all the preachers and to all the people of that vast congregation, but to none more than to the preacher who delivered the sermon commemorative of him. Long will his character and memory be venerated and cherished among us. After the sermon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to nearly a hundred communicants, who entered fully into the spirit of the occasion.

At three P. M. Bro. Philip Allen preached a missionary sermon, which resulted in a good collection for the cause, and the organization of a district society in the interest of missions.

Our next session is to be held at Holly Grove church, on the Anacoco circuit, where we all anticipate a camp meeting after the good old style.

Our delegates elect to the Annual Conference are: Rev. Thomas Franklin, R. W. Freeman, Benjamin F. Spearman and George T. Simpson. Alternates—Rev. Elias F. Pressly, E. W. Jackson, John L. Scales and C. Broom.

In the wind-up we did not forget old friends, but voted a few words of cheer and a hearty good will for the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE as the religious paper for the times.

In all this, Mr. Editor, you see we have sedulously avoided saying anything about Hard Times, seeing that he is present to speak for himself. Doubtless you will hear from him at Conference.

Yours truly, R. H. ADAIR.

GREENWOOD, LA., July 30, 1874.

A NEW MAGAZINE.—Mr. Editor: The late General Conference, having failed to provide a magazine for our Southern Methodist girls, the undersigned appealed to the church, asking all who favored the publication at Nashville, at $1 a year, of the Methodist Maidens' Magazine to write him at Hiwassee College, Tennessee, stating the number of copies for which they were willing to vouch. These conditional subscriptions, up to date, aggregate ten thousand and fifty-seven copies. But at such a low price, with prepayment of postage, as required by the new postal law, we shall need twenty thousand.

What an agency for good such a monthly would be! Shall we have it? We wait to see.

Very truly, J. H. BRUNNER.

HIWASSEE COLLEGE, July 26, 1874.

A STONE which is fit for the wall should not be left in the roadway.

R. Q. M. WRITES to the Southwestern Presbyterian about the Seashore camp meeting. We regret that he could not remain at least another day, so that we might have heard him preach. We quote from his pleasant communication as follows:

Arriving near noon, and yielding our baggage to the polite gentleman whose business it was to receive visitors, we reached the "stand" in time to hear the larger portion of a noble discourse by Bishop Marvin, on "the word of God, the foundation of the Christian's faith and the inspiration of his hope," apparently based on the last eight verses of the sixth chapter of Hebrews. Leaving the next evening at six o'clock, we had been present at morning prayer, heard six sermons, a number of them over an hour in length, and participated in the celebration of the Lord's Supper!

There were present forty-six Methodist preachers. The tents for their accommodation reminded one of the Confederate hospitals of the war. But the cots were occupied not by sick and wounded and dying soldiers of the country, but by strong men and sound and valiant soldiers of the cross, whose evident intelligent piety augured well for the success of that noble army of Christians of which they are officers. I was told that their discussions of theological points sometimes rendered sheep a scarce commodity. What would have become of the solitary Calvinist if he had been put to bed with twenty-five or more Armenians. That he was one did not abate an iota from the kindness and cordiality of his reception, nor was he afraid to sleep with them, but went where he was quartered by the polite committee of reception.

The sermons heard were all excellent, and a number of them were noble discourses, of whose length you were only made aware by your timepiece, replete with gospel truth, welling up from hearts rich in experience of grace, and holding up to view Jesus Christ, in the glory of his person and blessedness of his salvation, as the sinner's only hope and the Christian's exceeding joy.

The communion service was a tender and delightful occasion, and it was felt to be no common privilege to take my place beside the half hundred standard bearers of a different denomination from my own division of the grand army of our common Lord.

The concourse of people in the two days I was present was not very large, but the meetings seemed to be spirited, and there were said to have been some thirty or forty conversions.

My brethren, if they see this, will pardon the confession that, feeding on their most palatable fish, I had occasionally and furtively to rid my mouth of an Armenian bone which would not go down; when I express the belief that, were any of them to attend a Presbyterian camp meeting (and there were such things once, our fathers tell us,) they would be constrained to believe that a little Calvinistic grit will somehow get into all the bread baked in one oven. But what is the chaff to the wheat?

Our creeds differ on some points, but all Christians, as taught by one and the self-same Spirit, in their inward experience and largely in their real beliefs are agreed. The diversity on one particular and distinguishing tenet, the possibility of fatal apostasy of a true believer, seems to me to be about this: We believe and they hope they will not be left to fall away finally and forever, and their hope, resting on the faithfulness and mercy of God in Christ, is sometimes so strong that it were hard to distinguish it from our belief. To almost every utterance to which I listened, whether in prayer or sermon, my heart, and I am not sure but my lips also, once or twice, softly whispered a hearty "amen." I won't say what I might have done in this line if I had remained longer. The Presbyterian preacher's visit to the Seashore camp meeting was to him both pleasant and profitable, and in gratitude for the benefit received he can but implore the continued blessings of the Master to rest upon these beloved brethren in the Lord.

Books and Periodicals.

THE FALLING FLAG. New York: E. J. Hale & Son, publishers, 1874. This is a beautifully printed little volume, containing an account of the evacuation of Richmond, and the retreat and surrender at Appomattox. The author is "an officer of the rear guard," and tells the sad story in a graphic manner. For sale by James A. Gresham, Camp street, New Orleans.

OF THE August periodicals we have received Peterson's Musical Monthly. St. Nicholas for this month is more than usually excellent, and the illustrations are numerous and fine. Scribner's Monthly has: The Great South, A Lost Art, Whitelaw Reid, Cinnabar City, Recollections of Chas. Sumner, The Crisis at Geneva, and other articles. The illustrations of the article on The Great South—In the Cotton States—are striking and life-like, but not very Southern in tone. The Gardeners' Monthly, the Little Corporal, the Rural Southerner and the Southern Cultivator are to hand; all excellent in their line. Good Things for the Young of All Ages is splendidly illustrated, and has a tempting table of contents.

SOME men can stir up mud without diving very deep—shallow water probably.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 13, 1874.

NOTHING TO PAY, TO DO OR TO FEAR.

"It is finished."—JOHN XIX, 30.

Nothing to pay—no, not a whit;
Nothing to do—no, not a bit:
All that was needed to do or to pay
Jesus has done in his own blessed way.

Nothing to add—no, not a stroke;
Gone is the captor, gone is the yoke:
Jesus at once severed the chain,
And none can imprison his freeman again.

Nothing to fear—no, not a jot;
Nothing unclean?—no, not a spot:
Christ is my peace, and I've nothing at stake—
Satan can that neither harass nor shake

Nothing to settle—all has been paid;
Nothing of anger?—peace has been made:
Jesus alone is the sinner's resource;
Peace he has made by the blood of his cross.

What about judgment?—I'm thankful to say
Jesus has met it and borne it away:
Drank it all up when he hung on the tree,
Leaving a cup full of blessing for me.

What about terror?—It hasn't a place
In a heart that is filled with a sense of his grace:
My peace is divine, and it never can cloy,
And that makes my heart overbubble with joy.

Nothing of guilt—no, not a stain;
How could the blood let any remain?
My conscience is purged and my spirit is free—
Precious that blood is to God and to me!

What of the law?—ah, there I rejoice!
Christ answered its claims and silenced its voice:
The law was fulfilled when the work was all done,
And it never can speak to a justified one.

What about death?—it hasn't a sting;
The grave to a Christian no terror can bring:
For death has been conquered, the grave has been spoil'd,
And every foeman and enemy foiled.

What about feelings?—ah, trust not to them!
What of my standing?—"Who shall condemn?"
Since God is for me, there is nothing so clear,
From satan and man I have nothing to fear.

What of my body?—ah, that I may bring
To God as a holy, acceptable thing:
For that is the temple where Jesus abides,
The temple where God by his Spirit resides.

Nothing to pay?—no, thanks be to God,
The matter is settled—the price was the blood!
The blood of the victim, a ransom divine:
Believe it, poor sinner, and peace shall be thine.

What am I waiting for?—Jesus, my Lord,
To take down the tent and roll up the cord:
To be with Himself in the mansions above,
Enjoying forever his infinite love.

London Christian.

"The Proposed Liquor Law" Seen In a Different Light.

MR. EDITOR: One signing his article "S," in your issue of the sixteenth of July, asserts that the proposed change in the General Rules of the Methodist Episcopal Church South repeals the old law, and "declares and enacts the making, buying, selling and using intoxicating liquors lawful."

Your correspondent is simply mistaken. I am not an admirer of the law as worded, and was not when I voted for it. But we were compelled to accept this, or vote for that which the majority of the committee reported, which was objectionable because it had in it just what "S." thinks he sees in the law as proposed—i. e., it inhibited making, buying, selling and using spirituous liquors, except in cases of necessity. It was easy to see that the manufacturer of spirituous liquors would say: "I make only pure liquors, fit for medical uses, and I design that they shall be used only in cases of necessity." The seller would say: "I keep on hand only a fine article of liquors, proper for medical purposes; and I sell intending that it shall be used only in legitimate ways," etc. So that the law proposed by the majority of the committee amounted practically to a nullity.

The friends of temperance could not, under the rule adopted by our Bishops, amend a substitute. Hence they accepted the substitute as the best they could do.

It forbids, unconditionally, making, buying and selling spirituous liquors, and it forbids their use as a beverage. I know that the opposers will see that much depends upon the punctuation of the proposed law—that, by placing the comma after "using," the views of "S." and of Dr. Summers seem not wholly farfetched. But put the comma, where it must be to give the fullest, fairest expression to the intentions of its framer and advocates, and which the adverb "as" and the spirit of the sentence demand, after "beverage," with no punctuation after the word "using," and there is an end of "S.'s" troubles, with no end of trouble to such men (if there be another in the Southern Church) as Rev. A. P. McFerrin, who is distressed to think that mild, pleasant, gentlemanly tipping is to be interfered with should this proposed change prevail and become law. I perceive that the comma is in its right place in an editorial in the Nashville Advocate. I have this to add: You will find trouble when you follow any one of the four words—making, buying, selling, using—except the last one with the insulting clause, "as a beverage." Try it. Making spirituous liquors as a beverage; selling spirituous liquors as a beverage; buying spirituous liquors as a beverage. It is perceived at once that to answer the purposes of "S." these sentences would have to be regarded as elliptical, which ellipsis supplied, the sentence would read: "Making spirituous liquors" to be used "as a beverage," etc.

But to restate and to fill out the law in this way would be to make another and quite a different law. According to my understanding of it, the proposed law is designed to prevent the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South from manufacturing or dealing in spirituous liquors. As to its use as a beverage, the proposed law is not quite as stringent as the law as it now stands. I can conceive of a case where the use of spirituous liquor would not be a "necessity," and yet there might appear to be such a call for its use—such a propriety in using it that it would not be using it strictly as a beverage. For instance, I know a certain minister who, when not in the best of health, or when worn down with excessive labors, sometimes, at the suggestion of his wife, who would note special indications of fatigue, etc., and prepare a slightly stimulating drink, used it as prepared. This was hardly a case of necessity, and yet you would not willingly affirm that he took this draught as a beverage. I judge that moderation and a due measure of conservatism will do more to cure difficulties than extreme utterances. I accept the situation as the best I can do. It would look like retrogression should the church refuse to adopt the proposed rule. They might do so, thinking that the law as it is is really broader and better; but extreme temperance men would not so understand it. And they would assist those not over friendly to Methodism to say: that we feared Rev. A. P. McFerrin's fifty thousand secession, or some such thing.

Yours, X.

Moral Excellencies of the Itineracy.

MR. EDITOR: There are moral beauties and excellencies in the Methodist itinerant system that undoubtedly places it far above and in advance of all other systems for the spread of gospel light through preaching.

I. The mutual acquiescence of preachers and people in the annual appointments of the former to their fields of labor is eminently calculated to beget and foster sympathy and faith between and among the parties interested. In other Protestant churches it amounts simply and only to a commercial transaction. In the papal church the priest is the spiritual "jobber," doing such and such jobs for such and such prices. In our church men of tried wisdom and integrity survey the field, learn its wants, and to the best of their ability meet these wants. The Bishop and his cabinet must have sympathy and faith in and with both people and preacher. The former are dependent on them for this form of the "bread of life;" the latter are dependent on them for labor in suitable fields, and thus indirectly for a living. This faith and sympathy elevates and sanctifies all for the work. The preacher, having faith in the appointing power, has faith in the appointment; the people, having faith in the same power, have faith in the preacher. This faith begets a common sympathy among the whole. The result is strength (moral) to earnest labor and success.

2. Our plan of voluntary support is really sublime. Being neither bought, sold nor hired, having no stated income from rented pews or for special services rendered, the preacher, with faith in the moral uprightness of his people, enters upon his labors. The people, having no bargains to make, no pews to rent, no specific rates to pay for a baptism or a burial, immediately realize their common interest in the services and well-being of the preacher. Strong faith and deep sympathy are aroused, uniting in silken cords their hearts, lives and interests. The preacher is as one of each household, and each brother's roof is his sheltering home. So much so is this the case that, when the storm lowls around and without, each father and mother, finding that William and Mary are sheltered, asks inwardly and feelingly: "I wonder if our preacher is in the storm?" Or, knowing him to be safely housed, reflects: "God gave me means and grace to assist in preparing this shelter for him." Or when around the board they sit, with children clad and food for all, the question is in each heart: "Has our preacher these blessings? and, if so, did I help to supply him?" Thus under our itinerate pastorate the preacher is the father, to provide in spiritual things for his children, the people; and the people are father to the preacher, to provide in all things temporal, as for a child. How beautiful this aspect of our system, and how well adapted in itself to create and foster those noble, spiritual traits of true Christian character! There is thus begotten a faith and sympathy which is truly well qualified to lead to heroism in doing and in suffering. After twenty-three years as an itinerant I can truly say that it is the system par excellence, and the only one which in itself effectively preaches and promotes, in all concerned, those high moral endowments essential to personal Christian life. I go to my people as their child for bread; they come to me as children to receive reproof, exhortation and comfort. B. F. WHITE.

NEW IBERIA, LA., July 20, 1874.

Commencement at Summerfield, Alabama.

MR. EDITOR: This occasion here was worthy of notice, and drew together a large concourse of visitors. Rev. T. J. Rutledge, of Opelika, delivered the commencement sermon from Proverbs xxxi, 30. The discourse abounded with good, practical thoughts, presenting the true idea of womanhood in a chaste, pleasing and forcible style. The next day (Monday) the morning hours were occupied by the exercises of Prof. John Massey's school. The declamations and original speeches, interspersed with music, gave evidence that the attention paid to elocution and composition had not been wasted on unworthy material. Singing by the boys was quite an interesting feature of the occasion. The committee on examination made a fine report of the progress of the boys in this school.

At night the grand concert of the female college took place. It was pronounced a fine affair, rendered the more entertaining by the choice selection of music, the variety afforded, and the excellent training the young ladies had evidently received. The piano, violin and flute produced music rarely excelled. The recitation, in concert, of "The Famine," by seven or eight girls, was inimitable, rendered with startling effect, showing what thorough training in reading and elocution will do for girls. In fact this institution maintains its reputation for the success attained in teaching reading.

The next day (Tuesday) was devoted to the regular exercises of the institution. The music was of a high order and well rendered. Profs. Miller and Joseph rendered efficient service with the flute and violin accompaniments. The compositions evinced talent, training and cultivation.

Miss Sallie H. Doniy's eulogy on Daniel Pratt was happily conceived, and received the appreciation of the audience. The pupils' concert at night, conducted by the Misses Day and Lee, was attended with well-earned success.

Profs. Massey and McVoy were re-elected to their respective positions, which they have occupied so long with credit to themselves and the institutions of the church. They are unanimously regarded as the right men in the right places. They are men of good heart, of sympathetic natures, yet men of determined and unflinching purpose. They know what to allow and what to deny. Hence their discipline is judicious and kind, yet strict and firm. They are, moreover, esteemed and respected by their pupils to the highest degree. They are well qualified for their positions on account of their long experience, and, being men of energy and perseverance, they will continue to sustain themselves in a prosperous condition of affairs.

Those who patronize Summerfield never regret it. It will be a life-long source of satisfaction that you have committed your children into such hands to teach and to train. Their future lives will always feel the benefit of the education received here. There is one test here fully met: the patrons of the schools are well pleased and delighted with the progress of their sons and daughters. We noticed the penmanship of some of the girls, and it is truly astonishing what progress can be made in a year under the system adopted by Prof. McVoy.

These schools have been the favorite resort of students. The buildings are fine, the accommodations good, the teachers able, the community pervaded with strong religious influences, entirely free from temptations. What else can be desired? Prof. McVoy aims to have a faculty unexcelled by any. You can educate your children as cheap here as elsewhere, if not cheaper, which is a small matter, however, in comparison with other advantages.

S.

SUMMERFIELD, ALA., July 20, 1874.

A Plan for Church Schools.

MR. EDITOR: With your permission I will call attention to a part of our work as ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. What may follow is based upon the action of the Homer District Conference, at its late session in Farmerville, Louisiana. It is urged by action of this Conference, on parties interested, to attend specially to the education of the children of the church. A system was presented and adopted by Conference requiring all the ministers and members to be employed in this important work. The system briefly contemplates every church organization to have a school of its own, under the supervision of the Church Conference; and every Quarterly Conference to be a board of supervisors for each circuit and station, and to found academies of its own wherever practicable. The Church Conference to appoint its own select members to provide room, employ teachers and manage for the church a Methodist school. The Quarterly Conference to adopt its own method of encouraging and establishing academies where it may be found proper. You know these ideas, in Methodist economy, are as old as the days of Bishop Asbury.

This plan contemplates an average degree of intelligence in the members of our church found in the neighborhoods, so that these schools need not be inferior to any others of their grade in the country. This plan, in efficient operation, would furnish our colleges and university with a constant supply of students. Education is second only to religion. We are forced to do this work as a church if we would secure the highest interests of our children. This subject demands the earnest attention of our church members. It is of vital importance to us who teaches our children and what they are taught. The church is expected to live. It has vitality and can perpetuate its organization. It can develop as much educational talent as is needed for its purposes.

The public school system is of no real advantage to anybody. In the last six years it has been a cheat and a fraud on the public. Outside of New Orleans (I am unacquainted there) it has done nothing to compensate the damage done to education. It balks private enterprise. It is an imposition on the freedmen, a tax on the whites, with no corresponding benefit. No teachers have been sought or employed who would not blink at corruption and fraud, and sacrifice manhood to a partisan clique. I know much whereof I speak. These things have been general among the whites, universal among the darkies, luting a few isolated cases. Should the public schools ever grow into utility, a fierce strife will be raised against them, and no one will be allowed to run them smoothly as a power for usefulness. It would not be amiss to give the entire system of State education an open-day airing, with New England results full before our eyes. The same class of arguments that will sustain the public schools by the State will prove the necessity of public preaching, and sustain ministry, church and salary. The latter the stronger, by the how much more important the future than the present, the soul than the body. The sooner the public schools are thrown down the better for all parties. It is but just to all that they who teach should receive a proportionate part of the public school fund, whether the school is by private enterprise or church organizations. A liberal arrangement might enable the patrons to draw on the funds a pro rata share, and thus to that extent aid the neighborhood schools.

But our church should move in this matter independent of any outside aid, and draw to its assistance all the help practicable. The church needs stirring up on this great subject, and intelligent conferring together would soon discover ways and means to establish, in many neighborhoods, efficient Methodist schools. Intelligent union of effort can accomplish wonders. Who can overestimate the advantages to all the higher interests of life derived from a system of the sort suggested, carried forward vigorously? The moral, social, mental and religious interests are elevated. The prize is certainly worth the effort. This subject ought to be kept prominently before the church, and action urged whenever suitable. It is to be hoped those adopting the plan will not let the enterprise fail for want of agitating the public mind of the church.

It is expected of preachers in charge of the work to call attention to this subject in all Church Conferences, and presiding elders in all Quarterly Conferences, so there shall be no sleeping over this important interest of the young. Our educated ladies and many qualified men are ready to do the teaching if the place is provided and the pay secured. In some neighborhoods it only needs an active leader, and the school would soon be a permanent fixture. Should we not, then, stir up their pure minds who are interested in this great enterprise? X.

Explanation.

MR. EDITOR: The collections for missions on the North Bossier circuit, Shreveport district, Louisiana Conference, were: Red river church, $38.60; Walker's chapel, $24.50; Wright's chapel, $9.80; Concord, $7.40; and Collinsburg, $4.50—total, $84.80; of which no account is taken in the Minutes of the Louisiana Conference for 1873, owing to my having pledged for $100 to the Mexican mission at Conference, in 1872, which was reported, and these collections were raised with the express understanding that they were to meet that pledge.

I make these facts known for the satisfaction of brethren and friends on the work, and that the work may get credit for what it does. Bros. Goodwyn, missionary treasurer of the Louisiana Conference, and R. J. Harp, receiver of moneys for the Mexican mission, are acquainted with these facts. ROBERT RANDLE.

SHREVEPORT, LA., July 20, 1874.

A Truly Obstinate Man.

An officer of the English navy called on Haydn, the great composer, one morning, in London.

"Mr. Haydn, I presume?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are you willing to compose a march for the troops I have on board my ship? I will give you thirty guineas, but it must be done to-day, as I sail to-morrow for Calcutta."

Haydn agreed to do it. As soon as the captain left he opened the pianoforte, and in a quarter of an hour the march was ready. But, feeling some scruples at earning so large a sum so easily, he returned home that evening, composed two other marches, intending to give the captain his choice of them, and afterward to make him a gift of all three as a return for his liberality. Early the next morning the officer came.

"Well, where's my march?"

"Here it is."

"Will you just play it on the piano?"

Haydn played it. The captain, without saying a word, counted the thirty guineas on the piano, took up the march and walked away. Haydn ran after him to stop him.

"I have written two others which are better. Hear them and make your choice."

"I like the first very much, and that is sufficient."

"But just please to hear these."

The captain marched down stairs, but Haydn pursued him, saying:

"I make you a present of them."

"I won't have them."

"But at least hear them," begged the musician.

"Never," returned the captain.

Not meaning to be out-generaled, the piqued composer hastened to the Exchange to inquire what ship sailed for Calcutta that day and the name of the commander. He then rolled up the two marches, inclosed a polite note, and sent the parcel on board the outward ship, but the obstinate fellow, suspecting that the musician was in pursuit, would not even open the note, and sent it back with the music. Haydn tore the music into a thousand pieces, and never forgave the captain as long as he lived.

PREACHING FOR THE MASSES.—The Christian sanctuary is not a high school for the technical education of a few pupils, but a free public school for the instruction of the whole world; the rich and the poor meet together; the master and the servant, the old man and the little child; the strong and the weak are all there, and upon them all the rain of a common blessing should descend. Loss of sympathy is loss of power. If as preachers we become separated from the common mass by betaking ourselves to some specialty of our vocation, as, for example, the refutation of skepties who never listen to us, and the destruction of theories of whose existence nine-tenths of our hearers are totally unaware, we shall cut ourselves off from those currents of sympathy upon whose right use so much of ministerial usefulness depends. From the ministry of pedantic debaters mothers (whose lives oscillate between pain and care) will retire without a word that can make the families glad; little children will escape as from a great weariness, and men of business will turn away with the pain of grievous disappointment; and thus the man who should have come down upon human life as an angel, charged with messages from the secret places of the Most High, will become a mere chatterer of unprofitable words, talking an unknown tongue to men who long for truth and love.—Rev. Joseph Parker, D. D.

A CLERGYMAN in New York city was conducting a specimen exercise with a class of very young scholars, teaching a lesson of the International series. He had been over with the little ones the story of the Israelites making brick with straw in Egypt. As he came to the oppression of Pharaoh, in demanding the same tale of bricks when no straw was supplied, as before, he asked the question: "What is meant by the tale of bricks?" At once a bright little fellow put up his hand and answered: "A piece of straw sticking out of a brick!" That certainly was a fair answer for a juvenile commentator.

Obituaries.

SISTER ELIZA HUNTER was born in Winton, North Carolina, May 7, 1799, and died in Natchitoches, Louisiana, on the ninth of June, 1874, aged seventy-five years and two months. Her maiden name was Askew. After her marriage, at an early day (in 1835) she came to Natchitoches parish, where she since lived and where she died.

For many long years she was a professor of religion and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. She was a uniform, consistent and exemplary Christian lady. Though liberal in her views, she was always warmly attached to the Methodist Church and to Methodist preachers. Her Christian character and devotion to her church were the more manifest because she stood alone. In the midst of a prevailing Catholic influence, surrounded by a worldly-minded, God-forgetting people, she maintained a pure, unsullied Christian character for more than a quarter of a century. Before the war she was wealthy, and it was her peculiar delight to hunt up the Methodist preacher and entertain him. We shall never forget that cold night when we stopped at a hotel in Natchitoches, with our family, where we were anything but comfortable, when Sister Hunter and daughter came as angels of mercy and took us from a hovel to a mansion of comfort. Her last hours were peaceful. She was sick but a few days, and then fell asleep in Jesus so quietly that the watchers scarcely could tell that she died. She has left to her surviving children the rich legacy of a life-long godly example. May they follow it and be saved. J. P.

WILLIAM JAMES RANEY was born in Brunswick county, Virginia, April 27, 1813, and died in Union parish, Louisiana, June 27, 1874, aged sixty-one years and two months.

Of his early life the writer knows nothing. In 1844 he emigrated from Alabama and settled in the above-named parish. In 1849 he attached himself to the Methodist Episcopal Church South, under the ministry of the Rev. Elisha Waller. He was soon appointed steward, and filled the office acceptably for many years. He was also elected justice of the peace the same year in which he joined the church, which office he held and filled with acceptability up to within a few years of the late war.

He possessed business capacities which were constantly in demand, and this brought him in close contact with the world. Possessing a genial and social nature, he was sometimes betrayed into improprieties; but for these he was ever ready to make amends. No man was ever more ready to acknowledge his faults, and it was pleasing to see the evidences which he gave of his devotion to the church of his choice. In her darkest hours he stood firm—in her prosperity he ever rejoiced. His death has left a blank in the community, and in his family a void; but all indulge the pleasing assurances which he gave in the last days of his life that their loss is his eternal gain. He suffered but little, passing away calmly. He now sleeps in Jesus, awaiting the resurrection morn, when the voice of the archangel and the trump of God shall wake the sleeping dead.

R. T. PARISH.

MRS. SUSAN ROBINSON, the subject of this sketch, was the daughter of Dominico and Melvira Jenkins. She was born in Kemper county, Mississippi, April 10, 1845; was born again in October, 1859, at a camp meeting held at Paticfaw camp ground, and was received into the Methodist Episcopal Church South the year following, by Rev. S. H. Cox. February 4, 1869, she was married to J. R. Robinson, and died July 10, 1874, aged twenty-nine years and three months.

In the death of Sister Robinson the church to which she belonged, the community in which she lived, and especially the family of which she was an important and beloved member, have suffered an irreparable loss. She met faithfully the obligations and responsibilities growing out of the relations of life. As a daughter she cherished an affectionate and obedient disposition, as wife and mother she was all that could be desired, and as a Christian she was faithful to the obligations of our holy religion. She loved the house of God, and was prompt in attendance upon its services. She seemed to have had a presentiment of her death for some time before the event. On several different occasions she said to her husband that she thought she would die soon, though at the time in good health.

She leaves three motherless children, the youngest an infant a few days old. She was unconscious for some days before her decease, and hence said nothing in reference to her prospects. But who that knew her can doubt her ripeness for heaven? In the death of a devoted Christian the church and the world are bereaved. D. G. W. ELLIS.

DIED, near Winnsboro, Franklin parish, Louisiana, our much-esteemed brother, HENRY IVEY, in the twenty-sixth year of his age. Bro. Henry professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South during the year 1873—in the month of October or November—at a protracted meeting held at Kenton chapel, by the writer of this obituary notice. Our deceased brother had been very wicked up to the commencement of the above-named meeting. His conversion afforded an occasion of great rejoicing among his relatives and friends, especially the former. Henry's devotion to the church and her institutions was peculiarly marked. We are informed that he held family prayers for his widowed mother, led in prayer meeting, and was eminently liberal. The writer would present his meed of praise and commendation for a liberality so marked.

We confidently believe that Bro. Henry is reaping the reward of the pure in heart. While he leaves a widowed mother, several sisters, one brother and a multitude of friends to mourn his decease, yet they weep not as those who have no hope. If my memory serves me correctly, Bro. Henry was taken seriously ill very suddenly, and hence did not say much about dying, but expressed strong consolation in a Saviour's [illegible].

A few more months, or years at most, and mother, brother, sisters and friends will find an entrance upon the same bright shore where Henry's pure spirit abides, if found faithful and at their post when the summons comes. May the Master who comforted the widow of Nain comfort Bro. Henry's widowed mother, and he who spake so many words of cheer to the sisters of Bethany inspire hope in the hearts of relatives and friends, and sanctify this act of Providence to the present and future good of the bereaved.

J. M. MCKEE.

IN THE death of Mrs. MARY COBURN HUMPHREYS, relict of the late D. George Humphreys, of Claiborne county, Mississippi, we have been deprived of the earthly fellowship and Christian communion of another one of our historical members. Before the close of the last century a gentleman by the name of Samuel Coburn was found settled on what is now called Baker's creek, in what afterward became Claiborne county, Mississippi. We think Mr. Coburn was never himself a member of any church, but he became the patron of the first Methodist missionaries that came to the new territory, and not only with his family attended on their ministry, but entertained them at his residence. In 1799 he was the patron of Rev. Tobias Gibson, our first missionary to this country. During the first decade of the present century such ministers as Hezekiah Harriman, Lemmer Blackman, Nathan Barnes and others were welcomed to the hospitality of Mr. Coburn and his cultivated household, it was very natural for such a family to be brought more or less under the influence of that holy Christianity experienced, exemplified and preached by such earnest and faithful ministers. Of Mrs. Coburn we know but little. She seems to have died early in the present century. But Mr. Coburn had two sisters by the name of Elizabeth and Ann, who lived with him and supervised his household affairs after the death of his wife. These two young ladies became exemplary Christians in early life, and were noted for their firmness and activity as members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mary Coburn, the subject of this memoir, was born July 31, 1796, and was brought up under the religious influences to which we have briefly alluded. In her girlhood she had marked respect for religion, was exemplary in her deportment, and often felt the need of experimental piety, but did not make a public profession of religion until shortly after her marriage to D. George Humphreys, December 22, 1816. Of the circumstances of her conversion we are not informed, and no one now living can tell the pleasing story. That she was truly converted her consistent Christian life of more than fifty years affords the clearest evidence. The writer has known her since early in 1824, and she was then a staid member of dear old Shiloh church, the spiritual home of Sallie Barnes, her husband's sister, and many other "elect ladies" who have long since fallen asleep in Jesus. Sister Humphreys was remarkable for her quiet, consistent and well-assured Christian experience. The most we knew about her early experience as a child of grace we learned from her categorical answers to her pastor and class-leader in our class meetings. She was never demonstrative, but always concise and satisfactory. She had religion, and knew she had it, and was determined, by divine grace, to serve God all her days on earth, and then go home to heaven; all of which was beautifully illustrated in her long, calm and unostentatious Christian pilgrimage and peaceful death. Her whole religious life is one of the best illustrations of what the apostle says about "godliness being profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come," which has ever come under our observation. By a long course of well-directed industry her family acquired immense wealth, which she enjoyed in a rational and Christian way. We have seldom known a wife, mother and grandmother to enjoy with such zest and perpetual delight the society of husband, children and grandchildren as she did. She seemed richly to enjoy the present life, while earnestly making preparation for the life to come. As we apprehend it would not be agreeable to the surviving members of her numerous family, who are the devoted patrons of the church of their parents, to detail their Christian liberality, we will only say that, in addition to numerous private donations to needy and deserving pastors, while the present commodious and costly church edifice and the Female Collegiate Institute remain in Port Gibson, they will be conspicuous monuments of the liberality of Mr. and Mrs. Humphreys and their children to the church of their life-long affection. In age and feebleness she had remained almost exclusively at home for several years, but was always happy to be visited by her numerous friends, and especially by her pastors. Some solicitude, for the sake of the living, was felt to know her religious state as she was descending into the dark valley. In her usual quiet but assuring style she replied, to those who inquired about her spiritual status, that the preparation had been made long ago, and she had no fearful misgivings in view of death. She died on the twenty-first of July, 1874, within ten days of her seventy-eighth birthday. Like the "perfect and upright man," whose death is referred to by the psalmist, her "end was peace." Her funeral was numerously attended, and we believe was a profitable time to many present. It adds to our interest in heaven to feel that one so lovely has lately been transferred to that abode of perfected saints. J. G. JONES.

PORT GIBSON, MISS., July 20, 1874.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 12, 1874.

THE RIGHT WAY.

I would not leave the path unrod,
Though rough the way, and long;
I would the beaten track pursue,
Nor shrink from dangers others knew;
Would meet the foes that others met,
When Zionward their faces they set;
Would learn the victor's song.

I would not leave the work undone
Which God lays to my hand;
Although it seem to others small,
I undertook it at his call—
So small no fellow-workers see,
But yet it is the work for me;
No more does God demand.

I want to fill my little place
With loving word and deed;
To whisper kind to Sorrow's ear,
And with the weeping drop a tear;
For others to be ever living,
To know the deep, deep joy of giving;
This joy my only meed.

To be a ray, however faint,
Where all around is dark;
To be a smile where all is gloom,
To be a blossom on a tomb,
To be a voice where all is still,
To be a spark where all is chill—
A little tiny spark.

To give my all to him who gave
So much in love to me,
Yet feel that I can never give Enough, my God, to thee.

Christian Treasury.

Destruction of a Great City.

Lippincott's Magazine for July has a graphic account of the destruction of Lisbon by an earthquake in 1755, from which we take the following:

The morning of November 1 dawned serene, but the heavens were hazy; since midnight the thermometer had risen one degree, and stood at nine o'clock at fourteen above freezing, Reaumur. As it was the feast of All Saints, the churches were thronged from an early hour, and all their altars brilliantly illuminated with thousands of tapers, and decorated with garlands of various-tinted muslins and thin silks. At a quarter of ten o'clock the first shock was felt. It was so slight that many persons attributed it to the passage of heavy wagons in the street, and even to mere fancy. Three minutes afterward a second shock occurred, so violent that it seemed as if the heavens and earth were passing away. This agitation lasted only ten minutes, and ere it diminished the greater portion of the city was in ruins. The dust raised obscured the sun; an Egyptian darkness prevailed, and, to add to the universal horror, the fearful screams of the living and the groans of the dying rose through the air. In twenty minutes all became calm again, and the people began to look around them and consider the best means of escape. Some were for going to the hills; but were soon discouraged from so doing by the rumors that those who had already gone thither were suffocating from the effects of the dense fog of dust which still rose from the falling buildings. Then they rushed toward the quays which line a part of the Tagus, but only to learn the horrible news that these had sunk into the earth with all the people and edifices upon them. Those who thought to put out to sea were told to look at the river, and lo! in its center they beheld a whirlpool which was sucking in all the vessels and boats in its vicinity, not a fragment of any of them being ever seen again. The royal palace had been entirely swallowed up, and over its site is now the vast square of the Paco, or Black Horse, one of the largest public places in Europe. The great library of the Holy Ghost was in flames, and its priceless Moorish and Hebrew manuscripts were fast becoming ashes. The opera house had fallen in, the Inquisition was no more, and the great church of San Domingo was but a heap of stones, beneath which lay crushed to atoms the entire congregation. The Irish church of St. Paul was the death-place of one thousand persons, and the palace of Bemposta, where Catherine of Braganza, widow of Charles the Second, lived and died, had fallen over from the heights on which it was built, and utterly destroyed the poor but populous part of the town which lay beneath it. In a word, where but an hour since was Lisbon, was now nothing but desolation. As to the people, who can describe their condition! At least seventy thousand persons had perished, and the majority of the survivors were cruelly wounded, and in agony of mind and body. Some went mad with fright, some lost forever the power of speech, sinners went about confessing their secret crimes, and fanatics, believing the last day had come, cried out to the horror-stricken multitude "to repent, for that Christ was coming to judge the quick and the dead."

As the day waxed on the wretched Lisbonese grew calmer, and it was universally declared that the safest places, now that the dust was diminishing, were the heights overlooking the city, and thither the majority fled. Here they found the court assembled, for the royal family was fortunately at Belem, where, strange to say, the earthquake was scarcely felt at all, and had hastened at once to the hills. The cardinal-patriarch was here also, and so was Pombal; and these two men with surprising presence of mind, by their admirable courage, were enabled before night to inspire some feeling of order in the excited throng. The king and queen behaved nobly, and the young Duke of Lafoens deserves to be immortalized for his splendid conduct. He organized a band of noblemen who went about aiding the wounded, rescuing the children, and even burying the dead. It was a strange and awful sight to see this multitude gather together on the summit of the hills which once overlooked their magnificent capital, and which now looked down upon a mere mass of smoldering ruins. As day declined and night came on, the cardinal issued a proclamation ordering all to kneel in prayer and entreat the mercy of God upon them, and then rose on the air the wailing tones of that saddest of psalms, the Miserere. When the shades of night had fully fallen a frightful discovery was made: the city was in flames in a hundred places. The conflagration was greatly increased by a strong wind blowing in from the sea. There was now no hope of saving anything, and it was but too well known that thousands of human beings who had taken refuge in the cellars and crypts were being roasted alive. But if the anxiety of the escaped was dreadful to witness, the scenes within the city itself were even more terrible. Robbers, escaped jail-birds, low sailors and degraded negroes formed bands and went about amidst the ruins pillaging the wounded of their trinkets, and even murdering those who ventured to oppose their ghastly deeds. The lewd inhabitants of the brothels broke from the rigid restraint in which they were confined by law and joined the banditti. They plundered such of the wine stores as were left intact, and, maddened with drink and probably with terror, cast off their garments and went dancing and whooping blasphemous songs through the desolate streets, if such they could now be called, while the lurid light from the innumerable fires cast a blood-colored glow on their naked and contorted forms. They got into the churches, robbed the sacred images, threw the holy vestments over their shoulders, and made the ruined vaults re-echo the shouts of their beastly revelry. From the cellars of the houses rose the piercing cries of those who were perishing of their neglected wounds, or suffocating from the effects of foul atmosphere. Here a mother wept over the bodies of all her children; there a group of timid nuns stood around their abbess and knew not which way to turn; now a fanatic rushed along, howling dismal prophecies; now a long file of white-clad Cisterclans passed by, reciting mournful prayers; and then again fell upon the ear the horrid maniacal laughter of the gang of lewd women and brutal men at their dreadful revelry.

For fifteen days was the city infested with robbers, until Carvalho—afterward the celebrated minister Pombal—set an example of courage and energy. He descended into Lisbon, and remained days and nights together in his carriage or on horseback, directing affairs and assisting in clearing away the ruins; he planted soldiers all over the city, and whoever could not give a clear account of the property found in his possession was hung then and there, and three hundred and fifty-seven persons thus perished.

St. Peter's at Rome.

Monsieur Taine says that the basilica of St. Peter's ought not to be regarded as "a church, but a monument, and from this point of view it is assuredly one of man's masterpieces." From this point of view also it belongs to the world forever, and not exclusively to any sect nor to any age.

Very few travelers approach the grand building without disappointment. It does not stir the heart with religious emotions, nor does it at once appear in its true majesty. It took ages to complete the structure. The man who conceived the original plan died long before it could be accomplished, and those who immediately succeeded him, instead of working out his designs, made great changes, which were again modified by others, and the result has been a combination of different orders of architecture, inappropriately conjoined. The facade, with its multiplied columns and its numerous statues, is not in harmony with the dome, and, although it is considered paltry, it so projects that it cannot be advantageously seen. The details in the interior are so exactly proportioned to the size of the immense edifice that the eye does not at once perceive its magnitude. There must be some familiar standard by which to measure the distances, and then one must remember the length, breadth and height compared with buildings to which one is accustomed. The facade is 368 feet long, 145 feet high; the vestibule 439 feet long, 47 feet wide, 65 feet high; and the grand interior 613 feet long, 450 feet across the transepts, and 448 feet from the pavement to the cross on the dome. You would not expect to recognize a friend at the opposite end of this church, whom you are told that the series of moving dots you saw there a few moments since was a procession of monks. There might be several congregations worshiping in the church at the same time, and neither be disturbed by the voices of the others. You may now begin to realize the magnitude of the building. But you must visit again before you can fully appreciate it.

Over the reputed grave of St. Peter an oratory or small chapel for prayer was erected, it is said, in the first century. Upon the same site Constantine, A. D. 296, founded a basilica of great size and magnificence. When it had fallen into decay the Roman pontificate was in the zenith of its power, and a new cathedral was proposed which should perpetuate the memory of the traditional crucifixion of St. Peter, and be worthy of the dignity and importance of the church supposed to be founded by him. But the design, which was begun on a grand scale, had progressed but little when the work was interrupted by the death of Pope Nicholas the Fifth, who originated it in 1450. After half a century's neglect, a new architect under Julius the Second made a new design, and the work proceeded with great activity during his lifetime. From this time, A. D. 1513, till the superintendency was awarded to Michael Angelo in 1546, numerous architects, each working on a plan of his own, were employed on the building. Although Angelo was at the time seventy-two years of age, he had the satisfaction of seeing the dome, which was his design, so far toward completion that, with the models he left, his two successors were enabled to carry out his plan exactly, and in the pontificate of Sixtus the Fifth it was finished. The building, as Michael Angelo intended it, would have been in the form of a Greek cross; a subsequent architect, returning to the original design of Bramante, made of it a Latin cross, thus, by a projecting nave, destroying much of the effect of the dome as Angelo conceived it. The entire edifice was not completed until 1626, and was then dedicated by Pope Urban the Eighth. The interior decorations are of the richest marbles, mosaic copies of celebrated paintings, and the pavements are wonderful arrangements of different-colored marbles in most beautiful [illegible]. The building of St. Peter's may be said to have occupied three centuries and a half, during which time forty-three popes reigned and died. The greatest architectural talent was employed upon it, though it is not considered creditable that the later architects should have sacrificed the grand idea of the master architect to notions of their own.

St. Peter's is not used as a church for the ordinary Sabbath services. No priest could make his voice heard by an audience suited to the size of the church. On the great feast days, especially during holy week, there are held in it great services, with processions and elaborate scenic display, which can scarcely be comprehended by a Protestant accustomed only to his simple forms of worship. The outside of the building, which is architecturally very faulty, is contrived for special use on these occasions. The Pope distributes his yearly blessing from the portico or balcony over the large entrance, and at such times the great square in front of it is crowded with people.

The "Flying Man's" Death.

A TERRIFYING SCENE IN CREMORNE GARDENS—A BALLOON SHOOTING UPWARD 23,000 FEET.

Gustave DeGroof was a Belgian who had spent many years, and all the money he could obtain, in attempts to perfect a flying machine which he had invented. A year ago he announced that his machine was at last perfect, and that he would make an ascent from Brussels on a certain day. A great crowd assembled to see the performance; but the machine would not work, and the ascent was not attempted, and the crowd, enraged at the disappointment, threw themselves upon the machine and broke it to pieces. DeGroof then came to London and built another machine. It was quite simple. It consisted of a wooden platform about three feet long and two feet wide, on which the flyer was to stand; two wings, thirty-five feet long and three feet wide, composed of cane and canvas, and a tail-piece of the same materials. The whole machine weighed three hundred pounds. Standing on the platform DeGroof could flap the wings and move the tail, and thus, although he could not ascend, he could, in his belief, fly horizontally through the air for some distance and come safely to the ground when he grew tired of flying. He made an arrangement with a balloonist, Mr. Simmons, to be taken up from Cremorne Gardens and to be allowed to cut himself loose from the balloon. The first ascent was made last week. DeGroof attached his machine to the balloon; it ascended and was carried for several miles. When at the elevation of about one thousand feet DeGroof cut the rope and set his wings in motion. The machine descended in an inclined position, and safely reached the ground after traversing a distance of about a quarter of a mile. There was a strong breeze blowing at the time, and the machine seemed to be carried with the wind. On Thursday DeGroof made his second attempt, and this ended in his death. Mr. Simmons again took him up, and the ascent was made from Cremorne Gardens, as before, in the presence of an immense assemblage. The poor fellow's wife was present; he took a long and affectionate farewell of her, and then stepped into his fatal machine, which he had previously himself attached to the balloon. The balloon ascended very rapidly to the height of four thousand feet. Simmons then made it descend; from time to time DeGroof called out to him the various altitudes, which he read from an indicator which he had with him. They were now over Chelsea, near St. Luke's church, and at an altitude of three hundred feet. DeGroof now seems to have determined to make his experiment, although what he did cannot be positively known. Simmons felt a sudden shock—the balloon sprang upward, and Simmons, looking down, saw DeGroof and his machine falling headlong to the ground. The machine seemed to have capsized. Simmons thinks that DeGroof, reaching for the rope to untie it, overbalanced himself and overturned his machine. He fell with a terrible thud upon the stones of Roberts street. His skull was fractured, his arms broken and his ribs smashed in. He was picked up dead. A mob of men and boys tore his machine to fragments, and ran off with the pieces. His wife, who had been watching her husband from Cremorne Gardens, saw him fall, and, giving a piercing shriek of agony, fainted away. Meanwhile the balloon with Simmons, thus suddenly relieved of a weight of four hundred and thirty pounds, flew upward and attained an elevation of twenty-three thousand feet. Simmons became insensible. When he recovered he found himself sailing over Victoria Park, and soon afterward the balloon descended upon a railway track just in front of an advancing train. He would have been run down had not some workmen seized upon the car and dragged it to one side just as the train passed.—London Letter (July 11) to New York Graphic.

WE TO whom the rich inheritance of intellectual humanity is so familiar as to have lost much of its freshness, are liable to underrate the value of thoughts and discoveries which to us have for years seemed commonplace. It is with our intellectual as with our material wealth: we do not realize how precious some fragments of it might be to our poorer neighbors. The old clothes that we wear no longer may give comfort and confidence to a man in naked destitution; the truths which are so familiar to us, that we never think about them, may raise the utterly ignorant to a sense of their human brotherhood.—Hamerton.

A SONG OF SUMMER.

O spirit of the summer-time!
Bring back the roses to the dells,
The swallow from her distant clime,
The honey-bee from the drowsy cells.

Bring back the friendship of the sun—
The gilded evenings, calm and late,
When merry children homeward run,
And [illegible] old lovers wait.

Bring back the singing and the scent
Of meadow lands at dewy prime;
O bring back again my heart's content,
Thou spirit of the summer time!

Golden Hours.

Not a Bit Afraid.

"Yes, I know it's a serious case; the doctor said so. But I don't trouble myself about that; I'm not a bit afraid."

"But you told me just now that you had not attended to religion a great deal. You know this is the first time I ever saw you; so I know nothing about you but what you tell me. I suppose, in fact, you have lived, like many more, without much thought about your soul."

"Yes, sir, that's it."

"And yet you are not afraid?"

"No, sir, I don't feel afraid at all. I'm not troubled in my mind. I have been nowise wicked."

The minister looked grave.

"You mean you have not been a thief, or a great drinker, or a swearer, or a liar, or anything of that sort?"

"No, no; I have not been anything of the kind. I know plenty who have; but I've always tried to live respectable."

"Well, but do you mean to say you are not a sinner?"

"Oh, we are all sinners, of course."

"But does not that mean anything? Does it not signify being a sinner?"

"I've never done anything bad in particular, as I know of. At all events I don't feel afraid."

"I wish you did," said the minister earnestly; "I wish you did with all my heart. I know I should if I were you."

The sick man looked surprised; but he made no answer, so the minister went on:

"As for me, I could not speak as you do. I know that I am a poor sinner, and that, but for my Savior, I must be lost forever. But I have gone to him and sought his blood to wash away my sins, and I do humbly believe in him; and he alone takes my fear away. You have told me what you feel, and now I have told you what I feel."

"Well, that's all right, sir, no doubt," was all the sick man said. The minister went on again:

"Oh, my friend, it will never do to say you are not afraid, while you have not gone to Christ; you ought to be afraid, you have good reason to be afraid. I must be plain with you. I dare not build you up with false hopes. Don't you know that you must stand before God and give account for all your life? Don't you know about the great judgment day, when the books will be opened? Those books will have in them all you have ever done in all your life. Can you face that? Are you not afraid when you think of that? There will be another book opened then—the book of life. That will contain the names of all who are saved by Jesus Christ. And everybody else (do you remember that?) will be cast into the lake of fire. You know you have not lived to God, you know you have not sought Christ; your religion has been nothing but a name; and, say what you will, you know quite well that you have often and often done wrong. Now how can you say you are not afraid?"

The man shifted uneasily on his bed.

"Perhaps," said he, "I ought to be more afraid than I am."

"Yes, indeed, you ought. I don't want to give you pain; I want to comfort you; but I dare not give you false comfort. I want you to see the truth. You are a poor sinner in need of a Savior. You may think lightly of your sins now, and hardly call them sins at all; but if you saw them as they really are, oh, how black they would look to you! I pray God to teach you to see yourself, and to see your sins now, before the books are opened. And now let me speak to you about Jesus Christ. He pitied as poor sinners, and came and died on the cross to save us. Thousands have been saved by him. He has never turned one away who went to him for salvation. I hope I have gone. I know I have. I could not rest in my bed if I had not. I want you to go to him too. He calls you to him. Just as you are he bids you look to him and be saved. He is willing to be your Savior. Now, remember now, he is willing to be your Savior. Do not put this off. Sometimes people put away such thoughts because they trouble them. Oh, do you do so? Here you are alone on your bed, away from everybody. Now pray, pray for the Holy Spirit to teach your heart, pray that Jesus may be your Savior. Let me pray with you before I go."

And the minister knelt down and prayed. And when he rose from his knees the sick man held out his hand, and his eyes were wet with tears, and he did not say again that he was not afraid; but he said in a low voice: "I hope God will forgive me. You'll come and see me again, sir."

DON'T GIVE LIQUOR TO CHILDREN.—One of the first literary men in the United States said to a writer, after speaking on the subject of temperance: "There is one thing which, as you visit different places, I wish you to do everywhere—that is to entreat every mother never to give a drop of strong drink to a child. I have had to fight as for my life all my days to keep from dying a drunkard, because I was fed with spirits when a child. I acquired a taste for it. My brother, poor fellow, died a drunkard. I would not have a child of mine take a drop of liquor for anything. Warn every mother, wherever you go, never to give a drop to a child."

RELIGION will never exempt a man from trouble, but it will make him happy in trouble; for he knows, go how it may with others, it is sure to be well with him.

Religious Intelligence.

SOUTH CAROLINA BAPTISTS have pledged during the past two years $160,000 of $200,000 for the endowment of Furman University, and her contributions to foreign missions were larger last year than the great majority of Southern States.

THE English Presbyterian Church is making progress in London. New preaching-places are about being opened at Streatham and Willesden. At the former place there is no Nonconformist place of worship. Ritualism is rampant, and the one evangelical Episcopal church is filled to overflowing.

THE worst form of popery, Ultramontanism, is triumphant in France. What is known as the Gallican Liturgy, which has been in use in Paris and other parts of France, has been replaced by the full Roman Liturgy. The change means the absolute submission of the French Catholic Church to the Pope.

CERTAIN members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Marengo, Illinois, who are opposed to secret societies, have organized under the title of "The Independent Church of Christ." They lately dedicated a fine new church, and are served by Rev. N. D. Fanning, late of the Rock River Conference.

THE Wesleyan missionaries in Italy report steady and most encouraging progress to their work in Aquila, among the Apennines, in Sta. Maria, in Caserta, in Salerno and Cosenza; happy tidings of spiritual blessing resting on the churches in the Island of Sicily, where there are stations at Messina, Syracuse and Avola.

A WRITER in the Morning Star, organ of the Freewill Baptists, says: "During thirty years past I have been somewhat familiar with the pulpit demand and supply of the denomination, especially in New England. In all that time I have never known so many leading churches at the same time, and for so long a period, destitute of pastors as now. All are looking and praying for the right man.

DAMASCUS.—Here, where St. Paul was converted, and where the wonderful events transpired, recorded in the ninth chapter of Acts, the Lord is to work, bringing this ancient city to himself. The missionary work is under the direction of the Presbyterians, and their prospects are most encouraging. An unusual interest is awakened among the Arabs to hear the gospel. Let the church pray that this old city be taken for Christ.

THE correspondent of the Examiner and Chronicle says: "Unmarried men for the ministry are needed in Kansas. Not that there are not plenty of young women here suitable to become ministers' wives; but there are fields in the State where prudent young men could live at less expense than married men, and give all their time to the work besides. If any are able to receive this saying, let them come, and they will soon be living proofs of the correctness of the theory."

CANADA MARRIAGE LAW.—The new Canada marriage law has come into operation. Marriage licenses are issued by the Lieutenant Governor or provincial secretary at a cost of $2 each. In case of publication of bans, such certificates will not be required. The publication of bans must take place on Sunday, in a church or other place of worship in which one of the parties has been in the habit of attending, or in the district or country where one of the parties has had his or her place of abode for fifteen days previous to the proclamation.

ON SABBATH, the fifth ultimo, the English Lutheran church at Lock Haven, Pennsylvania, was dedicated. The entire cost of the building and parsonage was $24,000, of which $10,000 remained unprovided. An effort was made to liquidate this debt, and subscriptions obtained amounting to $6,500. In the afternoon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. Lock Haven is the seat of justice of Clinton county. It is located on the west branch of the Susquehanna, twenty-eight miles above Williamsport, and has about eight thousand inhabitants.

THE Roman Catholics of Europe are, it is whispered, beginning to congratulate themselves that their gains in this country more than make good the losses they are compelled to admit they have met with at home. So now it is said that beatification is to be bestowed upon Christopher Columbus, whose claims to honor as a Roman Catholic hero have been for some time before the doctors of the canon law at Rome. The grounds for making a saint of the discoverer are that he, by an act "little less than that of inspiration," enlarged the boundaries of the Christian world.

CANADA SYNOD.—The Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Canada held its fourteenth convention in St. Peter's church (Rev. James Brezing, pastor,) Heidelberg, Canada West, June 24–28. The synod numbers 23 pastors, 56 congregations and over 6,000 communicants, stretching over a territory of 500 miles in length and 200 miles in width. The president's report shows that three ministers were ordained and installed, two changed location, two were dismissed, about $1,600 contributed to carry on the synod's work. The synod has six missions under its care, at a cost of $1,100; one young man is aided in his course of preparation for the ministry. Steps were taken to aid several more next year.

THE Roman Catholics formerly had a mission in the eastern part of Central Africa, within five degrees of the equator. For twenty years they labored among the Baris, at Gondokoro; and among the Kics, until forty missionaries had fallen victims to the deadly climate. The stations were then abandoned, with the exception of Khartum, which has nominally been maintained. Recently another plan has been adopted for the revival of this Central African mission on the White Nile. Schools for both sexes, composed of liberated slaves from the interior, have been opened in Cairo. These former slaves, after having received a Christian education, are to be sent back to their heathen countrymen, to evangelize them, with the assistance of occasional visits by European missionaries. The first caravan of such pupils started for Kardofan in 1871.

PRESIDENT W. F. WARREN, D. D., of the Boston University, said at the Evangelical Alliance: "It is a striking and cheering fact that no form of infidelity among us can boast of a single champion of even national reputation. We have no Strauss, no Renan, not even a Carl Vogt. We never had. The nearest approach to it we ever had was the forceful Unitarian preacher who ministered to the Twenty-eighth Congregational Society in Boston from 1845 to 1859. Even he had not the requisite learning or genius to enable him to propound a solitary new difficulty to the Christian scholarship of his age. We have infidel litterateurs of respectable attainments, and all too wide influence, but in all the ranks of American unbelievers the Christian apologist of learning and ability can nowhere find a foeman worthy of his steel."

YACOUB SHABANY, chief of the Samaritans, has written a letter to the London Times that since the death of James Finn, formerly British consul at Jerusalem, the Samaritans at Nablous have lost the protection which had been of great service to them. They have been excluded from a share in the government of Nablous, and their petitions for redress are unheeded. He says: "Our little community now consists of no more than 135 persons, of whom 77 are males and 58 are females. Among these there are 28 married couples, 10 widows, 19 unmarried men and boys, and 20 girls. It is on account of our small and, I lament to say, rapidly diminishing number, and also of our extreme poverty, that we are deemed unworthy of consideration and even of notice; and unless we are speedily and effectually protected and supported we may expect soon to be utterly destroyed and annihilated."

THE Rev. W. S. Perkins, of Bristol, Pennsylvania, has withdrawn from the Episcopal Church and will join the Reformed Episcopalians. In his letter to Bishop Stevens he makes this statement: "Within a few years I have been led to study the history of the English Reformation, especially with reference to the organization and legislation of the church, and am well satisfied that it is and was intended to be 'comprehensive,' a 'media via.' For some time, therefore, I have felt that as an Episcopal minister I am in a false position, and have earnestly desired to see some satisfactory way of escape from it. In the good providence of God that way has at length appeared, and in order to avail myself of it I am under the necessity of withdrawing from the ministry of the particular church known as 'The Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America,' and request you to take action under the proper canon."

CHEERING FACTS.—It was remarked by Dr. Seelye lately, says an exchange, that "there are twice as many converts to Christianity in India to-day as in the whole world at the end of the first century. After the first thousand years there were only twenty versions of the Bible; now there are 274. The first Bible society was formed in England in 1804. Now there are multitudes of them, and they printed and circulated 31,000,000 copies. In the room where Voltaire wrote his boasts that Christianity would not see the nineteenth century, a Bible depository is established. 'Many times more Bibles are circulated and read in the nineteenth century than in all centuries before. The history of Madagascar, 1826-34, is an epitome of Christianity in the first century. When the missionaries returned after banishment they found 5,000 Christians as the result of Bible reading, who had remained steadfast in spite of appalling persecution.'"

MORE missionaries like the Misses Ely, now at Bittis, Turkey, would doubtless be welcomed by the American Board. These ladies, daughters of a minister living in Erie county, New York, some six years ago became so interested in the degraded condition of the Turkish women that they offered to go out and work among them at their own expense, if the board would give them its protection. They finally went on the board's proviso that it should pay them the salary of one; but since their arrival at their chosen field they have spent more than this sum in making additions to school-houses or mission buildings, and in books and apparatus to aid them in their work. One way in which they reach the native women is by calling them in to listen to their piano music and singing, in which accomplishment they are proficient. Such labor of love cannot but be effective. It appears that Vermont has the privilege of making up the salary for these ladies this year.

NEWS of a revolution, says the Friend of India, comes to us from Corea. If this be true, it may involve in this fine but isolated peninsula toleration for at least the Romish form of Christianity. When the late king died he left a queen and an adopted son. A struggle for the regency took place between her and the boy's own father. The queen's legal right was clear; but she was said is a Christian, while the mandarin whose son is now king put himself at the head of the majority, who are opposed to all foreigners. He it was who virtually beat back both the American and French expeditions, and slaughtered missionaries and their converts. But ever since Japan received Buddhism through Corea, in A. D. 552, the two countries have been closely allied. Of late Japan has gained more influence over Corea, and has evidently supported the queen dowager's party. That this is now in the ascendant the Shanghai Herald assures us. The position is most interesting. It means that the seclusion of Corea also is at an end, as that of Anam is, at last. No portion of Eastern Asia is now sealed except Thibet and the British tributary ally of Nepal.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 15, 1874.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—112 CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the Patrooking Conferences.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
REV. A. J. BRIGGS.
REV. J. W. BUSH.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY
REV. J. G. JONES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

One Year	$2 00
Six Months	1 25
Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all Ministers of the Gospel, traveling or local, and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers, with EIGHT DOLLARS.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The College of Bishops have appointed the week of prayer for this year to begin on Friday, August 21, 1874, which day will be observed as a day of special fasting and prayer.

R. PAINE, Chairman.
H. N. MCTYEIRE, Sec.

The Week of Prayer.

The week of prayer appointed by our Bishops begins on Friday, the twenty-first. The twenty-first is to be observed as a fast-day. We suppose, of course, that preachers in charge of circuits and stations will have public services, and that the entire week will be devoted to special religious meetings. Whether such public services are necessible or not, every member of the church can keep the fast, and in private make the week of prayer a period of devout intercession to God for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Will our people remember this call to united prayer, and devote the week to earnest religious duties? If they are of one accord, and intent on the salvation of souls, we cannot doubt the result. It will be the beginning of a deeper work of grace in the hearts of thousands, and extensive revivals will prevail.

The converted man needs no arguments to satisfy him of the utility of prayer. He is himself a monument of its power, and he has in himself a demonstration of its efficacy. His conversion came out of prayer, his spiritual life has been maintained by it, and by it he retains his hold on Christ and eternal life. The Christian has a prayer-gauge in his own heart, and his experience abundantly responds to the inspired declaration that "the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." The blessing will be according to our faith. If we ask largely we shall doubtless receive largely. If we come with a strong faith, "nothing wavering," we shall be met with gifts most liberal. Between God and his people there is a covenant of manifold promises. The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and this power of prayer and communion with God are of this secret.

The fast which is to open the week of prayer should be kept. There is occasion for humiliation, self abasement, confession of sin. Before we can prevail with God in prayer we must get right within. Every secret sin must be given up, past omissions, backslidings and shortcomings must be repented of, and there must be a complete consecration. The fast, well observed, may be the more important as preparing for the work of availing prayer. Let it be, then, a genuine fast-day, in which we shall humble ourselves before God, break up the fallow ground, and begin a new and more devoted Christian life.

THE Seashore camp meeting closed on Monday morning, the third instant. In last week's ADVOCATE Dr. Tudor gave account up to Friday. The meeting seemed to increase in interest, and the last days were perhaps the best. The attendance on the second Sunday was equal to the first, the preaching-shed being full and overflowing at the eleven and three o'clock hours. More than fifteen hundred people were probably on the ground on the Sundays of the meeting, while the week-day attendance would hardly average five hundred. During the entire meeting we were favored with excellent preaching. Fifty-two preachers were present first and last, and the most of this number were present from the beginning to the close. We had three of our Bishops—Bishop Marvin for the first five days, Bishop McTyeire from Thursday until the end, and Bishop Keener all the time—and all three made full proof of their ministry. Next to the Bishops Rev. Dr. Hamilton, presiding elder of the Mobile district, labored most in word and doctrine, and his preaching was owned and blest of God. We should think that the number of conversions would exceed sixty, and a considerable number presented themselves as candidates for church membership. The work of grace in the hearts of believers was the more prominent feature of the meeting. The meetings for speaking were all most interesting, and the Holy Spirit was present in great power and demonstration. The Seashore camp meeting is becoming more and more an occasion of reunion for the Methodists of Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi. There were some in attendance from the North Mississippi and North Alabama Conferences. The time is not far when this camp ground will be the gathering-place for the Methodists of the entire Southwest. The members of the board of trustees were on the ground, and fully employed in supervising the affairs of the occasion. Individually and in solido they are entitled to the thanks of all.

Mexican Missions.

MR. EDITOR: The work in the City of Mexico moves bravely forward. Bro. Daves writes me often and fully. For reasons obvious he does not publish his plans of operation and opinions. In some instances these have been frustrated by a fraternity fully as inclsive as it is ardent. In others they have reappeared in the papers of the City of Mexico partially quoted. My own motive will sufficiently explain all the rest as to why more has not been heard of late from the city.

But in the meanwhile our chapel is being enlarged and beautified, and is going on to completion. Bro. Daves says it excites much attention, and will be unique and admirable.

He has now seven persons, all speaking the Spanish, engaged in the work, including a lady who is a native of France, but who is one of his principal teachers and his organist. He has a public school for girls and boys, free, with now one hundred and eight scholars. One of the Mexican preachers presides over it. He has also several young men who are ready to come to the United States to have their education in English and in Methodism completed. I am glad, in this connection, to state that the Rev. Tom Brown, of Woodville, Mississippi, offers to take one. What college or district school will take another?

The work opens both in and out of the city. A fine chapel, situated just where we wish it, is offered us at $3,000. Terms, $1,000 cash, the balance $100 per month, without interest.

Here is a fine opportunity for some church or Conference to have a definite enterprise in the foreign field. May God move some man, church or Conference to undertake this work, and to decide at once, as the offer now awaits an answer. I repeat it, nothing is wanting to the fullest success in this great movement, at the very heart of the Mexican nation, but the means of supporting schools and native preachers.

Bro. Daves says that a very large proportion of the people are both ignorant and poor—very poor; that it is from this class mainly we are to expect converts, and that we must not suppose, as might be inferred from speeches made, that the Mexicans in the main are highly cultivated and well to-do. A small number of the pure blood Spanish class are well read and wealthy, but these are very indifferent both to Romanism and Protestantism, or are nominally Catholics.

In the conclusion of his last letter he says: "Don't be afraid to promise the church all that it is possible for me to do." I am not; for I think that no one could have done more already in the work of starting and establishing our church in Mexico.

The Work on the Border.—We now have a mission at Corpus Christi, with forty members, under Donatlo Garcia. I subjoin to this a most admirable letter from Bro. William Headen, which will give much information about this part of the work, and also introduce to the reader Felipe Cordova, a young Mexican of thirty-five years, a good speaker and writer. He has been sent to a circuit embracing several Mexican towns on the frontier. As an evidence of the success of Bro. Garcia, I may mention that I have before me a letter written him by the Rev. Claudio Jerillet, a Spanish Catholic priest, challenging him to a discussion of Protestantism and Catholicism. A letter from Rev. James H. Tucker, who speaks Spanish readily, has this item in regard to the District Conference at Corpus Christi: "I attended the Mexican Sabbath school. A deeper interest in search of truth I have never seen manifested." Speaking of the love-feast among them, he says: "They spoke with an humble boldness that affected all who heard them." Some forty received the communion. He also calls pressingly for our Discipline in Spanish as an immediate necessity. This, I am glad to say, is in the hands of Dr. Summers, and I am looking anxiously and hourly for it. We are at a great disadvantage, both on the border and in the city, without a Discipline.

God has greatly prospered these missions. We have in all nine persons, native Mexicans, preaching the gospel every Sabbath in the Spanish language. Yours truly,

J. C. KEENER.

CORPUS CHRISTI, TEXAS, June 5, 1874.

BISHOP J. C. KEENER—Dear Sir and Friend: Rev. Donatio Garcia is doing exceedingly well. There are several awaiting our meeting to be baptized and received into the church. This congregation grows. He has an old-fashioned Methodist class meeting every Tuesday night, and prayer meeting on Thursday night. Both are well attended. He is a good pastor, and closely follows his flock. He conducts his Sunday school and preaches twice on Sunday. He will never learn English—has no turn that way. It would simply be impossible for a man of his age and habitude to acquire it. He is a student of the Bible and knows the truth. The greatest want of the church is the Discipline in Spanish. It is sadly needed.

On the eighth ultimo I sent you the following telegram:

"Bishop J. C. Keener, at General Conference Louisville, Kentucky:

"Felipe Cordova, recommended by Hernandez and the church for piety and qualifications, offers to take mission work at San Diego among Mexicans, and is needed. Will you support him?

WILLIAM HEADEN."

Bro. Cordova is a young man, say thirty to thirty-two or three years of age. He is married. He is a writer and is accustomed to public speaking. He is a man of better appearance and address than Hernandez, and one who would quickly learn English, and eagerly apply himself to do so. I have heard him speak. He preached for Bro. Donatlo, and his sermon was excellent. He is a spiritual man. All the Mexican church speak well of him in this matter. I told him to go to San Diego, which is a large Mexican town, sixty miles from here, and try and build up a church. He did so and has had good success. On his way there—at Rancho Presenas—he gathered a congregation of twenty and preached to them. I gave him letters to two friends of mine (Americans) in San Diego. They received him well, and one gave him a room, rent free, for services. He has gone to Mier, on the Rio Grande, for his family.

Respectfully and sincerely yours,
WILLIAM HEADEN.

Death of Dr. A. L. P. Green.

The sad news of Dr. Green's death reached us while at the Seashore camp ground, and we had then no time to read about it, and none to make extracts. We give below, from the Nashville Christian Advocate, Dr. Summers' account of the last days of the distinguished and lamented dead. Dr. Green makes a large figure in the history of the Southern Methodist Church, and no man in it was more widely known, none more generally loved and respected. He was a man rarely endowed, versatile but well-balanced, and combined some of the elements of genius with the highest sagacity and good sense. He was genial, broad-minded, and full of tender and glowing sympathies. His services to the church, during the most trying periods of its history, cannot well be overestimated. About his last work was done at the General Conference at Louisville, and the last time that we met him was in the committee-room. He was then feeble in body, but his mind worked finely and clearly, and his views and suggestions were characterized by the far-sightedness and wisdom for which he was always eminent. Dr. Summers says:

Dr. Green is dead!

The tidings strike a doleful sound
On our poor heart-strings!

We can hardly believe it; we "cannot make him dead!" Yet he is dead! He died on Wednesday afternoon, July 15, at two o'clock. Dr. Eve came to our office in the morning, and told us that he considered him in extremis. In company with Bishop McTyeire, and Drs Redford and Young, we instantly repaired to the house of Mr. Thomas D. Fite—son in-law of the doctor—where he had so long lived, and where he was about to die, but we could not then have an interview with him. A few hours after Bro. W. H. Evans came after us—the doctor was dead! We hastened to the house of mourning, where we found Dr. Hargrove, Dr. Eve (who with Dr. John W. Maddin was present at his death) and other friends, with the family. We mingled our sorrows and tears and prayers. Bishop McTyeire shortly after arrived, and added his sympathies and prayers. The scene was inexpressibly impressive.

In death the doctor was like himself—conscious, collected, calm. He said to his son, Captain Frank Green—who was attending him with the kindest filial care—that he wished to turn over on his side—suited the action to the word—and serenely breathed his spirit into the bosom of his Savior. His quiet departure reminds us of what Jeremy Taylor says of the Lord Primate of Ireland, in his funeral discourse for that eminent Archbishop:

"His death could not be unexpected, or unprovided by surprise, and therefore could be no other than that euthanasia which Augustus used to wish unto himself, a civil and well-natured death, without the amazement of troublesome circumstances, or the great oracles of a falling house, or the convulsions of impatience. Seneca tells that Bassus Aufidius was wont to say he hoped that the pains of the last dissolution were little or none; or, if they were, it was full of comfort that they could be but short. It happened so to this excellent man! His passive fortitude had been abundantly tried before, and therefore there was the least need of it now; his active graces had been abundantly demonstrated by the great and good things he did, and therefore his last scene was not so laborious, but God called him away after the manner of Moses, which the Jews express by osculum oris Dei, the kiss of God's mouth—that is, a death indeed foresignified, but gentle and serene, and without temptation."

Dr. Green had been suffering for several years from a virulent tetter, which spread all over his body, causing almost intolerable torment. Our foremost physicians had exhausted the skill of the profession to effect a cure, but in vain. He went to the Hot Springs of Arkansas more than once—experienced some relief, but no cure. The disease seemed to reach a crisis while he was attending the session of the General Conference in Louisville. He stayed with us at the Louisville Hotel, and everything that friends could do for him was done; but before the Conference adjourned he had to return to Nashville. Here he took part in the obsequies of the Rev. F. E. Pitts, who preceded him to the spirit-land; and was in the programme for the obsequies of his friend, the late venerable Dr. Maddin, which took place June 21, but he was not able to be present. He had assisted us at the communion in McKendree church, the first Sunday in June; and closed the service after our sermon at night in the same church. He expressed himself as greatly interested in the discourse—it was on the last judgment—and in his prayer he gave a resume of the sermon, with remarkable accuracy and great fervor of devotion. He also closed the service after Dr. Hargrove on the next Sunday, June 14—and this, we believe, terminated his public labors.

A metastasis of the disease to the bowels took place, and nothing short of a miracle could stay the hand of death. Drs. J. W. and T. L. Maddin, Eve, Menees and other physicians—the most eminent of the profession—did all that medical skill could do—his friends were unceasing in their efforts to afford relief—but "the Lord's appointment is the servant's hour," and that hour had come! A few days before his death we had a pleasant interview with him. On remarking to him: "The doctors say you are better; are you better?" he replied in his usual tone, like that of Bishop Soule: "No, sir." "Your mind is kept in perfect peace?" "Yes, sir." He was very feeble, but he conversed with considerable ease, and gave us the cheering assurance that all was well. He asked us to unite with him in prayer; and he responded very fervently to our petitions, except such as referred to his recovery. "The call" seems to have been "whispered to his heart," and he was preparing to remove

And leave the dull body below,
And fly to the regions above.

He was himself all through the final scene. During his years of extreme suffering no one ever heard him complain or repine. He would converse, write, preach, make speeches—do everything the occasion required—and none but his intimate friends would suspect there was anything the matter with him, except as there would be an uncontrollable effort to relieve himself of the tormenting pain which he endured. His natural dread of death and aversion to the grave was effectually overcome; and, as all his children and grandchildren are Christians, he looked forward with pleasure to their gathering together, a family group, both in the quiet tomb and in the home above! Bishop McTyeire, Drs. Hargrove, Kelley, Redford and others had frequent interviews with him, which were all pleasant and edifying.

The Round Lake Camp Meeting.

This meeting, near Saratoga, New York, which began on the eighth of July, and continued two weeks, occupies much space in our Northern exchanges. There were representative men present from nearly every branch of American Methodism. The attendance was large, and it is estimated that two hundred souls were converted. Among the Southern preachers present were Bishops Kavanaugh and Doggett, and Rev. Drs. McFerrin, Lee, Sargent, Poisal and Deems. Of the addresses at the love-feast we give the following:

The venerable Dr. Green, of Canada, spoke for the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Canada: "This is a great day in Israel. The Dominion of Canada salutes the United States of America, and the Wesleyan Church in Canada presents its greetings to all the branches of the Methodist Church on this continent. We have a peculiar, filial affection for the Methodist Episcopal Church, for we owe to you our existence.

"Eighty-four years ago there was in this region a presiding elder's district which extended south as far as New York, east to Boston, north as far as Montreal, and west beyond the great falls of Niagara. A very large district, to be sure; but there were giants in those days, and among those giants, and the prince of them all, was Rev. Freeborn Garrettson. He sent out scouts into all this region, and one came across into Canada, and reported that it was a good field for Methodism. The next Conference, sitting in Albany, in 1790, sent the first appointed Methodist preachers into Canada."

He then briefly sketched the growth of the work in the Dominion, and spoke of the efforts now making to unite all the different branches of Methodism in Canada, saying the Canada Conference and the Eastern British American Conference are already united, and the brethren of the New Connection Church are expected soon to be organically connected with us. I have been glad to see that some courting is going on between the two great Methodist bodies among you, and I hope it will continue to go on until the wedding itself shall be consummated. Indeed, if I were duly authorized, I would take the hand of this venerable Bishop here (Kavanaugh) and place it in the hand of the venerable Bishop there (Janes,) and say: "Whomsoever God has joined together let man never put asunder." (Ameus and applause.)

We have had some progress. Our first little Conference of seventeen has grown to a ministry of seven hundred, and our membership has reached seventy-five thousand.

More than one-fourth of all the people of Upper Canada at the last census reported themselves as Methodists. More than one-half of all the church buildings are Methodist churches. But I thank God for all that he has done for me personally. I have been happy for fifty-four years, but I have never been so happy as on this camp ground. I can say, with Bishop Janes: "Christ is my Savior from sin." I have never before felt as I do now on this subject of Christian union. O how I felt when you were singing:

"One family, we dwell in him;
One church above, beneath."

I wish I had time to tell you more of our church. But the best of all is, God is with us.

Silent prayer was again offered.

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love" was sung, and Rev. Bishop Kavanaugh spoke for the Church South, as follows:

"I feel wonderfully impressed with the exercises of this meeting. How refreshing was the report of our brother from Canada. I have the honor to represent the Methodist Episcopal Church South, well-nigh a twin sister of your own church. I believe she is a full twin. For the last eight or nine years the work of God has been going on in power. The unfortunate and ever to be regretted late war left our country very much impoverished. Yet church building has gone on as heretofore, and is now progressing at the rate of a church a day throughout the year. The preachers have labored earnestly, and the Bishops have worked up to the top of their ability. We have introduced District Conferences among us, which the Bishops attend as far as possible; and this, with our other work, keeps us so on the wing that my only time for reading is found on the cars.

"I came up to Round Lake to get my shallows filled up, and the stream has been flowing and flowing ever since I came, until I began to wonder how it will be when I go away. Bro. Green said the two churches North and South had fallen in love. I own up to the passion, and can say, with Bro. Green: I never spent so happy a week in my life as the past. I used to think you cool, but I am corrected. I supposed you cool and calculating, and a little that. I see I was wrong. I have been surprised at such warm, fervent preaching, and I asked how it was, and was told it was because the preachers had been encouraged to lay aside their manuscripts. Well, paper is a poor conductor, and I have seen but one or two manuscripts in the whole meeting.

"We are not laboring in vain in our field. Our District Conferences exercise a close scrutiny over the whole work, and I am sorry to say that I fear we have not so much family religion as we used to have. I have been a little over fifty years in the ministry, and am ecclesiastically something of a mongrel. My father was an Episcopal minister and my mother was a Methodist. At the age of thirteen I went to live with a Presbyterian minister; was awakened under a Baptist sermon, and was travelling with a Presbyterian minister when I was converted. I inclined toward the Presbyterians, but when I began to study into Methodist doctrines and usages I found I was a Methodist. Their theology fitted my views exactly, and their experience filled my heart all full. God has been with me, and of late I have had a more earnest hungering and thirsting after righteousness. Thank God that I came to Round Lake camp meeting. I shall never get out from under the impression of this meeting, and I wish that all my brethren had been here to enjoy it,

"'Our hearts by love together knit.'

"The affection for my Northern brethren has taken deep root in my heart. God grant it may spread all over the land."

Bishop D. S. Doggett, who arrived this morning, was introduced by Bishop Janes, and said: "I have just reached the encampment, have not recovered from the fatigue of the journey, and have been an invalid for the past three weeks. I have been glad to join you in this family gathering, though sickness has somewhat delayed me. I do not arise under so much of the influence of this gathering as Bishop Kavanaugh. I bring up the rear. I come to get a blessing. I thank God in regard to the spirit and object of the gathering. I am not straitened in my own bowels. I felt the force of the call for this reunion of all the branches of our Methodism, and determined to be present. I am a perfect stranger from the far South, and I confess I came with a little timidity; but it all vanished the moment I stepped upon the platform. The Methodistic cordiality and hospitality made me feel at once at home here. We Methodists understand each other immediately. Our ideas are the same upon the great doctrines of the inner life. I indorse all that Bishop Kavanaugh has said, and he might have said much more. I only wish, Bishop Janes, that I could speak from the same standpoint with you, who have been for nearly two weeks enjoying those precious privileges. I shall be happy if, being too late for the early, I shall receive the latter rain of divine blessing. I was converted at a camp ground in northern Virginia, and I have never forgotten the impressions of that hour. If there was ever a child of grace, and a child of Providence, he stands before you now."

As the distinguished stranger turned to sit down, Bishop Peck grasped his hand warmly and shook it heartily in the presence of the whole congregation. Silent prayer was offered, and with great feeling all sang:

"Together let us sweetly live,
Together let us die,
And each a starry crown receive,
And reign above the sky.

"And if our fellowship below
In Jesus be so sweet,
What heights of rapture shall we know
When round the throne we meet?"

Death of Mrs. Thomas Samford.

The following communication from Bro. Hailslip brings tidings of the decease of this venerable Christian woman, widow of Rev. Thomas Samford:

Mrs. Jane Samford, widow of the late Rev. Thomas Samford, of the Louisiana Conference, is dead. She died in great peace, at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. R. D Bateman, in Jefferson, Texas, July 16, 1874.

The writer was called to see her on Sunday morning, July 12, and from that time until her death was with her every day. He told her that death was near, and asked if she was ready. Her answer was: "Yes." When asked if she had any message to leave for her children she answered: "Tell them to be ready."

Sister Samford was buried on the sixty-third anniversary of her marriage. Her husband was in the itinerant work after their marriage about sixty years, during all of which time she was ready to go anywhere the interests of the church demanded. She was a faithful wife, a kind mother and a devoted Christian. She was in her seventy-ninth year at the time of her death. She had no well-marked disease, but died from a general failure of the powers of nature. She literally fell asleep. The writer had known her personally but a few months, and hence cannot give a sketch of her life, but hopes that some one of her old friends will.

THE Georgia Methodists are getting thoroughly waked up and at work in behalf of their college. It is time that Mississippi and Louisiana should be more zealously aroused for Centenary. Concerning Emory the Southern Christian Advocate says:

Bishop Pierce feels confident he will raise the endowment fund for Emory College before one great while. Already our people are looking to it and working for it. The presiding elders have all agreed to work for it. We propose to raise $30,000 within a year to endow a Pierce professorship. One gentleman not a member of our church gave $1,000, payable by January 1. Let others go and do likewise. Let everybody help. We saw a little girl at Oxford, not more than ten years old, who was gathering pins to sell for the benefit of Emory endowment. Let the good work go on.

THE St. Louis Christian Advocate of July 29 comes out reduced in size and changed in its general arrangement. It is still an eight page paper, but made up after the form of the New York Observer, with one-half devoted to secular matters and the other to religious. It is two papers in one, with separate headings, and so paged that they may be cut apart, and read and filed separately. The arrangement is admirable, and the St. Louis, in its new form and style, is, we think, a great improvement on the old. We wish our able confrere a prosperous and long career.

SEE the eighth page for particulars concerning the Crystal Springs camp meeting. The camp ground is on the railroad—very accessible and pleasantly located—and we doubt not the meeting will be numerously attended and result in great good. It begins on Wednesday, August 19, 1871.

THE advertisement of Greensboro Female College will be found in another column. President White was for several years president of Reidsville Female College, South Carolina, and has an excellent record and a large experience as an educator.

THE honorary degree of D. D. was conferred on Rev. C. G. Andrews, president of Centenary College, at the recent commencement of Randolph Macon College. This degree has never been more worthily conferred.

WE acknowledge the reception of an invitation and a complimentary ticket to the fifth Cincinnati Industrial Exposition, which opens on Wednesday, September 2, and continues until Saturday, October 3.

REV. JOHN MATHEWS, pastor of the Felicity Street church of this city, was taken sick on the camp ground and compelled to return before the close of the meeting. He is now about and doing well.

THE false face must hide what the false heart doth know.

Letter from Bishop Paine.

HIS OLD ASSOCIATES—MADDIN, PITTS AND GREEN.

GRENADA DISTRICT CONFERENCE,
Abbeville, Miss., July 18, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: I cannot describe my feelings when you informed me, yesterday, that Dr. Green had died the day before. My early friends and associates in the ministry are all leaving me. Dr. Maddin was admitted with me into the Tennessee Conference in 1818. I had attended the session in 1817, held in Franklin, and had been employed by the presiding elder, T. L. Douglass, on the Nashville circuit as helper, Miles Harper being assistant preacher. Bro. Maddin was, I believe, not at that Conference, but during that year he too was employed. In the fall of 1818 we were regularly admitted as probationers. For many years we labored together as brothers in the Lord. He was a model gentleman in manners, uniformly pious, and much admired for his prudence, talents and usefulness. Gentle, loving and faithful, he ripened for the garner, and was gathered by the reaper to his reward in heaven. He was the only itinerant preacher, out of about one hundred connected with the Conference of 1818, whose name was on the roll when he died. If any survive, except myself, I know it not. B. Harwell may be alive. Now I am alone; yet not alone, for Christ is with me.

Fountain E. Pitts must have been twelve or fifteen years younger. He was a different type of a preacher—impulsive; more demonstrative in his religious feelings, his fervid soul poured forth burning words. He was a great man for camp meetings, an ambassador of Christ to the multitudes. He was bold, fiery and sometimes almost overpowering: an "Euroclydon"—a storm at sea; while Dr. Maddin was instructive, persuasive, and his sermons full of thought and tenderness, melting his hearers and himself to tears. If one was Peter, the other was John.

Dr. Green was unlike both. He had more fancy but less imagination than Bro. Pitts—his pictures were more simple and natural. He had telescopic as well as telescopic mind. Little things as well as great things arrested his attention. He was a close observer of nature and of man. He had read a good deal and had studied more. His personnel was imposing; his countenance and manner attracted confidence, which acquaintance ripened into esteem and love. He had a big head full of brains, a big heart full of sympathy, and a great soul full of love to God and man. All his qualities were unselfishly wielded for the good of the church. As a preacher, pastor and presiding elder he was admired and useful. He had extraordinary business capacities, and his influence would have been positive and powerful in any society where statesmanship was demanded. He was truly a wise, good and great man. I have known him long and intimately—no man more intimately; have tried and trusted and loved him dearly, and have ever found him all that friend and brother could in their highest sense imply. I feel bereaved and saddened by the heavy loss of three such men in my old Conference, each eminent in his peculiar sphere, but all good and true and faithful unto death." Thank God there is a common and eternal home for all "that die in the Lord," and in it Jesus is there. What a beautiful home, what a holy and glorious state to be forever with him and them!

R. PAINE.

Western Methodist.

Northwest Texas.

MR. EDITOR: Land may be rented in this country at one-fourth of the cotton crop, one-third of the corn and one half of the wheat, the landowner furnishing the seed. Some rent for money at $5 per acre. The rents are usually small and not of the best quality. Lumber can be bought now at Dallas or Waco, our railroad depots, at $22 per thousand. Corn will probably sell this fall at fifty cents at gathering-time. Heretofore it has always commanded a dollar in the spring, so I am informed. Flour now sells at from $3 to $3 50 per hundred weight. Groceries and dry goods sell for not more than fifty per cent. on New Orleans wholesale prices.

We have gathered an average crop of small grain. The corn for a heavy crop is made, and an unsurpassed prospect for cotton smiles in our fields.

Any kind of skilled labor can find employment, so far as I have learned, but I suppose not at a price in advance of what you have been used to in the more eastern Gulf States.

From this place to Dallas is sixty-three miles; to Waco, eighty-five miles; to Fort Worth, thirty-five miles.

The latter place will in all probability be our railroad depot before another new year. Our next fall's crop may find a market and transportation there.

Yours fraternally,

S. D. AKIN.

RANEURY, Hood Co., Texas, July 17, 1874.

THE venerable Rev. Henry Boehm, traveling companion of Bishop Asbury, entered upon his one hundredth year last month. The occasion was celebrated by a meeting at the house of his son-in-law, Mr. Emley, Jersey City, New Jersey. Dr. J. Wakeley made an address rich in historical lore. In this address he stated that Father Boehm had traveled on horseback over one hundred thousand miles in his itinerant work. Father Boehm has been seventy-three years in the ministry.

PROF. LUPTON, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, expects to leave for Europe, August 25, to be absent for eight months, in the interest of the Vanderbilt University. His headquarters will be Heidelberg, Germany. He will take measures to make the Vanderbilt well furnished in everything necessary for instruction in chemistry. We hope the professor will have a prosperous voyage, and that he will keep us well informed concerning what he sees and does in Europe.

A CORRESPONDENT of the London Times, in a letter about the Pope, says:

"The eagerness with which Protestants from all countries, and especially from England and America, press forward in the Vatican antechambers, suing for the honor of kissing the cross on the pontifical slipper, [illegible] and almost intoxicating effect on the aged pontiff's feeble imagination, who is incapable of referring that ardent desire to see him to mere idle curiosity, but attributes it to real veneration for his office as well as for his person."

AT THE late commencement of the Southern University, Alabama, the honorary degree of D. D. was conferred on Rev. T. M. Finney, of St. Louis.

MARRIED.

BREWER—GALLAGER.—At the Moreau street Methodist Episcopal Church South, New Orleans, Louisiana, August 8, 1874, by Rev. J. Lane Burden, Mr. George Brewer to Miss A. E. Gallager.

Publisher's Department.

Acknowledgments of Letters and Funds

RECEIVED BY MAIL,

For the Week Ending Aug. 8, 1874.

A—Edwin Alden, A. F. Andre, J. H. Ashley $24, P. S. Alexander, J. H. Appel, American Sunday School Union, American News Company.

B—A. G. Brown, J. H. Butler & Co., James E. Bradley, A. H. Bradley 35 cents, Berry & Co. $2.25, Z. W. Barnes $2, H. P. Bawen, R. W. Bounds, G. J. Bohrle, J. W. Boswell, J. P. Billingsley two letters, S. H. Bonner, Bigbee & Main.

C—H. H. Chandler & Co. $2.25, Jesse G. Cottingham, C. W. Carter, Cincinnation Tool Company, Cowperthwait & Co., A. W. Campbell $2, W. T. Fox, Claxton, Bemsen & Haffelfinger.

D—C. H. DuBose, C. Deckers, R. A. Davis two letters $5, Jennie R. Daniel $1, A. M. L. Douglass, S. W. Douglass, O. H. P. Davis 50 cents, A. M. Deckman, John B. Denton two letters $2.

E—Esterbrook Steel Pen Company, O. Emley, John H. Evans.

F—W. N. Francis, William S. Fonte, E. N. Freshman, Firey & Murks $10, Jesse Fulton $2, M. C. Field.

G—George W. Graves, Gaehl & Lincoln, John T. Graham $1.50.

H—E. J. Hale & Son, William W. Harding, H. G. Hewitt, J. E. Heath 50 cents, W. R. Horn $1, J. O. Howell, A. W. High, Atherin Hall, John W. Haskew $1.65, Hoyt & Gilchrist.

J—W. J. Joyce, James St. John Stationery Company, T. L. James, A. Mc. Jones.

K—M. C. Keith, W. P. Kimball, A. Ac Kilkough, J. T. Kilgore $50, J. C. Kittrell, L—R. B. Long $19.15, A. C. Littlejohn four letters $50, W. E. M. Laulight, Lee, Shepard & Dillingham two letters, Limerick & Co., J. B. Lippincott & Co., George M. Liverman $10, J. B. Lancaster, H. C. Lee.

M—A. A. Moore, Mississippi Valley Transportation Company $52.17, J. Everett Martin, P. H. Moss, Elbert Mines, W. B. May, A. H. Moss $201.72, William H. Morris, Whitten McDonald, J. Gorton Miller, J. Morrow, J. McMurray & Co. $19, O. M. Marsh $7.50, John Mathews $6, John H. McLean.

N—C. R. Norman, E. J. Norwood $6.50, J. A. Nance.

O—W. P. Owen $2, James Ormond.

P—Thomas Price $9.16, Isaac Pipes $1, Mrs. Ike Perkins, B. A. J. Parker, M. S. Park, G. J. Penn, R. T. Parish, C. Pope, W. J. Powers.

Q—L. J. Quinn.

R—E. E. F. Ross, George P. Rowell & Co. two letters, James Reed, J. K. Ramsill two letters, A. H. Redford agent, Johnson Reed 50 cents, Ira B. Robertson, Ed. J. Rauzier.

S—Mrs. F. A. Shaver, Scribner, Welford & Armstrong, Theo. F. Shaffer, W. L. Sibley, J. W. Schermerhorn & Co., J. L. Skipper 50 cents, Charles K. Sweet, W. D. Stayton $2, Mr. Shepherd, Sims, Harrison & Co., Southwestern Book and Publishing Company, George S. Schofield, Smith & Boatner, R. A. Sibley $2, J. T. Stapleton & Bros. $2.20.

T—Mrs. Virginia A. Triay 50 cents, R. A. Thomasson, George F. Thompson, A. H. Taylor.

V—E. L. Vemler.

W—Jere. S. Williams, T. J. Worthy, James L. Wright 50 cents, T. B. Wahlen $2, R. S. Woodward $1, William Wood & Co., J. J. Wheat $12, Charles E. Warburton, L. M. White, Willy Wallach, A. R. Winfield $25, B. F. White, J. C. Wooters & Co., C. Whitfield.

From Milton, Florida, $9.75.

By steamer Parsons, 50 cents.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now making a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

A. C. LITTLEJOHN, ESQ., is our sole agent for the State of Texas. We commend him to the courtesies of our friends having advertisements for insertion or other business to transact with the ADVOCATE.

VALLEY GEM PIANO.—Among the pianos which attract a very large share of attention in Northwest Hall are the Grand Scale and Valley Gem Pianos, shown by the Olds Valley Piano Company, of Ripley, Ohio. That the buyers of pianos have not been slow to appreciate the advantages of economy and consequent improvement in quality which are secured by the production of the instruments at a point where rents are low, where the cost of labor is lessened by the reduced cost of living, where the amount of capital to be invested in grounds and buildings is merely nominal when compared with investment for similar purposes in New York and Boston, where taxes are light, lumber cheap, is shown by the number of the instruments sold in this city alone, the sales of the well-known house of D. H. Baldwin & Co. having been nearly three hundred during the past year—a rate of almost one piano per day. In the pianos shown in this year we find an increased largeness and depth of tone, with also greater brilliancy, while all the firmness of touch and tone which betokens the durable piano are fully maintained.—Industrial Exposition Notes.

CHURCH AND SABBATH SCHOOL FURNITURE.—If any of our readers are interested in furnishing churches, Sabbath schools, pastors' offices or schools, we refer them to the advertisement of the Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Company in our columns.

PIANO MANUFACTURERS.—We direct attention to the advertisement of Messrs. Biere & Son, 178 Court street, Cincinnati, manufacturers of pianos, who assure their customers that no inferior instrument shall go out of their establishment.

CHURCH ORGANS.—We call the attention of those needing an organ-builder, either to build or repair, to the advertisement of Henry Pilcher, 656 Portland avenue, Louisville, Kentucky.

WOOD ENGRAVER.—See advertisement of James S. Patterson, No. 28 Beekman street, New York.

ENGRAVING ON WOOD.—See advertisement of J. W. Hart, 258 Race street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY, ASHLAND, KY.—See advertisement elsewhere.

EMINENCE COLLEGE, EMINENCE, KY.—See advertisement elsewhere.

WE GATHER the following testimony from the local columns of the Methodist:

"ABOUT PIANOS.—A Reliable Piano Firm.—We take pleasure in calling attention to Messrs. Chambers & Son's 'special safe offer' in another column. In these days, when the market is flooded with cheap imitations of pianos that are dear at any price, we would give a seasonable word of advice. Buy of responsible makers; and from personal knowledge [illegible] of Chambers & Son, piano makers, as worthy of the fullest confidence. Instruments of their make, many years old, are now valued by their owners as highly as the day they were bought. The 'Chambers pianos' are known throughout the country as 'Sterling pianos.' They are highly commended and indorsed by the most eminent artists, pianists and amateurs, and Messrs. Chambers & Son refer to a long list of patrons, comprising many of the most cultivated ladies and gentlemen of New York and other cities."

PLANTATION MACHINERY.—Perhaps there is no firm in this country so well and favorably known as manufacturers of plantation machinery as Messrs. Lane & Bodley, of Cincinnati, Ohio. In their advertisement in another column they state simply the truth when they say: "Our machinery is strong, simple and well made, and is especially adapted to the wants of farmers and planters for ginning, sawing and factory use." For illustrated catalogues address Messrs. Lane & Bodley, John and Water streets, Cincinnati, Ohio.

LEATHER-PRESERVER.—We call special attention to the advertisement of W. N. Thomson, manufacturer of a valuable leather-preserver for boots, shoes, harness, belting and hose; also dealer in lace leather, rivets, burs, belt hooks, belt studs and punches, and all goods connected with the belting business, No. 52 Race street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

STAR IRON WORKS.—We direct the attention of our readers who may be interested in the manufacture or trade in safes, bank vaults, iron railings, sky-lights, awning frames, iron doors, verandas, etc., to the advertisement of Messrs. Walton, Heimler & Co., Nos. 231 and 236 West Pearl street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MONUMENTS AND STATUARY.—In another column will be found an advertisement headed "Monuments a Specialty." The proprietor keeps American and Scotch granite, and statuary imported from Italy. Address A. White, 253 and 257 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

GLASS STAINERS.—We refer the reader to the advertisement of Belcher & Povey, glass stainers and benders, 13 West Broadway, corner of Reade street, New York.

THE demand for the Halford Leicestershire Table Sauce, by guests who best understand how to make most palatable their soups, fish and meats, indicates all the best hotel proprietors in the country to place it constantly upon their tables. jy23 4t

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE METAPHYSICIAN, a new quarterly magazine, will be issued from the METAPHYSICAL UNIVERSITY, 51 Bond street, New York, July 20. The METAPHYSICIAN will discourse on many subjects from various standpoints, interesting and profitable to all classes, especially the Friendly Circle. It is gotten up in superior style. Subscription—One dollar per annum; single numbers, Thirty cents. Will be mailed to any address on receipt of price. jy30 1m

THIS is no intoxicating beverage or doctored liquor, to lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but a strictly medical preparation made from roots and herbs, suitable to any age or condition. As a family remedy Simmons' Liver Regulator is equal to an entire medicine-chest. au13 1t

BUY WERLEIN'S PIANOS, such as the Chickering, Dunham, Hale, Pleyel, etc., which are the best in the market. Sold at low prices, and on easy terms, if desired. New Pianos at $350, $375, $400, $450, $500, $550 and $600, at $20 per month. Second-hand Pianos at $80, $90, $75, $100, $125, $150, $175, $200, $225 and $250, some at $10 per month; fully warranted with renewed actions. Estey's, Needham's and Woods' Organs at low rates. Have added Blackmer's large stock of Sheet Music. Band Instruments and strings in great variety. Band Instruments, etc., repaired. PHILIP WERLEIN'S Mammoth Music House, Nos. 78, 80, 82 and 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. de25 1y

PIERSON & HEWS, fine Clothing, Shirts and Furnishing Goods, 14 and 15 Camp street, opposite City Hotel, New Orleans, Louisiana. We invite visitors from the interior to examine our stock and prices. We claim to sell first-class goods as low as can be afforded and live. We sell the celebrated Shoulder-Seam Shirts, warranted to fit, wear and give satisfaction. Liberal deduction made to Clergymen, and their trade solicited. mh5 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

KEARNEY'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

is the only pure and unadulterated preparation prepared by a prominent, reliable and scientific physician of thirty years' practice. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its superiority in speedy and permanent cures of General Drowsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and all affections of the Kidneys in both sexes. The greatest Tonic and Diuretic of the age. Be sure and get

KEARNEY'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

Pleasant and agreeable in taste, and efficacious in its curative qualities.

Depot—101 Daune Street, New York.

☞ Price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists everywhere. au14 1y&e

au13 3m eow

GLASS STAINERS
AND BENDERS.
BELCHER & POVEY,
13 West Broadway, cor. Reade St.,
NEW YORK.
Works—Newark, N. J. au13 1y

JAMES S. PATTERSON,
WOOD ENGRAVER,
28.....Beekman Street.....28
au13 1y NEW YORK CITY.

CHAMBERS'
STERLING PIANOS.
"SPECIAL SAFE OFFER."
☞ READ! MARK! WRITE! ☜
Before you buy, send for information, circulars and price list. Guarantee unlimited. Pianos sent for approval, and satisfaction assured by our "Special Safe Offer." Address CHAMBERS' PIANO FACTORY, 3361 Fourth Ave., New York. au13 1m

$10 A DAY.—Employment for all. Patent Novelties. GEO. L. FELTON & CO., 119 Nassau street, New York. au13 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TURPIN'S CELEBRATED

EXTRACT OF MEAD.

THE ONLY GENUINE RECIPE FOR

MAKING MEAD SIRUP AND MEAD SODA.

DIRECTIONS HOW TO USE ON EACH BOTTLE.

THIS BRISK AND MOST LUSCIOUS BEVERAGE is becoming daily more popular throughout the principal cities of the United States. As a cooling, soothing and thirst-quenching beverage it has no superior.

Families can make their own Sirup by following the directions on each bottle of my Extract. It is superior to Lemonade in warm climates. A little water added to this Sirup quenches thirst and imparts a cooling feeling throughout the body. Those who have used it have pronounced it the NECTAR of tropical countries. Try it once and you will never be without it.

The undersigned, being the compounder and sole proprietor, warns the public against all counterfeits. Price, per dozen bottles, $12. One bottle is sufficient to flavor thirteen gallons of Mead Soda or three gallons of Mead Sirup. Address

ERNEST TURPIN,
Nos. 112 and 114 Poydras Street, New Orleans.

au13 1m

GREENSBORO
FEMALE COLLEGE,
ALABAMA.

REV. THOMAS WARD WHITE, President, assisted by an experienced and thoroughly qualified Faculty, capable of imparting instruction in all the departments of a first-class institution.

Course of Instruction.

THE SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

is divided into four classes—Elementary, Primary, Intermediate and Academic—in which all the branches of a thorough English education are taught.

COLLEGIATE DEPARTMENT.

JUNIOR CLASS.

English Composition, Algebra, Ancient Geography and History, Latin (Cæsar and Virgil,) French, Greek and German.

MIDDLE CLASS.

Philosophy, Chemistry, Geometry, Rhetoric, Botany, Astronomy, Watts on the Mind, Latin (Sallust and Cicero,) French, Greek and German.

SENIOR CLASS.

English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Evidences of Christianity (Butler's Analogy, Trigonometry, Invlex' University Arithmetic, Latin (Horace and Tacitus,) French, Greek and German.

☞ Daily attention is given to Penmanship, and Compositions are required weekly from every member of the institution. au13 4t

METHODIST MALE AND FEMALE
HIGH SCHOOL,
TROY, ALABAMA.

PROF. R. J. WALKER, President.
MISS EUGENIA RICHARDSON, Assistant in Literary Department.
MRS. R. J. WALKER, Teacher of Music.

First session will open SEPTEMBER 1, 1874. Experienced and competent teachers. Discipline rigid; instruction thorough. Health for town; refined and intelligent people. Board, $12 to $15 per month. Tuition, $3, $5 and $6 per month. Music on Piano, $5; Guitar, $4.

Refer to Colonel E. B. Wilkerson, Hon. W. H. Parks and Rev. W. H. Biggs, all of Troy, Ala., and Rev. S. P. Richardson Greenville, Ala. au13 2t

A HOUSEHOLD WITHOUT TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT within reach lacks an important safeguard of health and life. A few doses of this standard remedy for Indigestion, Constipation and Biliousness relieve every distressing symptom and prevent dangerous consequences. For sale by the entire drug trade. au9 1y

$2,500 A YEAR made with our grand COMBINATION PROSPECTUS.

Represents 50 different books. Agents say this is

THE BEST THING EVER TRIED.

The books sell themselves in every family, and good men can make a business for life in our county. Agents Wanted on these and our magnificent Editions of Family Bibles. Full particulars free on application. Address JOHN E. POTTER & CO., Publishers, Philadelphia. au9 1m

BUILDERS! Send for Catalogue of New Books on CARPENTRY AND BUILDING. A. J. BICKNELL & CO., 27 Warren street, New York. au13 3m

VALLEY
GEM PIANO.

This Piano is thoroughly and carefully made by experienced manufacturers, and is a good reliable instrument in every particular. Its durability is one of its important points of superiority, and, besides its other fine qualities, the low price will especially commend it to public favor.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue, containing choice music, to

D. H. BALDWIN & CO.,
158 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.
jy23 3m

TO THE SUFFERERS
WITH RHEUMATISM.

In view of the numberless sufferers afflicted with this painful malady, I feel in honor to offer to the public my "ANTI RHEUMATIC MIXTURE," which medicine proves to be the only successful remedy in this line, for it always gives instant relief, and in all cases cures permanently.

During the last fifteen years I have cured thousands of people, in this State and city, of this dreadful disease, with this medicine; and, what astonishes most, the patient recovered by the use of a single bottle of it. This seldom cures nothing but Rheumatism, and should the patient not recover by using the first bottle of it, that patient is not affected with Rheumatism at all. This being the first case of making my discovery known to the public after fifteen years of most successful results, I hope the sufferers will take advantage of this rare remedy, and by doing so add their names to the thousands already cured by it.

For sale by W. J. JURGENS LEWIS, Apothecary and Druggist, corner Magazine and Thalia streets, New Orleans, La. au30 6m

WARREN RICHARDS,
MANUFACTURER OF
SEAL PRESSES,
SEAL ENGRAVER AND DIE-SINKER,
12 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, O.

Seal Presses of the Lion head pattern manufactured only. Wrought Iron Pinions of three sizes, with Engraved dies of any device. au8 2m

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT speedily cured by Dr. Beck's well known and sure Remedy.
NO CHARGE
or treatment until cured. Call on or address
DR. J. C. BECK,
112 John Street, CINCINNATI, OHIO
jy23 1y

JOHN GIBSON,
ENGRAVER
AND
STEAM POWER LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTER,
52 Beekmann Street, New York.

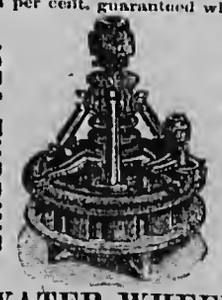
Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists' Printing Labels, send for catalogue. au6 1y

VANDERBURGH, WELLS & CO., manufacturers of POSTER AND ORDER WOOD TYPE. Dealers in Presses and Inks. Leads, Brass Rules, Ovals, Circles, Borders, etc. Printers' and Engravers' Boxwood Depot. Manufacturers of Eagle, California and other Improved Cabinets, with Iron front, duplex and other cases. No. 110 Fulton and Nos. 18 and 19 Dutch street, New York. N. B.—Large stock of used Type and Presses for sale. Pattern and Brass Letters. Stamps for Soap, Dry Goods and other uses. au9 3m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WILLIAM N. THOMSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
Thomson's Leather-Preserver,
FOR
Boots, Shoes, Harness, Belting & Hose.
ALSO DEALER IN
LACE LEATHER, RIVETS, BURS, BELT HOOKS, BELT STUDS,
Punches, Belt Sets, and all goods connected with the Belting business,
NO. 52 RACE STREET,
au6 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

84 per cent. guaranteed with



WATER WHEEL
The Best In the Market, and sold at less price than any other first-class Wheel.
Send for a Pamphlet and be convinced. N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.
au7 4m

MUSIC-BOOKS FOR SCHOOLS.

HOUR OF SINGING.
Price, $1. For High Schools.
Well-proved, highly popular, practical and useful book.
BY EMERSON & TILDEN.

American School Music Reader.
Book I. Price, 35 Cents.
This charming number is for Primary Schools; has full directions for teachers in the point, and delightful little graded exercises and songs for the children.

American School Music Reader.
Book II. Price, 50 Cents.
For the Schools and Classes next above Primary schools. Advances well into the elements.

American School Music Reader.
Book III. Price, 60 Cents.
For the higher Classes of Common Schools.

The above books are by EMERSON & TILDEN, and are thorough, well arranged, practical, pleasing and useful.

CHEERFUL VOICES.
Price, 50 Cents.
In great demand, and is one of the best collections of School Songs ever published.
BY L. O. EMERSON

☞ The above books sent, post-paid, on receipt of retail price.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
711 Broadway, New York.
OLIVER DITSON & CO.,
Boston.
jy18 1y

WILLIAM GREGG. MRS. ADA GREGG.
GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU,
COR. CANAL AND BURGUNDY STS.,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A long acquaintance with the various kinds of

SEWING MACHINES

has induced us to make a specialty in this line. First class Machines, of all kinds, at low rates. The New Under Feed Buckeye Hand Machine, only $35. We repair all Machines at low rates. We take old Machines in part payment for new ones.

Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs sold on monthly payments in the country to parties giving references.

MRS. ADA GREGG

respectfully offers her services in purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel, personal adornment or domestic goods for ladies and children's use, including Millinery, Dry Goods, Jewelry, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Patterns, Underwear, Trimmings, Bridal Trousseaux, etc. Any article of Ladies' and Children's wear manufactured in the latest styles, under her own supervision.

N. B.—All inquiries relative to articles mentioned or unmentioned will be answered free of charge.

Second-hand Machines, in good order, at half price. The best Needles for all Machines.

REFERENCES.—E. A. Tyler, New Orleans; J. L. Power, Jackson, Mississippi.

Letter for each description from her.
jy18 1y GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU.

COLLEGE FOR LADIES,
Ferry Hall, Lake Forest, Ill.

FALL SESSION will commence September 16, 1874. Thoroughly equipped for preparatory and higher education of ladies. Music, Drawing, Painting, Languages, and a thorough English course. For terms apply to jy30 4t EDWARD P. WESTON.

COSTARS EXTERMINATORS
AND INSECT POWDER
For Rats, Mice, Roaches, Ants, Bed bugs, Moths, etc.
J. F. HENRA, CURRAN & CO.,
Jy11 3m5p New York, Sole Agents.

A MAN OF A THOUSAND.

When death was hourly expected from CONSUMPTION, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James, the experimentalist, by accidentally made a preparation of INDIAN HEMP which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. HEMP also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 106 Race street, Philadelphia, mention this paper. 6m 1w FINE-TONED, LOW-PRICED, WARranted against breakage. Estimates, containing full particulars, prices etc. sent free.

BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO.,
ap9 1yeow Cincinnati, Ohio.

HOME LIFE IN THE BIBLE.
DR. MARCH'S LAST AND BEST BOOK.

"A stirring, instructive and magnificent volume." "Full of truths precious as gems." "A choice book for every family." Steel Engravings worth $1000. Rose-tinted paper. Rich binding. Hold sales. Rare chance for agents. Clergymen, Teachers, Young Men and Ladies make $75 to $150 per month. Write to ZIEGLER & McCURDY, 850 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo. my21 1yeow

MEDICAL.

NEARLY ALL DISEASES ORIGINate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Depression of Spirits, or the Blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, efficually, and, being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 10 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR
OR MEDICINE

Is harmless,
Is no drastic, violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is an intoxicating beverage,
Is a fruitless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

au23 1y

THE GREATEST
MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

MR. KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, HAS discovered in one of our common pasture-weeds a remedy that cures

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR, FROM
The Worst Scrofula Down to a Common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunderbumps.) He has now in his possession over one hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Roxbury.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of Pimples on the face.

Two or three bottles will clear the system of biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst Canker in the mouth or stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all Humor in the Eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the Ears and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running Ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of Ringworm.

Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of Rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure Salt Rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of Scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

ROXBURY, Mass.

DEAR MADAM: The reputation of the Medical Discovery in curing all kinds of Humors is so well established, by the unanimous voice of all who have ever used it, that I need not say anything on the subject, as the most skillful physicians and the most careful druggists in the country are unanimous in its praise.

In presenting the Medical Discovery to your notice, I do it with a full knowledge of its curative power in relieving all, and curing most of those diseases to which you are unfortunately so liable. That most excruciating disease to an affectionate mother, Nursing Sore Mouth.

is cured as if by a miracle. Your own temper is restored to its natural sweetness, and your babe from short and fretful naps to calm and sweet slumbers; and the Medical Discovery becomes a foundational blessing to your husband and household. In the more advanced stages of it extends to the stomach, causing

Canker

Dyspepsia,

which is nothing but canker in the stomach; then to the intestines and creating a sinking, gone feeling, and an indifference even to the cares of your family. Your stomach is your food distresses you, and you can only take certain kinds, and even of that your system does not get half the nourishment it contains, as the acrimonious fluid of the canker eats it up; then your complexion loses its bloom and becomes sallow or greenish, and your best day is gone. For want of nourishment your system becomes loose and flabby, and the fibers of your body become relaxed. Then follow a train of diseases which the Medical Discovery is peculiarly adapted to Cure:

Kidneys,

Raw and Inflamed.

Palpitation of the heart, pain in the side, weakness of the spine and small of the back, pain of the hip-joint when you retire, irregularity of the bowels, and also that most excruciating of diseases,

The Piles.

How many thousands of poor women are suffering from this disease and pining away a miserable life, and their next-door neighbor does not know the cause. I wish to impress on your mind that good old proverb: "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure." In you have both the preventive and the cure, with this great and good quality: that it will never, under any circumstances, do you any injury.

THE MEDICAL DISCOVERY

No change of diet is ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one tablespoonful per day; children over ten years, dessertspoonful; children from five to eight years, teaspoonful. As no directions can be applicable to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day. Yours truly,

DONALD KENNEDY.

au14 1y

Price, $1.60 per bottle. For sale by all druggists

DR. TUTT'S
VEGETABLE
LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST ADVICE THAT CAN BE given to persons suffering from

DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS,

CONSTIPATION, COLIC, SICK HEADACHE,

Fever and Ague, Nervous Debility,

or of any disorder of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, is to tone, cleanse and regulate them by the use of

Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills.

They act very mildly, yet thoroughly restore the functional action of the Digestive Organs and the Intestines, and renovate the whole system, imparting a good appetite and healthy assimilation of food. They produce neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility, and may be taken at any time, without change of diet or occupation.

Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye

possesses qualities that no other dye does. Its effect is instantaneous, and is so natural that it cannot be detected by the closest observer. Being harmless and easily applied, it is in general use among the fashionable Hair-Dressers in every large city in the United States. Price, $1 a box. Sold everywhere.

Laboratory—Nos. 48 and 50 Cortlandt street, New York. oct1 1y&

The Child's Corner.

A WONDERFUL WORD.

There is a lamp whose steady light
Guides the poor traveler in the night—
'Tis God's own word! Its beaming ray
Can turn a midnight into day.

There is a storehouse of rich fare,
Supplied with plenty and to spare—
'Tis God's own word! It spreads a feast
For every hungry, thirsty guest.

There is a chart whose tracings show
The upward course when tempests blow—
'Tis God's own word! There, there is found Direction for the homeward-bound.

There is a tree whose leaves impart
Health to the burden'd, contrite heart—
'Tis God's own word! It cures our sin,
And makes the guilty conscience clean.

Give me this lamp to light my road;
This storehouse for my daily food;
Give me this chart for life's rough sea;
These healing leaves, this heavenly tree.

The Clover-Blossom.

A PARABLE.

A pink clover-blossom popped her head out of her green leaves one fine summer morning. She found herself planted in a border of grass that surrounded a circle of flower-beds in a beautiful garden, and scarcely dared to raise her eyes to take a peep at the grand place in which she was growing.

"You are very pretty," whispered a blade of ribbon-grass, bending down to the clover-blossom. "Now that I come nearer, I can see that you have a hundred beauties I didn't notice before, each one blushing sweetly."

"It must be so," thought the clover, as the wind swung the tall blade up straight; "for he is so high he can spy out everything all around me."

She spread her pink and white-winged spikes wider, and looked out at her neighbors, but soon discovered that of all the garden-flowers she was the plainest and lowliest; though her leaves were soft and beautifully marked, they were unnoticed in the dark green grass, and her pink and white-winged spikes, though there were so many of them, were very insignificant.

The blade of ribbon-grass bent gracefully toward a scarlet fuchsia, nodded to a tall spire of blue larkspur, and waved good-day to the "morning-glories," whose striped skirts were spangled with glittering dew. The garden was filled with stately beauties: lady's-slippers in puffs and flounces of every hue, yellow marigolds, blue hare-bells, pansies in purple and gold, and majestic gladiolas in scarlet and white caps. The clover-blossom hung her red head; she felt like an uninvited guest; she had come there quite by accident; it was not intended that her lowly form and humble dress should appear among these fine flowers of quality.

"This is no place for me," she sighed, wishing that she might creep again under the cover of the green leaves and hide her homely charms. But none of the gay beauties were thinking of her. The ribbon-grass took no notice of her; he was paying his compliments to the garden belles, and had quite forgotten the clover-blossom.

The eyes of the butterfly were very large; but he roved from one flower to the other without spying out the red clover-head. When the sun rose higher the "four-o'clocks" and "morning-glories" closed their eyes and went fast asleep.

"Dear me! they look very old and withered, to be sure," thought the clover-blossom; "and I am not at all sleepy; my eyes are opening wider every minute. These fine folks do not suit me. Perhaps the gardener will chop off my head with his hoe when he sees me. I should not be very sorry, for I am of no use; no one needs me or cares for me here."

A busy bee came humming and buzzing through the garden; he hovered around the apple-tree; the blossoms had long ago withered; he could scarcely tell what he came there for, and so he buzzed on and stopped at the group of "four-o'clocks."

"Lazy things!" said the bee.—"Sleepy heads! they can't keep awake half of the day. They are the drones of the garden. I won't call here again. Ah! I need not expect anything from you," continued he in contempt, pausing for a moment at the withered, unsightly "morning-glories."

He was looking for something better than grace and beauty and mere ornament. The wise bee knew it could not be found on the dew-spangled skirts of the "morning-glories" and "four-o'clocks;" and so also he passed by the languishing fuchsia, the blue hare-bell, gorgeous pansies and red-capped gladiolas. They all looked after him as he flew past, wondering why they were neglected, and saw him linger near the clover-blossom, almost hidden down under the grass.

"Will you give me some honey?" said the bee. "I have come miles for it; I have passed by all the fine garden-flowers, hunting for my little favorite; I always find honey stored away in your red and white spikes. I will carry it to the hive, where we all know that the best honey we have is that which we beg from our friends, the clover-heads."

"Take what I have to give you, busy bee; you may have my honey," said the clover-blossom pleasantly. "Ah! I am of some use then," she thought, as the bee flew away from the garden, laden with honey taken from her blossom. "It is better to live and die in the shade down here with the gentle grass than to be a brilliant garden beauty. I would rather be useful than ornamental." The evening breeze wafted the tall blade of ribbon-grass down toward the clover-blossom as she murmured these thoughts to herself.

"The handsome flowers all wondered why the bee passed them by and came to you," said the ribbon-grass. The clover made no reply. She had learned the sweet spirit of contentment; she was happy, because she knew that, however homely, she was of some use in the beautiful world in which the Creator of all things had placed her.

If any of my little readers should taste the sweetest honey from the hive, perhaps they may remember that from the clover-blossom the bee gathers it, and stores it away for our use. And as we see the common flower which springs up in every meadow and roadside, let us recollect that usefulness is greater than beauty, and what we lay up in our minds of more value than the most attractive outward appearance. Early Days.

The Broken Pane.

At our school there was a boy by the name of Robert Rich. One day he was throwing stones, when he hit a window and broke a pane of glass. No person had seen him throw the stone. He might have slunk away and kept his act a secret, if he had not been too noble a boy to do such a meanness.

Mr. Hardwick, who lived in the house where the window was broken, was a lawyer, and seemed to be of a stern, harsh temper; for he used to scold the boys if they but crossed his fields or even entered his woods. Robert did not like to meet him.

But Robert had more fear of doing wrong than of facing the anger of the lawyer. So he went up to Mr. Hardwick and said: "In throwing a stone, just now, I broke a pane of glass in one of your windows."

"Well, then, you must send a glazier and have it mended," said Mr. Hardwick in an angry tone.

"That is just what I wished to do," said Robert, "and I will do it at once."

Struck by this manly reply, Mr. Hardwick asked Robert if he had any money to pay the glazier.

"Yes," said Robert; "I have half a crown that I have been saving up."

"What have you been saving it up for?" asked Mr. Hardwick.

"I have been saving it up to buy my sister a sunshade," replied Robert.

"Well, sir," said the lawyer, "I look to you to see that my window is mended."

Robert bowed and took his leave. That same day he sent a glazier and had a new pane of glass set in place of the broken one. He felt that Mr. Hardwick had claimed of him no more than was right, and he did not blame him. But, as Robert sat at his lesson that evening, the door-bell rung, and a package was left for him. He opened it, and what do you think he found? In the package was a beautiful blue sunshade, and with it a letter from Mr. Hardwick in these words: "Take this as a proof that I was pleased by your readiness in doing right to-day."

Robert ran and gave the sunshade to his sister, and she was delighted with the gift. His father, when he learned what had happened, said to Robert: "We should always do right for the love of right, and not in the hope of reward."

"I am sure I did not hope for a reward," said Robert. "I should still have been glad that I paid for mending the window even if I had got nothing in return. For surely I deserved nothing. I see that a man may seem stern, like Mr. Hardwick, and yet be kind at heart."

MORAL COURAGE.—Have the courage to speak to a friend in a "seedy" coat, even though you are in company with a rich one and richly attired.

Have the courage to own you are poor, and thus disarm poverty of its sharpest sting.

Have the courage to cut the most agreeable acquaintance you have whenever you are convinced he lacks principle; a friend should bear with a friend's infirmities, but not his vices.

Have the courage to show your respect for honesty in whatever guise it appears, and your contempt for dishonesty, by whomsoever exhibited.

Have the courage to acknowledge your ignorance rather than seek knowledge under false pretenses.

Have the courage to obey your Maker at the risk of being ridiculed by man.

SEVEN-DOLLAR THIEF.—A traveler on his journey meets a robber in the woods. "Give me your money," cries the highwayman, "or I'll shoot you."

"It may be," thinks the traveler, "the man is in want;" and he generously gives him six dollars. "Take this. God bless you. Farewell."

"Stop! stop!" cried the robber; "I see another dollar, and must have that."

"Oh, sir," replies the traveler, "be content. Of my all, seven dollars, you have six, and I only one to help me on my journey."

"Give me that seventh dollar," cries the robber, drawing his pistol.

What do you think of the robber? "The meanest thief I ever could conceive of." What was his name? Sabbath-breaker.

MR. EDITOR: There was a hen in this neighborhood that hatched but one little chick, and so she clucked and scratched for the little fellow a few weeks, and then layed another litter of eggs and went to setting, and her little one sat by her side all the time. The result of this setting was more fruitful. So she went forth with her little ones. In a few days she took the cholera and died, leaving her children motherless. The little fellow that had set with its mother was about two months old now, the rest only a few days old. The oldest took charge of its little brothers and sisters, and began to cluck to them, and scratch with all its might for them, and at night would try to gather them under its tiny wings, but could shelter only one or two.

R.

WE CANNA believe that thou wouldst gie us ony guid thing, to tak' the same again; for that would be but buirn's play. We believe that thou takes, that thou mayest gie again the same thing better nor afore—mair o't and better nor we could ha' received it otherwise; just as the Lord took himself frae the sight o' them that lo'ed him weel, that instead o' bein' veesible afore their een, he might hide himself in their vera hearts.—George Macdonald.

Farm, Garden and Household.

Bee-Keeping.

Bee-keeping is honest, honorable and easy. It needs but little capital and no unusual skill; neither great strength nor profound learning. It does not depend on political favor or the smiles of the rich. Rural, but not rude; royal, but not rigorous—it asks but the smiles of nature and a quiet spot. It makes by saving, and does not injure by taking. It requires many operatives, but they board and clothe themselves, requiring of their employer only a cheap, suitable place to store the product of their skill and industry, ready for his or her use, or for market. It can be done almost anywhere, and more money made from the same amount of capital and labor than in any other business.

Many a farmer loses more than he makes by not keeping bees, or not keeping them properly. He and his family grow prematurely old with plowing and reaping, mowing and hoeing, and all the drudging incident to tilling, while every flower is saying to them: "Send us bees, and we'll relieve you from wasting toil." These sable servants challenge competition in converting the sweet treasures of nature to their master's use. Spare them life; it is short at best. Let inventive genius protect and aid them; they will appreciate favors. We can not afford to do without bees, much less to keep them in a profitless manner. The profits of bee-keeping may, no doubt, be doubled; and whoever shall provide a feasible way to do it will deserve a niche with him who makes two blades of grass to grow where one grew before.—F. R., in Bee Journal.

CRACKING OF PEARS.—One of the most intelligent and successful of the pear-growers of America, according to the editor of the Gardeners' Monthly, writes that journal that pears do not crack when the soil is sufficiently supplied with lime and potash, and that they crack most where these salts are deficient. Common wood ashes contain these salts nearly in the quantity and proportions that pear-trees on such soil require—forty per cent. of potash and thirty of lime. Reasoning from these facts, he applied wood ashes at the rate of four hundred bushels to the acre after the fruit had formed and cracked. Many of them healed up and made perfect fruit the same season, others not until the next season. A friend, at his suggestion, applied them heavily to a favorite Butler pear-tree in his own garden for several years in succession, and has had, during that period, perfect and delicious fruit. He says he will guarantee it to cure any case where the ashes are fairly and abundantly applied. He was told by an experienced hand that he would kill the trees, but he cured them. He says, therefore, do not be afraid; if one application will not suffice, give them a larger dose next year. A moist atmosphere, he adds, undoubtedly encourages the growth of the tree and fruit, while the insufficiency of proper food prevents the perfection of either; hence cracked fruit and "rough old bark."

CULTIVATION OF CORN.—It is important to make horse cultivation as cheap and expeditious as possible, for the oftener the surface of the soil is rendered mellow, even where there are no weeds, the heavier will be the crop. A large farmer in the central part of this State, who makes it a rule to cultivate his corn at least once a week till it is too large for a horse to pass, estimates a gain of at least ten bushels per acre by the operation, and in some extreme cases the improvement has been nearly twenty bushels. The practice is now increasing of harrowing over the whole surface of the field, irrespective of the rows of corn (fifteen or twenty acres a day,) both before and after the plants have come up, and where this can be done while the annual weeds are just emerging to the surface it is a rapid and economical mode of destroying them. The harrow employed must of course be fitted to this particular work.—Country Gentleman.

ROSE-SLUG.—I saw a question in the last Cabinet asking a preventive or cure for the troublesome rose-slug. I do not know what will prevent or cure them, but I do know what will kill them. Get white hellebore, one ounce, and dissolve in a pailful of soft, cold water, the colder the better. Take it on a sunny morning, after the dew is entirely dried off, put the mixture in a watering-pot, and give the bushes a good showering, throwing it up under the leaves as much as possible, wetting them all over thoroughly. It will not harm the bushes or roses in the least. But I assure you the worm that gets his share of the dose will eat rose-leaves no more forever. Please tell the ladies of this, that they may save those beautiful roses.—Cor. of Floral Cabinet.

HOW TO PRESERVE FLOWERS.—Take a deep plate, into which pour a quantity of water. Set a vase of flowers upon the plate, and over the plate set a bell glass with its rim in the water. The air that surrounds the flowers, being confined beneath the bell glass, is constantly moist with water that rises into it in the form of vapor. As fast as the water becomes condensed it runs down the side of the bell glass into the dish; and if means be taken to inclose the water on the outside of the bell glass, so as to prevent it evaporating in the air of the sitting-room, the atmosphere around the flowers is continually damp. The plan is designated the "Hopean apparatus." The experiment may be tried on a small scale by inverting a tumbler over a rosebud in a saucer of water.

CREAM OF CHOCOLATE.—Put in a saucepan half a pound of chocolate, broken in small pieces; add a teacupful of milk, and when the chocolate is thoroughly dissolved add another quart of milk, stirring it in slowly. Beat together the yolks of six eggs and the white of one, and add six tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Beat, in another dish, the whites of five eggs; then mingle the yolks and whites, and add the chocolate, little by little. Strain the mixture, and put it over the fire again for a few minutes, stirring it constantly. This may be called a luscious mixture without exaggeration.

FEED THE FRUIT-TREES.—It must be apparent to every reflecting person that the material round about a fruit-tree, which renders important aid in the production of fine fruit of any kind, must necessarily be more or less exhausted after a vine, bush or tree has produced abundant crops for several successive seasons. For example, a large pear-tree or apple-tree will frequently yield from ten to sixteen bushels of fruit annually. Many trees have produced more than twice these quantities at one crop.

After a few seasons the material that the roots must be supplied with, in order to develop fruit, will be more or less exhausted. For this reason fruit begins to fail; and the failure is often attributed to an east wind, or some mysterious atmospheric influence, when in reality the sole cause is starvation, arising from an impoverished soil.

The remedy is to feed the roots of all fruit-trees with lime, wood ashes, gypsum, chip-dirt, bones, fishes, and anything that will renovate an impoverished soil. It is evident that fruit-trees cannot produce fine fruit out of nothing, or out of such material as may be desirable for some other purpose.—Hearth and Home.

CURE FOR SNAKE BITE.—Mr. Editor: It may not be generally known that saltpeter is a good neutralizer of poison, as by snake bite. Mr. West, residing near this place, told me the other day how quickly it relieved his son, bitten by a moccasin. Hoping you might render such unfortunates a good service by publishing it in your widely circulating paper, I send you the recipe. Anoint the part bitten, as soon as possible, with a strong solution of saltpeter, and then bind a saltpeter poultice to it. I like it the better because it supersedes the use of whisky, so frequently given, and which so few now have.

W. P. OWEN,
Louisiana Conference.

EVERGREEN, LA., July 23, 1874.

BAKED APPLE DUMPLINGS.—Roll out some dough thicker than pie-crust, and inclose a handful of sliced ripe apples, well covered with sugar and butter. Bring the edges together as in any other dumplings. When as many are made as required, place them side by side in a pudding, spread butter and sugar over them, and pour boiling water to about half cover the dumplings. Put them in the stove and cook moderately fast until they are nicely browned. The butter, sugar and water make a nice sauce, which can be enriched with more butter, and flavored with nutmeg if desired.

HOW TO KEEP good teeth requires watchful care of the parent, from the time the first tooth appears until the child is old enough to attend to them itself. Should decay, disease of the teeth or gums, or discoloration of the teeth, be detected, consult a conscientious and intelligent dentist.

Don't neglect the teeth of your children. If they are defective in enamel or dentine, they can be improved by constitutional treatment, either by supplying the lacking material in an acceptable form, or assisting nature to use that already in the food, as the case may require.

Scientific.

THE first case of death in England by inhalation of nitrous oxide gas is reported in the Lancet. The patient was a lady, thirty-eight years of age.

AT a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society in London recently Mr. Hind read a paper relating to the solar eclipse that is to take place in 2151.

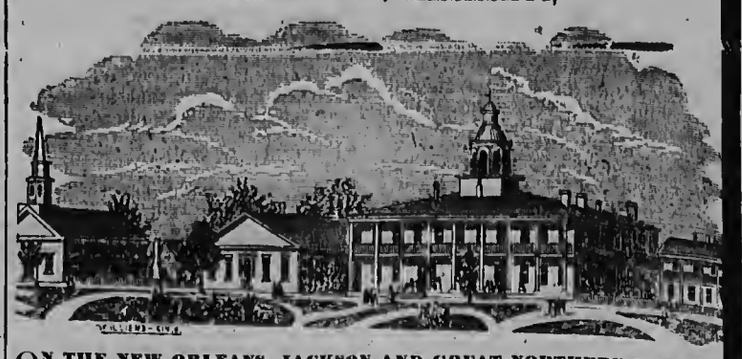
MATCHES WITHOUT SULPHUR OR CHLORATE OF POTASH.—A Frenchman named Escach has patented a match which can be ignited by rubbing on any rough surface, and which does not become damp when exposed to the air for a long time. The splints are first soaked in a hot solution of some fatty body, and then dipped in a paste of which the following are the constituents:

Phosphorus,	7 parts.
Gum,	7 parts.
Nitrate of lead,	10 parts.
Powdered glass,	5 parts.
Water,	10 parts.

PHYSIOLOGICAL ACTION OF QUININE.—The physiological action of quinine has lately been the subject of detailed experiment by Binz, who found it to have extraordinary power in arresting the process of fermentation and putrefaction, and to be a powerful poison for low organisms, or, in other words, for all moving bodies consisting of protoplasms. It appears to kill fungi and bacteria, which accompany fermentation and putrefaction, and puts a stop to these processes. It arrests the motion of the white blood corpuscles, and thus prevents them from making their exit from the blood vessels. It therefore diminishes or arrests the formation of pus in inflammation, pus consisting in great measure of an accumulation of white corpuscles which have issued from the vessels. It also destroys the power of certain substances to produce ozone. The red blood corpuscles have this power, and, by depriving them of it, quinine, when present in the blood, must diminish the change of tissue in the body, and thereby lessen the production of heat. It is also found that quinine lessens oxidation in the blood; other substances, such as snake poison, increasing it. When putrid fluids are injected into the circulation of an animal, its temperature rises; but if these are previously mixed with quinine, this rise is arrested, or very much diminished. According to Zuntz, the use of quinine has a marked influence upon the excretion of urea, the amount diminishing very greatly.—Harper's Magazine.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI,



ON THE NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD, fifty-seven miles south of Jackson, Mississippi, and one hundred and twenty-eight miles north of New Orleans, will

REOPEN ON THE THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.

The charges are low, and yet the advantages are unsurpassed. All extravagance in dress positively prohibited. If you send your daughter here we guarantee that you will be pleased; otherwise you may withdraw her at any time, and the money will be returned.

School books, medicines and medical attention furnished free of charge. Were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the location we could not afford the last two items.

Send for a catalogue.

jy16 3m H. F. JOHNSON, President.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE,
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA,

will begin its Twenty-fifth Annual Session SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

REV. W. A. HARRIS, D. D., President, with a able corps of twenty-three teachers and officers. Modern languages taught and spoken by European teachers. Music by seven professors and teachers, among whom are two of the most celebrated teachers of vocal music in the South.

This is one of the healthiest climates in the world. Its marked effect is the rapid promotion of the physical health and vigor of our pupils. Those who come here from the South, with feeble constitutions, chills and climatic diseases, are entirely restored.

Buildings elegant, fanned by the purest breezes, and commanding the most magnificent rural and mountain scenery, making it one of the most delightful college homes in the Union.

The last session one hundred and eleven young ladies attended this school, as boarding pupils, from fifteen Southern States.

Extracts from Testimonials.

From Bishop D. S. Doggett, D. D.

The Wesleyan Female Institute, located in Staunton, Virginia, under the presidency of Rev. W. A. Harris, is, in my judgment, one of the best institutions for young ladies in the South. I have occasion to know and appreciate its value by the advantages enjoyed by one of my daughters, now a pupil there. It possesses all the facilities of a thorough female education. Its personal accommodations are all that can be desired for health and comfort or taste. No location could be more eligible, no scenery more magnificent, no atmosphere more salubrious. It is now in a state of great prosperity. I do not hesitate to recommend it to the patronage of all who wish their daughters to receive the benefits of a useful and ornamental culture.

D. S. DOGGETT.

From Bishop E. M. Marvin, D. D.

The Wesleyan Female Institute is an honor to the church. Instruction is thorough. All classes stand high. In music advantages are offered of a very high order. The most talented professors are employed, and neither pains nor expense are spared to make this department eminent. The school is very prosperous, and deserves to be so.

E. M. MARVIN.

From Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.

The Wesleyan Female Institute, at Staunton, deserves the brilliant success it enjoys. It has a good corps of teachers, a beautiful situation and excellent management. Having had a daughter under Mr. Harris' care during the present session, my observation leads me to believe this school to be one of the best of female seminaries which adorn our State. FRANCIS H. SMITH.

Terms for Entire Collegiate Year.

Board and tuition in the Collegiate course, $240. Music and other extras moderate.

For catalogue of sixty-four pages address

REV. W. A. HARRIS,
Staunton, Va.

jy9 tf

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
ABINGDON, VA.

R. W. JONES, M. A., University of Virginia, President, with a full and skillful Faculty for instruction in all branches taught in the best female colleges. The next session begins SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

Charge for board and tuition, for entire session of forty weeks, half in advance, $220. Other charges moderate.

The surrounding mountain scenery is grand, the buildings commodious and elegant, the grounds incomparably beautiful.

The patronage for last session represented twelve Southern and Western States and England.

Domestic department under the supervision of the President and wife. Healthfulness unsurpassed.

Opinions of Distinguished Patrons and Friends.

Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.

"I confided to the care of the President, during the present session, two of my daughters, with very sanguine hopes of their improvement in health and culture. My expectations have been more than realized. From experience, then, as well as prepossession, I cordially and confidently recommend Martha Washington College to parents who are seeking the best advantages for their daughters."

Prof. L. C. Garland, LL. D., University of Mississippi.

"Martha Washington College possesses remarkable advantages as a seat of learning. * * * The corps of instruction is composed of ladies and gentlemen of ability, fidelity and professional skill."

Bishop H. N. McTyeire, D. D.

"If I were to search the land around I know not another Abingdon—beautiful for situation, healthful, accessible. Its social atmosphere is of the right sort for a female school—salubrious, not fast, conservative, well toned. The perfume of the "Old Virginia" lingers about it still. Your immediate site, your grounds, please me more than any I have seen. Your shade-trees and your walks and your wide piazzas linger in my mind."

Faculty of the University of Virginia.

"We cordially recommend Major R. W. Jones, a Master of Arts of this institution, as a gentleman peculiarly well fitted by capacity, culture and experience for the conduct of an advanced seminary for young ladies."

For catalogue, etc., apply to the President.

jy23 2m

ALABAMA CONFERENCE
FEMALE COLLEGE,
TUSKEGEE, ALA.

The collegiate year embraces forty weeks, divided into equal terms of twenty weeks each. First term extends from September 15, 1874, to February 25, 1875; second term from February 25 to June 24, 1875.

Experienced and competent teachers will be in charge of all the departments.

Board and tuition, per annum session, $230. Optional branches—charges moderate.

Daughters of ministers who rely on the ministry for support educated in regular course of studies free of charge.

For further information apply to the President,

REV. HENRY H. MOORE,
Tuskegee, Alabama.

T. W. BYER, Sec. of Faculty. jy23 5t

Soule's

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

The Commercial Athenæum of the South, corner Camp and Common streets (Story Building.) Mercantile and Banking offices are connected with this institution, daily lectures given, and all branches of a business education practically, scientifically and philosophically taught. An English Department for boys, twelve to eighteen years of age, is a special feature of this institution. French and Spanish are also taught.

GEO. SOULE, Principal.

N. B.—Soule's Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator, 880 octavo pages, the great arithmetical work of the age, is for sale at the College office. jy22 1y

THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,
GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session of this institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN OCTOBER, with a full corps of instructors. The entire expense per annum, for board, tuition, etc., is from $160 to $242.

For particulars or catalogue apply to

DR. A. S. ANDREWS or
PROF. O. F. CASEY
Greensboro, Alabama.

jy23 2m

HIWASSEE COLLEGE.—SAID TO BE the best and cheapest school for boys in the Union. Patronage the past year, 137, from ten States. Under care of the Holston Conference, M. E. Church South. Founded in 1849. Seven miles from Sweetwater, on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad. Send stamp for twenty-four page catalogue. Address the President,

REV. J. H. BRUNNER, A. M.,
Hiwassee College, East Tenn.

je4 1y

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI,

ON THE NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD, fifty-seven miles south of Jackson, Mississippi, and one hundred and twenty-eight miles north of New Orleans, will

REOPEN ON THE THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.

The charges are low, and yet the advantages are unsurpassed. All extravagance in dress positively prohibited. If you send your daughter here we guarantee that you will be pleased; otherwise you may withdraw her at any time, and the money will be returned.

School books, medicines and medical attention furnished free of charge. Were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the location we could not afford the last two items.

Send for a catalogue.

jy16 3m H. F. JOHNSON, President.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE,
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA,

will begin its Twenty-fifth Annual Session SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

REV. W. A. HARRIS, D. D., President, with a able corps of twenty-three teachers and officers. Modern languages taught and spoken by European teachers. Music by seven professors and teachers, among whom are two of the most celebrated teachers of vocal music in the South.

This is one of the healthiest climates in the world. Its marked effect is the rapid promotion of the physical health and vigor of our pupils. Those who come here from the South, with feeble constitutions, chills and climatic diseases, are entirely restored.

Buildings elegant, fanned by the purest breezes, and commanding the most magnificent rural and mountain scenery, making it one of the most delightful college homes in the Union.

The last session one hundred and eleven young ladies attended this school, as boarding pupils, from fifteen Southern States.

Extracts from Testimonials.

From Bishop D. S. Doggett, D. D.

The Wesleyan Female Institute, located in Staunton, Virginia, under the presidency of Rev. W. A. Harris, is, in my judgment, one of the best institutions for young ladies in the South. I have occasion to know and appreciate its value by the advantages enjoyed by one of my daughters, now a pupil there. It possesses all the facilities of a thorough female education. Its personal accommodations are all that can be desired for health and comfort or taste. No location could be more eligible, no scenery more magnificent, no atmosphere more salubrious. It is now in a state of great prosperity. I do not hesitate to recommend it to the patronage of all who wish their daughters to receive the benefits of a useful and ornamental culture.

D. S. DOGGETT.

From Bishop E. M. Marvin, D. D.

The Wesleyan Female Institute is an honor to the church. Instruction is thorough. All classes stand high. In music advantages are offered of a very high order. The most talented professors are employed, and neither pains nor expense are spared to make this department eminent. The school is very prosperous, and deserves to be so.

E. M. MARVIN.

From Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.

The Wesleyan Female Institute, at Staunton, deserves the brilliant success it enjoys. It has a good corps of teachers, a beautiful situation and excellent management. Having had a daughter under Mr. Harris' care during the present session, my observation leads me to believe this school to be one of the best of female seminaries which adorn our State. FRANCIS H. SMITH.

Terms for Entire Collegiate Year.

Board and tuition in the Collegiate course, $240. Music and other extras moderate.

For catalogue of sixty-four pages address

REV. W. A. HARRIS,
Staunton, Va.

jy9 tf

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
ABINGDON, VA.

R. W. JONES, M. A., University of Virginia, President, with a full and skillful Faculty for instruction in all branches taught in the best female colleges. The next session begins SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

Charge for board and tuition, for entire session of forty weeks, half in advance, $220. Other charges moderate.

The surrounding mountain scenery is grand, the buildings commodious and elegant, the grounds incomparably beautiful.

The patronage for last session represented twelve Southern and Western States and England.

Domestic department under the supervision of the President and wife. Healthfulness unsurpassed.

Opinions of Distinguished Patrons and Friends.

Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.

"I confided to the care of the President, during the present session, two of my daughters, with very sanguine hopes of their improvement in health and culture. My expectations have been more than realized. From experience, then, as well as prepossession, I cordially and confidently recommend Martha Washington College to parents who are seeking the best advantages for their daughters."

Prof. L. C. Garland, LL. D., University of Mississippi.

"Martha Washington College possesses remarkable advantages as a seat of learning. * * * The corps of instruction is composed of ladies and gentlemen of ability, fidelity and professional skill."

Bishop H. N. McTyeire, D. D.

"If I were to search the land around I know not another Abingdon—beautiful for situation, healthful, accessible. Its social atmosphere is of the right sort for a female school—salubrious, not fast, conservative, well toned. The perfume of the "Old Virginia" lingers about it still. Your immediate site, your grounds, please me more than any I have seen. Your shade-trees and your walks and your wide piazzas linger in my mind."

Faculty of the University of Virginia.

"We cordially recommend Major R. W. Jones, a Master of Arts of this institution, as a gentleman peculiarly well fitted by capacity, culture and experience for the conduct of an advanced seminary for young ladies."

For catalogue, etc., apply to the President.

jy23 2m

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,
ASHLAND, VA.,

offers, on very low terms, the advantages of thorough instruction, a high grade of scholarship, under the best religious influences, in a refined community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness, just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad.

One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars

will pay all necessary expenses per term. Session opens on the last Thursday in SEPTEMBER. For catalogue address

REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, A. M., D. D., President, and 6 2m REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Secretary.

FEMALE COLLEGE,
GREENSBORO, ALABAMA,

until recently under the superintendence of Prof. P. B. Chapell, A. M., will be reopened on the first Monday of OCTOBER (12th,) with a full corps of experienced and thoroughly qualified teachers, capable of imparting instruction in ALL the departments of a first-class institution. Terms as low as can be afforded in consideration of the advantages offered.

REV. THOS. WARD WHITE,
an6 1m President.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
BATON ROUGE, LA.

The next session of this school will begin on Monday, OCTOBER 2, 1874. It is important to intending parties that applications be made as early as possible, and the attendance of the pupil promptly. A few days' delay at the beginning increases the labor of the school and injures the pupil. For circulars giving necessary information, apply to

W. H. N. MAGRUDER,
nu6 3m Baton Rouge, La.

KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY.

ASHLAND, the home of HENRY CLAY, and Old Transylvania University, the sites of the several Colleges. Six Colleges in operation, with their separate faculties. Thirty professors and instructors, with an average of more than 600 students each session since the war. Fees very low. Good boarding from $2 to $5 per week. Sessions begin SECOND MONDAY in September. For catalogues or other information address, inclosing stamp, J. B. BOWMAN,
Regent Kentucky University,
jy30 4t Lexington, Ky.

EMINENCE COLLEGE.

For Males and Females.

TEN THOUSAND CATALOGUES of this popular school now ready for gratuitous distribution. Apply to

W. S. GILTNER, President,
jy30 6t Eminence, Ky.

FOREST ACADEMY,

A Collegiate Military Institute,

LOCATED twelve miles from Louisville, L. C. and L. Railroad offers peculiar advantages in Civil and Mining Engineering. Will resume its exercises, by divine favor, SEPTEMBER 7. For catalogues address

REV. B. H. McCOWN,
jy30 4t Anchorage P. O., Ky.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
NO. 131 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS.

This is the only Commercial College in this city where students from the country can board in the family or the principal. Terms reduced twenty per cent. Send for circular. Address

J. W. BLACKMAN,
jn18 1y New Orleans, La.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE

Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed

H. HALLER,

NO. 49 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the

CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER

In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. no13 1y

STOVES.....STOVES.....STOVES

The Cheapest and the "Best."

The "BEST" and the "COTTAGE" COOKING STOVES, to which I call particular attention, are unsurpassed by any in this market for economy, durability and most perfect BAKING. They can be burning COAL, COKE or WOOD, without any additional cost. Every one sold under a full guarantee to do as they are represented or the money will be refunded.

Also a variety of other COOKING STOVES of every grade and price, from $15 upward.

HEATING STOVES.

A very large and complete assortment, suitable for Offices, Parlors, Churches, School-Rooms, etc., all of which are offered at very low prices to suit the times. Also dealer in

TINWARE OF EVERY KIND.

and description, to suit the country and city trade, which is offered at UNPRECEDENTEDLY LOW PRICES FOR CASH. Also Sole Agent for the manufacture and sale of the Steam Washer, or Woman's Friend.

Will cleanse your clothes WITHOUT RUBBING. Every one sold is FULLY WARRANTED. It saves labor, wear and tear, and the annoyance of wash-day. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Three hundred thousand have been sold already through the States since 1871.

State and County Rights for sale.

Call and see at NO. 52 GRAVIER STREET, near Tchoupitoulas.

ja29 1y G. W. W. GOODWYN.

Fortunate Accidents.

The cracking of a picture placed in the sunshine set Van Eyck experimenting to produce a varnish that would dry in the shade. He found what he sought, and found beside that by mixing it with his colors they acquired greater force and brilliancy, and required no subsequent varnishing; and so came about the discovery or rediscovery of the art of painting in oil. Mezzotinto owed its invention by Prince Rupert to the simple accident of a sentry's gun-barrel being rusted by the dew. Henry Schanward, a Nuremburg glass-cutter, happened to let some aqua-fortis fall upon his spectacles, and noticed the glass was corroded and softened where the aqua-fortis had touched it. Taking the hint, he made a liquid accordingly, drew some figures upon a piece of glass, covered them with varnish, and applied his corroding fluid, cut away the glass around his drawing, so that when he removed the varnish the figures appeared raised upon a dark ground; and etching upon glass was added to the ornamental arts. Alois Senefelder, playwright and actor, thinking it possible to etch upon stone in lieu of copper, polished a slab for the purpose. He was disturbed by his mother coming into his small laboratory with a request that he would jot down her list of things for the wash, as the woman was waiting to take the basket away. There being neither paper nor ink handy, Senefelder scribbled the items on his stone with his etching preparation, that he might copy them at his leisure. Some time afterward, when about to clean the stone, he thought he might as well see what would be the effect of biting the stone with aqua-fortis, and in a few minutes saw the writing standing out in relief. Taking up a pelt-ball charged with printing-ink, he inked the stone, took off a few impressions upon paper, and he had invented lithography. The pelt-ball used by Senefelder was long indispensable in a printing office. A Salopian printer in a hurry to get on with a job, could not find his ball, and inked the form with a piece of soft glue that had fallen out of the glue-pot, with such excellent results that he thenceforth discarded the pelt-ball altogether, and by adding treacle to the glue, to keep it from hardening, hit upon the composition of which printers' rollers have ever since been made. Three very different discoveries are recorded to have resulted from the unintentional application of intense heat. Pliny attributes the discovery of glass to some merchants traveling with niter, who, stopping on the banks of a river to take a meal, were at a loss for stones to rest their kettles upon. Putting them upon pieces of niter, they kindled their fires; the niter, dissolved by the heat, mixed with the sand, and the merchants were astonished to see a transparent matter flowing over the ground, which was nothing else but glass. Charles Goodyear had for years experimented in vain, hoping to deprive India-rubber of its susceptibility to the action of heat and cold. Conversing with a friend on the subject, he emphasized an assertion by flinging a piece of sulphured rubber across the room. It lighted upon the stove; and when he picked it up, a few days afterward, he found the intense heat to which it had been subjected had conferred upon the India-rubber just the quality he had so long striven to impart to it. According to some, he stumbled upon the discovery in a different manner; but, at any rate, vulcanized India-rubber was the creation of an accident. A Limerick tobacconist, looking dolefully at his poor neighbors groping among the smoldering ruins of his burned-out shop, noticed that some of them, after trying the contents of certain canisters, carefully loaded their waistcoat pockets from them. He followed suit, and found the snuff had come out of the fiery ordeal very much improved in pungency and aroma. Like a wise man he said nothing, but took another place, set up a lot of ovens, and before long Black Yard Snuff—otherwise "Irish Blackguard"—was all the rage with lovers of nasal titillation; and in a few years Lundyfoot was a rich man, owing to the accident he thought had ruined him. A would-be alchemist, seeking to discover what mixture of earths would make the strongest crucible, one day found he had made porcelain. Instead of transmuting metals, as he had fondly hoped to do, Rottger transmuted himself; as if he had been touched with a conjurer's wand, he was on a sudden transformed from an alchemist into a potter.—Chambers' Journal.

AN OLD Scotchman was taking his grist to mill in sacks thrown across the back of his horse, when the animal stumbled, and the grain fell to the ground. He had not strength to raise it, being an aged man, but he saw a horseman riding along, and thought he would appeal to him for help. But the horseman proved to be a nobleman, who lived in the castle hard by, and the farmer could not muster courage to ask a favor of him. But the nobleman was a gentleman also, and, not waiting to be asked, he quickly dismounted, and between them they lifted the grain to the horse's back. John—for he was a gentleman too—lifted his Kilmarnock bonnet and said: "My lord, how shall I ever thank you for your kindness?" "Very easily, John," replied the nobleman. "Whenever you see another man in the same plight as you were in just now, help him, and that will be thanking me."

THERE came recently to the New York postoffice a letter directed simply to "God." When opened it was found to be evidently from a little girl, and ran thus: "Dear God, we are very poor. My brother needs a new coat very much. Won't you please send him one, and then I shall carry no more about it." The letter was put into the hands of certain good ladies. They sent to the town in Massachusetts whence the letter came, and found the case genuine. Probably the little girl's prayer has been answered by this time.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

VOICE OF GOD.—A new and popular book for the people, beautifully Illustrated and bound. Replete with information and choice reading. Recommended by pastors of all denominations. Agents can sell this book where no others can be sold. Also a

New and Elegantly Illustrated

LARGE PRINT FAMILY BIBLE

WITH BIBLE DICTIONARY.

A Complete Cyclopedia of Bible History.

Agents, send for Terms and Circulars to

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,

1102 and 1104 Sansom street,

o18 13t PHILADELPHIA

WILD LIFE IN THE FAR WEST!

Agents Wanted everywhere for this beautifully illustrated book of the Author's Thirty Years' Life and Adventures among the Indians, in the Mexican Wars, hunting wild animals, etc. Entirely new, and the best book ever published on the FAR WEST. Thrillingly interesting, and selling faster than anything ever before known. Send for illustrated circular and liberal terms.

F. A. HUTCHINSON & CO.,

oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED!—ACT AT ONCE.—The people everywhere are eager to buy the only authentic and complete history of

LIVINGSTONE.

His wonderful discoveries and thrilling adventures during 30 Years in the wilds of Africa, resurrection by the daring STANLEY, and heroic death. Over 600 pages, beautifully illustrated; only $2.50. Going like wildfire! Write for extra terms; or, if you wish to begin at once, send $1 for outfit.

VALLEY PUBLISHING CO.,

oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the Great $2 Books—PHYSICAL LIFE OF WOMAN, PHYSICAL LIFE OF MAN. By Dr. G. H. Napheys. 185,000 copies sold. The demand still growing. Send for sample copies. Outfits Free. Express charges prepaid on good orders. ☞ Also for GROUNDSWELL, or History of the Farmers' Movement. By Hon. J. Perlan, Agricultural Editor of the Western Rural. Send for terms to N. D. THOMPSON & CO., 323 St. Charles street, St. Louis, Mo. Jy23 3m

AGENTS WANTED For the spiciest and best selling new book out.

Ten Years in Washington

By Mary Clemmer Ames. "A work for the times and the people; a paying book for Agents.". It portrays the Capital as a wide-awake "woman see it"—its wonders, marvels, mysteries, etc. $86 in one week was made by a single Agent, and all say "it pays to sell it." Steady work, or for spare hours, for men or ladies on this first-class book. It outsells all others. One good working Agent wanted in every town. Book agents, clergymen, ladies and others offered large terms. Send for information to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn., or 0 QUEEN CITY PUBLISHING CO., Cincinnati, Ohio. se11 1y

AGENTS WANTED for new book

"Tell It All"

A Life's Experience in Mormonism. By Mrs. T. B. H. Stenhouse, of Salt Lake City. With an Introduction by Harriet Beecher Stowe. The genuine Autobiography of an educated lady, whose life has been spent in Polygamy. She tells the story of her life—of the manner in which she was entrapped into the Mormon net, and how she escaped—of the sufferings and degradation of the Saints. It contains the real story of POLYGAMY—WHY NO U.S. LAW IS EFFECTIVE. Complete in detail, startling in style, stronger than fiction, more thrilling than romance. It is the only genuine book ever published on the subject. Endorsed by the Governor of Utah, Judges, Officers of the Army, and eminent women, as of wonderful interest, historical value, and great CAUTION. All other books professing to be written by Mormon women ARE IMPOSITIONS. See that your book contains Mrs. Stenhouse's Introduction. 160,000 sold in 14 days. Outfit ready. Full particulars, testimony, terms, etc. sent free. EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

oc2 1y

CANVASSERS, send No. of your Lodge, and name this paper. We will convince you agents with our superb Home Pictures for Masons Odd-Fellows, Knights Pythias Grangers, Red-men, Mechanics, etc., are making double they could any other way; work pleasanter. J. MALE POWERS & CO., Fraternity & Fine Art Pubs., Cincinnati, O.

ja29 1y

BOOK AGENTS, REJOICE!—HARD Times no More! MARK TWAIN'S New Book, THE GILDED AGE, now ready. Secure territory before it is too late. Canvassing outfit, $1.50. For terms address

CONTINENTAL PUBLISHING CO.,

de1 1y New Orleans or St. Louis.

IRON WORKS—BELLS.

RAILINGS.....RAILINGS.

WROUGHT IRON AND WIRE RAILINGS

FOR

Public Grounds, Cemeteries, Cottages,

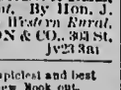
ETC., ETC.

Iron Bedsteads, with Wire Sackings, for Hospitals, etc. Verandas and every variety of Wrought Iron and Wire work. Every information by addressing the manufacturers.

M. WALKER & SONS,

se18 1y 805 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WIRE RAILING



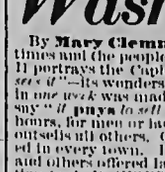
AND

ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.,

Manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Stoves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. oc2 1y



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati

mh5 1y H. J. WEST, Agent, 115 and 117 Magazine St., New Orleans.

HOTELS.

TERMS, $3 A DAY.

Bingham House, Philadelphia,

Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.

CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping-place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed of being in all respects a first-class hotel. se11 1y

AMERICAN HOUSE,

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.

The Largest first-class Hotel in the City.

Centrally located. Contains apartments with bathing conveniences adjoining. Also Passenger Elevator, Billiard Hall, Telegraph Office and Cafe.

au14 1y LEWIS RICE & SON.

CRAWFORD HOUSE,

COR. SIXTH AND WALNUT STREETS,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

I pride myself in providing for my guests the best living, cleanest house and more civility for less money than any other house in the city.

☞ Come and see me.

je23 1f FRANK J. OAKES, Proprietor.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,

17.....CHARTRES STREET.....17

A. BROUSSEAU & CO., Importers and Dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings; Floor Oil Cloths; Table and Enameled Oil Cloths; Window Shades; Table and Piano Covers; Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces. Curtain and Furniture Materials; Brocatelles, Cotelines, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains; Haircloth Ticking; Springs; Burlaps; Stop Covers, etc.

de4 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

TRUSSES AND BRACES.

Club Feet cured without the knife. The Radical-Cure Truss, patented May 8, 1866, applied. All instruments for deformities—Crutches, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Ear Trumpets—on hand at DR. A. O. FOUCHERET'S, No. 5 East Fourth street, east of Main, up stairs, Cincinnati, Ohio. Sign of Golden Eagle. au9 3ar

BUSINESS CARDS.

RICHARD FROTSCHER,

SEED MERCHANT,

12.....Dumaine St.....12

Near the French Market, New Orleans.

Dealer in BUIST'S GARDEN SEEDS, which are the most reliable seeds sold in the Southern market. Almanacs and catalogues furnished on application. Prices reasonable. Jy16 3m

D. H. WALLACE,

COTTON FACTOR AND GENERAL PURCHASING AGENT,

38.....Perdido St.....38

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Will give special attention to the sale of Cotton and other Produce, and will fill all orders for goods of every description at lowest cash prices. Jy2 1y

J. R. WILKINSON, JR.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT FOR THE SALE OF

Hides, Moss, Wool and Country Produce Generally,

and for the purchase of Family, Plantation and Store Supplies, 29 PETERS AND 4 CLINTON STREET, near the Customhouse, New Orleans.

Liberal cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, Rice and other consignments. Connections with the principal Northern markets. Sole agent for the celebrated Armstrong Machine-cleaned Moss. je1 10m

J. A. KERNAN & T. WHITE,

PRACTICAL GILDERS,

106 CUSTOMHOUSE ST., near Royal, New Orleans.

Regilding done in the best style. Oil Paintings restored, relined, cleansed and varnished. Looking-glass and Picture Frames made to order. Having a business experience of nearly forty years in this city, they hope to give satisfaction to their customers not only in the superiority of their work, but likewise in their moderate charges. Country orders promptly attended fe19 9m

LOUISIANA STEAM SASH, BLIND —AND— DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

New Orleans. Je11 1y

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

B. D. WOOD & BROS.,

106 Common St., opposite City Hotel,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat-load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. my7 1y

E. A. TYLER,

115.....Canal Street.....115

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

FINE WATCHES, DIAMONDS, JEWELRY, Plated-ware, Table Cutlery, Fancy Goods, etc. Pure Sterling Silverware, suitable for presents. Clocks and Bronzes in great variety. Jewelry manufactured and repaired. Clocks and Watches repaired. fe26 1y

TO THE PUBLIC.—Returning thanks for past favors, the undersigned desires to inform his friends and the public that he has removed to

152 and 154 Camp St., cor. Calliope, where he continues to Buy, Sell, Store, Remove, Pack and Repair FURNITURE of every description. Pictures and Looking-glasses framed.

JOHN BOIS,

fe26 1y Nos. 152 and 154 Camp street.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

English Carpetings, Rugs, Etc., Etc.

Also Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc. oc23 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.

AIKEN & WATT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

60 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce. Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no6 1y

DELICIOUS SODA WATER

AND

FRESH FRUIT SYRUPS,

At Eckleburg's,

Corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue,

New Orleans. Je11 3m

JAMES M. DOWLING,

SUCCESSOR TO J. M. JOHNSTON,

WHOLESALE GROCER, COMMISSION MERCHANT,

And Dealer in Western Produce,

NO. 25 DECATUR ST. (LATE OLD LEVEE,)

Je1 1y Cor. Customhouse St., New Orleans.

T. W. BOTHICK, UNDERTAKER,

No. 271 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood COFFINS always on hand. Black, Satin, Brown and White Merino Ladies' and Children's Shrouding. Embalming and Disinterring. Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses, Carriages and Cabs for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. de1 1y

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS,

TRADE-MARKS, COPYRIGHTS, ETC.,

Procured by

mh26 10m H. N. JENKINS,

No. 27 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

THE DOMESTIC

LOCK-STITCH SEWING MACHINE

WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME.

WILCOX & GIBBS' celebrated Twisted Loop-Stitch Sewing Machine, always ready and in order. Needles for all kinds of Sewing Machines.

M. S. HEDRICK,

my21 1y 103 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. D. COULON,

PORTRAIT PAINTER,

37.....Camp Street.....37

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Old Paintings restored. fe19 1f

E. HEATH. M. LARA.

HEATH & LARA,

Importers and Dealers in

UPHOLSTERERS' GOODS, WALL PAPER WINDOW SHADES AND CORNICES,

Mirrors, Frames, Molding and Wire Screens,

No. 99 Camp Street,

no20 1y New Orleans.

T. WHINREY CARTER,

ARCHITECT,

47.....POLYMNIA STREET.....47

ja15 1y New Orleans.

GAS FIXTURES.

GAS COOKING STOVES

AND PLUMBING MATERIALS

At New York Prices,

BY P. H. QUINLAN, 280 CAMP STREET.

Stores, Offices and Dwellings fitted up for Gas, Steam and Water in the most approved style. Country orders solicited. mh26 6m

F. J. KUHNHOLZ,

BOOK-BINDER,

112.....GRAVIER ST.....112

Near Camp, New Orleans.

Blank-books ruled and bound to order. All other books, such as Magazines, Music, Law-books, etc., bound with care and neatness, and at moderate prices. ja22 1y

HUGH FLYNN,

167 POYDRAS ST., NEW ORLEANS.

All who want to purchase CHEAP FURNITURE can call at 167 Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet streets.

On account of retiring from the Furniture business, I am now selling off my large stock of New Furniture at greatly reduced rates. I am selling at rates below those of any house in the city.

Walnut Victoria Bed-room Sets, marble top..$125 00

Parlor Sets, eleven-pieces..... 110 00

Double Bedsteads, with Testers and Rollers.. 12 00

Kitchen and Dining-room Furniture at equally low rates. Spring, Hair and Moss Mattresses of the best quality and at greatly reduced prices. de11 1y

T. A. BECK, COOPER,

NOS. 23 AND 21 FRONT STREET,

Between Customhouse and Bienville streets (Sugar Landing,) New Orleans,

has constantly on hand Sugar Hogsheads, Molasses Barrels, Half Barrels, Kegs, Hoop Poles, etc. Orders promptly attended to. Particular attention paid to trimming. de1 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

GEORGE PURVES'

PERSEVERANCE

Sash, Blind and Door

STEAM FACTORY,

AND

LUMBER YARD,

Cor. of St. Charles and Clio Sts., New Orleans.

GLAZED SASH.

Send for Price List.

de11 1y

1874. FIFTH 1874.

CINCINNATI INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION!!

ARTS, INVENTIONS, MANUFACTURES, PRODUCTS.

OPEN FROM SEPTEMBER 2 TO OCTOBER 3, 1874.

THE LARGEST FAIR EVER HELD IN THE UNITED STATES.

Eight Acres Under Roof in the Heart of the City. Three Acres of Machinery in Motion.

☞ Ample Hotel Accommodations. Reduced Railroad Rates of Fare. ☜

Jy23 6t

BUSINESS CARDS.

J. A. LUM. FRANK H. HOOKER.

J. A. LUM & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

CARRIAGES, HARNESS, ETC.,

162 Gravier and 13 Union Street.

☞ A SPECIALTY MADE OF CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES. mh5 1y

THOMAS HASAM,

LUMBER,

CABINS MADE TO ORDER.

Every description of LUMBER always on hand. Sash, Blinds, etc.

Mills and Yard—Corner CEDAR AND JULIA streets (New Basin,) New Orleans. Jn5 1y

mh5 1y

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

RESIDENCE AND OFFICE,

Corner Magazine and Second Streets,

New Orleans.

Office Hours—Eight to nine A. M. and three to four P. M. je29 1f

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152.....Julia Street.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed.

Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. de1 1y

DR. J. J. LYONS,

NO. 219 CARONDELET STREET

Between Julia and St. Joseph,

ja2 1y New Orleans, La.

G. W. BACK. W. R. FOSTER.

E. T. MERRICK, formerly Chief Justice, Louisiana.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

ATTORNEYS, COUNSELORS AND SOLICITORS,

Corner of Camp Street and Commercial Place,

se25 NEW ORLEANS.

BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC.

THE AMERICAN

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION

OFFERS

Special Terms to Sunday Schools

IN THE SELECTION OF NEW AND

REPLENISHING OF OLD LIBRARIES

Catalogues furnished on application to any of the

SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPOSITORIES.

No. 1122 Chestnut street, Philadelphia—ALEX. KIRKPATRICK.

No. 10 Bible House, New York—G. S. SCOFIELD.

No. 40 Winter street, Boston—E. SHUTE.

No. 261 West Madison St., Chicago—W. R. PORT.

No. 207 N. Sixth St., St. Louis—S. PAXSON. mh26 6m

R. ESTERBROOK & CO.'S

STEEL PENS.

FOR SALE BY

ALL BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Esterbrook Steel Pen Manufactur'g Co.,

49 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK.

Works—Camden, New Jersey. oc2 1y

NEW ORLEANS PURCHASING BUREAU.

To the Ladies of the South.

A Purchasing Agency has been established in New Orleans, Louisiana, for the benefit of those residing at a distance from the city, and who have not the facilities for obtaining just what they require.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE

respectfully offers her services in selecting, purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel or personal adornment for ladies' and children's use, including MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, JEWELRY, BRIDAL TROUSSEAUX, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Trimmings, Underwear, Sewing Machines, etc., etc.

Scrupulous care with reference to the price and quality and fidelity to the interest and fulfillment of the wishes of correspondents, will be sedulously carried out.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE'S

Dressmaking Establishment,

Nos. 94 and 96 Canal St., New Orleans.

Refers by permission to D. H. Holmes & Co., New Orleans. fe19 1y

FOUND.—The place to buy EUCALYPTUS (GLOBULUS, Blue Gum or Fever-Tree SEED. Also all Seeds known in Australia, New Zealand, South America or California. To be had of

H. F. WELLINGTON,

425 Washington St., San Francisco, Cal.

Send for circulars. je11 3m

Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers,

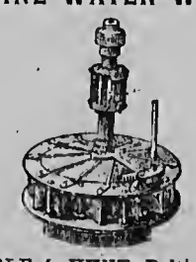
of every kind. Send stamp for Illustrated Price List to GREAT WESTERN GUN WORKS, Pittsburg, Pa. Jy9 13t

MISCELLANEOUS.

JAMES LEFFEL'S

IMPROVED DOUBLE

TURBINE WATER-WHEEL.



POOLE & HUNT, Baltimore,

Manufacturers for the South and Southwest.

Nearly Seven Thousand Now in Use, working under heads varying from 2 to 240 feet! Twenty four sizes, from 5½ to 96 inches.

The most powerful Wheel in the market, and most economical in use of Water. Large Illustrated Pamphlet sent post free.

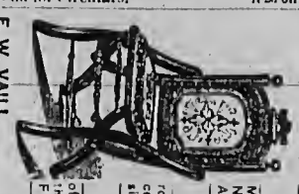
Manufacturers also of Portable and Stationary Steam Engines and Boilers, Babcock & Wilcox's Patent Tubulous Boiler, Ebaugh's Crusher for Minerals Saw and Grist Mills, Flouring Mill Machinery, Machinery for White Lead Works and Oil Mills, Shafting Pulleys and Hangers.

☞ Send for Circulars. fe26 6m



E. W. VAILL, Worcester, Mass., manufacturer in furniture and house furnishing goods. Send for Catalogue.

VAILL'S PATENT FOLDING CHAIRS

Manufactured in great variety. Nearly 100 kinds and sizes. Adapted for the parlor, drawing room, library, verandah, church, concert hall, lecture room, seaside and shipboard. A variety of folding cane seat chairs for the South and tropical countries. For sale by all first-class dealers.

Patentee and Manufacturer. mh15 6m

CINCINNATI PIANO-FORTE MANUFACTORY.

F. W. BIERE & SON,

WAREROOMS,

170 Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The attention of our friends and the public in general is most respectfully invited to our fine stock of HOME-MADE PIANOS.

We permit no inferior instrument to go out of our factory, but endeavor to EXCEL ALL MAKERS by producing PERFECT INSTRUMENTS ONLY, and thereby secure the entire confidence of the public. Jy23 3m

MONUMENTS A SPECIALTY.

AMERICAN GRANITE

AND ITALIAN MARBLE.

IMPORTERS OF

Scotch Granite Monuments

AND STATUARY FROM ITALY.

This is the OLDEST AND LARGEST establishment of the kind in the Western country, and would solicit a share of the Southern patronage. Being on the business for years, I feel confident of giving the utmost satisfaction, having in my employ men of experience.

OFFICE AND WORKS,

251, 253 and 257 West Fifth St.,

Jy23 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

STAR IRON WORKS.

WALTON, HEMLER & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

IRON RAILINGS,

SAFES AND BANK VAULTS,

JAIL CELLS, IRON STAIRS, DOORS AND SHUTTERS, Awning Frames, Gratings, Bolts, Stirrups, Verandas, Balconies, Patent Sidewalk and Sky-Lights, and all kinds of Iron Work for buildings.

Nos. 231 and 236 West Pearl Street,

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Orders promptly attended to and satisfaction guaranteed. Jy23 3m

LEVY BROS.'

Dry Goods Establishment,

AT

580.....MAGAZINE STREET.....580

Between St. Andrew and St. Mary.

NEW GOODS EVERY WEEK.

We are now opening a large and well-assorted stock of SPRING GOODS, which have been bought and will be sold at prices that will suit all purchasers.

Give Us a Call.

N. B.—Orders from the country will be promptly filled. mh15 1y

FLINN'S PATENT

SELF-FASTENING AND ADJUSTABLE

BED SPRINGS

Make the Best Spring Beds in Use.

They are complete in themselves, and can be applied in a few minutes to any slat bedstead.

☞ From three to five dozen make a Set.

JOHN FLINN,

248 South Second St., Philadelphia, Pa

Cor. S. Water and Champlain Sts., Cleveland.

Agents wanted everywhere. se18 1y

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT.—At home, Male or Female. $30 a week warranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with six-cent return stamp, C. ROSS, Williamsburg, New York. Jy2 2m

MACHINERY, TIES, ETC.

LANE & BODLEY,

CINCINNATI, OHIO,

MANUFACTURERS OF STANDARD

PLANTATION MACHINERY,

STATIONARY & PORTABLE

STEAM ENGINES,

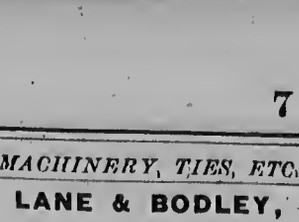
Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Shafting Hangers, Pulleys, etc. Our Machinery is strong, simple and well made, and is especially adapted to the wants of Farmers and Planters for Ginning, Sawing, Grinding and Factory use. Send for an Illustrated Catalogue.

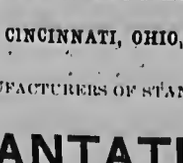
LANE & BODLEY,

Jy23 1y John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, O.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.





The above-mentioned Ties are the best and most popular Ties in use for Baling Cotton. They are manufactured of the best quality of English Iron, and are sold under full guarantee, at the lowest market price, by all dealers in Baling Stuffs in New Orleans, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, Charleston, Wilmington, Petersburg, Baltimore, Memphis, Louisville, Nashville, New York, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

R. W. RAYNE & CO.,

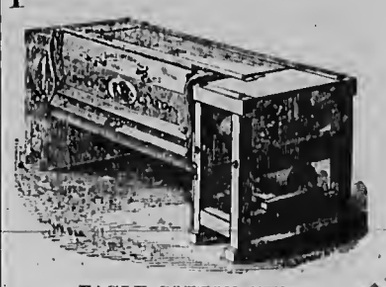
(Late Bartlett & Rayne.)

GENERAL AGENTS,

48 Carondelet Street, cor. Union,

je18 6m New Orleans.

IMPROVED



EAGLE COTTON GINS.

The great popularity of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well-known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gins ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin runs lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price, as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cotton than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans. He has never had a gin returned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve-inch cylinder in larger-sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an untried experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand friction gins.

PRICES.

40-Saw Gin.....	$201	65-Saw Gin.....	$325
45-Saw Gin.....	225	70-Saw Gin.....	350
50-Saw Gin.....	250	75-Saw Gin.....	375
55-Saw Gin.....	275	80-Saw Gin.....	400
60-Saw Gin.....	300

All orders should be addressed to

W. L. CUSHING,

No. 61 St. Charles street,

Sole Agent for the Southern States.

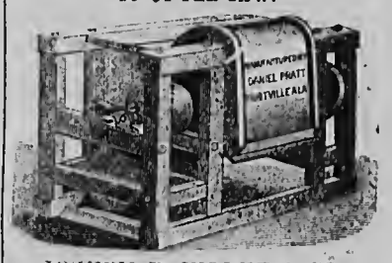
Agents wanted. Also on sale a large stock of Brooks' COTTON PRESSES, Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Strunk Corn Mills and Plantation Machinery of all kinds. my28 3m

DANIEL PRATT'S

Improved Cotton Gin.

PRICE REDUCED

TO $4 PER SAW.



JOSEPH B. WOLFE & CO.,

GENERAL AGENTS,

No. 59 Carondelet Street,

Je18 6m NEW ORLEANS.

PLOWS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC.

PLOWS

AND ALL IMPROVED

Agricultural Implements.

PLANTATION HARDWARE.

Steam Engines, Saw and Grist Mills.

PUMPS, SHAFTING, ETC.,

AT LOW PRICES FOR CASH.

B. J. WEST,

115 and 117 Magazine St., New Orleans,

MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

mh19 10m

CRESCENT MACHINE SHOP.

JOSEPH WALKER,

Machinist, Engineer, Blacksmithing,

ETC., ETC.,

CORNER ST. JOSEPH AND CONSTANCE STS., New Orleans.

☞ Plantation Machinery manufactured and repaired. Jobbing promptly attended to. fe5 1y

New Orleans Markets.

From the New Orleans Price Current.

The river is 12 feet 10 inches below high-water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the seventh instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales...	401
Mobile		182
Texas		27
Total		613

On Saturday, under more encouraging telegrams from Liverpool and New York, the market opened with a fair inquiry, but the movement being checked by light supplies of the kinds wanted, the sales during the morning were confined to a few small lots at steadier prices, after which the close improved, and the entire business summed up 5,000 bales. Ordinary sold at 11¼c., good ordinary at 14⅛c., good style do. at 14⅝c., good ordinary to strict at 14⅞c., strict good ordinary at 14¾c., and low middling at 15¼c. On Monday the business was confined to 216 bales. The largest list was 100 bales good style low middling at 16c., for which 15¾c. had been refused from another broker. An advance of 1-16d. in Orleans at Liverpool, with sales of 1,625 bales, was calculated to have a strengthening influence, but, on the other hand, sterling exchange gave way 2-10 ₱ cent. On Tuesday the market opened with a fair inquiry, but the movement being checked by scant supplies of the kinds wanted, and factors holding above the limits of pending orders, the sales during the morning were of limited extent, after which buyers came forward more freely, and the entire business summed up 909 bales, at prices indicating a further improvement in low middling and finer prices for other grades, to which we have conformed our quotations.

The above makes an aggregate for the past three days of 1,625 bales, against 1,275 for the corresponding time last week and 900 the week before.

The receipts proper at this port since the first of September, exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas, are 1,215,918 bales, against 1,230,183 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 210,291 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is an increase of 110,949 to France, of 115,214 to other foreign ports, and a decrease of 41,035 to Great Britain. We quote:

Inferior	7½ @	9
Low ordinary	9¾ @	10¾
Ordinary	11⅛ @	11¾
Strict ordinary	12⅝ @	13
Good ordinary	14⅛ @	14½
Strict good ordinary	14⅞ @	15
Low middling	15¼ @	16⅛
Strict low middling	16¼ @	16⅝
Middling	16⅝ @	16⅞
Strict middling	17 @	—

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1873...bales		7,177
Arrived past three days	613
Arrived previously	1,326 978	—1,327,589
Net corrections, showing the balance between several manifests duplicated, and bales made from waste, samples, damaged, city ginning, from receipts of seed-cotton not included in general receipts, lint from seed-cleaning machines in city mills, etc.		20,480
Add 2,552 bales, sunk in the ship Ailsa, omitted in the Exchange's stock statement		2,552
Total		1,357,798
Exported past three days	3,964
Exported previously	1,334,361	—1,338,325
Consumed at Lane Cotton Mills		800
Sunk in scuttled ship Ailsa, to be added if ever recovered		2,552
Total		1,341,677
Stock on hand and on shipboard		16,121

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—On Tuesday 100 hhds. sold at 9 @9¼c. for good fair, and 9¼c. for fully fair not refilled, 9¾c. for fully fair refilled, 9¾c. for first yellow clarified, and 10¼@10½c. for seconds.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Nothing doing except in grocers' trade. On Monday 12 bbls inferior cistern-bottom sold at 55c. ₱ gallon.

CORN.—On Tuesday the supply was fair, and, though the demand was only moderate, 1,000 sacks sold at 85c. for yellow mixed, 85@90c. for yellow, and 93@95c. for white.

OATS.—On Tuesday 1,900 sacks sold at 76½@80c. ₱ bushel.

BRAN.—On Tuesday 875 sacks sold at 75@80c. ₱ 100 lbs.

PORK.—The market has been quiet but strong at $25 ₱ bbl. for mess, though there were no sales excepting 25 bbls. on Saturday at $25 ₱ bbl. Meek is retailing at $25.50 cash and $26 ₱ bbl. time.

BACON.—On Tuesday 195 casks and 85 boxes sold at 13¾c. for clear rib sides, and 13½@13¾c. for clear sides on the spot, and 13¾c. for clear sides to arrive. Shoulders are strong at 10½c.

HAMS.—On Saturday 10 tierces choice sold at 16¾c. ₱ lb. On Tuesday 20 tierces sold at 16¾c. ₱ lb.

LARD.—On Tuesday 50 tierces sold, to arrive, at 16c., and 400 kegs spot, four lots, at 16c. ₱ lb.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 109½@109¾ (against 109¾ at New York,) and, after a moderate business, closed at 109½@109¾ (against 109¾ at New York.)

Nothing has been reported in silver. It is quoted at 104@105 for American half dollars. Mexican dollars closed at 98 gold or 107 currency.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS:
Cotton scrapers	$4 50	— —
Cotton sweeps	4 50	0 00
Cultivators, Diam. and shovel tooth	9 00	12 50
Cultivators, riding and walking	25 00	35 00
Shovels and spades	7 50	16 00
Axes	11 00	16 00
Shovel plows	5 00	7 50
Half do., with cutters	6 00	7 50
Manly's double-shovel plow	6 00	6 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	225 00
Bradford's grist mills	150 00	225 00
BRICKS, ₱ M:
Lake	9 50	15 00
Country	7 00	9 00
English fire	45 00	47 50
American fire	35 00	— —
CANDLES, ₱ lb.:
Sperm, New Bedford	30	31
Tallow	14	— —
CHOCOLATE, ₱ lb.:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	— —	— —
Sweet	22	— —
COAL, ₱ ton:
Aathracite	— —	18 00
Western, ₱ bbl	— —	— —
COFFEE, ₱ lb.:
Mexican	— —	— —
Java	28	30
COTTON SEED:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	10 00
EGGS, ₱ dozen:
Western	5	1
FERTILIZERS, ₱ ton:
Stern's raw-bone superphosph'e	— —	65 00
Stern's fine-ground bone	— —	45 00
FLOUR, ₱ bbl.:
Double extra	— —	4 50
Superfine	— —	— —
Fine	— —	— —
GLASS, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	— —	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 10 by 14 to 12 by 20	4 00	4 25
French, 14 by 18 to 18 by 20	4 25	4 75
HAY, ₱ ton:
Prime	— —	— —
Choice	26 50	27 00
IRON, ₱ ton:
English, ₱ lb	4	5
Swedes, assorted	7½	8
Hoop	8	9
Sheet	6	9
Nail rods	— —	9¾
Castings, American	5¾	6
LEATHER, ₱ lb.:
Sole, bemlock	30	33
Sole, oak	40	44
Harness	38	45
Calf-skins, ₱ dozen	35 00	100 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb	24	26
LIME, ₱ bbl.:
Western	1 50	1 75
Cement	2 50	2 75
Plaster Paris	— —	2 75
LUMBER, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	— —	— —
Boards, cypress	— —	— —
Flooring, dressed	18 00	20 00
Flooring, rough	— —	16 00
Ceiling, dressed	12 00	14 00
Weatherboards, dressed	14 00	16 00
Weatherboards, rough	— —	— —
Scantling	12 00	14 00
Shingles, ₱ M	— —	3 25
Laths	— —	— —
OILS:
Lard, ₱ gallon	1 03	1 05
Coal oil, in barrels	17	20
Linseed, raw	1 02	— —
SUGAR, ₱ lb.:
Havana, white	— —	— —
Havana, yellow	— —	— —
Havana, brown	— —	— —
Crushed	11¾	12
Pulverized	11¾	12
TEAS, ₱ lb.:
Imperial	27½	— —
Gunpowder	75	1 25
Hyson	70	1 40
Young Hyson	70	1 40
Pouchong	30	— —
Oolong	25	— —
WAGONS, CARTS, ETC.:
Wagon, two-horse	85 00	90 00
Wagon, four-horse	115 00	125 00
Wagon, two-horse, thim. skels	85 00	— —
Wagon, four-horse	100 00	110 00
Cane wagon	210 00	215 00
Ox wagon	90 00	125 00
Ox cart, complete	110 00	115 00
Cane cart	110 00	115 00
Tongue cart, complete	120 00	125 00
Plantation cart	55 00	70 00

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 11, 1874.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	— @	40 00
Texas beeves, first quality, ₱ head	30 00 @	35 00
Texas cattle, second quality, ₱ head	20 00 @	25 00
Texas cattle, third quality, ₱ head	12 00 @	18 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— — @	— —
Sheep, first quality ₱ head	4 00 @	5 00
Sheep, second quality, ₱ head	3 00 @	4 00
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00 @	100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	65 00 @	80 00
Calves, ₱ head	7 00 @	9 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	5 00 @	6 00

Advertisers' Directory

OF THE

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Alphabetically Arranged Under the Heads of the Business or Articles Advertised.

NOTE.—We take no advertisements except from those who we have good reason to believe are respectable and reliable. The publisher urges his solicitor and agents to seek the advertisements of the most worthy and reliable representatives in every branch of business, and not to apply to or accept business from persons of doubtful character. We have refused business to the extent of thousands of dollars each year for want of satisfactory information in reference to applicants. We think we may safely claim for the list below that it embraces, as a rule, the very best men and firms in the different branches represented.

☞ We retain no dead advertisements.

Agencies.
Gregg's Purchasing Bureau, corner Canal and Burgundy streets.
Mrs H. Magruge, Purchasing Bureau, 94 and 96 Canal street.
J. Hale Powers, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.
N. D. Thompson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Architects.
F. Whitney Carter, 58 Carondelet street.

Barber.
Baptiste, at Charles Hotel.

Bed Springs.
John Flinn, Philadelphia.

Bells.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Buckeye Bell Foundery, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Belting.
W. N. Thomson, 52 Race street, Cincinnati, O.

Book-Binder.
F. J. Kuhnholz, 112 Gravier street.

Books and Stationery.
Robert J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.
American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
Continental Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Chas. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, Mass.
E. A. Hutchinson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Miller's Bible and Publishing House, 1102 and 1104 Sansom street, Philadelphia.
Nettleton & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Queen City Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Valley Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo.
A. H. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn.
Ziegler & McCurdy, St. Louis, Mo.

Carpets.
A. Brousseau & Co., 17 Chartres street.
Elkin & Co., 168 Canal street.

Carriages, Wagons, Etc.
J. A. Lum & Co., 162 Gravier and 13 Union street.

Chairs.
E. W. Vail, Worcester, Mass.

China and Crockeryware.
W. C. Shepard & Co., 55 Camp street.

Clothing and Furnishing Goods.
Pierson & Ilewa, 13 and 15 Camp street.

Coal and Wood.
B. D. Wood & Bros., 106 Common street.

Cooperage.
T. A. Beck, 23 and 24 Front street.
P. A. Delilanc, 22 Front street.

Cotton Gins.
J. H. Wolfe & Co., 39 Carondelet street.

Cotton Ties.
Bartlett & Rayne, 48 Carondelet street.

Croquet.
Bradley's Patent Croquet, Robt. J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Dentists.
Dr. John G. Angell, 152 Julia street.

Direct Trade.
Dr. Thomas D. Worrall, 24 and 26 Camp street.

Dry Goods.
Levy Bros., 580 Magazine street.

Educational.
Alabama Conference Female College, Tuskegee, Ala.
Blackman's Commercial College, 131 Carondelet street.
Centenary College, C. G. Andrews, president, Jackson La.
Collegiate Institute, Prof W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge, La.
College for Ladies, Lake Forest, Ill.
Eminence College, Eminence, Ky.
Female College Rev. Thomas Ward White, president Greensboro, Ala.
Forest Academy, Anchorage P. O., Ky.
Hiwassee College, Rev. J. H. Brunner pres't.
Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky.
Martha Washington College, Abingdon, Va.
Randolph Macon College, Rev. James A. Duncan, A. M., D. D., president, Ashland, Va.
Soule's Commercial College, corner Camp and Common streets.
Southern University, Greensboro, Ala
Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va. Rev. W. A. Harris, president.
Whitworth Female College, H. F. Johnson, president, Brookhaven, Miss.

Engravers.
John Gibson, 82 Beekman street, New York.
J. W. Hart, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Warren Richards, 42 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Exterminators.
J. F. Henry, Curran & Co., New York.

Factors and Commission Merchants.
Aiken & Watt, 81 Carondelet street.
H. H. Wallace, 38 Perdido street.
J. B. Wilkinson, Jr., 29 Peters and 4 Clinton st.

Fire-Arms.
Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburg, Pa.

For Sale.
Tent on Seashore camp ground, Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Framers and Gilders.
Kernan & White, 106 Custom house street.

Furniture.
John Bols, 152 and 154 Camp street.
Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Co., 161 Julia street, New Orleans.
Hugh Flynn, 167 Poydras street.

Gas Fixtures.
P. H. Quinlan, 280 Camp street.

Grocers.
J. M. Dowling, 25 Decatur street.

Hotels.
American House, Boston, Massachusetts.
Bingham House, Philadelphia.
Crawford House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Frank J. Oakes, proprietor.

Iron Manufactories.
M. Walker & Sons, Philadelphia.
Walton, Hemler & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Job Printing.
Pelican Job Office, 112 and 114 Poydras street.

Lumber.
Thomas Hasam cor. Cedar and Julia streets.
George Purves, cor. St. Charles and Clio streets.
Roberts & Co., 301 to 307 Gravier street.

Machinery.
Billings & Spencer Co., Hartford, Conn.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., 664 to 694 Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
W. L. Cushing, 61 St. Charles street.
Lane & Bodley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Meneely & Kimberly, Troy, New York.
Turbine Water-Wheel, Poole & Hunt, Baltimore, Md
Turbine Water-Wheel, N. F. Burnham, York, Penna.
Jos. Walker, cor. St. Joseph and Constance sts
Well-Auger, W. Giles, St. Louis, Mo
H. J. West, 115 and 117 Magazine street.

Marble Monuments.
Office and Works, 251, 253 and 257 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Medical.
Addorley's Syrup Bromide Chloral, W. H. Addorley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Anti Rheumatic Mixture, W. J. Jurgielewicz, corner Magazine and Thalia streets.
Artificial Limbs, Charles M. Evans, 70 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky.
Cincho-Quinine, Billings, Clapp & Co., Boston, Mass.
Citrate of Magnesia, etc., Hofmann & Co., N. Y
Dr. Fitler's Vegetable Rheumatic Syrup, E. J. Hart & Co., New Orleans.
Dr. A. O Forsberg, 5 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio
Greene's Oxygenated Bitters, J. F. Henry, Curran & Co., 8 and 9 College place, New York.
Dr. Hobbard's Cure, E. Dibblee, 814 Sixth avenue, New York.
Dr. H. James' Indian Hemp.
Opium Cure, Dr. J. C. Beck, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Buffalo, New York
Rupture and Piles Cure, Dr. H. Neeson, 162 St. Charles street.
Simmons' Liver Regulator, J. H. Zeilin & Co. Philadelphia, Pa.
Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient.
The Greatest Medical Discovery, Dr. Kennedy, Roxbury, Massachusetts.
Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills, 18 and 20 Platt street, New York.

Mineral and Soda Water.
Eckeburg, corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue.

Musical Instruments, Publications, Etc.
Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.
H. M. Baldwin & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
F. W. Stere & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Henry Pilcher, 656 Portland avenue, Louisville, Ky.
Philip Werlein, 78 to 90 Baronne street.

Paper Mills.
Atlanta Paper Mills, Atlanta, Georgia.

Patents.
H. N. Jenkins, 27 Commercial place.
John A. Wiedersheim & Co., Philadelphia.

Pens.
R. Esterbrook & Co., New York.

Periodicals.
The Metaphysician, 51 Bond street, New York.

Portrait Painters.
G. D. Conlon, 37 Camp street.

Professional.
Dr. C. J. Bickham, office, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Dr. J. J. Lyons, office, 219 Carondelet street.
Race, Foster & E. T. Merrick, law office, corner Camp and Commercial place.

Railroads.
Great Jackson Route, A. D. Sheldon, agent, 22 Camp street, corner of Common.

Seeds.
B. F. Wellington, 425 Washington street, San Francisco, Cal.

Sewing Machines.
Domestic, M. S. Hedrick, 103 Canal street.
Wm. Gregg, cor. Canal and Burgundy streets.

Soap.
J. H. Keller, 110 Gravier street.

Steamships and Shipping.
Cromwell Line New York Steamers, Alfred Moulton, agent, 41 Carondelet street.
General Transatlantic Company, L. Grand, Gallier court, letter H.
Merchants' Line New York Steamers, J. H. Ludwigsen, 199 Common street.
State Line, A. K. Miller & Co., 29 Carondelet st.

Stoves.
G. W. W. Goodwyn, 52 Gravier street.
H. Haig, 39 Camp street.

Tea.
Great China and Japan Tea Warehouse, 170 Canal street.

Tobacco and Cigars.
Ed. L. Zell, cor. Canal and Carondelet streets.

Type and Presses.
Vanderburgh, Wells & Co., 110 Fulton and 10 and 18 Dutch street, New York.

Undertakers.
T. W. Bothick, 271 Camp street, New Orleans.

Upholstery.
Heath & Lara, 99 Camp street.

Wants.
A. M., Elberton, Elbert county, Ga.

Washing Machines.
Ringen Wagner, H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Watches and Jewelry.
E. A. Tyler, 115 Canal street.

Window Glass.
William Coulter & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Wire Railing, Etc.
Dufur & Co., Baltimore, Maryland.

Religious Notices.

CAMP MEETING.—The third annual camp meeting of the Brookhaven district, Methodist Episcopal Church South, will be held on the grounds of the Herington Camp Meeting Association, near Crystal Springs, Mississippi, beginning on Wednesday, August 19, 1874.

The meeting will be under the direction of the committee on religious services, of which Rev. W. E. M. Linfield, presiding elder of the district, is chairman.

In addition to the preachers of the district, a number of ministers from other parts of the State have been invited and may be expected to assist in the services.

The camp will be on the self-sustaining plan, heretofore carried out with so much satisfaction.

Facilities for reaching the camp ground have been much improved, and ample boarding accommodations at a very moderate scale of charges have been provided for.

Arrangements will be made for the preservation of that good order which has characterized former camp meetings, and all who meet with us for public worship may rely on being undisturbed in their religious privileges.

Half-Fare Tickets.—Colonel E. D. Frost, general manager of the New Orleans, St. Louis and Chicago railroad, in a letter to I. V. Enochs, says: "We will put half-fare tickets on sale for visitors to your camp meeting, beginning on the nineteenth instant."

A cordial invitation is extended to all—preachers and people—to attend these religious services. Let us come together in the spirit of the gospel, with an earnest desire to profit by the ministrations of the occasion.

For information as to building-lots, tents, etc., apply to I. V. Enochs, Willis Barnes or

W. C. WILKINSON, Secretary.

CAMP MEETING.—The camp meeting at Midway, ten miles north of Delhi, will commence September 10, 1874. Persons attending will pay full fare on the railroad coming, and return free on certificate. All ministers are invited to attend. Ample arrangements will be made for their comfort. Arrangements will be made to transfer all ministers and their baggage from Delhi to the camp ground, September 10 and 11, and return them when the meeting closes. No other arrangements will be made unless we are notified beforehand. The meeting will be conducted and carried on, as last year, on the independent plan. Come one! come all!

G. M. LIVERMAN, P. C.,
Floyd Circuit, Louisiana Conference.

THERE will be a camp meeting on the Sparta circuit, five and a half miles east of Sparta, on the Vernon road, commencing on Thursday evening before the second Sabbath in September next. The meeting will be conducted on the self-sustaining plan. All are invited to attend, and to come prepared to take care of themselves. Ministers of the gospel are invited. There will be special provision made for them and their horses. The third Quarterly Conference will be held at the same time and place.

D. A. BONNIE, P. C.

NOTICE.—There will be a camp meeting four miles north of Spearville, on the Farmerville circuit, Union parish, Louisiana, commencing on Friday before the fourth Sabbath in August; and another at Alabama church, between Homer and Farmerville, commencing on Friday before the third Sabbath in September. The people are expected to furnish their own tents and provisions, as a few do not expect to furnish a multitude.

R. PARVIN, Pastor.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—The District Conference for this district has been appointed to be held at Ivy Creek church, Autauga county, including the fifth Sunday in August, beginning on Thursday, the twenty-seventh. Conveyances will be provided for the delegates at Burnsville, on the Selma, Rome and Dalton railroad, at eight o'clock on Thursday morning. The trains meet at this point daily. It is very desirable that the official members generally attend, and be on hand at the opening service at eleven o'clock on Thursday morning.

A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

THE Brandon District Conference will be held at Scotland chapel, Neshoba county, Mississippi, August 27, 1874. Those brethren not having private conveyances will notify Rev. W. A. Ray, at Watkinsville, Neshoba county, Mississippi, in due time, who will furnish conveyance at Forest on the morning of the twenty-sixth of August. A full attendance is desired, as business of importance will be before the Conference.

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

DELHI DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—The Delhi District Conference will convene at Delhi, Louisiana, September 3, 1874. Rev. H. F. Alexander is appointed to preach the opening sermon.

C. W. CARTER, P. E.

THE Eufaula District Conference, Alabama Conference, will be held at Perote, Alabama, commencing on Wednesday night, August 26. Introductory sermon will be preached by Rev. T. W. Dyer. Members of the Conference will report to Rev. W. S. Turner, at the parsonage on arriving at Perote.

W. H. ELLISON, P. E.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

SEASHORE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Taylorville mission, at Calvary	Aug. 22, 23
Rankin circuit, at Wesleyanna	29, 30
Mount Carmel circuit, at Mount Zion	Sept. 5, 6
Columbia circuit, at Columbia	12, 13
Pearlington circuit, at Pearlington	19, 20
Ocean Springs circuit, at Ocean Springs	26, 27
White Plains circuit, at Cooper's Creek	Oct. 3, 4
East Pascagoula circuit, at Salem camp ground	10, 11
Chickasawha and Greene mission	17, 18
Enon circuit, at Bethel	24, 25

The preachers in charge will please remember and be prepared to submit full statistical reports, and the recording stewards should bear in mind the importance of making their report an finance. The trustees' report will also be called for.

13 C. F. GILLESPIE, P. E.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HENRY PILCHER,

BUILDER OF

CHURCH ORGANS,

656.....Portland Avenue.....656

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

Twenty-five years' experience in the business, and some of the finest instruments in the country as a specimen of my skill, are sufficient guarantee of the excellence of my work. Would solicit a share of the Southern patronage, and feel confident of my ability to please. The best of references as to ability and honorable dealing. jy16 3m

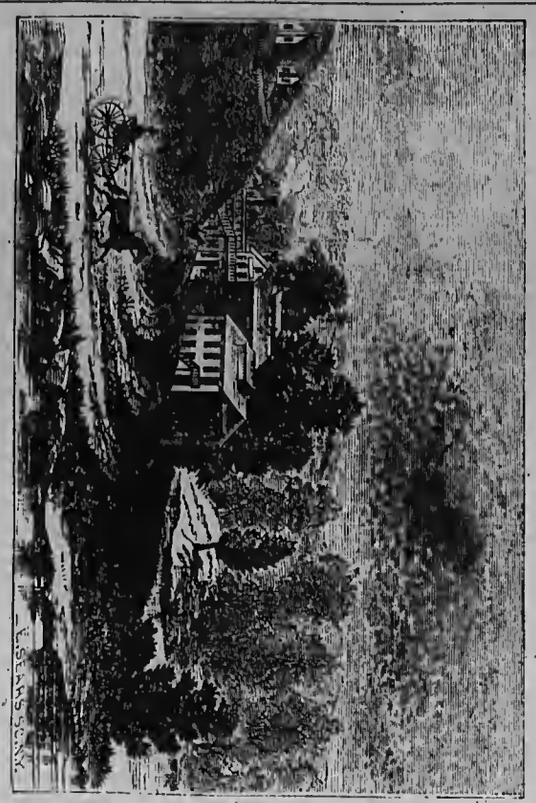
WANTED.

A situation as TEACHER, by a young man, a graduate of Emory College, Georgia, a strict member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and an experienced Teacher. He is competent to teach the usual English branches, the Latin and Greek Languages, the Higher Mathematics, and Chemistry, Organic and Inorganic. The best references can be given. Address

A. M., Elberton, Elbert Co., Ga.

LEGS AND ARMS.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Pamphlet free. CHARLES M. EVANS, manufacturer, (aug8 1y)
70 Fourth street.....LOUISVILLE, KY.
152 West Fourth street.....CINCINNATI, O.

PAPER MILLS.



ATLANTA PAPER MILLS.

JAMES ORMOND, PROPRIETOR.

OFFICE—NO. 43 BROAD STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

☞ For Specimen of "News" we refer to this issue of this Paper. ☜

Cash Orders Solicited. no6 1y

HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS.

MAKE YOUR HOME ATTRACTIVE

BY REPLENISHING YOUR

TABLE-WARE

—AT—

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.'S,

55.....Camp Street.....55

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

See What a Little Money Will Buy.

An Elegant White Granite DINNER SET, comprising 136 pieces, for..... $15 00
to wit:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Soup Tureen,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad Dish,
12 Soup Plates,	2 Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Tea Cups and Saucers,	2 Pickle Shells,
12 Dinner Coffee Cups and Saucers.

A Porcelain DeTerre DINNER SET (equal to French China in appearance, and much more durable,) same assortment as above..... $18 00
A French China (best quality) DINNER SET, same assortment, 136 pieces..... 30 00
Decorated Porcelain DeTerre and French China DINNER SETS, from..... $30 up.
White Granite CHAMBER SETS, 11 pieces $1 00
White Granite TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 4 00
French China TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 6 50
French China Decorated TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 7 50
Good Table GOBLETS, from 50 cents per set up.
Granite Dinner Plates, per dozen..... 1 40
Granite Breakfast Plates, per dozen..... 1 25
Granite Tea Plates, per dozen..... 1 15
French China Dinner Plates, per dozen..... 3 00
French China Breakfast Plates, per dozen... 2 75
French China Tea Plates, per dozen..... 2 25

NOTE.—The prices above contemplate "First-choice" goods, every piece being warranted regular and perfect. "Seconds" or imperfect goods, warped in making and otherwise irregular, we will furnish for those that desire at twenty per cent. discount from these prices. We shall meet all competition promptly, and as we import our own ware our customers can depend upon getting the BEST GOODS at the lowest possible prices.

AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED

BLANCHARD CHURNS,

AND THE LARGEST DEALERS IN

HOUSEKEEPING NOVELTIES

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
dell 1y No. 55 Camp street, New Orleans.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLINGS' PATENT

Sewing Machine

SHUTTLES.

Twenty Varieties Now Made.

Forged solid from bar steel and cold pressed.

TRADE B MARK.

Also Wrought Iron and Steel

DROP FORGINGS

of all descriptions, for Guns, Pistols, Sewing Machines, Agricultural Implements, etc.

MANUFACTURED BY

Billings & Spencer Co.,

LAWRENCE STREET,

ap9 6m Hartford, Conn.

DIRECT TRADE.

DIRECT TRADE.

Merchants and business men of the Mississippi Valley who desire to purchase IMPORTED GOODS of British manufacture, at little if any over half the cost of such when purchased in New York, should correspond with or call upon DR. THOMAS D. WORRALL, American Director of the Direct Trade Company, 24 and 26 Camp street, New Orleans.

Samples of stock constantly on hand. je18 4m

WILLIAM COULTER & SON,

MANUFACTURERS OF

ORNAMENTAL, GROUND AND CUT

WINDOW GLASS,

104 East Second St., Cincinnati, O.

Ornamental Window Glass, of every description, for Churches, Private and Public Buildings, Steamboats, Railroad Cars, etc. jy23 3m

ED. L. ZELL,

DEALER IN

CIGARS, CIGARETTES AND TOBACCO,

Cor. Canal and Carondelet Sts.,

Postoffice Lock Box 374, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Largest and best assortment always on hand. Prices as low as the lowest. Goods forwarded C. O. D. by Express to any address. Country orders solicited. Satisfaction warranted. de25 1y8p

FITS AND EPILEPSY Positively cured. The worst cases of longest standing by using DR. HEIBARD'S CURE. A bottle sent FREE to all addressing J. E. DIBBLEE, Druggist, 814 Sixth avenue, New York. aug6 1m STEAMSHIPS—STEAMBOATS.

STATE LINE.

The magnificent new Steamships of this line are dispatched regularly between LIVERPOOL AND NEW ORLEANS, touching at Bordeaux on passage from Liverpool only.

Return tickets good for twelve months. Through tickets to and from all parts of the United States and Europe. Drafts, good in any parts of Great Britain, Ireland or Europe, from £1 up, at lowest rates.

Prepaid Emigration Certificates, for convenience of parties sending for friends from the Old Country, only $35 in greenbacks from any railway station in Great Britain or Ireland, and from any part of the Continent at reduced rates.

The Steamships of this line are built especially for this trade, with unsurpassed passenger accommodation and to cross the bar without detention.

A. K. MILLER & CO., Agents, je4 1y 29 Carondelet St., New Orleans.

FOR NEW YORK.

The Cromwell New York and New Orleans Steamship Line.

Leaving New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin Passage..... $50 00
Steerage Passage..... 25 00

Through bills of lading to foreign and coastwise ports issued.

ALFRED MOULTON,
mh19 1y No. 41 Carondelet street.

FOR NEW YORK.

MERCHANTS' STEAMSHIP LINE.

Sailing from New York and New Orleans EVERY SATURDAY.

Cabin Passage..... $50 00
Steerage Passage..... 25 00

Through tickets to Liverpool and the Continent.

New Orleans wharf—Foot of Jefferson street.

New York wharf—Pier No. 4, North River

JOHN H. LUDWIGSEN, Agent, fe12 1y No. 199 Common street.

RAILROADS.

NEW ORLEANS, ST. LOUIS AND CHICAGO RAILROAD CO.

(Great Jackson Route.)

Trains depart and arrive as follows, from Calliope street Depot:

DEPART.

Express	7.00 A. M.
Mail	5.00 P. M.

ARRIVE.

Express	10.30 P. M.
Mail	8.00 A. M.

PULLMAN PALACE SLEEPING-CARS THROUGH TO ST. LOUIS, CHICAGO AND LOUISVILLE.

Only one change of Sleeping-Cars to Eastern cities.

Tickets for sale and information given at 22 Camp street, corner of Common.

A. D. SHELDON, Agent.
E. D. FROST, General Manager. my25 6m

MISCELLANEOUS.

T.....T.....T

Tea-drinkers ordering their supplies from the Great China and Japan Tea Warehouse,

170 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS, will save from Twenty-five to Seventy-five cents on every pound of Tea they consume, besides getting a more palatable article into the bargain. The following are a few of our leading varieties:

Best OOLONG, Black	$1 00 per lb.
Best BREAKFAST, Souchong	1 20 "
Best IMPERIAL, Green	1 40 "
Best GUNPOWDER, Green	1 60 "
Best YOUNG HYSON, Green	1 40 "

We guarantee all of the above to be strictly A1 Teas. Our prices for Oolong and Imperial Teas range from 50 cents per pound upward.

We have a good strong, well-flavored Black or Mixed Tea at 60 cents per pound, which we recommend to large consumers.

Orders from the country, unaccompanied with the cash, will be shipped by Express, to be collected on delivery of goods. Checks, drafts and post office orders should be made payable to the proprietor,

J. J. MARTIN,
No. 170 Canal street, New Orleans.

N. B.—We ship Teas to all points in the South ern States. je18 1y

J. W. HART,

Engraver

ON WOOD.

258 RACE ST. CIN. O.

jy23 3m

HEADACHE, NERVOUSNESS, NEURALGIA, SLEEPLESSNESS,

IMMEDIATELY RELIEVED BY

ADDERLEY'S

SIRUP BROMIDE CHLORAL.

A harmless preparation, quieting pain, relieving Headache promoting sleep, and absolutely certain to allay all Nervous excitement. Not a patent medicine. Highly recommended by first-class physicians. Price, 50 cents and $1 per bottle.

Prepared by W. H. ADDERLEY, Apothecary, Cincinnati, Ohio. Sold by

I. L. LYONS,
jy23 3m Cor. Camp and Gravier Sts., New Orleans.

PATENTS For INVENTIONS TRADE MARKS

Copyrights etc., etc., procured by

JOHN A. WIEDERSHEIM & CO.,
110 South Fourth street, below Chestnut,
Philadelphia, Pa

Full information without charge.
Call or send for Book of Instructions. se18 1y

MEDICAL.

DR. C. M'LANE'S

Celebrated American

WORM SPECIFIC,

OR

VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eyelid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy, not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes d

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. 20. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, 1874. NO. 34.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 12.—The latest reports from Austin state that the improvised troops had disbanded and gone home, and peace was restored. The impression prevails here that a few determined men could have prevented the whole affair at the outset by meeting the negroes before summoning help from elsewhere.

CANTON, MISS., Aug. 16.—The north side of the public square was burned last night. The fire originated in Harp's store, and is supposed to have been caused by an explosion of coal oil. Loss estimated at $100,000; insurance $20,000.

NEW IBERIA, Aug. 17.—Messrs. Joseph A. Breaux and Laurent Renoudet, of this place, returned from St. Martinsville this afternoon and report that about seven hundred citizens of the parish of St. Martin assembled at the courthouse to-day and demanded the resignation of all the officers.

It seems resistance to the demand was anticipated, and consequently considerable excitement prevailed. The officers resigned under protest, yielding to superior force.

No violence was offered them. About five hundred of the citizens were mounted. No serious trouble is apprehended.

AUGUSTA, GA., Aug. 18.—Considerable excitement prevails here this afternoon, caused by the report of an anticipated fight between the blacks and the whites at Ridge Springs, Edgefield county, South Carolina, forty two miles from Augusta, on the Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta railroad. A party of armed whites left here this afternoon to aid their friends, and others will follow in case the conflict begins. At nine o'clock all was quiet at Ridge Springs, but a fight is anticipated. Both the whites and blacks are arming for the fray, and there is an uneasy feeling that a war of races will begin in South Carolina. In that event the white people of Georgia on the Savannah river will go to the rescue of the white people of South Carolina. Arms and ammunition are being shipped from this city. Everything quiet here, but there is a feeling of serious trouble in South Carolina.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The following interesting particulars of the escape of Marshal Bazaine from his prison on the Island of St. Marguerite have been received:

The apartments occupied by Marshal Bazaine opened upon a terrace, which was built upon a lofty and precipitous cliff overhanging the sea. A sentry was posted on the terrace with orders to watch the prisoner's every movement.

On Tuesday evening the marshal walked upon the terrace with Colonel Villette, his aide-de-camp. At two o'clock he retired, as usual, apparently to sleep, but before daybreak he had effected his escape.

He must have crossed the terrace in the dead of night, and, eluding the sentinel, gained the edge of the precipice. Thence, by means of a knotted rope, he descended to the sea.

He evidently slipped during the descent and tore his hands, as the rope was found stained with blood in several places. Under the cliff, in a hired boat, were Bazaine's wife and a cousin.

They received him as he reached the water, and Mme. La Marechale, taking the oars herself, rowed directly to a strange steamer which had been lying off the Island since the previous evening. They reached the vessel in safety, were taken on board, and the steamer then put to sea.

It is thought that they have landed at Genoa, as the steamer proceeded in that direction. The first news of the affair came to Grasse, the nearest place on the coast, and the magistrates of the town immediately sent officers in every direction to search for the fugitive. There was great commotion in Marseilles when the facts became known.

An investigation was at once opened. Colonel Villette, who was walking with the marshal on the evening of his escape, was discovered there and imprisoned by the commandant of the fort of St. Marguerite. He was placed under arrest, and General Lewelno has gone to the island to investigate the affair.

It has been ascertained that the plan for Marshal Bazaine's escape from St. Marguerite Island was arranged about six weeks ago. It was the entire work of Madame Bazaine. The marshal refused at first to fly, but finally, owing to his failure to obtain some modification of his sentence, yielded. He sailed from the island in the steam yacht Doron Lesoll, belonging to an Italian company. He refused to employ a French vessel. He was accompanied in his flight by his wife and brother. His place of refuge is not known. Some persons say he is in Spain. The domestics at the fort where the marshal was imprisoned have been arrested.

PARIS, Aug. 14.—Marshal Bazaine arrived at Mayence yesterday from Basle, and will go to Brussels via Cologne. France will make no demand for him.

LONDON, August 14.—The Times' Madrid correspondent positively confirms the reports of the recognition of Spain by England, France and Germany. The announcement has caused general rejoicing in the capital.

The Post's special dispatch from Berlin reports that Austria and Italy have also recognized the republic.

The Times, in an editorial article, says that England would have recognized Spain some time since but for the reluctance that France and the indifference that Germany had presented.

The Pall Mall Gazette says Russia hesitates to recognize Spain, because such action will strengthen the cause of republicanism in Europe.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Holland and Italy have recognized the Spanish republic.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 15.—The Spanish republic has been recognized by Belgium.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—An election to fill a vacancy in the Assembly was held in the department of Calvados to-day. Partial returns indicate the success of the Republican candidate by the following vote: Aubert, Republican, 4,700; Delnuney, Bonapartist, 2,154; Fontelle, Legitimist, 1,602.

Count Jarnac has been appointed embassador of France to the court of St. James.

M. DeForcade Laroque, the eminent statesman, died to-day, aged fifty-four.

The Cologne Gazette publishes a letter from Madame Bazaine to Minister Chaband Latow, in which that lady declares that the first account of the marshal's escape was substantially true. She says she planned the affair herself, and had no accomplices except one of her relations.

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—The New Free Press says it has reliable information that the Pope will soon recognize Marshal Serrano as president of Spain.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The recognition of the Spanish republic by England, France and Austria is officially promulgated.

The Poor Pilgrims in Rome.

It is too bad, says the New York Observer, that the newspapers in Rome itself should make fun of our Irish fellow-citizens who went all the way there to see the Pope. But of these naughty papers one of them describes their reception in the words following, to wit:

"The eighty Irish-Americans went to bed last night in a bad humor. They expected as soon as they arrived to be able to run to the Vatican with the same freedom with which they ran to Aragno's to refresh themselves with brandy. But Mgr. Nardi, who bothers them greatly, told them that the Pope could not receive them as yet. Two packets of letters arrived late at the Hotel de Rome and at the Hotel de la Minerve, in the usual form—'His Holiness will deign to receive Mr. So-and-So to-morrow,' etc. This morning early all the Irish-Americans prepared the chaplets they wanted to be blessed, counting over for the last time the dollars safe and sound, and, with a great red heart at their button-hole, presented themselves at the Vatican. All the members of the American college were there to receive them, and several foreign prelates. You should have seen these pilgrims looking astounded at the 'prison' of the holy pontiff. One of them turned round to a priest and said: 'I say, what a jolly prison!' When they arrived in the consistorial hall they began to speak low, trembling with emotion. A door is thrown open; general movement. His holiness, dressed in white, appears in the hall. The pilgrims see a cloud of cardinals, prelates, noble and palatine guards. They pay no attention to them, but kneel down and wait. Mgr. Dwenger takes courage and approaches the holy father. A parchment is in his trembling hand, and his still more trembling voice reads a long address in Irish-American Latin.

"Mgr. Nardi covers his face and murmurs: 'Immaculate virgin, what Latin!'

"Another gentleman takes the bishop's place and reads another address in rather more Christian French. M. Theard, he just. Now that you have seen the prison and the prisoner, you would not certainly write such another speech.

"His holiness is not so hilarious as usual. He replies in French, with a certain degree of emotion, to the two addresses.

"The pilgrims, who masticate Latin better than the language of Bossuet and Voltaire, gaze stupefied on his holiness. It is a pity that they could not enjoy hearing that America is a proof of the triumphant grandeur of the church, in spite of the ambitions usurpers, who, although near the See of St. Peter, wage dire war against the vicar of Christ. Let us come to the solid part. The Vatican is repaid for the blessings it sends to all the Yankees, Grant included. The pilgrims deposit at the feet of his holiness nice sums of gold and precious gifts. Among other things, some niggers sent a beautiful stick with a richly chased gold handle. The hollow stick is full of gold coins. A splendid support.

"The holy father admires the presents, passes them over to the prelates near him, and then invites the pilgrims to hand him their chaplets and images to be blessed. After the blessing, which is not a long affair, the pontiff takes a turn up and down the hall, distributing to the pilgrims, as souvenirs, silver Madonnas and crucifixes. The pilgrims leave the Vatican more stupid than blessed. Poor people! they came badly off. They seriously expected to see a prisoner, and they saw a supreme pontiff instead. On the stairs a Yankee made a grimace at a gendarme, thinking that he was one of the usurper's ruffians, placed there to prevent the Pope from escaping. The official guide, Mgr. Nardi, immediately undeceived the ingenuous Irish-American."

From the Work.

OAK RIDGE AND PRAIRIE MER ROUGE CIRCUIT.—Mr. Editor: Please say to the lovers of Zion, through the ADVOCATE, that the quarter just closing has been a pleasant one on the Oak Ridge and Prairie Mer Rouge circuit. There have been some twelve conversions and fifteen or sixteen accessions to our church. In finance we are behindhand, there being no money in the country. Crops, however, were never more promising, and should there be no drawback thereto we will come out all right at the close of the year. "The best of all is, God is with us."

Yours in Christ,

JAMES L. WRIGHT, P. C.

RASTROP, LA., July 25, 1874.

OAK GROVE REVIVAL, CARROLL PARISH, LOUISIANA.—Mr. Editor: Oak Grove is a nice village, situated in the northern part of Carroll parish. The good people have built them a nice house to worship God in. We have just closed a meeting at this place which lasted nine days. They have an excellent Sabbath school—the star one in Floyd circuit. There is a singing society, with an excellent leader—Bro. Galloway. Everything seems to be well organized here. Bro. Upton, of Homer, and Bro. McClendon, of Lind Grove circuit, were with us part of the time, preaching with acceptability. The local ranks were represented by Bros. Reneau, Shyriagh and Keller, preaching in the spirit of their Master. God was with us in converting power. We feel that our prayers were answered. Twenty-six united with the church. Six infants were given to God in holy baptism. Backsliders were reclaimed and the whole church considerably revived. Remember us in your devotions, and come to our camp meeting at Midway, September 10.

G. M. LIVERMAN.

FLOYD, August 6, 1874.

FARMERVILLE CIRCUIT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: This is to inform you and your readers what we are doing. We have built at Shiloh one of the most elegant village churches we have ever seen built out of wood. We have gone in the regions beyond our measure, and established an encampment for a camp meeting. We are also building a large shed at the Alabama camp ground.

For the missionary cause we have collected $22 in cash, and from young men we have sixteen rows of cotton, two hundred yards long, growing. From old ladies we have two large turkeys and eight chickens, and from little girls we have eight pairs of socks, and a confident assurance that we will try to get every Methodist in the bounds of this circuit to do something for the missionary cause; and if we are living when the Conference meets in Alexandria we will not come satisfied unless we have succeeded in this part of our undertaking. It is something that we never did succeed in doing. If we succeed we will have accomplished two important objects that we never did before—having a church finished and furnished, and every Methodist on his circuit to do something for the missionary cause. We have had many houses commenced and built, but could never get them finished and furnished with everything needed in a Methodist church. We preach the doctrine of holiness, but there is no such thing as holy living without holy giving. Our people are blessed with a good prospect of a fine harvest of corn and cotton in this part of the State, and an abundance of fruit—figs, peaches and apples.

R. PARVIN.

FARMERVILLE, LA., July 29, 1874.

RAPIDES PARISH, RAPIDES CIRCUIT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: This is my fourth year on Rapides circuit, and I am almost sorry that I shall have to leave this people so soon. The work has gradually improved. I have received more than three hundred members into the church, and many have been converted.

I have baptized about fifty children and received eighty-seven persons into the church this year. I have received forty-two persons into the church in less than two weeks, and have witnessed more than forty conversions. I think my third quarterly meeting was one of the best meetings I ever attended. Our heretofore faithful presiding elder failed to meet us, and at first we were sadly disappointed; but, assisted by two local brethren—Bros. Smith and Odom—we went to work, increasing in earnestness till the fifth night, when we gained the most complete victory I have ever realized. Twenty-five persons united with the church, thirty-five were converted, and of course the church was revived. The work is deep and genuine.

Bro. Smith and I held another meeting immediately afterward, of four days' continuance, which resulted in twelve conversions and fourteen additions to the church. I hope that the work is just getting under good headway.

Yours, etc., JOHN F. WYNN.

JULY 30, 1874.

CHINA GROVE, PIKE COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI.—Mr. Editor: In May last Rev. E. W. Simmons and myself resolved to concentrate our forces at China Grove on the eighteenth of July. At the time appointed there assembled a large congregation. We met with poor encouragement at first. On Monday, the third day of the meeting, the work began in earnest. Such a wonderful display of divine power in the conviction and conversion of sinners, reclaiming of backsliders and the upbuilding of Zion I have seldom witnessed. Nearly everybody turned preacher before the meeting closed. Everything else was laid aside after the first three of four days, and attention was given to the interests of Zion. The people came from Pearl river, Bogue Chitto, Lawrence county and Louisiana, and many of them were powerfully converted. Oh, how it did rejoice this poor soul of mine to see sinners come flocking home to Jesus. I had been pastor of the church at China Grove for three years, and had not seen a single soul converted there. The people had all been kind and liberal, and attentive to preaching, etc., but none were converted until now. I almost began to conclude that my labors were in vain. But, thank God, I feel different now. The meeting lasted nine days, and resulted in forty-nine accessions to the church, and about as many conversions, some of which were as bright as I ever saw.

Bros. E. W. Simmons, W. J. Ball and W. W. Connerly were with us during the meeting and did good service. Rev. A. B. Nicholson, our presiding elder, was with us the two first days. Bro. C. C. Watkins was with us three days, and did good while he remained.

I hope to be able to send you a long list of new subscribers soon. Get people converted and they will read our papers

Yours in the Redeemer,

H. P. LEWIS.

HOLMESVILLE, Miss., July 30, 1874.

OZARK CIRCUIT, OZARK, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: "The God of all grace" has given us recent tokens of "good will" on this circuit by sending upon the church refreshing showers of love and salvation.

On Saturday before the third Sabbath in July Bro. Butt, presiding elder, held the third Quarterly Conference for this pastoral charge. Bro. E. Philips was present and aided in the meeting. However, I was left alone in the preaching after Monday; but the services were protracted till Wednesday night. The church was greatly revived and one member added by letter.

On Saturday before the fourth Sabbath Bro. T. Z. Hildreth began our protracted meeting at Tabernacle. I reached the scene of action on Monday morning. The same day Bro. Henry Metcalf arrived on the ground. The meeting was continued till Thursday night. The church was greatly refreshed and invigorated, and several precious souls were converted, and nineteen added to the membership—sixteen on profession and three by letter. The majority of the additions were composed of promising young men and women.

At eleven o'clock on the first Sunday in this month I began the meeting in Ozark. At night Bro. Phillips was with us. On Monday Bro. J. M. Johnson, of Newton circuit, arrived, and remained till Thursday morning, and preached twice for us. Bros. John and Zimmmon Dowling were also with us most of the time, aiding by prayer and song, and one sermon by Z. Dowling. The meeting was closed last Sunday night by Bro. Phillips. This was one of the most satisfactory and gratifying meetings it has ever been my privilege to conduct. The whole church was abundantly blessed and encouraged; and a goodly number was converted, and twenty-five joined the church—twenty-four on profession and one by letter.

At eleven o'clock on the last Sunday of the meeting Bro. Phillips took a collection for the purpose of paying the balance due on the church house, and also to finish and complete the building. The happy result was six hundred and thirty five dollars in the best of subscriptions, with the prospect of a hundred more. Now my heart is full of gratitude to God and the church.

A. DOWLING.

OZARK, ALA., August 11, 1874.

JACKSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE. Mr. Editor: The District Conference for the Jackson district of the Mississippi Annual Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South was held in this city, July 23-26, 1874, Bishop Wightman presiding, John F. Cameron secretary, with H. H. Hines as assistant.

The calling of the roll showed every charge represented by its pastor and one or more lay delegates.

The reports as to the spiritual condition of the church were, upon the whole, rather encouraging. The Sabbath school cause is increasing in interest and importance. The attendance on public worship is good and improving. The church meetings are well attended and regularly held on most of the charges. Regular prayer meetings are held at many of the appointments. At a good many of them class meetings are also held, while at others the members seem to think the class meeting is merged in the church meeting, and do not seem inclined to attend both. Hence in many places class meetings are not held.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper is regularly administered. Family religion is unfortunately at a low ebb, and the membership need arousing on that subject.

The financial interests do not, up to the present time, look so promising as they ought to; but the pastors and stewards in every instance appear quite sanguine of their ability to meet all the assessments by the close of the Conference year.

On the subject of Sabbath schools it was resolved that no schools should be reported to or recognized by this Conference but those exclusively under our control and using our church literature. Union schools (of which there are several in the district,) not using our literature, were therefore not reported.

It being represented to the Conference that there is a considerable scope of country within its limits not occupied by our church, and the importance of such occupation being apparent, the following resolution was adopted, viz.:

"Resolved, That the Annual Conference, to assemble in December next, be earnestly requested to form the territory referred to into proper circuits or missions, and appoint suitable members of the Conference or church to take charge of the same, as shall seem proper to the Conference, and to cover more territory than the above if laborers can be found."

A committee, consisting of H. H. Montgomery, Thomas M. Ward and E. C. Postell, was appointed to consider the subject of establishing within the district a district school of high grade. The committee made the following report, which was adopted:

"That we have but little time in which to consider the subject, yet we believe that there is an existing necessity for such a school in the district. Believing that the Conference is not now prepared to locate such school, and believing that two or three towns in the district desire the location of such a school in their midst, we offer the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That we believe the educational interests of our people demand the establishment of a school of high grade in the bounds of this district.

"Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to consider the question of location, to consider propositions that may be made, determine the place of location; and, if they can, make arrangements for the opening of said school, and report to the next District Conference."

The committee is as follows: H. H. Montgomery, R. D. Norsworthy, C. B. Galloway, J. M. Weems and E. C. Postell.

Rev. H. F. Johnson, president of Whitworth Female College, and Rev. C. G. Andrews, president of Centenary College, were present as visitors, and each addressed the Conference in behalf of those institutions. The following resolution in reference to Centenary College was passed:

"Resolved, That as individuals and as a Conference we will do all we can to advance the interests of Centenary College."

In reference to the week of prayer, as appointed by the Bishops, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That we do earnestly request all the pastors of this district to urge our charges and congregations to observe the week of prayer appointed by the Bishops of our church, to begin on Friday, August 21, and that they make arrangements, wherever possible, for a daily service at each church during the ten days designated by the Bishops, and for the administering the holy communion on one of the Sundays embraced in the ten days designated."

Jackson was designated as the place for holding the next District Conference.

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, viz.: E. C. Postell, W. L. Nugent, John T. Cameron and John S. Hutton. Reserves—O. R. Singleton and J. J. Birdsong.

There was preaching morning and night during the session. The services were protracted for several days after the Conference adjourned, resulting in several additions to the church and a considerable increase of spirituality among the membership.

JOHN T. CAMERON, Sec.

CANTON, MISS., July 23, 1874.

The Plain English of It.

The New York Methodist regrets the tone and temper of the New York Christian Advocate (the leading official organ of Northern Methodism) as obstructive of "fraternity." This is unmistakable:

"Why Dr. Curry was re-elected, the Lord only knows, for we could never find a human being who could tell. Certainly it was not done because he represented the opinions of the majority of our General Conference. His war-cry of disintegration and absorption of the Church South has become the by-word and scorn of Northern Methodism. As chairman of the committee on the state of the church he withdrew the resolution to appoint a commission to settle the property questions at issue—the most unfortunate thing done by our General Conference. That he represents Northern Methodism in his attitude on this and most other questions, no one who understands church opinion for a moment believes."

We suppose it is well understood, North and South, that the said Dr. Curry desires no fraternity, unless it be on terms dishonoring to and destructive of the Southern Church. Neither does he desire union; he is among the few of the Church North who does not. In union the high contracting parties might make terms and conditions; but he prefers conquest. His preference is to disintegrate and absorb; and a fraternity that would help forward that process would be to his liking.

In the same number of the New York Methodist (July 18,) and as part of the editorial above quoted from, we find this singular language:

"It will do no good for our Southern brethren to be perpetually harping on the 'Plan of Separation.' Most Northern Methodists of this generation know little about the plan, and care less. We might as well ask them to discuss Sanskrit roots as its terms. To their minds it is as effectually dead as though it belonged to the world before the flood. If Southern Methodists have for thirty years been 'chewing the end of bitter fancies,' and inwardly determining that some day they would make us acknowledge the 'plan,' they might as well cease talking about fraternity. We are acting on the supposition that we are all in a new era; that old things have passed away, and all things have become new.

"When Southern Methodists meet with us, to arrange formally the conditions of fraternity, they will find us all ready to agree: 1. That the property rights acquired by them under the Plan of Separation are to remain undisturbed. 2. That the geographical line of division having been disregarded by both churches, each may pursue its work, North or South, under friendly conditions. We are not going to retire from the South, nor will any Northern churches do so. The Southern churches will not be asked to retire from the old free States. The South does not belong to the South, but to us as well; from that position we will never recede. Ours is to be a common country, open to us all, for trade, commerce and the establishment of schools and churches. We wish Southern preachers to come among us, and, if they can, to found churches; if they can do us good, let them come and do all they can.

"We caution our Southern friends not to be too sure of the legal validity of the 'Plan of Separation.' Another appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States may not fare so well as the first did. It is clear to every Northern Methodist that the 'plan' was not fairly valid without the consent of three-fourths of the members of the Annual Conferences. The two courts of first instance, in New York and Cincinnati, decided the question in precisely opposite ways; on appeal the case was decided against us by a Supreme Court of decided Southern leanings. That court has been known to reserve its decisions, and in the present altered temper of the times might do so again. Overmuch confidence in the Plan of Separation may prove to be disastrous to Southern Methodism."

The plain English of which we take to be about this:

1. In every instance, from 1848 to 1870, in which "fraternity" with the Northern branch of Methodism was officially alluded to, it was expressly and publicly based upon the rights and status guaranteed to us under the Plan of Separation. Now we are told by a comparatively conservative organ of that church that the said plan is out of the question! Why, then, did they come to us in 1874, bearing what they asked us to receive as a boná fide offer of fraternity?

2. We may be excused for caring more about it than "most Northern Methodists of this generation"—or the former generation. We have property rights acquired under that agreement that are very valuable to us.

3. We understand our New York cotemporary to be willing to allow us to keep what property we have acquired under the Plan of Separation, but not as a matter of right. How generous! We may keep it for the sake of peace. How magnanimous! We must hold it hereafter as a gift from them.

4. The threat is held out that if we do not come to terms quietly our Northern brethren will seek to have a unanimous decree of the United States Supreme Court, rendered in our favor over twenty years ago, reversed in this era of progress and moral ideas. Northern Methodists have claimed considerable influence with the government, and an intimation of the pliancy of the Supreme Court seems to lurk in the above threat. Go ahead, good friends. Do your best on that line. We are not moved.

5. Their General Conference of 1848—a reactionary body—in haste and heat, and on ex parte showing, declared the Plan of Separation null and void, and wrote down the Church South a secession. So far as such language could dishonor and degrade us, they did it. The Supreme Court of the United States, composed of disinterested men, spent weeks patiently taking testimony, hearing pleadings and weighing evidence. This august tribunal decided the plan valid, and the Church South no secession, but as much "the old church" as is the Northern branch. Now an era of good feeling has come, "a new era." Will Northern Methodists loyally accept the deliverance of the judicial branch of their government? Will they do justice to their Southern brethren whom now, at length, they see in a better light? No, indeed. The Supreme Court must reverse its decision! Northern Methodists mean to stand by their decision and declaration, and we are invited to indorse it by accepting fraternity on that basis.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Periodicals.

THE Agricultural and Mechanical Monthly College Journal of the State of Louisiana is a handsome publication, edited by the faculty of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, at present located in this city.

GOOD WORDS for August has: The Dwellings Improvement Question, On the West Coast, A Missionary Bishop, God a Consuming Fire, Days near Rome, and other articles of merit.

THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE for August has a fine table of contents.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, 1874.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

OUR FRIENDS.

If I could love thee, O my God!
As I my earthly friends have loved,
My heart would know a deeper joy,
And be by steadier purpose moved.

The very mention of their names
Wakes in my heart a happy thrill,
That duty's promptings never needs,
Nor conscious action of the will.

And to deserve their love, I strive
Against the sins that they may see,
And fiercer fight the secret faults
Known only to my God and me.

Yet, like a child that learns the notes
Whereof all harmonies are made,
But cannot comprehend the strain
By some divine musician played,

I miss the perfect trust and love,
Haunted through all the gamut sweet
Of human love by mother chords,
That make life's melody complete.

For time and absence may destroy
Or weaken friendship's blessed tie,
Or some unhappy circumstance
Make love, that seemed abiding, die.

They say who love thee well, O God,
That thou thyself leadest us to thee;
That we must see our idols crushed
Before from idols we are free.

I cannot ask to love them less;
Each is a precious gift from thee;
And human love is grand enough
To hint what love divine must be.

The Supernumerary Relation.

MR. EDITOR: It is evident to every observant mind that the supernumerary relation, an important and distinctive peculiarity of the Methodist economy, has been and is now being sadly abused. Instead of subserving the interests of Methodism and evangelical Christianity, as originally designed, it is often made to advance the secular welfare of individuals, at the sad expense of our Conference collections and the necessary cumbering of our itinerant machinery. No claim challenges the hearty sympathy and generous contributions of the church as the "Conference fund." But unless care is taken the superannuated relation, and consequently the Conference fund, will be burdened with a class who have done little active itinerant service. I argue not against the relation, but against its abuse. On this subject I have just read an able and timely article in the New York Advocate, from the pen of the Rev. Dr. R. M. Hatfield, of Philadelphia. As he advocates views I have entertained for several years, and expresses them with great clearness and force, I beg leave to lay extended extracts before your readers. He says:

"There is a profound conviction on the part of thousands of intelligent Methodists that new legislation by the General Conference, or a change of policy on the part of the Annual Conferences, with regard to the supernumerary relation is urgently called for. If things are allowed to drift in the direction they are now going, irreparable injury must result to the church. The hasty and inconsiderate manner in which Annual Conferences vote men into this relation impairs the efficiency of Methodism, and threatens to demoralize the whole body of itinerant preachers. Bishops, ministers and laymen all feel that something must be done to check the growing evil. The relation itself is a proper and necessary one, and will remain so long as ministers are liable to be temporarily incapacitated for labor by imperfect health. * * * * * *

"A brother who for the time being is disabled by overwork and imperfect health may with perfect propriety ask for a respite from labor. And there should be no hesitation in granting such a request. It is due him as a matter of right and simple justice, and it is expedient as well as just. A year or two of rest and recreation may add a score of years to a life that is invaluable to the church and the world. * * * But a wrong is done when the Discipline is perverted and wrested from its clear intent for the accommodation of a brother, no matter how beloved or honored he may be. And it is surprising to see how readily and on what utterly insufficient grounds the majority of an Annual Conference will sometimes vote for this perversion of the Discipline. As an illustration: A brother goes to the Conference of which he is a member, in as good health as he has been at any time within the last ten years, and with the purpose of taking an appointment, as usual. For some reason no such place as he feels qualified to fill is open to him, and at the last session of the Conference, and just as the appointments are about to be announced, he asks for a supernumerary relation. The brother has had no sudden attack of sickness, and has not broken down from overwork since coming to the seat of the Conference. He is able to do 'effective work' in a large and laborious appointment, but unable (or indisposed) to serve one that is smaller, and where the work is less exhausting. Yet the Conference, without a word of debate, and with hardly a moment for consideration, votes the brother supernumerary—that is, in a state of impaired health. It is done in a spirit of brotherly kindness, but the act can hardly be said to be honest."

The following is strong, and, alas! too true. Ponder the solemn words.

"The case is much worse when a member of an Annual Conference asks his brethren to deliberately stultify themselves year after year for his accommodation. There is among itinerant Methodist preachers a very general desire for positions in which they may have permanent homes, and escape the inconveniences of a frequent change of residence. There are scores of candidates for every office at the disposal of the General Conference. And when these offices have been judiciously distributed among the members of that body, there are still many good brethren who look up and are not fed. These brethren wait on Providence, and are ready to engage in almost any honorable enterprise—literary, financial or evangelistic—in which they can make money and avoid the discomforts of the itinerancy. Far be it from me to judge or condemn them. To his own Master every man must stand or fall.

"If a Methodist preacher decides that duty requires him to abandon the work in which he is engaged, in order that he may provide the comforts of a permanent home for his family, who am I that I should lord it over his conscience or censure him? I could, indeed, wish that he would proceed cautiously in this matter, and take every step discreetly and in the fear of God. But he has no right to ask his brethren to indorse his course by voting a palpable untruth, recording it upon their journals, and proclaiming it to the world. If he has sufficient political influence to secure an election to Congress or the Legislature, an appointment in the customhouse or as postmaster, and desires to dabble in those waters, let him make the most of his good fortune and honorably withdraw from the Conference. * * * In some cases it looks as if superfluous offices were created for the special accommodation of Methodist preachers with facile consciences, who have wearied of the regular work of the ministry. Clerical agents for business houses and insurance companies hold on to their connection with an Annual Conference as a cheap and effective method of advertising their business."

The learned doctor then makes the following suggestion as remedial, which strikes me as a wise, practical expedient, and well adapted to the latitude of the South:

"Let the Annual Conferences abide by the law, and neither place nor continue any man in the supernumerary relation who is not 'temporarily unable to perform effective work, because of impaired health.' So far as the duty and responsibility of the Conference is concerned, it is a matter of no consequence how the brother who asks for a supernumerary relation proposes to employ his time. The end does not sanctify the means, and nothing but evil can result from a cowardly or dishonest evasion of laws that we have solemnly promised to keep. Some means must be used to obtain the information that would enable the members of an Annual Conference to act intelligently on these cases. As things are now managed, it is sometimes most difficult to obtain the information. A supernumerary member of the body may live five hundred or a thousand miles away; little may be known of the state of his health, but his relation is continued almost as a matter of course. If a committee of wise and judicious brethren could be appointed a year in advance of the meeting of the Conference, whose duty it should be to inquire into and report on the case of every supernumerary preacher, it would go far toward preventing inconsiderate action. And if it was a law or rule of the Conference that no application for a supernumerary relation should be entertained until it had been received and passed upon by this committee, few improper names would get upon the list."

CHARLES B. GALLOWAY.

Montgomery District Conference.

REPORT ON THE STATE OF THE CHURCH.

The committee on the state of the church would report that, considering that we have passed through a year of unprecedented pressure and trouble, we have reason to thank God and take courage that the church presents such a bold and determined front against the hosts of the enemy. We have reason to congratulate ourselves that, under the blessings of his providence, we are permitted to see so many delegates present at our annual convocation. Every charge is represented, and some are numerously represented. This betokens zeal, interest, life. The outlook from this point is encouraging; but we cannot judge safely and correctly from a single standpoint. But, looking over the whole field of the district, and viewing the church in her average strength, efficiency and power, we have reason for profound thankfulness, if not for rejoicing.

But while there is ground for congratulation and hope, there is great room for improvement.

1. We must heartily repent of our failures, delinquencies and unfaithfulness in the past.

2. In attendance on the extraordinary services of the sanctuary—prayer meetings, class meetings, Church Conferences, and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The vitality of a church is better indicated by attendance on the extraordinary than on the ordinary services of the church. It is no strong test of Christianity to go to church on Sunday, but to go regularly to a week-day meeting, to a prayer meeting, which is, like its Founder, "despised and rejected of men," requires a temper of celestial mold—to have a heavenly hunger and thirst for prayer, and for the communion of saints, to long for the courts of the house of the Lord, to prefer the little assembly of two or three, with the Lord added in, to business or worldly pleasure or ease. This is a proof of wearing armor burnished and brightened under the hand of God, and ready for the assaults of the wicked one. Saints and sinners sit together on Sunday, but sinners do not crowd the prayer meetings or class meetings, or the sacramental table. Here we can see the dividing line between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not. We hail with pleasure the partial revival of class meetings. The plan of conducting the Church Conferences both as a business and religious meeting, strikes the mind of the committee favorably. Let every business matter of the church be brought before the Church Conference, but let the great end be to promote the spiritual growth and enlargement of the Zion of our God. What are all our plans for raising money unless, in our lukewarmness, we also buy out of the great Exchange Bank of the Universe the gold tried in the fire—unless, in our spiritual nakedness, we buy white raiment woven under the hand and smile of God, and made white in the blood of the Lamb. How can we get along under the crushing burdens pressing upon us, and the hellish weapons bristling around us, without the constant presence and power of our God? When foes full of hellish hate encircle us, what can we do unless God occasionally takes the scales from our eyes and lets us see the whole mountain begirt with horses and chariots of fire? How can we walk the floor of this hot furnace unless one like the Son of God bears us company?

We need bread three times a day to keep up the flame of physical life; much more do we need as often or oftener the bread that comes down from heaven.

3. We need a more thorough and absolute committal to God and his cause. If we are Christ's, absolutely bound to him by ties of blood (and ties of blood are the strongest we have,) we can very easily see what is right and what is wrong, what is seemly and what is unseemly, what is consistent and what is inconsistent. Then we will know how to abstain from all appearances of evil—whether it is right to dance or drink drams, or go to the theater or sell whisky. This absolute and unqualified committal to Christ will settle all questions of casuistry on the side of propriety, purity and morality. If we are the Lord's, how can we sell whisky, or set the example to our neighbors of quaffing the intoxicating cup? If we are crucified with Christ—the old man nailed to his cross, with the affections and lusts—how can we live any longer in the lusts of the flesh?

4. We need a more positive emphasis on family piety. It is true, if we are entirely committed to the Lord, we will consecrate our families to Christ, and our gifts to his service. A man, a Christian man, who has made up his mind not to have religion in his family had better make up his mind not to have a family, or, having one now, lo ask the Lord to take his family, wife and children, to heaven, to be beyond the range of his influence. What! to be without prayer in the house? I had rather have a house without a roof and a table without bread. We have allowed the devil to run us crazy almost about bread to eat and raiment to put on; but who has been beside himself because there was no oil in the family lamp, and no God to send his morning and evening benediction on the house? The manner of conducting the family service is important. Make the children take part in it by repeating a verse in the worship once a day; also make them repeat the Lord's prayer after you or with you. This will be bread cast upon the waters, to be gathered after many days. The scene of that family worship will be daguerreotyped upon their memories and photographed on their consciences by the rays of the sun of righteousness, so that they will be haunted by the picture all the days of their lives. Teach them the Scriptures, and some verse remembered will be like God's omnipotent hammer, to break the stony heart in pieces; like God's refining fire, omnipotent to consume sin and sublimate the soul.

5. Connected with all our work, and necessary to it, is faith. This is, of course, involved in the idea of the consecration already presented. What can we do without faith? And, having faith, what is there in the spiritual kingdom of God we cannot do?

The preachers need it. Do we preach every time as if we expected results? When we preach in January, are we as expectant of results as in August? Have we not emphasized the protracted meeting period, and given too little importance to the regular services? Do we pray for results, and do we expect the answer to our prayers at every service? Do we not content ourselves too often with preaching a good or a great sermon, and gaining a reputation? Are we just as zealous to gain souls?

The members need it. But faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God. The pastor is expected to have more faith than his flock. He is an example to the flock in all things. But do we, as laymen, go to church expecting signs to follow the word preached? Do we expect Christ in the message, and Heaven in the precious word? Do we expect conversions and sanctifications to take place on Saturday, when the company of believers is small, or on Sunday, when the crowd is great? We need more missionary zeal, more love for souls. If we thought as much about the souls of the heathen as Paul did when he was at Troas, on the shores of the Egean sea, and if we prayed as much for them as Paul did, we would be, like Paul, overtaken with a vision of a man in Macedonia or Mexico or China, saying: "Come over and help us."

Every soundly-converted man becomes a missionary in spirit at once; and if he ceases to be missionary in spirit he has lost his first love. This subject spreads out before us in all the majesty of its claims, and we have not time to discuss it here.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

B. B. ROSS, Chairman.
GEORGE N. GILMER.
W. A. ALLEN.
H. M. CROWDER.
J. N. BRANNAN.

Sure Cure.

MR. EDITOR: I have anxiously waited and looked for some one to propose a cure for some time, and now venture myself. I have read a good deal about "fraternity," and will gladly read more. I have read the reports of the church from various quarters, all of them tolerably favorable, at least; but this is not what I am after yet. Methodism has since its birth been noted for sound vitals, healthy organism, Christian energy, and a motor force unequaled by any other church, whatever its name, on the American continent. In its birth it was a blessing to them across the Atlantic. In its growth and maturity it has been a blessing rich to other Christian churches, and a wicked, unregenerated people. She let her light shine. By a pious, upright walk and conversation the world in darkness could see the light of truth. From every hill and valley of this land were heard the glorious results of the gospel as proclaimed from her pulpits. Religion then was practiced as well as theorized. What was the cause of these commendable qualities? What produced them? It was that which from the first gave her her name—it was method. It was action by rule, and that rule was obeyed; it was law, and that law generally was inviolable. Then if, as a Christian, God-blessed church, she could flourish, why can she not now? Has she lost that method; rule, law? No! But she has to too great an extent lost that steady, unshaken principle which moved the wheels. It is to be feared that her ministry, in making her popular to a world, has not been so rigid in the discipline as should be. In the Discipline we find the Bible's recognition of Christianity, and this should regulate our religious life. Now are there not those persons in abundance who, professing Christianity, are willfully and knowingly disobedient to the requirements of our church? This state of affairs has a tendency to two-fold mischief. 1. It licenses the membership to walk rebellious to her holy laws, which license many take. 2 The world sees this and uses it against Christianity, and in favor of a worldly, wicked course. There is a commingling of them of the church and world. The latter sees the indifference or falsity of the former in professing one thing and practicing another. Let men know that something more is expected than to register a name on the church-book—that they must watch—and the time would not be far distant when Zion would come out in her strength. No doubt the church has become diseased because of sin. She is not alive to interest and duty. She needs a purgative, and will never grow healthy until it be administered. Indifference certainly will not improve her paralyzed motive force. What could formerly keep the members from their place in the love-feast and class? What now can bring to them a goodly representation? I will venture the assertion that seventy-five per cent. of Methodist people and church members regard the class meeting as a disgusting affair, as the remains of Methodism's primitive, ignorant simplicity. Why? Because they in spirit are not prepared for it. The Sunday school they regard only for the sociality in it, blinded to the higher claims it has upon a Christian people, and the great good, spiritually and morally, it extends to the rising race. And her membership has a disposition to be soft on her doctrines being preached from the pulpit; and, where all this is the case, tell me nothing is wrong. And, again, it is a mistaken idea that the church must have a tendency forward corresponding to the advance of letters and arts—that is, so far as revised law is concerned, to meet extravagant scientific wickedness (if you allow the expression,) and its manner of pulpit exposition. I care not who may disagree with me about this. I firmly believe what I here stated. Only two things are necessary—preaching and practicing the principles of religion as we understand them; and where there is delinquency, stop it or expel. If ever the intentions of the church were pure, and her modus operandi perfect, they still are; for the extraction of sin, the establishment of Christian virtue and salvation have been her aim, and to-day she can accomplish these as in days gone by. The cure for the church, and the means of her religious advancement, is the enforcement of discipline; and if we lose numbers (which may be in our way and our reason for not using the law) we will regain the graces. Let pastors do their work as men taking to heart this great matter. Let members be laborious. Let us get back to primitive waymarks. It is a good way—a safe, a reliable one; and as far as we extend our borders and influence, let us watch and keep the spirit of religious advancement. Stand firm upon Methodist principles, and a nation will be born to God.

A. Y. T.

SERMONS.—Sermons are like guns. Some are large, others are small; some are long, others short; some are new, others old; some are bright, others rusty; some are made to be looked at, others to be used; some are loaded, others empty; some are owned, others borrowed. Some are air-guns, some pop-guns, some of every size, from the pocket pistol to the Paixhan gun. Some are charged only with powder, and make a great noise and smoke. Some send only small shot, that irritate rather than kill. Some carry heavy metal, that does execution. Some discharge chain shot, mowing down whole platoons. Some are wide-mouthed mortars, throwing only bomb-shells. Some are dueling pistols, used only in controversy—vile things. Some go off half bent. Some flash in the pan. Some make a terrible fizz, the charge all escaping at the priming-hole. Some shoot too high, some too low, some sideways, a few directly at the point. Some are aimed at nothing and hit it. Some scatter prodigiously; some kick their owner over. Some are unerring; others always hit the wrong object. Some have too much wadding, and vice versa. Some are alarm guns; others are complimentary guns, used only for salutes on special occasions. Some are in a series, constituting a battery; others are swivels, made to turn in any direction. Some are useful, some useless, some dangerous. Some amuse, some frighten, some exasperate, some explode, some gain the victory. Very much depends upon the manner in which they are made, and managed.—Rev. Baron Stowe.

REASONS for action are of almost numberless variety; and the scales in which reasons are weighed are as different as are the tastes of individuals. A reason that may weigh five ounces in the scales of one man may weigh not more than half an ounce with a second man, and may not be dealt in at all by a third.

MEN'S lives should be like the day—more beautiful in the evening; or like summer—aglow with promise; and like the autumn—rich with the golden sheaves, where good works and deeds have ripened on the field.

Obituaries.

LILLA SPIARS was born April 11, 1868; baptized by the Rev. Mr. Christian, April 11, 1869, in Yazoo City, and died Tuesday, July 28, 1874, in Meyersville, Mississippi, aged six years, three months and seventeen days. The writer preached her funeral to a weeping company, at the residence of her father, July 29, after which she was quietly laid in the silent grave to await the sound of the last trump, "when the dead in Christ shall rise first."

T. B. WALDEN, P. C.

JAMES M. WATSON, youngest son of Claiborne and Elizabeth Watson, was born in Union county, Arkansas, March 22, 1850, and died at Tulip, Claiborne parish, Louisiana, July 21, 1873. His father and mother were pioneer Methodists, first in the eastern part of this State, next in Copiah county, Mississippi, and afterward in Union county, Arkansas. In the providence of God, a few years previous to the death of the father the family returned to this State, where the father passed, but a few years ahead of James, to the glory-land.

The religious influence of a pious father and mother was seen, in its good effects on the life and character of James in his early life. Patient, obedient, amiable, generous and courteous, he was beloved by all who knew him. The father's death threw upon him the charge of an aged mother and two sisters, in whose welfare he displayed the highest degree of a son's devotion and a brother's love. At an hour when the mother and sisters felt that they had, in noble James, an unfaltering arm upon which they might safely depend, God sees best to say: "It is enough; come up higher." He professed to have been converted at a meeting held by Bro. Upton and myself, in the year 1863. To experienced Christians, relatives and friends, who witnessed his death, he left the indubitable evidence that their loss was his eternal gain. Hence "they sorrow not as those who have no hope."

W. P. KIMBALL.

MRS. MATTIE M. STILES, the subject of this sketch, was born in Talbot county, Georgia. When but a child her parents moved to Jackson parish, Louisiana. Here she lived until 1871, when she moved to Rayville, Richland parish, Louisiana, where she died on the ninth of July, 1874. Sister Stiles' maiden name was Sherrard. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South at Vernon, Jackson parish, Louisiana, under Bro. Kimball, while he labored there in 1863, from which time until her death she lived a faithful and consistent Christian. She was devoted to her church and preachers. Her house was always the preacher's home. She loved to have them with her. Sister Stiles was a working Christian. What her hands found to do, she did it with all her might. We feel the great loss which we sustain, as a community and church, in her death.

Sister Stiles' health had not been good for some time previous to her death, but she was able to attend to her domestic affairs until a few days before she died. During the last days of her sickness she was not conscious until a few moments before she died, when she was aroused by strains of heavenly music, brought to her by the angels of light, who came to receive her departing spirit, and bear it aloft to the God who gave it.

We sympathize with the mourning relatives of our dear sister, and pray God to give them grace, that they may bear with patience this affliction. We point them above the clouds of sorrow to a kind heavenly Father, who careth for every child of his, and in every visitation of his providence intends their good.

T. R.

MRS. SARAH T. MALONE, daughter of Charles and Sarah Humphries, was born in Union district, South Carolina, December 29, 1807. She joined the church in 1823, and was married, December 23, 1828, to Miles Malone, who afterward became a useful local preacher. They moved to Alabama in 1834, and to or near Rehoboth in 1836, where she died, May 23, 1874.

Having joined the church at the age of fifteen, and given her life unreservedly to the cause of Christ, she became eminent for her piety. She was a Methodist in the strongest sense, and so endeavored to raise her children. She lived to see all her children and some of her grandchildren members of the church, the most of whom are deeply pious. The work of her hands is established upon her family. Prayer and class meetings, love feasts, preaching and her Bible were the absorbing themes of her life. She was not ashamed to clap her hands and cry "Glory to God" when the minister presented Christ crucified to the congregation. During the last few months of her life she was a great sufferer, her disease being neuralgia of the stomach. But in all this she maintained the spirit of love and fidelity to God. When asked by her pastor what were her religious feelings and future prospects, she replied: "If this earthly house of my tabernacle were dissolved, I have a building of God, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." This quotation answered as a text for a pointed and forcible conversation to the crowd of friends gathered about her bed. She remarked: "I have no fears of death. My way is perfectly clear. I had rather die than live." It was good to be there.

A few minutes before her death her son called her attention to the fact that she would soon leave them. "Yes," was her reply; "my Savior is with me and beckons me home." Oh, how good to die the death of the righteous! We have her religious experience of fifty-one years and her happy death as examples of the sustaining and comforting grace of God. May her mantle rest on the community.

J. F. EVANS.

DIED, after a long and painful illness, near Breaux Bridge, Louisiana, ROBERT H. MILLS, just entering the fifty-fourth year of his age.

Bro. Mills was born in Baltimore, Maryland, but spent the larger part of his life in Louisiana, and until very recently lived at Perry's Bridge, parish of Vermilion. Early in the present year he thought it best for himself and family to change his place of residence. He did so, but God had in store for him another mansion, for on the twenty-seventh of April "he was not, for God took him." Verily, "man proposes, but God disposes."

For many years and up to the hour of his death a consistent and devoted member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, he forcibly impressed all around him by his godly walk that he had no continuing city here, but that he sought one, whose builder and maker is God. Being his pastor during the past year, it was our privilege to know him intimately, at home and abroad. At his solicitation we have frequently knelt with him around the family altar, and after our united petitions at a throne of grace he would express himself much strengthened. Whenever we conversed with him in regard to his spiritual condition he always spoke frankly and to the point. On one occasion he remarked that he did not feel as happy as it was his privilege to feel, but he asked God, in every prayer, to give him fortitude to bear up under his affliction and resignation to the will of his heavenly Father. He suffered long and patiently, and seemed anxiously to await the time when he should be released from all bodily pain.

As Sunday school superintendent, class-leader and steward in the church of his choice, he met the expectation of his brethren, and laid up for himself treasures in the kingdom of heaven. A devoted husband and father, a kind and affectionate brother, a considerate neighbor, he lived beloved and died regretted by his large circle of acquaintances.

Though not with him in death, we received a missive of love, and the assurance that he was reconciled to God through the blood of the Lamb. May the good Lord comfort his sorrowing wife, his fatherless children, his aged sister and brother, and prepare them all to meet him in glory. You sorrow here but for a season; in heaven "God shall wipe away all tears from your eyes." R. S. I.

MRS. ALICE R. ASHLEY.

Alice R., daughter of B. D. and C. Sheppard, was born near Trenton, Louisiana, July 1, 1856. As a child she evinced the happy faculty of gaining and keeping friends. As a pupil she invariably received the commendation of her instructors. During the session of 1872-3 she was a pupil of the justly popular institution, Whitworth Female College, from which she brought testimonials that gladdened the hearts of her parents. Brought up under Methodist influences, she joined the Trenton church while I was the pastor. Her mother being in feeble health, and Alice desiring the presence of her loved mother at her baptism, it was postponed, and was only administered a short time previous to her death. On the twenty-third of December, 1873, she married W. F. Ashley, of Trenton, Louisiana, a young man of fine moral worth, good business qualifications, and a member of the Methodist Church. Her married life was short, but it was devoid of storms and full of joy. Although a true, good wife, she never forgot a daughter's duty, but was a comfort to her parents until her death. She was taken with inflammation of the bowels; and although she received every attention from the medical art, and from her sorely-tried relatives, she grew worse, and died July 18, 1874. She suffered much, but so uncomplainingly that it seemed as if she had a portion of the Master's spirit. Her death was glorious. When informed that death was near, she asked: "Why didn't you tell me sooner?" She then asked for her pastor, Bro. H. O. White, who came, prayed and sang with her. Prayers and songs were then frequently heard in her room, she herself singing several hymns. She talked calmly about dying, left many messages, asked all around her to meet her in the better land, and was especially anxious that her father should become a Christian. Her mother having expressed her fears that she was laboring under excitement, Alice quietly asked Bro. White to pray that her mother might be satisfied. When his prayer was finished, with a happy face she turned to her mother and said: "Mamma, I got a blessing then." She loved her husband devotedly, and it was a struggle to leave him. Life had been pleasant to her. She commenced the Lord's Prayer, but the words, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," were her last. "Death was swallowed up in victory." Gone, but gone home to God, to heaven, to eternal life. Sweet sister, good-by, but not forever. We shall meet again.

J. LANE HORNER.

THE glory of an age is often hidden from itself. Perhaps some word has been spoken in our day which we have not deigned to hear, but which is to grow clearer and louder through all ages. Perhaps some silent thinker among us is at work in his closet, whose name is to fill the earth. Perhaps there sleeps in his cradle some reformer who is to move the church and the world, who is to open a new era in history, who is to fire the human soul with new hope and new daring.—Channing.

THE husks of emptiness rustle in every wind; the full corn in the ear holds up its golden fruit to the Lord of the harvest: a good man's faith is manifested by his labors, standing not in words, but in the demonstration of the Spirit—a faith that works by love to the purifying of the heart.

Whittier.

A LADY TEACHER inquired of the members of a class of juveniles if any of them could name the four seasons. Instantly the chubby hand of a five-year-old was raised, and promptly came the answer: "Pepper, salt, vinegar and mustard."

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, 1874.

THE HARP OF HOPE.

BY CHARLES L. THOMPSON.

The storm that schote the mountain pines
And fringed the white waves of the bay,
Struck the great vessel's anchor-lines,
Where sailors waited for the day.

The tense ropes quivered on the sea,
As if a hand divine had strung
That rugged harp to melody,
And from its strength had music flung.

On steady wing uprose the song
Through deep-barred spaces of the night,
A note of Hope, so sweet, so strong,
The storm alone could pitch it right.

Throw out your anchor-lines, O man,
Within the vail, and learn at length
The lest of sorrow only can Reveal their sweetness and their strength.

Independent.

Origin of the Moon.

AN INDIAN LEGEND.

Nearly two years ago there appeared in the Overland Monthly an aboriginal account of the origin of fire. We were then in Washington Territory, and I inquired of Katy, a Nisqually Indian, what their theory was. In reply she gave me this story; and if the reader can place before him, instead of the silent page, a comely, brown-cheeked girl, low-browed, and with straight black hair—straighter than any but an Indian's—hanging in two braids, he will see Katy as she looked that summer afternoon, her cheeks aglow, and her shy, dark eyes luminous with interest in her story.

The natives of Washington Territory say that many, many generations ago—as remote as the "once upon a time" of fairy days—two Indian girls sat, one evening,

"Watching the westward-going stars
Pass slowly out of sight."

Of all the glittering multitude, two stars—one red, one white—shining with peculiar brightness, attracted their attention. One said: "The red is my star;" and the other: "The white is mine;" and they looked at them, and talked about them a long time. The night waned, and they went into the lodge. While they slept, these stars that they had chosen, assuming human forms, descended and bore their brides to a country strange and beautiful. Here to one of them was born a wonderful child—none other, indeed, than the moon. In defiance of all our ideas of its feminine claims and attributes, it was also a boy. Everybody who saw him envied his mother, and coveted the lovely baby.

A woodpecker, as he went to and fro through the woods to his work—they made all the canoes in those days, shaping and hollowing them with their beaks—saw the child, and became so attached to it that he stole it. With fire he had hurriedly hollowed an immense cedar "stick"—a tree these Indians call a stick, and its bark is "stick-skin." He lined it with mats woven of rushes, and over these he spread soft skins; and, not daring to take his stolen treasure home, he hid it here.

One day, when he and his wife were out together, they stopped at this tree, and she, just as he had hoped she would, insisted on taking the little fellow home. He was then about two years old. They had one daughter, the Lark—a naughty, naughty girl—and when the boy grew older she was very jealous of him, and was constantly troubling him and trying to bring him into disgrace. Every day she would aggravatingly dance about him and say: "Shoot me—shoot me!" Finally he did, and wounded her thumb. Then she turned upon him and told him he was not her brother—he was the "child of a stick;" a disparaging allusion to his hiding-place in the tree. He asked her who told her; she replied: Her own tum-tum (mind) told her. He looked at her, then at himself; at her father, and at himself again; and their resemblance to one another, and his entire dissimilarity to them, confirmed her story. He made up his mind he would live no longer with them, and ran away into the forest. After wandering a long distance, he heard a great many little girls singing. He was tired, lonely and dispirited, and he wished himself a berry, that they might eat it, and then he would be gone; or that he was a flower, that they would gather it, and it would fade and perish. He became neither berry nor flower; but when he wished he might be a dog, he was suddenly transformed into one, and, bounding among the girls, joined in their frolics. They were delighted with his beauty, gracefulness and intelligence, and crowded about him; but he would allow only one hand to caress his silky head. He became the constant playfellow and companion of the tyee's (chief's) daughter. He was very dainty, and would never touch the common fare of the other canines, nor would he eat if it were thrown to him. His mistress praised and petted his dignity, and fed him on his own special trencher.

At last she married, though she never saw her mysterious bridegroom until evening, nor imagined that he and her playfellow through the day were identical. Of the four children that were born to them, three were dogs—more beautiful than any that were ever seen, but, after all, only dogs. The youngest was a girl, with a face and form half dog, half human. The poor tyee, mortified at such abnormal descendants, banished daughter and grandchildren. They went down near the sea and made them a wigwam of mats.

One evening, when the mother was out digging clams, she heard loud laughter and talking of men, and when she came in she asked who had been there. The girl, who was the only one that could talk, told her mother that while she was away the three dogs were changed into men; that her "papa" (the Indians always accent the first syllable) took the little brown passis-ses (blankets) off from them all, and from himself, and they talked and laughed until she came back, bidding the little girl watch and tell them when she saw her. So she told the child to say she was far off—"Si-ah, si-ah"—very far; and she went down again to the beach for clams.

When she heard the laughing and singing, she left the pine-knot blazing as though she still were there, and by a roundabout course stole close up to the lodge.

The father kept asking the child if her mother was coming, and she constantly replied: "No, she is far off; she is not coming." And so, in the midst of their revels, she peeped in and saw four handsome braves and her pretty girl, and in a corner near her the five little brown skins, lying in a heap.

She slipped stealthily in and threw them on the fire, and that dispelled the enchantment that had disguised her husband and children.

When the tyee came to visit them he found four bright black-eyed grandchildren, and his son-in-law, a noble-looking man, of high tribal relations.

Meanwhile, at home, the Moon's mother bewailed year after year the mysterious loss of her son. She wept over his empty little bed till it was so wet she wrung from it a flood, and that became the Sun, who lived with her to comfort her. She sent many messengers to try to find the Moon, but the forests were full of giants and evil spirits, who killed each one she sent.

One day a blue-jay came to her and told her he knew where her son was, and if she would give him a little blue blanket he would tell the Moon his mother was alive, and would bring him to her. She gave him the brightest passissy she could find, and any one who has seen the vivid plumage of the blue birds in Washington Territory will know the exceeding beauty of her gift.

She told him of the tragical fate of every messenger she had sent, but he cocked his little head, spread his wings, and soared above the towering trees, where the evil spirits had no power over him. He held his airy way safely till he reached the lodge he sought. The Moon understood all languages—the squirrels, the insects and the birds had no secrets from him—and when the jay twittered at his door, he rose and followed him. They went unharmed until they heard a distant roaring. As they drew nearer they saw five men towering fiercely in their path. They were singing with strong, clear voices, and, as they sung, terrible flames poured out of their throats and the trees about them shriveled and crackled with the heat. They could not go through the woods, for the fire followed them there; they plunged into the water, and that was so hot that all the fish died, and the travelers were very glad to hurry out of the seething element.

The jay, who appears to have been a tamanawis, or guardian spirit to the Moon, after fluttering back and forth, told him to lie down in the road, and the five men would pass over him, leaving him unharmed. The two then went triumphantly on without further adventure, till they came to the Moon's old home, and received a joyful welcome from his mother, the Thea of aboriginal mythology.—Overland Monthly.

The General Rules.

The General Rules of "the United Societies," organized by Mr. Wesley in 1739, are as follows:

There is only one condition previously required of those who desire admission into these societies—"a desire to flee from the wrath to come, and to be saved from their sins." But wherever this is really fixed in the soul, it will be shown by its fruits. It is therefore expected of all who continue therein that they should continue to evidence their desire of salvation.

First, by doing no harm, by avoiding evil of every kind, especially that which is most generally practiced, such as

The taking of the name of God in vain;

The profaning the day of the Lord, either by doing ordinary work therein, or by buying or selling;

Drunkenness, or drinking spirituous liquors unless in cases of necessity;

Fighting, quarreling, brawling, brother going to law with brother, returning evil for evil, or railing for railing; the using many words in buying or selling;

The buying or selling goods that have not paid the duty;

The giving or taking things on usury—i. e., unlawful interest;

Uncharitable or unprofitable conversation, particularly speaking evil of magistrates or of ministers;

Doing to others as we would not they should do unto us;

Doing what we know is not for the glory of God, as

The putting on of gold and costly apparel;

The taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus;

The singing those songs, or reading those books, which do not tend to the knowledge or love of God;

Softness or needless self-indulgence;

Laying up treasure upon earth;

Borrowing without a probability of paying, or taking up goods without a probability of paying for them.

It is expected of all who continue in these societies that they should continue to evidence their desire of salvation.

Secondly, by doing good, by being in every kind merciful after their power, as they have opportunity, doing good of every possible sort, and, as far as possible, to all men;

To their bodies, of the ability which God giveth, by giving food to the hungry, by clothing the naked, by visiting or helping them that are sick or in prison;

To their souls, by instructing, reproving or exhorting all we have any intercourse with; trampling under foot that enthusiastic doctrine that "we are not to do good unless our hearts be free to it;"

By doing good, especially to them that are of the household of faith, or groaning so to be; employing them preferably to others, buying one of another, helping each other in business; and so much the more because the world will love its own, and them only;

By all possible diligence and frugality, that the gospel be not blamed;

By running with patience the race which is set before them, denying themselves, and taking up their cross daily; submitting to bear the reproach of Christ, to be as the filth and offscouring of the world; and looking that men should say all manner of evil of them falsely for the Lord's sake.

It is expected of all who desire to continue in these societies that they should continue to evidence their desire of salvation.

Thirdly, by attending upon all the ordinances of God, such as

The public worship of God;

The ministry of the word, either read or expounded;

The Supper of the Lord;

Family and private prayer;

Searching the Scriptures; and Fasting or abstinence.

These are the General Rules of our societies, all which we are taught of God to observe, even in his written word, which is the only rule, and the sufficient rule, both of our faith and practice. And all these we know his Spirit writes on truly awakened hearts. If there be any among us who observe them not, who habitually break any of them, let it be known unto them who watch over that soul, as they who must give an account. We will admonish him of the error of his ways; we will bear with him for a season; but if then he repent not, he hath no more place among us; we have delivered our own souls.

Notes About Tea.

As nearly the whole of the black tea annually brought to this country belongs to the class called congou or "dakor" tea, the following account, given by Mr. Doolittle, an American writer, of the method of preparing it, will doubtless be interesting to the reader:

The leaves are exposed in the sun or in an airy place. The object of this is not to dry them, but only to wilt them slowly and thoroughly.

A quantity of the leaves thus wilted are put into a shallow vessel, usually made of the splints of the bamboo, and trodden down together for a considerable time, until all the fibers and stems of the leaves are broken. Men, barefooted, are employed to do this work, because the Chinese do not appear to have found out a more convenient, expeditious and effective method of attaining the object in view.

The leaves are then rolled in a particular manner by the hands of the operator, the object being to cause them to take a round or spiral form. If not rolled in this way they would remain flat—a shape not adapted to the foreign market. While lying on the vessel, the hands, spread out, are passed around for some time in a circular manner, parallel to the bottom of the vessel, lightly touching the leaves. They are placed in a heap to heat for half an hour or longer, until they become of a reddish appearance. The leaves are then spread out in the sun, or in a light and airy place, and left to dry.

The leaf is next sold to the agents of foreigners, or to native dealers, who take it away and expend a great deal of labor upon it before it is shipped to foreign countries. It is sifted in coarse sieves, and picked over several times, in order to separate the different qualities, to remove the stems, the large or flat leaves, etc. It is dried several times over slow fires in iron pans. In order to prevent its spoiling through any moisture that may still be retained in it.

The process necessary to make oolong, says one of her majesty's vice consuls in China, in a recent commercial report, is very simple; in fact such tea is the pure article in its most unsophisticated form, and with the least amount of manipulation. The green leaves are plucked from the bushes and gathered into baskets by women and children; they are then spread on a covered floor for twenty-four hours; then stirred and tossed in a metal pan over a fire, until they attain a curled-up, spongy appearance, and possess the proper smell. Finally they are fired in a wicker basket, shaped like an egg-cup, the waist of which is divided by a sieve, upon which about seven pounds of tea are placed; the basket is set over an open charcoal oven, the fire of which has been previously banked up with lime and ashes, and emits no smoke. The oolong, however, when sold to the foreigner, has not been sufficiently fired to withstand the trying effect of a long voyage home, and has to undergo the latter process in the foreign hong, for six to eight hours, before it is finally packed into chests for export.

The Chinese themselves drink the simple decoction of tea without any addition of sugar or milk, and pour off the infusion almost directly after the boiling water has been poured on the leaf; they also frequently make their tea in a cup provided with a cover. We have also heard that there are other plants used for tea by the poor Chinese: the leaves of one or two species of cammellia are sometimes employed for the purpose in districts where they are abundant; but these and all other plants are considered poor substitutes for the true tea by the natives themselves.

A GREAT TRUTH.—The great truth now insisted on, that evil is evil, no matter at whose door it lies, and that men acting from conscience and religion may do nefarious deeds, needs to be better understood that we may not shelter ourselves or our institutions under the names of the great or good who have passed away. It shows us that in good company we may do the work of fiends. It teaches us how important is the culture of our whole moral and rational nature, how dangerous to rest on the old and the established without habitually and honestly seeking the truth.—Channing.

MANY have withstood the frowns of the world, but its smiles and caresses have bugged them to death.

Voltaire Dying.

On the twenty-fifth of February, 1758, Voltaire penned the following blasphemy: "Twenty years more, and God will be in pretty plight." Let us see what was taking place precisely at the time indicated. On the twenty-fifth of February, 1778, Voltaire was lying, as was thought, on his bed of death. Racked and tortured by remorse for past misdeeds, he was most anxious to propitiate the God whom he had insulted and the church which he and his band had sworn to destroy; and hence he resolved on addressing a minister of religion in order to receive the sacrament of reconciliation. On the twenty-sixth then he wrote the following to the Abbe Gaultier: "You promised me, sir, to come and hear me. I entreat you to take the trouble to call as soon as possible." The abbe went at once.

A few days later, in the presence of the same Abbe Gaultier, the Abbe Mignot and the Marquis de Villevelle, the dying man made the following declaration: "I, the undersigned, declare that, for these four days past, having been afflicted with a vomiting of blood at the age of eighty-four, and, not being able to drag myself to church, the reverend the rector of St. Sulpice, having been pleased to add to his other good works that of sending to me the Abbe Gaultier, a priest, I confessed to him, and, if it pleases God to dispose of me, I die in the holy Catholic Church, in which I was born, hoping that the divine mercy will pardon all my faults. If ever I have scandalized the church, I ask pardon of God and of the church. March 2, 1778.—Voltaire." This document was deposited with Mons. Momel, notary of Paris. It was also, with the permission of Voltaire, carried to the rector of Sulpice and to the Archbishop of Paris, in order that they might say whether or not the declaration was sufficiently explicit and satisfactory.

Twice before, when dangerously ill, the wretched man had made abject retractations. But these he had not only rejected when restored to health, but, passing from bad to worse, he poured out fuller vials of his wrath against God and Christianity. It was then of necessity to receive the most solemn and full abjuration of past infidelities.

When Gaultier returned with the archi-episcopal answer he was refused admission to the dying man. The arch conspirators trembled at the apostasy of their hero; and, dreading the ridicule which would fall upon themselves, it was determined not to allow any minister of religion thenceforth to visit him. Finding himself thus cut off from the consolations of religion, Voltaire became infuriated, no reproach, no curse being deemed bad enough for the D'Alemberts and Diderots who guarded him. "Be gone," he said; "it is you who have brought me to my present state. Be gone! I could have done without you all; but you could not have existed without me; and what a wretched glory have you procured me!" And then praying, and next blaspheming, now saying, "O Christ," and next, "I am abandoned by God and man," he wasted away his life, ceasing to curse and blaspheme and live on the thirtieth of May, 1778. These facts were made public by Mons. Tronchin, a Protestant physician from Geneva, who attended him almost to the last. Horrified at what he had witnessed, he declared that to see all the furies of Orestes, one only had to be present at the death of Voltaire—"Pour voir toutes les furies d'Oreste, il n'y avait qu'a se trouver a la mort de Voltaire." "Such a spectacle," he adds, "would benefit the young who are in danger of losing the precious helps of religion." The Marechal de Richelieu, too, was so terrified at what he saw that he left the bedside of Voltaire, declaring that "the sight was too horrible for endurance."—London Popular Journal.

TRUTHS FOR WIVES.—In domestic happiness the wife's influence is much greater than her husband's; for the one, the first cause—mutual love and confidence—being granted, the whole comfort of the household depends upon trifles more immediately under her jurisdiction. By her management of small sums her husband's respectability and credit are created or destroyed. No fortune can stand the constant leakages of extravagance and mismanagement; and more is spent in trifles than women would easily believe. The one great expense, whatever it may be, is turned over and carefully reflected on, ere incurred; the income is prepared to meet it; but it is penules imperceptibly sliding away which do mischief; and this the wife alone can stop, for it does not come within a man's province. There is often an unsuspected trifle to be saved in every household. It is not in economy alone that the wife's attention is so necessary, but in those matters which make a well-regulated house. An unfurnished cruet-stand, a missing key, a buttonless shirt, a soiled tablecloth, a mustard-pot with its old contents sticking hard and brown about it, are really nothings; but each can raise an angry word or cause discomfort. Depend upon it, there is a great deal of domestic happiness in a well-dressed mutton chop or a tidy breakfast-table. Men grow sated of beauty, tired of music, are often too wearied for conversation (however intellectual,) but they can always appreciate a well-swept hearth and smiling comfort. A woman may love her husband devotedly—may sacrifice fortune, friends, family, country for him—she may have the genius of a Sappho, the enchanted beauties of an Armida; but melancholy fact—if with those she fails to make his home comfortable, his heart will inevitably escape her. And women live so entirely in the affections that, without love, their existence is a void. Better submit, then, to household tasks, however repugnant they may be to your tastes, than doom yourself to a loveless home. Women of a higher order of mind will not run this risk; they know that their feminine, their domestic, are their first duties.

Religious Intelligence.

FIVE Moravian missionaries left England, June 13, for Labrador.

MADAGASCAR.—Christianity still continues to triumph in Madagascar. Nearly every mail brings some cheering intelligence. The special mission of Dr. Mullens and Mr. Pillans, sent by the London Missionary Society, opens more fully the wonders Christianity has wrought there. There are half a million of professing Christians, 20,000 children are at school, some 700 churches, and the Bible has been translated, and many books written in Malagasy, and more than 150,000 books in that vernacular are sold every year. Besides building their own churches and supporting their ministers, the native Christians maintain 120 evangelists in the outlying districts. The government has absorbed Christianity into its system, just as Constantine did after failing to stamp it out by bitter persecution. And this is the result of less than fifty years.

THE English Presbyterian Foreign Missionary Society has just issued the first edition of the New Testament in the Romanized Colloquial used by the district in which Amoy is situated. Romanized Colloquial is the spoken-language, expressed by our Roman letters. This language has been brought into shape and reduced to writing by the missionaries of the London Missionary Society of the English Presbyterian Church and of the American Reformed Church, and this translation of the New Testament has been made by the same missionaries, those of the English Presbyterian mission having performed the larger part of the work. The book has been brought out in a very attractive form by Messrs. W. G. Blaekie & Co., of Glasgow. The typography is admirable. The name of the book in the Chinese is "Lan E Kin-tsh Iaso Ki-tok E Sin lok," or "Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, His New Testament."—Christian Intelligencer.

REV. E. C. JOHNSON, an ex-officer of the British army in India, and now an Independent missionary, has recently accomplished the dangerous feat of visiting some of the tribes in Central Asia to explore the ground. He narrowly escaped death from the fiercer Mussulmans, and wherever he went he was obliged to disguise himself as a native. The result of his observations he gives as follows: "I do not think the country is so firmly closed to the Christian in particular as it is to the European as such, the principal danger being the political position of every Englishman. Were protection demanded by the British government for their missionaries only, thus trusting to subdue by the cross alone, I have but little doubt but that it would be granted. Great harm is done by the haughty and overbearing manner of the British in their own territory, and also by unprincipled men who become Mussulmans when they journey in those countries. Were the people of the frontier to see our religion exemplified more, I firmly believe that in many parts the lowly messenger of Christ would find a ready door open."

THE Church Missionary Society is an English Episcopal body which has long labored in fraternal spirit by the side of the London Missionary Society (Independent) in Madagascar. It has now announced its intention of withdrawing from that work, on account of the recent appointment of the ritualistic bishop, whose chief labors will be to interfere with his brethren, in this hitherto highly favored mission-field. In this act the Church Missionary Society deserves the warmest praise. It gives up for the sake of peace an important and honorable work, knowing that it cannot carry it on under a bishop in harmony with those who reject the bishop's authority. Mr. Kestell-Cornish must enjoy the prospect of his episcopal honors, which have been bestowed in defiance of the queen, his own ecclesiastical superior, which has for its object to supplant and oppose the grandest mission work of the century, and which begins with driving out the majority of the missionaries of his own sect. He has a hard but no doubt congenial task before him, and Bishop Staly can encourage him to hope for success.—Independent.

IT WOULD SEEM to be about as difficult to introduce the pure gospel into Austria as into any heathen country. For instance, an apparently careful correspondent of the English Independent states that in the city of Vienna colportage is practically impossible. Books cannot be sold from door to door. Copies may be carried around as specimens and orders taken, and even this can only be done by a person who has obtained a special license that has to be renewed every six months. The distribution of the Scriptures and tracts is out of the question, except at the risk of fine and imprisonment. Only recently an evangelist was fined five guilders for giving away a tract. As the Protestant Rationalistic pastors and the Ultramontane priests rule matters there, all efforts to spread a purer religion have little show. This correspondent commends the experiment now being made by the three or four missionaries of the American Board stationed in Austria, who are carefully examining the ground and feeling their way among the people. "Their position," he writes, "is one demanding great faith and patience on their part, as well as the prayerful sympathy of all who feel an interest in an undertaking so eminently heroic."

REV. MR. WILDER, writing to the Evangelist from Kolapur, gives an account of recent fanatical uprisings by the Mohammedans in Western India. The publication of a life of Mohammed by a Parsee of Bombay started the agitation. The work was only a compilation of what Washington Irving and others had written on the subject long ago; but the ignorant mob, stirred up by their leaders to regard the book an insult to the memory of their prophet, revenged its publication on the whole Parsee population of Bombay. For twenty-four hours the Parsee quarter of the city was at the mercy of the rioters and a number of Parsees were killed. The lordly and timid action of the government in suppressing the book at once, while they delayed to suppress the mob, greatly encouraged the Mohammedan fanatics. Their next attempt was made at Kurachee, where they demanded the immediate suppression of a tract sold by the missionary of the Church Missionary Society. This tract, entitled "Reasons for Belief," has been in circulation forty or fifty years in all parts of India, and is very moderate in its tone; nevertheless, the English magistrate so earnestly urged its suppression, for fear of riot, that the missionary was obliged to give way. These unwise surrenders of the privilege of free speech have greatly elated the Mohammedans and will likely lead to other outbreaks.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH IN TEXAS.—The annual address of the Bishop of Texas to the Diocesan Convention states the following facts: During the conventional year the Bishop baptized 18 white adults and 77 white children, making a total of 95; and confirmed 200 white persons and 2 colored persons, making a total of 202. One church building had been consecrated, eighty visitations had been made, 114 addresses delivered and 140 sermons preached. Five lay readers had been licensed, making 21 now at work. The diocesan clergy now number 33 (27 presbyters and 6 deacons;) and the general progress of the church continues to be steady and decided. The number of parishes is now about 40, though some have only a nominal existence; and there are now more than 30 missionary stations. Three parishes have become self-supporting within the past year. The plan of associate missions had been strongly urged for Texas; but the counteracting disadvantages were scarcity of men, sparseness of population, wide extent of territory and lack of the necessary means to work such a system, especially the non-supply of unmarried, self-denying clergy, willing to "endure hardness" like the early missionaries of the cross.

THE question of decorating St. Paul's Cathedral in London has been revived again, with a new outburst of feeling. Two hundred thousand dollars have already been subscribed for the purpose, but the artists' plans have provoked so much opposition that there is no telling whether the money will be expended or not. The Low Church party object to the proposed decorations because of their ritualistic character; the plan being, it seems, to veneer the whole interior with marble, and to use gilding and polychromy in a way bewildering to the eye. The Illustrated News calls attention to the figures to be introduced, some of which would scarcely be distinguished from below; others are as much too large comparatively; "while the disproportions reach their climax in a figure of our Savior at the first end of the church, which is so gigantic that it would, beyond all question, dwarf the whole interior, and be a glaring incongruity from whatever point it could be viewed." Architecturally considered, the entire ornamentation is condemned as unworthy the noble structure erected by Sir Christopher Wren. The matter appears to have taken strong hold of the religious feelings of the Evangelical party in London, and there is little doubt that they will fight the "desecrations" to the end.

A PARSEE writes to the Bombay Guardian that the only hope of their race, numbering some eighty thousand in India, being saved from extinction is in adopting Christianity. That journal states that there are thousands of educated Parsees in Bombay who have entirely lost confidence in their own system of religion and are perfectly convinced of the truth of Christianity. The writer expects the time when vast numbers of them will come out for Christianity together. At Dodoopitty (Ceylon,) which has recently become a self-supporting congregation, there is a girls' boarding school, under the charge of Miss Townsend, of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. In the seventh year of her work she writes: "A few weeks ago I had the privilege of uniting with eighteen of my dear flock in commemorating the Savior's love, and memory recalled twelve others who have professed the Lord in the same place and were now honoring him in homes of their own. * * * I am also greatly encouraged by the faithful Christian conduct of those who have left the school. Some of them, I know, are accomplishing a great work among the women of their villages. Three of them are teaching girls' schools at home and one is employed here." Missionaries in India have good reason to cherish their schools, for a large proportion of the converts come from them.

THE following are the statistics of the United Presbyterian Church for 1874: Synods, 8; presbyteries, 56; ministers, 595, of whom 162 are without charge and 433 are pastors and stated supplies; licentiates, 53; congregations, 776, of which 243 are vacant and 533 have pastors or stated supplies; parsonages, 82; members, 74,833; baptisms, adult, 466, infant, 3,490; Sunday schools, 625; officers and teachers, 6,087; scholars, 49,086; contributions by Sunday schools, $24,085; churches and stations aided by home mission funds, 182; ministers and licentiates under appointment, 105; home mission appropriations for 1874-5, $10,775; theological seminaries, 5, with 86 students; colleges, 2, with 21 students. Contributions: For salaries, $433,888; for congregational expenses, $259,956; to the boards, $108,467; general contributions, $62,982; legacies, $14,907. Total, $863,293. Average per member, $11.40; average salary of pastors, $985. Property: Seminaries, $225,000; colleges, $250,000; churches (estimated,) $5,000,000; parsonages, $20,000. Total, $5,675,000. Foreign missions, 9; stations, 23; missionaries in active service, 37; churches, 21; communicants, 655; mission schools, 22, with 2,318 pupils; native helpers, 80; native ordained ministers, 3; appropriations for the year, $73,440; expenses for last year, $64,664. The General Assembly has fixed $2.71 as the sum which each member ought to pay this year for the several boards.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 29, 1874.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—112 CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the Patronizing Conferences.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
REV. A. J. BRIGGS.
REV. J. W. RUSH.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY
REV. J. G. JONES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

One Year	$2 00
Six Months	1 25
Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all Ministers of the Gospel, traveling or local and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers, with EIGHT DOLLARS.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The College of Bishops have appointed the week of prayer for this year to begin on Friday, August 21, 1874, which day will be observed as a day of special fasting and prayer.

R. PAINE, Chairman.
H. N. MCTYEIRE, Sec.

De Jure or De Facto.

More and more is it appareut that our General Conference did well to define its position on the subject of fraternization. The real views of our Northern brethren who are so enthusiastic for hand-shinking and union love-feasts are coming to the surface. The editor of the Ladies' Repository, referring to the majority report, very clearly and candidly defines the grounds on which we are recognized. We are not a de jure, but a de facto church. We suppose the Repository speaks the mind of the Northern Methodists generally, even of Drs. Hunt, Fowler and General Fisk, when it says:

Now, this being the condition of things, on what ground is fraternization between parties who have fought for a generation possible? Only by forgetting the past, and letting "by-gones be by-gones." Societies, churches and nations get into existence by the way of constitutions. Constitutions contemplate and provide for life and perpetuity; they make no provision for dissolution.

This is accomplished by revolution. A successful revolution commands respect and forces acknowledgment, first of belligerency and then of independency. When a church has been thirty years independent, who, outside of its own pale, cares how it achieved its independency? Who cares that one of the belligerent parties denies the existence of a Plan of Separation, and that the other just as positively, firmly and conscientiously believes that the plan was conditional, and that the conditions were never fulfilled; that the separation was brought about by violence and revolution? Who at this day wants his Christian feelings rolled by reiteration of old positions? If fraternization with the Church South is to be purchased by our acknowledging that that church occupied the scriptural platform on the subject of slavery; that the "plan" was carried out and perfected in its intended order and in good faith; that a line like that drawn by the sword of Romulus exists, which no man may cross except at his peril—if these are the conditions, fraternization between the South and North is impossible till every one of us who remembers and clings to 1844 is dead. Why parade these old issues, just as strong on one side as on the other? The world acknowledges the existence of the Church South, de facto. It may be tremulously sensitive on the point, but it can never, if it argue till doomsday, convince a portion of the world that it exists de jure. As a revolution, a success; as a plan, a failure. The present position of the Church South is independent—commanding. It is master of the situation; it can fraternize or not, as it pleases. Some of us; whose 1844 feelings and convictions—prejudices, if you choose to call them so—justified the General Conference of 1845 for declining fellowship with a church that allowed its members, ministers and bishops to connect themselves with slavery, felt humiliated at the extemporé efforts made by unauthorized individuals to bring about a union between the two churches. For the action of the last General Conference we voted heartily; in the reception of our delegates at Louisville we rejoiced with joy unspeakable; by the sturdy utterances and votes of the catholic sixty we were made glad; by the report of the ill-omened committee of nine, and the action of the less than two-thirds majority, we were made sad.

We suppose it is in this de facto sense that we are to interpret the generous language of the report of the General Conference at Brooklyn, under the provisions of which the delegates were sent to Louisville, where it says: "We are content to let past events go into history, or be forgotten, as the case may be; and, recognizing that church and its people as a portion of the great Christian and Methodist family, we wish them abundant success in their efforts to promote the cause of Christ and his gospel." Let it be understood, then, that this most magnanimous concession means this and nothing more. A secession and a company of schismatics in the beginning, thirty years of successful revolution entitles the Methodist Episcopal Church South to this very nicely qualified recognition. Back of all these expressions of love and good will, and underlying the warm utterances of the platform and the camp meeting receptions and love-feasts, is this distinction all the time held in reserve. Our venerable Bishops, who were received with such rapture at Round Lake and Sea Cliff, must understand that they belong to a de facto church, and that they are only de facto Bishops. The question of right, the de jure aspect of the subject, has been decided against them. We imagine our Northern brethren use and understand these terms as defined in the dictionaries. Tomlins, as quoted by Worcester, says: "A king de facto is one who is in actual possession of the crown, though having no lawful right to it, in distinction from a king de jure, who has a right to the crown, but is not in possession of it." Between nations, and for international and diplomatic intercourse, these distinctions may not be important; but in the relations of Christian churches we do not see how a sincere and transparent tender of fraternity can be consistent with them. If the tender, however, be altogether honest and with a single eye, can the Southern Church accept a recognition which has, in fact, this most offensive qualification? The Church North still holds to the notion that the division in 1844 was a schism on our part, and not a separation mutually agreed upon. As they assert, we are not a church of right, and hence the condescending act of recognition, but with the careful disclaimer that it is not on grounds of right, but of actual existence.

Very much in the same line is the deliverance of the Methodist in reference to "the Plan of Separation." The Methodist says:

It will do no good for our Southern brethren to be perpetually harping on the "Plan of Separation." Most Northern Methodists of this generation know little about the plan, and care less. We might as well ask them to discuss Sanscrit roots as its terms. To their minds it is as effectually dead as though it belonged to the world before the flood. This declaration is candid, and we believe it to be true. And yet it was assumed by the minority at Louisville, whom the Northern Methodist journals have characterized as "the immortal," that everybody was familiar with "the plan," and that no historical and documentary recital was necessary. That a new era does away with the most equitable and solemn compacts, is true Yankee logic. Under the force of this argument the constitution of the country was remanded to the fellowship of Sanscrit roots. No political compacts have been allowed to stand in the way of sectional and party expediency. What Grete calls "constitutional morality," and the decay of which led to the ruin of the Grecian republics, is a thing of the past with the Northern people. In Church as in State, the new era wipes out all the principles and obligations of the past. Truth and justice must be twisted and perverted to meet the altered circumstances.

The Supreme Court of to-day may reverse the decision in reference to the plan. It may, and doubtless the Northern Church stands ready to accept such a reversal as most righteous! It is magnanimous in the extreme "that the property rights acquired by them under the Plan of Separation are to remain undisturbed," but at the same time the plan is "not fairly valid," and, if we are not careful how we talk about it, it may be ripped up by the Supreme Court of this "new era," and its provisions set aside. Our brethren, so eager for fraternity, tell us that we are not a church at all de jure, that our title to property under "the plan" is not valid, that the Supreme Court may yet set them right on this question, and reverse the decision rendered by Judge Nelson; but yet they give us a de facto recognition, and promise to let the property rights, acquired by the decision "of a Supreme Court of decided Southern leanings," remain undisturbed! Neither in law nor in equity do they allow us existence or property, but the Methodist at least, and the fairer portion of the Methodist people (North,) are willing to let the property rights "remain undisturbed." We well know that all are not thus minded, and that these very rights are being disturbed.

Instead of letting "by-gones be by-gones," we find that the Methodist Episcopal Church holds on to them with a most determined grip, with a freshness of memory and with a tenacity of purpose which is truly astonishing, considering the protestations which have been made. When we come to elicit their real feelings and views, the by-gones are still near the surface, and as potent and virulent as ever. Scratch a Russian and the Cossack appears.

They are not going to retire from the South. So the report of the Brooklyn General Conference was careful to state most elaborately, and the Methodist reiterates the same thing. The manner in which they began their work in the South, by getting possession of our churches by military orders, and by proselyting our colored members, and their attempts to disintegrate our German societies, first and last, are not much to their credit. Whatever the animus in which their work in the South is now prosecuted, the beginning was anything but fraternal. The de jure and the de facto distinctions have come out in all this history of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South, and so it will be to the end. Why so careful to assert their determination to continue their work in the South? The policy of disintegration and absorption, and the lavish expenditure of missionary money on fields already well occupied by the Southern Church, demand the boldest assertion and the most painstaking vindication. In a political point of view they cannot afford to give up the colored people. The elevated citizenship of the negro, and the almost millennial condition of our political and domestic affairs in the South, are largely due to the influence of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They may feel the need of explanation, but nobody expects them to retire.

Oregon Correspondence.

EVANGELIZING ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS.

MR. EDITOR:—I have been to Tillamook! That means a great deal. If you will cast your eyes on the map of our Pacific coast you will see Tillamook bay south of the mouth of the Columbia, north of Capes Foulweather and Lookout—a bay of no great capacity, where vessels of small tonnage can find harbor, into which several small mountain streams flow, their limpid waters meeting the surf of the mightiest water-basin in the world. Tillamook! It has a significance in the Columbia Conference, as Queue de Tortue has in the Louisiana Conference. Those who know Queue de Tortue need not suppose that the one is the counterpart of the other. By no means. Contrasts as well as similitudes are striking methods of presenting facts. As you cannot know the one without seeing it, so the other presents dissimilar features geographically, topographically, climatically. You must see it. These are three strong points. I cannot essay to draw out these points now, only so far as is necessary to the narration.

Some of your numerous readers may remember "Evangelization in the Swamps." If I have gained any notoriety in writing for your paper, I attribute it to that desultory itinerant leaf. And the observable feature is not so much in the writing as in the phase of human life met, and the blessed truth that the gospel of Jesus, unmixed, is welcomed by those who are sequestered from the busy marts of business, fashion and pleasure.

The valley called Tilamook lies on the Pacific ocean, across the Coast Range mountains, a distance of forty or fifty miles from Willamette valley. I had a meeting (not quarterly) appointed for the second Saturday and Sunday of July. The circuit preacher is prevented from getting over (or, as they say, "in"—we are "outside") during much of the year by reason of the deep snows on the mountains, which sometimes attain to ten or fifteen feet. Our party consisted of Bro. Sears, ex-presiding elder, wife and son Willie, Bro. and Sister McCall, a good old-fashioned Methodist couple, myself and daughter Lelia. With two vehicles and Bro. McCall on horseback, we started across the mountains on Thursday, the nineteenth. That day we penetrated the mountains proper about seven miles, where, near the summit, in a canyon where flowed a beautiful silvery brook, we bivouacked. Our food was mostly prepared. Our camp fires lighted, our horses grazed, watered and fed, we proceeded to dispatch the evening meal on an extemporized table of clap-boards, which was done with a relish. Our camp was a short distance from the road up the stream. Just before night a vehicle drove up and encamped at the road. We went down and made the acquaintance of the two young men. After conversing awhile, we invited them up to our camp to evening worship. They came. Our prayer in that grand and magnificent forest—the most wonderful I ever saw—went up before God, we trust, acceptably, and our evening hymn sounded and reverberated in those mountain fastnesses, borne out on the pure, fragrant air. God was there. The body of the hack made a very good resting-place for the females, while we found some rest on a bed made on some wide cedar boards from an old camp, on which we spread a buffalo-robe and blankets. The bed seemed not so bad, and excelled many that were more pretentious. The circumstances, place and all seemed to affect my nervous system, and, but for a tree-frog which fell in my face, my repose would have been more profound. If that little frog made a descent from the top of that larch tree, he certainly can be numbered among the successful jumpers, as it must have been two hundred and fifty feet high. I would have felt better if we had had a gun, but the brethren said there was no danger, but—well, there was nature in all its embryonic wildness. As twilight in stillness broke over the mountains, the sweet, mellow thrill of a strange bird, which seemed to have but one single bar to its song, woke the dawn of day, and drew gratitude to "him who giveth his beloved sleep," and "who holdeth mine eyes waking." I named that place Camp Summit, but afterward learned it was camp "Elk Horn," as that animal abounded there.

The following day we proceeded slowly on our journey, now passing along the edge of the mountains, the road barely wide enough for my buggy. A misdrive of one foot would have precipitated us many feet below against the trees and logs. Often the road we traveled was about level with the majestic fir, hemlock and spruce, which were commonly from fifteen to thirty feet in circumference, and shot up hundreds of feet, straight as an Indian's arrow, and limbless till near the top. Then, on the other hand, the mountain's rude form would rise up, with its trees of manly stature, until you felt bewildered, and as if suspended by a thread. Oregon has grand trees as well as mountains; but I have not yet shown you the greatest of these sons of the forest. Further on they seemed still more majestic, and you may imagine the size when I state that I drove through a gap made by sawing away a portion of the tree's trunk for the road, and, halting in the midst, found it was much higher than my head as I sat in the buggy.

Our road, "narrow" but by no means "straight," was at times very precipitous, ascending and descending many degrees, and tortuously winding along with sharp angles, requiring the most dexterous driving, affording the opportunity of conversing in close proximity with our companions in the rear vehicle. Such a journey affords a fitting similitude to life's journey. After descending the mountain safely, and coming to the toll-gate, we found the brethren had anticipated us and made arrangements for our toll. We descend the right bank of Trask river—a whirling, rushing, mad stream, presenting the wildest scenery, sometimes our road hanging upon the very verge of the high bank above the fearful chasm, the rugged bowlders and the roaring cataract, the mountain-points jutting close down upon our path, which was formed by cutting away the side. So we traveled for ten miles. The road is more romantic, wild and dangerous than in the mountains proper. Our party separated when we got to the prairie, each party going to a neighboring brother's house. The Christian kindness and hospitality of the people there is worthy of note and commendation.

Our meeting commenced on Saturday morning, in a school-house—basket meeting. Preaching edifying, and heard with avidity. Congregations good. Sunday morning we had love-feast—a profitable time. Many testified to the love of God. At the close of the eleven o'clock service eight persons came forward for church membership, producing quite a stir in the congregation. At the close of the afternoon sermon the number was swelled to eleven. The ordinance of baptism by affusion was administered to five persons, one of them a remarkable case of conversion and a one-legged man, reminding me of my traveling companion in Grand River swamp when on that "evangelizing tour." Next day we had preaching at a private house. Bro. Sears administered baptism by immersion, in that clear, swift-running stream, to the resident sister, in the presence of a little company. If baptism is for "the washing away of the filth of the flesh," and not "for the remission of sins," then the pure, limpid waters of Trask river would be eminently sufficient to cleanse. She was received into the church according to our form, making the twelfth member received during the meeting. Glory to God, the "gospel is the power of God unto salvation!"

BUTTER.

Tillamook is famous for its butter. I received no money compensation, but the butter promised is enough to butter both sides of my children's bread for many months. "The laborer is worthy of his hire." The way my steps were buttered shows their appreciation of the gospel embassador. Long will Tillamook live in my memory.

I thought of New Orleans and Louisiana, burning and famishing for cool, pure water, when I saw the crystal fountain flowing in every valley in the mountains, some springs affording water as cool as your ice-water—making the teeth ache. What a country for water!

We had just closed a camp meeting in Yam Hill county when we went to Tillamook. More than twenty souls were added at both meetings, and three church-houses were projected. We have added about sixty to the church in the last month. Thank the Lord! I take courage in this far-off land, and push the battle to the gates. So much for Columbia Conference, Willamette district and three appointments.

We need men and we need money for the work. I need six new, fresh men, in addition to what I have, to man my district. No danger about getting a living. Send me six good, earnest men by September 10.

My kind salutations to the brethren. Affectionately,

T. B. WHITE.

CORVALLIS, OREGON, July 18, 1874.

PRESIDENT OF MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.—Prof. Armstrong, mentioned in the following note as the newly-elected president of Mansfield Female College, is highly indorsed by our friends in Alabama, and is well known there as a capable and accomplished scholar and teacher. The college should open in the fall with a generous patronage.

Mr. Editor: Please say to the Conference and public, through your paper, that the board has elected, by his consent, Mr. Thomas Armstrong, of Mount Sterling, Alabama, president of the Mansfield Female College. He will open the college, with a competent corps of teachers, at the usual time in September. Several gentlemen have addressed the board. If their letters should not be answered in detail, this notice will serve as an apology.

JOHN PIPES,
President of Board.

MANSFIELD, LA., August 7, 1874.

DR. W. N. MERCER, an old and wealthy citizen of New Orleans, died on Sunday, the sixteenth instant. Dr. Mercer was noted for his many and generous charities, and for his liberal gifts to religious enterprises. His death will be deeply regretted by all classes of our people.

The Round Lake Camp Meeting.

MR. EDITOR: On the eighth day—the great day of the feast—the President arrived, unheralded, at an early hour, accompanied by his private secretary, General Babcock. The distinguished visitors were met at the depot by Bishop Simpson. After enjoying half an hour's conversation with the Bishops and other ministers present, they were conducted to the preachers' stand. Only think of it!—General Ulysses Simpson Grant and Bishop Simpson, General Babcock and Bishop Haven. There they sit in full view—the world, the flesh and the church in meek harmony. What union have we here! What a rich association of the election by grace and the next general election. The chief of the staff enters, leaning on the chief editor—quite a millennial statement. Surely the lion is learning to eat straw with the ox; and what fitter place for his first lessons than a Methodist union camp meeting? Dr. Curry, too, can show him how, for who requires or uses more straw, day by day, than the great New York official? Among things somewhat sublunary, 'twas a beautiful sight to the reporters of the dailies; as they style it, "another perfect day." The President shook hands with the people and the children for nearly an hour. Just before his departure by a special train he shook hands with the preachers in the stand, they singing:

"Say, brothers, will you meet me there?"

Then came the photograph. No, not then, but just after the sermon. How chilling to the emotions kindled by the preacher! Not a collection, but a photographer. "A photograph was permitted"—yes, "permitted." O "Brainard & Brown, booksellers, of Troy, New York," what a fine thing you have in that tableau vivant—what fraternity! Bishop Campbell, black as the ace of spades, though so gifted; the visitors from the South; and that circle of deeply single-minded clergymen who wept while they shook hands—Bishops, editors, President and General Babcock. Happy the phiz that finds itself sweetly blended with so much greatness and simplicity, to be handed down, even beyond the next presidential campaign, to admiring generations of black Republicans!

But where was "Sister Smith" at that supreme moment? Is she not also "a man and a brother?" Who had a larger place in the Round Lake programme than she? And is there to be no memento?

Now, Mr. Editor, in this affair, tell us who were the cat's-paws, who the monkeys, and what the chestnuts? Oh, tell us, are we to have, next year, another such universal camp meeting? Are our people to grace annually such a display of sincerity and unity? And will our two Baltimore brethren, frosted with seventy winters each of wisdom, continue during the interim to advocate union and absorption? Do tell us.

CEPHAS.

Boating.

They had a grand rowing regatta at Saratoga—Yale, Harvard, the Wesleyan, Columbia and others. Columbia won. President Barnard, of Columbia, in receiving and addressing the triumphant crew returned, is reported to have said that the crew had done more to spread the name of the college than others had done since its foundation. Verily, and is that so? The masterpiece of Columbia College is graduated muscle. Great minds and cultivated have gone forth from its classic halls, but they have been so many failures sadly turned out by the college, experimenting on its students in the ambitious hope at last to turn out triumphant muscle and art at the end of an our. And President Barnard's eyes swam in tears while he spoke as above. What pathos! What branch will receive so much attention at Columbia the coming term as boating? Branch of what? Of learning? We could not so state it in the preceding query to the point. We might say branch of the body considered as a tree, and the arms branches. Mind and matter—the ancient view of their mutual relations must be reconsidered, through the mellowed medium of President Barnard's much-bedewed spectacles. What matter if backs are broken and health permanently impaired by excessive training? Produce rowing muscle, and the reputation of a college is established, world-wide and beyond competitors. What matter if mind and soul and spirit are not to be despised? Does not Paul himself say: "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural?" He himself took lessons in the athletic art of stoning before he entered the ministry. Then let us have the natural first, by all means, and Columbia is the place. X.

WHILE just government protects all in their religious rites, true religion affords government its surest support.—Washington.

An Old Romish Argument Revived.

We learn from the secular press, says the Christian Intelligencer of New York city, that a characteristic effort has been made by some Romanists to silence an eminent Protestant divine of this city, who has been an earnest advocate for reading the Bible in the public schools, both by sermons in his church and by public lectures elsewhere. It appears that a recent sermon of his on this subject was especially unpalatable to Romanists, and in consequence he was the recipient of an anonymous letter stating that his course was an obnoxious one to many, and that very serious results would follow if he continued a further discussion of the subject. Of course this threat did not deter the clergyman—Rev. D. Henry Miller, D. D.—from the discussion of a topic of public concernment, and the Tribune of the eighteenth ultimo tells us what has been the sequel of his steadfastness, as follows:

"It has been Dr. Miller's custom during the afternoons to spend the greater part of his time in his study, in the rear of the church, the window of which opens directly upon the rear of the houses facing on Fifty-second street. It was from some point in this direction that shots were fired, and by some person probably acquainted with the fact of Dr. Miller's usual presence there at his desk during the afternoon, though the ground glass in the window prevented a certain knowledge. During his temporary absence from the study, a week ago last Friday afternoon, two shots were fired through the window, one of the bullets lodging in the desk, and the other in a bookcase overhead. Recalling the anonymous letters received, he thought it was a deliberate attempt on the part of some one to carry previous threats into execution. * * * The detectives claim that both shots were fired from one of the houses in the rear, but there seems to be no ground for suspicion against any one in the house directly on the line of their course. These facts were given to a Tribune reporter by one of the trustees, though with some reluctance, it having been the intention of the pastor and the trustees of the church to keep the affair from the public. Had it not been for the receipt of a threatening and anonymous letter, signed 'G. T.,' it was said that they would not have given the matter a second thought. * * * Had Dr. Miller been in his usual position in his study, the bullet that lodged in the desk would have struck him in the head. The other was wide of the mark."

If the attempt to intimidate Dr. Miller by threats of violence or assassination was an isolated instance of the peculiar arguments employed by Romanists, it might be attributed to the evil disposition of an individual only. But when this method is found to be one quite commonly resorted to, its proportions become enlarged and it deserves to be held up for public denunciation; nor can the Romanists expect otherwise than that they must be held responsible for the ultimate results that may flow from it. As our readers are aware, the Intelligencer has taken the field ground, on more than one occasion recently, against certain impostures, delusions and dangerous teachings and practices of the Romish Church, and the same effort at intimidation has been repeatedly directed against us that was tried on Dr. Miller. Again and again most abusive and truculent anonymous letters have been mailed to us by Roman Catholics from various portions of the country, filled with threats of incendiary and personal violence in various forms, for our strictures on Romanism and the papacy, all of which we treated with the silent contempt and loathing they deserved. But the attempt to assassinate Dr. Miller demands that the public attention should be directed toward what seems to be a part of a systematic plan, to the end that Protestants may be advised as to the temper of their Romish antagonists and the weapons to which they resort to make good their cause. We have no desire to say anything that will inflame the passions of Protestants against Romanists, and abhor the idea of retaliation in any form; but at the same time Romanists must be admonished that the atmosphere of the United States is an unfriendly one for attempts at intimidation by threats of incendiarism or assassination, and that a single case of either that is carried out and distinctly traced to Roman Catholic influence will react upon them with a force and power the proportions of which can hardly be overestimated.

The Ecclesiastical War in Germany.

The following is from the London Times:

"The German government is still proceeding with same rigor against its ecclesiastical and political adversaries. A priest named Leyendecker, of Deudesfeld, near Treves, has been sentenced to a month's imprisonment for stating from the pulpit that Protestants were rogues, and that Jews were liars and cheats who would rob Christians of the last drop of their blood. His own version of the passage was that among Protestants and Jews, as among all other bodies, there were rogues and cheats. At Saarbrucken a lay member of the Catholic Verein has been fined one hundred and sixty thalers, with three weeks' imprisonment in case of default, for a speech delivered at a meeting of that society at Urbach. Herr Most, a member of the Reichstag, has been condemned to nineteen months' imprisonment by the Berlin court for using language to excite violence, and for aspersing the army. The same tribunal has confirmed the sentence of twelve months' imprisonment on Herr Majunke, the editor of the Germania, for his language respecting the Emperor and Prince Bismarck. Four articles of a similar character having appeared since the original trial, the court increased the fine from two hundred to four hundred thalers, and added a month's imprisonment. The fine of four hundred thalers imposed on the Bishop of Paderborn, who, when the prosecution was first instituted, made over all his property to his brother, has just been paid by one of his flock. The court decided to accept the money in spite of the protest of the Bishop, who wished to undergo the alternative of imprisonment. Archbishop Ledochowski has now passed five months in captivity. His health is stated by his friends to be all that could be desired. The Bavarian government have intimated to the Old Catholics that though unable to give Bishop Reinkens express authority to exercise episcopal functions, they will offer no hinderance to his holding a confirmation at Kempfen, and have declined the Bishop of Augsburg's request that they should interpose to prevent him. After visiting Silesia and East Prussia, Bishop Reinkens will accordingly visit Kempfen."

Letters from Berlin state that the Emperor, in giving his assent to the ecclesiastical laws, told Herr Falk to enforce them mildly as a rule; but where he encountered serious and unjustifiable resistance to count upon his support. Meanwhile Dr. Janiszewski, suffragan Bishop of Posen, has been arrested for violation of the ecclesiastical laws, and condemned to fifteen months' imprisonment.

REV. R. ALEXANDER.—Last week we visited Bro. Alexander, says the Galveston Christian Advocate of August 12, at his island home, midway between Galveston and Houston. We were glad to see that he had almost entirely recovered from the severe injuries he had received some six weeks before. While walking across his pasture he had been attacked by an infuriated bull. He was knocked down, two of his ribs broken, his face and chest severely bruised by the horns and hoofs of the animal. The severest wound was on his thigh, where he received a gash some five inches long and reaching nearly to the bone. His escape seemed providential, as the animal, after a struggle, left him of its own accord.

Sister Alexander's health is quite feeble, and they expected to leave the next day for the Burditt Wells, in Caldwell county. We hope to have Bro. Alexander's aid at some of our fall meetings.

REV. DR. W. H. WATKINS has been granted a month's vacation by his charge at Woodville, Mississippi, for the purpose of rest and recuperation. We are glad to know that his health is improving. He was with us most helpfully at the Seashore camp meeting, and has preached several times in the city during the last two weeks.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY, for young ladies, is now under the presidency of Rev. John A. B. Jones, of the Mississippi Conference. The college is located in a healthy region, in the midst of a good community, and is under the patronage and control of the Mississippi Annual Conference. For particulars our readers are directed to the card in another column.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, Virginia, Rev. E. E. Wiley, D. D., president, offers the most advantageous terms, and affords the best of facilities to those who are seeking collegiate education for their boys. It is one of our most popular Methodist colleges, and well deserves the liberal patronage which it has received. See advertisement in this week's issue of the ADVOCATE.

CHRISTIANITY is not merely a system of ideas, but a living force in the human soul which does more to beautify and ennoble man than all the systems of human science and morality combined. Let Christianity be substantially embodied before the scrutinizing eye of unbelief, and it gives a silencing blow.

Conference Register.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Denver	Denver city	Aug. 27	Pierce.
Illinois	Murphysboro	Sept. 2	Whatcoat.
Western	Wyandotte	Sept. 9	Keener.
Columbia	Salem	Sept. 10	Pierce.
W. Virginia	Philippi	Sept. 16	Doggett.
Kentucky	Mt. Sterling	Sept. 16	Wightman.
Missouri	St. Joseph	Sept. 16	Keener.
S. W. Missouri	Lexington	Sept. 30	Keener.
Louisville	Paducah	Sept. 30	Wightman.
Tennessee	Dalton	Oct. 7	Marvin.
Pacific	Stockton	Oct. 7	Pierce.
Holston	Asheville	Oct. 14	Doggett.
St Louis	Pinckneyville	Oct. 14	Keener.
Indian Miss'n	North Fork	Oct. 22	McTyeire.
Arkansas	Fort Smith	Oct. 28	Kavanaugh.
Los Angeles	Carpenteria	Oct. 28	Pierce.
N. Alabama	Huntsville	Nov. 4	Doggett.
North Texas	Denton	Nov. 4	McTyeire.
White River	Searcy	Nov. 11	Kavanaugh.
Virginia	Elizabeth City	Nov. 18	Marvin.
N. W. Texas	Weatherford	Nov. 18	McTyeire.
Memphis	Humboldt	Nov. 18	Paine.
N. Mississippi	Aberdeen	Nov. 25	Doggett.
N. Georgia	Cartersville	Nov. 25	Wightman.
Little Rock	Monticello	Nov. 25	Kavanaugh.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 2	Marvin.
West Texas	Gonzales	Dec. 2	McTyeire.
Alabama	Opelika	Dec. 9	Doggett.
East Texas	Marshall	Dec. 9	McTyeire.
South Georgia	Savannah	Dec. 9	Pierce.
Florida	Live Oak	Dec. 16	Wightman.
S. Carolina	Greenville	Dec. 16	Marvin.
Mississippi	Hazlehurst	Dec. 16	Paine.
Texas	Houston	Dec. 16	Keener.
Louisiana	Alexandria	Jan. 6	Paine.
Baltimore	Washington City	Mar. 3	Marvin.

*German Mission Conference organized at same time and place. Bishop Keener has charge of the mission in Mexico.

MARRIED.

COLLINS-BLANKENSHIP.—At the Methodist church in Lockhart, Texas, August 5, 1874, Rev. C. M. Rogers officiating, Miss Emma Collins, late of Clinton, Louisiana, and Mr. R. H. Blankenship, of Kentucky.

GEDGE—LANEY.—August 6, 1874, at the residence of the bride's father, in Pathom county, Alabama, by the Rev. R. G. Ragan, Mr. E. B George to Miss M. A. E. Laney.

HOWARD—JELICH.—By Rev. W. A. Montgomery, at the residence of Mrs. Matilda Howard, Autauga county, Alabama, August 6, 1874, James H. Howard, of Plantersville, Alabama, and Miss Amanda Jelich, of Autauga county.

COTTON PRESSES.—W. H. Reynolds, Esq., corner of South Market and Fulton streets, advertises in another column the revolving wrought-iron screw plantation cotton press, so well known throughout the country.

LEVY BROS., 580 Magazine street, are fully sustaining their former reputation for fine goods and reasonable prices. See advertisement elsewhere.

Publisher's Department.

Acknowledgments of Letters and Funds

RECEIVED BY MAIL,

For the Week Ending Aug. 15, 1874.

A—T. Y. Abernethy, C. O. Andrews five letters, Edwin Alden $35, E. & H. T. Anthony, Thomas K. Armstrong, J. H. Appell two letters $1.25, N. W. Ayer & Son, Daniel Appleton & Co., American News Company, Thomas R. Atkins, American Tract Society, E. A. Acreman, J. S. Abernathy.

B—D. H. Baldwin, Boorum & Pease two letters G. J. Babin $9.75, Mrs. H. Barrow $1, Robert Beckett, James F. Bradley, W. S. Birdsong, Horace Bishop, A. M. Barrington $26.30, T. H. Buckingham, John C. Blanton, Jonathan Burford.

C—R. J. Catchings, J. E. Collins, D. E. Crosland $6, Cassell, Pelter & Galpin, Aaron Coons, William Cameron, C. B. Collins, A. J. Calloway, Mrs. S. M. Cuyler.

D—Logan D. Dameron two letters, Charles H. Dilson & Co. two letters, Donaldson & Co. two letters $27, Robert A. Davis two letters $25, R. B. Downer, M. S. Dumas.

E—D. G. W. Ellis, I. V. Enochs.

G—W. Griffen & Co. two letters, David A. Givens 50 cents, A. D. Gaskill $9.90, A. E. Goodwyn.

H—B. T. Hitchcock, Bythell Haynes, A. C. Hendrick, F. Howarth $6, H. G. Horton $17.90, Hoyt & Gilchrist $21.25, W. B. Hines, W. C. Hailey.

J—J. J. Jones, George W. Jones, J. A. H. Jones $7.50.

K—John B. Kilbrell, Christian Keener, J. O. Keener.

L—Amasa Lord, Roswell T. Logan, A. C. Littlejohn six letters, J. B. Lippincott & Co., H. P. Levis two letters $10, D. C. Langford $8, R. R. Long, Jr., Lee, Shepard & Dillingham, Limerick & Co. $1.10.

M—S. D. Murff, J. W. McCann, J. Millsaps, F. McCormick; Miss E. A. Moriarty $2, Max Muller, W. B. May $3.70, Mrs. E. A. Morris, A. Millspaugh $200.12.

N—William B. Neal, C. R. Norman $1.50.

O—James Ormond.

P—M. S. Park, John R. Peebles, J. M. Patton, Mrs. Ike Pickens $2.50.

Q—L. J. Quinn 51 cents.

R—M. H. Rankin $1.50, J. A. Ridley $10, A. H. Redford agent two letters, Rudolph & Co., George P. Rowell & Co., William L. Roche, James Reed $1, J. S. Rollack, J. K. Randall, E. E. F. Ross, James Russell $2, Rural Carolinian, R. H. Rawlings, A. M. Ragland.

S—I. N. Soper & Co., T. H. Sessions $2, Charles H. Stuart $12, O. W. Swofford, P. B. Saffold $6.

T—H. H. Trueheart 75 cents, E. B. Tuggle $1.

W—John F. Wynn two letters, Thomas Ward White, J. Weaver & Co., R. B. Winnack, Horace Waters & Son, A. White, S. W. Weatherly, W. L. Walker, J. H. Wilson, E. E. Wiley, T. B. Wilden.

Y—N. B. Young $6.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now making a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

A. C. LITTLEJOHN, ESQ., is our sole agent for the State of Texas. We commend him to the courtesies of our friends having advertisements for insertion or other business in transact with the ADVOCATE.

PICTURE FRAMES.—We have repented applications for picture frames. We would say to our customers that we do not keep an assortment of frames, but can refer them to our near neighbors, Messrs. Heath & Lard, Nos. 97 and 99 Camp street, with full confidence that they can buy frames or have framing done as cheaply as anywhere in the country.

UNDERTAKER.—Also Carriages for Hire at All Times.—It is with pleasure we direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of so reliable and worthy a gentleman as Mr. F. L. Matthews, No. 238 Carondelet street, whose card, in another column, sets forth more fully the character of his business.

METALLIC ELECTRIC SHIELDS FOR RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, ETC.—See advertisement of George Sweetser elsewhere.

OBSERVATIONS ON NASAL CATARRH.—See advertisement of Dr. A. N. Williamson, M. D., in another column.

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS.—See advertisement of Henry E. Sharp & Son in another column.

NEEDLE-BOOK, WITH CHROMOS.—See advertisement of J. Bride & Co. in another column.

OFFORD'S PULPIT OF THE DAY.—See advertisement of R. M. Offord on the eighth page.

THE demand for the Halford Leicestershire Table Sauce, by guests who best understand how to make most palatable their soups, fish and meats, induces all the best hotel proprietors in the country to place it constantly upon their tables. jy23 4t

BUSINESS NOTICES.

OBSERVATIONS ON NASAL CATARRH.—An abstract from a forthcoming work on diseases of the throat and air passages, by A. N. WILLIAMSON, M. D., late Clinical Physician in the University Medical College, New York city. Mailed to any address for 10 cents. Address the author, 28 East Twelfth street, New York.

"DR. WILLIAMSON'S great success in the treatment of Catarrhal and throat and lung affections renders valuable whatever comes from his pen." Journal of Medical Science. au20 3m

BE of good cheer. There is life and health for you yet. So those who have taken Simmons Liver Regulator attest. au20 1t

THE METAPHYSICIAN, a new quarterly magazine, will be issued from the METAPHYSICAL UNIVERSITY, 9 Bond street, New York, July 20. The METAPHYSICIAN will discourse on many subjects from various standpoints, interesting and profitable to all classes, especially the Family Circle. It is gotten up in superior style. Subscription—One dollar per annum; single numbers, Thirty cents. Will be mailed to any address on receipt of price. jy30 1m

BEY WERLEIN'S PIANOS, such as The Chickering, Dunham, Hale, Pleyel, etc., which are the best in the market. Sold at low prices and on easy terms, if desired. New Pianos at $150, $175, $200, $250, $300, $350 and $400, at $20 per month. Second hand Pianos at $80, $90, $75, $100, $125, $140, $175, $200, $225 and $2 0, some at $10 per month; many warranted with improved actions. Estevs, Needham's and Weeks' Organs at low rates. Have added Blackmar's large stock of Sheet Music. Band Instruments and strings in great variety. Band Instruments, etc., repaired. PHILIP WERLEIN'S Mammoth Music House, Nos. 78, 80, 82 and 84 Baronne street, New Orleans. de23 1y

PIERSON, & HEWS, fine Clothing, Shirts and Furnishing Goods, 13 and 15 Camp street, opposite City Hotel, New Orleans, Louisiana. We invite visitors from the interior to examine our stock and prices. We claim to sell first-class goods as low as can be afforded and live. We sell the celebrated Shoulder-Seam Shirts, warranted to fit, wear and give satisfaction. Liberal deduction made to Clergymen, and their trade solicited. my15 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

F. L. MATTHEWS,

UNDERTAKER,

(CARRIAGES FOR HIRE AT ALL HOURS,)

238 Carondelet Street.

Bet. Thalia and Erato Streets, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood Coffins always on hand. Disinterring, Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses and Carriages for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. au20 1y

$78 A WEEK TO AGENTS.—Best-selling articles out. Needle Book, with elegant Chromos, etc. Three valuable samples, 10 cents, or circular free. Address J. BRIDE & CO., au20 3m 702 Broadway, New York.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. ROGERS'

VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

A brave man may suffer pain, when inflicted upon himself, heroically; but he

CANNOT SEE HIS CHILD SUFFER.

There is no other malady incident to childhood that is accompanied with more indescribable wretchedness to the little sufferers than that

PRODUCED BY WORMS;

and when the parent fully comprehends the situation he will not delay a moment in securing the most prompt and efficient remedies to insure the expulsion of the intruders. This remedy may be found in

DR. ROGERS'

VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

Please bear in mind that

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP Is the reliable preparation.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP Is a palatable preparation.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is liked by children.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP Positively destroys Worms.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP leaves no bad effects.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is highly recommended by physicians, and is unquestionably the BEST WORM MEDICINE IN THE WORLD.

Price, 25 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

JOHN F. HENRY, CURRAN & CO., Proprietors, au20 1m 8 and 9 College Place, New York.

METALLIC

ELECTRIC SHIELDS.

Fully Indorsed by the Entire Medical Profession.

HAVE CURED THOUSANDS OF

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA,

AND ALL NERVOUS DISEASES.

☞ Simply applied and worn on the parts affected. For Lame Back, Local Pain, Local Palsy, Weakness, Poor Circulation, Varicose Veins and Affections of the Eyes it is a scientific cure. Sold by all Druggists, or General Agent.

GEORGE SWEETSER, 129 Wall St., New York.

Sent by Mail or Express, C. O. D. Price, $5 per pair. au20 4m

EMORY AND HENRY

COLLEGE,

VIRGINIA.

On the Virginia and Tennessee Air-Line Railroad.

On the TENTH OF SEPTEMBER next the scholastic year begins, and continues forty weeks. It is divided into two terms of twenty weeks each, the second or Spring Term commencing on the twenty-eighth of January, 1875.

TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS,

PAID IN ADVANCE,

May cover the expenses of a student for

Tuition, Board, Fuel, Room-Rent, Washing, Library and Contingent Fees

DURING THE FORTY WEEKS.

We invite careful scrutiny into all the elements which have made this school so eminent. For particulars or for a catalogue address

E. E. WILEY, President, Emory P. O., Va.

PORT GIBSON

COLLEGIATE ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES,

Port Gibson, Mississippi.

The next session will begin SEPTEMBER 16, 1874, with competent teachers in charge of each department.

EXPENSES FOR COLLEGIATE YEAR.—For tuition, English text-books, stationery, board, lights, fuel and washing, from $200 to $240. Charges for optional branches equally moderate. Daughters of itinerant ministers taught English branches free.

For circular and further particulars address REV. JOHN A. B. JONES, au20 1m President.

EDWARD SEAHS'

WOOD ENGRAVING

ESTABLISHMENT,

Designing, Photographing and Engraving,

NO. 48 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Velvet Labels and Show Card Printing a specialty. au20 3m new

ESTABLISHED 25 YEARS.

HENRY E. SHARP & SON,

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS,

FOR CHURCHES,

MEMORIAL WINDOWS A SPECIALTY.

117 and 119 East Twenty-Second Street, NEW YORK. au20 3m

$250 A MONTH TO AGENTS.—35 new articles. One lady made $21 80, August 10, in taking subscriptions to the FAMILY JOURNAL, the best Literary and Fashion paper in America. Only $1 a year, with two $5 Chromos. Samples free. FAMILY JOURNAL, 370 Broadway, New York. au20 3m

FOR SINGING CLASSES.

THE SONG MONARCH!

BY H. R. PALMER, ASSISTED BY L. O. EMERSON.

A book admirably fitted for the use of Singing-School Teachers, having, in addition to a complete theoretic course, more than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, Trios, etc., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, for Seminaries and Social Singing.

Price, 75 Cents, or $7.50 Per Dozen.

FOR CIDERS AND CONVENTIONS.

THE LEADER!

is the Leader of all Church Music-Books for 1874 and 1875, being the first in the field and of a character that cannot be excelled,

By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago,

Assisted by L. O. EMERSON, of Boston.

Containing also compositions from the hands of large numbers of American music writers.

For Conventions, Choirs and Singing Classes.

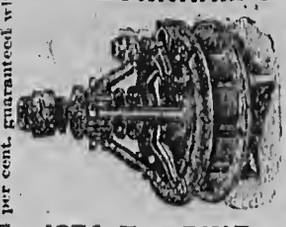
THE LEADER has 96 pages of Singing School Music, the same as that in the Song Minstrel, and large numbers of new Tunes and Anthems, all by the best composers.

PRICE, $1.38, OR $12 PER DOZEN.

☞ Specimen copies of the above book mailed, post paid, for retail price.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York. OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston. jel5 ty

N. F. BURNHAM'S



WATER WHEEL

The best in the Market, and sold at less price than any other first-class Wheel.

84 per cent. guaranteed with

1874 TURBINE

☞ Send for a pamphlet and be convinced. au8 1m N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

BUILDERS! Send for Catalogue of New Books on CARPENTRY AND BUILDING. A. J. BICKNELL & CO., 27 Warren street, New York. au13 3m

$10 A DAY.—Employment for all. Patent Novelties. GEO. L. FELTON & CO., au13 1y 119 Nassau street, New York.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Get the REYNOLDS REVOLVING WROUGHT IRON SCREW PLANTATION COTTON PRESS

IF YOU WANT THE BEST

W. H. REYNOLDS,

COR. SOUTH-MARKET & FULTON STS.

P. O. BOX 1690. NEW ORLEANS. SEND FOR CIRCULAR

au20 3m

EXCELSOR

CHURCH. SABBATH-SCHOOL.

FURNITURE.

EXCELSIOR FOLDING-SEAT CURVED-BACK PEW can be surpassed. It excels anything yet offered to the public in comfort, beauty, convenience, cheapness, healthfulness and economy. ALL STYLES PEWS MADE TO ORDER. The best reversible SABBATH-SCHOOL SETTEES; also, Pulpits, Chairs, Sofas, Book racks, and Bells. The EXCELSIOR COMBINED DESK is the universal favorite, used in Schools of Philadelphia, Jersey City, Detroit, Cincinnati, New Orleans, St. Louis, Memphis, Kansas City, Cleveland, and in most of the United States. BLACKBOARDS, for Sabbath and Day Schools, Globes, Maps, Charts and all Apparatus used in schools. SEND FOR PRICE-LIST.

EXCELSIOR SCHOOL FURNITURE MFG. CO.

Cincinnati, 426 Walnut St. | Philadelphia, 1003 Arch St.
St. Louis, 708 Chestnut St. | Omaha, Creighton Block.
New Orleans, 105 Julia St. | Atlanta, 412 Whitehall St.

au6 3m new

WILLIAM N. THOMSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

Thomson's Leather-Preserver,

FOR

Roofs, Shoes, Harness, Belting & Hose.

ALSO DEALER IN

LACE LEATHER, RIVETS, RUBS, BELT HOOKS, BELT STUDS,

Punches, Belt Sets, and all goods connected with the belting business,

NO. 52 RACE STREET,

au6 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

WILLIAM BREED, MRS. ADA GREGG.

GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU,

FOR CANAL AND BURGUNDY STS., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A long acquaintance with the various kinds of

SEWING MACHINES

has induced us to make a specialty in this line. First class Machines of all kinds at lowest rates. The New Under-Feed Buckeye Hand Machine, only $30. We repair all Machines at low rates. We take old Machines in part payment for new ones.

Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs sold on monthly payments in the country to parties giving references.

MRS. ADA GREGG

respectfully offers her services in purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel, personal adornment or domestic goods for Ladies' and Children's use, including Millinery, Dry Goods, Jewelry, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Patterns, Underwear, Trousseaus, Bridal Trousseaux, etc. Any article of Ladies' and Children's wear manufactured in the latest styles, under her own supervision.

N. B.—All inquiries relative to articles mentioned or unmentioned will be answered free of charge.

Second-hand Machines, in good order, at half price. The best Needles for all Machines.

REFERENCES.—E. A. Tyler, New Orleans; J. L. Power, Jackson, Mississippi.

Send for catalogue and circular.

Jel8 1y GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU.

HENRY PILCHER,

BUILDER OF

CHURCH ORGANS,

636..... ..... Portland Avenue 636

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

Twenty-five years' experience in the business, and some of the finest instruments in the country as specimens of my skill, are sufficient guarantee of the excellence of my work. Would solicit a share of the Southern patronage, and feel confident of my ability to please. The best of references as to ability and honorable dealing. jy16 3m

GLASS STAINERS

AND BENDERS.

BELCHER & POVEY,

13 West Broadway, cor. Reade St., NEW YORK.

Works: Newark, N. J. au13 1y

JAMES S. PATTERSON,

WOOD ENGRAVER,

28..... Beekman Street 28

au13 1y NEW YORK CITY.

CHAMBERS'

STERLING PIANOS.

"SPECIAL SAFE OFFER."

☞ READ! MARK! WHITE! ☜

Before you buy, send for illustrations, circulars and price list. Guarantee unlimited. Pianos sent for approval, and satisfaction assured by our "Special Safe Offer." Address CHAMBERS PIANO FACTORY, 308 Fourth Ave., New York. au13 4m

WARREN RICHARDS,

MANUFACTURER OF

SEAL PRESSES,

SEAL ENGRAVER AND DIE-SINKER,

42 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, O.

Seal Presses of the Lion head pattern manufactured with Wrought Iron Pinions of three sizes, with Engraved Dies of any design. au6 2m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER

AND

STEAM POWER LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTER,

82 Beekman Street, New York.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for catalogue. au6 1y

VANDERBURGH, WELLS & CO., manufacturers of POINTER AND DUPLEX WROUGHT TYPE. Dealers in Presses and Inks. Leads, Brass Rules, Ovals, Circles, Borders, for Printers and Engravers' Boxwood. Depot. Manufacturers of Racks, California and other Improved Cabinets, with flush front, duplex and other cases. No. 110 Fulton and Nos. 15 and 18 Dutch street, New York. N. B.—Large stock of used Type and Presses for sale. Pattern and Brand Letters. Stamps for Soap, Dry Goods and other uses. au6 3m

COSTARS EXTERMINATORS AND INSECT POWDER

For Rats, Mice, Roaches, Ants, Red-bugs, Moths, etc. J. F. HENRY, CURRAN & CO., Jel1 4m5p New York, Sole Agents.

A MAN OF A THOUSAND.

When death was hourly expected from CONSUMPTION, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of INDIAN HEMP which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. HEMP also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper. Jel 13t LEGS AND ARMS.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Pamphlet free. CHARLES M. EVE, manufacturer, (au6 1y) 7th Fourth street..... LOUISVILLE, KY. 152 West Fourth street..... CINCINNATI, O.

MEDICAL.

NEARLY ALL DISEASES ORIGINATE from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Depression of Spirits, or the Blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and, being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

OR MEDICINE

Is harmless,
Is no drastic, violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
Is a bloodless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

se25 1y

KEARNEY'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

is the only pure and unadulterated preparation prepared by a prominent, reliable and scientific physician of thirty years' practice. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its superiority in speedy and permanent cures of Gravel, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and all affections of the Kidneys in both sexes. The greatest Tonic and Diuretic of the age. Be sure and get

KEARNEY'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

Pleasant and agreeable in taste, and efficacious in its curative qualities.

Depot—101 Duane Street, New York.

☞ Price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists everywhere. au14 1y6p

DR. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST ADVICE THAT CAN BE given to persons suffering from

DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS,

CONSTIPATION, COLIC, SICK HEADACHE,

Fever and Ague, Nervous Debility,

or of any disorder of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, is to tone, cleanse and regulate them by the use of

Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills.

They act very mildly, yet thoroughly restore the functional action of the Digestive Organs and the Intestines, and renovate the whole system, imparting a good appetite and healthy assimilation of food. They produce neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility, and may be taken at any time, without change of diet or occupation.

Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye

possesses qualities that no other dye does. Its effect is instantaneous, and is so natural that it cannot be detected by the closest observer. Being harmless and easily applied, it is in general use among the fashionable Hair-Dressers in every large city in the United States. Price, $1 a box Sold everywhere.

Laboratory—Nos. 48 and 50 Cortlandt street, New York. oc2 1y5r

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

A HOUSEHOLD WITHOUT TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT within reach lacks an important safeguard of health and life. A few doses of this standard remedy for Indigestion, Constipation and Biliousness relieve every distressing symptom and prevent dangerous consequences. For sale by the entire drug trade. au13 2t

TO THE SUFFERERS

WITH RHEUMATISM.

In view of the numberless sufferers afflicted with this painful malady, I feel induced to offer to the public my "ANTI-RHEUMATIC MIXTURE," which medicine proves to be the only successful remedy in this line, for it always gives instant relief, and in most cases cures permanently.

During the last fifteen years I have cured thousands of people, in this State and city, of this dreadful disease, with this medicine; and, what astonishes most, the patient recovered by the use of a single bottle of it. This medicine cures nothing but Rheumatism, and should the patient not recover by using the first bottle of it, that patient is not afflicted with Rheumatism at all. This being the first time of making my discovery known to the public after fifteen years of most successful results, I hope the sufferers will take advantage of this rare remedy, and by doing so add their names to the thousands already cured by it.

For sale by W. A. HUTCHELEWITZ, Apothecary and Druggist, corner Magazine and Thalia streets, New Orleans, La. ap30 6m

VALLEY

GEM PIANO.

This Piano is thoroughly and carefully made by experienced manufacturers, and is a good reliable instrument in every particular. Its durability is one of its important points of superiority, and, besides its other fine qualities, the low price will especially commend it to public favor.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue, containing choice music, to

D. H. BALDWIN & CO.,

158 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

jy25 3m

$25 A DAY GUARANTEED using our WELL-AUGER and DIGGER in all territory. Hundreds testimonials from users in Iowa, Arkansas and Dakota. Catalogues free. W. GILES, St. Louis, Mo. au6 6t6w

The Child's Corner.

THE WAY TO DO IT.

BY M. M. D.

I'll tell you how I speak a piece:
First I make my bow;
Then I bring my words out clear
And plain as I know how.

Next I throw my hands up so!
Then I lift my eyes—
That's to let my hearers know
Something doth surprise.

Next I grin and show my teeth,
Nearly every one;
Shake my shoulders, hold my sides—
That's the sign of fun.

Next I start and knit my brow,
Hold my head erect;
Something's wrong, you see, and I
Decidedly object.

Then I wabble at my knees,
Clutch at shadows near,
Tremble well from top to toe—
That's the sign of fear.

Soon I scowl, and with a leap
Seize an airy dagger,
"WRETCH!" I cry. That's tragedy.
Every soul to stagger.

Then I let my voice grow faint,
Gasp and hold my breath;
Tumble down and plunge about—
That's a villain's death.

Quickly then I come to life,
Perfectly restored;
With a bow my speech is done;
Now you'll please applaud.

St. Nicholas

FOR THE ADVOCATE.

Our Little Angel.

Little Mattie Walker is indeed an angel. This was no ordinary child. She was universally loved, and attracted marked attention at all times and in all places. Although only eight years and five months of age, yet she was a wonderful child in intelleet, goodness and noble qualities. Born on the sixth of February, 1866, her life expanded, as it were, from the very commencement into a high and pure region of thought and mental power, until her little spirit winged its flight for heaven on the evening of the twenty-second of July, 1874. Her mind was constantly reaching out after grand ideas, and ambition of an elevated character actuated her entire life, and she longed and lived to do good for Jesus. Really intelligent, she was ever reading books, and storing away fresh and vigorous thoughts for ready use. Children, it was a rare treat to hear her read. Although greeted with loud applause at public exhibitions, although caressed, praised and kissed so much, yet she never became proud and presumptuous, but was always the same meek, pious, happy Mattie, speaking kind words to all, and always willing to make a speech, to read, converse, or to sing of heaven—"Beautiful Mansions," her favorite song. She also often sang "I Want to be an Angel" and "There Is a Land of Pure Delight." A fine reader and a thorough pupil, she attracted much attention at examination—always acted well in charades, tableaux, and her essays were sensible and pointed.

Her religious character was well developed. For some time in 1870 she could not comprehend the meaning of Immortality. "What do we understand by the immortality of the soul?" That was the vexed question to our dear child. But after she had heard many explanations, after she had studied her Bible and prayed much to God for light and knowledge, the darkness fled, and she came weeping to her mother, and told her that "Jesus had pardoned her sins, and that she was happy; that she now fully understood the idea of immortality." This occurred when she was about seven years of age. She was good before, but since that time we never saw any one more devoted in Christian duties. Her Bible was her companion day and night. She found joy and peace in reading its precious promises, and she would often talk about God's goodness and the home for the good. Heaven and Jesus were her themes. In the church and Sabbath school she was happy; she loved God's people and delighted to be with them. In her studies we tried to control the growing mind, but this was impossible. It reached far out beyond this world, and reasoned of death, the grave, immortality and the judgment. Long since she completed the Fifth Reader, and her parents kept her at home to give rest to her energetic, active spirit. With a retentive mind she could soon memorize many beautiful verses; hence at all times she was ready to repeat some cheering words about heaven and Jesus. But, above all, she was so good, so pure, so gentle and loving. Too pure for this dark world of sin and death, we had an idea that she could not live long with us. We believed that Jesus would soon call her to his bosom. With Jesus and heaven in her conversation, in her thoughts, and in view at all times, how could we expect her to remain in the midst of corruption and sorrow! Congestion of brain and bowels was the Lord's means of taking our little one to glory. She loved to sing of the "Beautiful Mansions," and now she fully appreciates and realizes their bliss and peace. The Lord is just, and doeth all things well. This sweet child loved the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and she would watch for its coming, and then sit and read its pages for hours. She said the "Child's Corner" was her part of the ADVOCATE. Little girls and boys, readers of the ADVOCATE, remember Mattie's example. Try to imitate her ways and general conduct. Read your Bibles, pray, be obedient to your parents, love and serve God, think and sing of Jesus and heaven, and you will meet our little angel in that beautiful world where God and angels forever live, and where sickness, sorrow and death can never enter. May the good Lord sustain by his grace the afflicted parents, and may the sorrowing mother know that she can and will meet her little girl in heaven. God grant that all the little children may try with us to meet this beautiful little angel beyond the moon and stars.

HER FATHER.

TROY, ALA., August 3, 1874.

A PLANT OF BRAZIL.—In the forest of Brazil grows a curious plant, about as high as a man, with a twisted stem covered with knots. This is the mandive, and from its roots come two things—bread and poison: the sweet, white flour which forms the bread of the people, and the deadly poison in which the Indian dips his arrow-points. The white flour is farina, and it goes all over the world as a delicacy for sick people and well people; but you never would guess that, when the mandive roots were crushed to prepare it, the juice that flowed out was deadly enough to arm the Indian's arrow against the great beasts of the forests.

This is not all. The natives know how to make from this same juice a liquor that will make them as tipsy as any of their white brothers can get on whisky. The women do the work, of course. Your savage is too much of a fine gentleman to serve himself; so the women gather the mandive roots, and slice and boil them quite soft. When the roots are cool they are ground quite fine; in a mill, do you suppose? Not at all; these useful women chew them, and spit them out in a vessel of water; when they have chewed them all up the whole contents of the vessel are boiled and stirred, and finally poured into jars and buried in the floor of the hut, with the mouths tightly stopped. When the liquor is sufficiently fermented the drinking-feast begins, and the crazy Indians go from house to house, dueling and singing, until all the jars are emptied. Then they go to sleep to get sober, and wait for the women to make some more liquor.—Little Corporal.

A Boy's Ride.

It was a beautiful day in the early spring of 18—. I lived at the West then, in one of those half rural cities for which the West is so famed. I started out for a drive.

Just ahead of me I saw walking on the road a very small boy. He was dressed in plain clothes known as Kentucky jeans. On his head he wore, even thus early in the spring, a plain straw hat; over his shoulder he carried a bundle, tied up in a red silk handkerchief, and slung upon a stick. In his hand he held his great heavy shoes, while he tugged on, manfully and wearily, sore of foot, and sore of heart, I had no doubt.

I drove quickly past, and then stopped and looked back, and waited until the little fellow came up.

"Halloo," I said; "don't you want a ride?"

"To be sure I do," said he.

"Then why didn't you ask me?"

"Because," said he, "I had asked so many times, and had been refused so often, that I got discouraged and I didn't think you would let me," with some emphasis on the "you."

"Well," I said, "get in." He stood looking hopelessly up into the cushioned and carpeted buggy, and down at his bundle and his stick and his heavy soiled shoes.

"I'm afraid I ain't very clean," he said at last.

"O never mind," I said. "Get in; this vehicle was made for use."

"I'd better leave my stick," he said.

"O no," I answered. "You may want it again."

And so he climbed in, and the bundle was stowed away under the seat, and the stick put down between us.

"I never rode in such a nice carriage before, and I don't think I ever saw such horses," he went on, and his eyes sparkled.

"Do you want to drive?"

"May I?"

"Yes, if you know how." And so I gave him the reins, and we were friends at once.

"Who did you ask to let you ride?" I asked.

"O all those men in the great farm wagons."

"And what did they say?"

"If they had a load they said they couldn't, and if they had no load they only cracked their great whips and rattled by the faster, or yelled at me to get out of the road."

"And you didn't ask me. Did you think because I had nice horses and a fine carriage, and wore good clothes and looked like a gentleman, that therefore I wasn't one?" said I laughingly.

"Well—yes—I'm afraid I did; but," he continued, looking me square in the face, "do gentlemen always let boys ride when they want to?"

It was my turn to be a little bit puzzled, and I said: "I don't think they do; but a gentleman is one who always does all he can to help others and to make them happy."

"Well," said he, "I think you are a gentleman, at any rate."

And I said: "Will you tell me who you are, for I think you are a gentleman also?" and yet he hadn't said "thank you," in words, once all this time.—St. Nicholas.

FIRE-CRACKERS.—It is a queer custom, this setting off of fireworks, but it is observed in many countries; among others, in England on the fifth of November, in China on New Year's day, and in South America on all suitable and unsuitable occasions. As you know, the fifth of November is the anniversary of the Gunpowder Plot, in which a sad scamp named Guy Fawkes schemed to blow up the House of Parliament, with all the members, great and small, inside. But the plot was discovered and defeated, and the patriotic people of England still celebrate their escape. On every anniversary of the day they have fireworks and bonfires, and the boys burn effigies of the traitor. I have seen a capital Guy Fawkes made with a broomstick, a ragged old coat, a battered old hat, and a penny paper mask. Boxes of matches, squibs and crackers were secreted about his ugly person, and then he was carried over the town in an old chair, with a chorus of noisy youngsters following after and singing:

Gunpowder Plot shall never be forgot,
As long as old England stands upon a rock!

When he had been paraded through all the streets, and reviled and pelted with stones, he was planted on the top of a bonfire for a throne and burned, amid the splutterings and fumes of the crackers and squibs hidden in his dress.—St. Nicholas.

THE way to keep down envy is to keep up charity.

Farm, Garden and Household.

AN AGRICULTURAL ODE.

BY WILLIAM C. BRYANT.

Far back in ages
The plow with wreaths was crowned,
The hands of kings and sages
Entwined the chaplets round,
Till men of spoil
Disdained the toil
By which the world was nourished,
And blood and pillage were the soil
In which their laurels flourished.
Now the world her fault repairs—
The guilt that stains her story—
And weeps her crimes amid the cares
That form her earliest glory.

The throne shall crumble,
The diadem shall wane,
The tribes of earth shall humble
The pride of those who reign;
And war shall lay
His pomp away;
The game that heroes cherish,
The glory earned in deadly fray,
Shall fade, decay and perish.
Honor waits o'er all the earth,
Through endless generations,
The art that calls the harvest forth,
And feeds the expectant nations.

Greatest Crop of the World.

A question widely discussed involves the relative value of the wheat, cotton, tea and hay crops of the world. Which of these crops employs the greatest amount of the world's capital? It is said that hay leads the rest, and the items that enter into account, as stated, are somewhat startling, and will make a Granger's hair stand on end. Cotton and tea are local crops, while hay is produced every where the world over, and thus the hay crop greatly outweighs either of the other two. The aggregate reported value of all farm products of 1870 was $2,417,538,658; but, as this includes addition to stocks, "betterments," etc., it is probably too high. Now the hay crop for that year—that is, the grass dried and cured for use or sold—is reported at over 27,000,000 tons. This, at half the selling price in the large cities, would amount to $405,000,000, and is far greater than the aggregate home value of the cotton crop or any other crop. The other portion is used on the ground, and it requires considerable calculation to get at the value so used; even in the roughest way.

In the first place, live stock, including horned cattle, horses, sheep, swine, etc., to the value of $1,635,000,000, were fed from it that year. Averaging the lives of these at five years, we have one-fifth of that sum as representing the grass fed to them in 1870, namely, $305,800,000; next we find the value of the animals slaughtered for food in that year to be $349,000,000, and, as this is an annual product, the whole of it for the present will be credited to the grass crop of 1870 as 511,000,000 pounds, which, at the average of twenty-five cents, amounts to $128,000,000, and this goes to the credit of grass; next we have 235,000,000 gallons of milk, which, averaged at the low estimate of ten cents per gallon, adds $25,000,000 more to the credit of the grass crop; then we have 100,000,000 pounds of wool at twenty-five cents a pound, adding $25,000,000 more; and finally 53,000,000 pounds of cheese at ten cents, adding over $5,000,000 to the total of these credits to the grass crop of 1870, which aggregates $887,000,000. Vermont Chronicle.

What Lime Does.

We agree with the American Farmer in the opinion that the chief value of lime as a fertilizer consists in its chemical action upon compounds containing plant-food. It says:

"We find from analysis that lime, in some of its combinations, forms a constituent part in nearly all plants, but varying much in quantity in different plants. By direct absorption it is necessary to the perfect development of vegetation. Its chief office, however, is in its assimilating the properties already in the soil to the plant. Vegetation lives only on digested or decomposed food in the form of liquids and gases. The soil may contain all the constituent elements of the crop intended to be raised, and yet it may not be in a condition to be appropriated. Most soils do contain carbonates, sulphates, and phosphates of potassium, sodium, and magnesium in combination with silica, in the form of earthly rock, feldspar, etc., but in such a condition as to absorb only as they are slowly decomposed by exposure to the gases of the atmosphere and the rays of the sun. Many of the manufactured fertilizers make a fair showing by analysis, and contain the elements which should sustain the plant, and yet they may be in such combination as to prove inert, on account of their insolubility. This is one of the beneficial properties of lime. It breaks up these combinations, and forms new compounds which are more soluble, and are thereby made available nourishment. This result of liming is more perceptible on land containing humus or vegetable mold, which is converted into plant-food."

CANE CULTURE.—A correspondent of Our Home Journal, New Orleans, who has been visiting Mr. Larimore, a prosperous planter near Baton Rouge, Louisiana, says that gentleman has devised a method by which the bagasse can be made to yield its fertilizing qualities the second year after it is ground, thus: The bagasse falls from the rollers into a cutting-box, where it is chopped into lengths of about three inches, falls from the box into a cart, and is dumped in heaps at suitable distances, to be easily distributed over the field; later this is plowed under, and the land is allowed to rest one year. The ground is found greatly improved for the next crop.

Mr. Larimore has an improved plan of plowing down instead of cutting seed cane. It is well known that the best portion of the seed is near the root, where the joints are shortest. The cane is barred off as closely as possible, then a coulter is run under it, saving root and stalk.

By transplanting, Mr. Larimore has obtained an excellent stand from stubble on land which would not have paid for cultivating in the usual way.

The old stubble is first barred off closely, and then thrown out with a turn-plow. The ridge formed by barring off is opened, the old stubble pulled to pieces, dropped in the open ridge and covered. The result is a crop of plant rather than stubble. The overseer says the labor of transplanting in this way will amount to no more than digging and cultivating stubble in the usual way.

PIGS, unless greatly infested with trichinae, show no symptoms of the parasites during life. When badly infested they sometimes suffer from stiffness of the limbs and partial paralysis, but a pig estimated to have sixty millions of trichinae in its muscles has shown no symptoms during life. When the flesh has long been infested the cysts or envelopes of the parasites may be seen upon close examination by the unaided eye as small white specks. Infested meat may be eaten with perfect safety if it has been exposed thoroughly to a heat of 212°, the temperature of boiling water. Only pork that is thoroughly cooked can be eaten with safety. The yellow color of the fat pork is caused by a disordered condition of the animal's liver consequent on overfeeding during fattening. It is not considered unwholesome, and is a parallel case to that in which the flesh of sheep becomes yellow when the disease known as "rot," a liver or bilious disorder, is just beginning. In this condition they fatten very rapidly.

A CHEAP and quickly-prepared luncheon may be prepared in this way: Toast a soda cracker a delicate brown; pour enough boiling water on it to soak thoroughly, but not to lose its shape; lay it on a warm plate, butter it nicely, and set it just inside the oven; put your spider over the fire, with boiling water in it, into which drop an egg; cook till the white is done, then lift and place carefully on your cracker; serve hot, with a cup of tea or coffee. Do not make the mistake which one of our friends did in this recipe, and prepare only one cracker and one egg for a party of four.

AN intelligent and successful housekeeper says that in canning fruit Bartlett pears require twenty minutes boiling and six ounces of sugar; plums, ten minutes boiling and eight ounces of sugar; whortleberries, five minutes boiling and four ounces of sugar; strawberries, eight minutes boiling and eight ounces of sugar; rhubarb, sliced, fifteen minutes boiling and ten ounces of sugar; Seckel pears, whole, twenty minutes boiling and four ounces of sugar. All fruit that is pared should be dropped at once into cold water, to prevent discoloration.

NEVER decant coffee. When the coffee is emptied from one vessel to another the kitchen ceiling generally receives that essence-laden vapor which should have found its way into the cups on the breakfast-table. And one word about the cups: When the coffee enters them it should find the milk or the cream already there. By observing these rules ordinary coffee, made in almost any way, is often very palatable indeed.

Scientific.

MESSRS. MASTERS AND GILBERT have been investigating the action of manures in favoring the growth of certain species of plants; and for this object twelve different series of meadow plants were grown separately, in wooden boxes, both without manure and with five different manures, such as manures furnishing phosphates, potash, etc., ammonium salts, sodium nitrate, ashes and ammonia, and ashes with sodium nitrate. The soil employed was thought to have been too rich, and the results of the observations of the two seasons were somewhat contradictory. Of the three clovers, Trifolium pratense and repens were in the first seasons much benefited by the manure, while Lotus corniculatus seemed actually injured. In the second season the ash alone had little effect on the clovers; but in both seasons nitrogenous manures, with others, produced the largest crops. With six kinds of grasses, the ash manure alone had little effect, and in almost every case the best growth was from a mixture of ashes with nitrogen. Observations on the development of roots induced the opinion that those plants which dispossess others under liberal manuring are those whose habit of growth gives them the widest hold on the soil.

WHAT TO DO IN CASE OF ACCIDENT.—Prof. Wilder, of Cornell University, says Moore's Rural New Yorker, gives the following short rules for action in cases of accident, which will be found useful to remember:

For dust in the eyes, avoid rubbing; dash water into them; remove cinders, etc., with the round point of a lead pencil.

Remove water from the ear by tepid water; never put a hard instrument into the ear.

If any artery is cut, compress above the wound; if a vein is cut, compress below.

If choked, get on all fours and cough.

For slight burns, dip the part in cold water; if the skin is destroyed, cover with varnish.

Smother a fire with carpets, etc.; water will often spread burning oil, and increase the danger. Before passing through smoke take a long breath, and then stoop low; but if carbonic acid gas is suspected, walk erect.

Suck poisoned wounds, unless your mouth is sore; enlarge the wound, or, better, cut out the part without delay; hold the wounded part as long as can be borne to a hot coal or end of a cigar.

In case of poisoning, excite vomiting by tickling the throat or by warm water and mustard.

For acid poisons, give alkalies; for alkaline poisons, give acids—white of an egg is good in most cases; in a case of opium poisoning, give strong coffee and keep moving.

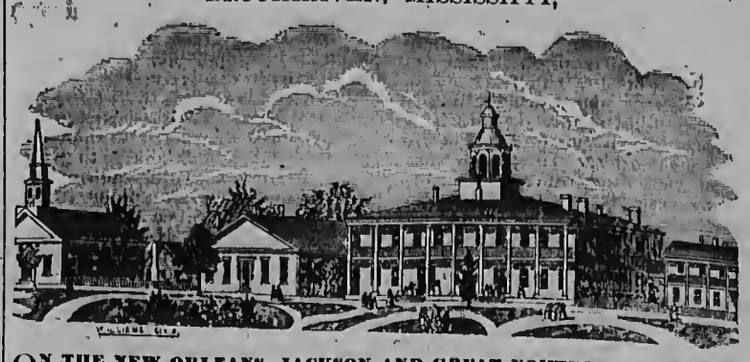
If in water, float on the back, with the nose and mouth projecting.

For apoplexy, raise the head and body; for fainting, lay the person flat.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI,



ON THE NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD, fifty-seven miles south of Jackson, Mississippi, and one hundred and twenty-eight miles north of New Orleans, will

REOPEN ON THE THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.

The charges are low, and yet the advantages are unsurpassed. All extravagance in dress positively prohibited. If you send your daughter here we guarantee that you will be pleased; otherwise you may withdraw her at any time, and the money will be returned.

School books, medicines and medical attention furnished free of charge. Were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the location we could not afford the last two items.

Send for a catalogue.

jy16 3m H. F. JOHNSON, President.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
ABINGDON, VA.

R. W. JONES, M. A., University of Virginia, President, with a full and skillful Faculty for instruction in all branches taught in the best female colleges. The next session begins SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

Charge for board and tuition, for entire session of forty weeks, half in advance, $220. Other charges moderate.

The surrounding mountain scenery is grand, the buildings commodious and elegant, the grounds incomparably beautiful.

The patronage for last session represented twelve Southern and Western States and England.

Domestic department under the supervision of the President and wife. Healthfulness unsurpassed.

Opinions of Distinguished Patrons and Friends.

Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.

"I confided to the care of the President, during the present session, two of my daughters, with very sanguine hopes of their improvement in health and culture. My expectations have been more than realized. From experience, then, as well as prepossession, I cordially and confidently recommend Martha Washington College to parents who are seeking the best advantages for their daughters."

Prof. L. C. Garland, LL. D., University of Mississippi.

"Martha Washington College possesses remarkable advantages as a seat of learning. * * * The corps of instruction is composed of ladies and gentlemen of ability, fidelity and professional skill."

Bishop H. N. McTyeire, D. D.

"If I were to search the land around I know not another Abingdon—beautiful for situation, healthful, accessible. Its social atmosphere is of the right sort for a female school—sumptuous, not fast, conservative, well toned. The perfume of the 'Old Virginia' lingers about it still. Your immediate site, your grounds, please me more than any I have seen. Your shade-trees and your walks and your wide piazzas linger in my mind."

Faculty of the University of Virginia.

"We cordially recommend Major R. W. Jones, a Master of Arts of this institution, as a gentleman peculiarly well fitted by capacity, culture and experience for the conduct of an advanced seminary for young ladies."

For catalogue, etc., apply to the President.

jy23 2m

GREENSBORO
FEMALE COLLEGE,
ALABAMA.

REV. THOMAS WARD WHITE, President, assisted by an experienced and thoroughly qualified Faculty, capable of imparting instruction in all the departments of a first-class institution.

Course of Instruction.

THE SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

is divided into four classes—Elementary, Primary, Intermediate and Academic—in which all the branches of a thorough English education are taught.

COLLEGIATE DEPARTMENT.

JUNIOR CLASS.

English Composition, Algebra, Ancient Geography and History, Latin (Cæsar and Virgil,) French, Greek and German.

MIDDLE CLASS.

Philosophy, Chemistry, Geometry, Rhetoric, Botany, Astronomy, Watts on the Mind, Latin (Sallust and Cicero,) French, Greek and German.

SENIOR CLASS.

English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Evidences of Christianity, Butler's Analogy, Trigonometry, Davies' University Arithmetic, Latin (Horace and Tacitus,) French, Greek and German.

☞ Daily attention is given to Penmanship, and Compositions are required weekly from every member of the institution. am13 4t

METHODIST MALE AND FEMALE
HIGH SCHOOL,

TROY, ALABAMA.

PROF. R. J. WALKER, President.
MISS EUGENIA RICHARDSON, Assistant in Literary Department.
MRS. R. J. WALKER, Teacher of Music.
First session will open SEPTEMBER 1, 1874. Experienced and competent teachers. Discipline rigid; instruction thorough. Healthy town; refined and intelligent people. Board, $12 to $15 per month. Tuition, $3, $4 and $5 per month. Music on Piano, $5; Guitar, $4.
Refer to Colonel E. R. Wilkerson, Hon. W. H. Parks and Rev. W. H. Biggs, all of Troy, Ala., and Rev. S. P. Richardson, Greenville, Ala. no13 2t

ALABAMA CONFERENCE
FEMALE COLLEGE,

TUSKEGEE, ALA.

The collegiate year embraces forty weeks, divided into equal terms of twenty weeks each. First term extends from September 15, 1874, to February 25, 1875; second term from February 25 to June 24, 1875.

Experienced and competent teachers will be in charge of all the departments.

Board and tuition, per annual session, $230. Optional branches—charges moderate.

Daughters of ministers who rely on the ministry for support educated in regular course of studies free of charge.

For further information apply to the President,
REV. HENRY D. MOORE,
Tuskegee, Alabama.
T. W. DYER, Sec. of Faculty. jy23 5t

COLLEGE FOR LADIES,
Ferry Hall, Lake Forest, Ill.

FALL SESSION will commence September 16, 1874. Thoroughly equipped for preparatory and higher education of ladies. Music, Drawing, Painting, Languages, and a thorough English course. For terms apply to jy30 4t EDWARD P. WESTON.

Soule's

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

The Commercial Athenæum of the South, corner Camp and Common streets (Story Building.) Mercantile and Banking offices are connected with this institution, daily lectures given, and all branches of a business education practically, scientifically and philosophically taught. An English Department for boys, twelve to eighteen years of age, is a special feature of this institution. French and Spanish are also taught.

GEO. SOULE, Principal.

N. B.—Soule's Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator, 880 octavo pages, the great arithmetical work of the age, is for sale at the College office. jn22 1y

THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,

GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session of this institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN OCTOBER, with a full corps of instructors. The entire expense per annum, for board, tuition, etc., is from $160 to $212. For particulars or catalogue apply to

DR. A. S. ANDREWS or
PROF. O. F. CASEY.
jy23 2m Greensboro, Alabama.

HIWASSEE COLLEGE.—SAID TO BE the best and cheapest school for boys in the Union. Patronage the past year, 137, from ten States. Under care of the Holston Conference, M. E. Church South. Founded in 1849. Seven miles from Sweetwater, on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad. Send stamp for twenty-four page catalogue. Address the President,
REV. J. B. BUNNELL, A. M.,
jn4 1y Hiwassee College, East Tenn.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,
ASHLAND, VA.,

offers, on very low terms, the advantages of thorough instruction, a high grade of scholarship, under the best religious influences, in a refined community, and as a location remarkable for healthfulness, just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad.

One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars

will pay all necessary expenses per term. Session opens on the last Thursday in SEPTEMBER. For catalogue address
REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, A. M., LL. D., President, or au6 2m REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Secretary.

FEMALE COLLEGE,
GREENSBORO, ALABAMA,

until recently under the superintendence of Prof. P. H. Cahell, A. M., will be reopened on the first Monday of OCTOBER (5th,) with a full corps of experienced and thoroughly qualified teachers, capable of imparting instruction in ALL the departments of a first-class institution. Terms as low as can be afforded in consideration of the advantages offered.

REV. THOS. WARD WHITE,
au6 1m President.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,

BATON ROUGE, LA.

The next session of this school will begin on Monday, OCTOBER 2, 1874. It is important to both parties that applications be made as early as possible, and the attendance of the pupil prompt. A few days' delay at the beginning interferes with the labor of the school and injures the pupil. For circulars, giving necessary information, apply to
W. H. N. MAGRUDER,
au6 3m Baton Rouge, La.

KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY.

ASHLAND, the home of HENRY CLAY, and Old Transylvania University, the sites of the several Colleges. Six Colleges in operation, with their separate faculties. Thirty professors and instructors, with an average of more than 400 students each session since the war. Fees very low. Good boarding from $2 to $3 per week. Sessions begin SECOND MONDAY in September. For catalogues or other information address, inclosing stamp,
J. K. ROWMAN,
Regent Kentucky University,
jy30 4t Lexington, Ky.

EMINENCE COLLEGE.

For Males and Females.

TEN THOUSAND CATALOGUES of this popular school now ready for gratuitous distribution. Apply to
W. S. GILTNER, President,
jy30 8t Eminence, Ky.

FOREST ACADEMY,

A Collegiate Military Institute,

LOCATED twelve miles from Louisville, L., C. and L. Railroad offers peculiar advantages in Civil and Mining Engineering. Will resume its exercises, by divine favor, SEPTEMBER 7. For catalogues address
REV. R. B. McNOWN, jy30 4t Anchorage P. O., Ky.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
NO. 131 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS.

This is the only Commercial College in this city where students from the country can board in the family of the principal. Terms reduced twenty per cent. Send for circular. Address
J. W. BLACKMAN,
Je18 1y New Orleans, La.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

THE ENRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.

Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,
NO. 40 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER

In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. no13 1y

STOVES.....STOVES.....STOVES.

The Cheapest and the "Best."

The "BEST" and the "COTTAGE" COOKING STOVES, to which I call particular attention, are unsurpassed by any in this market for economy, durability and most perfect BAKING. They carry a uniform heat in the oven, and can be adapted to burning COAL, COKE or WOOD, without any additional cost. Every one sold under a full guarantee to do as they are represented or the money will be refunded.

Also a variety of other COOKING STOVES of every grade and price, from $15 upward.

HEATING STOVES.

A very large and complete assortment, suitable for Offices, Parlors, Churches, School-Rooms, etc., all of which are offered at very low prices to suit the times. Also dealer in

TINWARE OF EVERY KIND

and description, to suit the country and city trade, which is offered at UNPRECEDENTEDLY LOW PRICES FOR CASH. Also Sole Agent for the manufacture and sale of the Steam Washer, or Woman's Friend.

Will cleanse your clothes WITHOUT RUBBING. Every one sold is FULLY WARRANTED. It saves labor, wear and tear, and the annoyance of wash-day. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Three hundred thousand have been sold already through the States since 1874.

☞ State and County Rights for sale.

Call and see it at NO. 52 GRAVIER STREET, near Tchoupitoulas.

ja29 1y G. W. WOODWYN.

According to the Lancet, cremation makes progress in Germany, eighty-two cities now possessing cremation societies. The society at Berlin has received intelligence that the new furnace, invented for the combustion of bodies by Profs. Reclam and Siemens, was tested on the third of June, and completely satisfied its constructors. Two hundred weight of animal carcass were consumed in about an hour and a half—reduced to white ashes, at no more than three shillings' outlay. During the process no sound nor smell was appreciable. Solving, as it does, the question of cremation, Messrs. Reclam and Siemens' contrivance has just met with a rival in the device of Dr. Steinbels, president of the Central Institute for Trade and Industry, at Wurtemberg. He proposes that the corpse should be placed in a trough made of cement, and be filled up with liquid cement so as completely to cover the dead body. The cement soon hardens and absorbs all the moisture from the body—converts it, in fact, into a preservable mummy, at small expense and trouble. As soon as the cement hardens the square coffins may be piled one upon the other like blocks of stone, and the corpse is literally interred in instead of under its gravestone.

What is it in nature that impresses us most? Is it not the absence of self-consciousness? The violet and the oak are unconscious that there is in them either beauty or strength. The stars glow without attempt at parade or heraldry of their wonders. To say that a person is natural is to say that he is forgetful of himself. It is the highest glory of art to conceal art. And what applies to art applies also to character. The highest form of character displays itself the least. Children are not aware of their brightness. Christian character loses much of its excellence if it becomes conscious of itself.—Dr. Bridgman.

Misapplication of a Word.—It is said that Dr. Chalmers once entertained a distinguished guest from Switzerland, whom he asked if he would be helped to kippered salmon. The foreign divine asked the meaning of the uncouth word "kippered," and was told that it meant "preserved." Soon after the poor man made use of this newly-acquired expression in a public prayer, when he offered a petition that the distinguished divine might long be "kippered to the Free Church of Scotland."

"I found it very inconvenient and a great loss of time," said Chateaubriand, "to dine before seven o'clock. My wife wanted to dine at five o'clock, and insisted upon that hour. After many arguments, and many heated discussions, we finally compromised upon six o'clock—an hour which was very inconvenient to us both. This is what they call domestic concession."

How comes it to pass that we appear such cowards in reasoning, and are so afraid to stand the test of ridicule?

BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC.

THE AMERICAN

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION

OFFERS

Special Terms to Sunday Schools

IN THE SELECTION OF NEW AND

REPLENISHING OF OLD LIBRARIES

Catalogues furnished on application to any of the

SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPOSITORIES.

No. 1122 Chestnut street, Philadelphia—ALEX. KIRKPATRICK.
No. 10 Bible House, New York—G. S. SCOFIELD.
No. 40 Winter street, Boston—E. SHUTE.
No. 203 West Madison St., Chicago—W. R. PORT.
No. 307 N. Sixth St., St. Louis—S. PAXSON. mh26 6m

R. ESTERBROOK & CO.'S

STEEL PENS.

FOR SALE BY

ALL BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Esterbrook Steel Pen Manufactur'g Co.,

49 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK.

Works—Camden, New Jersey. oc2 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

JAMES LEFFEL'S

IMPROVED DOUBLE

TURBINE WATER-WHEEL.

POOLE & HUNT, Baltimore,

Manufacturers for the South and Southwest.

Nearly Seven Thousand Now in Use, working under heads varying from 2 to 240 feet! Twenty four sizes, from 6¾ to 96 inches. The most powerful Wheel in the market, and most economical in use of Water. Large Illustrated Pamphlet sent post free.

Manufacturers also of Portable and Stationary Steam Engines and Boilers, Babcock & Wilcox's Patent Tubulous Boiler, Ebaugh's Crusher for Minerals, Saw and Grist Mills, Flouring Mill Machinery, Machinery for White Lead Works and Oil Mills, Shafting Pulleys and Hangers.

☞ Send for Circulars. fe26 6m

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT speedily cured by Dr. Beck's only known and sure Remedy.

NO CHARGE

or treatment until cured. Call on or address

DR. J. C. BECK,

112 John Street, CINCINNATI, OHIO

jy23 1y

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT.—At home, Male or Female. $30 a week warranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with six-cent return stamp, C. ROSS, Williamsburg, New York. jy2 2m

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

VOICE OF GOD.—A new and popular book for the people, beautifully illustrated and bound. Replete with information and choice reading. Recommended by pastors of all denominations. Agents can sell this book where no others can be sold. Also a

New and Elegantly Illustrated

LARGE PRINT FAMILY BIBLE

WITH BIBLE DICTIONARY.

A Complete Cyclopedia of Bible History.

Agents, send for Terms and Circulars to

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,

1102 and 1104 Sansom street,

ce18 13t PHILADELPHIA

WILD LIFE IN THE FAR WEST!

Agents Wanted everywhere for this beautifully illustrated book of the Author's Thirty Years' Life and Adventures among the Indians, in the Mexican Wars, hunting wild animals, etc. Enthrilling now, and the best book ever published on the Far West. Thrillingly interesting, and sells twice faster than anything ever before known. Send for illustrated circular and liberal terms.

F. A. HUTCHINSON & CO.,

oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED:—ACT AT ONCE.—The people everywhere are eager to buy the only authentic and complete history of

LIVINGSTONE.

His wonderful discoveries and thrilling adventures during 30 Years in the wilds of Africa, resurrection by the daring STANLEY, and heroic death. Over 600 pages, beautifully illustrated; only $2.50. Going like wildfire! Write for extra terms; or, if you wish to begin at once, send $1 for outfit. VALLEY PUBLISHING CO.,

oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the Great 82 Books—PHYSICAL LIFE OF WOMAN, PHYSICAL LIFE OF MAN. By Dr. G. H. Napheys. 185,000 copies sold. The demand still growing. Send for sample copies. Outfits Free. Express charges prepaid on good orders. ☞ Also for GROUNDSWELL, or History of the Farmers' Movement. By Hon. J. Perham, Agricultural Editor of the Western Rural. Send for terms to N. H. THOMPSON & CO., 303 St. Charles street, St. Louis, Mo. je23 3m

AGENTS WANTED for the quickest and best selling new Book out.

Ten Years in Washington

By Mary Clemmer Ames. "A work for the times and the people; a pay thing book for Agents." It portrays the Capital as it wide-awakes "common sense" its wonders, marvels, mysteries, etc. 800 to one week was made by a single Agent, and all say "it pays to sell it." Steady work, or for spare hours, for men or ladies on this first-class book. It outsells all others. One good working Agent wanted in every town. Book agents, clergymen, ladies and others offered large terms. Send for information to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn., or to QUEEN CITY PUBLISHING CO., Cincinnati, Ohio. se11 1y

$2,500 A YEAR made with our grand

COMBINATION PROSPECTUS.

Represents 50 different books. Agents say this is

THE BEST THING EVER TRIED.

The books sell themselves in every family, and good men can make a business for life in one county. Agents Wanted on these and our magnificent Editions of Family Bibles. Full particulars free on application. Address JOHN E. POTTER & CO., Publishers, Philadelphia. no13 13t

AGENTS WANTED for new book

"Tell It All"

A Lady's Experience in Mormondom. By Mrs T. B. H. Stenhouse, of Salt Lake City. With an Introduction by Harriet Beecher Stowe. The genuine Autobiography by a converted Lady whose life has been a sad Bi-Lyda etc. Behind the scenes of her life—all the mysteries exposed. Best chance for Agents. Immense sales. Outfit free. Terms, etc.—Mark Now. If you want to make money fast, address at once. Don't lose time. This book will sell faster than any book ever published in this country. Agents are making from $10 to $20 per day. Extra terms to Canvassers. Address, for circulars, etc., JONES BROS. & CO., 723 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa. oc2 1y

CANVASSERS send No. of your Lodge, and name this paper. We will convince you agents with our superb Home Pictures for Masons (Odd-Fellows, Knights Pythias Grangers, Red-men, Mechanics, etc., are making double they could any other way; work pleasanter. J. HALE POWERS & CO., Fraternity & Fine Art Pubs., Cincinnati, O. ja29 1y

BOOK AGENTS, REJOICE!—HARD Times no More! MARK TWAIN'S New Book, THE GILDED AGE, now ready. Secure territory before it is too late. Canvassing outfit, $1.50. For terms address CONTINENTAL PUBLISHING CO., de1 1y New Orleans or St. Louis.

IRON WORKS—BELLS.

RAILINGS.....RAILINGS.

WROUGHT IRON AND WIRE RAILINGS

FOR

Public Grounds, Cemeteries, Cottages, ETC., ETC.

Iron Bedsteads, with Wire Sackings, for Hospitals, etc. Verandas and every variety of Wrought Iron and Wire work. Every information by addressing the manufacturers.

M. WALKER & SONS,

se18 1y 805 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WIRE RAILING

AND

ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.,

Manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. oc2 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.

B. J. WEST, Agent,

mh5 1y 115 and 117 Magazine st., New Orleans.

HOTELS.

TERMS, $3 A DAY.

Bingham House, Philadelphia,

Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.

CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping-place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed of being in all respects a first-class hotel. se11 1y

CRAWFORD HOUSE,

COR. SIXTH AND WALNUT STREETS,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

I pride myself in providing for my guests the best living, cleanest house and more civility for less money than any other house in the city.

☞ Come and see me.

je23 1f FRANK J. OAKES, Proprietor.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,

17.....CHARTRES STREET.....17

A. BROUSSEAU & CO., Importers and Dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings; Floor Oil Cloths; Table and Enamelled Oil Cloths; Window Shades; Table and Piano Covers; Crumb Cloths, in squares & pieces Curtain and Furniture Materials; Brocatelles, Colenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains; Hair cloth Tacking; Springs; Burlaps; Stair Covers, etc. de1 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO

Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers,

of every kind. Send stamp for Illustrated Price List to GREAT WESTERN GUN WORKS, Pittsburg, Pa. jy9 13t

BUSINESS CARDS.

RICHARD FROTSCHER,

SEED MERCHANT,

12.....Dumaine St.....12

Near the French Market, New Orleans.

Dealer in BUIST'S GARDEN SEEDS, which are the most reliable seeds sold in the Southern market. Almanacs and catalogues furnished on application. Prices reasonable. jy16 3m

D. H. WALLACE,

COTTON FACTOR AND GENERAL PURCHASING AGENT,

38.....Perdido St.....38

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Will give special attention to the sale of Cotton and other Produce, and will fill all orders for goods of every description at lowest cash prices. jy2 1y

J. B. WILKINSON, JR.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT FOR THE SALE OF

Hides, Moss, Wool and Country Produce Generally,

and for the purchase of Family, Plantation and Store Supplies, 29 PETERS AND 4 CLINTON STREET, near the Customhouse, New Orleans.

Liberal cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, Rice and other consignments. Connections with the principal Northern markets. Sole agent for the celebrated Armstrong Machine-cleaned Moss. je3 10m

J. A. KERNAN & T. WHITE,

PRACTICAL GILDERS,

106 Customhouse St., near Royal, New Orleans.

Regilding done in the best style. Oil Paintings restored, relined, cleansed and varnished. Looking-glass and Picture Frames made to order. Having a business experience of nearly forty years in this city, they hope to give satisfaction to their customers not only in the superiority of their work, but likewise in their moderate charges. Country orders promptly attended fe19 9m

LOUISIANA STEAM SASH, BLIND —AND— DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

New Orleans. je11 1y

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

B. D. WOOD & BROS.,

106 Common St., opposite City Hotel,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat-load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. my7 1y

E. A. TYLER,

115.....Canal Street.....115

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

FINE WATCHES, DIAMONDS, JEWELRY, Plated-ware, Table Cutlery, Fancy Goods, etc. Pure Sterling Silverware, suitable for presents. Clocks and Bronzes in great variety. Jewelry manufactured and repaired. Clocks and Watches repaired. fe23 1y

TO THE PUBLIC.—Returning thanks for past favors, the undersigned desires to inform his friends and the public that he has removed to

152 and 151 Camp St., cor. Cutlope, where he continues to Buy, Sell, Store, Remove, Pack and Repair FURNITURE of every description. Pictures and Looking-glasses framed.

JOHN BOHS,

fe26 1y Nos. 152 and 151 Camp street.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

English Carpetings, Rugs, Etc., Etc.

Also Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc. oc23 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.

AIKEN & WATT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

60 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural implements and Plantation supplies. no6 1y

DELICIOUS SODA WATER AND FRESH FRUIT SIRUPS,

At Eckteberg's.

Corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue, New Orleans, je11 3m

JAMES M. DOWLING,

SUCCESSOR TO J. M. JOHNSTON,

WHOLESALE GROCER, COMMISSION MERCHANT,

And Dealer in Western Produce,

NO. 25 DECATUR ST. (LATE OLD LEVEE,)

je4 1y Cor. Customhouse St., New Orleans.

T. W. ROTHICK, UNDERTAKER,

No. 271 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood COFFINS always on hand. Black, Satin, Brown and White Merino Ladies' and Children's Shrouding, Embalming and Disinterring. Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses, Carriages and Cabs for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. de4 1y

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS,

TRADE MARKS, COPYRIGHTS, ETC.,

Procured by

H. N. JENKINS,

mh28 10m No. 27 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

THE DOMESTIC

LOCK-STITCH SEWING MACHINE

WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME.

WILCOX & GIBBS' celebrated Twisted Loop-Stitch Sewing Machine, always ready and in order. Needles for all kinds of Sewing Machines.

M. S. HEDRICK,

my21 1y 103 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. D. COULON,

PORTRAIT PAINTER,

37.....Camp Street.....37

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Old Paintings restored. fe19 1f

E. HEATH. M. LARA.

HEATH & LARA,

Importers and Dealers in

UPHOLSTERERS' GOODS, WALL PAPER WINDOW SHADES AND CORNICES,

Mirrors, Frames, Molding and Wire Screens,

No. 60 Camp Street,

no30 1y New Orleans.

T. WHINBEY CARTER,

ARCHITECT,

47.....POLYMNIA STREET.....47

ja15 1y New Orleans.

GAS FIXTURES.

GAS COOKING STOVES

AND PLUMBING MATERIALS

At New York Prices,

BY P. H. QUINLAN, 280 CAMP STREET.

Stores, Offices and Dwellings fitted up for Gas, Steam and Water in the most approved style. Country orders solicited. au26 10m

F. J. KUHNHOLZ,

BOOK-BINDER,

112.....GRAVIER ST.....112

Near Camp, New Orleans.

Blank-Books ruled and bound to order. All other books, such as Magazines, Music, Law-Books, etc., bound with care and neatness, and at moderate prices. ja22 1y

HUGH FLYNN,

167 POYDRAS ST., NEW ORLEANS.

All who want to purchase CHEAP FURNITURE can call at 167 Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet streets.

On account of retiring from the Furniture business, I am now selling off my large stock of New Furniture at greatly reduced rates. I am selling at rates below those of any house in the city.

Walnut Victoria Bed-room Sets, marble top.$125 00
Parlor Sets, eleven pieces..... 110 00
Double Bedsteads, with Testers and Rollers.. 12 00

Kitchen and Dining-room Furniture at equally low rates. Spring, Hair and Moss Mattresses of the best quality and at greatly reduced prices. de11 1y

T. A. BECK, COOPER,

NOS. 23 AND 21 FRONT STREET,

Between Customhouse and Bienville streets (Sugar Landing,) New Orleans,

has constantly on hand Sugar Hogsheads, Molasses Barrels, Half Barrels, Kegs, Hoop Poles, etc. Orders promptly attended to. Particular attention paid to trimming. ce4 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

TURPIN'S CELEBRATED

EXTRACT OF MEAD.

THE ONLY GENUINE RECIPE FOR

MAKING MEAD SIRUP AND MEAD SODA.

DIRECTIONS HOW TO USE ON EACH BOTTLE.

THIS BRISK AND MOST LUSCIOUS BEVERAGE is becoming daily more popular throughout the principal cities of the United States. As a cooling, soothing and thirst-quenching beverage it has no superior.

Families can make their own Sirup by following the directions on each bottle of my Extract. It is superior to Lemonade in warm climates. A little water added to this Sirup quenches thirst and imparts a cooling feeling throughout the body. Those who have used it have pronounced it the NECTAR of tropical countries. Try it once and you will never be without it.

The undersigned, being the compounder and sole proprietor, warns the public against all counterfeits. Price, per dozen bottles, $12. One bottle is sufficient to flavor thirteen gallons of Mead Soda or three gallons of Mead Sirup. Address au13 1m Nos. 112 and 111 Poydras Street, New Orleans.

ERNEST TURPIN,

GEORGE PURVES'

PERSEVERANCE

Sash, Blind and Door

STEAM FACTORY,

AND

LUMBER YARD,

Cor. of St. Charles and Clio Sts., New Orleans.

GLAZED SASH.

Send for Price List.

de11 1y

1874. FIFTH 1874.

CINCINNATI INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION!!

ARTS, INVENTIONS, MANUFACTURES, PRODUCTS.

OPEN FROM SEPTEMBER 2 TO OCTOBER 3, 1874.

THE LARGEST FAIR EVER HELD IN THE UNITED STATES.

Eight Acres Under Roof in the Heart of the City.
Three Acres of Machinery in Motion.

☞ Ample Hotel Accommodations. Reduced Railroad Rates of Fare.

jy23 6t

BUSINESS CARDS.

J. A. LUM. FRANK H. HOOKER.

J. A. LUM & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

CARRIAGES, HARNESS, ETC.,

162 Gravier and 13 Union Street.

☞ A SPECIALTY MADE OF CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES. mh5 1y

THOMAS HASAM,

LUMBER.

CABINS MADE TO ORDER.

Every description of LUMBER always on hand. Sash, Blinds, etc.

Mills and Yard—Corner CEDAR and JULIA streets (New Basin,) New Orleans. ja15 1y

mh5 1y

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

RESIDENCE AND OFFICE,

Corner Magazine and Second Streets,

New Orleans.

Office Hours—Eight to nine A. M. and three to four P. M. je29 1f

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152.....Julia Street.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed.

Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. de1 1y

DR. J. J. LYONS,

NO. 210 CARONDELET STREET

Between Julia and St. Joseph,

ja2 1y New Orleans, La.

O. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER.
E. T. MERRICK, formerly Chief Justice, Louisiana.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

ATTORNEYS, COUNSELORS AND SOLICITORS,

Corner of Camp Street and Commercial Place, NEW ORLEANS. ap25

NEW ORLEANS

PURCHASING BUREAU.

To the Ladies of the South.

A Purchasing Agency has been established in New Orleans, Louisiana, for the benefit of those residing at a distance from the city, and who have not the facilities for obtaining just what they require.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE

respectfully offers her services in selecting, purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel or personal adornment for ladies' and children's wear, including MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, JEWELRY, BRIDAL TROUSSEAUX, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Trimmings, Underwear, Sewing Machines, etc., etc.

Scrupulous care with reference to the price and quality and fidelity to the interest and fulfillment of the wishes of correspondents, will be sedulously carried out.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE'S

Dressmaking Establishment,

Nos. 94 and 96 Canal St., New Orleans.

Refers by permission to H. H. Holmes & Co., New Orleans. fe28 1y

FOUND.—The place to buy EUCALYPTUS GLOBULUS, Blue Gum or Fever Tree SEED. Also all Seeds known in Australia, New Zealand, South America or California. To be had of

B. F. WELLINGTON,

425 Washington St., San Francisco, Cal.

Send for circulars. je11 3m

TRUSSES AND BRACES.

Club Feet cured without the knife. The Radical Cure Truss, patented May 8, 1866, applied. All instruments for deformities—Crutches, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Ear Trumpets—on hand at DR. A. O. FORSBERG'S, No. 5 East Fourth street, east of Main, up stairs Cincinnati, Ohio. St. Louis Republican. ap6 3m

MISCELLANEOUS.

E. W. VAILL,
Worcester, Mass.
Painter and Manufr's.

VAILL'S

PATENT

FOLDING

CHAIRS

Manufactured in great variety. Nearly 100 kinds and sizes. Adapted for the parlor, drawing-room, library, verandah, church, concert hall, lecture room, seaside and shipboard. A variety of folding cane seat chairs for the Southern and tropical countries. For sale by all first-class dealers in furniture and house furnishing goods. Send for cuts.

CINCINNATI

PIANO-FORTE

MANUFACTORY.

F. W. BIERE & SON.

WAREROOMS,

170 Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The attention of our friends and the public in general is most respectfully invited to our fine stock of HOME-MADE PIANOS.

We permit no inferior instrument to go out of our factory, but endeavor to EXCEL ALL MAKERS by producing PERFECT INSTRUMENTS ONLY, and thereby secure the entire confidence of the public. jy23 3m

MONUMENTS A SPECIALTY.

AMERICAN GRANITE

AND ITALIAN MARBLE.

IMPORTERS OF

Scotch Granite Monuments

AND STATUARY FROM ITALY.

This is the OLDEST AND LARGEST establishment of the kind in the Western country, and would solicit a share of the Southern patronage. Being in the business for years, I feel confident of giving the utmost satisfaction, having in my employ men of experience.

A. WHITE.

OFFICE AND WORKS,

231, 233 and 237 West Fifth St.,

jy23 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

STAR IRON WORKS.

WALTON, HEMLER & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

IRON RAILINGS,

SAFES AND BANK VAULTS,

JAIL CELLS, IRON STAIRS, DOORS AND SHUTTERS, Awning Frames, Stratings, Bolts, Stirrups, Verandas, Balconies, Patent Sidewalk and Sky-Lights, and all kinds of Iron Work for buildings.

Nos. 231 and 236 West Pearl Street,

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Orders promptly attended to and satisfaction guaranteed. jy23 3m

LEVY BROS.'

Dry Goods Establishment,

AT

580.....MAGAZINE STREET.....580

Between St. Andrew and St. Mary.

NEW GOODS EVERY WEEK.

We are now opening a large and well-assorted stock of SPRING GOODS, which have been bought and will be sold at prices that will suit all purchasers.

Give Us a Call.

N. B.—Orders from the country will be promptly filled. mh5 1y

FLINN'S PATENT

SELF-FASTENING AND ADJUSTABLE

BED SPRINGS

Make the Best Spring Beds in Use.

They are complete in themselves, and can be applied in a few minutes to any slat bedstead.

☞ From three to five dozen make a Set.

JOHN FLINN,

248 South Second St., Philadelphia, Pa

Cor. S. Water and Champlain Sts., Cleveland,

Agents wanted everywhere. se18 1y

MACHINERY, TIES, ETC.

LANE & BODLEY,

CINCINNATI, OHIO,

MANUFACTURERS OF STANDARD

PLANTATION

MACHINERY,

STATIONARY & PORTABLE

STEAM ENGINES,

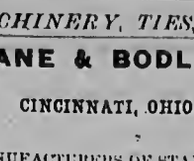
Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Shafting Hangers, Pulleys, etc. Our Machinery is strong, simple and well made, and is especially adapted to the wants of Farmers and Planters for Ginning, Sawing, Grinding and Factory use. Send for an Illustrated Catalogue.

LANE & BODLEY,

jy23 1y John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, O.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.



The above-mentioned Ties are the best and most popular Ties in use for Baling Cotton. They are manufactured of the best quality of English Iron, and are sold under Bill guarantee, at the lowest market prices, by all dealers in Baling Stuffs in New Orleans, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, Charleston, Wilmington, Petersburg, Baltimore, Memphis, Louisville, Nashville, New York, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

R. W. RAYNE & CO.,

(Late Bartlett & Rayne,)

GENERAL AGENTS,

48 Carondelet Street, cor. Union,

je18 6m New Orleans.

IMPROVED

EAGLE COTTON GINS.

The great popularity of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well-known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gins ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin runs lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price, as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cotton than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans, he has never had it ginned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve-inch cylinder in larger-sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an untried experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand motion gins.

PRICES.

40-Saw Gin.....	$200	65-Saw Gin	$325
45-Saw Gin.....	225	70-Saw Gin.....	350
50-Saw Gin.....	250	75-Saw Gin.....	375
55-Saw Gin	275	80-Saw Gin.....	400
60-Saw Gin.....	300

All orders should be addressed to

W. L. CUSHING,

No. 61 St. Charles street,

Sole Agent for the Southern States.

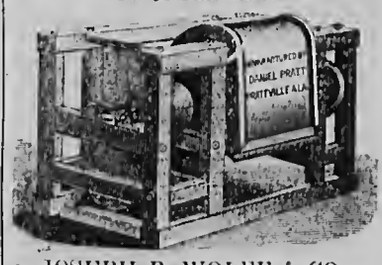
Agents wanted. Also on sale a large stock of Brooks' COTTON PRESSES, Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Straub Corn Mills and Plantation Machinery of all kinds. my28 3m

DANIEL PRATT'S

Improved Cotton Gin.

PRICE REDUCED

TO $4 PER SAW.



JOSEPH B. WOLFE & CO.,

GENERAL AGENTS,

No. 59 Carondelet Street,

je16 6m NEW ORLEANS.

PLOWS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC.

PLOWS

AND ALL IMPROVED

Agricultural Implements.

PLANTATION HARDWARE.

Steam Engines, Saw and Grist Mills.

PUMPS, SHAFTING, ETC.,

AT LOW PRICES FOR CASH.

B. J. WEST,

115 and 117 Magazine St., New Orleans,

MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

mh19 10m

CRESCENT MACHINE SHOP.

JOSEPH WALKER,

Machinist, Engineer, Blacksmithing, ETC., ETC.,

CORNER ST. JOSEPH AND CONSTANCE STS., New Orleans.

☞ Plantation Machinery manufactured and repaired. Jobbing promptly attended to. fe5 1y

New Orleans Markets.

From the New Orleans Price Current.

The river is 12 feet 7 inches below high-water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the fourteenth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales...	317
Lake		3
Mobile		155
Texas		1
Total		506

On Saturday, with nothing in the dispatches from Liverpool and New York to stimulate the demand, there was very little inquiry, and the bulk of the limited business, which was confined to 150 bales, was done by one broker. Most of the merchantable stock unsold is now held by four or five factors, who are unwilling to accept the ruling rates, except when necessary to close consignments. On Monday the market continued nearly at a standstill, the sales embracing 90 bales. There were some orders pending at prices about ⅛c., under the ruling rates, but most factors refused to make the desired concessions. Buyers, for example, were willing to go on at 14⅝c. for good ordinary, but factors asked 14⅝, 14⅞ a 14¾c. On Tuesday there appeared to be but little change in the general aspect of the market during the morning, only one buyer coming forward with any degree of spirit. Prices at the same time ruled rather easier, offers being accepted at less than quotations, but later in the day, finding there was more strength in the movement, factors assumed a higher tone, and fully ⅛c. higher was paid for the kinds in request. The sales summed up 800 bales.

The above makes an aggregate for the past three days of 1,100 bales, against 1,625 for the corresponding time last week and 1,275 the week before.

The receipts proper at this port since the first of September, exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas, are 1,210,709 bales, against 1,257,471 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 195,985 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is an increase of 110,919 to France, of 115,214 to other foreign ports, and a decrease of 46,612 to Great Britain. We quote:

Inferior	7¾	@	9
Low ordinary	9¾	@	10¾
Ordinary	11¾	@	12
Strict ordinary	12¾	@	13¾
Good ordinary	14¾	@	14¾
Strict good ordinary	15	@	15¾
Low middling	16	@	16¼
Strict low middling	16¾	@	16⅝
Middling	16¾	@	—
Strict middling	17	@	—

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1873...bales		7,177
Arrived past three days	506
Arrived previously	1,328,143	1,328,649
Net corrections, showing the balance between several manifests duplicated, and bales made from waste, samples, damaged, city ginning, from receipts of seed-cotton not included in general receipts, lint from seed-cleaning machines in city mills, etc		20,490
Add 2,552 bales, sunk in the ship Ailsa, omitted in the Exchange's stock statement		2,552
Total		1,358,858
Exported past three days	605
Exported previously	1,339,803	1,340,408
Consumed at Lane Cotton Mills		800
Sunk in scuttled ship Ailsa, to be added if ever recovered		2,552
Total		1,343,760
Stock on hand and on shipboard		15,098

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—On Tuesday 95 hhds. sold at 8⅝c. for good fair and 9⅛c. for fully fair, not refilled, 9¼c. for good fair and 9⅝c. for fully fair, refilled.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Nothing doing except in grocers' trade. City refinery rebolled is selling in the job trade at 40@42c. for common, 48@50c. for fair, 55@57c. for good fair, 60@62c. for prime, and 67@68c. for choice.

CORN.—On Tuesday 1,500 sacks sold at 83c. for mixed, 85c. for yellow mixed, and 90@c. for white flint.

OATS.—On Tuesday 1,150 sacks sold at 60c. for new and 62½@65c. for old.

BRAN.—On Saturday 400 sacks and on Monday 200 sacks sold at 90c. ₩ 100 lbs.

PORK.—Mess is retailing at $25.50 cash, and $26 ₩ bbl. time.

BACON.—On Tuesday 10 casks clear rib sides sold, early in the day, at 13c., and 21 do. clear sides on private terms.

HAMS—Are in good supply, and dull at 15@16½c. ₩ lb. for choice sugar-cured, as in brand. On Tuesday 10 tierces sold at 16¼c. ₩ lb.

LARD—Is in light supply, but there is little or no demand. Tierce is quoted at 15½@16c., keg 16@16½c. ₩ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT.—Dealers have a few shoulders, and are retailing them at 9¾@10c. ₩ lb. The last sales of shoulders were at 9¾c. ₩ lb.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 109½@109¾ (against 109¾ at New York,) and, after a limited business, closed at the opening rates in both markets.

Nothing has been reported in silver. It is quoted at 104@104¼ for American half dollars. Mexican dollars closed at 97½ gold or 100½ currency.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS:
Cotton scrapers	$4 50	— —
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. and shovel tooth	9 00	12 50
Cultivators, riding and walking	25 00	35 00
Shovels and spades	7 50	16 00
Axes	11 00	16 00
Shovel plows	5 00	7 50
Half do., with cutters	6 00	7 50
Manly's double-shovel plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bradford's grist mills	150 00	225 00
BRICKS, ₩ M:
Lake	9 50	15 00
Country	7 00	9 00
English fire	45 00	47 50
American fire	35 00	— —
CANDLES, ₩ lb.:
Sperm, New Bedford	39	31
Tallow	14	— —
CHOCOLATE, ₩ lb.:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	— —	— —
Sweet	22	— —
COAL, ₩ ton:
Anthracite	— —	13 00
Western, ₩ bbl	— —	— —
COFFEE, ₩ lb.:
Mexican	— —	— —
Java	28	30
COTTON SEED:
Rough, ₩ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	10 00
EGGS, ₩ dozen:
Western	8	15
FERTILIZERS, ₩ ton:
Stern's raw-bone superphosph'e	— —	65 00
Stern's fine-ground bone	— —	45 00
FLOUR, ₩ bbl.:
Double extra	— —	6 50
Superfine	— —	— —
Fine	— —	— —
GLASS, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	— —	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 10 by 14 to 12 by 20	4 00	4 25
French, 14 by 18 to 18 by 20	4 25	4 75
HAY, ₩ ton:
Prime	25 00	— —
Choice	26 00	— —
IRON, ₩ ton:
English, ₩ lb	4	5
Swedes, assorted	7½	8
Hoop	8	9
Sheet	8	9
Nail rods	— —	9¾
Castings, American	5¾	6
LEATHER, ₩ lb.:
Sole, hemlock	30	33
Sole, oak	40	44
Harness	38	45
Calfskins, ₩ dozen	35 00	100 00
Texas, rough, ₩ lb	24	26
LIME, ₩ bbl.:
Western	1 50	1 75
Cement	2 50	2 75
Plaster Paris	— —	2 75
LUMBER, ₩ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	— —	— —
Boards, cypress	— —	— —
Flooring, dressed	18 00	20 00
Flooring, rough	— —	16 00
Ceiling, dressed	12 00	14 00
Weatherboards, dressed	14 00	16 00
Weatherboards, rough	— —	— —
Scantling	12 00	14 00
Shingles, ₩ M	— —	3 25
Laths	— —	— —
OILS:
Lard, ₩ gallon	1 10	1 15
Coal oil, in barrels	17	20
Linseed, raw	1 02	— —
SUGAR, ₩ lb.:
Havana, white	— —	— —
Havana, yellow	— —	— —
Havana, brown	— —	— —
Crushed	11¾	12
Pulverized	11¾	12
TEAS, ₩ lb.:
Imperial	25	— —
Gunpowder	45	— —
Hyson	70	— —
Young Hyson	70	1 00
Pouchong	30	— —
Oolong	25	— —
WAGONS, CARTS, ETC.:
Wagon, two-horse	85 00	90 00
Wagon, four-horse	115 00	125 00
Wagon, two-horse, thim. skein	85 00	— —
Wagon, four-horse	100 00	110 00
Cane wagon	210 00	215 00
Ox wagon	90 00	125 00
Ox cart, complete	110 00	115 00
One cart	110 00	115 00
Tongue cart, complete	120 00	125 00
Plantation cart	55 00	70 00

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 18, 1874.

Texas beeves, choice, ₩ head	$— —	@	$40 00
Texas beeves, first quality, ₩ head	30 00	@	35 00
Texas cattle, second quality, ₩ head	20 00	@	25 00
Texas cattle, third quality, ₩ head	12 00	@	16 00
Western beeves, ₩ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Sheep, first quality, ₩ head	4 00	@	5 00
Sheep, second quality, ₩ head	3 00	@	4 00
Milch cows, choice, ₩ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ₩ head	35 00	@	40 00
Calves, ₩ head	7 00	@	9 00
Yearlings, ₩ head	8 00	@	9 00

Advertisers' Directory

OF THE

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Alphabetically Arranged Under the Heads of the Business or Articles Advertised.

NOTE.—We take no advertisements except from those who we have good reason to believe are respectable and reliable. The publisher urges his solicitor and agents to seek the advertisements of the most worthy and reliable representatives in every branch of business, and not to apply to nr accept business from persons of doubtful character. We have refused business to the extent of thousands of dollars each year for want of satisfactory information in reference to applicants. We think we may safely claim for the list below that it embraces, as a rule, the very best men and firms in the different branches represented.

☞ We retain no dead advertisements.

Agracies.
Gregg's Purchasing Bureau, corner Canal and Burgundy streets.
Mrs. H. Mogridge, Purchasing Bureau, 94 and 96 Canal street.
J. Hale Powers, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.
N. H. Thompson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Architects.
T. Whinrey Carter, 58 Carondelet street.

Barber.
Baptiste, St. Charles Hotel.

Bed springs.
John Flinn, Philadelphia.

Bells.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Buckeye Bell Foundery, Cincinnati, Ohio

Belting.
W. N. Thomson, 52 Race street, Cincinnati, O.

Book-Binder.
F. J. Kuhnholz, 112 Gravier street

Books and Stationery.
Robert J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street
American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
Continental Publishing Co., St. Louis, Missouri.
Chas. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, Mass.
E. A. Hutchinson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Miller's Bible and Publishing House, 1102 and 1104 Sansom street, Philadelphia.
Nettleton & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
John E. Potter & Co., Philadelphia.
Queen City Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Valley Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo.
A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn
Ziegler & McCurdy, St. Louis, Mo.

Building.
A. J. Bicknell & Co. 27 Warren street, New York.

Carpets.
A. Brousseau & Co., 17 Chartres street.
Elkin & Co., 168 Canal street.

Carriages, Wagons, Etc.
J. A. Lum & Co., 162 Gravier and 13 Union street.

Chairs.
E. W. Vail, Worcester, Mass.

China and Crockeryware.
W. C. Shepard & Co., 55 Camp street.

Clothing and Furnishing Goods.
Pierson & Hews, 13 and 15 Camp street.

Coal and Wood.
B. D. Wood & Bros., 106 Common street.

Cooperage.
T. A. Heck, 23 and 24 Front street.
P. A. Lelliane, 22 Front street.

Cotton Gins.
J. H. Wolfe & Co., 39 Carondelet street.

Cotton Ties.
Bartlett & Rayne, 43 Carondelet street.

Croquet.
Bradley's Patent Croquet, Robt. J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Dentists.
Dr. John G. Angell, 152 Julia street.

Direct Trade.
Dr. Thomas D. Worrall, 21 and 26 Camp street.

Dry Goods.
Levy Bros., 580 Magazine street.

Educational.
Alabama Conference Female College, Tuskegee, Ala.
Blackman's Commercial College, 131 Carondelet street.
Centenary College, C. G. Andrews, president, Jackson La.
Collegiate Institute, Prof. W. H. N. Mugruder, Baton Rouge, La.
College for Ladies, Lake Forest, Ill.
Eminence College, Eminence, Ky.
Female College, Rev. Thomas Ward White, president, Greensboro, Ala.
Female College, Greensboro, Ala., Rev. Thos. Ward White, president.
Forest Academy, Anchorage P. O., Ky.
Hiwassee College, Rev. J. H. Brunner, pres't.
Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky.
Martha Washington College, Abingdon, Va.
Methodist Male and Female High School, Troy, Ala., Prof. R. J. Walker, president.
Randolph Macon College, Rev. James A. Duncan, A. M., D. D., president, Ashland, Va.
Soule's Commercial College, corner Camp and Common streets.
Southern University, Greensboro, Ala
Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va. Rev. W. A. Harris, president.
Whitworth Female College, H. F. Johnson, president, Brookhaven, Miss.

Engravers.
John Gibson, 82 Beekman street, New York.
J. W. Hart, Cincinnati, Ohio.
J. S. Patterson, 24 Beekman street, New York.
Warren Richards, 42 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Edward Sears, 48 Beekman street, New York.

Exterminators.
J. F. Henry, Curran & Co., New York.

Extract of Mead
Ernest Turpin, 112 and 114 Poydras street, New Orleans.

Factors and Commission Merchants.
Aiken & Watt, 60 Carondelet street.
D. H. Wallace, 38 Perdido street.
J. H. Wilkinson, Jr., 29 Peters and 4 Clinton st.

Fire-Arms.
Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburg, Pa.

For Sale.
Tent on Seashore camp ground, Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Framers and Gilders.
Kerrigan & White, 106 Customhouse street.

Furniture.
John Bals, 152 and 154 Camp street.
Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Co., 168 Julia street, New Orleans.
Hugh Flynn, 107 Poydras street.

Gas Fixtures.
P. H. Quinlan, 280 Camp street.

Glass Staining.
Belcher & Povey, 13 W. Broadway, New York.

Grocers.
J. M. Dowling, 25 Decatur street.

Hotels.
Bingham House, Philadelphia.
Crawford House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Frank J. Oakes, proprietor.

Iron Manufactories.
M. Walker & sons, Philadelphia.
Walton, Hunter & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Job Printing.
Pelican Job Office, 112 and 114 Poydras street.

Lumber.
Thomas Hasam, cor. Cedar and Julia streets.
George Purves, cor. St. Charles and Clio streets.
Roberts & Co., 301 to 307 Gravier street.

Machinery.
Billings & Spencer Co., Hartford, Conn.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., 864 to 891 Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
W. L. Cushing, 61 St. Charles street.
Lane & Bodley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Mowery & Kimberly, Troy, New York.
Turbine Water-Wheel, Poole & Hunt, Baltimore, Md.
Turbine Water-Wheel, N. F. Burnham, York, Penna.
Jos. Walker, cor. St. Joseph and Constance sts.
Well-Auger, W. Olles, St. Louis, Mo.
H. J. West, 115 and 117 Magazine street.

Marble Monuments.
Office and works, 251, 253 and 257 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Medical.
Adderley's Sirup Bromide Chloral, W. H. Adderley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Anti Rheumatic Mixture, W. J. Jurgielewicz, corner Magazine and Thalia streets.
Artificial Lions, Charles M. Evans, 76 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky.
Cincho-Quinine, Billings, Clapp & Co., Boston, Mass.
Citrate of Magnesia, etc., Hofmann & Co., N. Y
Dr. Fitler's Vegetable Rheumatic Sirup, E. J Hart & Co., New Orleans.
Dr. A. O Forsberg, 5 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Hebbard's Cure, E. Dibblee, 814 Sixth avenue, New York.
Dr. H. James' Indian Hemp.
Kearney's Extract Buchu, Kearney & Co., 104 Duane street, New York
Opium Cure, Dr. J. C. Rock, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Buffalo, New York.
Rupture and Piles Cure, Dr. H. Neeson, 182 St. Charles street.
Simmons' Liver Regulator, J. H. Zeilin & Co. Philadelphia, Pa.
Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient.
Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills, 1s and 20 Platt street, New York.

Mineral and Soda Water.
Eckelberg, corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue.

Musical Instruments, Publications, Etc.
Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.
D. H. Baldwin & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
F. W. Bere & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Chambers Piano Factory, 506 Fourth avenue, New York.
Henry Pilcher, 656 Portland avenue, Louisville, Ky.
Philip Werlein, 78 to 90 Baronne street.

Paper Mills.
Atlanta Paper Mills, Atlanta, Georgia.

Patents.
H. N. Jenkins, 27 Commercial place.
John A. Wiedersheim & Co., Philadelphia.

Patent Novelties.
George L. Felton & Co., 119 Nassau street, New York.

Pens.
R. Esterbrook & Co., New York.

Periodicals.
The Metaphysician, 51 Bond street, New York.

Portrait Painters.
G. D. Conlon, 37 Camp street.

Professional.
Dr. C. J. Bickham, office, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Dr. J. J. Lyons, office, 219 Carondelet street.
Race, Foster & E. T. Merrick, law office, corner Camp and Commercial place.

Railroads.
Great Jackson Route, A. D. Sheldon, agent, 22 Camp street, corner of Common.

Seeds.
B. F. Wellington, 425 Washington street, San Francisco, Cal.

Sewing Machines.
Domestic, M. S. Hedrick, 103 Canal street.
Wm. Gregg, cor. Canal and Burgundy streets.

Soap.
J. H. Keller, 110 Gravier street.

Steamships and Shipping.
Cromwell Line New York Steamers, Alfred Moulton, agent, 41 Carondelet street.
General Transatlantic Company, L. Grand, Gallier court, letter H.
Merchants' Line New York Steamers, J. H. Ludwiksen, 190 Common street.
State Line, A. K. Miller & Co., 29 Carondelet st.

Stoves.
G. W. W. Goodwyn, 52 Gravier street.
H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Tea.
Great China and Japan Tea Warehouse, 170 Canal street.

Tobacco and Cigars.
Ed. L. Zell, cnr. Canal and Carondelet streets.

Type and Presses.
Vanderburgh, Wells & Co., 110 Fulton and 16 and 18 Dutch street, New York.

Undertakers.
T. V. Botlick, 271 Camp street, New Orleans.

Upholstery.
Heath & Lara, 99 Camp street.

Washing Machines.
Dingen Washer, H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Watches and Jewelry.
E. A. Tyler, 115 Canal street.

Window Glass.
William Coulter & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Wire Railing, Etc.
Imlur & Co. Baltimore, Maryland.

Special Notices.

OFFORD'S PULPIT OF THE DAY.—A Monthly Magazine of Sermons by the greatest preachers living. $1 a year. On trial, 25 cents from August till December. Sample copy, 10 cents. H. M. OFFORD, 6 Park place, New York. au20 3m

Religious Notices.

THE CAMP MEETING at China Grove, Dale county, Alabama, will commence on Friday night before the first Sunday in October next, and close on Wednesday morning after. Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South are invited to attend. A. DOWLING, Pastor.

THERE will be a camp meeting nine miles north of Eutaw, Greene county, Alabama Conference, commencing on Thursday night before the second Sabbath in October, 1874. Preachers are respectfully invited.

J. W. MCCANN, P. C.

THE Alexandria District Conference will be held at Evergreen, commencing on Friday, September 18. Preachers and people are specially requested to be in attendance.

J. H. STONE, P. E.

THE Summit District Conference will be held in Greensburg, Louisiana, commencing October 8, 1874, to be continued over Sunday.

A. B. NICHOLSON, P. E.

CAMP MEETING.—The third annual camp meeting of the Brookhaven district, Methodist Episcopal Church South, will be held on the grounds of the Henlington Camp Meeting Association, near Crystal Springs, Mississippi, beginning on Wednesday, August 19, 1874.

The meeting will be under the direction of the committee on religious services, of which Rev. W. E. M. Linfield, presiding elder of the district, is chairman.

In addition to the preachers of the district, a number of ministers from other parts of the State have been invited and may be expected to assist in the services.

The camp will be on the self-sustaining plan, heretofore carried out with so much satisfaction.

Facilities for reaching the camp ground have been much improved, and ample boarding accommodations at a very moderate scale of charges have been provided for.

Arrangements will be made for the preservation of that good order which has characterized former camp meetings, and all who meet with us for public worship may rely on being undisturbed in their religious privileges.

Half-Fare Tickets.—Colonel E. D. Frost, general manager of the New Orleans, St. Louis and Chicago railroad, in a letter to I. V. Enochs, says: "We will put half-fare tickets on sale for visitors to your camp meeting, beginning on the nineteenth instant."

A cordial invitation is extended to all—preachers and people—to attend these religious services. Let us come together in the spirit of the gospel, with an earnest desire to profit by the ministrations of the occasion.

For information as to building-lots, tents, etc., apply to I. V. Enochs, Wills Barnes or

W. C. WILKINSON, Secretary.

CAMP MEETING.—The camp meeting at Midway, ten miles north of Delhi, will commence September 10, 1874. Persons attending will pay full fare on the railroad coming, and return free on certificate. All ministers are invited to attend. Ample arrangements will be made for their comfort. Arrangements will be made to transfer all ministers and their baggage from Delhi to the camp ground, September 10 and 11, and return them when the meeting closes. No other arrangements will be made unless we are notified beforehand. The meeting will be conducted and carried on, as last year, on the Independent plan. Come one! come all!

O. M. LIVERMAN, P. C.,
Floyd Circuit, Louisiana Conference.

THERE will be a camp meeting on the Sparta circuit, five and a half miles east of Sparta, on the Vernon road, commencing on Thursday evening before the second Sabbath in September next. The meeting will be conducted on the self-sustaining plan. All are invited to attend, and to come prepared to take care of themselves. Ministers of the gospel are invited. There will be special provision made for them and their horses. The third Quarterly Conference will be held at the same time and place.

D. A. BODDIE, P. C.

NOTICE.—There will be a camp meeting four miles north of Spearville, on the Farmerville circuit, Union parish, Louisiana, commencing on Friday before the fourth Sabbath in August; and another at Alabama church, between Homer and Farmerville, commencing on Friday before the third Sabbath in September. The people are expected to furnish their own tents and provisions, as a few do not expect to furnish a multitude.

R. PARVIN, Pastor.

GREENSHORO DISTRICT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—The District Conference for this district has been appointed to be held at Ivy Creek church, Autauga county, including the fifth Sunday in August, beginning on Thursday, the twenty-seventh. Conveyances will be provided for the delegates at Burnsville, on the Selma, Rome and Dalton railroad, at eight o'clock on Thursday morning. The trains meet at this point daily. It is very desirable that the official members generally attend, and be on hand at the opening service at eleven o'clock on Thursday morning.

A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

THE Brandon District Conference will be held at Scotland chapel, Neshoba county, Mississippi, August 27, 1874. Those brethren not having private conveyances will notify Rev. W. A. Hay, at Watkinsville, Neshoba county, Mississippi, in due time, who will furnish conveyance at Forest on the morning of the twenty-sixth of August. A full attendance is desired, as business of importance will be before the Conference.

F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

DELHI DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—The Delhi District Conference will convene at Delhi, Louisiana, September 3, 1874. Rev. H. F Alexander is appointed to preach the opening sermon.

C. W. CARTER, P. E.

THE Eufaula District Conference, Alabama Conference, will be held at Perote, Alabama, commencing on Wednesday night, August 26. Introductory sermon will be preached by Rev. T. W. Dyer. Members of the Conference will report to Rev. W. S. Turner, at the parsonage, on arriving at Perote.

W. H. ELLISON, P. E.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEORGE STINSON & CO., Portland Maine. fe5 1y

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Spring Hill circuit, at Hanwood camp ground	Sept.	26, 27
Paulding ct., at Hollund camp ground	Oct.	3, 4
DeKalb ct., at New Hope camp ground		10, 11
Enterprise station		17, 18
Waynesboro station		24, 25
Marion and Toomsuba circuit, at Coker's	31,	Nov. 1
Wayne circuit, at Salem	Nov.	7, 8
Desoto circuit, at Andrew chapel		14, 15
Quitman and Clarke circuit		21, 22
Enterprise circuit		29, 30
Shubuta station	Dec.	6, 7
Meridian station		13, 14

The order of business in the Quarterly Conferences will be that of the new Discipline. Local preachers, boards of stewards and trustees should be prepared to report accordingly.

WILLIAM H. HINES, P. E.

SUMMIT DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Big Creek mission, at Bonner's Creek	Sept.	19, 20
Covington circuit, at Bogue Chitto	Oct.	3, 4
Greensburg		11, 12
McComb City, at McComb City		24, 25
Union	Nov.	1
St. Helena		14, 15
Holmesville		28, 29
Franklinton	Dec.	5, 6
Summit station		12, 13

A. B. NICHOLSON, P. E.

SEASHORE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Taylorville mission, at Calvary	Aug.	22, 23
Rankin circuit, at Wesleyan		29, 30
Mount Carmel circuit, at Mount Zion	Sept.	5, 6
Columbia circuit, at Columbia		12, 13
Pearlington circuit, at Pearlington		19, 20
Ocean Springs circuit, at Ocean Springs		26, 27
White Plains circuit, at Cooper's Creek	Oct.	3, 4
East Pascagoula circuit, at Salem camp ground		10, 11
Chickasawha and Greene mission		17, 18
Enon circuit, at Bethel		24, 25

The preachers in charge will please remember and be prepared to submit full statistical reports, and the recording stewards should bear in mind the importance of making their report on finance. The trustees' report will also be called for.

C. F. GILLESPIE, P. E.

MEDICAL.

DR. C. M'LANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increase on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder-blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them A FAIR TRIAL.

P. S. Dealers and Physicians ordering from others than Fleming Bros. will do well to write their orders distinctly, and take none but Dr. C. M'Lane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of base imitations. To those wishing to give them a trial, we will forward per mail, post paid, to any part of the United States; one box of Pills for twelve three-cent postage stamps, or one vial of Vermifuge for fourteen three-cent stamps. All orders from Canada must be accompanied by twenty cents extra.

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up HEALTHY, STRONG, and VIGOROUS MEN and WOMEN, give them a few doses of M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE, TO EXPEL THE WORMS.

Ja29 1yeow

RHEUMATISM NEURALGIA WE CLERGYMEN WERE CURED

OF CHRONIC AND ACUTE RHEUMATISM, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica, Kidney and Nervous diseases, after years of suffering, by taking DR. FITLER'S VEGETABLE RHEUMATIC SIRUP. Prescription of J. P. Fitler, M. D., graduate of 1835. The only physician in the world's history treating these diseases thirty-nine years consecutively.

It is truly a certain cure, and in our judgment the only specific ever discovered.—Rev. C. H. Ewing, Media, Pa., suffered sixteen years; became hopeless. Rev. Thomas Murphy, D. D., Frankford, Philadelphia. Rev. J. B. Davis, Hightstown, N. J. Rev. J. S. Buchanan, Clarence, Iowa. Rev. G. G. Smith, Pittsford, N. Y. Rev. Joseph Boggs, Falls Church, Philadelphia. Afflicted invited to write to Dr. Fitler, Philadelphia, who will send valuable advice gratis, with a contract to cure or refund money. New Orleans agents, E. J. HART & CO. se18 1y which combines all the alkaloids of the Cinchona Barks, and is as effectual a remedy as the sulphate of Quinine, while it is much cheaper and more palatable.

FEVER AND AGUE CURED BY CINCHO-QUININE!

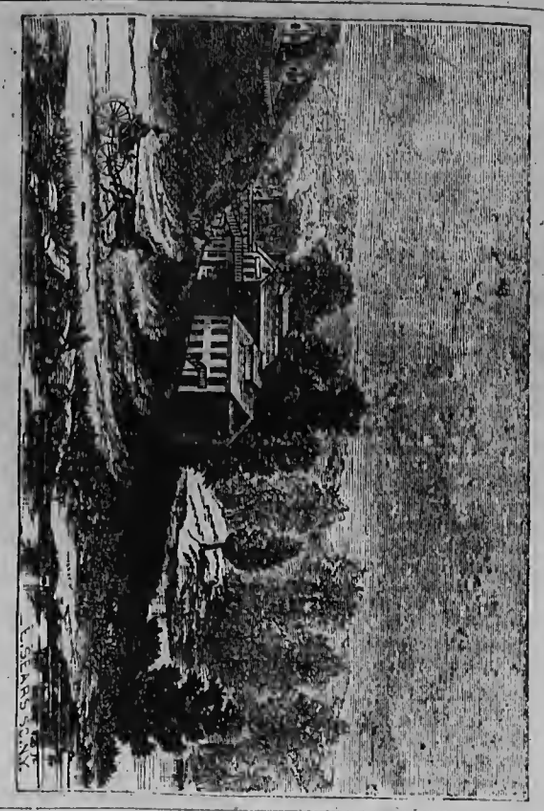
☞ Send for descriptive circular, with formula for using the CINCHO QUININE, and Testimonials from physicians all over the country. Prepared by

Billings, Clapp & Co., Chemists,

Successors to Jas. R. Nichols & Co.,
fe26 6m BOSTON, MASS.

PAPER MILLS.



JAMES ORMOND, PROPRIETOR.

OFFICE—NO. 43 BROAD STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

☞ For Specimen of "News" we refer to this issue of this Paper. Cash Orders Solicited. pm6 1y

ATLANTA PAPER MILLS.

HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS.

MAKE YOUR HOME ATTRACTIVE BY REPLENISHING YOUR

TABLE-WARE

—AT—

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.'S,

55.....Camp Street.....55

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

See What a Little Money Will Buy.

An elegant White Granite DINNER SET, consisting 136 pieces, for..... $15 00

to wit:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Soup Tureen,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad Dish,
12 Soup Plates,	2 Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Tea Cups and Saucers,	2 Pickle Shells,
12 Dinner Coffee Cups and Saucers.

A Porcelain DeTerre DINNER SET (equal to French China in appearance, and much more durable,) same assortment as above.. $18 00

A French China (best quality) DINNER SET, same assortment, 136 pieces..... 30 00

Decorated Porcelain DeTerre and French China DINNER SETS, from..... $30 up.

White Granite CHAMBER SETS, 11 pieces $4 00

White Granite TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 4 00

French China TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 6 50

French China Decorated TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 7 50

Good Table GOBLETS, from 50 cents per set up.

Granite Dinner Plates, per dozen..... 1 40

Granite Breakfast Plates, per dozen..... 1 25

Granite Tea Plates, per dozen..... 1 15

French China Dinner Plates, per dozen..... 3 00

French China Breakfast Plates, per dozen... 2 75

French China Tea Plates, per dozen..... 2 25

NOTE.—The prices above contemplate "First-choice" goods, every piece being warranted regular and perfect. "Seconds" or imperfect goods, warped in making and otherwise irregular, we will furnish for those that desire at twenty per cent. discount from these prices. We shall meet all competition promptly, and as we import our own ware our customers can depend upon getting the BEST Goods at the lowest possible prices.

AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED

BLANCHARD CHURNS,

AND THE LARGEST DEALERS IN

HOUSEKEEPING NOVELTIES

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
de11 1y No. 55 Camp street, New Orleans.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLINGS' PATENT Sewing Machine SHUTTLES.

Twenty Varieties Now Made.

Forged solid from bar-steel and cold-pressed.

TRADE (B) MARK.

Also Wrought Iron and Steel DROP FORGINGS

of all descriptions, for Guns, Pistols, Sewing Machines, Agricultural Implements, etc.

MANUFACTURED BY

Billings & Spencer Co.,

LAWRENCE STREET,
ap9 6m Hartford, Conn.

DIRECT TRADE.

DIRECT TRADE.

Merchants and business men of the Mississippi Valley who desire to purchase IMPORTED GOODS of British manufacture, at little if any over half the cost of such when purchased in New York, should correspond with or call upon DR. THOMAS D. WORRALL, American Director of the Direct Trade Company, 21 and 26 Camp street, New Orleans.

Samples of stock constantly on hand. je18 4m

WILLIAM COULTER & SON,

MANUFACTURERS OF

ORNAMENTAL, GROUND AND CUT WINDOW GLASS,

104 East Second St., Cincinnati, O.

Ornamental Window Glass, of every description, for Churches, Private and Public Buildings, Steamboats, Railroad Cars, etc. jy23 3m

ED. L. ZELL,

DEALER IN

CIGARS, CIGARETTES AND TOBACCO,

Cor. Canal and Carondelet Sts.,

Postoffice Lock Box 374, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Largest and best assortment

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. 20. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 1874. NO. 35.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—The loss by the flood at Austin, Nevada, yesterday, caused by the bursting of a cloud, will ameunt to ever $100,000.

The people were warned in time by a messenger on horseback, and escaped to the hills.

The deluge was abeut ten feet deep as it washed down.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 20.—The latest reports from Chicot county, Arkansas, state that the excitement there is subsiding. The whites and blacks are still under arms, but no conflict is apprehended.

The nomination of Judge Porter for Governor meets with the general approbation of both Conservatives and Democrats.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.—The following telegram was received here to-day from Governor Osborn, of Kansas: "I have information, through the Indian Agent Stubbs and others, and from other sources, that the Osago tribe of Indians have, at a general council, declared war against this State.

"Depredations had already been committed by them on our southern borders. The State has but few arms, and the United States troops heretofore guarding the line being now in the Indian Territory, at a great distance from the Osago reservation, exposes the frontier settlements of this State to great danger.

"With arms we can defend our borders. Can you furnish me with two thousand carbines and accoutrements and one hundred thousand cartridges, on account of the State of Kansas?"

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—Advices from Prescott state that twenty-two Apache Indians, scouts of San Carlos reservation, have arrived at Camp McDowell, from Tonto Apache country, bringing in the head of the guerrilla chief, Delche, and twelve prisoners. They report having killed twenty-five Tonto Apache Indians. There are no white men in the party.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The Herald publishes a synopsis of the forthcoming report of the Beecher Investigation committee. After the summing up the committee find Beecher not guilty of the charges preferred against him.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 21.—Elaborate dispatches from Lancaster, Kentucky, indicate that the white trouble was not strictly a fight between the races.

The chiefs were white, and the trouble grew from a conflict between the candidates for clerk of court. Sellers seems to have been supported by the negroes, who were barricaded within his premises, which were burned in order to destroy them.

Federal soldiers claim they were subjected to fire from both parties and skedaddled. The trouble was suppressed by the Kentucky State troops, acting as a posse to the sheriff.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The secretary of the Board of Emigration states that the steamers leaving here for Europe carry large numbers of emigrants returning home.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Russian government has refused to recognize the Spanish republic. It is in consequence of this that other powers delay a complete recognition; but it is reported that the governments of Austria and Germany have sent credentials to their representatives at Madrid.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 22.—The customs officers on the northern frontier have captured a large lot of merchandise, after a struggle with the smugglers, in which two of the latter were killed and one of the officers was severely wounded.

The priest Riraso, accused of inciting the religious disorder which culminated in the assassination of Stevens, Protestant, has been tried and acquitted.

The trouble between Mexico and Gautemala is to be amicably arranged.

It is rumored that a revolutionary pronunciamiento has been issued in the State of Chiapas, and the authority of the Governor is not recognized at Tuxtla.

Senor Guitterez, administrator of customs at Jovita, has sent to Tehuantepec for federal forces, but they have not yet started to his relief, awaiting orders from the capital.

VIENNA, Aug. 24.—The Press announces that the Austrian and German charge d'affaires at Madrid were notified on Friday last of the recognition by their respective governments of President Serrano as chief of the executive power of Spain.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Five hundred laborers, belonging to the English Agricultural Union, leave here for Canada to-morrow.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—The Mark Lane Express says the bulk of the wheat crop is now safe; another week's fine weather and the fields will be clear.

Prices are now receding in consequence of the belief that the crop is fully up to the average.

Prices are very low in France, and English wheat is being reshipped from there.

"DON'T you believe there are any people who never heard 'Old Hundred?'" asked a musical young lady at the family table.

"Lots of folks never heard it," interrupted the precocious young brother.

"Where are they, I should like to know?" was asked.

"In the deaf and dumb asylums."

THE tenderest heart loves best the bold and courageous one.

Address of W. F. Mellen, Esq.,

AT OXFORD, MISSISSIPPI.

The following is an extract from a letter to the Louisville (Kentucky) Christian Observer:

On Wednesday morning the large chapel was again filled to listen to the anniversary oration before the literary societies by Colonel W. F. Mellen, of Natchez. This was the great speech of the occasion. It was a masterpiece of scholarship, art and eloquence. For many a year I have not heard so perfect an oration. It was worth going all the way from Chicago to hear it, even if I had not heard anything else noble and good. But I was wholly unaware of the treat that was in reserve for me till it came. His subject was "Physics versus Metaphysics," and it covered the whole ground of the relations and bearings of science and philosophy to each other and to religion. For one hour and twenty minutes he held that large audience of students, professors and people, from its opening sentence to the close, fixed in silent attention, and delighted as by some potent charm. Such a speech would have done honor to any institution in our country—I may say in the world. I know not where to find another man who, with such a subject, could have achieved such a success of eloquent oratory. I know not which to admire the most—its profound, unmistakable learning, its compact, logical, massive thought, the impregnable truth of its positions and conclusions, the precise and elegant diction in which it was clothed, or the earnest, graceful and impressive eloquence with which it was delivered. It traced the history of philosophy from its early dawn in Greece through the Ante Socratic period, did full justice to its noonTide glory under Socrates, Plato and Aristotle, sketched in vivid colors its reinauguration in the time of Bacon, and in conclusion presented the ablest and most satisfactory answer to the positions assumed by Darwin, Huxley and other advocates of the merely physical sciences of our day I have ever met with. Incidentally it was a noble tribute to the Bible and Christianity. The speech is to be published, but no reading of it can do justice to its masterly delivery. Colonel Mellen is a native of Mississippi, an alumnus of her university of the class of 1855, gratefully attributing his success in life to the excellent chancellor by whom he was trained in the love of Greek. He was distinguished as a soldier and officer in the late war, and is now one of the most successful and distinguished practitioners at the bar in Mississippi. One wonders how a man who has led so active an outward life, as yet comparatively young, has found time to accumulate such stores both of ancient and modern learning.

THE Pope's affairs, says the Christian Intelligencer, seem in a bad way. Not only has Italy abandoned the support of his arrogant pretensions, and Switzerland and Germany placed a bit in his mouth, but Austria is loosening from his hold, he is rejected by the Republican government of Spain, and even Don Carlos, a true child of the papacy hitherto, has issued a manifesto guaranteeing religious toleration, and confirming the sales of church property that have been completed. From South America, too, there are signs of disintegration: Brazil has snubbed high Romish ecclesiastics; and now, as we write, we have telegrams that in Venezuela the church question is assuming an aspect like that presented in Italy, Switzerland and Germany, and even threatens to lead to the breaking off of all relations with the Vatican. The world is rousing from the folly of centuries, and superstition is creeping into the dark caves of the earth, with the bats and other vermin.

A WORD OF CAUTION.—The Richmond Christian Advocate says: "The 'Plan of Separation' is the wedge in the fraternity that Dr. Curry and some Southern Advocates are driving with alternate strokes of the editorial maul. The 'plan' was the title deed to all the Southern Methodist Church property, and our people know its value. The 'plan,' recognized by the Supreme Court, cuts off the appellation of 'secession' to the Southern Church. This is a sore estoppel to the people who see, in every dissent from their views, 'rebellion.' Let us hug, brethren, but don't try to catch a 'breeches hold' and throw us while fraternally falling on our necks."

BISHOP MARVIN returned from the South, says the St. Louis Christian Advocate of August 19, a short while ago, and last week attended a District Conference at Jackson, Missouri. We suppose he will this week and next be in attendance upon the camp meeting. We have learned that some of the other Bishops are expected to be present a portion or all of the time. Bishop Pierce, who is expected to hold a Conference at Denver, commencing August 27, will probably pass this way during the camp meeting.

THE Baptist Weekly has the following: A clergyman, preaching on the "Ministry of Angels," suddenly observed: "I hear a whisper!" The change of tone startled one of the deacons, who sat below, from a drowsy mood, and, springing to his feet, he cried: "It is the boys in the gallery!"

"LETTIN' eff sleep" is a little boy's definition of snoring.

From the Work.

HELICON, CRENSHAW CO., ALABAMA.—Mr. Editor: We have a flourishing Sunday school, and on the seventeenth of July we had a celebration, which, I think, was creditable to the energy of the Helicon people. The Rev. S. P. Richardson addressed the people in the Methodist church with one of those deep, reasoning and painted arguments for which he is so distinguished. The remainder of the morning was devoted to the singing of God's praises. At last came the long-looked-for time. Dinner being announced as ready, the school formed a procession and marched to the academy, where a table was before them, for which the good ladies of Helicon truly deserve praise. After dinner the crowd was invited to repair to the church for singing, and to listen to a lecture from our genial friend and talented merchant, John A. Giddens, which was strikingly appropriate for the occasion. A protracted meeting then followed, which resulted in the doing of much good.

JAMES J. BARBER.

AUGUST 5, 1874.

MORTON CIRCUIT, MORTON, MISSISSIPPI.—Mr. Editor: Since our last Annual Conference three appointments were attached to Morton circuit, and Rev. James N. Williams, supernumerary, was assigned to the pastoral charge of them by our presiding elder. At two of these appointments protracted meetings have been held. At the Grange House a church was organized and eight new members were added.

At Zion Grove there was already a newly-organized church, in a community until recently thinly settled, but now rapidly filling up. Here we continued six days, and received twenty-eight members by form of Discipline, four by transfer, two applications to be formally received at some future time, and baptized three infants. At the close of the meeting seven heads of families promised to hold family prayer, one of whom was a widow and a member of the Baptist Church. This was one of the most interesting revivals we have seen for many years. Frequently during the meeting every sinner present would ask an interest in the prayers of Christians. We think this meeting the beginning of a general reformation in the community.

Yours fraternally,

C. MCDONALD.

MORTON, MISS., August 15, 1874.

SELMA DISTRICT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: On Saturday evening, July 11, we closed a very interesting session of the Conference for the Selma district, Alabama Conference, at Rehoboth, Wilcox county. All the preachers were present, and the different charges well represented save one. The District Conference is gaining favor with the people, and is even now a power in the church. The discussions were free, pleasant and profitable to both pastors and laymen. The preaching was remarkably good, and in the spirit and power of the Holy Ghost. Dr. A. S. Andrews and Bros. H. D. Moore and A. M. Jones rendered valuable aid, and preached, much to the delight and profit of the large congregations in attendance.

Our next Conference will be held at Choctaw Corner.

The delegates elect to the Annual Conference are: W. E. Kennedy, John Massey, John H. Malone and C. C. Curtis. Alternates—L. W. Reeves and Euclid Johnson.

This has been a year of great privation, but the prospect for a crop is good. We will wait and see, and report at Opelika.

A. J. BRIGGS, P. E.

GEORGETOWN CT., NEAR CRYSTAL SPRINGS, MISSISSIPPI.—Mr. Editor: As we have just closed one of the best revivals that I have ever attended, I take this privilege of reporting success.

Our first protracted effort was at Mount Pleasant. At that point our meeting lasted only four days. On account of some surrounding circumstances it closed several days sooner than it ought to have done. But it resulted in a general building up of the church; perhaps one conversion; no accessions.

Our second protracted meeting was held at Bethesda church, and was continued nine days. We had some twenty conversions, and about twenty accessions from the world. Others have joined by letter, and others will yet come in. We can safely calculate an increase of thirty members. The church was wonderfully revived. In fact I do not believe that there is a single member who is not greatly built up.

There will be yet at least three protracted meetings held in the bounds of the circuit. The Lord has greatly blessed us on the Georgetown work.

BASCOM T. PEARSON, P. C.

CRYSTAL SPRINGS, MISS., Aug. 8, 1874.

VERNON CT., LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: On the eleventh instant we closed an excellent meeting at Douglass church, eight miles east of Vienna, on the road leading to Trenton, Louisiana. Our meeting lasted seven days. Bros. R. T. Parish, John W. Hearn, B. F. Platt and John C. Read were present. The result of these labors was forty conversions, twenty-six accessions, the reclamation of many backsliders, and the church there was greatly revived. We think we never witnessed a deeper work of grace save at Vernon, Louisiana. On Wednesday night, the twelfth instant, we commenced a meeting there, assisted by Bros. H. O. White and J. C. Read, and continued it until the Wednesday night following. The brethren preached effectually to the pulling down of the strong man of sin. Here also we had very large and well-ordered congregations. The gleanings of this meeting were as follows: Twenty-eight conversions, twenty-nine accessions, and a deep-felt sense of God's presence in the congregation. We never saw a fuller and more powerful display of the subduing grace of the Holy Ghost. We have witnessed the conversion of more souls, many times, but never felt more conscious of the Master's presence in the preaching and the hearing of his word. We beg the indulgence of a generous public in saying that we have never found a more generous and hospitable people anywhere. We find none who are more orderly and respectful to God's ministers and house. Almost every man, woman and child in Vernon, and for miles around, goes to church. There is less denominational prejudice here than we ever found in a town before. Our Baptist and Presbyterian brethren and sisters are as liberal in the support of Methodist ministers as are our own members. During the meeting about which we are writing merchants and saloon-keepers closed doors and attended church.

J. M. MCKEE, P. C.

VIENNA, LA., August 20, 1874.

CAMDEN DIST., ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The fifth session of the Camden District Conference was held in the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Camden, Alabama, August 6-8, 1874. Rev. J. W. Shores, presiding elder, occupied the chair, and J. M. Mason was elected secretary and T. Y. Abernethy, assistant secretary.

The business of the Conference was proceeded with according to the directions of the Discipline, each preacher being required to give a special report on each of the items of business.

In all the charges but two the spiritual state of the church has improved somewhat during the year. The ordinances of the church are well attended. Prayer meetings are held in all the charges but one. There are but very few class meetings kept up.

There is much unoccupied missionary territory within the bounds of the district, but in view of the condition of our missionary treasury the Conference made no definite recommendation as to sending the gospel to these outlying regions.

There has been a very remarkable revival with regard to Sunday-schools since the last session of the Annual Conference. There are now in this district forty-nine Sunday schools, with one thousand seven hundred and nine pupils, being an increase of twenty-one Sunday schools and eight hundred and twenty-two pupils during the year.

With the exception of one or two circuits, the stewards on this district have adopted no definite financial system, and consequently the salaries of the preachers are very far in arrears, and the contributions to church purposes small. In view of this condition of affairs the following resolutions were adopted by the Conference:

Resolved, That we recommend to the stewards on the several circuits to insist on prompt quarterly payments from our people.

Resolved, That the amounts assessed for the support of the preachers be paid in full, and that every member of the church should be assessed in proportion to his or her ability to pay.

Resolved, That the stewards submit the assessments to the persons assessed, subject to their ratification.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication, and that every pastor read the same in all his congregations.

Resolved, That when the assessments mentioned in the second and third resolutions are made by the stewards, and ratified by the parties assessed, if there be a willful failure in payments, the names of all such delinquents may be read out before the congregation at the last appointment at each church, if the stewards see proper to do so.

The following persons were elected delegates to the next Annual Conference: E. M. Lazenby, P. D. Burford, R. W. Russell and Rev. M. Padgett. Alternates—Rev. A. R. A. Purifoy, E. Burson, D. T. Sermons and W. C. Parish.

Evergreen was selected as the place for holding the next session of the District Conference.

Rev. A. S. Andrews, D. D., president of the Southern University, Rev. A. D. McVoy, president of the Centenary Female College, and Prof. John Massey, principal of the Centenary Male Institute, were with us during the session of the Conference, and addressed us upon the subject of education. The Conference adopted a resolution recommending the schools over which they respectively preside to the patronage of the Methodist people in Camden district.

J. M. MASON, Sec.

PAPER flour barrels are being made in Iowa. They are said to be airtight and waterproof, to weigh much less than the ordinary wooden barrels, and to be able to stand more rough usage. One of the manufacturers predicts that in five years every barrel of Western flour will be sent East in barrels made from the straw the wheat grew on.

THERE is no real use in riches, except it is in the distribution; the rest is but conceit.—Bacon.

BOTH SIDES.

A man in his carriage was riding along,
A gaily-dressed wife by his side;
In satin and laces she looked like the queen,
And he like a king in his pride.

A wood-sawyer stood on the street as they passed:
The carriage and couple he eyed;
And said, as he worked with his saw on a log:
"I wish I was rich and could ride."

The man in the carriage remarked to his wife:
"One thing I would give if I could—
I'd give all my wealth for the strength and the health
Of the man who is sawing the wood."

A pretty young maid, with a bundle of work,
Whose face as the morning was fair,
Went tripping along with a smile of delight,
While humming a love-breathing air.

She looked on the carriage; the lady she saw,
Arrayed in apparel so fine,
And said in a whisper: "I wish from my heart
Those sashes and laces were mine."

The lady looked out on the maid with her work,
So tidy in her calico dress,
And said: "I'd relinquish position and wealth
Her beauty and youth to possess."

Thus it is in this world—whatever our joy,
Our minds and our time we employ
In longing and sighing for what we have not,
Ungrateful for what we enjoy.

A Terrible Famine in Palestine.

FIVE THOUSAND PERSONS SUPPOSED TO HAVE PERISHED—VILLAGES DESERTED—PEOPLE SUBSISTING ON GRASS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The Rev. Dr. Clark, of the American Board of Foreign Missions, has received a letter from the Rev. J. O. Barrows, of Cesarea, dated July 10, in which he gives some thrilling details of the terrible famine now prevailing in that region.

Mr. Barrows writes: "While at Yodegat, which is eighty or ninety miles north of us, I witnessed the ravages of the famine, which is very severe, and also beyond, toward Angora. Many villages are entirely deserted; in some, one or two, three or four families, or parts of families, remain; in the district of Sungartu, which is beyond Yodegat, and in which city there is a Protestant church, as many as five thousand persons have died of starvation; but the horrors of this famine are indescribable. Many people have subsisted on grass for weeks, and then died. The beggars have flocked to the cities, and there many of them have died, because they could not get a morsel of bread. Old men, mothers with babies at their breasts, young men that have become children, young boys and girls half naked, begging, crying, fainting and dying.

"Bodies have been in the streets one, two and even three or four days before their burial, and the dogs have feasted on them.

"Many of our Protestant communities and families have suffered greatly. At Smigartu some of the brethren have sold house, stop, household furniture, bed-clothing, everything, and now must beg or starve, and perhaps they will both beg and starve. In one village there was one Protestant family; the father, mother and all the children but two have died of starvation.

"In the village of Injifi there was a pleasant little Protestant community, several of whom were members of the church, with the preacher residing with them, but they were poor. This preacher went to Yodegat and purchased flour, becoming responsible for the pay himself, and so kept alive six families. Now, unless the preacher can be paid, his creditors will take everything from him."

Bishop Cummins Deposed.

The following report from the Right Rev. B. B. Smith, senior Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, and Bishop of Kentucky, conveys the official notice of the deposition of Bishop George D. Cummins from the ministry of the church, and from his position as assistant Bishop of the diocese:

THE REPORT.

Whereas, The standing committee of the diocese of Kentucky, duly convened in the vestry-room of Christ church, Louisville, on the eighteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord 1873, did certify to me, the Right Rev. Benjamin Bosworth Smith, D. D., LL. D., Bishop of Kentucky, and senior Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, the fact that the Right Rev. George D. Cummins, D. D., for some time assistant Bishop of the diocese of Kentucky, had abandoned the communion of said church, which certificate is in the words following: "The standing committee of the diocese of Kentucky, duly convened in accordance with canon 8, title 2, do hereby certify to the senior Bishop above named that the Right Rev. George David Cummins, D. D., for some time assistant Bishop of said diocese of Kentucky, has abandoned the communion of said church:"

Of which record was duly made.

And whereas, Upon receiving said notice I gave notice on the twenty-second day of November, 1873, to the above-named Right Rev. George David Cummins, D. D., that unless he shall within six months make declaration that the facts alleged in said certificate are false he will be deposed from the ministry of this church; And whereas, No such declaration has been made within said time, neither has the Right Rev. George David Cummins, D. D., transmitted to me any retraction of the acts or declarations constituting his offense:

Be it therefore known that, on this the twenty-fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord 1874, in the vestry-room of St. Peter's church, New York city,

I, Benjamin—Bosworth—Smith, above named, Bishop of the diocese of Kentucky, and senior Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, with the consent of a majority of the members of the House of Bishops, as hereinbefore enumerated, and in the terms of the canon in such case made and provided, do pronounce the said George David Cummins, D. D., deposed to all intents and purposes from the ministry of this church, and from all the rights, privileges, powers and dignities pertaining to the office of Bishop in the same.

In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

B. B. SMITH,
Bishop of the Diocese of Kentucky, and Senior Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States.

The names of the consenting Bishops are given, thirty-six in all. The name of Bishop Bedell, of Ohio, is not given, nor the Bishops of Connecticut and Maine.

Colored Methodist General Conference.

The third General Conference of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America met in Center Street church, Louisville, Kentucky, on Wednesday, August 5. Delegates were present from a number of Annual Conferences, but not a quorum until the afternoon session. Bishops Miles, Holsey and Lane were in attendance. The Rev. E. B. Martin, pastor of Collins chapel, in this city, was elected secretary.

On the second day standing committees were appointed and rules of order adopted. Then the address of the Bishops was read by Bishop Holsey. After referring to the events which have occurred since the last session, the Bishops proceed to recommend that as few changes as possible be made in the Book of Discipline. They say that the Book Concern requires most serious attention and readjustment. It has been a success, and, if rightly managed, will continue to do good. At the last General Conference the Book Concern was located in Memphis, but the book committee became convinced that its removal was absolutely necessary, and accordingly it was removed to Louisville, where it has since been a success—is paying its way and making some dividends. The Christian Index, the official paper, is in a thriving condition, but needs either to be enlarged or to be published oftener than monthly. The Sunday school cause is treated as a matter of first importance. The present law is scarcely plain enough, especially in regard to the election of Sunday school superintendents. The publication of a Sunday school paper, to be called the Sunday School Index, is recommended, with a lesson for each Sunday in the year. The cause of missions is unqualified; something has been done, but much more needs to be done. The address says: "The very name of Methodism is perfumed with the fragrance of soul-seeking and soul-saving." The subject of education and ministerial training, it is held, is the question of the session. The people are all willing to contribute to this cause, and the means can be obtained to accomplish the end in view. The Bishops having, at the last session, been appointed a committee to mature "a plan of education," have prepared a paper on the subject, and will submit it in due time. The Bishops recommend that no additional Bishop or Bishops be elected, the four now in office being sufficient. Upon the whole the address is very interesting, well prepared, moderate and wise.

On the third day the College of Bishops presented their report on a plan of education, from which it appeared that they had taken steps toward building an institution for the training of those designed for the ministry, and had purchased grounds for the college in the city of Louisville. The report was referred to the committee on education. A prize was offered by Bishop Miles to the delegate who should obtain the largest cash donation toward the erection of the college building.

A resolution was adopted instructing the presiding Bishop to appoint a committee of nine on fraternal greeting to the Methodist Episcopal Church South. A resolution to extend a peaceful and fraternal greeting to other religious denominations of the country was laid on the table.

Western Methodist.

THE Romish cabinet and cardinals are discounting the death of the Pope, by endeavoring to have everything at the Vatican swept and garnished in anticipation of that no distant event. To this end they are negotiating, it is said, with the governments of Austria, France and Portugal to obtain the renunciation of their right of excluding candidates for the papacy at the next papal election. We shall see whether these governments will be sufficiently docile to surrender the veto, the exercise of which they have claimed for so many generations.

A LITTLE BOY on being asked, by the examiner of a public school recently, who is the prime minister of England, promptly replied: "Mr. Spurgeon." That bright youth may become prime minister himself some day. Would all preachers be honored with a similar answer from little boys of their own congregations? It is one thing to be known by, and another to impress one's self upon, the young.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 1874.

WORDS.

BY ROSALIE CAMPBELL.

Words that fill the blazoned page
Of history with their fair renown,
And gain in luster from each age
That praises as it hands them down.
Crown with laurel wreaths of fame
Few among earth's battling throng,
Nor oft inspires the hero's name
The sculptor's art or poet's song.

But words, no less than deeds, have power
To mold a life for good or ill.
And one chance spoken in an hour
Of idleness may often fill
A weary heart with hope and strength,
Or cheer a shrinking comrade on,
Till, o'er the waste of years, at length
He backward looks—his goal is won.

Or careless words may oft repress
Some noble impulse springing high,
Chill the heart's gushing tenderness,
Or check the tones of sympathy,
And leave some shadowed life in gloom
No gleams of sunlight may dispel,
Where hope and joy may never bloom,
Where love ne'er weaves its mystic spell.

Then, though actions crowned with glory
May not win for each a name
That shall live in song and story,
And a nation's homage claim,
Words are ours; and though, unthinking,
Neither heed nor care we give,
In some heart they may be sinking,
Through time and life beyond to live.

Letter from Mexico.

The following letter from Bro. Daves reaches us a good while after date, but it will well repay perusal.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 1, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: Ours, you must know, is comparatively a new republic. It has not even possessed the advantage of new material. A good many things necessarily are in the rough—in a developing state. Among others may be classed postal affairs—in postage, carrying and delivery. We have been much discomforted by the non-receipt of papers—the ADVOCATE in particular—and letters that we know were mailed to us. But while a nation may be born in a day, it requires years for it to get its full growth. So, though we suffer some personal discomforts and disappointments, we would not complain, with such gratifying assurances that we are ascending the hill, daily reaching purer climes and a brighter sun. I doubt whether the nations of the earth ever witnessed a more sincere and earnest struggle for an ideal republic than is now being made by Mexico. The captious critic can find much of which to complain, and the casual observer much of which to condemn. But the same class of mind can criticise Niagara, and complain of Popocatapetl or the "Woman in White." It requires time to build up a republic. And for Mexico, considering her history for the past three hundred years, her more recent struggles, her peculiar trials, her more peculiar people, her climate and productions—for these all bear their part in the sum total—it requires much time to work out the great problem. This universal readiness to condemn ought to be held in reserve, and give Mexico a fair chance. She has a noble ambition. She has a laudable aspiration to take her place by the side of the nations of the earth. The work is going on. By and by the deadly conflict now raging between the proud bird of Liberty and the fiery-tongued serpent will end in a complete victory for the right; and, vaulting from the lowly cactus upon which he now rests, will mount aloft, flying as high or higher than your own, sending forth as glad shouts of triumph.

We have been much distressed with accounts of the devastating floods visited upon so large a part of our fair and beloved South. Our tears and sorrows have mingled with yours. We have essayed to raise our voices in prayer, meeting yours at a throne of grace, that the sad event might be overruled for good. Your article, "The Lord on the Floods," was timely and appropriate. What with drouths and floods, taxation and misgovernment, it does seem that the poor fated South, once so lovely and smiling, is to sit in sackcloth and ashes. Oh, how long before sunny days shall come again? While you are suffering from rains and storms—the heavens above clouded, the earth beneath deluged—we are basking in the flood-tide glory of a tropical spring. The sun is bright, the earth dry, the air balmy, and all nature luxuriates in full maturity. This is not named to our advantage or to excite your envy. Even to the self-exile, native land, with gloom and disaster, is dearer at times, and much more to be desired than all the glories of the earth beside. We sympathize with you in your afflictions, and hunger for your companionship—crave a fellowship with you in your sufferings.

The line of demarkation, however, is so lightly drawn with us that the seasons lose much of their vigor and intensity. The coming in of one is with soft tread and light; the departure of the other is not abrupt or harsh. The specific poetry of each is lost. Thompson's "Seasons" would never have soothed and softened the reading world had he lived in Mexico. Many impressive lessons are taught by vigorous contrasts. From January 1 (the time of our arrival) to the present there has not been a day that the sun has not looked down upon us brightly and cheerfully, at times almost oppressively. And the nights are as clear, bright and deeply blue as poet's dream. I have read much of the soft and beautiful effulgence of an Italian moon. Surely, in the richness and fullness of mellowed splendors, she cannot excel her tropical sister. And as thus we have had a genial sun every day, so there has been no day, viewed separately, but that one could easily imagine that the full reign of spring birds, summer flowers, fruits, berries and vegetables had come upon the land. The equableness of this climate is something wonderful. You are alike comfortable in fall dress or undress—sleep equally comfortable, each night in the year, under a pair of blankets, or lighter, or at times no covering at all. Still, and possibly from this cause, there is a great deal of sickness in Mexico. Medicos bastantes and boticos are almost as numerous as pulque shops. The sickness is usually of a light character, and made serious and fatal to many of the lower classes by their uncomfortable quarters, want of attention and absence of all comforts. A great many of those who are able to afford it spend the summer months in neighboring towns near the base of the surrounding mountains. Many of these little towns, much higher than the City of Mexico, are perfectly enchanting. From their public buildings, and sometimes from the streets themselves, you look out over the beautiful valley of Mexico, near the center of which stands in grandeur the famous city of the Montezumas. Some of these views are unexcelled. You may easily count, from a distance of several miles, each church spire, and they are many, in Mexico. Above them all stand, in silent grandeur, the tower of the magnificent cathedral. Our far-famed black-eyed senoras and senoritas are exempt from one of the chief sources of trouble and vexation to your American ladies, and that is the fashionable bonnet. Spring and summer, fall and winter, is all one to them. No matter how often the capricious empress of fashion issues her edicts, they reach not this bright clime of flowers. When a lady appears on the street bonneted or hatted, with now and then an exception, you may be sure she is not to the "manor born." Females of all classes appear in public, on the promenades or public drives, bonnetless. Senoras, in full dress, may be seen any day on the streets with (if any head covering) only a rich lace vail or shawl. Is this not an earthly paradise for the ladies?

Speaking of ladies, and thinking of mothers, wives and sisters, the central attraction and charm of home, I am reminded of the most painful deficiency found in the Spanish language. It has not the word "home." "Home, sweet, sweet home," in an earthly sense, cannot be trilled on the harp or warbled by rosy lips. In a very important sense, the people of Mexico have no home—that is, according to my ideal. They have splendid houses (las casas,) richly furnished, with music, pictures, books, etc. But the charm of home, the necessity to home—a fireside, with its hallowing influences and precious memories—is not to be found. The masses seek to supply the want thus created by out-door excitement—on the walks, drives, in theaters, balls, etc. I think this accounts, in a great measure, for the eccentricities of Spanish and Mexican character. Feast days are a great luxury. Here is a specially licensed freedom from the house (la casa,) that must of necessity be dull and monotonous without the strongest tie and sweet charm of home. The Catholic Church has availed herself of this weakness, and Rome has a special saint and feast for many days in the year. But this defect is perhaps more the result of natural than artificial causes. There are reasons to believe that in the time of one generation it would be changed, if the climate required fire-places and hearthstones.

But this desultory, rambling letter has grown too long. Forgive the intrusion.

Wishing to be remembered in much love to the brethren,

I am, very affectionately,

J. T. DAVES.

The Temperance Rule.

MR. EDITOR: We think that S., your correspondent in two late numbers of the ADVOCATE, on the subject of temperance, needs a passing notice. He has taken strong ground against the principle of total abstinence.

First, he says that by the action of the late General Conference the old law was abrogated and a new one substituted, and, to take the restrictive word "beverage" out of it, the church would be authorized to make and sell and drink whisky. We only have to say, in answer, that to take away the restrictive word "net," a shorter one than "beverage," out of the law which prohibits swearing, and the church would be authorized to swear as much as it likes.

But we deny that the old law was abrogated! The whole design and scope of the action of the late General Conference was to add to the existing law which prohibited drinking spirituous liquors, unless in cases of necessity, a law to prohibit their manufacture and sale, unless for specific purposes. And as the College of Bishops had decided that the old law, in its prohibition, included the manufacture and sale, as well as drinking spirituous liquors, the General Conference designed to put it in such language as would be readily understood by everybody, which, we think, it did, notwithstanding the quibbling about the technicality of some of the terms used.

The objection which S. makes, that there will be difficulty in enforcing the law because of its vagueness, does not amount to anything, in our judgment, as the better portion of society will always seek to know the spirit and design of the law, and will be governed accordingly; and those who are less conscientious, and who are disposed to quibble, would take exceptions to a law if it was brought by an angel pure from the throne of heaven.

We can hardly imagine why S. should speak so disparagingly of all temperance organizations, or why he should be so jealous that the church should adopt some of their terms or measures. Has any temperance society ever injured him? Have they ever harmed anybody? We have belonged to the Sons of Temperance, Good Templars, Friends of Temperance and the United Friends, and consequently we are more or less familiar with their terms; and we were in the General Conference and on the committee of temperance, and if there was any one wider awake upon the subject we did not meet him; yet in all the discussions which we heard there was but one single allusion made to any temperance organization, and that was on the subject of the literature of the church and of the National Temperance Society. If any term was culled from a temperance organization, to be added to church law, as such, we were not aware of it; but if a good thing had been gotten out of a temperance society, it would not be the first time that a good thing came out of Nazareth.

Again, S. says: "The General Conference found itself face to face with an overwhelming sentiment which is sweeping over the country on the subject of temperance, and the church must adapt her legislation to temperance societies. The church once adapted her legislation to the overwhelming abolition sentiment which swept over the country, and what was the result?" Well, the sentiment in the illustration is very good to arouse Southern prejudice; but the logic is very unfortunate for the argument of S. The abolition sentiment prevailed and the institution of slavery died. Would not the church do well to adopt a sentiment that would as effectually put to death the evil of intemperance?

There are several other assertions which S. has made which will not go unnoticed, such as: "No man has a right to make a moral law," etc.; and, what is more gratuitous: "There is no Scripture which, by deduction or implication, teaches total abstinence." J. P.

MANSFIELD, Louisiana.

Light Sown.

"Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart."—Psalms xcvii, 11.

How beautiful the figure, and how clearly does the contrast of "light" and "gladness" bring it out. In nature light makes the beauty of God's work a joy to the eye. It brings out the perfect beauty of the flower, gives luster to the dark green of the leaf, and forms a screen on which shadows assume forms revealing beauties otherwise hidden. The sea-spray in its flight becomes a glorious gem in a bath of light, and the drop of dew rivals the ruby in splendor. How brilliant, in their changing hues, become the plumage of birds and the scales of fish as the rays of light meet their change of position; and the same processes of beautifying are seen in creation generally. Now this action of light is the source of much that gladdens our life. In its operations our minds become interested, and through this interest many avenues of gladness are opened to us. The friction of life needs counter-friction, and God has given us the faculty of soothing this friction by taking in the oil of gladness, as it is furnished us through the soft medium of light. We are tired by our labor, fretted by disappointment, tried by many things, and the body and the mind suffer, when some sweet landscape, bathed in light, opens before us, and instantly the sorrows of the moment are forgotten.

But it is not only in nature that this matter of light becomes to us a "thing of joy." It has also the power to cast its halo over the soul; and to this end God has sown light in the world. Though we come into life in darkness, and our spiritual natures are in affinity with it, nevertheless light touches every point on our way, and beckons us to walk in its full blaze. Hell, when man departed from God, sent its dark cloud upon the earth to blot out hope. Heaven, in the overflowing of its love, sent "light" to recondnct man back to God, and reinstate hope in his heart. The dark shade from the former tended to dry up the native sap and beauty of the soul; the "light" of the latter renewed the life of the soul, and crowned it with a beauty surpassing its first loveliness. Let us note, however, that this "light" is possessed by those only who are right-doers, and that its companion, gladness, attends upon those only who walk by the rule of God. This truth is worth serious thought. By its light we are shown the causes of so much of failure in the Christian life of many men and women, and the reason why so many are sorrowful and not glad. They are yet too much in darkness, and thus exclude the full play of the light. To grow, and rejoice in growing, they must bask in the full sunlight. The sap which feeds the soul must be energized by contact with the light of life, and then, as it flows through duct and vein, will pulsations of gladness gambol in every chamber and gallery of the spirit. When we stand out under the full tide of this light, open every avenue to our spiritual nature, turn to catch every spire of this holy light, then shall we be conscious every day of its expulsive power to cast out darkness, lessen the throbs of doubt, and roll in upon the soul high waves of gladness, on whose crests we shall mount high above the darkness, and see the shimmer of the mountain-peaks of God's habitations prepared for the children of light.

Reader, God has sown light broadcast on thy pathway. Art thou walking in it? Is it sweeter to thee than mere natural light, and in its possession do you gain a better view of thy future destiny? If so, thou art happy; for in this light you find Jesus, and to find Jesus is to find eternal life, and eternal life assures us of an inheritance in light that is full of glory. No sun nor moon is needed in that land, for God and the Lamb are the light thereof.

INDIANOLA.

An Inquiry.

MR. EDITOR: Permit me, through the ADVOCATE, to ask for information on the following subject: Is it the custom and practice of the Methodist Episcopal Church South to invite and admit to the sacrament of the Lord's Supper persons known to be unbaptized and not members of any church? I have been a member of the Methodist Church since the eighth of January, 1834, and had never heard such an idea advanced from her pulpit until recently. If such be the practice of the church, I, with many others of the laity, have been in great ignorance on this point. If this be the practice, where is the dividing line between the church and the world? This, to my mind at least, defeats the organization of the church. The church was organized for the express purpose of gathering into her fold all who desire to flee the wrath to come, to save their own souls, and glorify God in their salvation. The command to all such is to come out from the world and be separate from sinners. This is the clear duty of all, as laid down in the word of God, who may be desirous of leading pious and Christian lives, and all such will seek admission into the church. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper is one clearly of the church, and not of the world, and as such is intended to be administered to church members—those who have attached themselves to the church, and who by this public act have manifested their desire for salvation. It does appear to me that those alone should receive the sacrament at the hands of the ministry, when we consult the leading principles of Christianity as laid down in the Bible. It is a serious and solemn act, even for the best in the church, to partake of the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. But to see men of the world come to the Lord's Supper would strip it at once of its solemnity. My mind, I must confess, has been deeply pained and exercised on this subject since I heard it announced as the practice of the church. I love the Methodist Church and her doctrines. I believe them to be the doctrines of the Bible, and those that glorify God, and in his hands shall convert the world. The Methodist Church, from her first organization as a church, has met with stern and unflinching opposition, but thus far, in the providence of God, she has been sustained amid all the fiery trials to which she has been subjected, and will be sustained to the end of time by that same providence if true to that sacred trust committed to her care. I have written more than I had intended, but it is the interest which I feel in this matter, and the spiritual good and prosperity of the church, which must plead for me an apology in thus trespassing on your time and patience.

Fraternally yours,

J. C. TAYLOR, M. D.

FORKLAND, GREENE Co., ALA., Aug. 12, 1874.

Church Membership.

MR. EDITOR: In the ADVOCATE of July 2 I find an article on church membership, signed S. P. Richardson, upon which I wish to make a few remarks; not, however, for the sake of argument, but, as I trust, for the love of truth. I am not acquainted with Bro. Richardson; but as we are brethren in the same great cause, and have the same Master, I think it perfectly right, if one finds the other in error, that he should endeavor to correct him. I shall try to be candid, but kind. It is a bad case, and will therefore require rough treatment. That the subject of church membership has been discussed at great length in our religious papers I admit. I also fear that the faith of many has been shaken by reading those articles; and why not, seeing the great minds of the church are divided on the subject?

But to the article. The first point to be noticed is the grave charge that he brings against the entire church, in these words: "The church has been deficient in the definition of man's real condition and relation to God." This is saying a great deal. Perhaps he meant to say that, according to his opinion, the "definition" was "deficient." Well, suppose it is. What can be done? If such minds as Wesley, Watson, Clarke, Coke, Asbury, McKendree, Soule, Pierce, and scores of others, have failed to make clear the "real condition and relation" of man "to God," what can a mind of such narrow capacity as mine do? But Bro. Richardson agrees to "give the true position of man in this respect." Let us see. "Adam was created not morally holy, but by creation perfect." "He did not fall from grace, nor from the church, for there was no grace. He fell from the holiness in which he was created." This seems to be the foundation upon which he builds his argument. So we will only examine the foundation. If it falls, the structure falls.

1. "Adam was created not morally holy." Is not this blasphemy? The Bible says man was created "in the image of God." Bro. Richardson says he was "not morally holy." Isn't that equivalent to saying that God is not morally holy? Who can deny it? Bro. Richardson surely don't believe it. If "Adam was not morally holy," then he was morally unholy. This is contrary to the Scriptures. But he must have been holy in some respect, for Bro. Richardson says: "He fell from the holiness in which he was created." But if he "was not morally holy," and fell from that state, what kind of a fall was it?

2. He says: "He (Adam) did not fall from grace, for there was no grace." This is all new to me. From what chapter or verse in the Bible he got the information he didn't say. I suppose he got it where the Baptist preacher got his when one of his brethren, Mr. Jones, accosted him thus: "Bro. Simpson, who made the devil?" "Ah, Bro. Jones, that's away back of Genesis." Mr. Watson says grace "signifies divine influence upon the soul." If there was no divine influence on Adam's soul, then of course "he was not morally holy."

Now, if this is "the true position" that Bro. Richardson presents to "the church," I fear he will get but few thanks for it. Not that I suppose that he works for thanks; still one likes to see his work appreciated. If I have misrepresented Bro. Richardson, it has not been done intentionally, and therefore I shall expect his forgiveness. I don't think any one who reads carefully his article to which I have referred will understand him otherwise than as I have. I will add that the true "condition and relation of man to God" is clearly defined in the Scriptures—so clear "that a wayfaring man, though a fool, need not err therein." "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

T. B. WALDEN.

MAYERSVILLE, Miss., July 11, 1874.

WISDOM and truth, the offspring of the sky, are immortal; but cunning and deception, the meteors of the earth, after glittering for a moment, must pass away.

Obituaries.

MARY ELLA, daughter of Mr. S. and Mrs. M. J. Petty, and granddaughter of Rev. A. T. M. Fly, of sacred memory, was born April 21, 1873, and died of congestion, June 4, 1874.

THE subject of this memoir, MELISSA M., daughter of David and Sarah J. Hughes, was born in Leake county, Mississippi, July 4, 1860; was baptized by Bro. Ford when two years old, and died in Franklin county, Mississippi, May 16, 1874.

It may emphatically be said of her that she was the child of affliction the greater part of her life. She was a very kindly-disposed little girl. Her affections were closely wound around her parents, sisters and friends. She was much attached to religion and religious people. She delighted in prayer and the songs of Zion, though she made no open profession of religion. A few days before her death, in conversation with her ma, she exclaimed: "I love everybody." Truly the spirit of him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not," was there. "We love God because he first loved us," says an apostle; and in this instance there was clearly a reciprocity of love.

A FRIEND.

SISTER CAROLINE HALES departed this life July 6, 1874. Sister Hales was born November 16, 1819, and was married July 1, 1841. Her husband, Bro. Alexander Hales, was slain by the enemy of the Confederate States in the defense of his country, leaving Sister Hales with a large family of children to support; yet in the midst of all her troubles she was firm to her integrity, to God and her church, and by her faithful exertions she has raised up her children until they are large enough to support themselves. Before the Lord called her hence she was lingering for twelve months with heart disease. Although her suffering was very severe for several weeks before her death, she bore it with great patience. The last time I called to see her she was very pale and weak, and almost breathless from a recent paroxysm of shortness of breath. She rallied a little, and soon she was talking of the goodness of God and the love of the Savior. Then she said that the time was near at hand when she would be in heaven, there to rest with the blessed Savior forever. I then sung "The Dying Christian," and prayed with her; and as I rose from my knees she exclaimed: "Oh, blessed Savior, how sweet the song!" As I bid her farewell on that occasion I felt as if I was shaking hands with a pilgrim just about to enter in through the gates into the city. A week or more after this, late in the afternoon, they discovered that the time of her departure was near at hand. She called for her family to come in, that she might give them a parting farewell; and, after she had given them such instructions as she wished concerning their temporal affairs, she then bid them farewell, exhorting those in the church to live faithful, and those out of the church to repent of their sins and become Christians, and meet her in heaven.

JOHN H. EVANS, P. C.

POLKVILLE, Smith Co., Miss., July 27, 1874.

MRS. MARY E. HICKS (maiden name, Jackson) was born March 15, 1839, and died, at Red Sulphur Springs, Virginia, on Thursday, July 16, 1874, of that insidious disease and fell destroyer, consumption.

Sister Hicks was a native of Hinds county, Mississippi; during the war, while a refugee at the springs, east Mississippi, she was married to Bro. Charles W. Hicks, of that place, January 24, 1864. In the fall of the same year she joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, under the pastoral care of the Rev. Dr. Spillman. Shortly afterward they moved to Clinton, Hinds county, Mississippi, where she lived an active and useful member of the church of her choice until the close of her life. She was confined to her house and room for more than six months, a great sufferer, fading gradually under the withering touch of that fatal malady. By the advice of her physician she was taken to the Red Sulphur Springs, with the hope that the travel, with the change of air and water, might prove beneficial, if not a cure; but all that skill and affection could procure for her proved unavailing. When told that she was dying she calmly remarked: "It is sooner than I expected."

Sister Hicks was one of the most affectionate wives and mothers I have ever had the pleasure to know. It was hard for her to be separated from her devoted husband and darling little boy; but after she was told that she must die she seemed perfectly resigned, and gave directions concerning her burial. Among other directions she requested not to be dressed in black, saying that she did not want to meet her Savior in mourning. Just before she breathed her last her weeping husband, standing by her side, asked her if she knew him. She answered: "Know you? Yes. I can't see you, but all is beautiful and glorious. I see Jesus." She took an affectionate leave of all, and thus quietly and peacefully fell asleep in Jesus, in sure and blessed hope of a blissful immortality.

May the Lord bless and comfort our bereaved brother, relatives and church in their deep affliction.

G. F. THOMPSON.

MARTHA COSBY, consort of Rev. R. B. Ricketts, youngest child of James O. Cosby and his wife, Margaret McCall, was born in Wilkinson county, Mississippi, October 13, 1813.

The family residence being within two miles of Bethel camp ground, whose history forms an important chapter in the history of Methodism in Louisiana and Mississippi, she grew up almost under the shadow of the modest frame church that until recently stood upon this consecrated spot. Here, from her infancy, she heard the story of the cross from the lips of such men as Winans, Lane, Drake and Burruss, and these lessons were still further impressed upon her young heart by the conversation of these holy men around the fireside of her father, and, after his death, of her mother, where they were frequent and always welcome guests.

This was the best possible preparation for a life which, though generally peaceful and happy in its course, was marked by several periods of sorrow. She was not less fortunate in another association which contributed much to the formation of her character. The greater part of her education was at the female school of that "elect lady," Mrs. Andrews, afterward Mrs. Philip Fishburn, of Jackson, Louisiana, who has left the impress of her fervent piety and cultivated intellect upon so many noble women of the South. A peculiarly strong and tender attachment was here formed between the teacher and pupil—a friendship which lasted through life; indeed time seemed only to strengthen it, as years and sorrows only afforded additional opportunities to each to prove more fully the worth and devoted affection of the other.

Soon after the completion of her education Miss Cosby was married to John C. Christmas, of Clinton, Louisiana. Everything seemed to promise a long life of happiness to this young couple. Devotedly attached to each other, surrounded by many warm friends, in one of the most delightful villages of the State, they yielded themselves to the joys of young and requited love. But this bright prospect was soon overcast by the shadow of death. Within about a month from their marriage the husband suddenly sickened and died. This was indeed a terrible blow to the young wife. For a long time she seemed completely overwhelmed; her health failed, and a settled melancholy appeared to have clouded her spirit beyond the hope of relief. As time wore on, however, the kind ministrations of relatives and friends, and, more than all, the teachings and consolations of religion, overcame the great sorrow, and she gradually emerged from under the cloud. But a great and lasting change had been worked in her character—the joy, the buoyancy and gayety of youth had passed away forever, and in their stead were left a serene calmness of spirit that nothing could ruffle, a steadfast faith that never wavered or hesitated, and a tender, loving gentleness of manner that seemed only anxious for the welfare of others.

In 1840 she contracted a second marriage with Rev. R. B. Ricketts, then a member of the Mississippi Conference. She brought to this new relation all the zeal that love for her husband and devotion to duty could inspire, and he found himself strengthened and aided in his work by her earnest and loving co-operation. In 1844 they located and engaged in planting near Baton Rouge. Here they were prosperous and happy, and here the beauty of the character of the wife, the mother and the mistress found their best field for exhibition. The honored mistress of a cheerful and well-ordered home, the idol of husband, children and servants, surrounded by a large circle of devoted friends, engaged in every good word and work for the cause of her Master, this was the happiest period of her life. In 1860 they removed to Iberville parish. Here the war, with all its sorrows, found them. The accumulations of years of patient and successful industry were swept away, and they were called to mourn the loss of their oldest son, a young man of rare and brilliant promise, who died in the army, away from his friends and family, who could never even ascertain with certainty the place of his burial. All these sorrows, and the additional ones of poverty, advancing age and failing health, were met by Mrs. Ricketts with that serene courage that had marked her path way through life. Her death, which occurred at Godbolt's Well, Mississippi, on the twenty-sixth of December, 1873, was preceded by great physical suffering. But here, as in many a previous struggle, she was the victor; no pain could extort from her a murmur, no anguish, however severe or protracted, could for a moment shake her faith. She died in great peace, her last words being a prayer for those she loved.

She has left behind many who knew and loved her. We thank God for one more precious memory on earth, and that one more pure spirit has passed over the river before us and now awaits us on the other side.

F.

THE EYE THAT ALWAYS SEES.—When a very little boy I remember reading of a child who was in the habit of going to an upper room or loft where there was a store of apples; but as she went, from time to time, to steal these apples, she met with something that greatly troubled her, for there happened to have been placed in that store-room an old oil painting.

It was a large face, the eyes of which, go to what part of the room the little girl might, seemed to follow her; and they appeared to be saying to her, as she stooped down to take up the apples: "Ah! I see you. It is very naughty. I'll tell upon you. You are sure to be found out."

Well, this so annoyed the little girl from time to time, that she was determined to put a stop to this speech-ifying of these two great starling eyes; so she got a small knife or a pair of scissors and struck them out.

Ah! but there were still the two large holes in place of the eyes, and she never could look at them without thinking of the eyes, and what they used to say to her. She had put out the eyes; but she had not, nor could she, get rid of her conscience. Moreover, the very means she had adopted for stealing without rebuke only served to discover her guilt; for when what had befallen the painting came to be found out it led to such inquiries as at last to reveal the whole truth.—Episcopalian.

EVERY circumstance and situation has its peculiar temptations; therefore watch and pray.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 1874.

SEA DREAMS.

BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.

The waves are glad in breeze and sun,
The rocks are fringed with foam;
I walked once more a haunted shore,
A stranger, yet at home—
A land of dreams I roam!

Is this the wind, the soft sea wind
That stirred thy locks of brown?
Are these the rocks whose mosses know
The trail of thy light gown
Where boy and girl sat down?

I see the gray fort's broken wall,
The boats that rock below;
And, out at sea, the passing sails
We saw so long ago,
Rose-red in morning's glow.

The freshness of the early time
On every breeze is blown;
As glad the sea, as blue the sky—
The change is ours alone;
The saddest is my own!

A stranger now, a world-worn man
Is he who bears my name;
But thou, methinks, whose mortal life
Immortal youth became,
Art evermore the same.

Thou art not here, thou art not there,
Thy place I cannot see;
I only know that where thou art
The blessed angels be,
And heaven is glad for thee.

Forgive me if the evil years
Have left on me their skin;
Wash out, O soul so beautiful,
The many stains of mine
In tears of love divine!

Oh, turn to me that dearest face
Of all the sea hath known,
The reddest roses of thy lips,
Thy loose hair rippling down
In waves of golden brown!

Look forth once more through space and time,
And let thy sweet shade fall
In tenderest grace of soul and form
On memory's frescoed wall,
A shadow, and yet all!

Draw near, more near, forever dear!
Where'er I rest or roam,
Or in the crowded city streets,
Or by the blown sea foam,
The thought of thee is home!

Atlantic Monthly.

William Ellis, the Missionary of the South Seas.

BY WILLIAM R. BLISS.

Some forty years ago there was published in England, and reprinted in this country, a very interesting book called "Polynesian Researches." It was the most picturesque narrative of missionary enterprise at that time extant, and was considered worthy to take a place in literature by the side of Bishop Heber's "Journal." Its author was the Rev. William Ellis, who died not long ago, and of whom we are reminded by a biography of him just published in London.

This biography brings before us a man who, in his time, was an apostle in missionary achievements; one whose name ought not to be forgotten by the present generation. If there is any enterprise which ought to attract, beyond all others, the sympathy of religiously-minded men, it is that to which this missionary pioneer devoted himself, at a time when the triumphs of our Christian faith over the strongholds of idolatry in the South seas were very few and scanty.

William Ellis was born in London in 1794. The narrative of his early life is as genuine and unpretending a bit of autobiography as ever was written. His father was a mechanic, who held very liberal religious opinions. His mother, a woman of gentle disposition and sensitive spirit, had left her native town to enter domestic service. When six years old his father joined in a strike of workmen, and was compelled to migrate to Wisbeach, where the boy was employed at two shillings a week in winding, with one hand, cotton wicks for a candle-maker, and tending an invalid brother with the other hand. In his father's house was a volume of Captain Cook's voyages, illustrated with wonderful pictures of the South Sea Islands, which he read, and was thereby induced to spend odd sixpences, earned by holding a gentleman's horse, in buying other books of voyages and travels. Besides this taste for reading he formed a predilection for gardening, and at twelve years of ago he left his candle-making, and irregular attendance at school, to become an apprentice to a market gardener. From this situation he was promoted, at thirteen, to the service of a clergyman, whose library was opened to him when work in the garden was done. At seventeen he transferred himself to a large nursery garden near London, for the purpose of perfecting himself in a calling which he expected to follow always.

His turning-point was now at hand. In the clergyman's family he had acquired only a general reverence for religion, but on changing his place he became an inmate in a religious household which worshiped at an Independent chapel. He joined that communion, and became a teacher in a Sunday school, where he met a woman named Mary Mercy White, much resembling his own mother in her temperament, who was first moved, like himself, by an impressive sermon in Surrey chapel, to go out to preach the gospel to the heathen. That woman afterward became his wife.

He had just completed his twentieth year, November 4, 1814, when he addressed to the secretary of the London Missionary Society a formal application for employment. In this he said: * * * "I have but little to recommend me to the society, having had but little education, and most of what I have learned I have learned from observation. I have been accustomed to work in the garden, which occupation forms the chief part of my present employment. I received much encouragement from an article in the Evangelical Magazine, under the title of 'Qualifications for Missionaries,' after reading which I indulged a hope that, although my talents were of the lowest sort, yet I might be accepted. I now declare myself willing to follow wherever Providence may lead me. * * * I hope you will excuse all the faults, as I am ignorant of the rules for writing properly."

His personal examination by the committee gave the society confidence to engage him, and it was determined to send him straight to Africa. But this plan was changed, and he was then put into the charge of two clergymen, for a year's preparation previous to being ordained as a pastor. At the end of the year his destination was changed from Africa to the Society Islands in the South Pacific ocean.

Those delightful islands lie between sixteen and seventeen degrees south of the equator. Tahiti, the largest of the group, is a green mountain ridge, thirty miles long, rising some eight thousand five hundred feet out of the sea; indented by deep valleys, verdant amphitheaters and romantic glens; maintaining a fertile soil and a luxuriant vegetation. On a sunny day, fifty miles to leeward of it, you can smell its orange blossoms as you sail. It is now visited monthly by schooners from San Francisco, carrying the French mail, and bringing back fruits, for the French, inspired by papal influence, arbitrarily took possession of the island in 1842.

But in 1815 these islands were only a little known. They were discovered by a Spanish navigator in 1606, and all knowledge of them was concealed from the world until 1767, when Captain Wallis, sent by George the Third to make discoveries in the Pacific, stumbled upon them, believing himself to be their discoverer. The English flag which Captain Wallis hoisted and saluted upon the shore of Tahiti, as a token of the sovereignty of England, was taken down during the night, by orders of the native king, and placed in a temple to ornament an idol. But just sixty-two years afterward a successor of this Tahitian king wrote a letter to George the Fourth, asking permission to use the English flag as his national ensign. In 1769 Captain Cook arrived at Tahiti (whose name he confused into Otaheite, by misunderstanding native pronunciation,) accompanied by a scientific staff from England, for the purpose of observing the transit of Venus across the sun's disk. In 1769 the famous ship "Bounty" visited Tahiti to load a cargo of plants of the bread fruit-tree for the West Indies; and it was from this island that the mutineers of the "Bounty" sailed into their long and mysterious exile at Pitcairn.

The navigators, returning to England at that time, described the Society Islands in rapturous terms. There was the earthly paradise. The delicious climate, the abundant fruits, the voluptuous beauty of the women, the abominable rites of prevailing idolatry, were pictured too vividly even for the taste of a not very fastidious age. And probably for that reason the new London Missionary Society determined to direct its earliest efforts to evangelize a land

"Where every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile."

In 1796 the ship "Duff" was dispatched by the society, carrying thirty English missionaries to convert the natives of Tahiti and the other islands to Christianity. Most of these missionaries were men from a humble class of society, but they were earnest and honest, and their presence was a protection to trading vessels visiting the islands. Yet they were jeered by profligate sailors and adventurers who had made this archipelago their favorite refuge. A civil war arose, in which the missionaries were stripped of their property, four of them were murdered, and the rest driven into the mountains. Hostilities and conflicts between the natives and foreigners ensued. In 1816 the exasperated natives seized a large ship arriving at Papeiti, the principal harbor, and massacred her captain and part of her crew. To such an extent did hostility prevail that at last no unarmed vessel could remain in safety at the Society Islands.

Now arrives at Tahiti Mr. Ellis and his wife, after a passage of thirteen months from England. It was early in 1817, three years before our American missionaries arrived, on a similar errand, at the Sandwich Islands. He fortunately found that a favorable change had occurred in the political condition of the islands, and in the prospects of the mission. The surviving missionaries had come together on one of the smaller islands called Eimeo, and the native Christians numbered about fifty, while the whole population was about eleven thousand. The presence of a ruling and superior mind in the mission was needed, and that was what Mr. Ellis brought to it. After he had learned the language, he began the work for which he had been specially appointed by the society, and pursued it with such tact, manliness and energy that he became virtually the legislator of the islands, and to his labors the natives are pre-eminently indebted for the moral and social advantages which distinguish their present state from their original condition.

He now turned his attention to other islands in the Pacific ocean, especially to the Sandwich Islands, which are about two thousand five hundred miles north of Tahiti. Arriving there in 1823, he aided, by his counsel and experience, the American missionaries, and collected the materials for an interesting book called "A Tour Through Hawaii," which gave the first information, ever published, of the volcanoes of Mauna Loa. The picture of the crater of Kilauea, in his book, continues, to this day, to serve our publishers as the latest representation of that famous caldron of boiling lava, which is still visited as one of the sights of the Hawaiian kingdom by the few fleeced and flea-bitten travelers who can struggle up to it from Hilo.

In 1824 he was compelled, by the severe illness of his wife, to return to England, where, for more than five years, he served the London Missionary Society as a traveling agent. This service was ended in 1831 by his election as chief secretary of the society, in which position his labors broke down his health, so that in 1844 he resigned the office and retired to a little village in Hertfordshire, where he lingered for twelve years, cultivating his cottage garden, and acting as pastor to a small congregation.

From this retirement he went, when sixty years old, as a missionary to Madagascar, where for several years he had to maintain his position against many hostile influences of Roman priests and European traders. In 1865 he returned to England for the last time, and spent his declining life in preparing for the press an edition of the Malagasy Bible. On the ninth of June, 1872, he died, and was honored with a public funeral by the London Missionary Society, whose best and truest agent he had been.

Men of considerable merits have risen, like William Ellis, from a very low origin, and the sordid cares of early poverty have left no trace upon their mind and manners. But only a few of the men who have enjoyed every advantage of an educational training have exercised such good judgment, and accomplished such real success, as he did in the profession of preaching the gospel to heathen nations.—N. Y. Observer.

London Preachers.

CORONATION DAY—DEAN STANLEY—REV. DR. PARKER.

BY J. O. RANKIN.

Sunday, June 28, was the thirty-sixth anniversary of the Queen's coronation. After a morning shower we set off from our lodgings for Westminster Abbey, and on our way found the artillery firing salutes in St. James Park, in honor of the day. We stood some time with the crowd outside the abbey, awaiting the opening of its doors, and were amused by an earnest discussion between a lady and gentleman as to the character of Jacob, and the reasons his mother had for sending him away. Another party near by was talking German, when the conversation was interrupted by the movement forward, as the opened doors invited our entrance. We secured seats within the choir-railings, and, while waiting for the beginning of the service, had an opportunity of watching the incoming people, and looking at the beautiful building. No other church that I have seen in Italy, Germany or England presents, to my taste, an interior so impressive, so thoroughly in keeping with its design.

Among the other worshipers, the one that most attracted my attention was a white-haired old gentleman, who, in his gold-rimmed spectacles, I instantly recognized as Benjamin Disraeli, the prime minister of England. At the proper time in the services Dean Stanley entered the pulpit, and I was astonished to find him so small a man, and disappointed at the stiffness and feebleness of his manner during his opening sentences. His text was Romans viii, 18, 19: "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time," etc.

He spoke of the sin and suffering of this life, of the hope and expectation of Paul, and the looked-for glory. After some further introduction he referred to the anniversary of the coronation, and to the eight hundred years during which, for the most part, the sovereigns of England had been crowned in Westminster Abbey. In all this period, he said, there had been progress in culture and religious truth—a progress gradual but continual—temporarily interrupted by such monarchs as John and the Second Richard, yet still going on. Then looking forward to the future, he spoke of the work yet before the nation. The discourse did not impress me with the power which is so manifest in most of Dean Stanley's published works, but the whole effect was pleasing, appropriate and profitable.

In the evening we formed a part of the great congregation that thronged the large oval audience-room where Dr. Parker, the eloquent Congregational minister, preaches. The singing was very fine, but lacked the powerful aid of an organ. The contrast between this chapel and Westminster Abbey was very great, and the same is true of the two preachers.

Dean Stanley held up his manuscript, and read it with no attempt at oratory. Dr. Parker used no notes, and, without affectation of manner, spoke as a man born to sway men by his words. Many in New York heard him during the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance, and remember his stalwart form and eloquent address.

His sermon was an exposition, rather general than critical, of the first twenty-one verses of the seventh chapter of John's gospel. I give you a few disconnected bits from his many felicitous passages. With reference to the urgency of the brethren, that Jesus should display himself, the preacher said: "Ah, it is delightful to live with those who are quiet—people in whose voices there is some sounding of eternity. There are, on the contrary, those who are always fretful, urging to hurry and display; arraigning God because he hastens not. There are little people, of small natures, who were born in a bottle, and never saw beyond the cork—those who wish to see the processes of everything; who would light a candle in the night to see the corn grow; who will not be content to take God's results without knowing the why and wherefore." "God shutteth the door," he said, "in thy brazen face, and thou canst not see the wonderful processes of his providence and grace."

Again, he spoke of great forces working silently, a power that fills the firmament with light and yet never blows a trumpet. You hear the minister's sermon, but do not see the author. You know the work of the husband, but do not see that of the wife, on whom, perhaps, the husband leans. You see only a certain class of us. Don't believe that we are the only factors of civilization and progress." Concerning the marvel expressed by the Jews in the fifteenth verse Dr. Parker said: "All honor to critical learning, to those who teach and those who study, but do let us allow here and there for omnipotence. In some things Inspiration is better than information."

This is a brief sketch of two of the most noted ministers of London, and we thought the day well filled. From all I see and read, I conclude there is a great movement going forward in the English Church. Everywhere throughout the kingdom we mark restorations and changes in cathedrals; notably here in St. Paul's, where frequent services are now held, and where lounging is prohibited. The recent discussions on church matters, the speeches and sermons of Dean Stanley, the address of the Bishop of Lincoln in the Wesleyan Anniversary Conference, the Bunyan memorial, and other things, indicate a great awakening; as we may hope, to the light of a more widely-spread Christianity, that shall bless our fatherland.—New York Observer.

Destroyed by a Squid.

We had left Colombo in the steamer Strathowen, had rounded Goile and were well in the bay, with our course laid for Madras, steaming over a calm and tranquil sea. About an hour before sunset on the tenth of May we saw on our starboard beam, and about two miles off, a small schooner lying becalmed. There was nothing in her appearance or position to excite remark, but as we came up with her I lazily examined her with my binocular, and then noticed between us, but nearer her, a long, low swelling lying on the sea, which, from its color and shape, I took to be a bunch of seaweed. As I watched, the mass, hitherto at rest on the quiet sea, was set in motion. It struck the schooner, which visibly reeled and then righted. Immediately afterward the masts swayed sideways, and with my glass I could clearly discern the enormous mass and the hull of the schooner coalescing—I can think of no other term. Judging from their exclamations, the other gazers must have witnessed the same appearance. Almost immediately after the collision and coalescence the schooner's masts swayed toward us, lower and lower; the vessel was on her beam ends, lay there a few seconds and disappeared, the masts righting as she sank, and the main exhibiting a reversed ensign struggling toward its peak. A cry of horror rose from the lookers-on, and, as if by instinct, our ship's head was at once turned toward the scene which was now marked by the forms of those battling for life—the sole survivors of the pretty little schooner which only twenty minutes before floated bravely on the smooth sea. As soon as the poor fellows were able to tell their story they astounded us with the assertion that their vessel had been submerged by a gigantic cuttle-fish or calamary, the animal which, in a smaller form, attracts so much attention in the Brighton aquarium as the octopus. Each narrator had his version of the story, but, in the main, all the narratives tallied so remarkably as to leave no doubt of the fact. As soon as he was at leisure I prevailed on the skipper to give me his written account of the disaster, and I have now much pleasure in sending you a copy of his narrative:

"I was lately the skipper of the Pearl schooner, one hundred and fifty tons, with a crew of six men. We were bound from the Mauritius for Rangoon in ballast to return with paddy, and had put in at Galle for water. Three days out we fell becalmed in the bay—latitude 8° 50' north, longitude 84° 5' east. On the tenth of May, about five P. M.—eight bells I know had gone—we sighted a two-masted screw on our port quarter, about five or six miles off. Very soon after, as we lay motionless, a great mass rose slowly out of the sea about half a mile off on our larboard side, and remained spread out, as it were, and stationary. It looked like the back of a huge whale, but it sloped less, and was of a brownish color. Even at that distance it seemed much longer than our craft, and it seemed to be basking in the sun. 'What's that?' I sung out to the mate. 'Blest if I know; barring its size, color and shape, it might be a whale,' replied Tom Scott; 'and it ain't the sea-serpent,' said one of the crew, 'for he's too round for that ere critter.' I went into the cabin for my rifle, and as I was prepared to fire, Bill Darling, a Newfoundlander, came on deck, and, looking at the monster, exclaimed, putting up his hand: 'Have a care, master; that ere is a squid, and will capsize us if you hurt him.' Smiling at the idea, I let fly and hit him, and with that he shook; there was a great ripple all around him, and he began to move. 'Out with all your axes and knives,' shouted Bill, 'and cut at any part of him that comes aboard; look alive, and Lord help us!' Not aware of the danger, and never having seen or heard of such a monster, I gave no orders, and it was no use touching the helm or ropes to get out of the way. By this time three of the crew, Bill included, had found axes, and one a rusty cutlass, and all were looking over the ship's side at the advancing monster. We could see a huge oblong mass moving by jerks just under the surface of the water, and an enormous train following. The oblong body was at least half the size of our vessel in length, and just as thick; the wake or train might have been one hundred feet long. In the time that I have taken to write this the brute struck us, and the ship quivered under the thud; in another moment monstrous arms like trees seized the vessel as she heeled over; in another second the monster was aboard, squeezed in between the two masts, Billy screaming: 'Slash for your lives;' but all our slashing was of no avail, for the brute, holding on by his arms, slipped his vast body overboard and pulled the vessel down with him on her beam ends; we were thrown into the water at once, and just as I went over I caught sight of one of the crew, either Bill or Tom Fielding, squashed up between the masts and one of those awful arms; for a few seconds our ship lay on her beam ends, then filled and went down; another of the crew must have been sucked down, for you only picked up five; the rest you know. I can't tell who ran up the ensign.—James Floyd, late Master Schooner Pearl."

WHEN it is all over, and our feet will run no more, and our hands are helpless, and we have scarcely strength to murmur a last prayer, then we shall see that, instead of needing a larger field, we have left untilled many corners of our single acre, and that none of it is fit for our Master's eye were it not for the softening shadows of the cross.—Edward Garrett.

Religious Intelligence.

THE Congregationalists of Massachusetts report for the year three new churches organized and two dropped, with a gain of one thousand and fourteen church members.

AT THE July meeting of the American Bible Society the board resolved on the appointment of a permanent agency in Mexico as soon as a suitable person shall be found.

THE Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Dutch Church reports that during the past year its receipts amounted to $55,352.54. The debt of the board amounts to $9,000.

THE total income of the Irish Presbyterian Church last year was $680,745, being an increase of $53,645. There has been a decrease, however, in the number of members of 1,000, the total being 109,395.

IN LIBERIA there are fifty-two ordained ministers, all colored men except one, and six of the number are converts from gross heathenism. Ninety other persons are engaged in the work of the gospel.

REV. DR. TALMAGE'S church received into its membership ninety-two new members on the fifth instant. It is said that more than four hundred persons have joined this church since the church has entered the Tabernacle.

DURING the past year the receipts of the British and Foreign Bible Society have been $221,000. It has sent out during that time 2,654,000 copies. The total issues of the society since its organization have been 71,131,111 copies of the Bible.

THE religious awakening continues in Glasgow, Edinburg, Aberdeen, Perth, Dundee, Sterling, Paisley, Greenock and other large towns and country districts in Scotland. Messrs. Moody and Sankey continue their labors in Glasgow with little diminution of interest.

IT WAS decided by the Jewish convention at Cleveland to go on with the long-talked-of Hebrew Theological Seminary as soon as $100,000 are subscribed for it. If the interest taken in the project is any criterion, this sum will be speedily forthcoming, and the building be completed without delay. The seminary is to be located at Cincinnati, and its friends intend to have it not only well endowed, but ably officered as well, thus inviting Jew and Gentile alike to its privileges. As the Hebrew congregations in this country have now to depend on the continent for their supply of rabbis, the proposed institution would seem to be greatly needed. Possibly its theology also will be more liberal than that which is imported.

THE movement among the Old Catholics of Switzerland is working a very great reformation in some of the cantons. These people have very little sympathy with the Roman Catholic Church. Having virtually thrown the Pope overboard, they propose to reduce the power and authority of the bishops. In this they are going far beyond the Congress of Munich, which practically let the bishops alone. Their public services will no longer be performed in Latin, but in the spoken tongue of the people who assemble for worship. Parish priests are to be elected by their congregations, instead of being appointed over them; and are to be free to marry when and whom they please. Both the bread and wine are to be administered to each communicant, and the Bible is "solemnly and publicly adopted as the standard of the truths to be taught." Let us hope the reform will be as permanent as it is radical.

THE new Swiss Catholic Church is called the "Liberal Catholic." The central committee appointed last year at Olten to draft a project of church government has completed its labors, and the plan has been submitted for approval to the various cantonal governments whose citizens were represented at that gathering. The draft declares that the Swiss Liberal Catholic Church is founded on a parochial organization. A provincial synod is to be established in each of the cantons, and a general synod is to meet once a year, which will have the supreme authority in all matters of doctrine and discipline. The synod is to include the bishop or bishops, a lay and clerical delegate of each parish, and a special standing council of nine members, five of whom must be laymen. These are to be chosen by the general synod, which is also to have the election of the episcopate in its hands when a vacancy occurs. The bishop is to exercise full authority within the limits fixed by the synod.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Watchman and Reflector gives the following facts about prayer meetings in Germany, which may be suggestive to Americans: "It has been stated that no such thing as a prayer meeting exists in Germany. This is a great mistake. Social prayer meetings are to-day held in different parts of Wurtemberg. I attended a meeting of this kind in Stuttgart, upon invitation. A few brethren met together in a private house, in the same room where they had met weekly for fifteen years. I noticed a peculiarity about the conducting of the service that I had never seen elsewhere. At the beginning of the meeting each person took a piece of paper from the table. On inquiry I found it was a drawing of lots as to the order of prayers. The papers were numbered. Number one prayed first, and was followed by number two, and by others according to the numbers they had drawn. The object is to prevent embarrassment and a painful waiting one for another. There are many such gatherings found here. They form what is called the inner circle. The sexes do not meet, but women's prayer meetings are also held."

BISHOP WORDSWORTH takes a strange way of trying to reconcile the Wesleyans to the Established Church. In his last manifesto on this subject he tells the Wesleyan ministers if they give up their claim to be regarded as ministers he will be happy to see them received into his own communion. Nay, more, he would allow them to be lay preachers! "But," he adds, "I would not let you administer the sacraments." Nor would he consider their chapels as anything but "preaching-houses." Dr. Wordsworth, in the same speech, said that Romanists triumphed because of the divisions of Protestants; and "it was also because of these divisions that there were so many perversions to Rome." "His lordship forgets," says the London Church World, "that almost the whole of the English perverts are furnished by his own church. The Free churches of England do not supply the article, and are in no danger of ever doing so."

FIVE years ago there were only about six Protestant churches in Mexico. Now there are ninety-eight. A paper published in the City of Mexico says those who can remember when foreigners were pelted with stones if they neglected to remove their hats while a Catholic procession passed, "cannot but fully appreciate the wondrous change that has been effected in Mexico within the past decade. The difficult and delicate labors of the Christian missionaries in Mexico have been thus far crowned with success. In this city alone there are some five Protestant churches, largely and regularly attended, and it is truly surprising to see the large number of converts that have been gained over from the ranks of the Roman Catholics." This should be very encouraging to those churches which have selected our sister republic as a suitable ground for missionary effort.

THERE is in southern Russia a new body of Protestant Christians, who are known as Stundists. They derive their name and doctrines from their association with German Protestants in the south of Russia. These Germans call their weekly evening meeting, corresponding to the prayer meeting in Great Britain and America, a Bibel-stunde—i. e., Bible hour. After a time these gatherings of Germans attracted members from the Russo-Greek Church, who at length formed themselves into a sect and took the name Stundists. In 1871 the members of this sect in the Province of Cherson numbered eight hundred; there is also a small community in Kiev. They strive to conform to what they believe to be the simplicity of the apostolic church, and lead strictly moral lives. The Stundists have suffered persecution, for it is contrary to the law of the empire for any one to forsake the Russian Orthodox Church; but since the reorganization of the empire in 1802 persecution has been less violent.

AT THE recent annual conference of evangelical Christians in London a very interesting and powerful presentment of the condition of the Jews was made by the Rev. John Wilkinson, in which he presented these four points: 1. There were in England and on the Continent between twenty and thirty thousand converted Jews, among whom there were four hundred ministers of the gospel, one hundred of these being Church of England clergymen, and one hundred of them being missionaries to their own people. 2. The Jewish mind seemed now opening to the reception of the truth, and the prejudices were dying out. 3. The New Testament was now being very extensively read by the Jews. 4. Jews and even Jewish rabbis and editors were now speaking in the most respectful terms of Jesus of Nazareth. Under these different heads he gave much information of a deeply interesting nature, and concluded a touching address with an earnest appeal to Christians to take a deeper interest in this blessed work, and to pray daily for the conversion of God's ancient people, Israel.

THE Old Catholics of Germany have but lately met in synod at Bonn. Bishop Reinkens presided, and there were in attendance twenty-eight clerical and fifty-seven lay delegates. One theological student received deacon's orders. The indications are that the body is going steadily forward in the track of reform. The questions discussed related to confessions, fast days, the catechism and liturgy, and the laws of marriage. As regards the first point the sacrament of penance was declared by the synod to be a great means of grace, always existing in the church, but not necessary to salvation; and therefore its use was ruled to be optional. It is added that confession ought not to be made the occasion of seeking advice and direction from the confessor, though the penitent is at liberty to do so if he wishes. This synodal decree involves, it will be seen, a fundamental innovation on the received teaching and practice of the Roman Catholic Church. The rule requiring annual confession dates from the fourth Lateran Council of 1215, but is based, of course, on a much older belief. Resolutions were passed touching fast days and the catechism and liturgy; but these are not yet reported. In Switzerland the Old Catholics have also by their central committee perfected arrangements for a national organization. They call it the "Christian Catholic Church of Switzerland." The plan provides for a national synod, composed of the clergy and lay representatives of the parishes, in such proportions as to secure a decided lay preponderance, and consequently lay control. The church in each canton may at its discretion organize a cantonal synod, for the regulation of local interests. There is to be a bishop, who shall be eligible to the presidency of the national synod, but has no rights of this sort ex-officio. The Rev. William Chauncey Langdon, who was present with Pere Hyacinthe at the meeting of the committee, writes to the Churchman that the Swiss Catholics have a great jealousy of the clergy, and an especial dread of the episcopal office and power; and that he "was relieved that in the present stage of the movement the laymen who were here met together were willing to accept it at all." Father Hyacinthe is regarded by his German brethren as making undue haste in the reforms which he has introduced; but Mr. Langdon says that he is the most conservative man among the Swiss reformers—that all the rest desire to advance much more rapidly than he is willing to go.—Independent.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 27, 1874.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT J. HARP, Publisher.

OFFICE—IN CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Address on all matter of business Rev. J. HARP, 62 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Camp street, New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the Patronizing Conferences.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES

ALABAMA CONFERENCE
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
REV. A. J. BRIGGS.
REV. J. W. BUSH.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY
REV. J. G. JONES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

One Year	$2 00
Six Months	1 25
Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all Ministers of the Gospel, traveling or local and widows of deceased traveling preachers

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers, with FOUR DOLLARS.

The Two Marvels of Jesus.

It is recorded that Christ marveled on two occasions—once at an instance of unbelief, and again at a display of remarkable faith.

It was in his own country, and among his own kinsfolk and acquaintances, that he was the greatest offense, and where he met with an unbelief which astonished even him who "knew what is in man." He was not amazed at much of the general unbelief prevailing in the world, nor was he unprepared for the doubt and enmity of the Jewish people, but that those whose privileges and opportunities had been greatest, and who were familiar with his life and wonderful works, should reject him was a thing surprising to him. "He marveled because of their unbelief." The Jews in general did not excite his wonder by their malignant treatment and blind opposition, and the reception which the gospel would meet with at the hands of unenlightened heathen was foreseen with calmness and equanimity.

It was unbelief under peculiar circumstances of favor, in the presence of evidences which ought to have been convincing, if not overwhelming, that this note of astonishment is wrung from the Master's lips. If faith could have been reasonably expected anywhere it was there. We do not know that he ever marveled at any other exhibition of unbelief. There was something so exceptional in this, it was such a manifestation of prejudice, of willful enmity against truth and righteousness, of persistent error and sin in the midst of the brightest displays of truth and goodness, that it called for this disclosure of wonder on the part of the Son of God.

For him to marvel at unbelief was far more significant, and a much more striking fact, than if it had been related that any of his disciples had been thus affected. Good men may marvel at such unbelief as would have drawn no comment from the Savior. Knowing the heart as he did, there was to him nothing surprising in the usual manifestations of depravity. We may be dumbfounded and perplexed where Christ would have only seen those depths of hardness and sin with which he was most familiar. Cases of impenitence which provoke Christian people to impatience and despair are seen by him with forbearance and hope. When Christ marvels at unbelief, the case must be far out of the common range, and of the most serious and desperate character. Unbelief in Nazareth was a different matter from unbelief even in Jerusalem or Samaria.

The type of unbelief at which Christ marveled was very nearly that which men in Bible lands, and in Christian communities otherwise, is that practical rejection of the Son of God of which men are guilty while surrounded by the most convincing evidences and demonstrations of the divine nature and authority of the gospel. Here, under the very walls of the churches, within the sound of Christian teaching and song, and amidst lives and examples which witness for the truth, is the phase of unbelief which assumes the nature and proportions of the marvelous in the mind of Christ.

From the astounding unbelief of Nazareth we turn to a marvel of a very different character. A centurion, a man of war, not even a Jew, comes to obtain the healing of his slave. "I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof; but speak the word only and my servant shall be healed. For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh, and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it." Here was faith of the very highest degree in a man whose life was apparently unfriendly to religion, and whose surroundings were of the hardest and most worldly character. He, who had declared his astonishment at the unbelief of the Nazarenes is now surprised by a most wonderful faith. "When Jesus heard it, he marveled, and said to them that followed, Verily, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." The faith of the leper, whom he had just healed, was nothing in comparison, though that was great indeed. It excited no remark whatever. He was a Jew, acquainted with the law and the prophets, brought up in the knowledge of the miraculous and the supernatural, and in a condition to understand and appreciate the claims of Christ as the promised Messiah and the Son of God. But for this Roman soldier, this man of war, this heathen born and bred, what could he expected of him? Faith in him, and such faith, was something wonderful. Christ marveled at this faith, even as in the other instance he marveled at their unbelief.

Something akin to this type of faith may doubtless be found in those who believe, amidst the lack of helpful conditions, and who exhibit a confident reliance and an unshaken trust in spite of the discouragements and hinderances which beset their path. "So great faith" anywhere would have been extraordinary, but so great faith in this man, and in his circumstances, astonishes Christ himself. Such phases of faith now and then appear in Christian experience, in the man of business; in the sailor amidst the rudeness and profanity of the forecastle, and in the trials and adversities of every-day life.

Here are the two marvels of Christ: An unbelief which seems to have shocked and astounded him, and a faith which awakened his wonder and admiration. One was the very opposite of the other. One was the extreme of sin, a guilt and corruption from whose terrible depths Christ shrunk back with startled wonder; the other was the extreme of grace, a loftiness of trust, and a degree of humble confidence which excites amazement in him who demands the faith of all men. Either would be a fruitful study by itself, but, when the two are thrown together, the contrast helps us to measure that emotion of the marvelous which both alike excited in the mind of the Son of God.

Union After Fraternity.

The Northwestern Christian Advocate is a wide-awake, outspoken and frank journal. The editor, Dr. Edwards, is candid, and usually says what he thinks, and what many others think who have not the honesty to say it. Here is a golden morsel from the Round Lake meeting which we quote in part only, because we have published it before:

Bishop Kavanaugh was glad he had been at Round Lake and was now at Sea Cliff. He meant to get up similar meetings at the South, and ask his brethren of the North down there. Bishop Doggett could not express his feelings in words. He came North on principle, and to promote a patriotic feeling in the church. It was the question of the day to unite, and he wanted all to come together. Dr. Lee said he was for fraternity—the right was all out of him. Drs. Sargent and Poisal both believed that the reconstruction of the two branches of Methodism was near, when there should be one Methodist Episcopal Church the country over, so united in the bonds of love and fellowship, and so welded, that it should last forever. Last on the list of speakers was General Clinton B. Fisk, of St. Louis, at the conclusion of whose remarks there was a general hearty hand-shaking, and the singing of the old-time hymns.

Referring to the above affecting utterances and demonstrations, Dr. Edwards says:

First fraternity, and next union. Nothing is in the way of union except unfraternity, and the united fraternity that fears union will keep in bears out of the fraternity. We may as well therefore look the question squarely in the face, and solve up to the frank, logical, unavoidable ground occupied by the Northwestern. Thanks to Drs. Poisal and Sargent for their royal words.

It would seem that after a decade in the Southern Church the veneration brethren from Baltimore, mentioned in the above extract, are anxious to get back to the company from which they came out. The Northwestern, taking heart and hope from their declarations, exhorts all to "look the question fairly in the face." Our General Conference at Louisville did this very thing. They spoke their mind on this question of union fairly, frankly and kindly, but it was rejected by the authority and by the Northern Methodist press as altogether unwilled for. Twice within recent years—first at St. Louis, and then at Memphis—had this question of organic union been distinctly presented by distinguished representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and yet it was in bad taste and an impertinence for us to allude to the subject in connection with the proposal for formal fraternity! Thanks to the candor of the Northwestern. In this fraternal movement our friends, though sailing on another tack, have all the time had the same port in view.

Dr. Fowler, in the warmth and splendors of his peroration, used expressions showing what was in his mind, and what was in the minds of those whom he represented. He closed his address before our General Conference with these words: "Leaving organic union as a question of the future, let us make the union of our hearts the question of to-day, and make holy covenant that from this hour, one in sympathy and one in purpose, we will toil on, shoulder to shoulder, waiting patiently for that near to-morrow when there shall be one Methodism for mankind." The question of union was all the time in the orator's view. He was conscious of moving toward this one objective point. While leaving it as a question of the future, his mission was preparing the way for its consummation. "The future," as he read the signs of the times, was "that near to-morrow."

And now came the Round Lake and Sea Cliff phenomena. Our two beloved Bishops—bishops with a small h, de facto—have unwittingly laid themselves open to the popular misrepresentation of being for union, and two venerable and reverend doctors of the Baltimore Conference South, speaking at the same hour and under the same inspiration, have declared, if not unconditionally for it, that they believed it to be near. "Thanks to Drs. Poisal and Sargent for their royal words." Their words were up to the mark—right royal words, "like apples of gold in pictures of silver." "First fraternity, and next union." This is the slogan of which the Northwestern catches the advanced notes as they roll up from Round Lake and Sea Cliff. This most advanced and candid of the Northern Methodist journals proclaims organic union as the war cry of the clans from henceforth. This is "the frank, logical, unavoidable ground."

The real question, then, is union. Fraternity is but the drapery of the statue; the real figure, the great masterpiece of all this art, is union. Our General Conference evidently did not regard organic union as "the frank, logical, unavoidable ground" which would result from fraternity; but they may have suspected that this view largely obtained in some quarters. This suspicion has been abundantly justified by the events and declarations to which we have referred. The position of our church on the question has been stated and defined, and it turns out that our well-timed declarations were not directed against obsolete or forgotten issues.

WE CAN assure Dr. Summers that he will be welcome, and that he will be expected at the next Seashore camp meeting. The lodging will be ready. Bishop Keener has been tenting from the first, and Bishop McTyeire has his lot selected, and purposes to build. In the Nashville Christian Advocate we find the following editorial notice of the camp meeting:

The Seashore Camp Meeting.—A correspondent favors us with an account of the Seashore camp meeting. Bishop McTyeire had given us a brief verbal account, which made us conceive highly of this meeting on the edge of the sea. The Bishop, with Mrs. McTyeire, went down, and there, midway between New Orleans and Mobile, met old friends, among pastors and people, and returned refreshed and invigorated by sea-baths and sea-breezes. Our old friend David Ayres, of Galveston, was there, tenting hospitably. He has an apparatus attached to the pulpit by which, deaf as he is, he can hear the word; he enjoys it immensely. Here meet the Methodists of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. The moral, social and religious influence is wholesome. Bishops Marvin, McTyeire and Keener were on hand preaching, and Drs. Hamilton, Parker, Watkins, Tudor, Andrews, Mathews, and about forty other ministers. The Lord was present to bless and to heal. About sixty conversions and a great enjoying of believers. The meeting continued from July 24 to August 3, and was largely attended. The order is described as excellent. The tents are on three sides—the waters of the gulf on the fourth. Pleasant and soft breezes sweep under the great stand. The fare is "loaves and fishes"—neither small nor few. Some families occupy their tents for weeks before and after, inhaling the pure breezes from the land and the salt air from the gulf. We learn that there is to be a large increase of tentholders for the next (fourth) year and the Seashore camp ground, by every token, is a permanent institution. "But, withal, procure me also a lodging." We should greatly enjoy a meeting at that place.

The Massacre in China.

TEN THOUSAND NATIVE CHRISTIANS BUTCHERED.

The French periodical Missions Catholiques of the last of July gives the first authentic and detailed narrative of the recent massacre of Roman Catholic native converts in China.

The account, as translated for the London Tablet, relates that the massacre broke out on the twenty-fifth of February, when the literates, as the persecuting party is called, opened the campaign by beheading two men in the service of Pere Doare and a Christian, whom they then threw into the river. The same day they burned the three villages of Tran-Lam, Flo-Vluh and Bau-Tach, and massacred the inhabitants that were in them. Those who succeeded in escaping to the woods were hunted down with hounds, brought back and killed on the following day. The river was covered over with bodies floating down it from the side of Lareg. At that time the murderers were massacreing the Christians of the parish of Holven, and burning their villages. Those who took refuge in the cliffs of the neighborhood were hunted down and burned alive. The grand mandarin of justice was at the market of Na-Sam with eight hundred soldiers, but remained an inactive spectator of the massacre of the Christians of Nam-Duong, only a few of whom were able to escape.

The literates, who were the heads of the militia appointed to massacre the Christians, say that the work of extermination carried out under the eyes of the mandarins was concerted between the court and the literates, and was done in reprisal for recent events. The mandarins have just received orders from the court not to employ any other means save those of persuasion to stop the murderers in their career. One of the chiefs, who had just caused two Christians to be murdered on the highroad, went on the parade before the Governor of the citadel, by whom he was dismissed with honor. On his return twenty women or children fell under the sword of this man and his followers. He had just come from offering sacrifice to the goddess of prostitution, to whom a famous temple that stands near the road is dedicated.

MODE OF TORTURE AND DEATH.

In several localities they take an entire family—father, mother and children—bind them together with bamboos, and then fling the bundle of living humanity into the waves. First, however, they take care to cut off the man's head. The multitude of dead bodies, thus fastened together in groups of from eight to ten, block up the principal river, but, to the great surprise of everybody, do not send forth any bad smell. There are, then, five parishes, containing ten thousand Christians, which have to be blotted out of the mission, namely, Lang-Thank-Huyen, Nam-Duong, Hoy-Yen and Doreg-Thank. Many of the victims died in the midst of the flames. A village of more than four hundred Christians was attacked by the literates, and soon became a prey to the flames. Among these four hundred Christians there were one hundred and twenty, more or less, who succeeded in saving themselves by taking refuge in a large village near by. The remainder, about three hundred, were nearly all massacred. Two small villages of Christians, situated two hours' walk from the place at which I then was, were hemmed in by the pagans. The mayor visited each house, numbered the Christians, and forbade them, under threat of most severe punishment, to go out of doors. A few of the Christian women attempted to go to the market to keep themselves from starving. They never returned. Some pagan women who went with them say that the Christian women were captured and beheaded. Two men from one of these same villages hazarded a flight during the night. They passed the great river by swimming, and came to me to tell their misfortunes.

"Alas!" writes Archbishop Gauthier, from whose letter this information is chiefly derived, "I could do nothing but weep for them, being unable to do anything to succor them!" Two or three days afterward I learned that all the men in that village had had their heads cut off, but the women and children were spared. And, as their houses were intermingled with those of the pagans, it was forbidden to burn them down.

A NEW CHURCH.—The California correspondent of the St. Louis Advocate, over date of July 3, indites the following piece of news:

"We have a new religious organization in California—since yesterday; name, 'The Christian Union;' creed, 'The fatherhood of God, and the universal brotherhood of man.' The originators of the movement are Dr. Durant, of the Congregational Church; Dr. Hamilton, of the Presbyterian Church; Rev. Jesse Wood, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Rev. D. A. Dryden, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Surely this is a 'mixed multitude' which is going up from the 'Egypt' of orthodox bondage to 'the promised land' of a liberal Christianity. They do not profess to have discovered any new truths; but, on the other hand, they affirm that many of those lights which the Christian world has long looked upon as fixed stars in the firmament of Christianity have been proved by the telescopes of modern criticism to be mere ignes fatui. Bro. Wood is an Alabamian, and an alumnus of Emory and Henry College. He is a man of considerable reading and much thought. His piety is also undoubted. How he can enter the fold of such a speckled flock is a mystery. But peace be with him and them. What then? Every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice."

REV. WILLIAM MORLEY PUNSHON, D. D., was elected president of the Wesleyan Conference at the commencement of its present session.

A Sufferer from the Overflow.

Under this heading the wife of one of our Louisiana itinerants writes:

How much anguish and desolation are conveyed in those few words! Those who have been so fortunate as never to have passed through the horrors of an overflow cannot imagine how fearful it is, and ought to raise their hearts in gratitude to their Creator for shielding them from so much suffering. They may say they have cares and trials enough, but they know not how great the tension is, both bodily and mentally, with those in the midst of a wide waste of waters, who are frequently constrained to cry out in despair: "Save, Lord, or we perish." We had moved far away from friends and old associations, and had comfortably ensconced ourselves in our new home, when the river, already full, received the turbid waters of the Mississippi, rushing from the snow-capped hills and plains of a more northern clime, melted by the gentle breezes of the early spring; and soon the fields, freshly robed in green, were covered with a terrible flood. It rose so rapidly that it was almost impossible to prepare for it. What a scene of desolation met the eye! The river and fields one vast expanse of water, with its resistless current washing away fences and every movable obstacle in its headlong course. The lowing of the cattle in the water was like the wail of a human being in distress, and, once heard, can never be forgotten. The roar of the water, as it rushed seething and foaming over the broken levee in front, would have been grandly beautiful if it had not been that its rushing waves was the requiem of our departed hopes—hopes as bright and fresh, a few short weeks before, as the verdure of the early spring. Now, with almost anguish, we watched the angry waves as they rose higher and higher, and seemed as if they would never cease to rise. Day after day we raised our platform, until it was above the never-to-be-forgotten water of 1867, and then in despair we raised a high scaffold in one room, and there for two long, weary months we watched and waited. No advance guard, with bated breath and throbbing heart, awaited the fearful charge as we with anguish pressed our little ones to our breast, not knowing at what moment a false step might throw them into the greedy water, to be borne off by its unpitying current. Our anxiety was heightened by knowing it would be almost impossible to save them, as we were frequently entirely without boats. With weary limbs and aching hearts we would see the day draw to its close, thankful that our day's vigil was over. No picket ever stood guard more faithfully than we; and, thanks to our heavenly Father for his protecting care, all of our little ones were spared to us. If it had not been for the timely aid of government and charitable donations, for which we were truly thankful, I know not what would have become of us. It would have melted the most obdurate hearts to pity if they could have seen the pale, care-worn faces, enfeebled by sickness and the want of proper food, as it was impossible to obtain anything beside the absolute necessities of life. It was enough to make the bravest heart faint to witness the fearful scene. That we may never pass through such a trying ordeal again is my prayer to him who saith to the angry waters: "Peace, be still." The troubles through which we have passed have taught us one important lesson—thankfulness—that we can be thankful even for a leaf, a flower, and that we can enjoy the smallest as well as the greatest blessings. During the high water we had one lovely flower, with its deep green foliage and bright crimson flowers, shining over the stormy waters as a sweet messenger from heaven, speaking to us in soothing tones of him who "doeth all things well," and reminding us, too, that our hopes, though now buried beneath the waves, may in like manner bloom again, and shed their fragrance over life's stormy billows. Whether then tossed upon a tempestuous sea, overshadowed by the dark cloud of adversity, or basking under the sun of prosperity, may the sentiment of our heart ever be: "Thy will, not ours, be done."

BLACK RIVER, August 1, 1874.

CHANGE OF THE TIME OF THE SESSION OF THE LITTLE ROCK CONFERENCE.—Having learned that the Little Rock Annual Conference, at their last session, passed a resolution requesting that their next Conference should be held, in regard to time, from the fifteenth of October to the fifteenth of November, and as it is represented to me that this is still largely the general preference; as the best I can do at present, I change the time from December 9 to November 25. You will please accommodate me and the Conference by announcing this change.

The leading reason why this change is sought is the bad condition of the roads in that State in the winter season of the year.

H. H. KAVANAUGH.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 6, 1874.

AT THE recent commencement of Emory College, Georgia, the honorary degree of LL. D. was conferred upon Bishop Marvin and the Rev. J. O. A. Clark, D. D., of the South Georgia Conference, and the honorary degree of D. D. upon the Rev. F. W. Smith and the Rev. W. C. Bass, of the South Georgia Conference, and the Rev. B. M. Messick, of the Louisville Conference.

THE week of prayer has been duly observed at the Carondelet Street church of this city. Preaching on Friday morning last by the pastor, Dr. Tudor, and services every night during the present week.

DR. STUART ROBINSON'S new church edifice, in Louisville, will be dedicated the second Sunday in September. The sermon on the occasion will be preached by Rev. Dr. Palmer, of New Orleans.

MR. JILSON P. HARRISON, a well-known citizen and merchant of New Orleans, died, at his residence in this city, on Tuesday, August 25, in the sixty-ninth year of his age. Mr. Harrison was a native of Kentucky. He came to this city in 1842, and was a member of the celebrated commission house of Payne & Harrison until the close of the war. In his long career as a merchant he was a man of blameless integrity and of unimpeachable honor. During the last few years he had, in common with thousands of others, met with serious losses and embarrassments, and under the combined weight of years and business cares his health had for some time become seriously impaired. On Monday, the twenty-fourth, while at his office he was suddenly stricken with paralysis, and in an unconscious condition was carried to his home, where he died on the following day. Mr. Harrison had for many years been an attendant at the Methodist church, and a regular and generous contributor to our religious enterprises. In 1866 he became a member of the church, and was, beyond doubt, a converted man. His membership was in the Carondelet Street church, where he for some years filled the position of steward. In a conversation which we had with him, but a few weeks ago, he expressed the conviction that he was near the end of his earthly journey, and that, trusting in the merits of Christ alone for salvation, he looked forward with calmness and even with joy to the hour of his release from the cares and infirmities of this mortal life. In all his history, and before he became a communicant in the church, his house was the home of the preachers of the gospel, and he delighted to dispense to them a large and princely hospitality. His kindness and generosity will long be remembered by hundreds in every section of our church who from time to time in the days of his prosperity enjoyed the beautiful and elegant home to which they were made welcome. We tender our sympathies to the bereaved family, and pray that God may sustain them in their sorrow, and lead them all at last to the home above.

BISHOP PIERCE.—We regret to learn, by a note from Rev. W. P. Rivers, says the Southern Christian Advocate of August 19, that Bishop Pierce was so much indisposed as to be unable to preach at the Athens District Conference, held last week, at Washington, Georgia. He attempted to preach once, but became so ill that he was compelled to desist from proceeding with his sermon. Dr. C. W. Smith informs us that he traveled homeward with the Bishop, and that he was much better when they separated; so we are encouraged to hope that it was a transient attack, which will not be followed by any serious results. We utter the sentiment of the whole church when we express the hope that the Bishop's zeal will not lead him into disregarding distinct intimations that he is attempting more than his overworked frame will bear.

WE ARE pained to record, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, the death of Mr. John Plaxton. He had been identified with the Publishing House from the beginning. During the war he returned to his native country (England,) but resumed his place in the house after the surrender. He was the capable, prompt and efficient foreman of the book and Sunday school departments. He was "a faithful man above many." He was held in high esteem by all connected with the house. We visited him during his last illness—a severe attack of dropsy—and found him in a Christian frame of mind, waiting for his change. That took place August 9, and he was buried August 10. The printers of the city attended his funeral. His pastor, the Rev. Dr. Lawson, delivered an eloquent and appropriate discourse, in which he bore testimony to the excellent character of our deceased friend and associate. We tender our sympathies to the bereaved widow and other relatives.

NORTH GEORGIA CONFERENCE.—Change of Time.—By reference to our column of church notices it will be seen that Bishop Wightman, in deference to an appeal from the presiding elders of the North Georgia Conference, has changed the time of holding the ensuing session of that Conference from November 25 to December 2. Brethren will keep this change in mind, and publish it as extensively as they can. We would also suggest to our church exchanges to make this alteration in the plan of episcopal visitations, as they publish it from time to time.—Southern Christian Advocate.

WE HAVE received an invitation to attend the closing exercises of the Louisiana Mechanical and Agricultural College, which take place at the opera Hall, corner of Royal and St. Louis streets, New Orleans, August 28, at eleven o'clock A. M.

SEE advertisement of Mansfield Female College in this week's ADVOCATE. We shall recall attention to this institution hereafter. It is the property of the Louisiana Conference, and is worthy of the patronage of our people.

LET everything have its place and every business its place.

BETTER be upright with poverty than be wicked with plenty.

Books and Periodicals.

SERMONS BY MISSOURI METHODIST PREACHERS, representing the Missouri, the St. Louis and the West St. Louis Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Compiled by Rev. G. W. Hern. St. Louis: Southwestern Book and Publishing Company, 1874. Price, sent by mail, $1.60.

This volume, 12mo of 325 pages, contains twenty sermons by prominent ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in Missouri. The subjects chosen are, for the most part, of surpassing interest; and, from a hurried sampling, we should judge that they have been handled with freshness and vigor. The compiler has succeeded in the first of the purposes which he proposes. He has given "the reading public a good book." We hope the second purpose, in the issuance of the volume will also be realized, and that by its sale an adequate fund may be realized for the Central College library.

TINNY LEAL'S TRIP TO THE GOLDEN SHORE. By Rev. Robert W. Bigham, of the North Georgia Conference. Edited by Atticus G. Haygood, D. D., Sunday school secretary. Nashville, Tennessee: Published by A. H. Redford, agent, for the Methodist Episcopal Church South, 1874.

A beautiful little volume, and the very thing for our children. It is No. 2 in "Our Prize Series." Price, fifty cents. Speaking of the two volumes already issued, the publisher says: "These two beautiful volumes will be followed in rapid succession by eight others, thus making, when complete, one of the handsomest and most entertaining libraries for the young ever issued from the house."

THE German Sunday school songbook, Lob Gottes (Praise of God), compiled by the Rev. J. B. A. Ahrens, contains the most popular Sunday school music of the day, admirably adapted to German words. Price, $3.60 per dozen; by mail, post-paid, $4.10 per dozen; specimen copy, by mail, thirty-five cents. Ready for delivery. Address orders to A. H. Redford, agent, Nashville, Tennessee. The above-mentioned German Sunday school song-book is a well-printed volume of 176 pages, and, knowing the editor, Rev. J. B. A. Ahrens, we have no doubt of the excellence of the songs and music. Our Southern German Methodists are to be congratulated on the progress they are making in the possession of a church literature of their own. There are tunes in Lob Gottes adapted to nearly all the hymns in our German hymn-book.

IN ADDITION to the pamphlets on missions hitherto issued by our Publishing House we have received: Mission Work, by the Rev. Homer S. Thrall, of the Texas Conference. The Principles and Facts of Missions, and the Obligations of the Church to Support Them, an essay by the Rev. Beverly W. Bond, of the Baltimore Conference. Thoughts on Missions, or an Essay Setting Forth the Principles, Facts and Obligations of Christian Missions, by W. G. E. Cunnyngham, D. D., of the Holston Conference. We have not had time to examine these essays, but they are written by able and devoted men, and their publication by direction of our Board of Missions is a guarantee of their merits.

WE HAVE RECEIVED the annual catalogues of the following institutions: Kentucky Culverstty, Lexington, Kentucky; Neophagen Male and Female College, Cross Plains, Tennessee; Verona Female College, Verona, Mississippi; Central College, Fayette, Missouri; Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Virginia; Vanderbilt University, department of medicine and surgery—the first announcement of lectures for the session of 1874-5—Nashville, Tennessee; Central Female College, Lexington, Missouri; Tuskaloosa Female College, Tuskaloosa, Alabama; Louisville Female College, Louisville, Kentucky; St. John's College, Little Rock, Arkansas; Eminence College, male and female, Eminence, Kentucky.

THE Chinese Recorder and Missionary Journal is published at Shanghai, China, one number appearing every two months. It is a very interesting periodical, and especially instructive in reference to mission work in China, and the mission work among the heathen generally. The price in United States currency is $3 per annum. We have received the number for January-February, 1874.

THE LEADER is a collection of sacred and secular music, by H. R. Palmer, assisted by L. O. Emerson. Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, publishers. The volume is in the usual form of music books, contains over 300 pages, and embraces a large variety of hymns, songs, chants and glees. The first twenty pages are given to theoretical and practical studies, and form a most valuable feature of the work.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY for September is splendidly illustrated. The Great South in this number is about Alabama and Mississippi. Some misrepresentation and color blindness in it, but still readable and sprightly. Of other articles we may note: Our New Normal College, A Malay Sailor Running a Muck, Old-Time Music, in the Barn, Gastric Literature.

ST. NICHOLAS for September is filled with striking illustrations and articles of entertainment and instruction for the boys and girls. Among the many attractive headings in the table of contents we note: The Gentle Angels, The Poney Express, Little Ben and the Sunshine, Old Dutch Times in New York, The Peterkins' Summer Journey.

WORK AND SUPPORT OF THE ITINERANT METHODIST MINISTRY is the title of a sermon by Rev. L. S. Burkhead, D. D., of the North Carolina Conference, and issued in pamphlet form. It is a clear and able exhibition of the subject taken in hand, and its general circulation throughout the church would do much good.

THE AMERICAN GARDEN is a very handsomely-printed monthly illustrated journal devoted to garden art. It is edited and conducted by James Hogg, Brooklyn, New York. Price, $2 a year. We have received the September number.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE for September has: The New Hyperion, A Visit to the Dolomites, Glimpses of Genoa, Violins and Violin Players, A Troublesome Legacy, A Tour of Three Steps, and other articles. The first two articles are illustrated.

THE Southern Cultivator for August has a fine table of contents. This valuable journal is published at Athens, Georgia. W. L. Jones, editor and proprietor. Price, $2 a year.

THE American Agriculturist for this month is profusely illustrated and filled with useful reading matter. Published by the Orange Judd Company, New York, at $1.50 per annum.

CHURCH'S MUSICAL VISITOR, Peterson's Musical Monthly and the Georgia Musical Eclectic for August have been received.

MORTON'S MONTHLY HOME AND SCHOOL for August is a good number of this always useful publication.

THE Rural Southerner and Wilson's Herald of Health for July has been received.

SOUL-SLEEPERS.—We are asked, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, to explode the heresy of "soul-sleeping" in the Advocate. We presume the silly people who hold to that oft-exploded heresy do not read the Advocate. If men will not be convinced by the positive teachings of the Holy Scripture that the soul survives the death of the body, there is no use reasoning with them.—"Let them alone." The parable of the rich man and Lazarus settles the question. In the intermediate state the souls of the righteous are with Christ in heaven—absent from the body and present with the Lord—and the souls of the wicked are in hell. What will take place at the last judgment we may learn from John v, Matthew xxv, Romans ii, First Thessalonians iv, Second Thessalonians i, Second Peter ii, and in many other passages of Scripture. Watson, in his Institutes (part 2, chapter 29, pages 615 617,) may be consulted to advantage.

THE NEW CHURCH IN KANSAS CITY.—Right glad are we to learn, as we do from a paper kindly sent us, that our good friends in Kansas City have been able to occupy their new church building. It was opened for divine service on the ninth instant. The basement, a spacious room eighty by fifty feet, is all that has as yet been completed. This has handsome folding seats of walnut and oak, well varnished, while good carpets and matting cover the floor.

At the opening service there were present Rev. Mr. Boggs, the preacher in charge, Revs. N. Scarrett and Madeira, of the Presbyterian Church, and our good Bro. Strauge, from Kentucky, with as large a congregation as could be accommodated in the room.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

REV. A. M. WAILES, writing from his work on Black river, Louisiana, August 12, says:

I believe there is nothing of interest to communicate from our section at present. Hard times absorbs every thought and dwarfs every energy. After the destructive overflow, the worms have "nipped in the bud" every bud of hope before it bloomed. We are now suffering very much from dry, hot weather, and I fear, too, that we are in the midst of a spiritual drouth. There is no hope for us but in God.

MRS. ELIZABETH BROWDER, relict of the late David Browder, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, died July 28, at Russellville, Kentucky, at the house of her son, Wilburn F. Browder. A memoir of this excellent woman will be furnished by Bishop McTyeire to our next number.

THE Rev. Henry Bell, a superannuated member of the Memphis Conference, died at his residence, near Pleasant Hill, Paris circuit, July 26.

Conference Register.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Denver	Denver city	Aug. 27	Pierce.
Illinois	Murphysboro	Sept. 2	Wightman.
Western	Wyandotte	Sept. 9	Keener.
Columbia	Salem	Sept. 10	Pierce.
W. Virginia	Philippi	Sept. 16	Doggett.
Kentucky	Mt. Sterling	Sept. 16	Wightman.
Missouri	St. Joseph	Sept. 16	Keener.
S. W. Missouri	Lexington	Sept. 30	Keener.
Louisville	Princeton	Sept. 30	Wightman.
Tennessee	Gallatin	Oct. 7	Marvin.
Pacific	Stockton	Oct. 7	Pierce.
Holston	Asheville	Oct. 11	Doggett.
St. Louis	Caledonia	Oct. 14	Keener.
Indian Miss'n	North Fork	Oct. 22	McTyeire.
Arkansas	Fort Smith	Oct. 28	Kavanaugh.
Los Angeles	Carpenteria	Oct. 28	Pierce.
N. Alabama	Huntsville	Nov. 4	Doggett.
North Texas	Denton	Nov. 4	McTyeire.
White River	Searcy	Nov. 11	Kavanaugh.
Virginia	Elizabeth City	Nov. 18	Marvin.
N. W. Texas	Weatherford	Nov. 18	McTyeire.
Memphis	Humboldt	Nov. 18	Paine.
N. Mississippi	Aberdeen	Nov. 25	Doggett.
Little Rock	Monticello	Nov. 25	Kavanaugh.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 2	Marvin.
West Texas	Gonzales	Dec. 2	McTyeire.
N. Georgia	Cartersville	Dec. 2	Wightman.
Alabama	Opelika	Dec. 9	Doggett.
East Texas	Marshall	Dec. 9	McTyeire.
South Georgia	Savannah	Dec. 9	Pierce.
Florida	Live Oak	Dec. 16	Wightman.
S. Carolina	Greenville	Dec. 16	Marvin.
Mississippi	Hazlehurst	Dec. 16	Paine.
Texas	Houston	Dec. 16	Keener.
Louisiana	Alexandria	Jan. 6	Paine.
Baltimore	Washington city	Mar. 3	Marvin.

German Mission Conference organized at same time and place. Bishop Keener has charge of the mission in Mexico.

MARRIED.

McDONALD—HOGE.—August 12, 1874, at the residence of Mr. William Walton, by L. P. Meador, Mr. M. T. McDonald to Miss Fannie Hoge, all of Neshoba county, Mississippi.

GLASS—McNEELY.—In the Methodist church at Chappell Hill, Texas, after the morning service on Sunday, August 16, 1874, by Rev. E. D. Pitts president of Chappell Hill Female College, Mr. John E. Glass to Miss Martha Helen McNeely, all the parties formerly of Alabama.

GOLDENHURG—ROOT.—At the residence of Mr. John Root, Skipwith Landing, August 18, 1874, by Rev. T. B. Walden, Mr. Z. Goldenburg, formerly of Kentucky, to Miss Carrie Root, formerly of South Carolina. Peace, joy and gladness for their pathway. May all their happy anticipations be realized.

BANNERS.—T. J. Potter & Co., No. 32 Bible House, New York, advertise in our columns their silk class banners. Send for their circular.

PRINTING INK.—See the advertisement of S. Collins & Co. in another column. Office, No. 26 Frankfort street, New York.

Publisher's Department.

Acknowledgments of Letters and Funds

RECEIVED BY MAIL,

For the Week Ending Aug. 22, 1874.

A—Edwin Alden three letters, C. G. Andrews two letters $90, J. H. Appell $12, American News Company, C. H. Alley, American Photo-Lithographic Company, T. A. S. Adams, Mrs. K. H. Atkison, American Tract Society.

B—Byros & Beaman, E. F. Boone $2.50, James Billingsley, Horace Bishop, William H. Bryood.

C—R. S. Cole, W. R. Close, J. E. Caldwell, D. B. Caskill $1.60, Charles Cessac, C. W. Carter.

D—R. A. Davis two letters, W. H. Davenport, F. A. Duvall & Co., Donaldson & Co., C. B. Dufloss, Charles B. Dellyel.

E—Charles F. Evens, Mrs. Julia Evans.

F—E. A. Fulton, E. N. Freshman two letters, J. O. Fuqua.

G—Gould & Lincoln, Mrs. C. M. Gordon, Joseph Gillott & Sons, W. H. Gayle $2, N. C. Gragard, Goodyear Rubber Company.

H—J. R. Hyams, W. C. Halslip, Holloman & Bro. $13.95, J. D. Harper two letters, M. B. Hillyard, A. L. Harper, P. Howord, E. J. Hale & Son, R. K. Hargrove $3.

J—W. V. Jones $3, B. Jones, J. W. Johnson, T. Saotbola Jones.

K—Mrs. M. A. Keener, W. P. Kimball, J. C. Kreger, Kock Soos & Co.

L—Lee, Shepard & Dillingham two letters, J. B. Lippincott & Co. three letters, A. C. Littlejohn four letters, J. T. Laird 55 cents, H. D. Lessesne $1.50, George M. Livermun $17, Ludden & Bates, R. B. Long Jr.

M—A. H. Moss $600, L. P. Meador, A. J. Morrison, J. B. McKenzie $1.25, E. H. Myers, J. G. Mitchell, Irvin Miller, A. C. Matloon, W. T. Meluglo $2.15.

O—James Ormond.

P—Payne Female Institute $11, W. F. Parker, Cadesman Pope, R. G. Porter $7.50, W. C. Palmer & Co., Powers Paper Company, Mrs. R. B. Parker 10 cents, R. V. Pierce, G. J. Penn.

R—George P. Rowell & Co. two letters $7.65, E. E. F. Ross two letters, Thomas Reed $13, A. H. Redford agent two letters, W. T. Roach $2.70.

S—D. O. Sullivan, S. S. Scott $6, E. Sierne, Geo. S. Schofield, C. S. Stewart, John P. Seabrook $4, John G. Stokes, H. Sinclair, J. H. Stephens.

T—J. R. Taylar $1.50, A. H. Taylor $1, D. C. Turrentine Jr.

U—George Uresinky.

W—Woods & Daniel, Horace Waters & Son, T. B. Walden $12.80, G. R. Wilson, William Wood & Co., W. Wodsworth, T. B. White, Thomas Ward White.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now making a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

A. C. LITTLEJOHN, ESQ., is our sole agent for the State of Texas. We commend him to the courtesies of our friends having advertisements for insertion or other business to transact with the ADVOCATE.

EXTRACT OF MEAD.—On the seventh page will be found an advertisement of Turpin's celebrated extract of mead. Mr. Turpin has been kind enough to send us a sample of his delicious mead, which we pronounce equal to anything of the kind we have ever tasted in that line. Those keeping soda fountains and confectionery establishments would do well to try it. We have no doubt it would add largely to the popularity of many a stand.

STAINED GLASS AND DECORATIVE ART ESTABLISHMENT.—On the corner of Broadway and Thirteenth street, New York, is located an establishment which dates the commencement of its business career forty years back. We refer to the house of Mr. William Gibson, in Gibson's building, dealing in stained glass and decorative art materials. See advertisement.

WALTHAM WATCHES.—These watches have such a widespread reputation, and are so favorably known, as to require from us nothing more than to call attention to the notice of the company, under the head of Business Notices, on the fifth page, headed as above. Write to Howard & Co., 222 Fifth avenue, New York, for price lists.

ORGAN MANUFACTURERS.—The attention of church trustees, and others interested in the building of organs, is directed to the advertisement of Messrs. Henry Erben & Co., Nos. 235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-third street, between Second and Third avenues, New York.

MARBLE SAW MILL.—Mr. William Pattison has, on East Twenty-third street, New York, extending from 318 to 332, between First and Second avenues, an extensive establishment for sawing to order and for furnishing Italian or American marble. See advertisement.

BUILDING committees for churches, and contractors of other buildings for which stained glass is appropriate, will do well to consult the advertisement of Mr. Charles H. Turno, No. 333 East Twenty-third street, New York.

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.—Mr. Arthur Rogers, 193 Spring street, New York, manufactures the effervescing citrate of magnesia. Sold by Messrs. E. J. Hart & Co., New Orleans. See advertisement.

ORGANS.—The Whitney & Holmes Organ Company, Quincy, Illinois, advertise the organs of their manufacture in our columns, which they agree to guarantee for five years.

DO NOT FORGET the establishment of Levy Bros., No. 580 Magazine street.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

$57 60—AGENTS' PROFITS PER WEEK.—Will prove it or forfeit $500. New article just patented. Samples sent free to all. Address W. H. CHIDESTER, 207 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

A SURE PREVENTIVE for Yellow Fever, Cholera and Smallpox. Price, $1, prepaid, with full directions. Address DR. H. BROWN, 697 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

BUILDING PAPER is a most excellent substitute for plastering, at half the cost. The Ornamental serves the purpose of plastering and wall paper combined, and makes a neat and durable finish. You can get samples and circulars by inclosing letter stamp to the agent, MR. EDWARD THOMPSON, 99 Baronne street, New Orleans. au27 4t

Success is the best test of superiority. The wonderful demand for Simmons' Liver Regulator is one of the convincing proofs that this article is appreciated above everything else of the kind. However much its jealous detainers may throw their shafts, truth will prevail, and so will this medicine. au27 1t

THE METAPHYSICIAN, a new quarterly magazine, will be issued from the METAPHYSICAL UNIVERSITY, 51 Bond street, New York, July 20. The METAPHYSICIAN will discourse on many subjects from various standpoints, interesting and profitable to all classes, especially the Family Circle. It is gotten up in superior style. Subscription—One dollar per annum; single numbers, Thirty cents. Will be mailed to any address on receipt of price. jy30 1m

BUY WERLEIN'S PIANOS, such as the Chickering, Dunham, Hale, Pleyel, etc., which are the best in the market. Sold at low prices, and on easy terms, if desired. New Pianos at $350, $375, $400, $450, $500, $550 and $600, at $20 per month. Second hand Pianos at $10, $50, $75, $100, $125, $150, $175, $200, $225 and $250, some at $10 per month; fully warranted, with renewed actions. Enloy's, Needham's and Woods' Organs at low rates. Have added Blackmar's large stock of Sheet Music. Band instruments and Strings in great variety. Band Instruments, etc., repaired. PHILIP WERLEIN'S Mammoth Music House, Nos. 78, 80, 82 and 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. de23 ly

BUSINESS NOTICES.

WALTHAM WATCHES.—These celebrated Watches have been greatly improved during the present year, and several new sizes added to the list. The stem-winding and setting attachment can now be had with any grade or size, and all the old established grades of key-winders are also made as before. Any one who contemplates buying a Watch, either now or in the future, should send for our new Descriptive Price List, which is now ready AND SENT FREE. This describes all the Watches, large and small, Ladies' and Gentlemen's, Gold and Silver, with prices of each, and contains besides information in relation to watches useful to every one. It also explains in full our plan of sending single Waltham Watches at low prices to any place in the Union by mail or express, with the bill to collect on delivery, with privilege to the purchaser to open the package and examine the Watch before paying, and with no obligation to take it unless entirely satisfactory. Thousands have obtained genuine WALTHAM WATCHES from us in this way, and all have received full value for their money. A large assortment of extra heavy cases for the Pacific trade always on hand. Every one should send for a Price List, as the farther you live from New York the more advantage it is to deal with us. When you write please mention that the advertisement was seen in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Address HOWARD & CO., No. 222 Fifth avenue, New York. au27 1aeow

OBSERVATIONS ON NASAL CATARRH.—An abstract from a forthcoming work on diseases of the throat and air passages, by A. N. WILLIAMSON, M. D., late Clinical Physician in the University Medical College, New York city. Mailed to any address for 10 cents. Address the author, 28 East Twentieth street, New York.

"DR. WILLIAMSON'S great success in the treatment of Catarrhal and throat and lung affections renders valuable whatever comes from his pen."—Journal of Medical Science. au20 3m

PIERSON & HEWS, fine Clothing, Shirts and Furnishing Goods, 13 and 15 Camp street, opposite City Hotel, New Orleans, Louisiana. We invite visitors from the interior to examine our stock and prices. We claim to sell first-class goods as low as can be afforded and live. We sell the celebrated Shoulder-Seam Shirts, warranted to fit, wear and give satisfaction. Liberal deduction made to clergymen, and their trade solicited. mh5 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

STEAM

MARBLE SAW MILL,

318 TO 332 EAST TWENTY-THIRD ST.,

Between First and Second avenues, NEW YORK.

WILLIAM PATTISON,

DEALER IN

American and Foreign Marble

of all kinds, has constantly on hand, and will saw to order, ITALIAN MARBLE of the various dimensions, suitable for Monuments, Headstones, Furniture and Mantelpiece work, Tiling, etc., at the lowest market prices. Italian and American Marble in Blocks and Slabs. au27 3m

FURMAN'S

ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL,

COR. MAGAZINE AND SECOND STREETS

NEW ORLEANS.

The Fall Session of this school will open on Tuesday, the first of September, 1874. Diligence and faithfulness on the part of the instructor are claimed; thoroughness instead of superficial display is aimed at. Mild and paternal discipline enforced. Boys prepared for college. French is taught. Pupils in any stage of progress received. Terms of tuition moderate.

Grateful for support in the past, the principal respectfully and confidently bespeaks a renewal and increase of patronage on the part of his friends and the community.

EVENING SCHOOL, from 7 to 9 P. M., for young men whose days are devoted to business.

J. L. FURMAN, Principal.

Refers to Rev. Dr. Linus Parker, Rev. J. C. Carpenter, Rev. John Mathews, Mr. Theo. Auze, Jr., S. M. Angell and Rev. Dr. Ed. G. Taylor. au27 4t

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

The Fall Session of this institution will commence on Wednesday, SEPTEMBER 30, with an efficient corps of teachers. Board can be obtained in the institution.

This being a Conference institution, and educating the daughters of the traveling preachers of the Conference free of charge, we earnestly solicit their co-operation in our efforts to secure patronage for it.

au27 3m RMSTRONG.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

THE WISE MEN OF THE LAND—the Divine, the Physician, the Judge—use daily, in their own homes, and recommend to all invalids and sufferers from Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Costiveness, Heartburn, Indigestion, Piles, Bilious Attacks, Liver Complaints, Gout and Rheumatic Affections, Nature's own great and good remedy,

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,

as the best and most reliable medicine ever offered to the people for the above class of diseases. The nursing babe, its brothers and sisters, its parents and grand-parents, will all find this pleasant remedy well adapted for their different complaints. For sale by all druggists. au27 2t

ROGERS' EFFERVESCING

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA,

in six-ounce bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick Headache, Sour or Sick stomach, and all Febrile cases. Good for all seasons of the year. Prepared by ARTHUR ROGERS, 193 Spring St., N. Y. For sale by all druggists, E. J. HART & Co., wholesale agents, New Orleans. au27 1yeow

S. COLLINS & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK.

Office and Depot—26 Frankfort St.,

NEW YORK.

GEO. H. MORRILL & Co., Boston, Mass.

MORRILL & Co., San Francisco, Cal. au27 3m

CHARLES H. TURNO.

STAINED GLASS FOR CHURCHES.

Memorial Windows a specialty. No. 333 East Twenty-Third street, New York. au27 3m

HENRY ERBEN & CO.,

ORGAN MANUFACTURERS,

235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-Third St.,

Bet. Second and Third Aves., NEW YORK.

There are seventeen Organs in this city of our make, among them the largest. au27 1y

STAINED GLASS —AND— Decorative Art Establishment,

GIBSON'S BUILDING,

Broadway & Thirteenth St., New York.

Established in 1831.

The Designs of Architects and Amateurs artistically carried out. Designs for Memorial Windows a specialty. (au27 1y) WM. GIBSON.

How I Made $70

the first week and am now averaging $25 in a safe business. Any man or woman can do the same. The secret free. Write at once to GOWAN & CO., au27 1y Eighth St., New York.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE FOR

KIT CARSON'S

LIFE AND ADVENTURES.

From facts narrated by himself. Embracing events in the life of the Celebrated American Hunter, Trapper, Scout and Guide; includes vivid accounts of the every-day life, inner character and peculiar customs of all Indian Tribes of the Far West; an accurate description of the country, its condition, prospects, resources, its mountains, rivers, valleys and natural wonders. Also, a full and complete history of the Modoc Indians and the Modoc War.

Splendidly illustrated and sells at sight. Agents reporting from 75 to 100 subscribers each per week. Illustrated circulars and terms sent free to any address by

EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING CO., oc2 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS! SEND FOR TERMS!—A Book for the Times. Everybody wants it! The Art of Money-Making, or How to Grow Rich! Don't miss it! INTERNATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis or Cincinnati. au27 1y

MONEY made rapidly with Stencil and Key-Check Outfits. Catalogues, samples and full particulars FREE. S. M. SPENCER, 117 Hanover street, Boston. au27 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

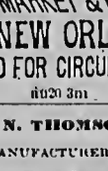
WHITNEY & HOLMES

ORGANS.

FIFTY ELEGANT STYLES, with Valuable improvements; New and Beautiful Solo Stops. Over One Thousand Organists and Musicians indorse these Organs, and recommend them as Strictly First-class in Tone, Mechanism and Durability. Warranted for five years. Send for price lists.

WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., on27 13teow Quincy, Illinois.

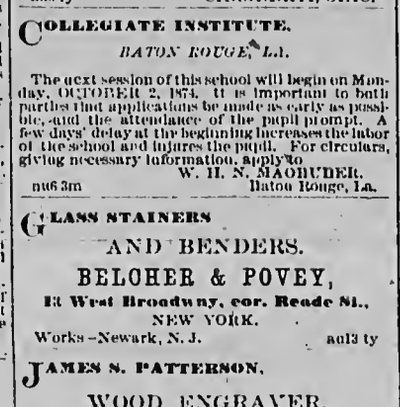
Silk Class BANNERS, $5 EACH.



T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, NEW YORK.

Send for circular. au27 3m

AGENTS WANTED for the CENTENNIAL GAZETTEER OF THE UNITED STATES. Showing the grand results of our first 100 Years. Everybody buys it, and agents making from $100 to $200 a month. Send for circular. ZIEGLER & McCURDY, St. Louis, Mo. my21 1yeow



IF YOU WANT THE BEST

WM. REYNOLDS,

COR. SOUTH-MARKET & FULTON STS.

P. O. Box 1690. NEW ORLEANS.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR au20 3m

WILLIAM N. THOMSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

Thomson's Leather-Preserver,

FOR

Boots, Shoes, Harness, Belting & Hose.

ALSO DEALER IN

LACE LEATHER, RIVETS, BURS, BELT HOOKS, BELT STUDS,

Punches, Belt Sets, and all goods connected with the Belting business,

NO. 52 RACE STREET,

au6 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

BATON ROUGE, LA.

The next session of this school will begin on Monday, OCTOBER 2, 1874. It is important to both parties that applications be made as early as possible, and the attendance of the pupil prompt. A few days' delay at the beginning increases the labor of the school and injures the pupil. For circulars, giving necessary information, apply to

W. H. N. MAORUDER.

nu6 3m Baton Rouge, La.

GLASS STAINERS

AND BENDERS.

BELCHER & POVEY,

12 West Broadway, cor. Reade St.,

NEW YORK.

Works—Newark, N. J. au13 1y

JAMES S. PATTERSON,

WOOD ENGRAVER,

28.....Beekman Street.....28

au13 1y NEW YORK CITY.

CHAMBERS'

STERLING PIANOS.

"SPECIAL SAFE OFFER."

READ! MARK! WRITE!

Before you buy, send for information, circulars and price list. Guarantee unlimited. Pianos sent for approval, and satisfaction assured by our "Special Safe Offer." Address CHAMBERS PIANO FACTORY, 33rd Fourth Ave., New York. au13 4m

WARREN RICHARDS,

MANUFACTURER OF

SEAL PRESSES,

SEAL ENGRAVER AND DIE-SINKER.

12 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, O.

Seal Presses of the Lion-head pattern manufactured with Wrought Iron Plungers of three sizes, with Engraved Dies of any design. au6 2m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER

AND

STEAM POWER LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTER,

82 Beekman Street, New York.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for catalogue. au6 1y

ESTABLISHED 25 YEARS.

HENRY E. SHARP & SON,

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS,

FOR CHURCHES,

MEMORIAL WINDOWS A SPECIALTY.

117 and 119 East Twenty-Second Street,

NEW YORK. au20 3m

VANDERBURGH, WELLS & CO., manufacturers of POSTER AND OTHER WOOD TYPE. Dealers in Presses and Inks, Leads, Brass Rules, Ovals, Circles, Borders, etc. Printers' and Engravers' Boxwood Depot. Manufacturers of Eagle, California and other Improved Cabinets with brass front, duplex and other cases. No. 110 Fulton and Nos. 46 and 48 Dutch street, New York. N. B.—Large stock of used Type and Presses for sale. Pattern and Brand Letters. Stamps for soap, Dry Goods and other uses. au6 3m

COSTARS EXTERMINATORS AND INSECT POWDER

For Rats, Mice, Roaches, Ants, Bed-bugs, Moths, etc. J. F. HENRY, CURRAN & CO., jel1 3m5p New York, Sole Agents.

au13 3m6ow

FINE-TONED, LOW-PRICED, WARRANTED against breakage. Catalogues, containing full particulars, prices, etc., sent free. BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO., ap9 1yeow Cincinnati, Ohio.

A MAN OF A THOUSAND. When death was hourly expected from CONSUMPTION, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of INDIAN HEMP which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. HEMP also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper. jy4 13t

LEGS AND ARMS.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Pamphlet free. CHARLES M. EVANS, manufacturer. (au6 1y)

36 Fourth street.....LOUISVILLE, KY.

152 West Fourth street.....CINCINNATI, O.

MEDICAL.

NEARLY ALL DISEASES ORIGINATE from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Depression of Spirits, or the Blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. Acts mildly, effectually, and, being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

OR MEDICINE

Is harmless,
Is an drastic, violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
Is a faultless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

se25 1y

DR. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST ADVICE THAT CAN BE given to persons suffering from

DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS,

CONSTIPATION, COLIC, SICK HEADACHE,

Fever and Ague, Nervous Debility,

or of any disorder of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, is to tone, cleanse and regulate them by the use of

Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills.

They act very mildly, yet thoroughly restore the functional action of the Digestive Organs and the Intestines, and renovate the whole system, imparting a good appetite and healthy assimilation of food. They produce neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility, and may be taken at any time, without change of diet or occupation.

Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye

possesses qualities that no other dye does. Its effect is instantaneous, and is so natural that it cannot be detected by the closest observer. Being harmless and easily applied, it is in general use among the fashionable Hair-Dressers in every large city in the United States. Price, $1 a box. Sold everywhere.

Laboratory—Nos. 48 and 50 Cortlandt street, New York. oc2 1y8t

METALLIC

ELECTRIC SHIELDS.

Fully Indorsed by the Entire Medical Profession.

HAVE CURED THOUSANDS OF

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA,

AND ALL NERVOUS DISEASES.

Simply applied and worn on the parts affected. For Lame Back, Local Pain, Local Palsy Weakness, Poor Circulation, Varicose Veins and Affections of the Eyes it is a scientific cure. Sold by all Druggists, or General Agent,

GEORGE SWEETSER,

120 Wall St., New York.

Sent by Mail or Express, C. O. D. Price, $5 per pair. au23 3m

TO THE SUFFERERS WITH RHEUMATISM.

In view of the numberless sufferers afflicted with this painful malady, I feel induced to offer to the public my "ANTI-RHEUMATIC MIXTURE," which medicine proves to be the only successful remedy in this line, for it always gives instant relief, and in most cases cures permanently.

During the last fifteen years I have cured thousands of people, in this State and city, of this dreadful disease, with this medicine; and, what astonishes most, the patient recovered by the use of a single bottle of it. This medicine cures nothing but Rheumatism, and should the patient not recover by using the first bottle of it, that patient is not afflicted with Rheumatism at all. This being the first time of making my discovery known to the public after fifteen years of most successful results, I hope the sufferers will take advantage of this rare remedy, and by doing so add their names to the thousands already cured by it.

For sale by W. J. JURCHELEWICZ, Apothecary and Druggist, corner Magazine and Thalia streets, New Orleans, La. ap20 6m

MISCELLANEOUS.

FOR SINGING CLASSES.

THE SONG MONARCH!

By H. R. PALMER, Assisted by L. O. EMERSON.

A book admirably fitted for the use of Singing-School Teachers, having, in addition to a compact theoretic course, more than 180 pages filled with Glees, Quartettes, Airs, Tunes, etc., pleasant to sing anywhere, and constituting a most agreeable course of study. A good book also for College Choirs, for seminaries and Social Singing.

Price, 75 Cents, or $7.50 Per Dozen.

FOR CHOIRS AND CONVENTIONS.

THE LEADER!

is the Leader of all Church Music-Books for 1874 and 1875, being the first in the field and of a character that cannot be excelled.

By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, Assisted by L. O. EMERSON, of Boston.

Containing also compositions from the hands of large numbers of American music writers.

For Conventions, Choirs and Singing Classes.

THE LEADER has 80 pages of Singing School Music, the same as that in the Song Monarch, and large numbers of new Tunes and Anthems, all by the best composers.

PRICE, $6.38, OR $12 PER DOZEN.

Specimen copies of the above book mailed, post paid, for retail price.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

Je18 1y

VALLEY

GEM PIANO.

This Piano is thoroughly and carefully made by experienced manufacturers, and is

The Child's Corner.

PRAYER.

Little children, when the evening
Falleth with its quiet shade
Over tree-top, sky and steeple,
Ere your little heads are laid
On your pillows for repose,
'Neath the Father's mighty care,
Bow the head and bend the knee
Low to him in fervent prayer.

Little children, when the morning
Poureth o'er the eastern hills
Its bright flood of blessed sunshine,
Making glad the fields and rills,
Ere you leave your quiet chambers,
Pause and kneel, and humbly pray
To the God who has preserved you
To behold another day.

Little children, when temptation
Cometh with its giant power,
Pray to God, dear little children,
In that dark and bitter hour;
He will then disarm the tempter,
Turn from you his poisoned dart,
And with grace and strength triumphant
Make his throne within your heart.

Little children, when stern sorrow
Lays on you its heavy hand,
Veiling all the world in darkness,
Veiling, too, the better land,
Go to Jesus, little children:
He will soothe and he will bless,
Will revive your drooping spirits,
Whisper peace and happiness.

Little children, when his summons
Calls you from these scenes away,
Ask him to receive your spirits;
Pray, dear little children, pray,
Pray that through the great Redeemer
You may rise to life and light,
And, glad hallelujahs singing,
Dwell forever in his sight.

About the Sahara.

BY SOLOMON NOBODY.

I used to think, when I was a child, that the great African desert, called the Sahara, was one vast plain of hot sand extending up and down and over and across more miles than anybody knew anything about, unless it might be the camels; and as for the camels, I always thought of them as walking patiently with their great soft feet over the sands until they walked their lives away and lay down to die, and then that some time somebody passing over the desert would find a skeleton of white bones lying by the—well, I had to think of it, after all, as a roadside.

I wonder if the children of to-day do not think as I did, or pretty nearly so?

The books that mentioned oases always referred to them as being little mites of green, as it were, in a wide ocean of sand, with a clump or two of palm-trees in their midst; and it seemed extremely doubtful to me whether or not, if I were to cross the desert of Sahara, I should ever chance to find one.

Now we are told that the wonderful land of Egypt, into which, so many years ago, the lad Joseph went down, is a good big oasis, and that the smallest of the green spots in the desert contains about forty square miles. The oasis of Thebes is sixty miles long and nine miles wide, while that of Asben, sometimes called Air, is one hundred and eighty miles long and wide. How comforting that sounds! I think we should find one of the dear, friendly bits of green, after all, if we were to journey across Sahara.

We should find other surprising things. When we came somewhere near to the middle of it we should see the desert beginning to rise up a little, and it would keep on rising gradually until we should find ourselves on a high broad place two thousand feet above the desert-level, and in the midst of this table-land we should find mountains as high as Mount Washington, and that mountain, New Hampshire folks think, is of a very decent, respectable height. They quite look up to it.

The air in the oasis of Air is very pure and fresh. The maneless lion roams over the dense portion of this oasis, and the leopard, the ape, antelope, ostrich, and even pigeons live there.

The Arabs say that "God made man and the palm-tree at the same time." They say this because they have no idea that man could live without the palm-tree. It is the springs of water that make the palms grow and thrive, and then the trees make shade from the sun, and that shade makes it possible for other things to grow, and so the little oasis grows to be a big one in a fashion not very unlike the growth of the coral islands in the seas of water.

The deserts and the oceans have many things in common. The waves of both roll along and are tossed alike by the winds, the one into billows of water, the other into billows of sand; and travelers tell us that they have seen the sand-waves emit phosphorescent gleams like the waters of the oceans. The camel has long been known as "the ship of the desert," and sometimes he glides away with that soft, undulating motion of his at a speed that is wonderful. The Mahari is the most valuable camel known. Its swiftness is such that it has been known to travel three hundred miles in twenty-four hours, the journey length from Tripoli to Rh'adames; but it has made its last voyage, for at the harbor it lies down and dies. One hundred and twenty miles is the ordinary journey of the Mahari. The caravans direct their steps, oftentimes, in the otherwise pathless wastes, by piles of stones, and these stones tell where springs may be found. Every man who passes by throws a stone upon the heap out of gratitude to those men who have gone before him, and in thought of the travelers who are to come after him.

The Saharian loves the palm-tree, for what it is to him—his food, his shelter and his best friend—next to the spring of water that causes it to flourish. If an Arab wishes to start an oasis, he digs a hole in the sand thirty feet or more deep; into this hole he puts a palm-tree. The roots go searching down toward the water, which everywhere underlies the desert, and if they can find it the tree flourishes. Sometimes the palm-tree hole gets filled in. Then the poor Arab goes to work and opens it again. Several trees planted near together will in time form quite an oasis; for as soon as their roots reach water they can furnish shelter under which other things can grow.

The desert of sand is very unlike the desert of waters in one respect—there are no fish within it, unless we call the ostrich and the lizard the fish of the desert; for the ostrich is the only living thing that ventures, without being obliged to go, into the desert; and the ostrich finds only in his swiftest flight across the sands the great lizard who dwells there—the shob he is called, and sometimes the salamander of the desert.

The lion is popularly spoken of as "the king of the desert;" but a traveler tells us that if you were to ask an Arab, "Where are the lions of the Sahara?" he would ask you: "Are there, then, lions in your country which drink air and eat sand?"—Christian Union.

Will O' the Wisp.

Once, when England was not so well cultivated and drained as it now is, travelers by night used sometimes to see, in woods and wet marshy places, a light called Will o' the Wisp. It looked very much like the light of a candle shining from a cottage window.

Once a poor tired traveler, seeing the Will o' the Wisp, said to himself: "There is the light of a candle yonder; there must be some cottage close by, where I can get a night's lodging." Then he turned out of the right road, and went toward the light; but when he came close to it he found himself knee-deep in water, and the light had vanished from its place, and seemed to have moved away. He ran after it, but, the more he ran, he only plunged deeper and deeper into the water, and wandered farther and farther from the right way.

Now he began to be in great trouble, for he did not know where he was, and he was so tired that he felt as though he could scarcely stir a step farther. But he thought of his wife and little children waiting for him at home, and he determined to make one more trial to find his way. He said a short prayer and set out once more. Suddenly another light appeared. He went cautiously up to it. This time the light did not move. It came from a cottage, where they were very glad to see him, and treated him very kindly, so that early the next morning he was able to set out on his journey again, and reached home safely.

Jesus is the light of the world. But he has given some of his light to each of us, just as the sun gives some of his light to the moon. Jesus told us that we are to let our light shine, so that other persons may see it. He meant that we are to set others a good example.

If you say your prayers and profess to be a Christian, and yet all the time are unkind and selfish and dishonest, what do you think your little brothers and sisters, who are younger than you, may possibly say? They will say: "Those that love Jesus are no better than others. It is no use to pray to Jesus, for he does not help people. If our brother is selfish we may be selfish too." Thus you will lead your little brothers and sisters away from Jesus. You will be like the Will o' the Wisp.

How much better to be like the steady light of the cottage candle, that you may lead others right, instead of wrong! Here are two lines written by a poet named Shakespeare. Some time or other you will read his books for yourself; but these two lines you can understand and remember now:

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Parables for Children.

HOW JOHN MADE IT UP.—He had failed somewhere—in study or deportment, I cannot remember which—and his teacher told him he must stay after school. When the other scholars were dismissed, John seized a moment when the teacher's back was turned and slid out of the door. She called after him to come back, but he pretended not to hear, and ran away. It was a cute trick, he thought, and he bragged over it a little to the other boys; but he did not go to school the next day nor the next. He did not feel like it, he said.

At last he made his appearance again, but, instead of the punishment he expected, his teacher, who was giving out the subjects for essays that day, only told him to write a composition about obedience. John took her meaning at once, and sat scratching his head and puzzling over his composition about half a day. Finally he handed in the following, which is an actual copy of John's composition:

"When you tells you to do a thing, and he does it, it is called obeying, and when you tells you to do a thing and he don't do it, it is called disobeying. And when a man or woman tells a boy or girl to do a thing and he don't do it, it is called disobeying, and when a teacher tells a boy to do a thing and he does it, it is called obeying. The boy's name was John, and he did not obey his teacher, and when she called him back he did hear her, and he will never do it again."

The teacher was satisfied.—Youth's Companion.

A FABLE.—A certain rabbi had two sons whom he and his wife tenderly loved. Duty obliged the rabbi to take a journey to a distant country. During his absence his two promising sons sickened and died. The grief-stricken mother laid them out on their bed, drew the curtain, and waited anxiously for her husband. He came—it was night. "How are my boys?" was the first question. "Let me see them." "Stay awhile," said his wife; "I am in great trouble. Some years ago a friend lent me some jewels. I took great care of them, and at last began to prize them as my own. Since your departure my friend has called for them, but I did not like to part with them. Shall I give them up?" "Wife! what a strange request is this; give them up, and that instantly, this very night. Show me the jewels." She took the rabbi to their bed, drew aside the curtain, and said: "Husband, there are the jewels." The rabbi bowed his head and wept.

JOSH BILLINGS SAYS: "There ain't enny thing that will kompletely kure lazyness, but a second wife has been known to hurry it some."

Farm, Garden and Household.

Harvesting the Grain Crop.

Under this heading the Ohio Farmer gives, editorially, the following practical advice:

"More loss has attended the harvesting of grain from allowing it to become over-ripe than from cutting it in too early a stage of growth. A greater part of the wheat crop is harvested when ripe, and not taken in until it will shell badly, and hence a loss of grain, and a lessened value in the straw. A rule we have always been governed by has been to cut the wheat as soon as the berry is out of the milk, but before the kernel has become so hardened that it cannot be mashed between the thumb and finger; and in cutting oats to lay them as soon as two-thirds of the field had become turned or changed in color. They should not be allowed to lie in the swath any longer than is absolutely necessary to cure the straw sufficiently to prevent it from molding in the stack or mow. Both wheat and oats should be garnered immediately after they reach a condition to make it safe to do so, as great risk attends leaving these crops in the field. We have known acre after acre of heavy wheat to be ruined by growing in the bundle, all from neglecting to garner it at the time when it was fully fitted and weather fair. Where there is barn room it is always best to put grain crops under roof, but where they have to be stacked out from necessity the work should be done in a careful manner. The better way, under most circumstances, is to stack at the barn; then the grain is near the granary when it leaves the machine, and the straw may be saved where it is needed for feeding, bedding and manure.

"In building a stack of sheaves the following rules, adopted from our own experience, will be found perhaps of profit to some of our inexperienced readers at this time:

"Where a pen is not used for foundation, set up two bundles against each other, and others against these, until a circle is formed sloping from center to circumference, each row half the length of a sheaf further out than the one before it. Carry out the foundation in this way until it is of the desired size, and then at the outside lay a double row of bundles and press them down well. The foundation being now prepared, build upon it by laying the tiers of sheaves from outside toward the center, each row lapping buts to bands. Gradually lay out until the stack has attained the height desired—that is, let each row of bundle-buts project over a little further than the one beneath, so that the circumference of the stack will gradually increase in size as it goes up to a half-way point, and then gradually draw in until the top is reached. Caution must be used not to make the stack too flaring; it is only necessary to make a little difference in the circumference of the base and center to obtain the desired object—that of protection against heavy rain-storms. W ing the stack always keep the center a little the highest and well tread down, for in this lies the great secret of having either grain or hay keep well. The outer surface, by being less compact, will settle a little more than the center, and consequently protect the whole from damage by not retaining moisture. We have found it a good plan to let one tier of bundles project some four inches at the point where it is decided to begin drawing in for the top; this furnishes what may be termed eaves. If the stack is to stand an indefinite time before threshing, it will pay to give considerable attention to thatching the top; at all events it should have a topping out of hog grass or poor hay."

Currycomb, Card and Brush.

There is a world of comfort and downright luxury in a good scratch, both for human people and for domestic animals. Posts and bars for rubbing and scratching should be put up in pastures and barn-yards, and kept moderately rough, so as to take hold of the skin.

But our principal object in this present writing is to insist on a more free use of the currycomb and brush, upon horses and cattle, at all seasons. These stable implements are not used as often and regularly as they should by the generality of farmers. A good dressing down of the horse each morning, with the currycomb and brush, is fully equal in health-giving power and elasticity of movement to two quarts of oats. It is a grateful attention, repaid many fold by the animal which is the stated recipient of it.

But while bestowing this care upon the horse, as most persons do, knowing its beneficial effects, they very generally seem to forget that oxen and cows are equally benefited by a daily application of the card. There is no room for doubt on this subject with those who have been accustomed to bestow this attention to the dairy and working stock. A free use of the card gives repose to the animals, enables them to enjoy and digest their food in quiet, instead of raking their bodies against posts, trees and fences, as opportunity offers, for allaying the irritation produced by an accumulation of dust, hay seed and other irritants common to the stable and barn-yard. Even young colts, calves and yearlings are greatly benefited by the use of the card; while its daily use is a step in the breaking or training process by which the services of the animals are made more readily available when properly matured for labor.

It seems absurd to scrub a fattening porker, but those who have practiced it concur in its utility. One reason why hogs like to immerse themselves in pools of stagnant water is found in the fact that their bodies become incrusted with dirt, causing an itching which the pool they seek allays. This irritation renders them restless, and retards the process of fattening very materially. This can be prevented by an application of soap-suds, aided by a spliut broom commonly used for cleaning stables and crosswalks. A liberal application of suds, and good scrubbing daily, will allay irritation, and give that repose to the animals which is essential to a steady and rapid accumulation of flesh and fatty matter. The labor of preparing and applying the wash, at least once a day during the milder portions of the season, will be amply remunerated in the increased weight of the animals when the slaughtering season arrives.—Our Dumb Animals.

THERE is not much to be done in the fruit garden in August, except the care required in looking after the gathering and preserving of fruit. Our readers, of course, know that it must be carefully handled in gathering if it is to be kept for a time. Any injury from insects is as bad, and such injured fruit should be sorted and kept for first use. Summer and early autumn pears and apples are best gathered before they are quite ripe, and kept in the coolest place possible. This, and the time that is coming, will also be the time for testing varieties, and deciding what are best for one's climate or soil. One must, however, guard against error in seeing that the trees are perfectly healthy. If a tree is sick, or if the parts of a tree have not their healthy development, the fruit will not get its natural flavor. It is on account of failure to perceive this that many excellent varieties get bad names. If the leaves fall early in the season, as they do often with leaf-blight, or if the leaves are eaten off by the caterpillars or red spider, or suffer in any way, the fruit will assuredly be of inferior flavor. Many do not care about the leaves falling early, and some even regard it with favor, as showing that the wood is ripening, they say; but this is a mistake. The healthiest trees are those which grow right up to frost, provided that it is not a second growth. We fancy that, when people speak of injury from late growths, it is second growths, and these are bud, for then the wood often gets killed in the winter following. Pear and apple-trees that grow well, but produce no fruit, are benefited by having say half of the growing growth cut back. The buds then left are very likely to form flower-buds, in place of growth-buds, for the next season.—Gardeners' Monthly.

CURE FOR KIDNEY-WORM AND MANGE.—A correspondent of the American Farm Journal thus gives his experience in treating kidney-worm and mange in hogs:

"I noticed that one of my hogs, a large Chester white sow, was a little weak in the back. On examining her I found that it was with great difficulty she raised her fore feet in trying to walk. As I have had very little experience with hogs, I at once consulted a number of my neighbors. They all pronounced it kidney-worm, and of course each had a remedy. Some prescribed soap-suds, some weak lye, copperas, blue vitriol, turpentine, etc. I gave each a fair trial, with no good result; and on the twentieth of March she laid flat on her side, unable to turn over, and had not been on her feet for more than ten days when a veterinary surgeon handed me a bottle of carbolic acid, and told me to use it as follows: Ten drops once a day in drink; then put thirty drops in one gill of hot vinegar, and bathe the back over the kidneys once a day.

"I gave her the first dose on Thursday, March 21. On Sunday, the twenty-fourth, when I went out to feed her, she raised to her feet and took two or three steps to meet me. By Saturday, the thirtieth, she was well and sound as ever.

"The same remedy is equally good in treating mange. First wash the hog well with soap-suds; then to one pint of lard, while hot, add one ounce of carbolic acid, stirring it until it is cold. Rub the hog two or three times with this, and give yourself no uneasiness about the mange."

Scientific.

SOME of the English scientific serials are stating that "the wild potato-plant" has been discovered in northern New Mexico. But this is an error so far as the potato-plant is concerned, the wild locale of which has never been discovered. A wild potato has been discovered in the region specified; but this is the Solanum Fendleri, and not Solanum tuberosum. The flowers individually resemble those of the common potato, but are more loosely panicled; the leaves also resemble it somewhat, but are narrower; and the whole plant not more than six or eight inches high. The tubers are not much larger than chestnuts, and more like chestnuts when roasted than our common potatoes. Again, it will endure a temperature to zero without the tubers rotting, which is not the case with the other one.

IN THE manufacture of nitro-glycerine two tubes, each about a quarter of an inch in diameter and six inches in length, lead into a single tube of double their capacity, but of the same length. Nitric acid is introduced into one and sulphuric acid into the other of these small tubes. The large tube contains glycerine. The two acids are then forced quite gradually into the glycerine, and the chemical combination thus forms an explosive of incalculable power. So powerful and dangerous is this article that not an ounce of it is allowed in the manufactory while this little tube, six inches long and half an inch in diameter, is being filled, and this tube is kept constantly swathed in ice during the process. To make giant powder this nitro-glycerine is allowed to drip upon a clay (similar to meerschaum) imported from Germany. This clay is the only perfect absorbent of nitro-glycerine known. As Hercules powder is darker, it is believed that that explosive is manufactured by the same process, charcoal, an imperfect absorbent, being used, instead of said quality of clay. If, in the manufacture of nitro-glycerine, a strong tube is kept swathed in ice, and a quantity of the liquid only six inches in diameter is allowed in the building at the same time, no wonder that General Von Bokkelen, with his preparation twenty per cent. more powerful, remarked that he would have it handled thermometer in hand.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI,

ON THE NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD, fifty-seven miles south of Jackson, Mississippi, and one hundred and twenty-eight miles north of New Orleans, will

REOPEN ON THE THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.

The charges are low, and yet the advantages are unsurpassed. All extravagance in dress positively prohibited. If you send your daughter here we guarantee that you will be pleased; otherwise you may withdraw her at any time, and the money will be returned.

School books, medicines and medical attention furnished free of charge. Were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the location we could not afford the last two items.

Send for a catalogue.

jy16 3m H. F. JOHNSON, President.

GREENSBORO FEMALE COLLEGE,

ALABAMA.

REV. THOMAS WARD WHITE, President, assisted by an experienced and thoroughly qualified Faculty, capable of imparting instruction in all the departments of a first-class institution.

Course of Instruction.

THE SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

is divided into four classes—Elementary, Primary, Intermediate and Academic—in which all the branches of a thorough English education are taught.

COLLEGIATE DEPARTMENT.

JUNIOR CLASS.

English Composition, Algebra, Ancient Geography and History, Latin (Cæsar and Virgil,) French, Greek and German.

MIDDLE CLASS.

Philosophy, Chemistry, Geometry, Rhetoric, Botany, Astronomy, Watts on the Mind, Latin (Sallust and Cicero,) French, Greek and German.

SENIOR CLASS.

English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Evidences of Christianity, Butler's Analogy, Trigonometry, Davies' University Arithmetic, Latin (Horace and Tacitus,) French, Greek and German.

Daily attention is given to Penmanship, and Compositions are required weekly from every member of the Institution. au13 4t

THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,

GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session of this institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN OCTOBER, with a full corps of instructors. The entire expense per annum, for board, tuition, etc., is from $160 to $242. For particulars or catalogue apply to

DR. A. S. ANDREWS or
PROF. C. F. CASEY,
Greensboro, Alabama.

jy23 2m

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.

Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,

NO. 40 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the

CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER

in the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. au13 (y

STOVES.....STOVES.....STOVES.

The Cheapest and the "Best."

The "BEST" and the "COTTAGE" COOKING STOVES, to which I call particular attention, are unsurpassed by any in this market for economy, durability and most perfect BAKING. They carry a uniform heat in the oven, and can be adapted to burning COAL, COKE or WOOD, without any additional cost. Every one sold under a full guarantee to do as they are represented or the money will be refunded.

Also a variety of other COOKING STOVES of every grade and price, from $15 upward.

HEATING STOVES.

A very large and complete assortment, suitable for Offices, Parlors, Churches, School-Rooms, etc., all of which are offered at very low prices to suit the times. Also dealer in

TINWARE OF EVERY KIND

and description, to suit the country and city trade, which is offered at UNPRECEDENTEDLY LOW PRICES FOR CASH. Also Sole Agent for the manufacture and sale of the Steam Washer, or Woman's Friend.

Will cleanse your clothes WITHOUT RUBBING. Every one sold is FULLY WARRANTED. It saves labor, wear and tear, and the annoyance of wash-day. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Three hundred thousand have been sold already through the States since 1874.

State and County Rights for sale.

Call and see it at NO. 52 GRAVIER STREET, near Telemplotinas.

jy29 1y G. W. W. GOODWYN.

MEDICAL.

KEARNEY'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

is the only pure and unadulterated preparation prepared by a prominent, reliable and scientific physician of thirty years' practice. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its superiority in speedy and permanent cures of Gravel, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and all affections of the Kidneys in both sexes. The greatest Tonic and Diuretic of the age. Be sure and get

KEARNEY'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

Pleasant and agreeable in taste, and efficacious in its curative qualities.

Depot—104 Dunne Street, New York.

Price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists everywhere. au13 1y6p

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VA.

R. W. JONES, M. A., University of Virginia, President, with a full and skillful faculty for instruction in all branches taught in the best female colleges. The next session begins SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

Charge for board and tuition, for entire session of forty weeks, half in advance, $250. Other charges moderate.

The surrounding mountain scenery is grand, the buildings commodious and elegant, the grounds incomparably beautiful.

The patronage for last session represented both Southern and Western States and England.

Domestic department under the supervision of the President and wife. Healthfulness unsurpassed.

Opinions of Distinguished Patrons and Friends.

Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.

"I confided to the care of the President, during the present session, two of my daughters, with very sanguine hopes of their improvement in health and culture. My expectations have been more than realized. From experience I there, as well as from personal observation, I cordially and confidently recommend Martha Washington College to parents who are seeking the best advantages for their daughters."

Prof. L. C. Garland, LL. D., University of Mississippi.

"Martha Washington College possesses remarkable advantages as a seat of learning. * * * The corps of instructors is composed of ladies and gentlemen of ability, fidelity and professional skill."

Bishop H. N. McTyeire, D. D.

"If I were to search the land around I know not another Abingdon—beautiful for situation, healthful, accessible. Its social atmosphere is of the right sort for a female school—sanitorium, not fast, conservative, well bred. The perfume of the "Old Virginia" lingers about it still. Your immediate circle, your grounds, please me more than any I have seen. Your shade-trees and your walks and your wide piazzas linger in my mind."

Faculty of the University of Virginia.

"We cordially recommend Major R. W. Jones, a Master of Arts of this institution, as a gentleman peculiarly well fitted by capacity, culture and experience for the conduct of an advanced seminary for young ladies."

For catalogue, etc., apply to the President.

jy23 2m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.

VIRGINIA.

On the Virginia and Tennessee Air-Line Railroad.

On the TENTH OF SEPTEMBER next the scholastic year begins, and continues forty weeks. It is divided into two terms of twenty weeks each, the second or Spring Term commencing on the twenty-eighth of January, 1875.

TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS,

PAID IN ADVANCE,

May cover the expenses of a student for

Tuition, Board, Fuel, Room-Rent, Washing, Library and Contingent Fees

DURING THE FORTY WEEKS.

We invite careful scrutiny into all the elements which have made this school so eminent.

For particulars or for catalogue address

E. E. WILEY, President,
Emory P. O., Va.

au23 4t

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES,

Port Gibson, Mississippi.

The next session will begin SEPTEMBER 16, 1874, with competent teachers in charge of each department.

EXPENSES FOR COLLEGIATE YEAR.—For tuition, English text-books, stationery, board, lights, fuel and washing, from $200 to $240. Charges for optional branches equally moderate. Daughters of itinerant ministers taught English branches free.

For circular and further particulars address

REV. JOHN A. C. JONES, President.

au20 1m

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,

ASHLAND, VA.,

offers, on very low terms, the advantages of thorough instruction, a high grade of scholarship, under the best religious influences, in a refined community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness, just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad.

One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars

will pay all necessary expenses per term. Session opens on the last Thursday in SEPTEMBER. For catalogue address

REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, A. M., D. D.,
President, or
REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Secretary.

au8 2m

HIWASSEE COLLEGE.—SAID TO BE the best and cheapest school for boys in the Union. Patronage the past year, 137, from ten States. Under care of the Holston Conference, M. E. Church South. Founded in 1849. Seven miles from Sweetwater, on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad. Send stamp for twenty-four page catalogue. Address the President,

REV. J. H. BRUNNER, A. M.,
Hiwassee College, East Tenn.

Je1 1y

EMINENCE COLLEGE.

For Males and Females.

TEN THOUSAND CATALOGUES of this popular school now ready for gratuitous distribution. Apply to

W. S. OILTNER, President,
Eminence, Ky.

Jy26 8t

Soule's

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

The Commercial Athenæum of the South, corner Camp and Common streets (Story Building.) Mercantile and Banking offices are connected with this institution, daily lectures given, and all branches of a business education practically, scientifically and philosophically taught. An English Department for boys, twelve to eighteen years of age, is a special feature of this institution. French and Spanish are also taught.

GEO. SOULE, Principal.

N. B.—Soule's Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator, 880 octavo pages, the great arithmetical work of the age, for sale at the College office. jan22 1y

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

NO. 181 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS.

This is the only Commercial College in this city where students from the country can board in the family of the principal. Terms reduced twenty per cent. Send for circular. Address

J. W. BLACKMAN,
New Orleans, La.

Je18 1y

St. Peter's at Rome.

Everybody who goes into St. Peter's complains that the building, at first sight, does not look so large as he expected to find it, or as it really is. Everybody, expert or otherwise, makes the same remark. Now the regulation answer is that it is the perfection of its proportions which makes the church look small. Such an answer is nonsense. Proportions which take off from the apparent size, and therefore from the dignity of a building, are, in their own nature, disproportions. It is certainly hard on entering St. Peter's to believe that we are in a church longer than St. Albans and higher than Amiens. The reason is that the architects of St. Albans and Amiens knew what to do with their height and their length, while the architects of St. Peter's did not know what to do with theirs. It is all the difference between the magnifying and multiplying principle. At St. Peter's four arches of enormous height and enormous span occupy a length which, in an ancient basilica, would have been occupied by twenty arches. The necessary result is that, while an ancient basilica, or a Gothic church either, does full justice to its own length, St. Peter's looks a great deal shorter than it really is. So with the height; the height, which a medieval architect would have cut up into three or four stages, makes at St. Peter's only one stage; therefore St. Peter's looks a great deal lower than it really is. Lofty pillars, with little or no triforium, and a low clear-story, will often give a great effect of height, as at Milan cathedral, and in many of our perpendicular churches. But at St. Peter's there are no lofty pillars, only enormous piers. There is nothing to carry the eye vertically; there is nothing to carry it horizontally. Nor is there anything for the eye to rest on, as the expression of mere repose, as in the Norman and German Romanesque.—Saturday Review.

According to Prof. Waterhouse, the mountains of the State of Missouri contain iron enough to yield 1,000,000 tons per annum of that precious metal for a period of two centuries. The "Pilot Knob" alone, which rises to an altitude of 1,114 feet above the Mississippi, is so rich in iron ore that it is estimated an upper section, 141 feet high, would yield 14,000,000 tons. The quality of the metal is fibrous and flexible, and therefore excellent.

Men have died poor who all their life long reveled in wealth; men have gone out of the world rich beyond measure who had small earthly possessions, and all because they had given themselves away to Christ, and been bountifully given to of God's love in return.

Waste not—neither time, money nor talent.

BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC.

THE AMERICAN
SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION
OFFERS
Special Terms to Sunday Schools
IN THE SELECTION OF NEW AND
REPLENISHING OF OLD LIBRARIES
Catalogues furnished on application to any of the
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPOSITORIES.
No. 1122 Chestnut street, Philadelphia—ALEX. KIRKPATRICK.
No. 10 Bible House, New York—G. S. SCOFIELD.
No. 40 Winter street, Boston—E. SHUTE.
No. 251 West Madison St., Chicago—W. R. PORT.
No. 307 N. Sixth St., St. Louis—S. PAXSON. mh26 6m

R. ESTERBROOK & CO.'S
STEEL PENS.
FOR SALE BY
ALL BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS IN THE UNITED STATES.
Esterbrook Steel Pen Manufact'g Co.,
49 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK.
Works—Camden, New Jersey. oc2 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

WILLIAM GREGG. MRS. ADA GREGG.
GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU,
COR. CANAL AND BURGUNDY STS.,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
A long acquaintance with the various kinds of
SEWING MACHINES
has induced us to make a specialty in this line. First-class Machines of all kinds at lowest rates. The New Under-Feed Buckeye Hand Machine, only $20. We repair all Machines at low rates. We take old Machines in part payment for new ones.
Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs sold on monthly payments to the country to parties giving references.
MRS. ADA GREGG
respectfully offers her services in purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel, personal adornment or domestic goods for Ladies and Children's use, including Millinery, Dry Goods, Jewelry, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Patterns, Underwear, Trimmings, Bridal Trousseaux, etc. Any article of Ladies' and Children's wear manufactured to the latest styles, under her own supervision.
N. B.—All inquiries relative to articles mentioned or unmentioned will be answered free of charge.
Second-hand Machines, in good order, at half price. The best Needles for all Machines.
REFERENCES.—E. A. Tyler, New Orleans; J. L. Power, Jackson, Mississippi.
Send for catalogue and circular.
jel8 1y GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU.

HENRY PILCHER,
BUILDER OF
CHURCH ORGANS,
936.....Portland Avenue.....936
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.
Twenty-five years' experience in the business, and some of the finest Instruments in the country as specimens of my skill, are sufficient guarantee of the excellence of my work. Would solicit a share of the Southern patronage, and feel confident of my ability to please. The best of references as to ability and honorable dealing. jy16 3m

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT speedily cured by Dr. Beck's only known and sure Remedy.
NO CHARGE
or treatment until cured. Call on or address
DR. J. C. BECK,
112 John Street, CINCINNATI, OHIO
jy23 1y

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT.—At home, Male or Female. $30 a week warranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with six-cent return stamp, C. ROSS, Williamsburg, New York. jy2 2m

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

VOICE OF GOD.—A new and popular book for the people, beautifully illustrated and bound. Replete with information and choice reading. Recommended by pastors of all denominations. Agents can sell this book where no others can be sold. Also a
New and Elegantly Illustrated
LARGE PRINT FAMILY BIBLE
WITH BIBLE DICTIONARY.
A Complete Cyclopedia of Bible History.
Agents, send for Terms and Circulars to
Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
ei8 13t PHILADELPHIA

WILD LIFE IN THE FAR WEST!
Agents Wanted everywhere for this beautifully illustrated book of the Author's Thirty Years' Life and Adventures among the Indians, in the Mexican Wars, hunting wild animals, etc. Entirely new, and the best book ever published on the Far West. Thrillingly interesting, and selling faster than anything ever before known. Send for illustrated circular and liberal terms.
F. A. HUTCHINSON & CO.,
oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED!—ACT AT ONCE.—The people everywhere are eager to buy the only authentic and complete history of
LIVINGSTONE.
His wonderful discoveries and thrilling adventures during 30 Years in the wilds of Africa, resurrection by the daring STANLEY, and heroic death. Over 600 pages, beautifully illustrated; only $2.50. Going like wildfire! Write for extra terms; or, if you wish to begin at once, send $1 for outfit.
VALLEY PUBLISHING CO.,
oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the Great 82 Books—PHYSICAL LIFE OF WOMAN, PHYSICAL LIFE OF MAN. By Dr. G. H. Napheys. 185,000 copies sold. The demand still growing. Send for sample copies. Outfits Free. Express charges prepaid on good orders. 83 Also for GROUNDSWELL, or History of the Farmers' Movement. By Hon. J. Perham, Agricultural Editor of the Western Rural. Send for terms to N. D. THOMPSON & CO., 303 St. Charles street, St. Louis, Mo. jy23 3m

AGENTS WANTED for the quickest and best selling new Book out.
Ten Years in Washington
By Mary Clemmer Ames. "A work for the times and the people; a pay ing look for Agents." It portrays the Capital as it while-awake "woman sees it"—its wonders, marvels, mysteries, etc. 886 in one week was made by a single Agent, and all say "it pays to sell it." Steady work, or for spare hours, for men or ladies on this first-class book. It outsells all others. Five good working Agents wanted in every town. Book agents, clergymen, ladies and others offered large terms. Send for information to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn., or to QUEEN CITY PUBLISHING CO., Cincinnati, Ohio. sell 1y

$2,500 A YEAR made with our ground
COMBINATION PROSPECTUS.
Represents 50 different books. Agents say this is
THE BEST THING EVER TRIED.
The books sell themselves in every family, and good men can make a business for life in one county. Agents Wanted on these and our magnificent Editions of Family Bibles. Full particulars free on application. Address JOHN E. POTTER & CO., Publishers, Philadelphia. au13 13t

CANVASSERS, send No. of your Lodge, and name this paper. We will convince you agents with our superb Home Pictures for Masons, Odd-Fellows, Knights Pythias, Grangers, Red-men, Mechanics, etc., are making double their could any other way; work pleasanter. J. HALE POWERS & CO., Fraternity & Fine Art Pubs., Cincinnati, O.
ja29 1y

BOOK AGENTS, REJOICE!—HARD Times no More! MARK TWAIN'S New Book, THE GILDED AGE, now ready. Secure territory before it is too late. Canvassing outfit, $1 50. Our Terms address
CONTINENTAL PUBLISHING CO.,
de4 1y New Orleans or St. Louis.

IRON WORKS—BELLS.

RAILINGS.....RAILINGS.
WROUGHT IRON AND WIRE RAILINGS
FOR Public Grounds, Cemeteries, Cottages,
ETC., ETC.
Iron Bedsteads, with Wire Sackings, for Hospitals, etc. Verandas and every variety of Wrought Iron and Wire work. Every information by addressing the manufacturers.
M. WALKER & SONS,
se15 1y 905 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WIRE RAILING
AND
ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
No. 36 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.
Manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. oc2 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY,
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.
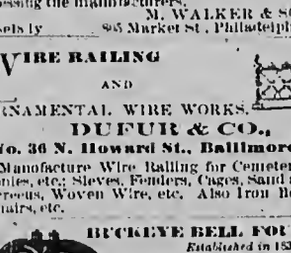
Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati
H. J. WEST, Agent,
mh5 1y 115 and 117 Magazine st., New Orleans.

HOTELS.

TERMS, $3 A DAY.
Bingham House, Philadelphia,
Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.
CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.
This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping-place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed of being in all respects a first-class hotel. sell 1y

CRAWFORD HOUSE,
COR. SIXTH AND WALNUT STREETS,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
I pride myself in providing for my guests the best living, cleanest house and more civility for less money than any other house in the city.
☞ Come and see me.
je25 1f FRANK J. OAKES, Proprietor.

N. F. BURNHAM'S


WATER WHEEL
The best in the Market, and sold at less price than any other first-class Wheel.
84 per cent. guaranteed with
1874 TURBINE
☞ Send for a pamphlet and be convinced.
au6 4m N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,
17.....CHARTRES STREET.....17
A. BROUSSEAU & CO., Importers and Dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings; Floor Oil Cloths; Table and Enameled Oil Cloths; Window Shades; Table and Piano Covers; Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces Curtain and Furniture Materials; Brocatelles, Cotelenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains; Hair cloth Ticking; Springs; Burlaps; Step Covers, etc.
de4 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers,
of every kind. Send stamp for Illustrated Price List to GREAT WESTERN GUN WORKS, Pittsburg, Pa. jy9 13t

BUSINESS CARDS.

RICHARD FROTSCHER,
SEED MERCHANT,
12.....Dumaine St.....12
Near the French Market, New Orleans.
Dealer in BUIST'S GARDEN SEEDS, which are the most reliable seeds sold in the Southern market. Almanacs and catalogues furnished on application. Prices reasonable. jy16 3m

D. H. WALLACE,
COTTON FACTOR AND GENERAL PURCHASING AGENT,
38.....Perdido St.....38
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
Will give special attention to the sale of Cotton and other Produce, and will fill all orders for goods of every description at lowest cash prices. jy2 1y

J. B. WILKINSON, JR.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT
FOR THE SALE OF
Hides, Moss, Wool and Country Produce Generally,
and for the purchase of Family, Plantation and Store Supplies, 29 PETERS AND 4 CLINTON STREET, near the Customhouse, New Orleans.
Liberal cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, Rice and other consignments. Connections with the principal Northern markets. Sole agent for the celebrated Armstrong Machine-cleaned Moss. je4 10m

J. A. KERNAN & T. WHITE,
PRACTICAL GILDERS,
106 Customhouse St., near Royal, New Orleans.
Regilding done in the best style. Oil Paintings restored, relined, cleansed and varnished. Looking-glass and Picture Frames made to order. Having a business experience of nearly forty years in this city, they hope to give satisfaction to their customers not only in the superiority of their work, but likewise in their moderate charges. Country orders promptly attended fe19 9m

LOUISIANA STEAM SASH, BLIND
—AND—
DOOR FACTORY,
ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,
301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,
New Orleans. jel1 1y

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.
B. D. WOOD & BROS.,
106 Common St., opposite City Hotel,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat-load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. my7 1y

E. A. TYLER,
115.....Canal Street.....115
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
FINE WATCHES, DIAMONDS, JEWELRY, Plated Ware, Table Cutlery, Fancy Goods, etc. Pure Sterling Silverware, suitable for presents. Clocks and Bronzes in great variety. Jewelry manufactured and repaired. Clocks and Watches repaired. fe26 1y

TO THE PUBLIC.—Returning thanks for past favors, the undersigned desires to inform his friends and the public that he has removed to 152 and 151 Camp St., cor. Calliope, where he continues to Buy, Sell, Store, Remove, Pack and Repair FURNITURE of every description. Pictures and Looking-glasses framed.
JOHN ROIS,
fe26 1y Nos. 152 and 154 Camp street.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.
ELKIN & CO.,
168.....CANAL STREET.....168
Near Baronne, New Orleans,
IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF
English Carpetings, Rugs, Etc., Etc.
Also Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc. oc23 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.
AIKEN & WATT,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
60 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.
Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no6 1y

DELICIOUS SODA WATER
AND FRESH FRUIT SIRUPS,
At Feitelburg's,
Corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue, New Orleans. jel1 30t

JAMES M. DOWLING,
SUCCESSOR TO J. M. JOHNSTON,
WHOLESALE GROCER, COMMISSION MERCHANT,
And Dealer in Western Produce,
NO. 25 DECATUR ST. (LATE OLD LEVEE,)
je1 1y Cor. Customhouse St., New Orleans.

T. W. BOTHICK, UNDERTAKER,
No. 271 Camp Street, New Orleans.
Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood COFFINS always on hand. Black, Satin, Brown and White Merino Ladies' and Children's Shrouding. Embalming and Disinterring. Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses, Carriages and Cabs for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. de1 1y

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS,
TRADE-MARKS, COPYRIGHTS, ETC.,
Procured by
mh26 10m H. N. JENKINS,
No. 27 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

THE DOMESTIC
LOCK-STITCH SEWING MACHINE
WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME.
WILCOX & GIBBS' celebrated Twisted Loop-Stitch Sewing Machine, always ready and in order. Needles for all kinds of Sewing Machines.
M. S. HEDRICK,
my21 1y 103 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. D. COULON,
PORTRAIT PAINTER,
37.....Camp Street.....37
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
Old Paintings restored. fe19 1f

E. HEATH. M. LARA.
HEATH & LARA,
Importers and Dealers in
UPHOLSTERERS' GOODS, WALL PAPER WINDOW SHADES AND CORNICES,
Mirrors, Frames, Molding and Wire Screens,
No. 99 Camp Street,
no20 1y New Orleans.

T. WHINREY CARTER,
ARCHITECT,
47.....POLYMNIA STREET.....47
ja15 1y New Orleans.

GAS FIXTURES,
GAS COOKING STOVES
AND PLUMBING MATERIALS
At New York Prices,
BY P. H. QUINLAN, 280 CAMP STREET.
Stores, Offices and Dwellings fitted up for Gas, Steam and Water in the most approved style. Country orders solicited. mh26 10m

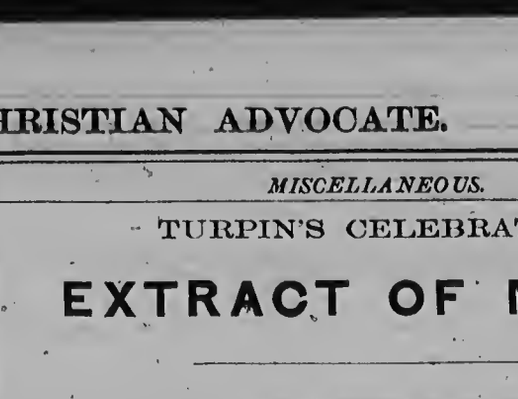
F. J. KUHNHOLZ,
BOOK-BINDER,
112.....GRAVIER ST.....112
Near Camp, New Orleans.
Blank-Books ruled and bound to order. All other books, such as Magazines, Music, Law-Books, etc., bound with care and neatness, and at moderate prices. ja22 1y

HUGH FLYNN,
167 POYDRAS ST., NEW ORLEANS,
All who want to purchase CHEAP FURNITURE can call at 167 Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet streets.
On account of retiring from the Furniture business, I am now selling off my large stock of New Furniture at greatly reduced rates. I am selling at rates below those of any house in the city.
Walnut Victoria Bed-room Sets, marble top..$125 00
Parlor Sets, eleven pieces..... 110 00
Double Bedsteads, with Testers and Rollers.. 12 00
Kitchen and Dining-room Furniture at equally low rates. Spring, Hair and Moss Mattresses of the best quality and at greatly reduced prices. de11 1y

T. A. BECK, COOPER,
NOS. 22 AND 24 FRONT STREET,
Between Customhouse and Bienville streets (Sugar Landing,) New Orleans,
has constantly on hand Sugar Hogsheads, Molasses Barrels, Half Barrels, Kegs, Hoop Poles, etc. Orders promptly attended to. Particular attention paid to trimming. de11 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

TURPIN'S CELEBRATED
EXTRACT OF MEAD.
THE ONLY GENUINE RECIPE FOR
MAKING MEAD SIRUP AND MEAD SODA.
DIRECTIONS HOW TO USE ON EACH BOTTLE.
THIS BRISK AND MOST LUSCIOUS BEVERAGE is becoming daily more popular throughout the principal cities of the United States. As a cooling, soothing and thirst-quenching beverage it has no superior.
Families can make their own Sirup by following the directions on each bottle of my Extract. It is superior to Lemonade in warm climates. A little water added to this Sirup quenches thirst and imparts a cooling feeling throughout the body. Those who have used it have pronounced it the NECTAR of tropical countries. Try it once and you will never be without it.
The undersigned, being the compounder and sole proprietor, warns the public against all counterfeits. Price, per dozen bottles, $12. One bottle is sufficient to flavor thirteen gallons of Mead Soda or three gallons of Mead Sirup. Address
ERNEST TURPIN,
au13 1m Nos. 112 and 114 Poydras Street, New Orleans.



NEW ORLEANS, LA. 1874.
GEORGE PURVES'
PERSEVERANCE
Sash, Blind and Door
STEAM FACTORY,
AND
LUMBER YARD,
Cor. of St. Charles and Clio Sts., New Orleans.
GLAZED SASH.
Send for Price List.
de11 1y

1874. FIFTH 1874.
CINCINNATI INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION!!
ARTS, INVENTIONS, MANUFACTURES, PRODUCTS.
OPEN FROM SEPTEMBER 2 TO OCTOBER 3, 1874.
THE LARGEST FAIR EVER HELD IN THE UNITED STATES.
Eight Acres Under Roof in the Heart of the City.
Three Acres of Machinery in Motion.
☞ Ample Hotel Accommodations. Reduced Railroad Rates of Fare.
jy21 6t

BUSINESS CARDS.

J. A. LUM. FRANK H. HOOKER.
J. A. LUM & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
CARRIAGES, HARNESS, ETC.,
162 Gravier and 13 Union Street.
☞ A SPECIALTY MADE OF CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES. mh5 1y

THOMAS HASAM,
LUMBER,
CABINS MADE TO ORDER.
Every description of LUMBER always on hand. Sash, Blinds, etc.
Mills and Yard—Corner CEDAR AND JULIA streets (New Basin,) New Orleans. ja15 1y

mh5 1y

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

DR. C. J. RICKHAM,
RESIDENCE AND OFFICE,
Corner Magazine and Second Streets,
New Orleans.
Office Hours—Eight to nine A. M. and three to four P. M. je29 1f

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
DENTAL SURGEON,
152.....Julia Street.....152
All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed.
Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. de1 1y

DR. J. J. LYONS,
NO. 210 CARONDELET STREET
Between Julia and St. Joseph,
ja2 1y New Orleans, La.

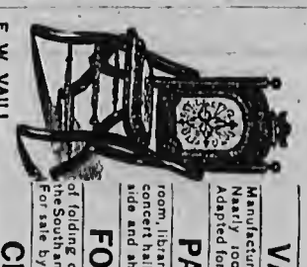
O. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER.
E. T. MERRICK, formerly Chief Justice, Louisiana.
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
ATTORNEYS, COUNSELORS AND SOLICITORS,
Corner of Camp Street and Commercial Place, se25 NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS
PURCHASING BUREAU.
To the Ladies of the South.
A Purchasing Agency has been established in New Orleans, Louisiana, for the benefit of those residing at a distance from the city, and who have not the facilities for obtaining just what they require.
MRS. H. MOGRIDGE
respectfully offers her services in selecting, purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel or personal adornment for ladies' and children's use, including MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, JEWELRY, BRIDAL TROUSSEAUX, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Trimmings, Underwear, Sewing Machines, etc., etc.
Scrupulous care with reference to the price and quality and fidelity to the interest and fulfillment of the wishes of correspondents, will be sedulously carried out.
MRS. H. MOGRIDGE'S
Dressmaking Establishment,
Nos. 94 and 96 Canal St., New Orleans.
Refers by permission to D. H. Holmes & Co., New Orleans. fe19 1y

FOUND.—The place to buy EUCALYPTUS GLOBULUS, fine Gum or Fever-Tree SEED. Also all Seeds known in Australia, New Zealand, South America or California. To be had of
H. F. WELLINGTON,
425 Washington St., San Francisco, Cal.
Send for circulars. je11 3m

TRUSSES AND BRACES.
Club Feet cured without the knife. The Radical-Cure Truss, patented May 8, 1866, applied. All instruments for deformities—Crutches, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Ear Trumpets—on hand at DR. A. O. FORSBERG'S, No. 5 East Fourth street, east of Main, up stairs Cincinnati, Ohio. Sign of Golden Eagle. au6 3m

MISCELLANEOUS.



E. W. VAILL,
Worcester, Mass.,
Patentee and Manufr
VAILL'S
PATENT
FOLDING
CHAIRS
Manufactured in great variety. Nearly 100 kinds and sizes. Adapted for the parlor, drawing room, library, verandah, church, concert hall, lecture room, sea-side and shipboard. A variety of folding cane seat chairs for the South and tropical countries. For sale by all first-class dealers in furniture and house furnishing goods. Send for cuts.
mh5 6m

CINCINNATI
PIANO-FORTE
MANUFACTORY.
F. W. BIERE & SON,
WAREROOMS,
170 Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
The attention of our friends and the public in general is most respectfully invited to our fine stock of HOME-MADE PIANOS.
We permit no inferior Instrument to go out of our factory, but endeavor to EXCEL ALL MAKERS by producing PERFECT INSTRUMENTS ONLY, and thereby secure the entire confidence of the public. jy23 3m

MONUMENTS A SPECIALTY.
AMERICAN GRANITE
AND ITALIAN MARBLE.
IMPORTERS OF
Scotch Granite Monuments
AND STATUARY FROM ITALY.
This is the OLDEST AND LARGEST establishment of the kind in the Western country, and would solicit a share of the Southern patronage. Being in the business for years, I feel confident of giving the utmost satisfaction, having in my employ men of experience.
A. WHITE.
OFFICE AND WORKS,
251, 253 and 257 West Fifth St.,
jy23 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

STAR IRON WORKS.
WALTON, HEMLER & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS OF
IRON RAILINGS,
SAFES AND BANK VAULTS,
JAIL CELLS, IRON STAIRS, DOORS AND SHUTTERS, Awning Frames, Gratings, Rolls, Stirrups, Verandas, Balconies, Patent Sidewalk and Sky-Lights, and all kinds of Iron Work for buildings.
Nos. 231 and 236 West Pearl Street,
CINCINNATI, OHIO.
Orders promptly attended to and satisfaction guaranteed. jy23 3m

LEVY BROS.'
Dry Goods Establishment,
AT
580.....MAGAZINE STREET.....580
Between St. Andrew and St. Mary.
NEW GOODS EVERY WEEK.
We are now opening a large and well-assorted stock of SPRING GOODS, which have been bought and will be sold at prices that will suit all purchasers.
Give Us a Call.
N. B.—Orders from the country will be promptly filled. mh5 1y

FLINN'S PATENT
SELF-FASTENING AND ADJUSTABLE
BED SPRINGS
Make the Best Spring Beds in Use.
They are complete in themselves, and can be applied in a few minutes to any slat bedstead.
☞ From three to five dozen make a Set.
JOHN FLINN,
248 South Second St., Philadelphia, Pa
Cor. S. Water and Champlain Sts., Cleveland.
Agents wanted everywhere. se18 1y

MACHINERY, TIES, ETC.

LANE & BODLEY,
CINCINNATI, OHIO,
...MANUFACTURERS OF STANDARD
PLANTATION
MACHINERY,
STATIONARY & PORTABLE
STEAM ENGINES,
Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Shafting Hangers, Pulleys, etc. Our Machinery is strong, simple and well made, and is especially adapted to the wants of Farmers and Planters for Ginning, Sawing, Grinding and Factory use. Send for an Illustrated Catalogue.
LANE & BODLEY,
jy23 1y John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, O.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.
IRON COTTON TIES.

The above-mentioned Ties are the best and most popular Ties in use for Baling Cotton. They are manufactured of the best quality of English Iron, and are sold under full guarantee, at the lowest market price, by all dealers in Baling Stuffs in New Orleans, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, Charleston, Wilmington, Petersburg, Baltimore, Memphis, Louisville, Nashville, New York, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.
R. W. RAYNE & CO.,
(Late Bartlett & Rayne.)
GENERAL AGENTS,
48 Carondelet Street, cor. Union, jel8 6m New Orleans.

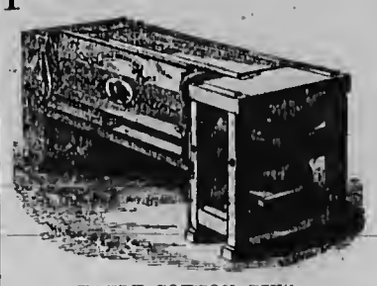
IMPROVED


EAGLE COTTON GINS.
The great popularity of the EAGLE COTTON GINS is established from the well-known fact that they are the most reliable, strongest and best built Cotton Gins ever made. The Eagle Cotton Gin runs lighter than any other gin, thus having a great advantage for planters who wish to run by horse power. All the numerous planters who use the Eagle Cotton Gin will certify to the fact that when their cotton is sent to market it always brings the highest market price, as no other gin can produce a finer or a better sample of cotton than the Eagle Cotton Gins. Over seventeen thousand of the Eagle Cotton Gins have been made and sold. During a period of twenty years the undersigned has had the agency of the Eagle Cotton Gin in New Orleans. It has never had a gin returned or rejected out of the immense number sold. The saw cylinders of all the Eagle Cotton Gins are twelve inches in diameter, which is two inches larger than most other kinds of gins, thus giving our forty-saw gin more teeth, and they are more than equal to the fifty-saw gins of other makers, who use only a ten-inch cylinder, and the same great advantage of the twelve-inch cylinder in larger-sized gins can be easily estimated. Planters who wish a reliable cotton gin, with an established reputation, can purchase an Eagle Cotton Gin with a certainty that they are not making an untried experiment, but will obtain a cotton gin which is indorsed by the oldest and largest planters in the country as the best in use. A large stock of the Eagle Cotton Gins are always kept on sale in New Orleans, ready for immediate shipment. Planters should be particular to state if they want right or left-hand mutlun gins.

PRICES,

40-Saw Gin.....	$200	65-Saw Gin.....	$225
45-Saw Gin.....	225	70-Saw Gin.....	250
50-Saw Gin.....	250	75-Saw Gin.....	275
55-Saw Gin.....	275	80-Saw Gin.....	300
60-Saw Gin.....	300

All orders should be addressed to
W. L. CUSHING,
No. 61 St. Charles street,
Sole Agent for the Southern States.
Agents wanted. Also on sale a large stock of Brooks' COTTON PRESSES, Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Straub Corn Mills and Plantation Machinery of all kinds. my28 3m

DANIEL PRATT'S
Improved Cotton Gin.
PRICE REDUCED
TO $4 PER SAW.

JOSEPH B. WOLFE & CO.,
GENERAL AGENTS,
No. 59 Carondelet Street,
je4 6m NEW ORLEANS.

PLOWS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC.
PLOWS
AND ALL IMPROVED
Agricultural Implements.
PLANTATION HARDWARE.
Steam Engines, Saw and Grist Mills.
PUMPS, SHAFTING, ETC.,
AT LOW PRICES FOR CASH.
B. J. WEST,
115 and 117 Magazine St., New Orleans,
MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.
mh19 10m

CRESCENT MACHINE SHOP.
JOSEPH WALKER,
Machinist, Engineer, Blacksmithing, ETC., ETC.,
CORNER ST. JOSEPH AND CONSTANCE STS., New Orleans.
☞ Plantation Machinery manufactured and repaired. Jobbing promptly attended to. fe5 1y

New Orleans Markets.

From the New Orleans Price Current.

The river is 13 feet below high-water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the twenty-first instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales...	208
Mobile		64
Texas		15
Total		287

On Saturday the demand was limited, and in the absence of any competition among buyers, and a decline of 1-16d. at Liverpool and ⅛c. at New York, some factors were disposed to make slight concessions, and others were accepted which would have been previously refused. Others, on the contrary, adhered to their previous pretensions. The sales embraced 250 bales. On Monday, although from the limited extent of the sales, which were confined to 84 bales, the market appeared to have been nearly at a standstill, there was some inquiry, but at prices which factors would not accept, most of them adhering to their previous pretensions. We noted a difference of fully ⅛c. between their views and those of buyers. A further decline of 1-16d. at Liverpool was calculated to have a depressing influence. On Tuesday, finding buyers would not go on at previous rates, factors met the demand more freely, in most cases giving way ⅛c., but in some instances ¼c., which gave a renewed impulse to the movement, and the sales reached 400 bales. Good ordinary sold at 14⅜c., and low mid ling to strict low middling at 15⅛c. We also noticed a sale of two bales new Louisiana, classing middling, at 16⅞c.

The above makes an aggregate for the past three days of 700 bales, against 1,100 for the corresponding time last week and 1,625 the week before.

The receipts proper at this port since the first of September, exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas, are 1,217,443 bales, against 1,231,785 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 188,428 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same date last year, there is an increase of 108,485 to France, of 114,994 to other foreign ports, and a decrease of 46,000 to Great Britain. We quote:

Inferior	7¾	@	9
Low ordinary	10	@	10¾
Ordinary	11¾	@	12¾
Strict ordinary	12¾	@	13¾
Good ordinary	14¾	@	14¾
Strict good ordinary	15	@	15¼
Low middling	15⅞	@	16
Strict low middling	16¼	@	16⅝
Middling	16⅝	@	17
Strict middling	17⅛	@	17⅜

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1873...bales		7,177
Arrived past three days	297
Arrived previously	1,329,283	—1,329,580
Net corrections, showing the balance between several manifests duplicated, and bales made from waste, samples, damaged, city ginning, from receipts of seed-cotton not included in general receipts, lint from seed-cleaning machines in city mills, etc.		20,480
Add 2,552 bales, sunk in the ship Alba, omitted in the Exchange's stock statement		2,552
Total		1,359,789
Exported past three days	4,543
Exported previously	1,341,713	—1,346,256
Consumed at Lane Cotton Mills		800
Sunk in scuttled ship Alba, to be added if ever recovered (2,552, less 707 recently recovered)		1,845
Total		1,348,901
Stock on hand and on shipboard		10,888

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—The demand is confined to dealers and grocers, and only 28 hhds yellow clarified sold to a refiner on Saturday at 10¾c. ℔ lb.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Nothing doing except in grocers' trade. City refinery rebolled is selling in the job trade at 40@42c for common, 48@50c. for fair, 55@57c. for good fair, 60@62c. for prime, and 67@69c. for choice.

COHN.—On Saturday 1,550 sacks sold at 87@88c. for prime white, 88c. for yellow mixed, and 90c. for white and white mixed.

OATS.—On Saturday 1,050 sacks sold at 55@60c., and on Monday 750 sacks sold at 55c. for ordinary new, and 58c. for prime.

BRAN.—On Saturday 100 sacks sold at 90c. ℔ 100 lbs.

PORK.—We have to note a dull market, and no sales on Saturday, while on Monday only 100 bbls. mess sold at $24 50 ℔ bbl.

BACON.—On Monday 100 casks sold, in several lots, at 13¾c. for clear rib sides, and 14@14½c. for clear sides.

HAMS—Are in good supply and dull at 15@16c. ℔ lb. for choice sugar-cured, as in brand. On Saturday 20 tierces sold at 15¼c. ℔ lb.

LARD—Is in light supply, but there is little or no demand. Tierce is quoted nominally at 15¼@15¾c.; keg, 16@16¼c. ℔ lb.

BREAKFAST BACON—Is in light supply and in demand at 15¾@16c. ℔ lb.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 109¾@109⅞ (against 110 at New York,) and, after a limited business, closed at 109¾@109⅞ (against 109⅝ in that market.)

Nothing has been reported in silver. It is quoted at 103¾@104¼ for American half dollars. Mexican dollars closed at 97½ gold or 106⅝ currency.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS:
Cotton scrapers	$1 50	— —
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. and shovel-tooth	9 00	12 50
Cultivators, riding and walking	25 00	35 00
Shovels and spades	7 50	16 00
Axes	11 00	16 00
Shovel plows	5 00	7 50
Half do., with cutters	6 00	7 50
Manly's double-shovel plow	6 00	9 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bradford's grist mills	150 00	225 00
BRICKS, ℔ M:
Lake	9 50	15 00
Country	7 00	9 00
English fire	45 00	47 50
American fire	35 00	— —
CANDLES, ℔ lb.:
Sperm, New Bedford	30	31
Tallow	14	— —
CHOCOLATE, ℔ lb.:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	— —	— —
Sweet	22	— —
COAL, ℔ ton:
Anthracite	— —	12 50
Western, ℔ bbl	— —	— —
COFFEE, ℔ lb.:
Mexican	— —	— —
Java	28	30
COTTON SEED:
Rough, ℔ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	10 00
EGGS, ℔ dozen:
Western	18	20
FERTILIZERS, ℔ ton:
Stern's raw-bone superphosph'e	— —	65 00
Stern's fine-ground bone	— —	45 00
FLOUR, ℔ bbl.:
Double extra	— —	4 50
Superfine	— —	4 00
Fine	— —	— —
GLASS, ℔ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	— —	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 10 by 14 to 12 by 20	4 00	4 25
French, 14 by 18 to 18 by 20	4 25	4 75
HAY, ℔ ton:
Prime	— —	— —
Choice	— —	20 00
IRON, ℔ ton:
English, ℔ lb	4	5
Swedes, assorted	7¼	8
Hoop	6	9
Sheet	6	9
Nail rods	— —	9¼
Castings, American	5¼	6
LEATHER, ℔ lb.:
Sole, hemlock	30	33
Sole, oak	40	44
Harness	38	45
Calf-skins, ℔ dozen	35 00	100 00
Texas, rough, ℔ lb	24	26
LIME, ℔ bbl.:
Western	1 50	1 75
Cement	2 50	2 75
Plaster Paris	— —	2 75
LUMBER, ℔ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	— —	— —
Boards, cypress	— —	— —
Flooring, dressed	18 00	20 00
Flooring, rough	— —	16 00
Ceiling, dressed	12 00	14 00
Weatherboards, dressed	14 00	16 00
Weatherboards, rough	— —	— —
Scantling	12 00	14 00
Shingles, ℔ M	— —	3 25
Laths	— —	— —
OILS:
Lard, ℔ gallon	1 10	1 15
Coal oil, in barrels	17	20
Linseed, raw	1 02	— —
SUGAR, ℔ lb.:
Havana, white	— —	— —
Havana, yellow	— —	— —
Havana, brown	— —	— —
Crushed	11¾	12
Pulverized	11¾	12
TEAS, ℔ lb.:
Imperial	25	— —
Gunpowder	65	— —
Hyson	70	— —
Young Hyson	70	1 40
Pouchong	30	— —
Oolong	25	— —
WAGONS, CARTS, ETC.:
Wagon, two-horse	85 00	90 00
Wagon, four-horse	115 00	125 00
Wagon, two-horse, thim. skein	80 00	85 00
Wagon, four-horse	100 00	110 00
Cana wagon	210 00	215 00
Ox wagon	90 00	125 00
Ox cart, complete	110 00	115 00
Cane cart	110 00	115 00
Tongue cart, complete	120 00	125 00
Plantation cart	55 00	65 00

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 25, 1874.

Texas beeves, choice, ℔ head	— —	@	40 00
Texas beeves, first quality, ℔ head	30 00	@	35 00
Texas cattle, second quality, ℔ head	20 00	@	25 00
Texas cattle, third quality, ℔ head	12 00	@	18 00
Western beeves, ℔ lb. net	— —	@	— —
Sheep, first quality ℔ head	4 00	@	5 00
Sheep, second quality, ℔ head	3 00	@	4 00
Milch cows, choice, ℔ head	80 00	@	100 00
Milch cows, ℔ head	35 00	@	40 00
Calves, ℔ head	7 00	@	9 00
Yearlings, ℔ head	5 00	@	9 00

Advertisers' Directory

OF THE

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Alphabetically Arranged Under the Heads of the Business or Articles Advertised.

NOTE.—We take no advertisements except from those who we have good reason to believe are respectable and reliable. The publisher urges his solicitor and agents to seek the advertisements of the most worthy and reliable representatives in every branch of business, and not to apply to or accept business from persons of doubtful character. We have refused business to the extent of thousands of dollars each year for want of satisfactory information in reference to applicants. We think we may safely claim for the list below that it embraces, as a rule, the very best men and firms in the different branches represented.

☞ We retain no dead advertisements.

Agencies.
Gregg's Purchasing Bureau, corner Canal and Bourbon streets.
Mrs. H. Mogridge, Purchasing Bureau, 94 and 96 Canal street.
J. Hale Powers, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.
N. D. Thompson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Architects.
T. Wilhrey Carter, 47 Polymnia street, New Orleans.

Barber.
Baptiste, St. Charles Hotel.

Bed Springs.
John Flinn, Philadelphia.

Bells.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Buckeye Bell Foundery, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Belting.
W. N. Thomson, 52 Race street, Cincinnati, O.

Book-Binder.
F. J. Kuhnholz, 112 Gravier street.

Books and Stationery.
Robert J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.
American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
Continental Publishing Co., St. Louis, Missouri.
Chas. H. Dilson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, Mass.
F. A. Hutchinson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Miller's Bible and Publishing House, 1102 and 1104 Sansom street, Philadelphia.
Nettleton & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
John E. Potter & Co., Philadelphia.
Queen City Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Valley Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo.
A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn
Ziegler & McCurdy, St. Louis, Mo.

Building.
A. J. Bleknell & Co 27 Warren street, New York.

Carpets.
A. Brousseau & Co., 17 Chartres street.
Elkin & Co., 168 Canal street.

Carriages, Wagons, Etc.
J. A. Lum & Co., 162 Gravier and 13 Union street.

Chairs.
E. W. Vail, Worcester, Mass.

China and Crockeryware.
W. C. Shepard & Co., 55 Camp street.

Clothing and Furnishing Goods.
Pierson & Hews, 13 and 15 Camp street.

Coal and Wood.
B. D. Wood & Bros., 106 Common street.

Cooperage.
T. A. Beck, 23 and 24 Front street.
P. A. LeBlanc, 22 Front street.

Cotton Gins.
J. B. Wolfe & Co., 39 Carondelet street.

Cotton Ties.
Bartlett & Rayne, 48 Caroudelet street.

Croquet.
Bradley's Patent Croquet, Robt. J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Dentists.
Dr. John G. Angell, 152 Julia street.

Direct Trade.
Dr. Thomas D. Worrall, 24 and 26 Camp street.

Dry Goods.
Levy Bros., 580 Magazine street.

Educational.
Blackman's Commercial College, 131 Carondelet street.
Centenary College, C. G. Andrews, president, Jackson La.
Collegiate Academy, Rev. J. A. B. Jones, president, Port Odbson, Miss.
Collegiate Institute, Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge, La.
Eminence College, Eminence, Ky.
Emory and Henry College, Rev. E. E. Wiley, Emory P. O., Va.
Female College, Greensboro, Ala., Rev. Thos. Ward White, president.
Hiwassee College, Rev. H. Brunner, pres't.
Martha Washington College, Abingdon, Va.
Randolph Macon College, Rev. James A. Duncan, A. M., D. D., president, Ashland, Va.
Soule's Commercial College, corner Camp and Common streets.
Southern University, Greensboro, Ala
Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va. Rev. W. A. Harris, president.
Whitworth Female College, H. r. Johnson, president, Brookhaven, Miss.

Engravers.
John Gibson, 82 Beekman street, New York.
J. W. Hart, Cincinnati, Ohio.
J. S. Patterson, 28 Beekman street, New York.
Warren Richards, 42 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Edward Sears, 48 Beekman street, New York.

Exterminators.
J. F. Henry, Curran & Co., New York.

Extract of Meat.
Ernest Turpin, 112 and 114 Poydras street, New Orleans.

Factors and Commission Merchants.
Aiken & Watt, 60 Carondelet street.
D. H. Wallace, 38 Perdido street.
J. B. Wilkinson, Jr., 29 Peters and 4 Clinton st.

Fire-Arms.
Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburg, Pa.

For Sale.
Tent on Seashore camp ground, Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Framers and Gilders.
Kernan & White, 106 Customhouse street.

Furniture.
John Bois, 152 and 154 Camp street.
Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Co., 166 Julia street, New Orleans.
Hugh Flynn, 167 Poydras street.

Gas Fixtures.
P. H. Quinlan, 280 Camp street.

Glass Staining.
Belcher & Povey, 13 W. Broadway, New York.
Henry E. Sharp & Son, New York.

Grocers.
J. M. Dowling, 25 Decatur street.

Hotels.
Bingham House, Philadelphia.
Crawford House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Frank J. Oakes, proprietor.

Iron Manufacturers.
M. Walker & Sons, Philadelphia.
Walton, Henrier & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Job Printing.
Pelican Job Office, 112 and 114 Poydras street.

Lumber.
Thomas Hasam, cor. Cedar and Julia streets.
George Purves, cor. st. Charles and Clio streets.
Roberts & Co., 301 to 307 Gravier street.

Machinery.
Billings & Spencer Co., Hartford, Conn.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., 664 to 694 Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
W. L. Cushing, 61 St. Charles street.
Lane & Bodley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Meneely & Kimberly, Troy, New York.
Reynolds Cotton Press, W. H. Reynolds, New Orleans.
Turbine Water-Wheel, N. F. Burnham, York, Penna.
Jos. Walker, cor. St. Joseph and Constance sts.
Well-Anger, W. Giles, St. Louis, Mo.
B. J. West, 115 and 117 Magazine street.

Marble Monuments.
Office and works, 251, 253 and 257 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Medical.
Adderley's Sirup Bromide Chloral, W. H. Adderley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Anti Rheumatic Mixture, W. J. Jurgielewicz, corner Magazine and Thalia streets.
Artificial Leeches, Charles M. Evans, 76 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky.
Citrate of Magnesia, etc., Hofmann & Co., N. Y
Dr. Fitler's Vegetable Rheumatic Sirup, E. J Hart & Co., New Orleans.
Dr. A. O. Forsberg, 5 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio
Dr. Hebbard's Cure, E. Dibblee, 814 Sixth avenue, New York.
Dr. H. James' Indian Hemp.
Kearney's Extract Buchu, Kearney & Co., 104 Duane street, New York.
Opium Cure, Dr. J. C. Beck, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Buffalo, New York
Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cure, Geo. Sweetser, 124 Wall street New York.
Rupture and Piles Cure, Dr. H. Neesou, 182 St. Charles street.
Shimmons' Liver Regulator, J. H. Zeilin & Co. Philadelphia, Pa.
Turtalli's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient.
Treatment of Catarrh, Dr. A. N. Williamson, New York.
Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills, 18 and 20 Platt street, New York.

Mineral and Soda Water.
Eckleburg, corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue.

Musical Instruments, Publications, Etc.
Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.
D. H. Baldwin & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
E. W. Blere & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Chambers Piano Factory, 306 Fourth avenue, New York.
Henry Pilcher, 656 Portland avenue, Louisville, Ky.
Philip Werlein, 78 to 90 Baronne street.

Novelties.
J. Bride & Co., 769 Broadway, New York.

Paper Mills.
Atlanta Paper Mills, Atlanta, Georgia.

Patents.
H. N. Jenkins, 27 Commercial place.
John A. Wiedersheim & Co., Philadelphia.

Patent Novelties.
George L. Felton & Co., 119 Nassau street, New York.

Pens.
R. Esterbrook & Co., New York.

Periodicals.
Family Journal, 300 Broadway, New York.
The Metaphysician, 61 Bond street, New York.
Offord's Pulpit of the Day, R. M. Offord, New York.

Portrait Painters.
G. D. Conlon, 37 Camp street.

Professional.
Dr. C. J. Buckham, office, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Dr. J. J. Lyons, office, 219 Carondelet street.
Race, Foster & E. T. Merrick, law office, corner Camp and Commercial place.

Railroads.
Great Jackson Route, A. D. Sheldon, agent, 22 Camp street, corner of Common.

Seeds.
B. F. Wellington, 425 Washington street, San Francisco, Cal.

Sewing Machines.
Domestic, M. S. Hedrick, 103 Canal street.
Wm. Gregg, cor. Canal and Burgundy streets.

Soap.
J. H. Keller, 110 Gravier street.

Steamships and Shipping.
Cromwell Line New York Steamers, Alfred Moulton, agent, 41 Carondelet street.
General Transatlantic Company, L. Grand, Chalifer court, letter H.
Merchants' Line New York Steamers, J. H. Ludwigsen, 190 Common street.
State Line, A. K. Miller & Co., 29 Carondelet st.

Stoves.
G. W. W. Goodwyn, 52 Gravier street.
H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Tea.
Great China and Japan Tea Warehouse, 170 Canal street.

Tobacco and Cigars.
Ed. L. Zell, cor. Canal and Carondelet streets.

Type and Presses.
Vanderburgh, Wells & Co., 110 Fulton and 19 and 18 Dutch street, New York.

Undertakers.
T. W. Bothick, 271 Camp street, New Orleans.
F. L. Matthews, 338 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

Upholstery.
Heath & Lara, 99 Camp street.

Washing Machines.
Rhigen Washer, H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Watches and Jewelry.
E. A. Tyler, 115 Canal street.

Window Glass.
William Coulter & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Wire Railing, Etc.
Hafar & Co., Baltimore, Maryland.

Special Notices.

OFFORD'S PULPIT OF THE DAY.—A Monthly Magazine of Sermons by the greatest preachers living. $1 a year. On trial, 25 cents from August till December Sample copy, 10 cents. R. M. OFFORD, 5 Park place, New York. on20 3m

Religious Notices.

THERE will be a camp meeting on Spring Creek circuit, Louisiana Conference, commencing on Friday before the second Sunday in October. Come one! come all! This meeting will be conducted on the self-sustaining plan. There will be corn at or near the camp ground, on reasonable terms. Special provision will be made for ministers and their horses.

FRED. WHITE, P. C.

THE Vernon circuit camp meeting commences at Wesley chapel on Thursday, the tenth of September, 1874. We earnestly solicit the attendance of all ministerial brethren in the bounds of Homer and adjoining districts.

J. M. MCKEE, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING at China Grove, Dale county, Alabama, will commence on Friday night before the first Sunday in October next, and close on Wednesday morning after. Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South are invited to attend.

A. DOWLAND, Pastor.

THERE will be a camp meeting nine miles north of Eutaw, Greene county, Alabama Conference, commencing on Thursday night before the second Sabbath in October, 1874. Preachers are respectfully invited.

J. W. MCCANN, P. C.

THE Alexandria District Conference will be held at Evergreen, commencing on Friday, September 18. Preachers and people are specially requested to be in attendance.

J. H. STONE, P. E.

THE Summit District Conference will be held in Greensburg, Louisiana, commencing October 8, 1871, to be continued over Sunday.

A. B. NICHOLSON, P. E.

CAMP MEETING.—The camp meeting at Midway, ten miles north of Delhi, will commence September 10, 1874. Persons attending will pay full fare on the railroad coming, and return free on certificate. All ministers are invited to attend. Ample arrangements will be made for their comfort. Arrangements will be made to transfer all ministers and their baggage from Delhi to the camp ground, September 10 and 11, and return them when the meeting closes. No other arrangements will be made unless we are notified beforehand. The meeting will be conducted and carried on, as last year, on the independent plan. Come one! come all!

G. M. LIVERMAN, P. C.,
Floyd Circuit, Louisiana Conference.

THERE will be a camp meeting on the Sparta circuit, five and a half miles east of Sparta, on the Vernon road, commencing on Thursday evening before the second Sabbath in September next. The meeting will be conducted on the self sustaining plan. All are invited to attend, and to come prepared to take care of themselves. Ministers of the gospel are invited. There will be special provision made for them and their horses. The third Quarterly Conference will be held at the same time and place.

D. A. BONDIE, P. C.

NOTICE.—There will be a camp meeting four miles north of Spearville, on the Farmerville circuit, Union parish, Louisiana, commencing on Friday before the fourth Sabbath in August; and another at Alabama church, between Homer and Farmerville, commencing on Friday before the third Sabbath in September. The people are expected to furnish their own tents and provisions, as a few do not expect to furnish a multitude.

R. PARVIN, Pastor.

DELHI DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—The Delhi District Conference will convene at Delhi, Louisiana, September 3, 1874. Rev. B. F Alexander is appointed to preach the opening sermon.

C. W. CARTER, P. E.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

SELMA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Summerfield station	Sept. 12, 13
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel	19, 20
East Selma, at Benton	26, 27
Tallahatta circuit	Oct. 3, 4
Jackson circuit, at Union	10, 11
Sugarsville circuit, at Fort Madison	17, 18
Uniontown station	24, 25
Dayton circuit, at Linden	31, Nov. 1
Selma station	Nov. 7, 8
Rembert Hills circuit	14, 15
Choctaw Corner circuit	21, 22
Peachtree circuit	28, 29

Preachers in charge, recording stewards and the presidents of boards of trustees are earnestly requested to be prepared to submit full reports at the above-appointed Conferences.

A. J. BATTON, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Spring Hill circuit, at Linnwood camp ground	Sept. 26, 27
Pauling ct., at Holland camp ground	Oct. 3, 4
DeKalb ct., at New Hope camp ground	10, 11
Enterprise station	17, 18
Waynesboro station	24, 25
Marion and Toomsuba circuit, at Coker's	31, Nov. 1
Wayne circuit, at Salem	Nov. 7, 8
DeSoto circuit, at Andrew chapel	14, 15
Quitman and Clarke circuit	21, 22
Enterprise circuit	29, 30
Shubuta station	Dec. 6, 7
Meridian station	13, 14

The order of business in the Quarterly Conferences will be that of the new Discipline. Local preachers, boards of stewards and trustees should be prepared to report accordingly.

WILLIAM B. HINES, P. E.

SUMMIT DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Big Creek mission, at Bonner's Creek	Sept. 19, 20
Covington circuit, at Bogue Chitto	Oct. 3, 4
Greensburg	11, 12
McComb City, at McComb City	24, 25
Union	Nov. 1
St. Helena	14, 15
Holmesville	28, 29
Franklinton	Dec. 5, 6
Summit station	12, 13

A. B. NICHOLSON, P. E.

$78 A WEEK TO AGENTS.—Best-selling articles out. Needle Book, with elegant Chromos, etc. Three valuable samples, 10 cents, or circular free. Address J. BRIDE & CO., 769 Broadway, New York. an20 3m

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEORGE STINSON & CO. Portland Maine. fe5 1y

MEDICAL.

DR. C. M'LANE'S
Celebrated American
WORM SPECIFIC,
OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eyelid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy, not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, etc.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE

Will certainly effect a cure.

The universal success which has attended the administration of this preparation has been such as to warrant us in pledging ourselves to the public to

RETURN THE MONEY

in every instance where it should prove ineffectual: "providing the symptoms attending the sickness of the child or adult should warrant the supposition of worms being the cause." In all cases the Medicine to be given IN STRICT ACCORDANCE WITH THE DIRECTIONS.

We pledge ourselves to the public, that

Dr. C. M'Lane's Vermifuge

DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; and that it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant. Address all orders to

FLEMING BROS., PITTSBURGH, PA.

P. S. Dealers and Physicians ordering from others than Fleming Bros., will do well to write their orders distinctly, and take none but Dr. C. M'Lane's, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa. To those wishing to give them a trial, we will forward per mail, post paid, to any part of the United States, one box of Pills for twelve three-cent postage stamps, or one vial of Vermifuge for fourteen three-cent stamps. All orders from Canada must be accompanied by twenty cents extra.

☞ For sale by Druggists and Country Store Keepers generally.

ja29 1yeow

DR. ROGERS'
VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

A brave man may suffer pain, when inflicted upon himself, heroically; but he

CANNOT SEE HIS CHILD SUFFER.

There is no other malady incident to childhood that is accompanied with more indescribable wretchedness to the little sufferers than that

PRODUCED BY WORMS;

and when the parent fully comprehends the situation he will not delay a moment in securing the most prompt and efficient remedies to insure the expulsion of the intruders. This remedy may be found in

DR. ROGERS'
VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

Please bear in mind that

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Is the reliable preparation.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Is a palatable preparation.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is liked by children.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Positively destroys Worms.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP leaves no bad effects.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is highly recommended by physicians, and is unquestionably the BEST WORM MEDICINE IN THE WORLD.

Price, 25 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

JOHN F. HENRY, CURRAN & CO.,
Proprietors,
au20 1m 8 and 9 College Place, New York.

RHEUMATISM NEURALGIA
WE CLERGYMEN WERE CURED

OF CHRONIC AND ACUTE RHEUMATism, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica, Kidney and Nervous diseases, after years of suffering, by taking DR. FITLER'S VEGETABLE RHEUMATIC SIRUP. Prescription of J. P. Fitler, M. D., graduate of 1833. The only physician in the world's history treating these diseases thirty-nine years consecutively.

It is truly a certain cure, and in our judgment the only specific ever discovered.—Rev. C. H. Ewing, Medina, Ohio, suffered sixteen years; became hopeless. Rev. Thomas Murphy, D. D., Frankford, Philadelphia. Rev. J. B. Davis, Hightstown, N. J. Rev. J. S. Buchanan, Clarence, Iowa. Rev. (L. G. Smith, Pittsford, N. Y. Rev. Joseph Beggs, Falls Church, Philadelphia. A Hebrew invited to write to Dr. Fitler, Philadelphia, who will send valuable advice gratis, with a contract to cure or refund money. New Orleans agents, E. J. HART & CO. se18 1y

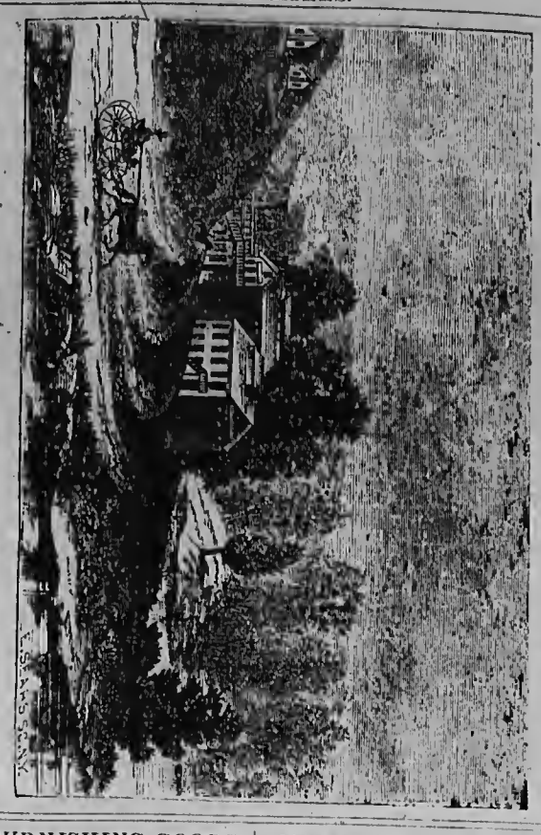
F. L. MATTHEWS,
UNDERTAKER,
(CARRIAGES FOR HIRE AT ALL HOURS,)
338 Carondelet Street,
Bet. Thalia and Erato Streets, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood Coffins always on hand. Disinterring. Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses and Carriages for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. au20 1y

$250 A MONTH TO AGENTS.—35 new articles. Gun lady made $21 80, August 10, in taking subscriptions to the FAMILY JOURNAL the best Literary and Fashion paper in America. Only $1 a year, with two $5 Chromos. Samples free. FAMILY JOURNAL, 300 Broadway, New York. au20 3m

FITS AND EPILEPSY. POSITIVELY cured. The worst cases of longest standing by using DR. HEBBARD'S CURE. A bottle sent FREE to all addressing J. E. DIBBLEE, Druggist, 814 Sixth avenue, New York. au6 3m

PAPER MILLS.



JAMES ORMOND, PROPRIETOR.
OFFICE—No. 48 BROAD STREET, ATLANTA, GA.
☞ For Specimen of "News" we refer to this issue of this Paper.
Cash Orders Solicited. no6 1y

ATLANTA PAPER MILLS.

HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS.

MAKE YOUR HOME ATTRACTIVE
BY REPLENISHING YOUR TABLE-WARE
—AT—
W. C. SHEPARD & CO.'S,
55 Camp Street 55
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

See What a Little Money Will Buy.

An elegant White Granite DINNER SET, comprising 136 pieces, for $15 00
to wit:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Soup Tureen,
12 Breakfast Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Salad Dish,
12 Soup Plates,	2 Covered Dishes,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Tea Cups and Saucers,	2 Pickle Shells,
12 Dinner Coffee Cups and Saucers.

A Porcelain DeTerre DINNER SET (equal to French China in appearance, and much more durable,) same assortment as above. $18 00
A French China (best quality) DINNER SET, same assortment, 136 pieces 30 00
Decorated Porcelain DeTerre and French China DINNER SETS, from $30 up.
White Granite CHAMBER SETS, 11 pieces $4 00
White Granite TEA SETS, 44 pieces 4 00
French China TEA SETS, 44 pieces 6 50
French China Decorated TEA SETS, 44 pieces 7 50
Good Table GOBLETS, from 50 cents per set up.
Granite Dinner Plates, per dozen 1 40
Granite Breakfast Plates, per dozen 1 25
Granite Tea Plates, per dozen 1 15
French China Dinner Plates, per dozen 3 00
French China Breakfast Plates, per dozen 2 75
French China Tea Plates, per dozen 2 25

NOTE.—The prices above contemplate "First choice" goods, every piece being warranted regular and perfect. "Seconds" or imperfect goods, warped in making and otherwise irregular, we will furnish for those that desire at twenty per cent. discount from these prices. We shall meet all competition promptly, and as we import our own ware our customers can depend upon getting the BEST GOODS at the lowest possible prices.

AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED
BLANCHARD CHURNS,
AND THE LARGEST DEALERS IN
HOUSEKEEPING NOVELTIES
IN THE SOUTHWEST.
W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
dell 1y No. 55 Camp street, New Orleans.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLINGS' PATENT
Sewing Machine
SHUTTLES.

Twenty Varieties Now Made.
Forged solid from bar steel and cold-pressed.
TRADE MARK.
Also Wrought Iron and Steel
DROP FORGINGS
of all descriptions, for Guns, Pistols, Sewing Machines, Agricultural Implements, etc.
MANUFACTURED BY
Billings & Spencer Co.,
LAWRENCE STREET,
ap9 0m Hartford, Conn.

DIRECT TRADE.
DIRECT TRADE.
Merchants and business men of the Mississippi Valley who desire to purchase IMPORTED GOODS of British manufacture, at little if any over half the cost of such when purchased in New York, should correspond with or call upon DR. THOMAS D. WORRALL, American Director of the Direct Trade Company, 24 and 26 Camp street, New Orleans.
Samples of stock constantly on hand. Je18 1m

WILLIAM COULTER & SON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
ORNAMENTAL, GROUND AND CUT
WINDOW GLASS,
104 East Second St., Cincinnati, O.
Ornamental Window Glass, of every description, for Churches, Private and Public Buildings, Steamboats, Railroad Cars, etc. jy23 3m

ED. L. ZELL,
DEALER IN CIGARS, CIGARETTES AND TOBACCO,
Cor. Canal

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. 20. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1874. NO. 36.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

GALVESTON, Aug. 27.—A News special from San Antonio, dated the twenty-seventh, says the Kiowas and Nacoaces attacked General Davidson at twelve o'clock on the twenty-third and endeavored to obtain possession of the agency building at the Wichita agency, forty miles from Fort Sill. The Indians were defeated the first day and renewed the attack the following morning, but were again repulsed. The attacking Indians are those who have been raiding and are now trying to return to the agency. General McKenzie's expedition left Fort Concha on the twenty-third instant.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The Attorney General has no doubt that if the disturbances, of which he has many reports, continue, the President will interfere in the South. It is suggested he needs all his soldiers to fight the Indians, and the whites must, if necessary, fight their own battles against the negroes. General Emory, commanding the Louisiana department, has no confidence in his new regiment. In a contest between the whites and blacks his soldiers will certainly affiliate with the whites, if detached in squads throughout the State. The negro's only safety, if he becomes aggressive, is in the tardy law administered by the United States judges, and they following the lead of their chief judge, Williams, who seems to be becoming impatient of the assumptions of the colored people.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The Beecher investigating committee have submitted their report. They conclude:

1. That Beecher did not commit adultery with Mrs. Tilton at any time and place whatever.

2. That Beecher has never committed any unchaste or improper act with Mrs. Tilton, nor made any unchaste or improper remark, proffer or solicitation to her of any kind or description whatever.

3. If this were a question of error of judgment on the part of Mr. Beecher, it would be easy to criticise, especially in the light of recent events. In such criticism, even to the extent of regret, we are sure no man would join more sincerely than Mr. Beecher himself.

4. We find nothing whatever in the evidence that should impair the perfect confidence of Plymouth Church or the world in the Christian character of Henry Ward Beecher. And now let the peace of God, that passeth all understanding, rest and abide with Plymouth Church and her beloved and eminent pastor, so much and so long afflicted.

Signed by Henry W. Sage, Augustus Storrs, Henry M. Cleaveland, H. C. Claflin, John Winslow, S. V. White.

SHREVEPORT, Aug. 29.—The Times' courier is just in from Coushatta. He reports all quiet. A number of the ringleaders were arrested.

A force of mounted men who left here to-day are on their way back, and no further trouble apprehended.

On Thursday one white man was killed in attempting to arrest negroes, and two negroes were subsequently killed.

A courier arrived here this morning, bringing the intelligence from Coushatta, Red River parish, that the blacks had risen against the whites and threatened their extermination.

Letters brought by the courier state that eight hundred armed negroes had assembled below Coushatta, and were constantly receiving reinforcements from all quarters.

The town is guarded by two hundred white men, who call for help.

COLUMBUS, GA., Aug 29.—The negroes at Woocochee Valley, Alabama, have been holding secret meetings for several nights lately, preparing for an attack on the whites. Their plan was revealed on Thursday by an old negress in time for the whites to prepare. When the negroes made the attack they were driven back with the loss of four men killed. They then burned down two churches and left.

Woocochee Valley is sixteen miles east of this city, near Opelika.

SHREVEPORT, LA., Aug. 31.—Reports just received tend to confirm a Minden dispatch to the Times, and leave little room for doubt that the Coushatta prisoners were murdered at McFarland's plantation, forty-five miles below here, on the west side of Red river, and near the boundary line between Bossier and Red River parishes.

FOREIGN.

VIENNA, August 30.—The New Free Press publishes the text of a circular note from the Russian government, dated August 19, declining to recognize Spain. The note says Russia cannot recognize a government which is unrecognized in its own country. She has no wish to interfere with the internal affairs of Spain, and favors no party there. She will officially communicate with any government which possesses real authority and promises to be permanent. Germany and Austria are free to act in this matter in accordance with their own interests.

ROME, Aug. 31.—Mount Ætna has been in a state of eruption since Saturday. Streams of lava are pouring from three craters.

Several regiments have been sent to Sicily because of the increase of brigandage and general lawlessness. Court martials have been established for the prompt punishment of offenders.

BAYONNE, Sept. 1.—The Carlists under Alvarez have defeated and driven off the column of General Lema, who was attempting to throw provisions into Vitoria.

MADRID, Sept. 1.—General Yahals has arrived here to confer with the government.

Russia has sent special agents to the Republican and Carlist general headquarters to report on the military position of the contending parties.

The Carlist Generals Tristany and Mora were defeated by the Republicans near Ses DeUrgel on Sunday last, losing four hundred killed and wounded.

The Carlists, having despaired of the capture of Puigcerda, are preparing to burn the town with incendiary projectiles to-night.

Bismarck.

One of the most graphic and probably one of the most accurate descriptions of the personal manners of Prince Bismarck is the following by a gentleman who has recently taken stock of the man: "The portrait has a peculiar interest at the present moment," says this writer. "The mightiest statesman in the world is a tall, bald man, with some white hair. He wears a military uniform to please old William, but he best likes looser drapery. The man is very upright, very strong, very affable, and so wonderfully elastic in his movements that he might be taken for an India-rubber man. He looks in robust health till examined closely, and then an observer begins to notice painful spasms and contractions of the face, which reveal over-exhausted nerves. In a manner he is a rollicking, overbearing man. Wife, children and friends stand in awe of him. He will not even listen to remonstrance, still less to contradiction. He strides over his enemies and acquaintances, nodding to the latter as he puts his foot on the former. The man is of a giant appetite for work and food. He eats old sausages and black bread, served without a tablecloth, for breakfast. His dinners is of mighty meals in plenty, washed down or floated in large goblets of strong Burgundy. He smokes and works and talks perpetually. His home is like a volcano in constant eruption. His secretaries cannot stand his work long; they are obliged to give in from sheer exhaustion. Prince Bismarck is very funny when pleased, very formidable, very rash, very imprudent at all times. He is not a far-sighted man, or he would not have rushed into a war so abruptly. He is rather an astonished man, who has become mighty in spite of errors, often because of errors, and who believes that everything may be done by courage and opportunity. He is, so to say, a man who has stunned himself with his own noise, and who keeps on bawling because it seems to bewilder people and makes everybody shut their ears and give in to him."

Taming the Humming-Bird.

The ruby-throat has sometimes been tamed. Mr. Webber, in his "Wild Scenes and Song Birds," says that, after several unsuccessful attempts, at last I succeeded in securing an uninjured captive, which, to my inexpressible delight, proved to be one of the ruby-throated species, the most splendid and diminutive that comes north of Florida. It immediately suggested itself to me that a mixture of two parts of loaf sugar with one of fine honey, in ten of water, would make about the nearest approach to the nectar of flowers. While my sister ran to prepare it, I gradually opened my hand to look at my prisoner, and saw to my no little astonishment, as well as suspicion, that it was actually 'playing possum'—feigning to be dead, most skillfully. It lay on my open palm motionless for some minutes, during which I watched it in breathless curiosity. I saw it gradually open its bright little eyes to peep whether the way was clear, and then close them slowly as it caught my eye upon it. But when the manufactured nectar came, and a drop was touched upon the point of its bill, it came to life very suddenly, and in a moment was on its legs, drinking with eager gusto of the refreshing draught from a silver teaspoon. When sated it refused to take any more, and sat perched with the coolest self-composure on my finger, and plumed itself quite as artistically as if on its favorite spray. I was enchanted with the bold, innocent confidence with which it turned up its keen black eyes to survey us, as much as to say: 'Well, good folks, who are you?' By the next day it would come from any part of either room, alight upon the side of a white China cup containing the mixture, and drink eagerly, with its long bill thrust into the very base. It would alight on my fingers, and seem to talk with us endearingly in its soft chirps." Mr. Webber afterward succeeded in taming several of the same species. He gave them their liberty occasionally, and they returned regularly. At the time for migration they left for the winter; but the next spring they sought their old quarters, and accepted the delicious nectar kindly provided for them, and by degrees brought their mates.—Popular Science Monthly.

GOD'S ways seem very slow sometimes. What we would see done waits long for doing, and we grow impatient. But if we believe in God we should possess our souls in patience. In his own good time everything will come right.

HE THAT follows the Lord fully will find goodness and mercy following him continually.

Oregon Correspondence.

MR. EDITOR: Many of our people are hieing away to the mountains and sea shore to recreate. There is quite a moving to and fro. The roads are fine; vehicles are in demand. It is quite common for the farmer and family to take a jaunt of a few weeks. Camping out is regarded as a luxury, and quite promotive of health. The hay harvest is about over, and there is a little interim till the grain harvest is fully on hand. Fish and game in many localities abound; besides getting away from home and, the people say, the heat. We do not find it hot—delightfully temperate. Most of the mornings are cool enough to make a little fire comfortable. From eleven to three o'clock it is a little warm; thermometer eighty to eighty-five degrees. What delicious weather! I feel no necessity of going to the mountains to get cool.

The water is very fine and abundant. The Willamette river is not navigable to this point at this time. Our freight comes from Albany, ten miles distant. The dust is very oppressive, though I am told not so bad as in California. What a beautiful prospect for crops all over the land! The wheat harvest is just commencing. The "golden grain"

"Stands ready for the reaper's gathering hand."

And how it waves in beauty, bending gracefully to the passing breeze! What in nature is prettier than a wheat-field! The machinery used for cutting and threshing the grain is of the latest and most approved kind. The labor of a number of men is done by one horse.

While this is the harvest season in all the land, we, as reapers in the gospel field, have "thrust in our sickle." Here is an inviting field, but many are our adversaries. The seeds of truth sown by faithful men of God will germinate. "Sow beside all waters" is the command. We are sowing and we are reaping. Thank God for this arrangement! "He that goeth forth weeping and beareth precious seeds shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." That beautiful hymn, by the inimitable Montgomery, is full of evangelical truth:

"Sow to the morn thy seed."

But the sowers and reapers are inadequate to the gospel harvest-field. We need more men, true and tried—men who are not afraid to work, trust God and test the people; such as are committed to the gospel, who feel, "Woe is to me if I preach not the gospel," and that a "dispensation of the gospel" is really "committed" to them, and who are "embassadors for Christ." Such need not fear a support. It may not all come in dollars and cents, but its equivalent in flour, meat, butter, fruit, etc., is pretty sure.

The Seashore camp meeting commences to-morrow. How we would rejoice to mingle our prayers, songs and tears with those kindred Christians assembled. I shall not forget the "communion of saints" there for two years past. May "many souls be born to God" there!

I have written in great haste, as my duties press hard upon me.

"There is resting by and by."

No more for the present. Affectionately, T. B. WHITE.

CORVALLIS, OREGON, July 23, 1874.

From the Work.

OZARK CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Last night we closed a meeting at Mount Zion of six days' continuance. All the time the congregations were large and serious. Between twenty-five and thirty were converted, twenty joined the church, and the church was gloriously blessed. It was by far the best meeting held at that church for many years. The work of the Lord is prospering on this circuit. A. DOWLING.

OZARK, August 21, 1874.

ELBA CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: On the sixteenth of August I closed a nine days' meeting at Henderson, in Pike county. The precious influence of the Holy Spirit was much realized in converting power. The church was greatly refreshed from the presence of the Lord. Twenty conversions and seventeen accessions to the church. On Sunday morning, the sixteenth, the love-feast was a special season of grace. This was the first love-feast I ever held. The brethren and the sisters were "filled with the Holy Ghost." We are obliged to the local brethren on this work for their effective labors in the pulpit. God was with us. Mourners were left at the altar. The Lord convert them.

B. G. BLACKWELL, P. C.

ELBA, ALA., August 20, 1874.

LIND GROVE CIRCUIT, NORTH LOUISIANA.—Mr. Editor: The third quarterly meeting on the Lind Grove circuit embraced the third Sabbath in August. Owing to the excessive heat, and the incapacity of the church to hold the people, a large and pleasant brush arbor was erected, under which the writer had the pleasure of hearing some good and faithful preaching. Bro. McClendon, our pastor, rarely fails to enlist the attention of his entire audience; and his labors are crowned with success. He is reaping a bountiful harvest—a harvest that will tell when the great Judge shall come to "make up his jewels." This circuit is in a prosperous condition. Notwithstanding the financial depression, the good people of Lind Grove are determined that their church enterprises shall be supported. Our presiding elder, Rev. C. W. Carter, preached a practical, soul-stirring sermon on Sabbath, urging all professed followers of Christ "to keep themselves unspotted from the world," and "thereby set an example of good works." The meeting was protracted for four days. It resulted in ten accessions to the church, and a general building up of her members.

The district meeting convenes at Delhi, Louisiana, on the third day of September. A full attendance and a good meeting are anticipated.

A. C. MCMEANS.

Billing and Cooing.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate interprets Round Lake and its gushings as follows:

Unless we greatly misread the signs of the times, there is just now a rather unusual degree of billing and cooing going on between certain prominent politicians of the North, and, for aught we know, of the South as well, on the one part, and certain prominent leaders of the Methodist Episcopal Church on the other part.

It may all be right, even if our deepest suspicions be correct; but we do not see it exactly in that light. For instance, there were many "distinguished arrivals" from day to day at the Round Lake camp meeting, which arrivals were duly heralded by some of the Methodist papers. And, when there, these "arrivals" were treated with marked attention, and, as we thought, with rather more than a quantum sufficit of deference. Looking over a list of the names of these "distinguished arrivals," we notice that a large proportion of them represented men by no means unknown in political circles. They paid great attention to the Methodists and their great camp meeting, and in return received great attention.

That many or all of these political aspirants have the right, and have need, great need, to go to camp meeting, or to some other place or places "where prayer is wont to be made," we do not doubt. And if they go with the right motive and feeling, then the oftener they go the better, both for themselves and for the country. Such a course might lead in the end to put a stop to such things as "salary grabs" and the receiving of certain "considerations" for advocating certain measures, and casting votes for or against this, that or the other. It might also tend to lessen the aggregate amount of intoxicating liquors sold annually at the Federal and State capitols, or it might lead to a great many other results of which no honest men would complain.

It was not at the camp meeting alone, but in other places and at other times, these things have occurred, and the occurrences have been under circumstances such as to excite the suspicion that something more than ecclesiastical fraternity might be in contemplation. And this suspicion is not at all removed by some letters good Bishop Haven has been writing—such letters, for instance, as that published in the New York Independent of August 13, and copied into this number of the Advocate, in which the people of the North are soberly informed that "the battle is not over"—a letter that "out-Herods Herod," and contains statements that "facts and figures" do not sustain. But facts and figures are small matters in the estimation of some, when passion and prejudice are to be aroused and private or party ends are sought. Why the Bishop resorted to such a sheet as the Independent, to gain the public eye and ear, we do not know. There are papers published by his own church that are much better every way than is the mouthpiece of Bowen & Co., the late friends and co-operators of Tilton, Beecher & Co., all of whom may be placed in the same category.

That Bro. Simpson and Bro. Grant, and others, are desirous of promoting "fraternity" we believe; but that it is solely an ecclesiastical fraternity we doubt; at least we feel inclined to wait and watch to see what we shall see.

WHAT GOVERNOR KEMPER SAID TO MR. REDFIELD.—In a recent letter from Richmond, Mr. Redfield, of the Cincinnati Commercial, says of a conversation which he had with Governor Kemper:

In the course of our conversation the Governor touched upon the everlasting and, to the South, truly terrible civil rights question. "If that becomes a law," he said, "I shall immediately call the Legislature together, and we will wipe out every free school in the State, from the mountains to the sea. Not one shall be left for either color. We prefer that our children should grow up in the blackness of ignorance—yea, we prefer death itself—rather than submit to this terrible degradation. There will never be mixed schools in Virginia—never, never! The people, out of their scanty funds, and burdened with debt and taxation, have established free schools for both races, and contributed for their support a million of dollars a year, but not one single cent will they give for free schools if that most infamous civil rights bill becomes a law. The negroes will then have no schools, for not one in twenty of them is able to educate their children without aid from the whites. You may be sure they will get no aid then. That law will be the death-knell of all common and free schools in Virginia and the South."

LET no one say he has no time for prayer; better to take time from sleep than want time for prayer.

The British Wesleyan Conference.

The British Wesleyan Conference met this year in Camborne, a town of from eight to ten thousand inhabitants, located in Cornwall. The Conference session proper was preceded, as usual, by the meetings of the preparatory committees. We compile from early complete reports forwarded to us such items and summaries as will be of special interest to the readers of the Christian Advocate.

The Kingswood and Woodhouse school committee met on Friday, July 24, the president of the Conference, Rev. G. T. Perks, in the chair. A vigorous effort was made to open the institutions to the children of laymen as well as those of the ministers, but after a long discussion, in which many of the leading preachers participated, the proposition was voted down by a large majority.

The education committee of review met on the afternoon of Friday. The report of the secretary presented the following statistics:

The number of day schools under local committees is 886, an increase of 8; not under local committees, 20—a decrease of 14; scholars, 178,717—an increase of 7,345; average attendance, 116,332—an increase of 4,348. The amount of children's pence during the year was £71,743, being an increase of £6,282; the amount of government annual grants to Wesleyan schools in 1873-4 was £66,518, being an increase on the previous year of £5,257; subscriptions, etc., £22,452—increase, £1,587. Total income, £160,713—increase, £13,126. The amount of salaries, including payments to assistants, pupil teachers, etc., was £103,941—increase, £5,341; other expenses, £60,303—increase, £7,817. Total cost, £164,244—increase, £13,161. Thirteen new inspected schools were opened during the year in new buildings, and 30 were commenced in existing buildings. Thirty-nine outfit grants to 45 departments were paid, amounting to £1,423. The number of certificated teachers employed in Wesleyan schools on December 31, 1873, was 927. The number of pupil teachers and candidates returned in March last was 1,950, being an increase on the corresponding period of the previous year of 76. The annual examination of pupil teachers in religious knowledge was held in accordance with the decision of the Conference (see Minutes, 1870, page 185.) 1,829 pupil teachers and candidates sat for examination.

The number of Sunday schools is 5,787—increase, 98. Teachers and officers, 110,123—increase, 1,677. Ditto in society or on trial, 82,325—increase, 1,654. Scholars, 688,986—increase, 22,220. Ditto in society or on trial, 45,709—increase, 3,653. In select classes, 21,913—decrease, 155. Young persons in Bible classes conducted by ministers and others, 26,062—increase, 4,257. Number of libraries, 2,364—increase, 63. Volumes, 615,864—increase, 21,447. Readers, 105,057—increase, 3,480. Schools in which catechism is used, 4,602—increase, 48. Schools where children are regularly taken to chapel, 5,021—increase, 71. Annual cost, £44,348.

The theological committee of review met on Saturday, July 21. The financial statement showed a balance in the treasury of £2,649. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That with a view to the continued and increased efficiency of this important department of Methodism, and having regard to the demand of the church for a duly qualified and competent ministry, this committee recommends to the serious attention of the Conference the various matters referred to in the minutes of the general committee, namely: the importance of providing an institution for all the candidates for our ministry; the expediency of extending the terms of residence; the desirability of some preparatory instruction of those candidates who may require it; the modification of the course of study, and the sufficiency of tutorial staff.

The one hundred and thirty-first annual session of the British Wesleyan Conference was formally opened July 29. Over 500 ministers were present.

The first business after the opening services was to fill vacancies in the "Legal Hundred." There were three vacancies. Richard Roberts was elected in place of the late Dr. George Scott, deceased; Rev. A. Jones in place of Rev. Joseph Floyd, superannuated; and Henry W. Holland in place of Rev. James Mackintosh, superannuated.

The ballot for president of the Conference resulted as follows:

W. M. Punshon, LL. D.	29
W. Arthur, A. M.	18
A. McAulay	27
G. Smith, M. A.	19
W. B. Pope	16
T. Llewellyn	11
Dr. Rigg	12
S. Coley	2

The election of Dr. Punshon was unanimously confirmed by the Legal Hundred, in response to which he made an eloquent address.

On the first ballot for secretary Rev. Gowen Smith, M. A., received 294 votes, and was declared elected.

An open session was held in the evening for the purpose of welcoming the fraternal delegates from the Irish Conference, and from the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.—New York Christian Advocate.

IT IS TRUE, as a recent writer has said, that we get as we give. It is the law of life. As we dispense we receive, both in quantity and kind. Shutting ourselves within ourselves, we find all else shut out. Opening our life to other life, we find that other life opening to us.

Colored Methodist General Conference.

The General Conference of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, of which some account was given in our last issue, says the Western Methodist of August 22, continues in session in Louisville, Kentucky.

On the fifth day several colored ministers of other Methodist Churches were introduced, and then the Louisville District Conference, or a large number of them, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South appeared in a body and officially, and, having been introduced, extended fraternal greetings, with the offer of Christian fellowship hereafter. The presiding elder, the Rev. Dr. Sehon, and others made happy addresses on the occasion. The matter of a fitting response was referred to a committee.

On the sixth day a report from the committee on revision was considered. That part relating to the inexpediency of increasing the number of charges in a district was adopted, but that recommending that no change be made in the manner of electing Sunday school superintendents was recommitted, with instructions in favor of a change. The committee on fraternal relations reported in favor of a committee, to be composed of the College of Bishops, with authority to add others, to meet committees from other ecclesiastical bodies desiring union.

On the seventh day Bishop Miles, before taking the chair, requested a resolution to be adopted, which was complied with, calling upon him, and any who have complained of him, to appear before the committee on episcopacy. The complaints relate to matters of administration, and are said to be not only unjust but untrue.

The committee on fraternal greetings presented a report, which was adopted, as follows:

"We, the committee on fraternal greetings, beg leave to submit the following preamble and resolutions as our report:

"Whereas, We were organized by the Methodist E. Church South, and set apart as an independent ecclesiastical body, with our own Bishops, elders, deacons and private membership; And whereas, It affords us much pleasure and gratification to behold us thus organized and set apart by that great and noble branch of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and that we appreciate what they have done for us, and that we desire and wish to perpetuate a friendly relation with them as Christians and the people of God; And whereas, The District Conference of the Louisville district, by resolution, delegated the following gentlemen to extend to us the right hand of fraternal greeting and Christian love, namely: Revs. E. W. Sehon, J. S. Scobee, B. M. Messick, J. G. Shelton, J. McCown, T. G. Bosley, S. H. Lovelace, J. P. Goodson, M. N. Lasley, H. C. Settle and H. C. Morrison, and that they appeared on the floor of our Conference and addressed us in a most pleasing and delightful manner; therefore,

"Resolved, That we tender to the District Conference aforesaid our most profound and heartfelt thanks for this expression of their love.

"Resolved, That we are glad to know that they are still ready and willing as ever to help in this great work of the Lord, and we owe them much gratitude, and a debt of love and good will.

"Resolved, That we tender a vote of thanks to the venerable E. W. Sehon and his able colleagues for the Christian and gentlemanly manner with which they have addressed us.

"Resolved, That a copy of this report shall be sent to Nashville, to be published in the Nashville Christian Advocate, and also a copy shall be sent to the Rev. E. W. Sehon.

F. FOARD, Chairman."

A resolution was adopted creating a new Conference of the States of Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, to be known as the Indiana Conference, which the Bishops were instructed to organize as soon as possible.

On the eighth day, after much debate, the Florida Conference was constituted of the State of Florida and several districts in Georgia. A report was adopted unanimously, conferring the nomination of Sunday school superintendents on the preacher in charge, subject to confirmation by the Quarterly Conference.

On the ninth day various matters received attention which we need not specify. It was resolved to publish a Sunday school paper, to be called the Sabbath Index. The Rev. Mr. Savage, agent for the American Bible Society, was introduced and made an address on the Bible cause, offering ample facilities for securing copies of the Holy Scriptures for distribution. The most favorable action was taken in response to the address.

THE pocket-book taken from the person of Major John André by his captors, September 23, 1780, has been presented to the Connecticut Historical Society, by the Rev. A. L. Whitman, of Groton. This interesting relic was for many years, and until his death, in the possession of Mr. Joshua Barrell, of Bridgewater, Massachusetts, a soldier of the Revolution, from whom it passed, more than forty years ago, to his grandson, the Rev. Mr. Whitman. It will hereafter be preserved by the side of Arnold's watch, which has been for many years in the cabinet of the Historical Society.

LET friendship creep gently to a height; if it rush to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.—Thomas Fuller.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1874.

ARISE, SHINE.

BY SUSAN COOLIDGE.

Came the word of the Lord to a little star:
"Arise and shine,
For a lonely soul in a world afar
Waits for the sign
That darkness is only the shadow of Love divine."

Then the star it trembled and veiled its face,
And made reply:
"What is my little lamp to space?
How should I try
To lighten so great a darkness, only I?"

But again came the awful Voice: "Arise
And shine," it said.
The star it quivered amid the skies,
With love and dread
It lit its tiny torches and flashed them overhead.

The beam smote on a mourner's sight,
Worlds away—
Like a smile on the face of black midnight
Was the ray.
And "Courage! the morning cometh!" it seemed to say.

Then the storm of sobs was hushed at last,
And a prayer swept
And rose to the Lord in the heavens vast,
He heard and kept,
And his Angel of Sleep came down, and the mourner slept.

The star knew not it had wrought this thing;
It burned its best,
Quenched its torch in the fair day-spring
And went to rest.
But the Lord's smile followed its going and it was blessed. Independent.

From Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 9, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: I see by this morning's Monitor that two more of the Stephens' murderers have been apprehended, tried and condemned to death; also that one or two more charged with active complicity have been arraigned for trial. The priest who incited the mob is still a prisoner and soon to be tried.

It was reported some days since that several of those condemned had been reprieved, and that their punishment would perhaps, after all, only amount to a short imprisonment. The same paper reported, about the same time, that of the two noble Mexican editors who came out so boldly in defense of Protestants, and so severely condemned Romanism, the one had been poisoned and the other kidnapped. I am glad, for the credit of the better class of Catholics, to be able to say that this is not true, and that on the best of authority—Rev. William Watkins, the colleague of poor Bro. Stephens. Mexican Romanism has sins enough to bear, without charging falsely to her account.

Whatever may be the result of these arrests and trials, I desire to repeat again that I am persuaded the Mexican government has acted sincerely and honestly in the premises. Personal, social, political, religious and moneyed influences have been and may be brought to bear in any one of your States to defeat the ends of justice; and as well might President Grant or the general government of the United States be condemned for a failure in this respect as to condemn President Lerdo or the Mexican government for a like misfortune—for a misfortune it is, to any government, for such criminals to go unwhipped of justice.

The fifth instant was a great day throughout Mexico, and especially in this city. It was the twelfth anniversary of the French defeat at Puebla. That defeat, you will remember, was as overwhelming as it was unexpected. Little did those French veterans anticipate such a triumph to Mexican arms. Mexicans may well be proud of the day, and glad when it returns to be celebrated. The military display, the martial music, the flying flags, the artillery salutes, the chimes of bells and the fireworks at night, were all well arranged, well-timed, and passed off to the evident enjoyment of the thousands present from town and country. To give you some idea of the impressions prevailing on the average Mexican mind as to the greatness of the result, it is confidently asserted by intelligent men (in other things) that the defeat of the French at Puebla, in 1862, was the beginning of the downfall of France; that previously the French were regarded as invincible, but that after the Mexican victory the Germans mustered courage to attack them, and commenced preparations at once which resulted so disastrously to poor France.

As you have doubtless seen from the papers, General Santa Anna has been recalled, and is now a resident of this city. He is quite old—about seventy-nine—but still stout and vigorous. His immense property was all confiscated, and he is now poor. A strong effort is being made to have him reinstated again in all his rights and possessions. His friends are earnestly engaged, through the papers and by other means, in influencing the present Congress, now in session, to pass a law to this end. But the act is perhaps as violently opposed. It is believed by many that if he is thus reinstated, old as he is, the church party would again find in him a leader. "But sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

Our Northern Methodist friends received, this week, quite an acquisition to their forces, consisting of Rev. Dr. Butler's son and another young brother, both ordained recently in Boston for this special work. In the way of foreign and native preachers and exhorters, together with American teachers, they have a strong force for a mission only a little over one year old. Dr. William Butler, author of the Land of the Veda, is the efficient superintendent. Much of his life has been given to mission work. He was fifteen years in India. Entering that field the year of the Sepoy rebellion, with no knowledge of the language, he borrowed a native exhorter from the Presbyterians, and resigned his charge for Mexico, leaving a large Annual Conference; with many native preachers of considerable ability. So you may know what to expect from our Northern brethren. They are doing a noble work.

The Presbyterian Board are ably represented by Rev. M. N. Hutchinson. He is from New York. For several years he was a successful lawyer. Feeling that he was called to a better work, he gave up his more lucrative profession for the noble vocation of the gospel ministry. The first years of his ministry were passed in successfully organizing a mission in the suburbs of New York city. The board, appreciating his administrative talent, wisely selected him for the work in Mexico. He is a Christian gentleman of fine culture and high attainments. Modest and unassuming in manners, he impresses even a stranger pleasantly. But, better than all this, he is an earnest, faithful man of God. He duly represents the interests committed to his hands.

Dr. Reily, an Episcopalian, was in Mexico some five or six years in advance of any other denomination. He was the representative of the Foreign Christian Union. His mission was sustained by the various Christian bodies. If not a native of some Spanish-speaking territory, he had perfect command of the language. Arriving at a favorable moment, and without competition, he succeeded in securing some valuable property. His San Francisco church was one of the largest and most fashionable Catholic churches in Mexico. It fronts on Calle de San Francisco and Calle de Gante, both prominent streets. The former, in fact, is the Broadway or Canal of Mexico. The San Francisco front is through a large double doorway into a most beautiful flower garden, it being some twenty or thirty paces from the gate to the church door proper. Another old Catholic church, not so prominently situated, but large and immensely valuable, he bought, I suppose, for not one thousandth part of its original cost. Five congregations, I have been told, averaging two hundred, assemble here every Sabbath to hear the word of God. They are generally of the middle and lower classes, but their souls are precious. The doctor has clever and successful men in charge during his temporary absence in the United States. Although the pulpit garb and peculiar service of Episcopalianism is maintained, his is not in name the Episcopal, but the Church of Jesus. He has also established a Bible depository and a small book store in this city, and has translated and published in Spanish quite a number and variety of good books—some, such as Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, that present to the simple, inquiring mind vital Christianity in its most vigorous form. Dr. Reily has a host of friends in Mexico, who impatiently wait his return.

The Bible Depository of the British and Foreign Bible Society is also doing a good work. The energetic agent, Rev. William Parks, gradually increases the number of his colporteurs as occasion demands. So the light is pressing its way out and into the regions beyond. Romanism will not supply the pure word of God to hungry human hearts. Nothing ministers so vigorously to her success as ignorance of God's word. It is heart-rending to think of the millions who have died in the night of her reign during the past three hundred and fifty years. Oh, how different the result if, for that time, God's precious word had been unsealed to the people! How this fair land today, politically, socially and religiously, would have bloomed and blossomed as the rose! When we look at these old convents, these massive, gloomy cathedrals, with their secret passages and dark pits; when we look upon the old Inquisition, from whose walls and secret places human bodies have been taken, petrified, inclosed in the solid masonry alive; when we gaze upon the life-size forms of saints, and witness their childish worship—how much better, we are constrained to ask, was the religion of Cortez than that of the poor heathen whom he conquered only in their death?

Affectionately,

J. T. DAVES.

De Jure or De Facto.

MR. EDITOR: I read the ADVOCATE on this subject with entire and hearty approval, and was glad it took exactly the view of the matter it did take. I feel sure that all the facts in its view were not stated—that some reflections, too, on the status of things were kept back, which reflections, however, I hope you will give us before long. The ADVOCATE has been a faithful sentinel, and now is a time demanding as great vigilance as any other, perhaps greater. Please tell us whereunto this fraternity business will grow. It will be an immense relief to many ministers and laymen if you can show that it will not eventuate in the utter disintegration and absorption of our church.

While two of our "Bishops, our missionary secretary," and a number of our "leading D. Ds." are at Round Lake and Sea Cliff, having a loving time, and publishing by speeches and letters their intense and new-born admiration of the magnanimous, glorious spirit of Northern Methodism, and making arrangements for a more affectionate meeting of the same kind next year, we away down here in the favorite diocese of Bishop Haven are reading and hearing daily of negro riots and negro rapes, and everything else villainous that can be perpetrated in the name of liberty or philanthropy or religion. And we know, too, that these acts of vileness and riot are, most of them, instigated, remotely or directly, by the personal teachings and conduct of chosen agents or bosom friends of the aforesaid Bishop and his illustrious colleagues.

"And Joab said to Amasa, Art thou in health, my brother? And Joab took Amasa by the beard with the right hand to kiss him. But Amasa took no heed to the sword that was in Joab's hand. So he smote him therewith in the fifth rib, and shed out his bowels to the ground, and struck him not again, and he died."

The stroking of beard, and shaking of hands and kissing may have been very delicious up there toward the head—"lengthened sweetness long drawn out;" but down about the unsentimental ribs the feeling was not so pleasant. For there is a sword about, sharp and glittering. I say a sword, because the whole conduct of the emissaries and agents of the Methodist Episcopal Church declares, as plainly as can be, that they are literally come not to send peace, but the sword; that they are among us not attracted by the love of souls, but by the lust of money and office; not to build up the negro's fortune, but to pull down the white man's and build their own; not even to build up their own church in any spiritual sense, but to rule these political States, and destroy and confiscate Southern Methodism.

Nine years ago this was the distinctly declared policy of the Northern Church, and she has not yet erased a solitary syllable of that declaration, but has repeatedly reasserted it, and steadily maneuvered for its accomplishment. Her first maneuver was foiled at St. Louis by the simple integrity of our College of Bishops. The second, at Memphis, by reading to her agents from her own journal. The third she made at Louisville, under the form of fraternal offerings. It may look harsh to call those fine speeches a maneuver—fraternity tears, poetry, gifts for the Vanderbilt, etc. Yes, it was all a maneuver—a grand coup d'etat, almost without an equal in the pages of history, political or ecclesiastical. And, Mr. Editor, some of us fear it may be successful—that it may result in the accomplishment of the cherished purpose of the Northern Church. We know it will be unless our "Bishops, missionary secretary and leading D. Ds." can be made to see the whetted, glittering sword that is concealed under this cloak of fraternity. If the "immortal sixty" had seen that sword (I am satisfied they did not) they would not have so mourned over the majority report, and wished to put in the dark the history of the past thirty years of our obscurity and isolation and wrongs. Nor would they have wept so freely at the rehearsal of those speeches—speeches more artfully conceived and rehearsed than Mark Anthony's over the dead body of Cæsar. If our "Bishops, missionary secretary and leading D. Ds.," who have lately gushed so fraternally at Round Lake and Sea Cliff see that sword, and wish to preserve us from death, had they better not keep away from these camp meetings of universal Methodism? If the papers report truly, there was a tremendous gushing up in the North. Of course they will want just as tremendous a gushing down here in the South before long. And it will be very bad manners, not to say a mockery of fraternity, if they refuse to reciprocate. And so, I suppose, we will be expected in a few years to have a great gathering somewhere in our borders, perhaps at our loved "Seashore." Or when one of these illustrious, hospitable and winning Bishops, say Bishop Haven or Bishop Ames, comes down to hold an Annual Conference, many of whose members are known to be politicians, rioters, scalawags, polygamists, postoffice clerks, loyal leaguers and the like, it will be expected that we will be introduced to the mixed, motley company, "to sit inside the bar," to open our churches and homes, and to gush generally. Well, sir, our "Bishops, missionary secretary and leading D. Ds." may do so—may have to do so—having put themselves in such position as will be hard to get out of, having "fallen in love" and "spent the happiest week of their lives," etc.; but, depend upon it, there are not a few who will disintegrate before they will do that. Please, Mr. Editor, tell us whereunto this matter will grow.

Yours truly,

***

The Proposed Liquor Law.

MR. EDITOR: Your correspondent "X" has just waked up to the fact that he, a member of the General Conference, voted for a rule legalizing the making, buying, selling and using intoxicating liquors.

The question with him now is how to remedy his mistake. He proposes to do so by so changing the proposed law as to make it answer his intention. He proposes to drop the comma after "using," and thus put into the Discipline a law different from that proposed by the General Conference. Strange that it should not have occurred to "X" that there is no authority for making such change; that the Annual Conferences must concur or non-concur in the law as proposed by the General Conference. By consulting the official report in the Daily Advocates of May 14 and 22 "X" can there find the law as reported by the minority, considered and proposed by the Conference; and the law is thus: "Making, buying, selling or using, as a beverage, intoxicating liquors."

"X" makes the desired change in the law, and then construes it to "forbid, unconditionally, making, buying and selling spirituous liquors." Certainly he does not propose to blot out the comma between buying and selling, and to change the disjunctive into the conjunctive. I infer his construction is that the law "forbids, unconditionally, making, buying or selling spirituous liquors." As to using, he construes that the proposed law is not quite as stringent as the present law; that under it a minister, whom not in the best of health, or when worn down with excessive labors, might sometimes take a slightly stimulating drink. This is the proposed law, as amended and construed by "X." There is, to my mind, a difficulty in this construction. If a man is forbidden unconditionally to make or buy, how can he, when not in the best of health or when worn down by excessive labors, get possession of the allowed stimulating drink? It is a case of liberty allowed, and yet the only means of exercising this liberty forbidden.

"X" is "not an admirer of the law as worded, and was not when he voted for it." He would admire "the law" if worded differently; he would further admire the words if they only expressed the law. He is evidently confounded. The words and punctuation did not express the law he wished. He seems to have voted for the law without the words, or for the words with the hope that he could so punctuate and conjoin them as to make them express the law he was after. But now he finds the materials will not make the thing desired. He has a comma he cannot use; he cannot conjoin buying and selling so as to make them refer to dealers only, and thus open a way for his unwell and wearied brother to buy the allowed stimulating drink without falling under censure. I am not surprised that "X," confused as he is, "is not an admirer of the law as worded." I guess there is only one man who really admires the law as worded. The first of the two who offered this minority report declared before the Conference that "the time had come for the church to present a bold front." I guess he considered "the law as worded" a "bold front," and admired it.

"X" asserts: "It would look like retrogression should the church refuse to adopt the proposed law." How can there be a retrogression from nothing? The law is yet only proposed, not adopted. Right here comes in the constitutional restriction to prevent hasty changes in the General Rules, and not until three-fourths of the members of the Annual Conferences concur will there be anything to retrograde or advance from. And yet the advocates of this proposed rule seem to imagine that those who adhere to the Discipline as it is are in favor of retrogression. The friends of the Discipline as it is may not be so affected by the sentiments of the country and demands of the age, yet it cannot be denied they are standing firmly by the law as it is.

"X" is afraid that non-concurrence would be unsatisfactory to "extreme temperance men," and that it would give occasion to the enemies of Methodism to conclude that we were overawed by fear of a heavy secession. Has it come to this, that in legislating for the church we must lay aside the scriptural guide, and seek to please "extreme temperance men," and shape our action by our fears of what our enemies may say of us? Apart from conscientious legislation, it is all folly to seek to please "extreme men," or hobby horsical men, or men who are ungodly enemies of Methodism. Let your legislation be without reference to these, and have independence enough and faith enough to act regardless of extremists and hobbyists and enemies. S.

Abyssinian Slaves.

The Abyssinian girls are remarkably pretty, with large eyes and delicately-shaped features. These girls are brought down from the Galla country by the slave dealers from Abyssinia. That beautiful country, which, had we not wantonly deserted it, might have become of great importance, is now a prey to anarchy. The opposing tribes are only too happy to sell their female prisoners to the Arab slave traders. These people bring down the young girls in gangs by various routes, but the principal outlet is the Red sea, about Massowa. A great market is at Gallabat, the frontier town of Abyssinia. There I have seen them crowded together in mat tents, waiting for purchasers from those commissioned to procure slaves by the wealthy Arabs and Turkish officials. At Gallabat a handsome young girl of sixteen is worth about £15, but the same girl at Cairo would fetch £40 or £50. The Abyssinians are a much advanced race compared with the negroes of Central Africa. The women are very affectionate and devoted to those who show them kindness. Thus, as they combine beauty with devotion, they are much sought for, and command a high price in the market. They are seldom purchased by common people, as their price is too high, and they cannot earn money by bodily labor like negresses, being too delicate and unable to sustain fatigue. Although they are generally termed Abyssinians (Habbesheea,) I have never met with a true high-caste Abyssinian girl—these would be Christians; whereas all I have seen have been Gallas—a Mohammedan race. Many of these poor girls die from fatigue on the desert journey from Gallabat to the sea coast. Those who reach Khartoum, or the towns of Lower Egypt, are sold to the wealthy, and generally take a high position in the harems, often becoming the wives of their purchasers. In the Soudan I have met several charming Abyssinian ladies, who, having married European residents, have become perfectly civilized, proving the race is capable of great advancement.—Macmillan's Magazine.

THE BROKEN BUCKLE.—It is related of a hero in Scottish history that, when an overwhelming force was in full pursuit, and all his followers were urging him to more rapid flight, he coolly dismounted, in order to repair a flaw in his horse's harness. While busied with the broken buckle, the distant cloud swept down in nearer thunder, but just as the prancing hoofs and eager spears were ready to dash down on him, the flaw was mended, the clasp was fastened, the steed was mounted, and, like a sweeping falcon, he vanished from their view. The broken buckle would have left him in the field an inglorious prisoner; the timely delay sent him in safety to his huzzaing comrades. There is in daily life the same luckless precipitancy, and the same profitable delay. The man who, from his prayerless waking, bounces off into the business of the day, however good his talents and great his diligence, is only galloping on a steed harnessed with a broken buckle, and must not be astonished if, in his hottest haste, his most hazardous leap, he be left inglorious in the dust.—Dr. James Hamilton.

A NEW use has been discovered in Italy for old maids. On the Pope's eighty-third birthday a curious deputation waited on him to present their congratulations. It consisted of eighty-three maidens, young and old, arranged in the order of their ages, from one year to eighty-three years old. The Pope is reported to have been much delighted with the interview, but is not likely to marry.

IF EVER God had failed one who trusted in him, you might doubt; but he never has, therefore you should be confident.

Obituaries.

ANNIE LENORA, daughter of J. M. and M. J. Whitney, was born March 11, 1871, and died in Franklin parish, Louisiana, August 11, 1874. At the very interesting age of three years and a half this dear little girl was taken away by the hand of death, leaving a vacant chair in the circle, a broken group in childish sports, and saddened chords in the affections of parents. Awhile before she died, without any direction of her thoughts by others, she said to her little brother: "Lee, do you love God?" Upon his saying that he did, she said: "I love God, and am going to heaven to see him, and want you to come too." She asked her mother if she loved God, and, being answered in the affirmative, said: "I love God."

EUGENE MILLER.

DIED, in peace, on the eighteenth of July, 1874, Mrs. CATHERINE WINBISH, of West Feliciana parish, Louisiana. She was a daughter of Christian and Sarah Bingaman. In 1795 she was married to Mr. Washington White, with whom she lived happily for about ten years. She was married again, in 1830, to Mr. Samuel Winbish. Some time in the year 1826 she became a member of the Methodist Church as a seeker of salvation. It was not long after this when she found peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. As a member of the church she was faithful in the discharge of her duties, constantly growing in grace and knowledge. The ordinances of religion were to her means of comfort and instruction. Being naturally of a meek and quiet spirit, she was not demonstrative in anything, but with remarkable firmness and energy pursued the even tenor of her way, literally following the apostolic injunction: "Diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." Her ever prompt responses to the cause of charity and mercy, and her liberality in supporting those who ministered to her in spiritual things, were no mean evidences of the strength of her faith and the depth of her piety. Her last illness was short but severe, which she bore with Christian fortitude and resignation. When asked by her son if she was prepared to go, although the power of articulation was gone, she nodded a prompt assent. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." May we be also ready. J. L. FORSYTH.

CAPTAIN GREEN D. MCCONNELL was born in Washington county, Alabama, May 15, 1834. He joined the Methodist Church at nineteen years of age, and was soon placed upon the board of stewards, where he served efficiently to the day of his death, which event took place at his residence near Lower Peachtree, Wilcox county, Alabama, July 9, 1874. He was one of the most active and faithful stewards in the Selma district—a true lover of the church, and a strong arm upon which his pastor could safely lean. In any emergency you could rely on him, and he would succeed in getting help for his church and preacher where all others failed. He was a peace-maker, who with characteristic gentleness could harmonize all the discordant elements of his neighborhood, and have his neighbors to love one another. He died just as he lived—peaceful and happy. In the late war he commanded a company in the Twenty-third Alabama Regiment, toward the close of which he was put in command of the regiment and led it through several heavy battles, maintaining the position of commander at the surrender. He was of large stature—over six feet in height. Upon the battle-field he was the courageous lion; at home the gentle Christian. Both Church and State have sustained a great loss; and how we are to get along without him on Peachtree circuit I cannot tell. But all murmuring is hushed when we hear the Master say: "Lo, I am with you." We invoke the benedictions of God upon the bereaved widow and orphan children, who so deeply feel the loss of a kind and affectionate husband and father. P. E.

STEPHEN D. PITTS died in Shreveport, Louisiana, September 6, 1873, in the seventy-fourth year of his age. He was one of the first victims of the terrible epidemic which occurred there last fall. He was a member of the Baptist Church for a period, I think, of more than fifty years. Like Simeon of old, it may truly be said of this venerable Christian man, he "was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel, and the Holy Ghost was upon him." Take him all in all, I think he was the most devout man I ever knew. His piety was of the child-like type—simple, ingenuous, undisguised. He was distinctively a man of prayer; he not only prayed in public and private, but his ordinary conversations were always more or less interspersed with fervent ejaculatory prayer. How he would sigh over the abounding of iniquity, and how his heart yearned to see the regenerating work of the Lord prosper everywhere! He possessed a remarkable degree of faith; he lived by faith rather than by sight; literally, he took God at his word and trusted in him accordingly; and hence he was a rejoicing, hopeful Christian; not one of the mourning, despairing sort. To him the sanctuary was always a place of holy delight. The smile of real gratification which would radiate upon his saintly countenance, as he entered the house of the Lord, seemed to echo the anthem of David: "My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth, for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. * * * For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness." He lived from day to day, especially in his latter years, as though each day were his last. He lived waiting his change, and ready to depart and be with Christ, which, he felt assured, was "far better." He died suddenly—too suddenly for any dying testimony; but none was needed in his case to assure his friends of his "final perseverance." His memory in the church and community at Shreveport is "as ointment poured forth"—a hallowed fragrance lingers around his name. Dear old man, how well I recollect his warm greeting whenever I met him in the church below, and how glad will I be to receive similar greeting from him in the church above, our fellowship to be interrupted no longer by separation or epidemic or death!

J. W.

DIED, near Winnsboro, Franklin parish, Louisiana, in the thirtieth year of her age, our esteemed friend and sister, ELIZA J. KENTON, consort of Bro. P. C. Kenton.

Sister Kenton's illness was of short duration, but when the summons for her departure came it found her waiting for the voice of the Bridegroom. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South during the year 1865, with our much-esteemed brother, Rev. Thomas H. McClendon as her pastor. The precise time of her conversion is unknown to us, but the genuineness of it is, without doubt, clear to all who knew her intimately. Having been her pastor for two years, we do not hesitate to assert our entire confidence in her piety. This opinion is based upon personal association with our deceased sister, and her uniform Christian deportment. Our beloved sister was very modest and retiring in her manners, and hence but few knew her real worth. She was ardent in her attachments, and devoted to her church and pastors.

Sister Kenton seemed never to despond, but was manifestly content with her situation. When others were apparently under clouds, her sky seemed clear and her sun was never more bright than then, and she offered encouragement to the hopeful and cheer to the despondent along her pathway. A few hours before her death she called for her husband, children, brothers, sister and step-children, and talked about dying as if she was going on a journey. She spoke with great calmness and composure, asking them all to meet her in heaven, where there is no more sighing and sorrow. Finally, expressing entire submission to the will of her Master, and a perfect trust in the promise and willingness of her blessed Savior to receive her spirit, ready to depart, it winged its way, accompanied by angel bands, to the realms of eternal bliss. Bro. Kenton, your household is bereft of an affectionate wife and a devoted mother, and the church at Kenton chapel of a most excellent member. Weep not, my brother, for she whom you loved sleeps in Jesus. She is gone, and awaits your coming step. Little children and step-children, your mother is gone, and you weep and mourn her absence. Her "spirit in that bright world will not be transient." Imitate her Christian example. The loss you so keenly feel now will soon be your infinite gain. Brothers, sisters and relatives, the remembrance of a sister and friend deceased saddens the heart and fills you with grief. She cannot come to you again, but we can go to her. The writer of this notice enters deeply into the sadness and loneliness of this grief-stricken family. J. M. MCKEE, P.C.

DIED, at his residence in Lowndesboro, Alabama, June 23, 1874, Major ARCHIBALD TYSON, in the sixty-ninth year of his age. Bro. Tyson was born in Pitt county, North Carolina, September 5, 1805. In 1835 he came to Alabama, and soon afterward purchased land and settled in Lowndes county. He married Miss S. J. Warren, of Lowndes county, in 1843, and in 1853 became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Bro. Tyson was a man of great energy and force of character, and of remarkable application to business. He was one of the most reliable citizens and one of the most successful cotton planters in Lowndes county. During a connection with the church of twenty-one years' standing he was a consistent member.

For two years before his death Bro. Tyson was a great sufferer with cancer, which finally caused his death. He used every means within his reach to obtain relief, spending many months under skillful treatment, but all to no purpose; and after enduring great pain in the application of remedies, he was forced to return to his home without hope of recovery.

During his last illness I was with him often, and found him patient and submissive under his affliction, with a strong faith in God, and unshaken confidence in his goodness and mercy. He highly appreciated the visits and sympathy of his friends, and especially the conversation of Christians, and was always gratified to hear the Scriptures read and to have prayer by his bedside.

After his return home he lingered for about three months, during which time he was conscious of the steady approach of death. He spoke of that event as inevitable and near at hand, and seemed to dread not its approach. On the morning of June 23 I reached his bedside about two hours before his death. I found him very much prostrated, but in the possession of all his faculties. Feeling that the time of his departure was at hand, he called around him all the members of his family who were present, and bade them each one separately an affectionate farewell. In the emotion excited by this affecting scene he only was calm. I asked him if he felt at peace with God. He answered: "Yes." "And do you trust in the Savior?" "I do." In a very few minutes after this he folded his hands and peacefully passed away. His last moments were disquieted by no fears and by no pain. His death was as placid as an infant's sleep. Verily, for those who have faith in Christ, death is robbed of his sting, and the grave of victory, and I felt, as I gazed upon his inanimate form, that my own faith was stronger for being a spectator of his death. May God befriend the widow and the fatherless.

His pastor, J. M. MASON.

PROSPERITY is a blessing to the good, but a curse to the evil.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1874.

THE DOOMED MAN.

BY EDWARD L. ANDERSON.

It is the good ship Hildebrand
That sails the stormy sea;
But her course doth stand away from land,
No danger can there be.

Though the tempest blow and the wild waves flow,
The ship is stout and strong,
And safely to the port will go,
Let the voyage be short or long.

"Come, tell a story of the seas,"
A comrade asks the master;
"With this gallant breeze you may rest in ease,
The sea mew flies not faster."

Then fill the glasses all around,"
The well-pleased master cries,
And I'll tell what is found in a ship that is bound
To no port till the last man dies.

There floats a ship in the northern clime
That has drifted a hundred years;
For a fearful crime, till the end of time,
A fated man it bears.

Upon the deck, and on the mast,
The ever falling spray
Is borne by the blast, and freezes fast,
Till the ship is an iceberg gray.

And in the cabin, pale and wan,
Between two specters grim,
Sits a fated man, while they strive who can Gain the troubled soul of him.

And one plays for the fiend of hell,
And one redeems from sin;
And the dice they fell as they fall from the skull;
But neither yet shall win.

And ever there the dice are cast
For the fated man to see;
Until the last of earth is past
He sits in agony.

Long years ago I once did sail
Far into the frozen North,
And I heard a hail, like a dying wail,
From a drifting ship sound forth;

Upon the deck, and on the mast,
The ever-falling spray
Was borne by the blast, and frozen fast;
Like an iceberg huge she lay:

'Oh, tell me, does the end draw near?
And when will time be done?'
There many a year he has watched in fear,
While his soul is lost and won."

The Exploration of the Libyan Desert.

Nearly a year ago the staid citizens of Leipsic gathered in crowds in their streets to stare at two queer-looking wagons which were remarkable for enormous height, and which were slowly dragged through the city en route for the Austrian port of Trieste. These were the water-carts of the great expedition, soon to start for the exploration of the Libyan desert, under the command of the intrepid German traveler, Gerard Rohlfs, of Weimar, and under the liberal patronage of the Viceroy of Egypt. From the European journals of the day we gleaned a brief account of what the explorers proposed to accomplish, which, in the first number of our last volume, we laid before our readers, mentioning, at the same time, the departure of the caravan for the oasis of Keufra, in the center of the desert. Brief notes of progress have since appeared, but in so disconnected a form that little could be learned from them. Mr. Bayard Taylor, in a recent letter to the Tribune, now states that the expedition has returned, and gives an outline of its journey into the interior of the vast but little-known African continent.

By New Year's eve the party had reached the oasis of Farafrah, hitherto unvisited by any European since Caillaud in 1819. Here they celebrated the holidays, and astonished the natives by kindling a magnesium light; and then, after a rest of three days, started on the more arduous portion of their journey. A week's travel brought them to a sudden and astonishing change in the scenery, the chronicle of which reads more like a page from the Arabian Nights than a sober scientific statement of facts. "On both sides," says the writer, "arose detached limestone rocks, increasing in height as they advanced, and assuming the wildest forms. It was a labyrinth of lions, sphinxes, pyramids, obelisks, even semi-human statues, extending for miles. Then followed a colossal gateway of rock, the summits of which were fifteen hundred feet high. When this was traversed they entered a second and still grander labyrinth, terminating in a second gateway, the towers of which overhung the cleft between them. The way then widened; the tremendous walls of rock fell apart, and the path descended toward a sandy plain. In another hour there came a fresh surprise; the final descent to the level of the oasis lay before them; the last, mournful, sandy landscape vanished as by a miracle, and wheat-fields of deepest green, dark palm groves, white walls and minarets sparkled in the light of the sinking sun."

This was the oasis of Dakhel, a large area of garden land inhabited by seventeen thousand people. Near the town a large number of powerful springs burst from the earth, the water being at a temperature of 110°, and carried by irrigating canals over many miles of soil. A stratum of chalk underlies the whole oasis, and wherever pierced, there a spring appears. This water, it has been supposed, came from the Nile; but the examination of the explorers upset the theory, and proved its derivation from an independent source.

Four days' journey from this favored region brought the expedition to a poor camel pasture, destitute of water or trees, which was believed to be the supposed oasis of Zerzoora. A further march of two days to the northwest showed that no further progress could be made. Nothing but mountains of shifting sand was before it; nowhere a foothold, even for the broad-footed camel. Several attempts were made to penetrate this terrible region, but without avail; then the expedition skirted along the sand sea to the northward, seeking a passing-place. This was found in latitude 25° 11′ N., and longitude 27° 30′ E., and the locality was named Regenfeld (rain-field) on account of the steady two days' fall of rain there encountered. Steering a course by compass and astronomical observations (there was not a vestige of a trail,) the explorers continued onward. The weather, it is said, became unexpectedly cold, varying from 20° to 23° Fahrenheit in the morning; ice was formed upon vessels of water. Finally, on the twentieth of February, the oasis of Jupiter Ammon, in northern Libya, was reached.

The journey from Dakhel to this point occupied thirty-six days, during which period not a single well was reached, although a distance of five hundred miles was traversed. The iron tanks carried continued a plentiful supply of water for men and beasts during all this time. When it is considered that no other traveled route in all the Sahara has a longer space than a seven days' journey without water, the possibility of penetrating almost everywhere by the aid of Rohlfs' device becomes evident.

The oasis of Jupiter Ammon was found to have a depression of one hundred feet below the Mediterranean level. From this point the expedition went to the great oasis of Kharjeh, one hundred miles south and east, where photographs of the Egyptian temples were made. The inscriptions on these ancient monuments, it is said, give the names of eight Libyan rulers which have never hitherto been found recorded.

By April 15 the expedition had returned to Cairo, after traversing seventeen hundred miles of desert, two-thirds of which distance was before totally unexplored. The oasis of Kufrah was not reached, nor is it believed that the same exists; and, even if it did, the vast sand sea would prevent its practical connection with Egypt.

The result of the labors of the expedition are, in detail, said to be rich in scientific discovery. In general, however, the problem sought to be solved has only been negatively answered—that is, it is proved that the Libyan desert is absolutely uninhabitable, and cannot be explored without the most careful preparation, and good luck added thereto.—Scientific American.

An Educated Dog.

There are few travelers on the Harlem railroad who have not heard of the educated dog at Scarsdale depot. His name is Knapp. He is the property of Mr. George Ullman, the station-master. Knapp is a shepherd dog, about two feet high, and is covered with a dark-brown, shaggy coat of fine hair. He was born in the Scotch Highlands nearly four years ago. In his infancy Knapp was imported at considerable trouble by a gentleman of Scarsdale, who, being suddenly called to Europe shortly afterward, gave him to Mr. Ullman. Noticing genius and intelligence in Knapp, Mr. Ullman began to train him. Now Knapp can perform many wonderful feats. He has been taught to assist his master in the performance of his duties around the depot. Knapp has learned to tell by the clock when a train is due; and at night, when the hands point to the proper hour, Knapp takes a lantern in his mouth and stands on the platform with the light, guiding the engineer to the stopping-place. Knapp knows an express train from a mail train, and a mail train from a way train. In the day-time, when an express train approaches the station, and the track is clear, Knapp shows a white flag, which signifies all is well.

Not many days ago Knapp appeared with the white flag as an express train drove in sight; but, seeing two small children going down the wagon-road, ignorant of the approach of any train, he saw that the children would reach the crossing simultaneously with the train. Knapp dropped the white flag, and, seizing the red flag in his mouth, he darted toward the crossing. The engineer saw the red flag, and shut off steam before the animal reached the children. Arrived at the crossing, he stood there and prevented the train from passing until the children were safely over the track; then he laid the flag down and the train went on.

On another occasion Knapp snatched a child from in front of a way train just as it was stopping at the depot. The child's clothing was torn by the wheels of the locomotive, so narrowly had it escaped death.

Knapp consults the clock every day for the arrival of the mail trains. A few moments before the mail is due Knapp stations himself at the mail rack, and when the bag is thrown from the car he carries it to the post-office; and if it contains any letters for his master he takes them back to him.

When freight trains begin to switch cars at the depot Knapp always takes a red flag and trots up or down the track, as the case may be, and flags any train that heaves in sight. Knapp always keeps his position faithfully until called in by signals, just as any other flagman is. Engineers all know Knapp, and faithfully act upon his signals. After the departure of freight trains Knapp often walks down the track, and carefully examines the switches to see that the brakemen have left them all right. Satisfied that no blunders have been made, he walks back to the depot, and if the clock shows him that he has a few leisure moments he signifies to his master a desire for a pipe. Mr. Ullman has taught him to smoke, and he always keeps Knapp's pipe ready for lighting when he calls for it. The pipe being lighted, the animal sits on a chair and smokes with as much apparent ease and comfort as his master, the one looking about as well as the other.

Mr. Ullman is a good musician. He has a piano in the ladies' room of the depot, and often performs on it. Knapp has been taught to sing or whine the tunes which Mr. Ullman plays. The dog often perches himself on a chair beside his master, with his fore feet on the piano-frame, and accurately turns the sheets of music with his tongue. Knapp can waltz, and dance a schottisch or a polka, as well any one can, on four legs.

Last winter one of the mischievous brakemen threw snow-balls at Knapp just as a train started, and another made ugly faces and stamped his feet at him. He seemingly took no notice of these insults; but on Monday one of the two brakemen went into the depot to get a drink of water. When he started out Knapp stood in the door and would not allow him to move. He made a movement as though about to administer a kick, and Knapp opened his mouth and uttered a growl, which convinced the brakeman that such a proceeding would be dangerous. Knapp kept his prisoner in the room until the train had gone so far that the brakeman could not catch it, and then, releasing him, Knapp walked away as unconcernedly as though nothing unusual had occurred.

Since that time the brakemen have been exceedingly civil to Knapp; but he treats them with lofty indifference.

The Missing Boys.

BY REV. ARTHUR POTTS.

A recent article in the New York Observer asks: "Where are the boys who are not in the Sabbath school?" Those missing boys have often disturbed my own thoughts, and my policy in my own Sabbath school has been shaped in reference to them, for I could not reconcile myself to the existing state of things, which gave me one boy to two girls, any more than I am content that there should be two ladies to one gentleman in the church membership. While the State census shows no such disparity, it seems to me that the facts revealed by the church census call for earnest questions as to the reasons and the remedies.

The church and the school, however, have been generally esteemed by us to be means of grace and Instruction, and it cannot be a good thing that half of the fathers in the coming church are to be comparatively without spiritual culture or biblical instruction, or interest in the workings of the Sabbath school, wherein they should be teachers in their turn.

The question of where to obtain suitable teachers meets us at the outset when we attempt to remedy the difficulty; for I have invariably found that when I have secured teachers suited to the boy nature, I have in the same degree filled up the empty benches on the boy side of my school. I cannot, however, accept this lack of teachers on the boy side as the great cause, for it is a part of the very trouble we are considering. In looking for the cause I think we will find it in the boy nature itself, and a failure in the way of conducting the school to meet the demands of the boy nature; for it is a fact that a dish of instruction may be served so that a girl will enjoy it, while it will not satisfy the demands of the boy. We need to make some new discovery in behalf of boys, just as the idea of the Sabbath school was a discovery in behalf of the young.

In these days of liberty the majority of children come to Sabbath school because it is pleasant to them; but if any school is conducted so as to satisfy the girls and leave the boys dissatisfied, the result will be what we are now deploring. Boys love freedom and live in the open air more than girls, are not so quiet in their habits, and would like to sing louder, talk louder and move about more. There are many schools where the managers understand this, and act upon it, by arranging the exercises in harmony with child nature, including some special services for the boys. Yet there are many schools where this matter is not understood.

Yet something still more important remains after attention has been paid to the general services of the school—I refer to the manner of conducting the lesson for the day. If this is not well done it is like a dull sermon in the midst of pleasant services. A lively boy needs a live teacher, who can feel with and understands boys. I have frequently found ladies who had a remarkable faculty for teaching in the boy department; but, as a rule, a man can understand boys better.

It will not be enough simply to get men because they are men, and expect the results we seek, for I have seen fine classes of boys broken up because the teacher had not the gift of teaching boys. One man who can enter into the temptations of boyhood, and who has faith in the nobility of boyhood, and has a key to boys' hearts in his ability to understand their sports, and why they are inclined to play so many unaccountable pranks—one such man is a host in himself in a Sabbath school. I should multiply such a man by giving him as large a class as could gather about him, and, if I could command it, he should have a room to himself where his class could grow without limit. In these days the men who have the art of putting things so that the people can understand are having large churches built, so that their power is multiplied several times. It is true economy; such men ought to be economized, and not wasted; and why not, when necessary, apply the same principle to the boys' Sunday school? Three teachers in three class-rooms, in which they could utter what they had to say with no uncertain sound, would keep the boys roused and attract them better than a dozen teachers mumbling in sleep-suggesting tones over small classes.

Let us make an effort to find the boys who are now missing from our schools, and in a few years we will have more of the kind of teachers we want.—New York Observer.

IN THE parish church of Fettercairn a custom existed, and, indeed, still lingers in some parts of the country, of the precentor, on communion Sabbaths, reading out each single line of the psalm or paraphrase before it was sung by the congregation. On one communion Sunday the precentor observed the noble family of Eglantine approaching the tables, and likely to be kept out by those who pressed in before them. Being very zealous for their accommodation, he called out to an individual whom he considered to be the principal obstacle in clearing the passage: "Come back, Jock, and let in the noble family of Eglantine;" and then turning to his psalm-book he took up his duty, and went on to read the line: "Nor stand in sinners' way."

IN SWITZERLAND there is a law which compels every newly-married couple to plant six trees immediately after the ceremony, and two on the birth of each child. Birch?

Greek Philology.

In former times writers of Greek grammars contented themselves with exhibiting the principles of inflection and syntax, their object being to enable the student to enter upon the study of the language with as little delay as possible. But in this age of progress, when philology has been raised to the rank of an exact science, the grammarian must not confine himself to a mere exhibition of the phenomena of the language as it exists in the authors that have come down to us. He is expected to describe accurately the forms which ought to have been used before the Greek peninsula was inhabited by any human beings; he must descant upon the inherent qualities of fricatives, surds, factitives and sonants, as also upon the psychological tendencies of the paulo-post future; he must invent new names for old things, and give a satisfactory account of the Greek pronunciation which prevailed in the days of Phoroneus, Inachus, Sisis, Seiron and Procrustes; otherwise he will not be considered as having duly executed his task. Further, he must embellish his pages with long notes and excursuses about Sanskrit and Slavic affinities, and Lithuanian and Chinese analogies, not forgetting the curiously developed dialects of Caffraria, which are probably related to the language of the Cabiri. All which he can accomplish without even knowing the alphabets of those languages. The science of the nineteenth century has established the important truth that all races of men, ancient and modern, put their vocal organs in motion for the purpose of embodying in articulate sounds the operations of their minds; always excepting the Cynocephali and the Selnpodes, who express their sentiments by barking and cackling, respectively. Grammar now has ceased be a means—it is an end. The numerous references to numerous grammars in all our Greek text-books show that the language is to be studied not for its authors, but for its roots, stems, affixes, prefixes and numerals, and always with reference to Sanskrit, Welsh and Lithuanian. Those who have a taste for Greek literature should use translations; for who would prefer walking to riding? The Nation.

Ruskin on Sermons.

There are two ways of regarding a sermon—either as a human composition or a divine message. If we look upon it entirely as the first, and request our clergyman to finish it with the utmost care and learning for our better delight, whether of ear or intellect, we shall be necessarily led to expect much formality and stateliness in its delivery, and think that all is not well if the pulpit has not a golden fringe around it, and a goodly cushion in front of it; but we shall at the same time consider the treatise thus prepared as something to which it is our duty to listen without restlessness for half an hour or three-quarters, but which, when that duty has been decorously performed, we may dismiss from our minds in happy confidence of being provided with another when next it shall be necessary. But if once we begin to regard the preacher, whatever his faults, as a man sent with a message to us, which it is a matter of life or death whether we hear or refuse; if we look upon him as set in charge over many spirits in danger of ruin, and having allowed to him but an hour or two in the seven days to speak to them; if we make some endeavor to conceive how precious those hours ought to be to him—a small advantage on the side of God, after his flock have been exposed for six days together to the world's temptations, and he had been forced to watch the thorn and the thistle springing up in their hearts, and to see what wheat had scattered these, snatched from the wayside by this wild bird and the other; and at last, when breathless and weary with the week's labor, they gave him this interval of imperfect and languid hearing, he has but thirty minutes to get at the separate hearts of a thousand men to convince them of all their weakness, shame them for all their sins, warn them of all their dangers, to try, by this way and that, to stir the hard fastenings of those doors where the Master himself has stood and knocked, yet none opened—thirty minutes to raise the dead in—let us but once understand and feel this, and we shall look with changed eyes upon that frippery of gay furniture about the place from which the message of judgment must be delivered, which either breathes upon the dry bones that they may live, or, if ineffectual, remains recorded in condemnation, perhaps against the utterer and listener alike, but assuredly against one of them.

"UTILIZING" POISONOUS SNAKES. Probably no more ingenious method of committing murder was ever devised than one which is not unfrequently resorted to by the natives of Bengal. There is in that part of India a class of Gipsies, who are well known to be skillful snake-charmers. To one of these men the would-be murderer applies, and in return for a trifling fee is speedily furnished with a living cobra. In order that he may be enabled to handle the venomous creature with safety to himself, it is secured in the following manner: A bamboo is cut from the jungle of the length required, of course as long as the cobra. Then the creature is shoved in, with its head just appearing at one end and its tail at the other. The tip of the tail is then turned up and tied to the bamboo. The murderous weapon is now complete and ready for use. Armed with his cobra-stick, the murderer creeps softly to his enemy's tent in the dead of night, cuts a hole in the wall, and pokes in the deadly weapon. The tortured reptile, careless upon whom it wreaks its animosity, strikes its fangs into the sleeper, then is withdrawn, and the murderer steals away as softly and silently as he came.

THE most steadfast followers of our fortunes—Our creditors.

Religious Intelligence.

AT a conference recently held in Edinburg it was stated that there are at least fifty thousand people in that city who attend no place of worship.

THE Ohio Legislature has adopted a law that no bequest to any church or religious institution shall be valid unless the will has been made one year before the death of the testator.

AT THE July ministers' meeting at Boston twenty-four churches reported two hundred and ninety-three additions at the previous communion, and two hundred and forty-four by profession.

CLASS-LEADERS are elected in the United Brethren Church. The Telescope says in the course of a few weeks or months there will be hundreds of elections to that office. It urges piety, business tact, capacity to sing and kindred qualifications.

THE Indian census reports return the number of Roman Catholics in the Madras presidency (in which they are the strongest) at 397,071; while the Madras Catholic directory, which is the standard always quoted by mission writers, estimates them at about double that number.

A SPEAKER at a church extension meeting in New York stated that there is annually spent there $3,000,000 for religious objects connected with the 470 churches and missions, while $7,000,000 are spent in theaters, $9,000,000 on newspapers, and $50,000,000 in the 8,403 drinking-places.

THE Rev. Robert Bruce, of the Church Missionary Society, has a school of one hundred and fifty boys, including six Mohammedans, in Ispahan, Persia, all studying Scripture in the midst of a Mohammedan land. His labors are mainly among the Armenian residents. Mr. Bruce is now preparing a catechism to give the Persians a notion of the Protestant belief.

THE incomes of the five leading foreign missionary societies in England are as follows: Church Missionary Society, $1,306,105; Wesleyan, $839,625; London Missionary, $579,747; Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, $551,205; English Baptist, $201,275. These incomes, amounting to a total of nearly $3,500,000, show a sustained and growing interest in the work of foreign missions.

THE sovereignty of the Fiji Islands has been formally ceded to England by King Cacobau, and Mr. Layard, the British consul, has accepted the cession, subject to the ratification of the home government. This cession, if ratified, will not merely facilitate the missionary work on these islands, but will help to put a stop to that foul blot on civilization—the slave trade in the Pacific ocean.

THE London Missionary Society has started a mission, as our readers know, in New Guinea. The prospects there are very hopeful. Some native brethren left without an English missionary at Tauan lately got sadly frightened by some rough language of the chief and ran away; but when the missionary took them back he found the danger exaggerated and the chief in the best of temper.

A PARSEE writes to the Bombay Guardian that the only hope of their race, numbering some eighty thousand in India, being saved from extinction is in adopting Christianity. The same journal states that there are thousands of educated Parsees in Bombay who have entirely lost confidence in their own system of religion, and are perfectly convinced of the truth of Christianity. The writer expects the time when vast numbers of them will come out for Christianity together.

IN South India the London Missionary Society has 21 European and 11 native missionaries, besides 164 evangelists, catechists and teachers, making the total working force 196. These care for 131 stations, with 8,099 native Christians and 5,228 scholars in the schools. From the south, as well as from the north of India, it is reported that the number of secret disciples is rapidly increasing and that caste is losing its power.

MR. NAYLOR, of the London Missionary Society, has been visiting the Bangalee students at government schools in Calcutta. He was surprised to find how little students far advanced toward a university degree and trained in government schools knew about Christ. Among young Brahmos he found vague statements in regard to sin, atonement and the person of Christ; but they at the same time showed an interest in religious subjects in striking contrast with the indifference of the idolatrous Hindoo students.

A LETTER from Constantinople in the Deutsche Zeitung says that the Turkish government is again getting into difficulties in Crete. The Christian inhabitants persist in their demands to be placed on a footing of equality with the Mussulmans, and they claim the right of being elected judges and municipal governors. Meetings are constantly being held in various parts of the island to urge these demands on the authorities, who do nothing to mitigate the antagonism which is daily growing more and more bitter between the Christian and the Turkish population.

RECENT reports of the massacre of Roman Catholic converts belonging to the French missions in Tonking, Anam, revive the sad memories connected with that mission-field. The history of this mission is one long chain of persecution; partly due, however, to the political intrigues of the missionaries. From "Les Missions Catholiques Francaises" (Paris, 1874) we learn that the work in Tonking is divided between the Spanish Dominicans and the French missionaries. The French field embraces two vicariates, and has four bishops, 32 French missionaries, 121 native priests, 356 catechists, 708 nuns, who conduct the schools and asylums, and about 147,000 converts. The population of Tonking is estimated at 20,000,000.

THE Presbyterian Board has the field alone in Brazil. In a territory nearly equal to all Europe, and with a population estimated at ten millions, there are but thirteen Protestant ministers preaching in the language of the people. There are also one native minister and three native licentiates. The condition of affairs just at present is especially encouraging to efforts for the advancement of Christianity in Brazil, inasmuch as there has been a sudden widening of the breach already existing between the Roman Catholic Church, which is the State religion, and the State, by the arrest of a Catholic bishop for setting at defiance the national authority in obeying an order of his religious superior. The Emperor himself, it is said, has avowed his expectation of an entire separation between Church and State within the next two or three years.

A ROMAN CATHOLIC paper gives a suggestive comment on the boasted increase of its church in this country. It publishes a picture representing a youth holding a placard which bears the boast: "In 1791 there were in the United States but one bishop, 20 priests and about 20 churches. The Catholic population numbered 100,000. To-day there are 7 archbishops, 59 bishops, about 5,000 priests and 6,000 churches, while the Catholic population numbers 10,000,000." Opposed to this are figures representing that 14,000,000 persons, who should by descent have been added to the Roman Catholic population, have been lost from it to Protestantism and indifferentism. This is too large an estimate, but it is theirs, not ours. How does the growth of Protestantism compare with this showing? It may be illustrated by the statistics of Methodism. In 1791 there were 250 Methodist preachers and 76,153 members in the United States. Now there are about 12,000 preachers, 2,600,000 members and 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 population. The other Protestant denominations will probably show a like relative increase. The Roman Catholic growth has resulted almost entirely from foreign immigration. Except as to the Reformed and Lutherans, the Protestant churches have gained but little from this source. Thus the facts show that the growth of Protestantism keeps pace with the growth of the country, while the Roman Catholics, by their own admissions, are falling behind, and fail to keep even those accessions which immigration brings to them.—Methodist.

FROM the abstract of the foreign mission report to the Presbyterian General Assembly furnished by the Evangelist we draw the following summary: Of the $622,000 raised during the year for foreign missions nearly $28,000 came from the children. Some of the missions of the board have been greatly blessed during the year. Among the Nez Perces Indians 72 were baptized, making a total of 947; and among the Spokanes 253. By adopting a pure and industrious life, by giving up their feathers, paint and even their pipe, by their zeal for the Sabbath and church services, and by the activity of the native deacons and helpers, the sincerity of these Indians has been shown forth. In the Mexico mission there are 3 ordained missionaries, 16 native helpers, 596 communicants and 225 pupils in schools. The board is paying special attention to the training of young Mexicans for the ministry, preferring them to ex-priests. Two more men are to be sent into this field. In Brazil there are 11 stations, 497 communicants, 417 pupils in day schools and 265 in Sunday schools. The breach between Church and State is growing so wide in Brazil that a separation is confidently expected, which will vastly enlarge the opportunities of Protestantism. The Chili mission, with 5 missionaries, has been transferred from the American Foreign Union. The Syrian mission continues to advance. Sixty-eight converts were added during the year, of which number it is specially remarked that 36 were women; 1,195 scholars were in Sunday schools; the contributions were $1,420, or $3.27 per member, which, reckoning Syrian wages at one-fifth of American, is equal to a contribution of $16.35 (gold) per member here. On the eastern slope of Lebanon, at Zaleh, a new church was opened and preaching has been begun among the ruins of Baalbec. The mission press issues 11,000,000 pages, and its two papers, weekly and monthly. The Syrian college at Beirut, though not a part of the mission, greatly assists it. It has a staff of 11 professors and teachers and 75 students in its various departments. The female seminary at Beirut had 100 pupils. There is another one at Sidon. In India there are 17 stations, 677 communicants, 36 ordained missionaries and 136 native helpers. The schools, which have always been a strong point in this mission, have 7,175 scholars. The girls' schools are gaining ground. One has been opened at nearly every station, and at Mynpurie 14 women were being trained as teachers. The China mission has had a very encouraging year. Two hundred and eighteen new members were received, making a total of 1,109. In Canton, where the mission has 2 churches, great activity has prevailed among the members. The daily prayer meetings have been sustained, as well as night services, with the assistance of native brethren. The canvass of shops by men and homes by women have kept the meetings filled. At Ningpo, where there are 590 members, 45 were received during the year. The female school, numbering 25, has already sent forth 130 scholars, most of whom had been converted. At Shanghai the main agency is the printing press, which issued 18,000,000 pages. The Shantung mission, in and about the city of Chi-nan, where Mr. Corbitt baptized about 100 of the "Nameless Sect," is still suffering severe persecution. In Japan little preaching has as yet been done, the missionaries being engaged in translating, teaching and issuing medicines. Twenty-eight Chinese were added to the church at San Francisco, and 154 Sunday school scholars were in the schools at San Francisco, Sacramento and San Jose. Besides the missions thus enumerated, there are others in Persia, Siam and Western Africa. Throughout the mission-field about 1,400 converts were added, being an increase of twenty-five per cent.—Independent.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1874.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—112 CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the Patronizing Conferences.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
REV. A. J. BRIGGS.
REV. J. W. RUSH.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY
REV. J. G. JONES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

One Year	$2 00
Six Months	1 25
Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all Ministers of the Gospel, traveling or local and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers, with EIGHT DOLLARS.

The Cake and the Cruse.

STRENGTHENING MEAT.

The food which the angel provided for Elijah under the juniper-tree was very simple, but most wonderfully nourishing. A cake baken on the coals and a cruse of water made up the frugal repast, but the prophet "went in the strength of that meat, forty days and forty nights, unto Horeb, the mount of God." In the case of Moses no note is found of any meat which prepared him for his forty days' fast in the mount, and in the case of Christ the angels ministered to him after his fasting and temptations were ended. All were alike miraculously sustained, but with Elijah there are means, although supernaturally given and invested with at least preternatural virtue. Moses and Christ were sustained directly by divine power; Elijah went in the strength of the meat which the angel supplied.

God had taken care of his servant at the brook Cherith by the ministry of ravens and the flowing streamlet. Again, he had provided for his daily wants in the house of the widow of Zarephath by multiplying the meat and oil as they were wanted. However strange and however miraculous, the supplies were daily, and suited to the habitual demands of nature. Here he eats, and by this single repast is made strong for a forty days' journey. The bread-of-one-day had in it the nutriment which the bread of forty days ordinarily had. The miracle was not, as in the barrel of meal and the cruse of oil, or as in the Savior's miracle of the loaves, in the multiplication of the quantity, but in the adequacy of this one repast to last through so long a period of abstinence. That one cake, kneaded by the hands of the angel and baked under his eye, had in it the nourishing properties of forty cakes ordinarily. The bulk was not increased, but the life-sustaining power was intensified. The manna of which the Israelites partook had to be eaten daily. The cake was not less miraculous than the manna in its creation, but it possessed this further miraculous property of sustentation long after it had been consumed.

In this respect it stands out in peculiar relief as something unique, and to be distinguished from all that class of miracles which has some features in common with it. There was a virtue in that cake such as was not in the manna, and such as was not in the loaves and fishes. The prophet gathered no fragments, but he went in the strength of what he had eaten.

Beyond the lesson of providential care, the archetype of the letter may be in things spiritual. There is the feeding of the discouraged and fainting soul, and the ever gracious and timely provisions which prepare the believer for unusual trials and dangerous and difficult undertakings. Often there is occasion for the girding up of the loins of the mind, and for extraordinary manifestations of the divine power and goodness to give tone to faith, to quicken the spiritual apprehension, and to invigorate the courage and zeal. We imagine the transfiguration had something of this lasting and tonic influence upon the disciples. Long years afterward it is still fresh in the mind of Peter. It lingers in the apostle's memory as some scene of wondrous brightness, and he draws upon it for assurance and for the vindication of his faith. The majesty of Jesus, as it glowed there, is vivid and lustrous in his thought, and the voice which came from "the excellent glory" is clear and melodious, even as when he heard it in "the holy mount."

Some conversions, by reason of their sharply-drawn lines, are specially nutritious, while all are possessed of this quality of lasting virtue. When the soul is truly converted there is strength in that meat which, under conditions of faithfulness to the grace given, is not exhausted by the longest and most trying life. The frequency and aptitude with which Christians refer to their conversion indicate the consciousness of an experience whose impetus and blessedness are still felt. The stream which took its rise in the birth "from above" is, after many years, the same stream of life and assurance. We would throw no needless suspicion upon the faith of those whose conversion seems to require an almost annual renewal, nor are we to lose sight of that daily grace of which the manna may have been the type; but a genuine conversion is rarely evanescent. There is strength in that meat, and he who eats it will be likely to press forward and to surmount the obstacles which lie in the pathway of duty. There are passages in the religious life wherein the soul receives unwonted blessings, wherein, like Jacob at Penicl, some great victory is achieved, and there is a manifestation of truth and of God which marks a new era in the soul's history. The believer wakes up beneath the juniper-tree to find the cake and the cruse and heavenly ministries waiting. And from henceforth he is strong and uniform, and treads the high places of faith and labor with a triumphant step. In that nearer approach to God, that more perfect consecration, and that revelation of the Spirit, he has found an inspiration which warms his heart with a deeper joy, and gilds his subsequent life with a peculiar brightness.

There are means of grace, protracted and camp meetings, or hours of secret prayer, which make epochs in the history of souls—occasions in which the hungry heart receives a portion which invigorates it for years and even for a lifetime. Not all sermons have this quality of feeding the spiritual man. Dainty rhetoric, well-rounded periods, metaphysical speculations and scientific apologies are not likely to give life to the fainting and weary. Crude and loose-jointed amplifications, soulless common-places, are a mockery. The real preaching of the gospel is strengthening meat. The cake and the cruse of water were very plain and frugal fare, but an angel provided them, and they were suited to the weary traveler's needs. We doubt not the cake had been turned, and was well done, and that the homely cruse was filled to the brim with water pure and sparkling. There was no raw dough, no muddy water. If in Christ's name, and invested with a ministry higher than that of the angels, men are called to "feed the flock of God," they must look well to the cake and the cruse. It is food, it is strengthening meat that the hearer wants, and not the vapid confections of light literature, and a gospel robbed of its power to awaken and save. We feel that we have been to preaching, and that we have heard a sermon, when the soul has been fed, and when we go away in the strength of that meat, prepared afresh for the toils and cares of life. It is the sermon that follows us home, and rings in our ears all the week, and stirs up and quickens the conscience for a long time after we have heard it, that does us good.

We might dwell upon the properties of God's word in this connection—how its promises, precepts and declarations are nourishing and life-sustaining. A single promise suffices for the meditation of days, and the devout spirit finds food for weeks in a solitary passage. Not by bread alone, "but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God," shall man live. And still further, and most fittingly, might we conclude these reflections by reference to him who is "the bread of life," and the true bread which came down from heaven. Here is strengthening meat indeed! The cake and the cruse which met the prophet's surprised and bewildered gaze, by the laws of association, if by nothing more legitimate, bring us to him whose flesh is meat indeed, and whose blood is drink indeed. He that feeds on Christ can go in the strength of that meat through the rugged wilderness, and beyond the heights and solitudes of Horeb, even to the heavenly Jerusalem.

The New Liquor Rule.

Thanks to Dr. Kennedy, of the Southern Christian Advocate, for the following timely words. They are about what we would say, and suit our contributors.

As we suggested a week or two ago, this subject is likely to have extended discussion, and we venture to suggest to all parties who may feel disposed to enter the arena that, in order that the discussion may be profitable, it should be confined strictly to the point at issue—i. e., should the action of the late General Conference be confirmed or rejected by the ensuing Annual Conferences? The sin of intemperance is universally admitted. There is, we presume, not a single Methodist, clerical or lay, throughout the connection who would assume the negative on this question; and therefore the magnitude and heinousness of this evil is aside from the question at issue, and belongs to a different field of discussion. In fact it is evident that the framers and friends of the new measure aimed their action not directly to the arrest of the use of intoxicating liquors, but at the manufacture of ardent spirits, and the traffic in them. The language of the rule on the subject of abstinence, as it now stands, is: "Drinking spirituous liquors, unless in cases of necessity;" the change proposed is: "Using, as a beverage, intoxicating liquors." The basis for action against an offender, it seems to us, is neither broadened nor abridged, in this particular, by the proposed change in the language of the rule; so that total abstinence is no more made a test of membership by the "substitute" than by the existing rule. The ordinary traffic in ardent spirits is, likewise, an admitted evil of fearful proportions, and the manifest design of the "substitute" is to purge the church of all complicity with this evil. Now the doubtful points to be cleared up, if possible, by this discussion are: 1. Is the church sustained by Scripture in exacting so sweeping, unqualified and yet ambiguous a law? And if so, then: 2. Would the acknowledged evil be more successfully assailed and sooner extirpated under the proposed specific law than under the General Rule which enjoins "avoiding evil of every kind?" And further: 3. Is the condition of membership, as drawn by the "substitute," so manifestly unscriptural, or so probably inferior in effectiveness to the present law, as to warrant its rejection in the face of the odium, just or unjust, which such a course is likely to bring upon the church?

Let writers, then, deny themselves, and spare us all expletive lucubrations, and restrict their articles to these points; so shall our space be economized, and their views more extensively read and attentively considered.

Mighty Men of Old.

The following well-flavored extract is from editorial correspondence in the Richmond Christian Advocate. We think the Bishop ought to get up a lecture in the line indicated. But to the extract:

The clamor of the cars at Burkeville stampeded sleep, and the conversation turning to the olden times, Bishop Doggett gave a sketch of the mighty men of Virginia Methodism—the champions in Conference, camp and church, in his youth, and whose shining arms have lost nothing of polish and edge in his keeping. The Bishop told of Skidmore, Charlton and Leigh—Skidmore, poised, weighty, invincible, the arm of Ajax, and the battle-axe of Richard Coeur de Leon; Charlton, of charming, brilliant elocution, not rockety, but meteoric, showering from the heavens, not spurting from the earth and spent in smoke. The Bishop, after telling of the personal appearance and style of preaching of Hez. Leigh, said: "He was the greatest orator I ever heard." There was a certain sign when the Spirit came on him in the pulpit. He gave a sudden, short, loud snort. All knew he was in the saddle then, with the rowels deep-driven in the flanks. It was the snap of the sling as the stone flew from it.

He was of majestic presence, gray eyes, and over two hundred pounds. His voice was protean—molded in the matrix of each thought,—now tender, now terrible, as the sentiment shifted. It feathered every sentence. It was the groove in the cross-bow that steadied the swift arrow to the aim. His mind was got into action with a certain stately stiffness. He began with a slow, solemn roll of sonorous sentences, and with pauses of longer length than usual at periods—trailing thunder sinking into silence. The thoughts quickened, the stops briefer, the sentences shorter and swifter, the brain tense and charged, and then the wild snort—the signal that all were ripe and opening.

The Bishop recalled a scene where a whole audience at a camp meeting broke into a simultaneous shout as Leigh, in a sublime climax, thundered "glory"—the huzza of heaven.

But who can write on the cars, with the cinders swarming in his eyes and a pencil staggering over the paper, or who can remember anything in a way fit to tell after seeing the sights in Patrick? And then I will never get to Patrick at this speed. Oughtn't the Bishop to get up a kind of chatty lecture for the Conference about these "men of stature?"—There is marrow in such a theme.

Death of Rev. Wm. S. Baird.

The Baltimore Episcopal Methodist of August 22 comes to us in mourning, and with the sad intelligence of the death of the editor. We copy the following account of Bro. Baird's sickness and last hours from the editorial page of the paper which has been bereaved of its able and devoted editor:

It is our sad duty to interpret to the readers of this paper the symbols of mourning which appear upon its pages to-day. On Thursday, the thirteenth instant, Rev. William S. Baird, editor of the Baltimore Episcopal Methodist, finished his earthly labors. In many of our readers this announcement will create no surprise; in them all it will awaken the sincerest grief. For more than a year the health of our lamented brother had been almost continuously failing. The kindest attention of loving friends and the best medical skill were alike insufficient to arrest the progress of disease and build up his wasting strength. Many of the members of the Baltimore Conference will recall his worn, emaciated appearance at the last session of that body. Indeed during the earlier part of the session he was unable to leave his room, and when he did appear among his brethren and mingled with them for a day or two in that fraternal intercourse, which was one of the sweetest joys of his life, more than one heart felt the sorrowful apprehension that at our next annual meeting his kindly face would be missing. Those apprehensions have been sadly verified. Our beloved friend and fellow-laborer has fallen asleep. Another true-hearted Methodist preacher has been called from toil to reward; another immortal spirit redeemed by the blood of Jesus has entered through much tribulation into the heavenly kingdom. It remains for us who mourn his loss to give thanks unto God for his faith and example, and to strive earnestly that we may be followers of him, even as he also was of Christ.

A more extended account of the life and character of the deceased will be published at as early a date as practicable. In the present article we shall simply state, for the satisfaction of his numerous friends, some of the facts immediately connected with his death.

It was so ordered in the providence of God that our brother did not close his mortal life under the shelter of his own home. He had gone to Jordan's White Sulphur Springs, in the valley of Virginia, in a fruitless endeavor to recruit his failing health. At the close of his sojourn there he visited the house of a brother minister, Rev. E. F. Heterick, of the Baltimore Conference, expecting in a day or two to return to his home in the city of Baltimore. But in a few hours after his arrival at Bro. Heterick's he became so utterly prostrated as to be unable to leave; and after lingering nearly three weeks in the circle of that quiet Christian household, kindly cared for by all its members, and blessed with the tender, unwearied ministrations of the devoted companion of his life, the end of struggling and suffering came—"he was not, for God took him."

It was the mournful privilege of the writer to stand by the bedside of our departed brother during his last hours. A privilege it was, truly; for his death chamber seemed to be close to the doorway of our Father's house. He talked freely of his hope and assurance in Christ, and the blissful home which he was about to enter. The name of Jesus dwelt upon his lips. Precious words of Scripture and lines of hymns which he had long been familiar with and loved were the vehicles by which he conveyed to the sorrowing friends that stood around his couch his bright hope of eternal life. When it was asked him: "Do you know me, Bro. Baird?" he replied very earnestly: "Yes, and I know Jesus my Savior." He was told that a number of the preachers wished to be remembered to him; he said: "Give my warmest Christian love to all the members of the Baltimore Conference." When he had become so feeble as to be unable to articulate distinctly he was requested to raise his hand if all was well; immediately his hand was uplifted. It was his dying testimony to the love of Jesus and the sustaining grace of God his Savior. A little while afterward, without a struggle or groan, gently and peacefully he ceased to breathe.

The body was conveyed to Washington city and buried there in Greenwood cemetery. In accordance with his request, Rev. Samuel Rodgers, his presiding elder, and the Rev. J. A. Kern, the pastor of his family, conducted the funeral services. Six brother ministers acted as pall-bearers. With tender reverence the last rites of love and duty were paid to the poor remains of God's dear servant. Beside him sleep the forms of four lovely children who passed on before him to the better land. They have met together again, father and children, and death will sunder them nevermore. And so does God gather home his elect, one by one, that they may be with each other and with Jesus. May we join their happy number when our work is done.

Crystal Springs Camp Meeting.

A GREAT WORK OF GRACE.

MR. EDITOR: The camp meeting season at Crystal Springs closed on Wednesday morning, the twenty-sixth. There were thirty preachers present, fifteen of whom preached in great simplicity and effectiveness. One hundred and twenty persons professed faith in Christ, besides being to the members from the circuits and stations adjoining, who formed it, a season of great enjoyment.

This was by far the most profitable of the three meetings held at this place. There was a larger attendance throughout the meeting, and on Sunday the carefulest count made footed up thirty-five hundred persons present, twenty-seven hundred of whom heard preaching. It is barely possible that better order could be maintained by so many persons. So little cause for complaint existed that but few allusions were made to it. The attention to preaching and participation in altar exercises has rarely been surpassed.

The preachers were unusually animated. They performed their allotted work with spirit and efficiency, and had rare occasions of spiritual power and enjoyment.

A feature of the meeting was the request for prayers presented by the presiding elder at the different times for service, and the wonderful answers obtained during the meeting. A constant encouragement to prayer was supplied by these answers, and an intense desire awakened to secure the benefits of prayer. This was kept up to the last meeting, and the individual cases were so marked as in their results to produce a feeling of awe. We have never seen it after this manner before. The meeting was an impressive one. It was a demonstration of religious intelligence, fervor and power rarely witnessed. This camp ground is situated in the center of a populous, religious and intelligent community. Much more, therefore, than the immediate result, great as that is, may be expected as fruit of this meeting. Besides, the visitors, who contributed so large an interest to the meeting, and who carried away accessions, numerically and otherwise, to strengthen their churches, will profit others by what they observed and experienced.

Other improvements to the grounds and accommodations are arranged for. The association regards the enterprise as assured, the success going beyond their expectations. Already they are preparing plans for next year's season to meet the increasing demands. W. E. M. LINFIELD.

HAZLEHURST, MISS., August 27, 1874.

The Death of Two Children.

SAD BEREAVEMENT.

The following is sent us by Bro. Shores. He has our deepest sympathies, and of all his brethren, in this hour of his great sorrow. May God help and comfort the bereaved ones. The children are not lost, but gone before.

GEORGIANA, ALA., August 25, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: While away from home, attending to my official duties, I received the following communication from my son:

"GEORGIANA, ALABAMA,
Sunday, August 23, 1874.

"Dear Pa: You will see from the envelope that this brings you sad tidings. Yes, little Eula died yesterday at twelve o'clock M. We endeavored to send you word earlier, but could not. I reached home last night at twelve o'clock. Minnie is also very ill, but I hope she is some better this morning. We are doing everything that can be done for her. Dr. H. will be down from Greenville to-day. Pa, bear up under this. It is God's will that it is so.

"In much sorrow, your affectionate son, W. E. SHORES."

Owing to a mistake as to the point of the district I was on, the messenger who brought me this intelligence did not reach me until Monday afternoon, August 24, when I made all haste to get home, reaching there a little after noon, August 25, to find Minnie a corpse, Eula having been buried. O what a stroke! These were sweet little girls—children of much sprightliness and promise.

Eula (our baby) only lacked three days of being three years and seven months old. Minnie was six years and four days old.

My brethren of my own Conference, and others, will give me their sympathies and prayers in this hour of deep sorrow and sad bereavement.

Tearfully yours,

J. W. SHORES.

TAKE TIME TO REST.—Most men and women must keep in the traces, and keep pulling, the year round. All the more, therefore, is it their duty to take things easier as the hot weather comes on. Take longer rests at noon. Put on less steam when you are at work. Snatch a Sunday now and then from the middle of the week. You can't? You can. People find time to be sick and to die. They can just as easily find time to rest and keep well. Everything does not depend on finishing that dress or fencing that field; on "putting up" so much fruit or catching so many customers. Better that the children should wear old clothes than that their mother should be laid aside by a fever. Better that the corn crop be a little lighter than that there be no one to harvest it. Let us have shorter sermons and fewer of them on Sunday; longer recesses for the children at school on week-days. Put up the store-shutters earlier at night; prepare plainer meals in the kitchen. Take a noon-day nap yourself, and give your employees a chance to go a-fishing of an afternoon now and then. That only is duty which the Lord lays upon us, and he is not so hard a master as we sometimes suppose.—Advance.

WE LEARN from Scotland that Messrs. Moody and Sankey are still carrying on their evangelistic work with the same hearty co-operation on the part of the clergy and members of the various Scotch churches, and that the blessing of God still attends their labors with wonderful results. At the latest account they had been visiting Keith, where, on Tuesday, the twenty-eighth ultimo, Mr. Moody addressed several thousand people in a field adjoining the Longmore Hall, from the words: "And when he saw him he had compassion on him"—a part of the parable of the good Samaritan. At the conclusion meetings were held in the Free Church and Longmore Hall, where Mr. Moody addressed crowded audiences, composed of people from all the surrounding districts, Mr. Sankey singing some of his beautiful hymns. They are about to revisit Aberdeen.—New York Observer.

THERE is a faith which tends to idleness, trusts God to do all, and leaves the soul stupid and powerless. There is a faith that worries and works and hopes that God will help. And there is a truer, better faith that works mightily, because it loves fervently, and never worries, because it never fears. Love will, must work, and cannot be idle; it comes from God, breaks out in prayer, praise and service, like springs which cannot be suppressed. It is spontaneous, and grows by use. Faith that works by love is a tonic to the soul, girding it to bold endeavor, making it like God in active doings, in every service which can assuage a grief, relieve a pang or impart a joy.

IT IS after Christ has knocked at the door and gained attention that his voice may be heard. And after hearing and opening the door it is that Christ comes in to sup with the inside keeper of the door, and has the keeper to sup with him.

Letter from Arkansas.

MR. EDITOR: Amid the sisterhood of church journals, the fair and intelligent face of the elect lady from the Crescent City still cheers, by her weekly visits, our quiet little home. Her hands are very active, and her fingers deft, casting them hers and there with great skill, threading amid the affairs of Church and State, bringing us many a dainty morsel over which the mind feasts with pleasure. Sometimes her bright sayings bring a smile to the heart, that comes rippling to the lip. But no matter for that; a good laugh is the very thing you need sometimes. And then, again, some pathetic narration, like the young Spaulard, for instance, gets the eyes so misty that you have to stretch them wide to see the next sentence. Oh, may the love that filled that young boy's soul overflow in acts of tenderness and faithfulness in the life of all that name the name of Christ! And amid these dry and thirsty days, when the sun comes with burning force, the sweet words, full of soul-cheer, from the hand at the helm, a very note of Heaven: "As the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." Oh, what a constellation of comforting thoughts gather about this heaven-sent truth! How the heart and soul feasts and grows strong! And then she whispers in such sea-breezy melody of the Seashore camp meeting, till the heart gets so eager to be there, and to "hear words that are said," that it fiuully gets into a kind, complaining mood, and says: "I wonder why it is the Bishops have no call to Arkansas between Annual Conference times." I am sure some of that warm, spiritual life from the great heart of Bishop Keener, infused into the leading arteries of the church in our beloved State, would set the pulse throbbing with the intensity of received benefits. His hand, so well skilled in the work of the Master, could give many a well-directed stroke to the great pillar of our holy religion—the doctrine of the new birth—for he is exceedingly impressive on that subject; and because of the lack of trumpet tones on this all-important subject, the pales of our church are crowded with men and women who have never known a single pang of the new birth. How can a church grow up into Christ, in all things its living head, who have never put on Christ?

And then, again, Bishop Marvin was there, preaching as one with "authority, and not as the scribes." Oh, how glad I would be to hear him pour forth the unctuous gospel truth once more! It seems to me that he lives in such loving proximity to the Son of God that he has stamped his very impress upon not only his soul and heart, but upon his features. Long may he live to do the work of the Master.

Our church in Fort Smith much needs a reviving, sanctifying shower of grace. We need new life and more spiritual energy. Our prayer meetings are kept up weekly, and are seasons of some interest. Class meetings, I believe, are among the things that were. Our Sabbath school is in a living condition. I think it a sad truth that so few Sabbath school scholars are converted, when this is the great end in view, or should be. Our pastor, Bro. Babcock, is at his post. He is just now attending the Fort Smith District Conference, held at Booneville, in Scott county. My husband tells me that the quarterly meetings in many places have been seasons of grace. A goodly number have united with our church, and begun their march to the celestial city. May they be faithful to the end.

Mr. Editor, our Conference meets here next fall. Will you come? We would be glad to see you; and you may bring that friend with you who was a fellow-sufferer when that tremendous dinner had to be eaten by you two alone.

The weather with us is just now dry and parching—everything drying up. A spirit of restlessness seems to seize the people. Man out of God is like a planet out of orbit, and seems lost in boundless space, seeking rest, but finding it not. May we all know more and more of that rest that comes from bearing the yoke of the meek and lowly Christ.

A constant reader of your valuable paper, ANNA M. GRANADE.

FORT SMITH, ARK., August 17, 1874.

A CLERICAL ANECDOTE.—It is related, in the Congregationalist, of the father of the late Rev. Dr. Storrs, of Braintree, Massachusetts, a strong advocate of the doctrine of fereordination, that, having once made an appointment to exchange with the late Rev. Dr. Osgood, of Springfield, he started for the latter place with his own team on the Sunday agreed upon, and when about half way thither met Dr. Osgood driving down. They stopped, naturally, for a moment's conversation, and Dr. Storrs soon glided into his favorite theme. "Why," said he, "see how wonderful are the decrees of Providence. Here it has been foreordained from all eternity that we should exchange pulpits to-day, and sure we are met talking the matter over." "What's that?" said Dr. Osgood, not quite sure on this foreordination business; "do you say it has been decreed that we should exchange pulpits to-day?" "I do," replied the other solemnly. "Well, then," returned Dr. Osgood, "I'll break one of God's decrees, for I shall preach in my own pulpit to-day," and, turning his horse about, he drove rapidly homeward, leaving the astonished Dr. Storrs to retire to Longmeadow, musing on the possible uncertainty of decrees.

BISHOP KEENER left on Wednesday, September 2, for Wyandotte, the place of meeting of the Western Conference. After holding the Western, Missouri, Southwest Missouri and St. Louis Conferences, he will return home about November 1.

TRUTH being founded upon a rock, you must boldly dig to see its foundations, without fear of destroying the edifice; but falsehood being laid on the sand, if you examine its foundations you cause it to fall.

Centenary College.

The following communication from President Andrews brings the good news that he has secured an able principal for the preparatory department, and professor of modern languages in Centenary College. We believe Centenary will be better manned than usual for the opening in October.

MR. EDITOR: I rejoice in being able to announce to the friends of our college that I have secured the services of Thomas J. Kernan, A. M., as principal of our preparatory department, and as adjunct professor of modern languages.

Mr. Kernan is an A. M. graduate of the Washington and Lee University, of Virginia, and was employed for one session as an assistant professor in the same institution. He is a young man of dignified bearing and excellence of character, is thoroughly proficient in the whole college course, and can render us especial service in his entire competency to teach the German language.

C. G. ANDREWS.

JACKSON, LA., August 31, 1874.

Periodicals.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The numbers of the Living Age, already issued in this month, have been, as usual, filled with the valuable productions of the ablest living contributors to periodical literature. Among the important articles of these numbers are the following: On the Personal History of Lord Macaulay, by F. Arnold, New Quarterly Review; The Place of Homer in History and in Egyptian Chronology, by Right Hon. William E. Gladstone, Cotemporary Review; The Poets at Play, Blackwood; The Convent of San Marco, Macmillan; "Josh Billings" in English, Spectator; "Latent Thought," by R. H. Hutton, Cotemporary Review; The Moon's Figure as Obtained in the Stereoscope, by Charles J. Wister; A Curious Product, Macmillan; Finger-Rings, British Quarterly; Louis Philippe, by the author of "Mirabeau," etc., Temple Bar; Bishop Wordsworth on Cremation, Spectator; A Professor Extraordinary, Fraser; Comets, Spectator; The Isle of Wight, Quarterly Review; Habit in Plants, etc., by H. Evershed, New Quarterly; The Petrarchian Commemoration, Athenæum; The Brunswick Onyx Vase, Academy; Derisive Punishments, Chambers' Journal, etc., with shorter articles, poetry and miscellany.

WE ARE indebted to the publisher for a copy of the Statement of the Sugar and Rice Crops made in Louisiana in 1873-4, by L. Bonchereau. It is a valuable pamphlet, and contains a vast amount of information.

OLD AND NEW for September has: Our Sketching Club, The Sea, Sylvester Gardiner, Have We an Inquisition? The Emperor Tiberius, Party Treason and Civic Duty, and other articles.

APPLETON'S JOURNAL of August 22 has: A Mid Air Itinerary, Jefferson as a Lover, Life Under Ground, Primitive Man, American Summer Resorts, and other entertaining articles.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE YOUNG OF ALL AGES for August is finely illustrated, and has a wonderful array of entertaining articles for young people.

PETERS' MUSICAL MONTHLY for September contains a voluminous selection of choice and new music and original songs.

Conference Register.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Denver	Denver city	Aug. 27	Pierce.
Illinois	Murphysboro	Sept. 2	Wightman.
Western	Wyandotte	Sept. 9	Keener.
Columbia	Salem	Sept. 10	Pierce.
W. Virginia	Philippi	Sept. 16	Doggett.
Kentucky	Mt. Sterling	Sept. 16	Wightman.
Missouri	St. Joseph	Sept. 16	Keener.
S. W. Missouri	Lexington	Sept. 30	Keener.
Louisville	Princeton	Sept. 30	Wightman.
Tennessee	Gallatin	Oct. 7	Marvin.
Pacific	Stockton	Oct. 7	Pierce.
Holston	Asheville	Oct. 14	Doggett.
St. Louis	Caledonia	Oct. 14	Keener.
Indian Miss'n	North Fork	Oct. 22	McTyeire.
Arkansas	Fort Smith	Oct. 28	Kavanaugh.
Los Angeles	Carpentoria	Oct. 28	Pierce.
N. Alabama	Huntsville	Nov. 4	Doggett.
North Texas	Denton	Nov. 4	McTyeire.
White River	Searcy	Nov. 11	Kavanaugh.
Virginia	Elizabeth City	Nov. 18	Marvin.
N. W. Texas	Weatherford	Nov. 18	McTyeire.
Memphis	Humboldt	Nov. 18	Paine.
N. Mississippi	Aberdeen	Nov. 25	Doggett.
Little Rock	Monticello	Nov. 25	Kavanaugh.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 2	Marvin.
West Texas	Gonzales	Dec. 2	McTyeire.
N. Georgia	Cartersville	Dec. 2	Wightamn.
Alabama	Opelika	Dec. 9	Doggett.
East Texas	Marshall	Dec. 9	McTyeire.
South Georgia	Savannah	Dec. 9	Pierce.
Florida	Live Oak	Dec. 16	Wightman.
S. Carolina	Greenville	Dec. 16	Marvin.
Mississippi	Hazlehurst	Dec. 16	Paine.
Texas	Houston	Dec. 16	Keener.
Louisiana	Alexandria	Jan. 6	Paine.
Baltimore	Washington city	Mar. 3	Marvin.

* German Mission Conference organized at same time and place. Bishop Keener has charge of the mission in Mexico.

PATIENCE.—"I learned a lesson once," said a lady, "in a barn-yard. It was a frosty morning. I was looking out of a window into the barn-yard, where a great many cows, oxen and horses were waiting to be watered. For awhile they all stood very quiet and still. Presently one of the cows, in attempting to turn round, happened to hit her next neighbor. In a moment this cow kicked and hit her neighbor. She passed on the kick and the hit to the next. And directly the whole herd were kicking and hitting each other with great fury. I said to myself: 'See what comes of kicking when you are hit.'"

DEATH OF THE REV. JOHN W. MILLS.—The Albany Central City says: "Many of our readers will be pained to hear of the death of the Rev. John W. Mills, who was well known throughout southwest Georgia and Florida, which occurred in Shelby county, Texas, July 6, 1874. Mr. Mills was one of nature's noblemen, and a true, devoted Christian, and efficient minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He died in great triumph. His last words were: 'Don't you hear the angels coming?'"

A PARIS telegram makes the important announcement that the Council of State have decided to authorize the promulgation of the new Confession of Faith adopted by the French Protestant Synod.

INDIA has 11,000 primary schools, with about 250,000 boys in them. No system of public schools has yet been provided for girls, and the need of them is attracting serious attention. As to the schools now existing, the great difficulty seems to be to supply a sufficient number of competent teachers, and for this purpose it is proposed to establish a considerable number of normal schools.

HE that falls into sin is a man; he that grieves at it may be a saint; he that boasteth of it is a devil.

Publisher's Department.

Acknowledgments of Letters and Funds

RECEIVED BY MAIL,

For the Week Ending Aug. 29, 1874.

A—Philip Allen, Edwin Allen two letters, J. F. Ainsworth, N. W. Ayer & Son, John R. Allen, S. D. Aiken, D. Appleton & Co., Applegate, Pennsford & Co.

B—L. Barnhart, Thomas A. Brown, L. Brewer & Co. $2, R. W. Bonds $2, Briggs & Barker, Robert Becket, W. S. Brown, J. H. Barbee & Co., T. T. Heath, J. W. Bryan, $24.62 gold, Boorum & Pease, Byrns & Beaman $1.25.

C—W. J. Curleton $9.36, John Church & Co., Cowan & Co., John F. Cook, J. W. Chambers, S. Collins & Co., J. E. Cole) 3 cents, Joseph T. Curry, H. H. Chandler & Co.

D—C. B. DuBose, J. S. Davis, T. W. Dyer, Theodore A. Dwyer, Angus Dowling $6.

E—W. F. Easterling, Emory and Henry College $50, Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Company, Eldridge Bros.

F—H. H. Floyd, J. L. Frazer, M. Faler & Co., E. N. Freshman two letters.

G—J. F. Gildersleeve, John A. Green, Gould & Lincoln, John Gibson.

H—William Headen, J. R. Hampton, J. Hamilton, W. F. Holloman, W. C. J. Hamilton.

J—C. W. Jackson $2, S. W. & W. E. Jones, W. H. Johns, William Jones, Milton H. Jones $5.

K—C. Keener, Mrs. M. L. Kurney $3.50.

L—A. C. Littlejohn, Lindenmeyer & Bro., Lee, Shepard & Billingham, A. Leffingwell, Limerick & Co. 75 cents, Allen P. Lusk $2.

M—R. Melton, P. H. Moss, Thomas Mollett $1.25, John P. Morton & Co., J. H. McClarty three letters $77.70, A. H. Moss $398.83, D. Merchant, C. K. Marshall, L. F. Marbury, H. H. Montgomery.

N—J. T. Norrell.

O—James Ormond.

P—A. G. Peabody, P. S. Petty, Mrs. L. J. Pilley, John Pipes, Presbyterian Committee of Publication, Porter & Hainbridge, J. A. Peterson $1.20.

R—E. F. Ross two letters, Reed & Lathrop, Robinson & Withers 50 cents, Warren Richards, A. H. Redford, W. C. Robinson, W. T. Rocke.

S—A. H. Sutherland $2.35, J. E. Surratt, E. E. Stone, William J. Smedley, H. S. Sandell.

T—C. W. Thomas $19.35, J. L. Terrell $2, H. Clay Tant, F. M. Taylor, G. F. Thompson, S. W. Turner $2.70.

W—Charles E. Warburton, James L. Wright 50 cents, John Williams, Woolworth, Ainsworth & Co., W. Robert Whately $5, V. J. Wroten $6, Wilson, Hinkie & Co., William Wood & Co., D. J. Wright.

Y—Alpha Young $7.20.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now making a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

A. C. LITTLEJOHN, ESQ., is our sole agent for the State of Texas. We commend him to the courtesies of our friends having advertisements for insertion or other business to transact with the ADVOCATE.

CROCKERY AND CHINA STORE REMOVING.—Among the many changes and improvements going on in Camp street is the removal of our enterprising neighbors, W. C. Shepard & Co., from their old stand to that splendid new building opening at 29 Camp street and 112 Common street. Correspondents and purchasers may rely upon the correctness of this firm, both in their dealings and statements. We have dealt with them for years in purchasing for ourselves and others, and we take pleasure in saying that confidence and respect have been increased by our business intercourse. It will be a treat to see the magnificent assortment of new goods which they are opening, which arranged in their store, which is most tastefully fitted up.

ONE of the oldest and best feminie schools in the country is the Readville Seminary. Many of the most worthy and accomplished ladies in the Southwest have been trained in this institution. The principal is a lady of much experience, combined with most excellent judgment, tact and prudence in the management of girls and young ladies, and has a liberal and thorough knowledge of the branches taught in the course of study which insures competency and fidelity in the teachers under her. See advertisement in another column.

DOUBLE TURBINE WATER-WHEEL. Those most worthy gentlemen and extensive manufacturers, Messrs. Poole & Hunt, of Baltimore, advertise in our columns James Leffel's Improved Double Turbine Water-Wheel, of which the vast number of nearly seven thousand are now in use. The same firm manufacture engines, boilers, mills and other machinery, and have a well-deserved reputation for faithful work. They are known to be skillful, faithful and prompt.

EXCELSIOR PLOWS.—The famous Louisville Agricultural Works advertise in our columns, in this issue, the above-named plow as their specialty for the season, and especially for this latitude. They manufacture cotton scrapers, sweeps, double shovels and various other implements, and invite those interested in the use or sale of agricultural implements to send for catalogues.

GOOD BOOKS are good company, and if our readers will turn to the advertisement of Albert Mason, of New York, headed "Religious and Standard Works," they will find a list of admirable books. It always gives us pleasure to refer to the advertisement of a publisher like Mr. Mason, whose publications have salt in them, exciting its savor in all who peruse them.

JOS. GILLOTT'S steel pens, which are advertised in our columns, commencing with this issue, are unrivaled. Their superiority is generally known and acknowledged. We need only say that the address of their agent will be found in the advertisement.

POLYTECHNIC COLLEGE.—A most valuable and useful institution is the Polytechnic College of the State of Pennsylvania, established twenty years ago in the city of Philadelphia, where the different branches of engineering are taught. See advertisement.

FALL and winter goods in great variety, and at prices to meet the views of customers, at Levy Bros.', No. 580 Magazine street. Be sure to call and judge for yourselves of the quality and prices of their stock.

A STEEL ENGRAVING and catalogue of three thousand engravings and chromos for twenty-five cents. See advertisement of G. E. Perine elsewhere.

MESSIAH, BY REV. WILLIAM M. WILLETT.—B. R. Russell, Esq., publisher, wants agents to canvass for the above named book. See advertisement.

SCHOOL FURNITURE.—There is probably no manufactory of school furniture in the known world that is making so great a variety and so fine a quality of furniture as the Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Company are now offering to the public—beautiful in appearance, unsurpassed in finish, durable in construction, and comfortable in use. They turn out between one and two thousand complete seats and desks per week.

Especial attention is also called to their church furniture department. They have called into use in this branch the most skillful mechanical talent and experienced and judicious men in its use, and are constantly getting out new designs for pews and pulpits, and we think we are safe in saying that their reversible settees for Sabbath schools are unequaled for comfort, attractiveness and durability. Their clothic reversible settee is just what is needed in every Sunday school room.

They manufacture a full line of office furniture, and they need only to be seen to be admired.

They have school supplies and apparatus, globes, maps, charts, mathematical and philosophical instruments, appliances for the study of the sciences—in short, everything needed in a school-room. See advertisement, or call on their polite agent, Mr. Benjamin Seas, at 166 Julia street.

ST. DENIS HOTEL, CORNER OF BROADWAY AND ELEVENTH STREET, NEW YORK. This house, which is now conducted upon the European plan, is admirably located, and is giving great satisfaction to its guests the present season. When we inform the reader that it is under the shadow of Grace church, and in the immediate vicinity of A. T. Stewart's up-town store, he will (if acquainted with New York) perceive at once that it is located in one of the most desirable portions, if not the most desirable, of the entire city. The proprietor, George W. Hunt, Esq., has combined first-class accommodations with reasonable prices, and you do not pay for what you do not get. Those who visit New York this fall, we think, will not regret having made a memorandum of the advertisement of the St. Denis Hotel, which they will find in another column.

DYSPEPSIA, in Its Relation to the Liver and Other Organs, is a pamphlet published by Justus J. Spreng, M. D., of New York, and advertised in another column. The pamphlet, though mailed to us, has not come to hand. When it does we will be prepared to devote more space to it.

D. LANGELL'S NEW ASTHMA REMEDY.—Glad Tidings to the Afflicted.—A new remedy discovered by a sufferer of that distressing disease, which never fails to entirely relieve the severest paroxysms so instantly that the sufferer could scarcely be persuaded that it were possible before testing it. I have in my office thousands of testimonials by which to prove the fact. But I wish to offer you much better evidence. Go immediately to your nearest druggist and get a sample package free of charge. See advertisement in another column.

D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"I WISH I WAS DEAD!" is an expression not unfrequently made use of by the dyspeptic and sufferer from liver disease, the depressed spirits unfitting the mind for anything, and almost driving him to despair. But be of good cheer. There is life and health for you yet. So those that have taken Simmons' Liver Regulator attest. It regulates the Liver, dispels despondency and restores health. se3 1t

OBSERVATIONS ON NASAL CATARRH.—An abstract from a forthcoming work on diseases of the throat and air passages, by A. N. WILLIAMSON, M. D., late Clinical Physician in the University Medical College, New York city. Mailed to any address for 10 cents. Address the author, 29 East Twentieth street, New York.

"DR. WILLIAMSON'S great success in the treatment of Catarrhal and throat and lung affections renders valuable whatever comes from his pen."—Journal of Medical Science. au20 3m

BUILDING PAPER is a most excellent substitute for plastering, at half the cost. The Ornamental serves the purpose of plastering and wall paper combined, and makes a neat and durable finish. You can get samples and circulars by inclosing letter stamp to the agent, MR. EDWARD THOMPSON, 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. au27 4t

$57.60—AGENTS' PROFITS PER WEEK.—Will prove it or forfeit $500. New article just patented. Samples sent free to all. Address W. H. CHICHESTER, 267 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

A SURE PREVENTIVE for Yellow Fever, Cholera and Smallpox. Price, $1, prepaid, with full directions. Address DR. B. BROWN, 697 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

BUY WERLEIN'S PIANOS, such as the Chickering, Bentham, Hale, Pleyel, etc., which are the best in the market. Sold at low prices and on easy terms or for cash. New Pianos at $350, $375, $400, $450, $500, $550 and $600, at $20 per month. Second hand Pianos at $10, $50, $75, $100, $125, $150, $175, $200, $225 and $250, some at $10 per month; fully warranted, with renewed actions. Estey's, Needham's and Woods' Organs at low rates. Have added Blackmar's large stock of Sheet Music. Band Instruments and Strings in great variety. Band Instruments, etc., repaired. PHILIP WERLEIN'S Mammoth Music House, Nos. 78, 80, 82 and 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. de25 1y

PIERSON & HEWS, fine Clothing, Shirts and Furnishing Goods, 13 and 15 Camp street, opposite City Hotel, New Orleans, Louisiana. We invite visitors from the interior to examine our stock and prices. We claim to sell first-class goods as low as can be afforded and live. We sell the celebrated Shoulder-Seam Shirts, warranted to fit, wear and give satisfaction. Liberal deduction made to Clergymen, and their trade solicited. mh5 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

EXCELSIOR PLOWS,

CAST AND HARDENED STEEL.

Adapted to Every Variety of Soils.

COTTON SCRAPERS AND SWEEPS,

DOUBLE SHOVELS, ETC.

ALL WARRANTED.

MANUFACTURED BY

Louisville Agricultural Works,

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Send for catalogue. se3 2m

Polytechnic College

OF THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—MARKET STREET, above Seventeenth St., Philadelphia. Twenty-first year begins September 15. Thorough professional training in Mining Engineering, Civil Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Analytical and Industrial Chemistry, Metallurgy and Architecture. The Diploma of the college is received as conclusive evidence of proficiency by the first engineers and companies engaged in works of improvement. Address

ALFRED L. KENNEDY, M. D., President of Faculty.

se3 1t

DYSPEPSIA,

IN ITS RELATION TO THE LIVER AND DIGESTIVE ORGANS, Justus J. Spreng, M. D., member of the New York Academy of Medicine, devotes his special attention to Liver and Stomach diseases. Pamphlet mailed for 20 cents. Address the author, No. 201 West Twenty-Second street, New York city.

"The author's conclusions are marked, and governed by sound judgment and long practical experience."—Medical Gazette. se3 1t sp

ST. DENIS HOTEL,

BROADWAY AND ELEVENTH ST., NEW YORK.

This well-known House, conducted on the European plan, and centrally located opposite Grace Church, and near A. T. Stewart's up-town store, has first-class accommodations at moderate prices for permanent and transient guests.

GEORGE W. HUNT, Manager,

Formerly Proprietor of Irving and Westmoreland Hotels. se3 6m

SEAL PRESSES.

WARREN RICHARDS,

MANUFACTURER OF

SEAL PRESSES,

SEAL ENGRAVER AND DIE-SINKER,

42 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, O.

Special rates to Grangers for orders direct. Send for circulars, samples or information. se3 2m

$10 A DAY.—Employment for all. Patent Novelties. GEO. L. FELTON & CO., au13 1y 119 Nassau street, New York.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

READVILLA SEMINARY,

INCORPORATED IN 1859,

OPENS ITS

NEXT ANNUAL SESSION

OCTOBER 1, 1874.

Experienced and Successful Teachers

ARE

ENGAGED IN EACH DEPARTMENT OF THE INSTITUTION,

and LECTURES adapted to the improvement of the pupils in Literature, Natural Science and other subjects are regularly given by able educators.

MUSIC, DRAWING, PAINTING,

AND THE

ANCIENT AND MODERN LANGUAGES,

Are a part of the Optional Course.

The number of pupils is LIMITED, and every advantage of agreeable HOME INFLUENCES secured to the residents of the Seminary. Address

MRS. M. W. READ, Principal,

se3 2m Baton Rouge, La.

NOTICE EXTRAORDINARY.

REMOVAL.

THE EXTENSIVE

CROCKERY AND CHINA STORE

—AND—

House-Furnishing Warehouse

—OF—

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.

Will be REMOVED, from September 1, to the spacious Stores,

29 Camp and 112 Common Street,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

With the increased facilities our new and elegant Warerooms afford, we shall display the largest variety of

DINNER SETS,	TOILET SETS,
TEA SETS,	TETE-A-TETE SETS,
CHAMBER SETS,	SETS OF GLASS, ETC.,

And GENERAL HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS ever offered in the Southwest, all of which are for sale at prices as LOW AS THE LOWEST.

Notice What a Little Money Will Buy!

An elegant White Granite DINNER SET, comprising 124 pieces, for..... $15 00
to wit:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Soup Tureen,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Salad Dish,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Covered Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Tea Cups and Saucers,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Dinner Coffee Cups and Saucers.	2 Pickle Shells.

A Porcelain DeTerre DINNER SET (equal to French China in appearance, and much more durable), same assortment as above.. $18 00
A French China (best quality) DINNER SET, same assortment, 124 pieces..... 30 00
Decorated Porcelain DeTerre and French China DINNER SETS, from..... $30 up.
White Granite CHAMBER SETS, 11 pieces $4 00
White Granite TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 4 00
French China TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 6 50
French China Decorated TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 7 50
Good Table GOBLETS, from 50 cents per set up.

N. B.—When we ship these goods an additional charge is made for the package (box or barrel) and drayage.

These prices contemplate first-class goods, and are all warranted regular and perfect.

AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED

BLANCHARD CHURNS,

AND THE LARGEST DEALERS IN

HOUSEKEEPING NOVELTIES

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,

No. 29 Camp street and 112 Common street,

de11 1y New Orleans.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS.

SOLD BY ALL DEALERS.

MANUFACTURERS' WAREHOUSE,

No. 91 John Street, New York.

JOSEPH GILLOTT & SON.

HENRY IDE, Sole Agent. se3 1y

NEW CHURCH MUSIC-BOOK

FOR 1874-1875.

THE LEADER!

BY H. R. PALMER, ASSISTED BY L. O. EMERSON.

Just issued and ready for sale. Its success already assured. Its price is a return to ante-war church-book rates, and its contents new, fresh, and cannot fail of winning a hearty indorsement from choir masters, the musical profession and the musical public. Specimen pages free on application.

PRICE, $1.38, OR $12 PER DOZEN.

RIVER OF LIFE.

FOR SABBATH SCHOOLS.

A sale of over 30,000 in less than one year attests the merit of this book. The publishers are confident that no better sabbath School book has been published in years, and none given such entire satisfaction.

Price, 35 Cts., Boards; $3.60 Per Dozen; $30 Per 100.

THOMAS'

Sacred Quartets and Anthems

This day published. Has been many years in preparation, and will be welcomed by all the lovers of Mr. Thomas' Sacred Music—and who is not one? As a quartet-book for choirs it will be found indispensable.

Price, in Boards, $2.50; Cloth, $3.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

je13 1y

RELIGIOUS

AND STANDARD WORKS,

Published by Alfieri Mason, New York.

JOSEPHUS' WORKS.—A new and elegant Library Edition. Large, clear type, Tinted paper. 4 vols., cloth. $9.
A Popular Edition in the same, 2 vols., cloth, $4.50; 2 vols., sheep, $5.

WORDS AND MIND OF JESUS, AND FAITHFUL PROMISER.—In 1 vol., 3mo, red edges. Fifty cents.

Mitchel's Astronomical Works.

Planetary and Stellar Worlds..... $1 75
Astronomy of the Bible..... 1 75
Popular Astronomy..... 1 75

THE DANCE OF MODERN SOCIETY.—By Prof. W. C. Wilkinson. 1 vol. 16mo. Cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents. se3 1y

FOR 25 CTS: I mail, post-paid, a fine Steel Engraving worth double the amount, and a complete New Catalogue, 81 pages, of 3,000 Engravings, Chromos, etc. Agents wanted. G. E. PERINE, Publisher, 66 Reade street, New York. se3 3m

WANTED.—AGENTS to canvass for our new book, "MESSIAH," by Rev. William M. Willett. Suited to all classes and denominations. Full of interest, and issued in a style attractive and substantial. Worthy the special notice of first-class canvassers. B. R. RUSSELL, Publisher, Boston, Mass. se3 1t

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

JAMES LEFFEL'S

IMPROVED DOUBLE

TURBINE WATER-WHEEL.

POOLE & HUNT, Baltimore,

Manufacturers for the South and Southwest.

Nearly Seven Thousand Now in Use,

working under heads varying from 2 to 240 feet. Twenty four sizes, from 5½ to 96 inches.

The most powerful Wheel in the market, and most economical in use of Water. Large Illustrated Pamphlet sent post free.

Manufacturers also of Portable and Stationary Steam Engines and Boilers, Babcock & Wilcox's Patent Tubulous Boiler, Ebaugh's Crusher for Minerals Saw and Grist Mills, Flouring Mill Machinery, Machinery for White Lead Works and Oil Mills, Shafting Pulleys and Hangers.

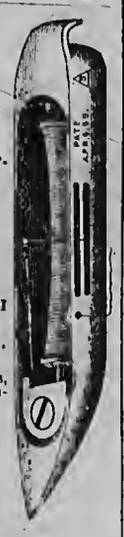
Send for Circulars. se3 6m

NEW ASTHMA REMEDY.—HAVING struggled twenty years between life and death with ASTHMA or PHTHISIC, I experimented myself by compounding roots and herbs, and inhaling the medicine thus obtained. I fortunately discovered a most wonderful remedy and sure cure for Asthma and its kindred diseases. Warranted to relieve the severest paroxysm instantly, so the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Druggists are supplied with sample packages for free distribution. Call and get one, or address D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio. Sold by druggists. Price for full-size package, $1.25. se3 4t

BILLINGS' PATENT

Sewing Machine

SHUTTLES.



Twenty Varieties Now Made.

Forged solid from bar steel and cold-pressed.

TRADE B MARK.

Also Wrought Iron and Steel

DROP FORGINGS

of all descriptions, for Guns, Pistols, Sewing Machines, Agricultural Implements, etc.

MANUFACTURED BY

Billings & Spencer Co.,

LAWRENCE STREET,

ap9 6m Hartford, Conn.

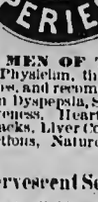
TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

THE WISE MEN OF THE LAND—the Divine, the Physician, the Judge—use daily in their own homes, and recommend to all invalids and sufferers from Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Costiveness, Heartburn, Indigestion, Piles, Bilious Attacks, Liver Complaints, Gout and Rheumatic Affections, Nature's own great and good remedy,

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient,

as the best and most reliable medicine ever offered to the people for the above class of diseases. The nursing babe, its brothers and sisters, its parents and grand-parents, will all find this pleasant remedy well adapted for their different complaints. For sale by all druggists. au27 2t

Silk Class BANNERS, 85 EACH.



T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, NEW YORK.

Send for circular. au27 3m

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,

BATON ROUGE, LA.

The next session of this school will begin on Monday, OCTOBER 2, 1874. It is important to both parties that applications be made as early as possible, and the attendance of the pupil prompt. A few days' delay at the beginning increases the labor of the school and injures the pupil. For circulars, giving necessary information, apply to

W. H. N. MAGRUDER,

au6 3m Baton Rouge, La.

F. L. MATTHEWS,

UNDERTAKER,

(CARRIAGES FOR HIRE AT ALL HOURS.)

338 Carondelet Street,

Bet. Thalia and Erato Streets, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood Coffins always on hand. Disinterring, Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses and Carriages for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. au20 1y

WILLIAM COULTER & SON,

MANUFACTURERS OF

ORNAMENTAL, GROUND AND CUT

WINDOW GLASS,

104 East Second St., Cincinnati, O.

Ornamental Window Glass, of every description, for Churches, Private and Public Buildings, Steamboats, Railroad Cars, etc. jy23 3m

JAMES S. PATTERSON,

WOOD ENGRAVER,

28.....Beekman Street.....28

au13 1y NEW YORK CITY.

How I Made $70

the first week, and am now averaging $25 in a safe business. Any man or woman can do the same. The secret free. Write at once to COWAN & CO., au27 1y Eighth St., New York.

AGENTS! SEND FOR TERMS!—A Book for the Times. Everybody wants it! The Art of Money-Making, or How to Grow Rich! Don't miss it! INTERNATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., St. Louis or Cincinnati. au27 1y

COSTARS EXTERMINATORS

AND INSECT-POWDER

For Rats, Mice, Roaches, Ants, Red-bugs, Moths, etc. J. F. HENRY, CURRAN & CO., Jel1 3m&p New York, Sole Agents.

CHARLES H. TURNO,

STAINED GLASS FOR CHURCHES.

Memorial Windows a specialty. No. 333 East Twenty-Third street, New York. au27 3m

BUILDERS! Send for Catalogue of New Books on CARPENTRY AND BUILDING. A. J. BICKNELL & CO., 27 Warren street, New York. au13 3m

MONEY made rapidly with Stencil and Key-Check Outfits. Catalogues, samples and full particulars FREE. S. M. SPENCER, 117 Hanover street, Boston. au27 1y

LEGS AND ARMS.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Pamphlet free. CHARLES M. EVANS, manufacturer, (au6 1y)
76 Fourth street.....LOUISVILLE, KY.
152 West Fourth street.....CINCINNATI, O.

MEDICAL.

NEARLY ALL DISEASES ORIGINATE from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Depression of Spirits, or the Blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and, being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

OR MEDICINE

Is harmless,
Is no drastic, violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
Is a faithless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

se25 1y

DR. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST ADVICE THAT CAN BE given to persons suffering from

DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS!

CONSTIPATION, COLIC, SICK HEADACHE,

Fever and Ague, Nervous Debility,

or of any disorder of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, is to tone, cleanse and regulate them by the use of

Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills.

They act very mildly, yet thoroughly restore the functional action of the digestive Organs and the Intestines, and renovate the whole system, imparting a good appetite and healthy assimilation of food. They produce neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility, and may be taken at any time, without change of diet or occupation.

Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye

possesses qualities that no other dye does. Its effect is instantaneous, and is so natural that it cannot be detected by the closest observer. Being harmless and easily applied, it is in general use among the fashionable Hair-Dressers in every large city in the United States. Price, $1 a box Sold everywhere.

Laboratory—Nos. 43 and 50 Cortlandt street, New York. oc2 1y&c

METALLIC ELECTRIC SHIELDS.

Fully Indorsed by the Entire Medical Profession.

HAVE CURED THOUSANDS OF

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA,

AND ALL NERVOUS DISEASES.

Simply applied and worn on the parts affected. For Lame Back, Local Pain, Local Palsy, Weakness, Poor Circulation, Varicose Veins and Affections of the Eyes it is a scientific cure. Sold by all Druggists, or General Agent,

GEORGE SWEETSER,
129 Wall St., New York.

Sent by Mail or Express, C. O. D. Price, $5 per pair. au23 3m

TO THE SUFFERERS

WITH RHEUMATISM.

In view of the numberless sufferers afflicted with this painful malady, I feel induced to offer to the public my "ANTI-RHEUMATIC MIXTURE," which medicine proves to be the only successful remedy in this line, for it always gives instant relief, and in most cases cures permanently.

During the last fifteen years I have cured thousands of people, in this State and city, of this dreadful disease, with this medicine; and, what astonishes most, the patient recovered by the use of a single bottle of it. This medicine cures nothing but Rheumatism, and should the patient not recover by using the first bottle of it, that patient is not afflicted with Rheumatism at all. This being the first time of making my discovery known to the public after fifteen years of most successful results, I hope the sufferers will take advantage at this rare remedy, and by doing so add their names to the thousands already cured by it.

For sale by W. J. JURGIELEWICZ, Apothecary and Druggist, corner Magazine and Thalia streets, New Orleans, La. np30 6m

MISCELLANEOUS.

VALLEY

GEM PIANO.

This Piano is thoroughly and carefully made by experienced manufacturers, and is a good, reliable instrument in every particular. Its durability is one of its important points of superiority, and, besides its other fine qualities, the low price will especially commend it to public favor.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue, containing choice music, to

D. H. BALDWIN & CO.,

158 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

jy23 3m

FURMAN'S

ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL,

COR. MAGAZINE AND SECOND STREETS

NEW ORLEANS.

The Fall Session of this school will open on Tuesday, the first of September, 1874. Diligence and faithfulness on the part of the instructor are claimed; thoroughness instead of superficial display is aimed at. Mild and paternal discipline enforced. Boys prepared for college. French is taught. Pupils in any stage of progress received. Terms of tuition moderate.

Grateful for support in the past, the principal respectfully and confidently bespeaks a renewal and increase of patronage on the part of his friends and the community.

EVENING SCHOOL, from 7 to 9 P. M., for young men whose days are devoted to business.

J. L. FURMAN Principal.

Refers to Rev. Dr. Linus Parker, Rev. J. C. Carpenter, Rev. John Mathews, Mr. Theo. Anze, Dr. S. M. Angell and Rev. Dr. Ed. D. Taylor. au27 4t

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

The Fall Session of this institution will commence on Wednesday, SEPTEMBER 30, with an efficient corps of teachers. Board can be obtained in the institution.

This being a Conference institution, and educating the daughters of the Conference free of cost, we earnestly solicit their hearty co-operation and efforts to secure patronage for it.

au27 3m THOMAS ARMSTRONG.

$250 A MONTH TO AGENTS.—35 new articles. One lady made $21.40, August 10, in taking subscriptions to the FAMILY JOURNAL, the best Literary and Fashion paper in America. Only $1 a year, with two $5 Chromos. Samples

The Child's Corner.

FORBID THEM NOT.

There is no sweeter story told,
In all the blessed book,
Than how the Lord within his arms
The little children took.

We love him for the tender touch
That made the leper whole,
And for the wondrous words that healed
The tired, sin-sick soul;

But closer to his loving self
Our human hearts are brought
When for the little children's sake
Love's sweetest spell is wrought.

For their young eyes his sorrowing face
A smile of gladness wore—
A smile that for his little ones
It weareth evermore.

The voice that silenced priest and scribe,
For them grew low and sweet;
And still for them his gentle lips
The loving words repeat:

"Forbid them not!" O blessed Christ!
We bring them unto thee,
And pray that on their heads may rest
Thy benedicite!

E. D., in Christian at Work.

Ruth Young.

"Mother," said Nelly Robinson, "I do so love Ruth Young. I wish I was like her."

"Why so?" asked her mother.

"Because she is so sweet-tempered; you never hear her say an unkind or impatient word, and when the other girls make fun of her, and treat her unkindly, she answers so gently that I wonder they are not ashamed of themselves."

"I am surprised to hear this, Nelly, for poor Ruth has not been well trained. Her mother died when she was yet an infant, and her father, who was a soldier, went away and has not since been heard of; while they say she is unkindly treated by Mr. Sims and his wife; indeed I wonder they spare her to go to school."

"A lady pays for her schooling, mother; Ruth told me all about it, and how she came to be good-tempered, though she did not call herself that."

"Tell me about it, Nelly."

"Oh, yes, mother. Ruth was one day sitting in the school-room during the play-hour, and, seeing her crying, I went in and asked her what was the matter. But instead of telling me, she wiped away her tears, and began talking of the work she was doing. However, I was not going to be put off like that, so I said: 'Ruth, I do wonder that you can take things so quietly. I know as well as possible that those great girls have been teasing you again, and I am surprised that you should put up with it, that I am.'

"'Hush!' said Ruth, 'do not speak like that; if you only knew how passionate and revengeful I once was, and how little peace it brought me, you would not talk like that.'

"'You passionate and revengeful!' I exclaimed; 'I can scarcely believe it.'

"'It is too true,' she said, while the tears rolled down her poor face. 'From a child I can remember none but unkind treatment from those I lived with. They neither loved nor cared for me; and, my mother being dead, it was my greatest wish to die also. I believe I was a wicked child, for no one taught me to be good, so when I was called naughty names I gave bad words in return; and when I was struck, which was pretty often, I used to strike again; while I treasured up wicked and revengeful feelings in my heart, and acted upon them as I had opportunity. One day when Mrs. Sims had well beaten me for some fault, I ran away from her into the road, and, taking up a stone, threw it against her window, and broke a pane of glass; then, frightened at what I had done, I tried to escape from her grasp, when a gentle hand was laid on my shoulder, and a voice exclaimed: 'Ruth Young, I am shocked and grieved to see you thus.' It was Miss Smith, our clergyman's daughter, who spoke to me.'

"'She has beaten me,' I said sullenly, pointing to the cottage, 'and I will be revenged.' 'Hush! not another word,' said Miss Smith; then bidding me wait for her, in a tone I dared not disobey, she went into the cottage, and remained for some minutes talking to Mrs. Sims. When she came out she said: 'I am going over the common; you may come with me if you like.' I gladly went, thinking no more of my fault, but, running by her side, I picked the wild flowers, and offered them to her. At length she sat down, and desired me to do the same; and then she said: 'Ruth, I have been thinking how I can do you good; can you read?' 'No,' I answered. 'Can you tell who made you?' I shook my head; for, although I did know this, I did not choose to answer. Again she asked: 'Do you know anything of Jesus?' and again I shook my head. 'Should you like to learn to read, Ruth, and to know about God and Jesus Christ?' 'Who will teach me?' I muttered. 'I will,' she answered; 'you shall come to me every day, for a little while, and then you shall go to school.' 'And what will you teach me?' I asked. 'I will tell you about Jesus, and your first lesson shall be now.' Miss Smith then told of the Savior—his lowly birth and wonderful wisdom; his patient, meek bearing; his love for sinners; and how he went about doing good. And then she added that 'he was a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief; he was despised, and we esteemed him not; he was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth;' and lastly that 'he was brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth.' —Isaiah liii. 'Why was this?' I asked impatiently; 'why was he treated thus?' 'For our sakes,' replied Miss Smith; 'for your sake as well as mine. He lived to set us an example of meekness and perfect holiness. He died that we might have life.' Such was the substance of my first lesson, and it sank so deeply into my heart that when I went home I walked straight to Mrs. Sims and begged her to forgive me having broken her window. 'Why did you do it?' she asked. 'I was angry,' I said, 'and wished to be revenged; but I feel very sorry now, and I hope I shall not be so bad any more.' Mrs. Sims looked surprised, but sent me to bed, where I remained long awake, thinking upon all Miss Smith had told me. From that day I went to her regularly until I came here, which is now nearly two years ago.'

"'And are you happier at home?' I asked.

"'I cannot help being so,' she meekly replied, 'for I know that God loves and cares for me. And somehow Mrs. Sims has been much kinder since, and her children are growing up to love me; and who knows, perhaps I may be the means of teaching them to love the Savior?'

"'And now, mother,' asked Nelly, 'can you wonder that I should wish to be like Ruth Young?'"

Little Morris' Prayer.

"Ma, what makes the tears in your eyes to-night?" said little Morris Stanley to his mother as she was preparing him for bed. "Is it because little sister is so sick?"

"Yes, my son, I am very sorrowful about her."

"You don't think she's going to die, do you, ma?" he inquired anxiously. He was a little fellow, scarcely three years old, and not only very nervous, but much attached to his little sister; and his mother feared to tell him all her thoughts just as he was going to bed, lest he should be unable to sleep; so she answered evasively:

"The doctor says if she is to get well there must be a change for the better before long."

"God can make her better, can't he, ma?"

"Yes, my dear, if it is for the best." He sat down quietly in his bath for a moment, and looked into the water in deep thought. Then, as his mother lifted him up, he asked: "When I get out of my bath, may I kneel down and ask God to make sister well?"

"Yes, my son, I shall be very glad for you to do so, if you wish it." But the little nightgown was hardly fastened when a cry from baby called the mother from Morris, whom she hastily put in his crib, unmindful of her promise to him. Little sister was soon quiet again, and Morris called softly to his mother to remind her of the promise.

"Very well, my dear, you can pray now if you wish."

"And may I get out of my crib and kneel down?"

"Yes, if you will wait a moment till I can come and help you."

"Oh, don't trouble yourself, ma, to come; I think I can get out alone—I'll try;" and, suiting the action to the word, he commenced letting himself down, asking, at the same time, if he might say it separate from his other little prayers—"say it all by itself, and as you do when you pray with me."

His mother bade him say it as he wished, and then, as he knelt by his crib, he prayed:

"O Father, we come to thee to make little sister well; dear sister is so bad she can't sit up to play with me; please make her well, so she can sit up and play with me, for Christ's sake. Amen."

Then he climbed into his crib again; and as his mother went to cover him up he exclaimed, joyously: "There, ma, I feel glad now, for I think she'll get well;" and, nestling down on his pillow, he was soon asleep.

Through the long hours of the night the parents watched anxiously over the little sufferer, with their hearts echoing little Morris' prayer, when just before dawn there appeared a decided improvement in the symptoms of the disease. Not long afterward the mother heard a rustling in the little boy's crib, and, looking toward it, saw Morris sitting up, looking like the picture of little Samuel; and he whispered: "Is sister better yet?"

Mrs. Stanley folded her arms about him, and answered with a kiss, as expressive as her words; and then the little fellow exclaimed, with quiet exultation: "I knew God would make her well when I asked him last night." Who shall say that the little fellow's faith was not true faith, or that it is not the want of such trust as this which hinders the answer to the prayers of older persons?—Mother's Friend.

STRONG IN HIM.—A little boy was very sick. He was only eleven years old, but for several years he had suffered great pain. He was a little Christian; his heart was full of love to God, and he was willing to bear all the pain which his Father in heaven called him to suffer.

The night before he died, when he was too sick to move, a kind minister went to see him. The minister spoke loving words to the poor child, and told him how sorry he felt.

The boy looked up with his calm blue eyes, and softly whispered: "I am strong in him."

These words of a poor sick child, living in a poor home, with no friends there but his kind mother, seemed to lift a burden from the minister's heart, and to make him happier than he had ever been before. May you and I, and all who read this, be strong in him.

THE GARDENER'S LESSON.—Two gardeners had their crops of peas killed by the frost. One of them was very impatient under the loss, and fretted about it very much. The other went patiently to work at once to plant a new crop. After awhile the impatient, fretting man went to his neighbor. To his surprise he found another crop of peas growing finely. He asked how this could be.

"These are what I sowed while you were fretting," said his neighbor.

"But don't you ever fret?" he asked.

"Yes, I do, but I put it off till I have repaired the mischief that has been done."

"Why, then you have no need to fret at all."

"True," said his friend, "and that's the reason I put it off."

COMFORTABLE QUARTERS—Silver twenty-five-cent pieces.

Farm, Garden and Household.

Taking It Coolly.

Mrs. Kate Hunnibee says: One of the most disagreeable companions on a hot summer's day is a hot stove, and yet how many women who read this article feel compelled to spend many hours out of every twenty-four with this black, fiery kitchen partner. Is there no escape? Suppose the kitchen door opens on an ample porch, with a roof over it, and a honeysuckle in front of it, or a grape-vine, or a hop-vine, or morning-glories, or flowering beans clambering up a trellis and shutting out the ardent rays of the sun. What a nice place that would be for carrying on the various activities of a summer's morning. One could wash there, spread the ironing-table beneath the growing grapes, set the dinner-table there, shell peas, stone cherries, and do a thousand other things in the open air while keeping an eye on all that goes on in the kitchen. If there is but a step from the house to the ground, two or three trees just at the door are better even than a porch. We lived in such a kitchen once, and spent all the pleasant summer days in the open air. The cradle had a little awning over it, there was no clatter of shoes on the grassy sod beneath, no slops on the floor, no furnace heats, nothing but rural peace and quiet shade.

It does not occur to a great many women that there is any better or easier way of doing than the one to which they have become accustomed. The tendency of housework is to settle into a fixed routine and wear deep ruts, to go out of which is no easy matter. But it is not a bad plan to start inquiries in every department of domestic industry, and try experiments until one finds out the easiest way of accomplishing the matter in hand. In the winter, of course, the nearer the ironing and baking-table is to the stove the fewer steps will be required; but this is not the first consideration in summer, and if one will have a high chair to sit in while ironing or baking on a low table, the distance from the stove will not amount to much. Beside, children of five and six years old can be taught to take steps.

There is another matter not very well understood by American cooks. We use entirely too much fuel, we cook by too hot a fire, we eat too much hot food, we boil our soups and our vegetables furiously, when all we want is simply to raise the temperature of the liquid in question to 212°, which can be done with a moderate fire and no inconsiderable saving of stove-lining, coal and physical discomfort. It is calculated that one-third of the power generated in any machine is consumed in overcoming the friction, and one great problem with machinists is to reduce the friction to its minimum. Let us apply this problem to housekeeping, and begin by studying all the ways in which we can keep cool.—New York Tribune.

HOW TO KEEP CANARY BIRDS.—A great many persons have difficulty in keeping their canary birds in good health. One who is experienced in their care says: Place the cage so that no draft of air can strike the bird; give nothing to healthy ones but canary and rape seed, mixed with water, cuttlefish bone and gravel on the floor of the cage; also occasionally a little water for bathing; the room should not be overheated; when moiting (shedding feathers,) avoid drafts of air; give plenty of rape seed, slightly moistened; a little hard-boiled egg and cracker grated fine is excellent. By observing these simple directions birds may be kept in fine condition for years. Bad seed kill most of the birds that die; to which might have been added that canaries are not only very fond of but are benefited by having often a leaf of cabbage, pieces of apple or other green food, which serves to keep down the tendency to fever and prevent constipation. Our birds usually bathe each day as regularly as any one washes the face, and with apparent benefit too. When birds are sick, and inclined not to eat well, remove all the food for a day, and then only give soaked bread, from which most of the moisture has been squeezed.

EGG-PRODUCING FOWLS.—In January, 1873, I owned forty light Brahma hens and pullets, mostly pullets of 1872, which began to lay in the latter part of December the same year, and in the latter part of January I took as many as thirty-six eggs from my forty hens in one day. In February I commenced selling for hatching, and sold one hundred dozen eggs during spring and summer, and supplied my family with all the eggs they wanted. I commenced hatching in March, and hatched two hundred and fifty chickens, some of which I sold in June, weighing then six pounds each, and receiving for them thirty cents per pound, live weight. Some others of my chicks, hatched in May, weighed in November ten pounds each, and the smallest of two broods, hatched at that time, weighed eight pounds.

Mr. Kirby, secretary of the Pigeon Club of New York, got one trio of these fowls that weighed, early in November, twenty-five pounds; these were hatched in March, April and May. And these are not exceptions, as most of my chicks will run about the same weight at the same age.—James Best, in Pet Stock Bulletin.

RAMIE MACHINE.—We have had several inquiries lately, says Our Home Journal, for a ramie machine. The following extract from Charles Nordhoff's late work on California, etc., may be a clew to the information wanted:

"On Twitchell Island (Sacramento river) I found an experiment making in ramie and jute, Mr. Finch, formerly of Hayward's, having already planted twenty-six acres of ramie, and intended to put seven acres into jute, for which he had the plants all ready, raised in a canvas-covered inclosure. He raised ramie successfully last year, and sold, he told me, from one-tenth of an acre, one hundred and sixty-three pounds prepared ramie, for fifteen cents per pound. He used, to dress it, a machine made in California, which several persons have assured me works well and cheaply, a fact which ramie-growers in Louisiana may like to know, for the chief obstacle to ramie culture in this country has been, so far, the lack of a cheap and rapidly-working machine for its preparation."

HOW TO BANISH FLEAS.—The Maryland Farmer gives the following useful receipt for exterminating fleas: The oil of pennyroyal will certainly drive these pests off; but a cheaper method, where the herb flourishes, is to throw your cats and dogs into a decoction of it once a week. Mow the herb and scatter it in the beds of the pigs once a month. Where the herb cannot be got, the oil may be procured. In this case, saturate strings with it and tie them round the necks of dogs and cats; pour a little on the back and about the ears of hogs, which you can do while they are feeding, without touching them. By repeating these applications every twelve or fifteen days the fleas will flee from your quadrupeds, to their relief and improvement, and to your relief and comfort in the house. Strings saturated with the oil of pennyroyal, and tied around the neck and tail of horses, will drive off lice. The strings should be saturated once a day.

A WRINKLE ABOUT THE AGE OF HORSES.—A short time ago we met a gentleman from Illinois who gave a piece of information in regard to ascertaining the age of horses after they have passed the ninth year, which was new to us, and will be, we are sure, to most of our readers. It is this: After the horse is nine years old a wrinkle comes on the upper corner of the lower lid, and every year thereafter he has one well-defined wrinkle for every year over nine. If, for instance, a horse has three wrinkles, he is twelve; if he has four, he is thirteen. Add the number of wrinkles to nine and you will get it. So says the gentleman, and he is sure it will not fail. As a good many people have horses over nine, it is easily tried. If true, the horse dentist must give up his trade.—Field and Fireside.

LET THERE BE LIGHT.—A very mistaken spirit of economy often condemns a family to sit in a room almost dark, excepting that, by skillful contrivance, a bright spot can be thrown upon the work or the book. Such a method is contrary to the plan by which the great lights of the world are arranged, and is found by experience to be very injurious. Every motion of the eye—and what in nature is so active?—compels a sudden change of its delicate apparatus to suit the different lights, and causes more weariness than much longer use in a proper way. Let there be a source of light raised above the level of the eye, and let the whole room be so lighted by it that there shall be no brilliant, dazzling spots and no deep shadows. The alarming prevalence of disorders of the eye should stimulate us to study its needs and to obey its laws.

Scientific.

AN English exchange says that carbolic acid is a deadly poison to snakes, and experiments have proved that a few drops are sufficient to cause almost instant death to the dreaded cobra, and suggests that it might be invaluable in India and other tropical countries.

THE inhabitants of Uvea, an island in the Loyalty group, have a notion that when a person gets a headache his skull is cracked, or that the bone is pressing down on the brain. Consequently they proceed to cure the trouble by cutting open the scalp, and scraping a hole in the cranium with a bit of glass, and then stopping the aperture with a piece of cocoanut shell rubbed smooth. Sometimes the surgeon scrapes too far and injures the pia mater, when the patient is killed; but ordinarily the boring proceeds to the dura mater, leaving a hole in the skull. It seems that few adults are without perforated heads, and that the cocoanut patch is common.

IN OUR issue of April 24 of last year we gave a summary of Prof. Duchartre's views in regard to the origin of the European globe artichoke. This is also one of the plants the parent of which is said no longer to exist in a wild state; and Duchartre believed he had proved that it was an "evolution" from another species which had been found wild—Cynara cardunculus. A correspondent of a London magazine points out that in Burton and Drake's "Unexplored Syria," published in 1872, are descriptions of many kinds of thistle-like plants, wild in the interior of the country, among which are possibly the artichoke. One of these—called in the vernacular "Akkub"—is especially described as a kind of wild artichoke. It is clear we do not know much of what may be found in these ancient lands.

SOME TIME SINCE, as noted in these columns, Keruer observed that in the European Alps some flowers grew, thawed themselves a space, and actually flowered and produced seeds inside of blocks of ice. This is understood to be on the edges of the snow-lines of these elevated regions. It would be singular if it should prove that a flora can exist under almost perpetual ice. Dr. Farlow, in a recent sketch of "Botany About Geneva," contributed to the American Naturalist, remarks that the great glacier has receded some considerable distance during the last twenty years; and as it recedes numerous Alpine and sub-Alpine plants are found on the rocks but recently exposed to view. Still these may result from seeds which are brought down from the highlands, and, forming part of the moraine deposit, may germinate on these rocks at or near the time of exposure to the atmosphere.

IT IS great, it is manly, to disdain disguise; it shows our spirit, or it proves our strength.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI,

ON THE NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD, fifty-seven miles south of Jackson, Mississippi, and one hundred and twenty-eight miles north of New Orleans, will

REOPEN ON THE THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.

The charges are low, and yet the advantages are unsurpassed. All extravagance in dress positively prohibited. If you send your daughter here we guarantee that you will be pleased; otherwise you may withdraw her at any time, and the money will be returned.

School books, medicines and medical attention furnished free of charge. Were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the location we could not afford the last two items.

Send for a catalogue.

jy16 3m H. F. JOHNSON, President.

GREENSBORO FEMALE COLLEGE, ALABAMA.

REV. THOMAS WARD WHITE, President, assisted by an experienced and thoroughly qualified Faculty, capable of imparting instruction in all the departments of a first-class institution.

Course of Instruction.

THE SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

is divided into four classes—Elementary, Primary, Intermediate and Academic—in which all the branches of a thorough English education are taught.

COLLEGIATE DEPARTMENT.

JUNIOR CLASS.

English Composition, Algebra, Ancient Geography and History, Latin (Cæsar and Virgil,) French, Greek and German.

MIDDLE CLASS.

Philosophy, Chemistry, Geometry, Rhetoric, Botany, Astronomy, Watts on the Mind, Latin (Sallust and Cicero,) French, Greek and German.

SENIOR CLASS.

English Literature, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Evidences of Christianity, Butler's Analogy, Trigonometry, Davies' University Arithmetic, Latin (Horace and Tacitus,) French, Greek and German.

Daily attention is given to Penmanship, and Compositions are required weekly from every member of the institution. mh13 1t

THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,

GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session of this institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN OCTOBER, with a full corps of instructors. The entire expense per annum, for board, tuition, etc., is from $150 to $242.

For particulars or catalogue apply to

DR. A. S. ANDREWS or
PROF. O. F. CASEY,
Jy2 12m Greensboro, Alabama.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.

Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,

NO. 49 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the

CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER

In the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. no13 1y

STOVES.....STOVES.....STOVES.

The Cheapest and the "Best."

The "BEST" and the "COTTAGE" COOKING STOVES, to which I call particular attention, are unsurpassed by any in this market for economy, durability and most perfect BAKING. They carry a uniform heat in the oven, and can be adapted to burning COAL, COKE or WOOD, without any additional cost. Every one sold under a full guarantee to do as they are represented or the money will be refunded.

Also a variety of other COOKING STOVES of every grade and price, from $15 upward.

HEATING STOVES.

A very large and complete assortment, suitable for Offices, Parlors, Churches, School-Rooms, etc., all of which are offered at very low prices to suit the times. Also dealer in

TINWARE OF EVERY KIND

and description, to suit the country and city trade, which is offered at UNPRECEDENTEDLY LOW PRICES FOR CASH. Also Sole Agent for the manufacture and sale of the Steam Washer, or Woman's Friend.

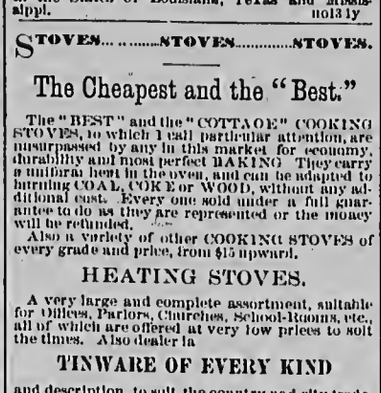
Will cleanse your clothes WITHOUT RUBBING. Every one sold is FULLY WARRANTED. It saves labor, wear and tear, and the annoyance of wash-day. It is a boy's labor and clothes-saving invention. Three hundred thousand have been sold already through the States since 1871.

State and County Rights for sale.

Call and see at NO. 52 GRAVIER STREET, near Tchoupitoulas.

Ja29 ty G. W. W. GOODWYN.

MEDICAL.



KEARNEY'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

is the only pure and unadulterated preparation prepared by a prominent, reliable and scientific physician of thirty years' practice. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its superiority in speedy and permanent cures of Gravel, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and all affections of the Kidneys in both sexes. The greatest Tonic and Diuretic of the age. Be sure and get

KEARNEY'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

Pleasant and agreeable in taste, and efficacious in its curative qualities.

Depot—104 Duane Street, New York.

Price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists everywhere. au12 ty6p

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VA.

R. W. JONES, M. A., University of Virginia, President, with a full and skillful Faculty for instruction in all branches taught in the best female colleges. The next session begins SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

Charge for board and tuition, for entire session of forty weeks, half in advance, $220. Other charges moderate.

The surrounding mountain scenery is grand, the buildings commodious and elegant, the grounds incomparably beautiful.

The patronage for last session represented twelve Southern and Western States and England.

Domestic department under the supervision of the President and wife. Healthfulness unsurpassed.

Opinions of Distinguished Patrons and Friends.

Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.

"I confided to the care of the President, during the present session, two of my daughters, with very sanguine hopes of their improvement in health and culture. My expectations have been more than realized. From experience, then, as well as prepossession, I cordially and confidently recommend Martha Washington College to parents who are seeking the best advantages for their daughters."

Prof. L. C. Garland, LL. D., University of Mississippi.

"Martha Washington College possesses remarkable advantages as a seat of learning. * * * The corps of instruction is composed of ladies and gentlemen of ability, fidelity and professional skill."

Bishop H. N. McTyeire, D. D.

"If I were to search the land around I know not another Abingdon—beautiful for situation, healthful, accessible. Its social atmosphere is of the right sort for a female school—salubrious, not fast, conservative, well toned. The perfume of the "Old Virginia" lingers about it still. Your immediate site, your grounds, please me more than any I have seen. Your shade-trees and your walks and your wide piazzas linger in my mind."

Faculty of the University of Virginia.

"We cordially recommend Major R. W. Jones, a Master of Arts of this institution, as a gentleman peculiarly well fitted by capacity, culture and experience for the conduct of an advanced seminary for young ladies."

For catalogue, etc., apply to the President.

Jy24 2m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,

VIRGINIA.

On the Virginia and Tennessee Air-Line Railroad.

On the TENTH OF SEPTEMBER next the scholastic year begins, and continues forty weeks. It is divided into two terms of twenty weeks each, the second or Spring Term commencing on the twenty-eighth of January, 1875.

TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS,

PAID IN ADVANCE,

May cover the expenses of a student for

Tuition, Board, Fuel, Room-Rent, Washing, Library and Contingent Fees

DURING THE FORTY WEEKS.

We invite careful scrutiny into all the elements which have made this school so eminent.

For particulars or for a catalogue address

E. E. WILEY, President,
au20 4t Emory P. O., Va.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES,

Port Gibson, Mississippi.

The next session will begin SEPTEMBER 16, 1874, with competent teachers in charge of each department.

EXPENSES FOR COLLEGIATE YEAR.—For tuition, English text-books, stationery, board, lights, fuel and washing, from $210 to $240. Charges for optional branches equally moderate. Daughters of itinerant ministers taught English branches free.

For circular and further particulars address

REV. JOHN A. B. JONES,
an20 1m President.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,

ASHLAND, VA.,

offers, on very low terms, the advantages of thorough instruction, a high grade of scholarship, under the best religious influences, in a refined community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness, just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad.

One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars

will pay all necessary expenses per term. Session opens on the last Thursday in SEPTEMBER. For catalogue address

REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, A. M., D. D., President, or au6 2m REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Secretary.

HIWASSEE COLLEGE.—SAID TO BE the best and cheapest school for boys in the Union. Patronage the past year, 137, from ten States. Under care of the Holston Conference, M. E. Church South. Founded in 1849. Seven miles from Sweetwater, on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad. Send stamp for twenty-four page catalogue. Address the President,

REV. J. H. BRUNNER, A. M.,
Je4 1y Hiwassee College, East Tenn.

EMINENCE COLLEGE.

For Males and Females.

TEN THOUSAND CATALOGUES of this popular school now ready for gratuitous distribution. Apply to

W. S. GILTNER, President,
Jy30 8t Eminence, Ky.

Soule's

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

The Commercial Athenæum of the South, corner Camp and Common streets (Story Building). Mercantile and Banking offices are connected with this institution, daily lectures given, and all branches of business education practically, scientifically and philosophically taught. An English Department for boys, twelve to eighteen years of age, is a special feature of this institution. French and Spanish are also taught.

GEO. SOULE, Principal.

N. B.—Soule's Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator, 880 octavo pages, the great arithmetical work of the age, is for sale at the College office. ja22 1y

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

NO. 131 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS.

This is the only Commercial College in this city where students from the country can board in the family of the principal. Terms reduced twenty per cent. Send for circular. Address

J. W. BLACKMAN,
Jo18 1y New Orleans, La.

BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC.

THE AMERICAN
SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION
OFFERS
Special Terms to Sunday Schools
IN THE SELECTION OF NEW AND
REPLENISHING OF OLD LIBRARIES
Catalogues furnished on application to any of the
SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPOSITORIES.

No. 1122 Chestnut street, Philadelphia—ALEX. KIRKPATRICK.
No. 10 Bible House, New York—G. S. SCOFIELD.
No. 40 Winter street, Boston—E. SHUTE.
No. 261 West Madison St., Chicago—W. R. PORT.
No. 207 N. Sixth St., St. Louis—S. PAXSON. mh26 6m

R. ESTERBROOK & CO.'S
STEEL PENS.
FOR SALE BY
ALL BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Esterbrook Steel Pen Manufactur'g Co.,
49 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK.
Works—Camden, New Jersey. oc2 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

EXCELSIOR
CHURCH. SABBATH-SCHOOL.

FURNITURE.

EXCELSIOR FOLDING-SEAT; CURVED-BACK PEW (can be had in any style of end. It excels any thing yet offered to the public, in comfort, beauty, convenience, cleanliness, healthfulness, and economy. ALL STYLES PEWS MADE TO ORDER. The best reviewed SABBATH-SCHOOL SETTEES; also, Pulpits, Chairs, Solas, Book-racks, and Bells. The EXCELSIOR SCHOOL FURNITURE, the universal favorite, used by Schools of Philadelphia, Jersey City, Detroit, Cincinnati, New Orleans, St. Louis, Memphis, Kansas City, Cleveland, and in most of the United States. BLACK-BOARDS, for Sabbath and Day Schools, Globes, Maps, Charts, and all Apparatus used in schools. SEND FOR PRICE-LIST

EXCELSIOR SCHOOL FURNITURE MFG. CO

Portland,	124 Walnut St.	Philadelphia,	1003 Arch St
St. Louis,	701 Chestnut St.	Omaha,	Creighton Block
New Orleans,	166 Julia St.	Atlanta,	112 Whitehall St
		and 3meow

WILLIAM GREGG. MRS. ADA GREGG.
GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU,
COR. CANAL AND BURGUNDY STS.,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
A long acquaintance with the various kinds of
SEWING MACHINES
has induced us to make a specialty in this line. First-class Machines of all kinds at lowest rates. The New Under-Feed Buckeye Hand Machine, only $20. We repair all Machines at low rates. We take old Machines in part payment for new ones.
Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs sold on monthly payments in the country to parties giving references.
MRS. ADA GREGG
respectfully offers her services in purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel, personal adornment or domestic goods for Ladies and Children's use, including Millinery, Dry Goods, Jewelry, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Patterns, Underwear, Trimmings, Bridal Trousseaux, etc. Any article of Ladies' and Children's wear manufactured in the latest styles, under her own supervision.
N. B.—All inquiries relative to articles mentioned or unmentioned will be answered free of charge.
Second-hand Machines, in good order, at half price. The best Needles for all Machines.
REFERENCES.—E. A. Tyler, New Orleans; J. L. Power, Jackson, Mississippi.
Send for catalogue and circular.
je4 1y GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU.

HENRY PILCHER,
BUILDER OF
CHURCH ORGANS,
656.....Portland Avenue.....656
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.
Twenty-five years' experience in the business, and some of the finest instruments in the country as specimens of my skill, are sufficient guarantee of the excellence of my work. Would solicit a share of the Southern patronage, and feel confident of my ability to please. The best of references as to ability and honorable dealing. jy16 3m

STEAM
MARBLE SAW MILL,
318 TO 332 EAST TWENTY-THIRD ST.,
between First and Second avenues, NEW YORK.
WILLIAM PATTISON,
DEALER IN
American and Foreign Marble
of all kinds, has constantly on hand, and will saw to order, ITALIAN MARBLE of the various dimensions, suitable for Monuments, Headstones, Furniture and Mantelpiece work, Tiling, etc., at the lowest market prices. Italian and American Marble in Blocks and Slabs. no27 3m

HENRY ERBEN & CO.,
ORGAN MANUFACTURERS,
235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-Third St.,
Bet. Second and Third Aves., NEW YORK.
There are seventeen Organs in this city of our make, among them the largest. nn27 1y

STAINED GLASS
—AND—
Decorative Art Establishment,
GIBSON'S BUILDING,
Broadway & Thirteenth St., New York.
Established in 1833.
The Designs of Architects and Amateurs artistically carried out. Designs for Memorial Windows a specialty. (au27 1y) WM. GIBSON.

CHAMBERS'
STERLING PIANOS.
"SPECIAL SAFE OFFER."
☞ READ! MARK! WHITE! ☜
Before you buy, send for information, circulars and price list. Guarantee unlimited. Pianos sent for approval, and satisfaction assured by our "Special Safe Offer." Address CHAMBERS PIANO FACTORY, 306 Fourth Ave., New York. au13 1m

ESTABLISHED 25 YEARS.
HENRY E. SHARP & SON,
STAINED GLASS WINDOWS,
FOR CHURCHES,
MEMORIAL WINDOWS A SPECIALTY,
117 and 119 East Twenty-Second Street,
NEW YORK. au29 3m

EDWARD SEARS'
WOOD ENGRAVING
ESTABLISHMENT,
Designing, Photographing and Engraving,
NO. 48 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK,
Velvet Labels and Show Card Printing a specialty. au29 3meow

$25 A DAY GUARANTEED using our WELL-AUGER and DRILL in good territory. Highest Testimonials from Governors of Iowa, Arkansas and Dakota. Catalogues free. W. GILES, St. Louis, Missouri. au6 4teow

VANDERBURGH, WELLS & CO., manufacturers of POSTER AND OTHER WOOD TYPE. Dealers in Presses and Inks, Leads, Brass Rules, Ovals, Circles, Borders, etc. Printers' and Engravers' Boxwood Depot. Manufacturers of Eagle, California and other improved Cabinets, with flush front, duplex and other cases. No. 110 Fulton and Nos. 16 and 18 Dutch street, New York. N. B.—Large stock of used Type and Presses for sale. Pattern and Brand Letters. Stamps for Soap, Dry Goods and other uses. nn6 3m

CONSTANT EMPLOYMENT.—At home, Male or Female. $30 a week warranted. No capital required. Particulars and valuable sample sent free. Address, with six-cent return stamp, C. ROSS, Williamsburg, New York. jy2 2m

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

VOICE OF GOD.—A new and popular book for the people, beautifully illustrated and bound. Replete with information and choice reading. Recommended by pastors of all denominations. Agents can sell this book where no others can be sold. Also a
New and Elegantly Illustrated
LARGE PRINT FAMILY BIBLE
WITH BIBLE DICTIONARY.
A Complete Cyclopedia of Bible History.
Agents, send for Terms and Circulars to
Miller's Bible and Publishing House,
1102 and 1104 Sansom street,
e18 13t PHILADELPHIA

WILD LIFE IN THE FAR WEST!
Agents Wanted everywhere for this beautifully illustrated book of the Author's Thirty Years' Life and Adventures among the Indians, in the Mexican Wars, hunting wild animals, etc. Entirely new, and the best book ever published on the FAR WEST. Thrillingly interesting, and selling faster than anything ever before known. Send for illustrated circular and liberal terms.
F. A. HUTCHINSON & CO.,
oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED!—ACT AT ONCE.—The people everywhere are eager to buy the only authentic and complete history of
LIVINGSTONE.
His wonderful discoveries and thrilling adventures during 30 Years in the wilds of Africa, resurrection by the daring STANLEY, and heroic death. Over 600 pages, beautifully illustrated; only $2.50. Going like wildfire! Write for extra terms; or, if you wish to begin at once, send $1 for outfit. VALLEY PUBLISHING CO.,
oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the Great $2 Books—PHYSICAL LIFE OF WOMAN, PHYSICAL LIFE OF MAN. By Dr. G. H. Napheys. 185,000 copies sold. The demand still growing. Send for sample copies. Outfits Free. Express charges prepaid on good orders. ☞ Also for GROUNDSWELL, or History of the Farmers' Movement. By Hon. J. Perham, Agricultural Editor of the Western Rural. Send for terms to N. D. THOMPSON & CO., 303 St. Charles street, St. Louis, Mo. jy23 3m

AGENTS WANTED For the quickest and best selling new Book out.
Ten Years in Washington
By Mary Clemmer Ames. "A work for the times and the people; a paying book for Agents." It portrays the Capital as a wide-awake "woman with a will"—its wonders, unravels, mysteries, etc. $86 in one week was made by a single Agent, and all say "it pays to sell it." Steady work, or for spare hours, for men or ladies on this first-class book. It outsells all others. One good working Agent wanted in every town. Book agents, clergymen, ladies and others offered large terms. Send for information to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn., or to QUEEN CITY PUBLISHING CO., Cincinnati, Ohio. se11 1y

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE FOR
KIT CARSON'S
LIFE AND ADVENTURES.
From facts narrated by himself. Embraces events in the life-time of America's Greatest Hunter, Trapper, Scout and Guide; includes vivid accounts of the every-day life, inner character and peculiar customs of all Indian Tribes on the Far West; an accurate description of the country, its condition, prospects, resources, its mountains, rivers, valleys and natural wonders. Also, a full and complete history of the Modoc Indians and the Modoc War.
Splendidly illustrated and sells at sight. Agents reporting from 75 to 100 subscribers each per week. Illustrated circulars and terms sent free to any address by
EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING CO.,
oc2 1y St. Louis, Mo.

$2,500 A YEAR made with our grand
COMBINATION PROSPECTUS.
Represents 50 different books. Agents say this is
THE BEST THING EVER TRIED.
The books sell themselves in every family, and good men can make a business for life in one county. Agents Wanted on these and our magnificent Editions of Family Bibles. Full particulars free on application. Address JOHN E. POTTER & CO., Publishers, Philadelphia. au13 1m CANVASSERS send No. of your Lodge, and name this paper. We will convince you agents with our superb Home Pictures for Masons, Odd-Fellows, Knights Pythias, Grangers, Red-men, Mechanics, etc., are making double they could any other way; work pleasanter. J. HALE POWERS & CO., Fraternity & Fine Art Pubs., Cincinnati, O.

ja29 1y

BOOK AGENTS, REJOICE!—HARD Times no More! MARK TWAIN'S New book, THE GILDED AGE, now ready. Secure territory before it is too late. Canvassing outfit, $1.50. For terms address
CONTINENTAL PUBLISHING CO.,
de4 1y New Orleans or St. Louis.

IRON WORKS—BELLS.

RAILINGS.....RAILINGS.
WROUGHT IRON AND WIRE RAILINGS
FOR Public Grounds, Cemeteries, Cottages,
ETC., ETC.
Iron Bedsteads, with Wire Sackings, for Hospitals, etc. Verandas and every variety of Wrought Iron and Wire work. Every information by addressing the manufacturers,
M. WALKER & SONS,
au18 1y 805 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WIRE RAILING
AND
ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.
DUFUR & CO.,
No. 36 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.,
Manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. oc2 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.
Established in 1837.
Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.
Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 101 East Second St., Cincinnati
B. J. WEST, Agent, au5 1y 115 and 117 Magazine st., New Orleans.

HOTELS.

TERMS, $3 A DAY.
Bingham House, Philadelphia,
Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.
CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.
This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping-place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed of being in all respects a first-class hotel. se11 1y

CHAWFORD HOUSE,
COR. SIXTH AND WALNUT STREETS,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
I pride myself in providing for my guests the best living, cleanest house and more civility for less money than any other house in the city.
☞ Come and see me.
je25 1f FRANK J. OAKES, Proprietor.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,
17.....CHARTRES STREET.....17
A. BROUSSEAU & CO., Importers and Dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings; Floor Oil Cloths; Table and Enameled Oil Cloths; Window Shades; Table and Piano Covers; Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces Curtain and Furniture Materials; Brocatelles, Cotelenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains; Haircloth Ticking; Springs; Burlaps; Stop Covers, etc.
de4 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO

Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers,
of every kind. Send Stamp for Illustrated Price List to GREAT WESTERN GUN WORKS, Pittsburg, Pa. jy9 13t

BUSINESS CARDS.

RICHARD FROTSCHER,
SEED MERCHANT,
12.....Dumaine St.....12
Near the French Market, New Orleans.
Dealer in BUIST'S GARDEN SEEDS, which are the most reliable seeds sold in the Southern market. Almanacs and catalogues furnished on application. Prices reasonable. jy16 3m

D. H. WALLACE,
COTTON FACTOR AND GENERAL PURCHASING AGENT,
38.....Perdido St.....38
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
Will give special attention to the sale of Cotton and other Produce, and will fill all orders for goods of every description at lowest cash prices. jy2 1y

J. B. WILKINSON, JR.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT
FOR THE SALE OF
Hides, Moss, Wool and Country Produce Generally,
and for the purchase of Family, Plantation and Store Supplies, 29 PETERS AND 4 CLINTON STREET, near the Custom-house, New Orleans.
Liberal cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, Rice and other consignments. Connections with the principal Northern markets. Sole agent for the celebrated Armstrong Machine-cleaned Moss. je4 10m

J. A. KERNAN & T. WHITE,
PRACTICAL GILDERS,
106 CUSTOM-HOUSE ST., near Royal, New Orleans.
Regilding done in the best style. Oil Paintings restored, relined, cleansed and varnished. Looking-glass and Picture Frames made to order. Having a business experience of nearly forty years in this city, they hope to give satisfaction to their customers not only in the superiority of their work, but likewise in their moderate charges. Country orders promptly attended fe19 9m

LOUISIANA STEAM SASH, BLIND
—AND—
DOOR FACTORY,
ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,
301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,
New Orleans. je11 1y

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.
B. D. WOOD & BROS.,
106 Common St., opposite City Hotel,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat-load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. my7 1y

E. A. TYLER,
115.....Canal Street.....115
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
FINE WATCHES, DIAMONDS, JEWELRY, Plated-ware, Table Cutlery, Fancy Goods, etc. Pure Sterling Silverware, suitable for presents. Clocks and Bronzes in great variety. Jewelry manufactured and repaired. Clocks and Watches repaired. fe26 1y

TO THE PUBLIC.—Returning thanks for past favors, the undersigned desires to inform his friends and the public that he has removed to 152 and 154 Camp St., cor. Calliope, where he continues to Buy, Sell, Store, Remove, Pack and Repair FURNITURE of every description. Pictures and Looking-glasses framed.
JOHN BOIS,
fe26 1y Nos. 152 and 154 Camp street.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.
ELKIN & CO.,
168.....CANAL STREET.....168
Near Baronne, New Orleans,
IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF
English Carpetings, Rugs, Etc., Etc.
Also Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc. oc23 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.
AIKEN & WATT,
COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
60 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.
Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no6 1y

DELICIOUS SODA WATER
AND
FRESH FRUIT SYRUPS,
At Erkiebrg's,
Corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue, New Orleans. je11 3m

JAMES M. DOWLING,
SUCCESSOR TO J. M. JOHNSTON,
WHOLESALE GROCER, COMMISSION MERCHANT,
And Dealer in Western Produce,
NO. 25 DECATUR ST. (LATE OLD LEVEE.)
je4 1y Cor. Custom-house St., New Orleans.

T. W. HOTHICK, UNDERTAKER,
No. 271 Camp Street, New Orleans.
Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood COFFINS always on hand. Black, Satin, Brown and White Merino Ladies' and Children's Shrouding. Embalming and Disinterring. Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses, Carriages and Cabs for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. de4 1y

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS,
TRADE-MARKS, COPYRIGHTS, ETC.,
Procured by
mh26 1om H. N. JENKINS,
No. 27 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

THE DOMESTIC
LOCK-STITCH SEWING MACHINE
WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME.
WILCOX & GIBBS' celebrated Twisted Loop-Stitch Sewing Machine, always ready and in order. Needles for all kinds of Sewing Machines.
M. S. HEDRICK,
my21 1y 103 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. D. COELON,
PORTRAIT PAINTER,
37.....Camp Street.....37
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
Old Paintings restored. fe19 1f

E. HEATH. M. LARA.
HEATH & LARA,
Importers and Dealers in
UPHOLSTERERS' GOODS, WALL PAPER
WINDOW SHADES AND CORNICES,
Mirrors, Frames, Molding and Wire Screens,
No. 99 Camp Street,
no20 1y New Orleans.

T. WHINREY CARTER,
ARCHITECT,
47.....POLYMNIA STREET.....47
ja15 1y New Orleans.

GAS FIXTURES,
GAS COOKING STOVES
AND PLUMBING MATERIALS
At New York Prices,
BY P. B. QUINLAN, 280 CAMP STREET.
Stores, Offices and Dwellings fitted up for Gas, Steam and Water in the most approved style. Country orders solicited. mh29 1om

F. J. KUHNHOLZ,
BOOK-BINDER,
112.....GRAVIER ST.....112
Near Camp, New Orleans.
Blank-Books ruled and bound to order. All other books, such as Magazines, Music, Law-Books, etc., bound with care and neatness, and at moderate prices. ja22 1y

HUGH FLYNN,
167 POYDRAS ST., NEW ORLEANS.
All who want to purchase CHEAP FURNITURE can call at 167 Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet streets.
On account of retiring from the Furniture business, I am now selling off my large stock of New Furniture at greatly reduced rates. I am selling at rates below those of any house in the city.
Walnut Victoria Bed-room Sets, marble top.$125 00
Parlor Sets, eleven pieces..... 110 00
Double Bedsteads, with Testers and Rollers.. 12 00
Kitchen and Dining-room Furniture at equally low rates. Spring, Hair and Moss Mattresses of the best quality and at greatly reduced prices. de11 1y

T. A. BECK, COOPER,
NOS. 23 AND 21 FRONT STREET,
Between Customhouse and Bienville streets (Sugar Landing,) New Orleans,
has constantly on hand Sugar Hogsheads, Molasses Barrels, Half Barrels, Kegs, Hoop Poles, etc. Orders promptly attended to. Particular attention paid to trimming. de1 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

TURPIN'S CELEBRATED
EXTRACT OF MEAD.
THE ONLY GENUINE RECIPE FOR
MAKING MEAD SIRUP AND MEAD SODA.
DIRECTIONS HOW TO USE ON EACH BOTTLE.

THIS BRISK AND MOST LUSCIOUS BEVERAGE is becoming daily more popular throughout the principal cities of the United States. As a cooling, soothing and thirst-quenching beverage it has no superior.
Families can make their own Sirup by following the directions on each bottle of my Extract. It is superior to Lemonade in warm climates. A little water added to this Sirup quenches thirst and imparts a cooling feeling throughout the body. Those who have used it have pronounced it the NECTAR of tropical countries. Try it once and you will never be without it.
The undersigned, being the compounder and sole proprietor, warns the public against all counterfeits. Price, per dozen bottles, $12. One bottle is sufficient to flavor thirteen gallons of Mead Soda or three gallons of Mead Sirup. Address
ERNEST TURPIN,
au13 1m Nos. 113 and 111 Poydras Street, New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, LA. TYLER, M.S.

GEORGE PURVES'
PERSEVERANCE
Sash, Blind and Door
STEAM FACTORY,
AND
LUMBER YARD,
Cor. of St. Charles and Clio Sts., New Orleans.
GLAZED SASH.
Send for Price List.
de11 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

J. A. LUM. FRANK H. HOOKER.
J. A. LUM & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
CARRIAGES, HARNESS, ETC.,
162 Gravier and 13 Union Street.
☞ A SPECIALTY MADE OF CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES. mh15 1y

THOMAS HASAM,
LUMBER.
CABINS MADE TO ORDER.
Every description of LUMBER always on hand. Sash, Blinds, etc.
Mills and Yard—Corner CEDAR and JULIA streets (New Basin,) New Orleans. Ja15 1y

mh5 1y

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,
RESIDENCE AND OFFICE,
Corner Magazine and Second Streets,
New Orleans.
Office Hours—Eight to nine A. M. and three to four P. M. je29 1f

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
DENTAL SURGEON,
152.....Julia Street.....152
All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed.
Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. de4 1y

DR. J. J. LYONS,
NO. 219 CARONDELET STREET
Between Julia and St. Joseph,
ja2 1y New Orleans, La.

G. W. SALE. W. H. FOSTER.
E. T. MERRICK, formerly Chief Justice, Louisiana.
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
ATTORNEYS, COUNSELORS
AND SOLICITORS,
Corner of Camp Street and Commercial Place,
fe25 NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS
PURCHASING BUREAU.
To the Ladies of the South.
A Purchasing Agency has been established in New Orleans, Louisiana, for the benefit of those residing at a distance from the city, and who have not the facilities for obtaining just what they require.
MRS. H. MOGRIDGE
respectfully offers her services in selecting, purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel or personal adornment for ladies' and children's use, including MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, JEWELRY, BRIDAL TROUSSEAUX, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Trimmings, Underwear, Sewing Machines, etc., etc.
Scrupulous care with reference to the price and quality and fidelity to the interest and fulfillment of the wishes of correspondents, will be sedulously carried out.
MRS. H. MOGRIDGE'S
Dressmaking Establishment,
Nos. 94 and 96 Canal St., New Orleans.
Refers by permission to D. H. Holmes & Co., New Orleans. fe19 1y

WILLIAM N. THOMSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
Thomson's Leather-Preserver,
FOR
Boots, Shoes, Harness, Belting & Hose.
ALSO DEALER IN
LACE LEATHER, RIVETS, BITS, BELT HOOKS, BELT STUDS,
Punches, Belt Sets, and all goods connected with the Belting business,
NO. 52 RACE STREET,
au6 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

GLASS STAINERS
AND BENDERS.
BELCHER & POVEY,
13 West Broadway, cor. Hende St.,
NEW YORK.
Works—Newark, N. J. au13 1y

FOUND.—The place to buy EUCALYPTUS GLOBULUS, Blue-Gum or Fever-Tree SEED. Also all Seeds known in Australia, New Zealand, South America or California. To be had of
H. F. WELLINGTON,
425 Washington St., San Francisco, Cal.
Send for circulars. je11 3m

MISCELLANEOUS.

E. W. VAILL,
Worcester, Mass.
Patentee and Manufr.
ers in furniture and house furnishing goods. Send for cuts. nn15 6m

CHAIRS
For sale by all first-class dealers in furniture and house furnishing goods. Send for cuts.

FOLDING
of folding cane seat chairs for the Southern and tropical countries.

PATENT
room, library, verandah, church, concert hall, lecture room, seaside and shipboard. A variety

VAILL'S
Manufactured in great variety. Nearly 100 kinds and sizes. Adapted for the parlor, drawing

CINCINNATI
PIANO-FORTE
MANUFACTORY.
F. W. BIERE & SON,
WAREROOMS,
170 Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
The attention of our friends and the public in general is most respectfully invited to our fine stock of HOME-MADE PIANOS.
We permit no inferior instrument to go out of our factory, but endeavor to EXCEL ALL MAKERS by producing PERFECT INSTRUMENTS ONLY, and thereby secure the entire confidence of the public. jy23 3m

MONUMENTS A SPECIALTY.
AMERICAN GRANITE
AND ITALIAN MARBLE.
IMPORTERS OF
Scotch Granite Monuments
AND STATUARY FROM ITALY.
This is the OLDEST AND LARGEST establishment of the kind in the Western country, and would solicit a share of the Southern patronage. Being in the business for years, I feel confident of giving the utmost satisfaction, having in my employ men of experience.
A. WHITE.
OFFICE AND WORKS,
251, 253 and 257 West Fifth St.,
jy23 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

STAR IRON WORKS.
WALTON, HEMLER & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS OF
IRON RAILINGS,
SAFES AND BANK VAULTS,
JAIL CELLS, IRON STAIRS, DOORS AND SHUTTERS, Awning Frames, Gratings, Bolts, Stirrups, Verandas, Balconies, Patent Sidewalk and Sky-Lights, and all kinds of Iron Work for buildings.
Nos. 231 and 236 West Pearl Street,
CINCINNATI, OHIO.
Orders promptly attended to and satisfaction guaranteed. jy23 3m

LEVY BROS.'
Dry Goods Establishment,
AT
580.....MAGAZINE STREET.....580
Between St. Andrew and St. Mary.
NEW GOODS EVERY WEEK.
We are now opening a large and well-assorted stock of SPRING GOODS, which have been bought and will be sold at prices that will suit all purchasers.
Give Us a Call.
N. B.—Orders from the country will be promptly filled. mh5 1y

FLINN'S PATENT
SELF-FASTENING AND ADJUSTABLE
BED SPRINGS
Make the first Spring Beds in Use.
They are complete in themselves, and can be applied in a few minutes to any slat bedstead.
☞ From three to five dozen make a Set.
JOHN FLINN,
248 South Second St., Philadelphia, Pa
Cor. S. Water and Champlain Sts., Cleveland,
Agents wanted everywhere. se18 1y

S. COLLINS & CO.,
MANUFACTURERS OF
PRINTING INK.
Office and Depot—26 Frankfort St.,
NEW YORK.
GEO. H. MORRILL & CO., Boston, Mass.
MORRILL & CO., San Francisco, Cal. au27 3m

JOHN GIBSON,
ENGRAVER
AND
STEAM POWER LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTER,
82 Beekman Street, New York.
Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for catalogue. au6 1y

MACHINERY, TIES, ETC.

LANE & BODLEY,
CINCINNATI, OHIO,
MANUFACTURERS OF STANDARD
PLANTATION
MACHINERY,
STATIONARY & PORTABLE
STEAM ENGINES,
Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Shafting Hangers, Pulleys, etc. Our Machinery is strong, simple and well made, and is especially adapted to the wants of Farmers and Planters for Ginning, Sawing, Grinding and Factory use. Send for an Illustrated Catalogue.
LANE & BODLEY,
jy23 1y John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, O.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.
IRON COTTON TIES.

The above-mentioned Ties are the best and most popular Ties in use for Bailing Cotton. They are manufactured of the best quality of English Iron, and are sold under full guarantee, at the lowest market price, by all dealers in Bating Stuffs in New Orleans, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, Charleston, Wilmington, Petersburg, Baltimore, Memphis, Louisville, Nashville, New York, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.
R. W. RAYNE & CO.,
(Late Bartlett & Rayne.)
GENERAL AGENTS,
48 Carondelet Street, cor. Union,
je18 6m New Orleans.

DANIEL PRATT'S
Improved Cotton Gin.
PRICE REDUCED
TO $4 PER SAW.

JOSEPH B. WOLFE & CO.,
GENERAL AGENTS,
No. 59 Carondelet Street,
je4 6m NEW ORLEANS.

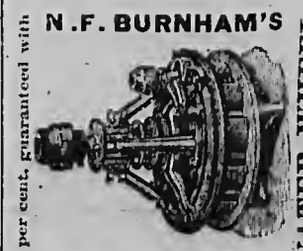
PLOWS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC.
PLOWS
AND ALL IMPROVED
Agricultural Implements.
PLANTATION HARDWARE.
Steam Engines, Saw and Grist Mills.
PUMPS, SHAFTING, ETC.,
AT LOW PRICES FOR CASH.
B. J. WEST,
115 and 117 Magazine St., New Orleans,
MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.
mh19 10m

N. F. BURNHAM'S
81 per cent. guaranteed with



WATER WHEEL
The best in the Market, and sold at less price than any other first-class Wheel.
1874 TURBINE
☞ Send for a pamphlet and be convinced.
au8 1m N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

CRESCENT MACHINE SHOP.
JOSEPH WALKER,
Machinist, Engineer, Blacksmithing,
ETC., ETC.,
CORNER ST. JOSEPH AND CONSTANCE STS.,
New Orleans.
☞ Plantation Machinery manufactured and repaired. Jobbing promptly attended to. fe5 1y

TRUSSES AND BRACES.
Club Feet cured without the knife. The Radical-Cure Truss, patented May 8, 1866, applied. All instruments for deformities—Crutches, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Ear Trumpets—on hand at DR. A. O. FLUGEBERG'S, No. 5 East Fourth street, east of Main, up stairs, Cincinnati, Ohio. Sign of Golden Eagle. au6 3m

New Orleans Markets.

The river is 13 feet 8 inches below high-water mark.

COTTON.

Inferior	9	@ 10
Low ordinary	10¼	@ 10¾
Ordinary	11¾	@ 12¼
Strict ordinary	13	@ 13⅝
Good ordinary	13⅞	@ 14⅜
Strict good ordinary	15⅛	@ 15⅝
Low middling	15⅞	@ 16
Strict low middling	16¼	@ 16⅜
Middling	16⅝	@ 17
Strict middling	17⅛	@ 17¾

SUGAR.—There was more animation in the local trade on Tuesday, and the sales embraced 100 hhds., in lots, at 9@9¼c. for good fair, 9¾c. for fully fair, 10@10¼c. for choice, and 10⅝@10¾c. for yellow clarified.

MOLASSES.—The market is bare of plantation molasses. City refinery reboiled is selling in the job trade at 40@42c. for common, 48@50c. for fair, 55@58c. for good fair, 60@62c. for prime, and 67@69c. for choice.

BREAKFAST BACON—Is in light supply, and commands 15¾@16c. ₱ lb. A lot of 70 boxes sold on private terms.

HAMS.—Choice sugar-cured are in light supply and in demand, with an upward tendency in prices. 10 and 10 tierces sold at 16c. ₱ lb., and 10 tierces on private terms. An offer of 15½c. was refused for 25 tierces. The market is quoted at 15¾@16c. ₱ lb.

LARD—Is in light supply and dull. Tierce is quoted at 15¾@15¾c., keg 16@16½c. ₱ lb. Dealers' rates are 16c. for tierce and 16½c. for keg.

CORN MEAL.—The market is firmer. Holders ask $3.75 and buyers offer $3.50 ₱ bbl. It is jobbing at $3.85@3.87½ ₱ bbl. 50 bbls. sold, in two equal lots, at $3.75; 100 and 100 at $3.65, and 150 at $3.50 ₱ bbl.

PORK.—The market is quiet, though there is more inquiry and prices firm. Mess is quoted in round lots at $24.50@24.75, and dealers are retailing it at $25@25.50 ₱ bbl. cash and time. 100 bbls. sold at $24.37½; 10 and 25 at $24.50 ₱ bbl.

DRY SALT MEAT.—The supply is light. Shoulders command 9¾@10c.; retailing at 10½c. ₱ lb. A lot of 15 casks shoulders sold at 9¾c. ₱ lb.

BACON—Is quiet but strong, with shoulders held at 10¾c., clear rib sides 14¾c., clear sides 14¾c. ₱ lb., which are the job prices. Only 5 casks clear rib sides sold at 14¾c., and 10 clear sides at 14¾c. ₱ lb.

CORN.—The supply is light and the demand moderate. The sales comprise 2,421 sacks, of which 271 mixed at 88c., 300 yellow mixed at 90c., 100 yellow at 90c., 150 white, Ohio river, at 90c., 350 white, St. Charles county, at 90c., 200 choice white mixed at 93c., and 150 choice white at 95c. ₱ bushel.

OATS—Are in good supply and moderate demand. The sales comprise 700 sacks, of which 150 ordinary at 56c., 100 prime at 57c., 150 new at 57c., and 300 choice at 60c. ₱ bushel.

BRAN—Is in light supply and dull. 100 sacks sold at $1 ₱ 100 lbs.

RICE.—Good grades are in better demand. Ordinary are dull. We quote No. 2 3¼@4c., common 6@6¾c., ordinary 6¾@6¾c., fair 7@7¼c. ₱ lb. 30 barrels prime sold at 7¾c. ₱ lb.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 109¾@109¾ (against 109¾ at New York,) and closed at the opening rates in both markets, touching 109¾ during the interim.

No sales of silver were reported. American half dollars were still quoted at 104@104¼, and Mexican dollars at 97½ gold.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS:
Cotton scrapers	$1 50	— —
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. and shovel-tooth	9 00	12 50
Cultivators, riding and walking	25 00	35 00
Shovels and spades	7 50	10 00
Axes	11 00	16 00
Shovel plows	5 00	7 50
Half do., with cutters	6 00	7 50
Manly's double-shovel plow	6 00	6 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bradford's grist mills	150 00	225 00
BRICKS, ₱ M:
Lake	9 50	15 00
Country	7 00	9 00
English fire	45 00	47 50
American fire	35 00	— —
CANDLES, ₱ lb.:
Sperm, New Bedford	30	31
Tallow	14	— —
CHOCOLATE, ₱ lb.:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	— —	— —
Sweet	22	— —
COAL, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	— —	12 50
Western, ₱ bbl.	— —	— —
COFFEE, ₱ lb.:
Mexican	— —	— —
Java	29	30
COTTON SEED:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	10 00
EGGS, ₱ dozen:
Western	1	20
FERTILIZERS, ₱ ton:
Stern's raw-bone superphosph'e	— —	65 00
Stern's fine-ground bone	— —	45 00
FLOUR, ₱ bbl.:
Double extra	— —	4 50
Superfine	— —	4 00
Fine	— —	— —
GLASS, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	— —	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 10 by 14 to 12 by 20	4 00	4 25
French, 14 by 18 to 18 by 20	4 25	4 75
HAY, ₱ ton:
Prime	— —	— —
Choice	— —	26 00
IRON, ₱ ton:
English, ₱ lb.	4	5
Swedes, assorted	7½	8
Hoop	6	9
Sheet	6	9
Nail rods	— —	9¾
Castings, American	5¾	6
LEATHER, ₱ lb.:
Sole, hemlock	30	33
Sole, oak	40	44
Harness	38	45
Calf-skins, ₱ dozen	35 00	100 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb.	24	26
LIME, ₱ bbl.:
Western	1 50	1 75
Cement	2 50	2 75
Plaster Paris	— —	2 75
LUMBER, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	— —	— —
Boards, cypress	— —	— —
Flooring, dressed	18 00	20 00
Flooring, rough	— —	16 00
Ceiling, dressed	12 00	14 00
Weatherboards, dressed	14 00	16 00
Weatherboards, rough	— —	— —
Scantling	12 00	14 00
Shingles, ₱ M	— —	3 25
Laths	— —	— —
OILS:
Lard, ₱ gallon	1 10	1 15
Coal oil, in barrels	17	20
Linseed, raw	1 02	— —
SUGAR, ₱ lb.:
Havana, white	— —	— —
Havana, yellow	— —	— —
Havana, brown	— —	— —
Crushed	11¾	12
Pulverized	11¾	12
TEAS, ₱ lb.:
Imperial	55	— —
Gunpowder	65	— —
Hyson	70	— —
Young Hyson	70	1 40
Pouchong	30	— —
Oolong	55	— —
WAGONS, CARTS, ETC.:
Wagon, two-horse	85 00	90 00
Wagon, four-horse	115 00	125 00
Wagon, two-horse, thim. skein	80 00	85 00
Wagon, four-horse	100 00	110 00
Cane wagon	210 00	225 00
Ox wagon	90 00	125 00
Ox cart, complete	110 00	115 00
Cane cart	110 00	115 00
Tongue cart, complete	120 00	125 00
Plantation cart	55 00	65 00

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 1, 1874.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	— —	@$90 00
Texas beeves, first quality, ₱ head	80 00	@ 85 00
Texas cattle, second quality, ₱ head	70 00	@ 75 00
Texas cattle, third quality, ₱ head	12 00	@ 18 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— —	@ — —
Sheep, first quality ₱ head	4 00	@ 5 00
Sheep, second quality, ₱ head	3 00	@ 4 00
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	35 00	@ 45 00
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@ 9 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	5 00	@ 9 00

WHY JOHNNY LIKED THE MINISTER.—"O wasn't that a good minister we had to-day?" said Johnny.

"Yes, very good. Which sermon did you like best?" said his teacher.

"O I don't know! It wasn't the sermons altogether that I mean."

"What then?".

"Why, he prayed for Sunday schools and boys so good; I never heard any one pray so much for boys. Most of them do not. That is why I like him."

"Do you not like to be prayed for?"

"Why, yes, of course I do."

"The minister prayed to-day that all the boys may be Christ's boys. Did you like that?"

"Yes, and I prayed as hard as I could that I might be. When we hear people praying for us it makes us think it is about time to be praying for ourselves. If children don't like to say much about good things, I guess they all like to have the minister remember them. I always watch and see if they pray for young folks; if they don't, I think they won't have much in the sermon either. Then, of course, I don't listen as well as I should if I thought there was something for me."

Advertisers' Directory

OF THE

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Alphabetically Arranged Under the Heads of the Business or Articles Advertised.

NOTE.—We take no advertisements except from those who we have good reason to believe are respectable and reliable. The publisher urges his solicitor and agents to seek the advertisements of the most worthy and reliable representatives in every branch of business, and not to apply to or accept business from persons of doubtful character. We have refused business to the extent of thousands of dollars each year for want of satisfactory information in reference to applicants. We think we may safely claim for the list below that it embraces, as a rule, the very best men and firms in the different branches represented.

☞ We retain no dead advertisements.

Agencies.
Gregg's Purchasing Bureau, corner Canal and Burgundy streets.
Mrs. H. Mogridge, Purchasing Bureau, 94 and 96 Canal street.
J. Hale Powers, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.
N. D. Thompson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Architects.
T. Whitney Carter, 47 Polymnia street, New Orleans.

Banners.
T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, New York.

Barber.
Baptiste, St. Charles Hotel.

Bed Springs.
John Flinn, Philadelphia.

Bells.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Buckeye Bell Foundery, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Belting.
W. N. Thomson, 52 Race street, Cincinnati, O.

Book-Binder.
F. J. Kuhnholz, 112 Gravier street.

Books and Stationery.
Robert J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.
American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
Continental Publishing Co., St. Louis, Missouri.
Chas. H. Dilson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, Mass.
F. A. Hutchinson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Miller's Bible and Publishing House, 1102 and 1104 Sansom street, Philadelphia.
Nettleton & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
John E. Potter & Co., Philadelphia.
Queen City Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Valley Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo.
A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn
Ziegler & McCurdy, St. Louis, Mo.

Building.
A. J. Bleknell & Co 27 Warren street, New York

Building Paper.
Edward Thompson, 60 Baronne street, New Orleans.

Carpets.
A. Brousseau & Co., 17 Chartres street.
Elkin & Co., 168 Canal street.

Carriages, Wagons, Etc.
J. A. Lum & Co., 162 Gravier and 13 Union street.

Chairs.
E. W. Vail, Worcester, Mass.

China and Crockeryware.
W. C. Shepard & Co., 58 Camp street.

Clothing and Furnishing Goods.
Pierson & Hews, 13 and 15 Camp street.

Coal and Wood.
B. D. Wood & Bros., 106 Common street.

Cooperage.
T. A. Beck, 23 and 24 Front street.
P. A. Lelliaue, 22 Front street.

Cotton Gins.
J. B. Wolfe & Co., 39 Carondelet street.

Cotton Ties.
Hartlett & Rayne, 48 Carondelet street.

Croquet.
Bradley's Patent Croquet, Robt. J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Dentists.
Dr. John O. Angell, 152 Julia street.

Direct Trade.
Dr. Thomas D. Worrall, 24 and 26 Camp street.

Dry Goods.
Levy Bros., 580 Magazine street.

Educational.
Blackman's Commercial College, 131 Carondelet street.
Centenary College, C. O. Andrews, president, Jackson La.
Collegiate Academy, Rev. J. A. B. Jones, president, Port Gibson, Miss.
Collegiate Institute, Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge, La.
Eminence College, Eminence, Ky.
Emory and Henry College, Rev. E. E. Wiley, Emory P. O., Va.
Female College, Greensboro, Ala., Rev. Thos. Ward White, president.
Furman's English and Classical School, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Hiwassee College, Rev. J. H. Branner, prest.
Mansfield Famala College.
Martha Washington College, Abingdon, Va.
Randolph Macon College, Rev. James A. Duncan, A. M., D. D., president, Ashland, Va.
Soule's Commercial College, corner Camp and Common streets.
Southern University, Greensboro, Ala
Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va. Rev. W. A. Harris, president.
Whitworth Female College, H. F. Johnson, president, Brookhaven, Miss.

Engravers.
John Gibson, 82 Beekman street, New York.
J. W. Hart, Cincinnati, Ohio.
J. S. Patterson, 28 Beekman street, New York.
Warren Richards, 42 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Edward Sears, 48 Beekman street, New York.

Exterminators.
J. F. Henry, Curran & Co., New York.

Extract of Beef.
Ernest Turpin, 112 and 114 Poydras street, New Orleans.

Factors and Commission Merchants.
Aiken & Watt, 60 Carondelet street.
D. H. Wallace, 38 Perdido street.
J. B. Wilkinson, Jr., 29 Peters and 4 Clinton st.

Fire-Arms.
Orent Western Gun Works, Pittsburg, Pa.

For Sale.
Tent on Seashore campground; Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Framers and Gilders.
Kernan & White, 106 Custombouse street.

Furniture.
John Bois, 152 and 154 Camp street.
Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Co., 166 Julia street, New Orleans.
Hugh Flynn, 167 Poydras street.

Gas Fixtures.
P. H. Quinlan, 280 Camp street.

Glass Staining.
Belcher & Povey, 13 W. Broadway, New York.
William Gibson, Broadway and Thirteenth street, New York.
Henry E. Sharp & Son, New York.
Charles H. Turao 333 East Twenty-third street, New York.

Grocers.
J. M. Dowling, 25 Decatur street.

Hotels.
Bingham House, Philadelphia.
Crawford House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Frank J. Oakes, proprietor.

Iron Manufactories.
M. Walker & Sons, Philadelphia.
Walton, Hemler & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Job Printing.
Pelican Job Office, 112 and 114 Poydras street.

Lumber.
Thomas Husam, cor. Cedar and Julia streets.
George Purves, cor. St. Charles and Clio streets.
Roberts & Co., 301 to 307 Gravior street.

Machinery.
Billings & Spencer Co., Hartford, Conn.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., 664 to 694 Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Lane & Bodley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Measely & Kimberly, Troy, New York.
Reynolds Cotton Press, W. H. Reynolds, New Orleans.
Turbina Water-Wheel, N. P. Barnham, York, Penna.
Jos. Walker, cor. St. Joseph and Constanea sts.
Well-Auger, W. Giles, St. Louis, Mo.
B. J. West, 115 and 117 Magazine street.

Marble Works.
William Pattison, 318 to 332 East Twenty-third street, New York.
Alfred White, 251, 253 and 257 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Medical.
Adderley's Sirup Bromide Chloral, W. H. Adderley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Anti-Rheumatic Mixture, W. J. Jurgielewicz, corner Magazine and Thalia streets.
Artificial Limbs, Charles M. Evans, 76 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky.
Citrate of Magnesia, etc., Hohnann & Co., N. Y.
Dr. Fitler's Vegetable Rheumatic Sirup, E. J. Hart & Co., New Orleans.
Dr. A. O Forsberg, 5 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Hebbard's Cure, E. Dibblee, 814 Sixth avenue, New York.
Kearney's Extract Buchu, Kearney & Co., 104 Duane street, New York.
Opium Cure, Dr. J. C. Bork, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Buffalo, New York.
Preventive of Yellow Fever, Dr. R. Brown, 697 Broadway, New York.
Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cure, Geo. Sweetser, 120 Wall street, New York.
Rogers' Effervescing Chrute of Magnesia, A. Rogers, 193 Spring street, New York.
Rupture and Piles Cure, Dr. H. Nesson, 182 St. Charles street.
Simmons' Liver Regulator, J. H. Zeilin & Co. Philadelphia, Pa.
Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient.
Treatment of Catarrh, Dr. A. N. Williamson, New York.
Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills, 18 and 21 Platt street, New York.

Mineral and Soda Water.
Eckleberg, corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue.

Musical Instruments, Publications, Etc.
Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.
D. H. Baldwin & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
F. W. Biere & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Chambers Piano Factory, 306 Fourth avenue, New York.
Henry Erben & Co., 235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-third street, New York.
Henry Pilcher, 856 Portland avenue, Louisville, Ky.
Philip Werlein, 76 to 90 Baronne street.
Whitney & Holmes Organ Co., Quincy, Ill.

Novelties.
J. Bride & Co., 769 Broadway, New York.
W. H. Childester, 267 Broadway, New York.
Cowan & Co., Eighth street, New York.

Paper Mills.
Atlanta Paper Mills, Atlanta, Georgia.

Patents.
H. N. Jenkins, 27 Commercial place.
John A. Wiedersheim & Co., Philadelphia.

Patent Novelties.
George L. Felton & Co., 119 Nassau street, New York.

Pens.
R. Esterbrook & Co., New York.

Periodicals.
Family Journal, 300 Broadway, New York.
Offord's Pulpit of the Day, R. M. Offord, New York.

Portrait Painters.
G. D. Coulon, 27 Camp street.

Printing Ink.
S. Dollins & Co., 26 Frankfort street, New York.

Professional.
Dr. C. J. Bickham, office, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Dr. J. J. Lyons, office, 219 Carondelet street.
Race, Foster & E. T. Merrick, law office, corner Camp and Commercial place.

Railroads.
Great Jackson Route, A. D. Sholdon, agent, 22 Camp street, corner of Common.

Seeds.
B. F. Wellington, 425 Washington street, San Francisco, Cal.

Sewing Machines.
Domestic, M. S. Hedrick, 103 Canal street.
Wm. Gregg, cor. Canal and Burguady streets.

Soap.
J. H. Keller, 110 Gravier street.

Steamships and Shipping.
Cromwell Line New York Steamers, Alfred Moulton, agent, 41 Carondelet street.
General Transatlantic Company, L. Orand, Gallier court, letter H.
Merchants' Line New York Steamers, J. H. Ludwirsen, 180 Common street.
State Line, A. K. Miller & Co., 29 Carondelet st.

Stoves.
G. W. W. Goodwyn, 52 Gravier street.
H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Tea.
Great China and Japan Tea Warehouse, 170 Canal street.

Tobaccos and Cigars.
Ed. L. Zell, cor. Canal and Carondelet streets.

Type and Presses.
Vanderburgh, Wells & Co., 110 Fulton and 16 and 18 Hutch street, New York.

Undertakers.
T. W. Bothick, 271 Camp street, New Orleans.
F. L. Matthews, 238 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

Upholstery.
Heath & Lara, 99 Camp street.

Washing Machines.
Ringen Washer, H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Watches and Jewelry.
E. A. Tyler, 115 Canal street.
Waltham Watches, Howard & Co., 222 Fifth aveune, New York.

Window Glass.
William Coulter & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Wire Railing, Etc.
Dufur & Co. Baltimore, Maryland.

Special Notices.

OFFORD'S PULPIT OF THE DAY.—A Monthly Magazine of Sermons by the greatest preachers living. $1 a year. On trial, 25 cents from August till December Sample copy, 10 cents. R. M. OFFORD, 6 Park place, New York. au20 3m

Religious Notices.

CAMP MEETING.—Mr. Editor: We believe that the way to support camp meetings in our pine woods country is to make them self-supporting, and we have appointed a camp meeting to be held one mile west of Clanton, Alabama, on the S. and N. railroad, to commence on Friday before the fourth Sunday in September, 1874. We cordially invite all persons who can worship God upon these terms. There will be several extra tents erected for rent. Any person who wishes to rent will please address the pastor, and he will confer with the trustees and answer at once. Come one! come all! Provision will be made for preachers and their families. We shall be glad if we can have you with us. R. A. MICAR, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Rose road, commencing on Friday night before and embracing the first Sabbath in October. It will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within ten or fifteen miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Friday morning.

J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

NOTICE.—The camp meeting will commence at Choctaw camp ground, on the Butler circuit, Demopolis district, Alabama Conference, on Friday before the third Sunday in September. The camp ground is on the Bladon road, ten miles below Butler. Ministers of the gospel are earnestly solicited to attend, and they will be cared for. We ask the prayers of the church that the Lord may abundantly bless us. D. J. WRIGHT, P. C.

CAMP MEETING.—Our camp meeting on Big Creek, Rapides circuit, Louisiana Conference, commences on Wednesday, the twenty-third of September. Preachers and their families are cordially invited to attend. They will be amply provided for. The people generally are expected. Come prepared to entertain and be entertained. JOHN F. WYNN, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING at Smith's camp ground, three miles west of Desdonville, northern portion of Choctaw county, Alabama, will begin on Friday before the first Sabbath in October. Ministerial brethren are invited to attend. C. B. DUBOSE, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting at Girard, Richland parish, Louisiana, commencing September 23, 1874. It will be on the self-sustaining plan. We invite all who can to attend. Ministers are invited to "come over and help us."

T. S. RANDLE.

THE DISTRICT MEETING for Opelousas district will commence on Thursday, September 24. Rev. J. M. Brown will preach the opening sermon. J. E. COBB, P. E.

CAMP MEETING.—The camp meeting at Midway, ten miles north of Delhi, will commence September 10, 1874. Persons attending will pay full fare on the railroad coming, and return free on certificate. All ministers are invited to attend. Ample arrangements will be made for their comfort. Arrangements will be made to transfer all ministers and their baggage from Delhi to the camp ground, September 10 and 11, and return them when the meeting closes. No other arrangements will be made unless we are notified beforehand. The meeting will be conducted and carried on, as last year, on the independent plan. Come one! come all!

O. M. LIVERMAN, P. C.,
Floyd Circuit, Louisiana Conference.

THERE will be a camp meeting on the Sparta circuit, five and a half miles east of Sparta, on the Vernon road, commencing on Thursday evening before the second Sabbath in September next. The meeting will be conducted on the self sustaining plan. All are invited to attend, and to come prepared to take care of themselves. Ministers of the gospel are invited. There will be special provision made for them and their horses. The third Quarterly Conference will be held at the same time and place.

D. A. BODDIE, P. C.

NOTICE.—There will be a camp meeting four miles north of Spearville, on the Farmerville circuit, Union parish, Louisiana, commencing on Friday before the fourth Sabbath in August; and another at Alabama church, between Homer and Farmerville, commencing on Friday before the third Sabbath in September. The people are expected to furnish their own tents and provisions, as a few do not expect to furnish a multitude. R. PARVIN, Pastor.

THERE will be a camp meeting on Spring Creek circuit, Louisiana Conference, commencing on Friday before the second Sunday in October. Come one! come all! This meeting will be conducted on the self-sustaining plan. There will be corn at or near the camp ground; on reasonable terms. Special provision will be made for ministers and their horses.

FRED. WHITE, P. C.

THE Vernon circuit camp meeting commences at Wesley chapel on Thursday, the tenth of September, 1874. We earnestly solicit the attendance of all ministerial brethren in the bounds of Homer and adjoining districts.

J. M. MCKEE, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING at China Grove, Dale county, Alabama, will commence on Friday night before the first Sunday in October next, and close on Wednesday morning after. Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South are invited to attend. A. DOWLING, Pastor.

THERE will be a camp meeting nine miles north of Eataw, Greene county, Alabama Conference, commencing on Thursday night before the second Sabbath in October, 1874. Preachers are respectfully invited.

J. W. MCCANN, P. C.

THE Alexandria District Conference will be held at Evergreen, commencing on Friday, September 18. Preachers and people are specially requested to be in attendance.

J. H. STONE, P. E.

THE Sunimit District Conference will be held in Greensburg, Louisiana, commencing October 8, 1874, to be continued over Sunday.

A. B. NICHOLSON, P. E.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

MOBILE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Grand Bay	Sept. 19, 20
Pollard	26, 27
Black Water	Oct. 3, 4
Citronelle	10, 11
Milton	17, 18
Pensacola	24, 25
St. Stephen's	31, Nov. 1
Mount Pleasant	Nov. 7, 8
Whistler	14, 15
St. Paul's	21, 22
St. Frances street	28, 29
Franklin street	Dec. 5, 6

J. HAMILTON, P. E.

APPOINTMENTS FOR PREACHING ON THE SELMA DISTRICT.

On my last round I will preach at the following times and places, viz.:

Summerfield	Sept. 12, 13
Orrville	17
McKinley, Orrville circuit	18
Center chapel, Orrville circuit	19, 20
Benton, East Selma mission	26, 27
Tallahatta	Oct. 3, 4
Union, Jackson circuit	10, 11
Grove Hill, Jackson circuit	12, 15
Amity, Suggsville circuit	16
Suggsville, at night	15
Fort Madison, at night	17, 18
Walker's Section	23
Uniontown	24, 25
Dayton	27
Jefferson, Dayton circuit	29, 30
Linden, Dayton circuit	31, Nov. 1
Selma	Nov. 7, 8
Rembert Hills	14, 15
Sweetwater, Choctaw Corner circuit	20
Payne's chapel	21, 22
Bethel	27
Pleasant Hill, Peachtree circuit	27
Asbury, Peachtree circuit	28, 29

The preachers will announce the special subjects upon which they have requested me to preach at the above appointments.

3 ANDREW J. BIGGS, P. E.

SELMA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Summerfield station	Sept. 12, 13
Orrville circuit, at Center chapel	19, 20
East Selma, at Benton	26, 27
Tallahatta circuit	Oct. 3, 4
Jacksun circuit, at Union	10, 11
Suggsville circuit, at Fort Madison	17, 18
Uniontown station	24, 25
Dayton circuit, at Linden	31, Nov. 1
Selma station	Nov. 7, 8
Rembert Hills circuit	14, 15
Choctaw Corner circuit	21, 22
Peachtree circuit	28, 29

Preachers in charge, recording stewards and the presidents of boards of trustees are earnestly requested to be prepared to submit full reports at the above-appointed Conferences.

27 A. J. BIGGS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BROOKHAVEN DIS.—FOURTH ROUND.

Monticello	Sept. 12, 13
Rogue Chitto, at Johnson's Station	19, 20
Brookhaven	26, 27
Zion, at Bethel	Oct. 3, 4
Georgetown, at Bethesda	10, 11
Providence, at Bahala	17, 18
Beauregard, at Beauregard	24, 25
Raymond	31, Nov. 1
Scotland	Nov. 7, 8
Brandywine at Rehoboth	14, 15
Crystal Springs and Terry	21, 22
Harlehurst	28, 29

3 W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

JACKSON DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Jackson station	Sept. 19, 20
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Palmetto Home	26, 27
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	Oct. 3, 4
Camden circuit, at Camden	10, 11
Dover circuit, at Dover	17, 18
Mount Olivet circuit, at Mount Olivet	24, 25
Sharon circuit, at Lone Pine	31, Nov. 1
Carthage circuit, at Goshen	Nov. 7, 8
Madison circuit, at Madison station	14, 15
Brownsville circuit at Queen's Hill	21, 22
Thomastown circuit	28, 29
Canton station	Dec. 5, 6

The local preachers will please to remember that the law now requires them to give a written statement of their labors for the year to the fourth Quarterly Conference. I hope they will be ready with their reports. Trustees of church property will please have their reports ready also. Secretaries of Church Conferences will please have their reports on statistics ready also.

3 H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E., Sharon, Mississippi.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

ALEXANDRIA DIS.—FOURTH ROUND.

Bayou Boeuf	Sept. 26, 27
Chicot	Oct. 3, 4
Spring Creek (camp meeting)	10, 11
Rapides	17, 18
Shelly Island	24, 25
Columbia	Nov. 7, 8
Caldwell	14, 15
Montgomery	21, 22
Centerville	28, 29
Evergreen and Big Cane	Dec. 12, 13
Alexandria

3 J. H. STONE, P. E.

MEDICAL.

DR. ROGERS'

VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

A brave man may suffer pain, when inflicted upon himself, heroically; but he

CANNOT SEE HIS CHILD SUFFER.

There is no other malady incident to childhood that is accompanied with more indescribable wretchedness to the little sufferers than that

PRODUCED BY WORMS;

and when the parent fully comprehends the situation he will not delay a moment in securing the most prompt and efficient remedies to insure the expulsion of the intruders. This remedy may be found in

DR. ROGERS'

VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

Please bear in mind that

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP

is the reliable preparation.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP

is a palatable preparation.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is liked by children.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP

Positively destroys Worms.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP leaves no bad effects.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is highly recommended by physicians, and is unquestionably the BEST WORM MEDICINE IN THE WORLD.

Price, 25 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

JOHN F. HENRY, CURRAN & CO., Proprietors,
au20 1m 6 and 9 College Place, New York.

DIRECT TRADE.

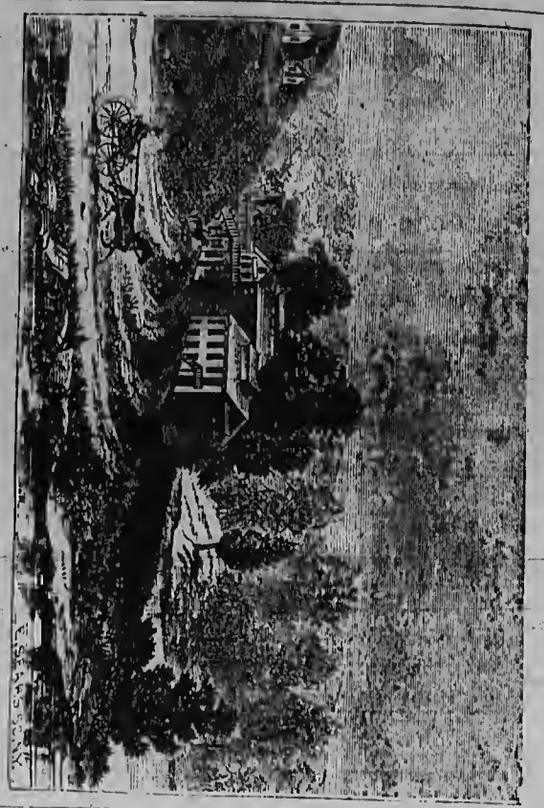
DIRECT TRADE.

Merchants and business men of the Mississippi Valley who desire to purchase IMPORTED GOODS of British manufacture, at little if any over half the cost of such when purchased in New York, should correspond with or call upon DR. THOMAS D. WORRALL, American Director of the Direct Trade Company, 24 and 26 Camp street, New Orleans.

Samples of stock constantly on hand. je18 4m

PAPER MILLS.

ATLANTA PAPER MILLS.



JAMES' ORMOND, PROPRIETOR.

OFFICE—NO. 43 BROAD STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

☞ For Specimen of "News" we refer to this issue of this Paper. ☜
Cash Orders Solicited. no6 1y

MEDICAL.

DR. C. M'LANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF

LIVER COMPLAINT,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increase on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder-blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them A FAIR TRIAL.

P. S. Dealers and Physicians ordering from others than Fleming Bros. will do well to write their orders distinctly, and take none but Dr. C. M'Lane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of base imitations. To those wishing to give them a trial, we will forward per mail, post paid, to any part of the United States; one box of Pills for twelve three-cent postage stamps, or one vial of Vermifuge for fourteen three-cent stamps. All orders from Canada must be accompanied by twenty cents extra.

DR. C. M'LANE'S

VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up HEALTHY, STRONG, and VIGOROUS MEN and WOMEN, give them a few doses of

M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS.

je29 1y row

RHEUMATISM NEURALGIA

WE CLERGYMEN WERE CURED

OF CHRONIC AND ACUTE RHEUMATISM, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica, Kidney and Nervous diseases, after years of suffering, by taking DR. FITLER'S VEGETABLE RHEUMATIC SIRUP. Prescription of J. P. Fitler, M. D. graduate of 1833. The only physician in the world's history treating these diseases thirty-nine years consecutively.

It is truly a certain cure, and in our judgment the only specific ever discovered.—Rev. C. H. Ewing, Media, Pa., suffered s

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. 20. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1874. NO. 37.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—The United States steamer Tuscarora, sent out to make soundings for the cable from this coast to Japan, is passing up the harbor.

The steamer Tuscarora left here just one year ago to-day to survey a line and make soundings for the cable to Japan.

The first attempt from Cape Flattery was abandoned on account of the lateness of the season, and she made soundings on and off the coast from Cape Flattery to San Diego; from that port she struck out for Honolulu, making soundings as she went from Honolulu.

She proceeded to Yokohama, via Boulu Island. The water found on this line was three thousand two hundred and eighty-seven fathoms. Two lines started from the coast of Japan, but were abandoned on account of the great depth of water. A line was run to Kurile Island, one of the Aleutian group, thence run to Onnalska, and from there to Cape Flattery. The greatest depth found on this line was five and a quarter miles.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The following letter was received here to-day:

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 2, 1874.

General W. H. Belknap, Secretary of War:

The recent atrocities in the South, particularly in Louisiana, Alabama and South Carolina, show a disregard for the law, civil rights and personal protection that ought not to be tolerated in any civilized government.

It looks as if, unless speedily checked, matters must become worse, until life and property there will receive no protection from the local authorities.

Under such circumstances it is the duty of the government to give all the aid for the protection of life and civil rights. Legally authorized to this end, I wish you would consult with the Attorney General, who is well informed as to the outrages already committed, and the location where the greatest danger lies, and so order troops as to be available in cases of necessity. All proceedings for the protection of the South will be under the Law Department of the government, and be directed by the Attorney General, in accordance with the provisions of the enforcement acts.

No instructions need therefore be given the troops ordered into the Southern States, except as they may be transmitted from time to time on advice from the Attorney General, or as circumstances may determine hereafter.

Yours truly, U. S. GRANT.

As a result of the conference held at the War Department this morning between Secretaries Bristow and Belknap and Attorney General Williams, the following circular was issued this afternoon, at two o'clock, to United States attorneys and marshals. It has the approval of the President, the substantial parts of the same having been communicated to him during an interview with the Attorney General at Long Branch:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, Sept. 2, 1874.

SIR: Outrages of various descriptions and in some cases atrocious murders have been committed in your district by bodies of armed men, sometimes in disguise, and with a view, it is believed, of overawing and intimidation of peaceable and law-abiding citizens, and depriving them of the rights guaranteed to them by the constitution and laws of the United States. Your attention is directed to an act of Congress, passed April 9, 1866, entitled an act to protect all persons in the United States in their civil rights and to furnish means for their vindication; to another, passed April 20, 1870, entitled an act to enforce the provisions of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, and for other purposes. Also to one passed May 30, 1870, entitled an act to enforce the right of citizens of the United States to vote in the several States of this Union, and for other purposes, which with their amendments make these deeds of violence and blood offenses within the jurisdiction of the general government. I consider it my duty, in view of these circumstances, to instruct you to proceed with all possible energy and dispatch to detect, expose, arrest and punish the perpetrators of these crimes, and to that end you are to spare no effort or necessary expense. Troops of the United States will be stationed at different and convenient points in your district for the purpose of giving all needful aid in the discharge of your official duties. You understand, of course, that no interference whatever is hereby intended with any political or party action, but in action of law, but protection to all classes of citizens, white and colored, in the free exercise of the elective franchise, and the employment of the other rights and privileges to which they are entitled under the constitution and laws as citizens of the United States.

These instructions are issued by the authority of the President, and with the concurrence of the Secretary of War.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE H. WILLIAMS,
Attorney General.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 4.—A fire in the town of Greenville, Mississippi, which is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, originated in the grocery store of Morgan & Platt, then crossed Mulberry, going east and Main street west, destroying the entire portion of the town from Mulberry street to the river, embracing nearly all the business houses of the place; in all seventy-three houses, valued at over $250,000, with about $150,000 insurance, of which the Planters' of Mississippi and Planters' of Memphis had a large amount.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The headquarters of the armies of the United States will be established at St. Louis, Missouri, in the month of October next.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Flags on the City Hall were displayed to-day in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the assembling of the first Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—President Grant is reported as saying that there is no intention on his part to use Federal troops in any Southern State unless their services are absolutely necessary to preserve the public peace.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 6.—The Appeal's Trenton correspondent says Governor Brown has arrived there to assist in bringing to justice the men who murdered the negro prisoners recently. It is asserted there that ten of the negroes taken to jail escaped. No trace of their bodies has been found. The report lacks confirmation.

CAMP ON RED RIVER, Sept. 1, via Fort Dodge, Sept. 8.—The command of General Miles met between four and five hundred Cheyenne Indians twelve miles from Red river, Texas, on the thirtieth of August, and after a sharp engagement, lasting five hours, drove them over thirteen miles of high and almost impassable canons, with the loss to them of twenty-five to thirty killed and wounded. Our casualties were three badly wounded.

FOREIGN.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 22.—The Bishop of Yucatan has issued an order excommunicating all Catholics who contract civil marriages.

The cotton crop in one of the districts of Vera Cruz, which last year yielded three hundred thousand pounds, this year exceeds six hundred thousand pounds.

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—To-day has been observed throughout Germany as a holiday, it being the anniversary of the surrender of Sedan.—In this city the Emperor William reviewed the Guards. In the evening his majesty will give a banquet, at which the Prince of Wales, embassadors and other dignitaries will be present. The day is celebrated with great enthusiasm everywhere.

MADRID, Sept. 4.—Two thousand men will be sent to Cuba in a few days to reinforce the Spanish troops on that island.

NAPANCE, ONT., Sept. 4.—Rev. William E. Carman, D. D., president of Albert College, was elected Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Canada, at the Montreal Conference, this morning. Dr. Reid declined to accept the office.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The members of the Austrian polar expedition, for whose fate great fears were felt, have been heard from. They were shipwrecked and took to sleighs, in which they succeeded, after a long journey, in reaching the Norwegian Island of Wardal.

FREIBURG, Sept. 6.—The Congress of the Old Catholics met in this city to-day. Dr. Schultz presided. One hundred and thirty delegates attended the opening session. The United States were represented by Chancery Langdon.

The president announced that Dr. Dollinger had summoned a conference of the Evangelical Greek and Anglican clergy at Bonn for the fourteenth instant.

MADRID, Sept. 6.—General Dominguez has arrived at Puigcerda, after defeating the Carlists under Zebalin. The Republicans suffered heavily, and the town is crowded with the wounded. The Carlists were attacked while retreating from Puigcerda, and lost seven hundred killed and wounded.

LISBON, Sept. 7.—The Portuguese minister of the interior has issued a notice that the Arabian ports on the Red sea are infected with the plague.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The work of laying the new direct cable from the Irish to the American coast has commenced. The following dispatch from the steamer Faraday reports the progress made:

Steamer Faraday, Sunday, Sept. 6.—We spliced the deep sea cable with the Irish shore end on the third, and had paid out 330 knots, when a fault was discovered on the fourth.

It was found that a wire had pierced the gutta percha while we were overhauling the cable. It got entangled in some wreckage, broke and was lost in 2,570 fathoms of water. The grappling apparatus was set at work and the cable recovered. Insulation is now perfect. We are in latitude 50.51, longitude 17.34.

DR. SWEINFURTH, who has written the last book about Africa, tells of a forest of acacia-trees he passed through. These are called by the natives soffar, a word signifying a flute. The name is given because the acacia-trees are pierced with circular holes by a small insect, and the wind, as it plays upon the openings, produces flute-like sounds. In the winter, when the trees are stripped of their leaves, and boughs as white as chalk stretch out like ghosts, the wind, sighing through the insect-made flutes, fills the whole air with soft, melancholy tunes. One who has traversed these soffar forests on a breezy, moonlight night can never forget the strange and weird effect produced upon the imagination. Does this soffar bear any relation to the Hebrew shophar?

From the Work.

NEW IBERIA, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Our third quarterly meeting was held on the fifteenth and sixteenth instant. Bro. Cobb was with us in great feebleness. He preached twice with good effect. We continued the meeting through the week. It resulted in ten accessions by profession. We then entered on the week of prayer, holding prayer meeting each morning, and having preaching each night. We devoted Tuesday to the especial work of praying for a fuller baptism of the Spirit on our ministry; Wednesday for the same on the laity; Thursday for the children of the church (a most telling meeting); and Friday for missions.

My charge is in good condition. God be praised! B. F. WHITE.

NEW IBERIA, LA., August 31, 1874.

SHREVEPORT, LOUISIANA.—Mr. Editor: Yesterday we closed the services of the week of prayer, adding the last three days for good measure—as the Lord had measured unto us. Friday, August 21, was observed as a day of fasting and prayer, with two services in the church. We had services every morning and night for ten days, closing yesterday afternoon with a precious love-feast. I had no ministerial help from abroad, but was supported by the efficient labors of Dr. Dunlap, of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. Mr. Landrum, of the Baptist church of this city. We work in perfect harmony. As a part of the result of this meeting twenty-eight souls professed conversion, twenty persons were received into the church on profession and four by letter. Some will join other churches. Some Christians who had well-nigh made shipwreck of faith, and others who had lived under a cloud since the terrible epidemic, were abundantly blessed with the smile of God, and restored to the joy of his salvation. Most of the entire membership were greatly revived, and enabled to renew their covenant vows to live for God and souls. We are very happy and very thankful.

Yours truly,
A. E. GOODWYN.

SHREVEPORT, August 31, 1874.

BIG CREEK CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We have during this month held two protracted meetings on this circuit. The first commenced on Saturday before the first Sunday, and continued for nine days. The second began on Saturday before the third Sunday, and was continued five days. Both meetings were truly interesting, and especially the first one. It was, indeed, an occasion of a mighty demonstration of the power of God. All that were in attendance were enabled to see in the clearest light of day that the gospel is still the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Some of the hardest and most unconcerned sinners—those who had long resisted the influences of the gospel—were brought to the knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus, and prayed for and exhorted their friends and associates, in the most pathetic manner, to come out from among the wicked, and to entirely forsake the vile associations of this guilty earth. The meetings resulted in about forty accessions to the church. The church is very much revived, insomuch that we feel very much encouraged. Ere the year comes to a close we hope that the church throughout the entire circuit will catch the revival spirit, and will be constrained to labor more zealously for the cause of our blessed Redeemer.

Yours fraternally,
L. C. CALHOUN.

AUGUST 26, 1874.

PLAQUEMINE BRULÉE, LA., ST. LANDRY CT., LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Our second Quarterly Conference was held at Plaquemine Brulee church on Saturday, the twenty-seventh of June, at which time we commenced a series of meetings that continued three weeks. God was mightily with us in convincing and converting power. As the result of this meeting the church was wonderfully revived, sinners converted, and fifty-one accessions to the church. The large majority of these are adults, extending to extreme old age, and including some of the most influential and valuable citizens of our community. Bros. Calvin Frazee, of Opelousas, and Abel Hoffpauir, of Kimball's chapel, were with us a part of the time, and rendered very efficient service. Some of the lay membership from Kimball's chapel were with us a few days, and pushed along the car of victory. God bless them.

The good work did not stop when the meeting closed. It is yet going on. We have held but few meetings during the past two months in which the people of God were not blessed and sinners awakened. On last Sunday, at Kimball's chapel, we witnessed one of the most powerful manifestations of the Holy Spirit we ever experienced—a pentecostal shower. Brethren spoke as God gave them utterance. To God be all the glory. Amen.

Up to the present time we have baptized forty and received sixty-four into church fellowship. We contemplate holding two or three other protracted meetings during the present Conference year. May the good Lord carry on the blessed work until all shall have been brought to a saving knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus Christ our Lord.

At the special request of the colored people of this community, we have labored among them occasionally. God has owned and blessed our efforts. Many have been awakened, converted and brought into the church. Pray for us.

ROBT. S. ISBELL, P. C.

AUGUST 27, 1874.

BRANDON (MISSISSIPPI) DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The District Conference for Brandon district was held at Scotland chapel, in Neshoba county, August 27-30. In the absence of a Bishop our worthy and efficient presiding elder, Bro. F. M. Williams, took the chair. Bro. W. M. Thornton was elected secretary, assisted by Rev. W. D. Dominick.

The attendance was very large, all the pastors except three and nearly all the other members being present. Some reports were very encouraging, while others were not so favorable. Upon the whole, the Brandon district is in as good condition as could be expected. Religious services were held every morning and evening. The brethren present were highly edified by the preaching, and much gratified with the cordial and fraternal hospitality extended by the citizens of Scotland chapel and vicinity. Rev. J. A. Ellis, agent of the East Mississippi Female College, was with us. The Scotland Male and Female High School, at Dowdville, Neshoba county, the East Mississippi Female College, at Meridian, the Whitworth Female College, at Brookhaven, and Centenary Male College, at Jackson, Louisiana, were all recommended to the public as worthy of patronage.

Sabbath, the thirtieth of August, was a great day at Scotland chapel. The love-feast, at nine o'clock, was a season long to be remembered by all who were present. After the eleven o'clock sermon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to a large number of communicants, who seemed to enter fully into the spirit of the occasion.

Our delegates elect to the Annual Conference are: Rev. Irvin Miller, Thomas W. Winstead, T. C. Tibbs and John Williams. Alternates—Rev. W. A. Ray, John G. Blackwell, W. C. Dowd and William Pennington.

Mutual Union was selected as the place of holding the next District Conference.

W. M. THORNTON, Sec.

The Southern Methodist Publishing House and the Cash System.

It has been our policy since 1866, when we were first placed in charge of the Southern Methodist Publishing House, to conduct the business of the house on the cash system. We have, however, at different times so modified our rule as to extend to preachers and other dealers a credit of thirty, sixty or ninety days on purchases of books, as well as on periodicals and Sunday school literature.

Our great anxiety to accommodate the views and wishes of our brethren, who were co-operating with us in recovering the fortunes of the Publishing House, more than anything else, induced us to depart from the safer method which we had adopted in entering upon our labors. To many of the preachers especially the cash system, strictly adhered to, seemed to hinder them in the circulation of our books, and, in some instances, to prevent their dealing in them altogether. Having passed through almost every stage in the life of a Methodist traveling preacher, and familiar by experience with the difficulties that confront him on a mountain mission or a poor circuit, our inclination led us to extend to brethren every facility within our power to enable them to circulate our church literature. In too many instances persons indebted to us have been unable, because of disappointment, to meet their liabilities at the time agreed upon, and frequently accounts that were to be settled in ninety days have remained unsettled for several years.

With all the vigilance and care that we have been able to exercise, there is now an outstanding indebtedness due the Publishing House to the amount of nearly one hundred thousand dollars. There is not another Publishing House on this continent, unless it be the Book Concern under the supervision of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at New York and Cincinnati, so far as we are advised, that has such an outstanding debt, or that has extended the same credit to its patrons that we have. The business of all other houses is done on the cash system or monthly settlements.

It is easy to conceive the embarrassment in which such an exhibit places us. The money now due us, if collected, would not only relieve us from all pressing embarrassments, but would enable us at once to cheapen every book in our catalogue. Our capital consists very largely in real estate, stereotype plates, and presses—all of which, however important to us in the prosecution of our work as a church, may become—indeed are—comparatively useless, without money to aid us in the accomplishment of the work the church expects us to perform.

Almost everything entering into our business requires cash. Money due us, in hands however responsible, unpaid, will not meet the demand. Printers, pressmen, book-binders, clerks and book-keepers—amounting to about one hundred persons—must be paid weekly, otherwise their families cannot live. We must be prompt, else they will work for persons who will pay them.

Besides this, we must pay cash for the paper on which we print our books and periodicals and Sunday school literature; also for ink, an occasional new font of type, and for stereotype metal—requiring in the aggregate between four and five thousand dollars, which we are compelled to have every week.

We have made the above statements that the church may see that we are not influenced by a captious spirit when we say that the business of the Publishing House cannot be conducted on a system of credit. Indeed on the credit system, the larger the amount of business we do the greater will be our embarrassment, and the sooner will misfortune overtake us.

In returning to the cash system, strictly, we feel confident that we will be sustained by every one who loves the church, and desires the success of the Publishing House, both in the ministry and laity. We think, too, it will be better for the preacher who purchases from us, as well as for the house. Persons who purchase books or subscribe for our periodicals will the more readily pay him promptly when they know that he has paid the cash for them.

It has been suggested to us that the cash system will greatly diminish the sale of our publications, as well as lessen the circulation of the Christian Advocate and our Sunday school papers. There is certainly no good reason why this should be so. The terms of subscription both for the Advocate and the Sunday school papers have always been cash in advance. We have in a few instances departed from this rule, especially in reference to Sunday school papers, and unpaid accounts yet on our books demonstrate the impropriety of this course, and teach us a lesson we will do well to observe.

In some instances there may be preachers who may find it inconvenient to make their first purchase of books. There is scarcely a charge, however, where there may not be found a steward, or some other brother, in the laity, who will cheerfully advance to his preacher a loan of fifty or one hundred dollars with which to order books that he may supply the people, especially as he knows that the amount will be returned to him in a short time. In selling books we had a large experience while traveling on missions, circuits and districts. Previous to the division of the church we made our purchases from the Book Concern in Cincinnati, and by the improper indulgence of the agents incurred a debt which we found ourselves unable to meet at maturity, as we had expected to do. Reluctant to ask further credit until we had paid what we owed, and yet desirous to supply the people we served the following year with Methodist literature, we took with us catalogues to all our appointments, and in all our pastoral visitations, and requested the people to subscribe for what books they wanted, and to pay us for them in advance, that we might be able to send the cash with our order. Before we made the round on our circuit we had enough books sold and paid for to make a handsome order. This was our most successful year in selling books. Our profits furnished us a good capital for future operations. With very little effort a preacher may engage to his people a large box of books, and receive payment for them before he sends us his order. Will you send for catalogues and give this method a trial?

The Publishing House belongs to the church. It is the property of the preachers and people of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and its cause is their cause, and its success is their success—and we believe they will sustain it.

A. H. REDFORD, Agent.

NASHVILLE, TENN., September 1, 1874.

Letter from Texas.

GRANBURY, HOOD CO., TEXAS,
August 20, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: In answer to a private letter I would say: The crop of wheat was good. About an average wheat can now be bought at $1 (coin) per bushel. Corn—about an average per acre—may now be engaged at about fifty cents—will most probably reach a dollar by New Year. Cotton looks very badly. In many places it has not rained this summer. Such a drouth has not occurred, I am informed, since 1860.

Stock-horses—i. e., wild mustang mares and colts—may be bought for about $15 a head, taking the whole herd; but large, fine American horses command good prices, perhaps as high as with you. The upper grades are high, the lower grades are very low. Taking the herd round, cattle sell for about $10 a head. Milk cows, with calves, from $15 up. Sheep bring $2 or $3 a head. Hogs about the same price as in Mississippi or Louisiana.

There is little or no vacant land worth having in this or perhaps in any of the adjoining counties. You would have to go considerably farther west to find much of that sort. The university lands—mostly choice lands—have been recently thrown upon the market at $1.50 per acre, with ten years to pay it in, bearing ten per cent. interest. No better than this could be asked. I have not seen the bill, but I am told that this is its import.

To reach this place, come up Red river to Shreveport; there take the Texas Pacific railroad to Dallas; thence, as best you may, seventy miles to this place. Or else go to New Orleans, thence to Galveston and Houston to Dallas. Or come with your wagons and teams overland, via Alexandria, Louisiana, or Shreveport. If you should choose this way, and will come prepared with tents to stand the weather, and camp out on the road, you may find it the cheapest way; and then you will need, when here, every comfort that you can bring. Whatever you may need where you are, you will find to be quite as needful here. Perhaps you may find it profitable to buy an extra wagon and team, so as to bring along some of the lightest furniture that you will have to sacrifice if you leave it, and may not be able to replace when you get here.

Hoping to see you out here soon, and that you may be well pleased when you come, I am

Yours truly, S. D. AKIN.

East Mississippi Female College.

MR. EDITOR: As there was no member of the visiting committee present at the examination and commencement exercises of this institution, I ask a place in your excellent paper for a few remarks in its favor. This institution has been in successful operation about two years, closing its last session about the first of July. The general examination was conducted mainly by the president, and was impartial and thorough, bringing to light, to the gratification of the audiences, the success of the past year's toil.

There were four young ladies who passed through the senior class, and graduated to the degree of mistress of English literature, viz.: Misses Annie Andrews, Hortense Marechal, Katie Gibbs and Ophelia Akin. The examination of this class of young ladies was not only satisfactory, but highly entertaining and gratifying to the intelligent audience who witnessed it from day to day, and evinced the most thorough and successful labor upon the part of teachers, and self-possession and readiness as the reward of diligence and application upon the part of the young ladies. The exhibition and concert were delightful occasions, occupying two evenings, in the presence of very large and appreciative assemblies. The compositions of the young ladies were well conceived, finely written and gracefully read. The music was charmingly discoursed, and was the evidence of successful teaching and learning. The pieces and dialogues recited were all in good taste, well executed, and often convulsed the house with laughter and applause. At the close of these exercises diplomas were delivered to the graduating class, accompanied by appropriate remarks from the president, and followed by an excellent and well-timed speech by Rev. Mr. Bardwell, pastor of the Presbyterian church in this place.

Our college is located in Meridian, a beautiful young city in east Mississippi, in a high and healthy country, with refined and cultivated society, surrounded with religious influences, and accessible from every point by rail. The church in east Mississippi and west Alabama ought to rejoice at the establishment of such a school, and at so central and accessible a place, for the education of her daughters.

The president of this college, Rev. J. W. Adkisson, "has been a professional and practical teacher in schools and colleges of high grade and first rank from his youth up. He has visited the best schools North and South, East and West, that he might acquire information in regard to the latest and best improvements in school government and tuition," and may be safely trusted with our daughters as an accomplished teacher and Christian gentleman. The other members of the faculty are experienced, successful and accomplished teachers, and deserve well the high place they occupy in the esteem of those who know them as such.

I earnestly commend East Mississippi Female College to all parents and guardians who wish their daughters and wards educated thoroughly in head and heart, so as to meet properly the duties, trials and responsibilities of life. I commend this school also because its prices suit well the financial pressure of the times. Board, washing, lights, fuel, etc., with tuition, for $200 for ten months. This school opens its next session on the second Monday in September. WM. B. HINES.

MERIDIAN, MISS., September 2, 1874.

JAPAN.—A letter from Captain Belknap, of the Tuscarora, announces that soundings to the enormous depth of four thousand six hundred and fifty-eight fathoms, or five and a quarter miles, have been found in the Japan stream. This is a greater depth by nearly a mile than has ever yet before been accurately sounded.

An announcement was made on Wednesday last, in the Official Gazette, to the effect that foreigners going into the interior, either at the instance of the government or of Japanese associations, must be furnished with passports or passes, issued by the minister for foreign affairs. Hitherto such passes have been granted to foreigners by the department under which they were engaged, or, if in the employ of private individuals, by passes obtained in any manner open to such private employers.

A heavy landslip occurred on the tenth instant at Nakadori, Ishikawa, one of the suburbs of the native town. An enormous mass of earth, sapped by the unusual volume of water which had fallen, was dislodged at about eleven o'clock at night, and was precipitated below. Twenty-eight Japanese houses have been crushed, burying in their ruins a number of their late inhabitants. Eight bodies have been recovered from the debris.—Japan Mail, July 18.

SIN is never at a stay. If we do not retreat from it we shall advance in it; and the further on we go the more we have to come back.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

THE REFUGE.

BY MRS. D. E. STEVENS.

There is a peace that all may know,
That fanchance ne'er can tell;
[illegible]
More sweet than Jacob's well;
'Tis found where flowed the bloody tide,
Close to our loving Savior's side.

There is a place from trials free,
From toil and restless care,
Where sorrowing Christians' pathway flies,
Safe from the tempter's snare.
'Tis found low at the Master's feet,
Who joys his suffering ones to greet.

There is a rest earth cannot give;
Poor, thirsty, famished saint,
Fly to this rest. O fly and live—
Go tell him thy complaint.
His tender heart feels all thy grief;
No other source brings such relief.

There on his loving heart recline,
Then look upon thy pain.
There every earthly wish resign,
And know what is thy gain.
Look back upon the grief of years,
And learn to smile at all thy tears.

O Christian, 'tis thine to know
The bliss of love divine—
For thee the living waters flow,
A glorious crown is thine.
Then linger not within the vale,
But haste thee, lest the foe assail.

Leave self, leave all—fly to his heart,
With humble, child-like faith;
There know this joy, this peace and rest;
'Tis thine in life, in death.
Go to that Christ who died, who rose—
None other can give such repose.

Christian Intelligencer.

What Is Temperance

IN RESPECT TO THE USE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS?

No. I.—BY J. W.

By the change which the recent session of the General Conference thought fit to make in our church rule respecting the use of intoxicating liquors, and which now awaits confirmation by the Annual Conferences, the question which heads this article is now fairly before us as a church. Temperance is the virtue which the old rule was designed to promote, and temperance is the virtue which the new rule is designed to promote. Moderation was the principle involved in the former; total abstinence is the principle involved in the latter. Which is the more excellent way of promoting temperance? This we must decide by considering the question above: What is temperance in respect to the use of intoxicating liquors? As to temperance itself—temperance in the abstract—there is not and has not been any controversy among our people. All manner of professing Christians proclaim themselves in favor of temperance—temperance in respect to the use of intoxicating liquors; but there are great and honest differences among all Christians, as well as among Methodists, as to what constitutes temperance in respect to the use of said liquors. Our church is now called upon to give a new answer to this question in her discipline. The answering of this question devolves upon the Annual Conferences; and it is well, for these councils of the church being composed almost altogether of preachers—men whose special office it is to be "stewards of the mysteries of the word"—they are the proper authorities to declare what is the mind of God on this subject. It would be a grand thing for the future of our church if all her ministers would now studiously and prayerfully enter upon a new and thorough investigation of this subject, so as to ascertain, each for himself, not what is the majority opinion of men on this subject of temperance, not what is expedient for the church to do under the pressure of the times, but what is the mind of God in answer to the question now before us. It would be a sublime spectacle indeed to see the thousands of ministers in our church liberating their minds for a time from all preconceived opinions on the question, and in the spirit of little children, feeling that they know nothing on the subject yet as they ought to know, sitting at the feet of the Master for a little season, inquiring diligently for the truth in this matter. Does not the resolution of the General Conference, adopted by such a "multitude of counselors," demand this service at our hands? Is it not demanded by the age in which we live—an age remarkable, on the one hand, for the fearful power of destructiveness which intoxicating liquor gives evidence of possessing—an age remarkable, on the other hand, for the new streams of light that science and philosophy are opening up on every hand, and which are available for the better investigation of all matters, moral and physical? Is it not possible that our former opinions upon this subject may have been formed without adequate personal investigation? May it not be the case that some light is now available to us on the subject that our fathers had not? Are we not just as liable to have our minds darkened with traditional teaching on this question as on many others about which we have learned better? Our opinions on other questions have changed; either the eyes of our understandings were more fully opened, or a greater degree of light radiated upon the matter in hand, or we attained a more commanding standpoint from which to view it. Why may not such be the case in respect to this temperance question? Surely this is no time for men in high places—editors and the like—to shake their hoary locks in rebuke of every movement which looks to the reopening of a question which they have long since settled for themselves and all mankind. Neither is it a time for Hotspurs to flash their raillery in the face of every elder who hesitates to follow in their impetuous lead. Let us all be impartial as we can, sincere as we can, faithful as we can in making up our minds how to vote on the question now before us, so that our votes shall be an intelligent articulation of the voice of the church of 1874, rather than of the church of 1774, upon the question: What is temperance in respect to the use of intoxicating liquors? In this spirit and with this purpose I am endeavoring to investigate this subject anew, and I propose, in subsequent articles, to give the results of the same as my humble contribution toward a righteous judgment upon the question now before us as a church.

Some persons are ready, I know, to answer this question at once, and so provide a speedy settlement of the whole matter, by saying: "Of course temperance in respect to the use of anything means a moderate use of it." Grant this as a premiss, and the question is very soon syllogistically settled. But is not this a false premiss upon which to start in this investigation? Moderation and temperance are certainly not synonymous words—they are not convertible terms—however loosely and interchangeably we may sometimes use them. It is always important, in the investigation of any subject, to have in our minds a clear understanding of the words with which we state our propositions; confusion here is blinding all the way through. Let us, then, settle the definitions of "moderation" and "temperance" in the outset. Moderation respecting the use of anything implies simply limitation in the quantity used; it is the antithesis of excessive use. Temperance respecting the use of anything implies abstaining from whatever use of it is detrimental to the human organism; it is the antithesis, not of excessive use, but of self-indulgence. Moderation relates to quantity, temperance relates to quality; hence the first is not necessarily a virtue, for the thing indulged in, however moderately, may be vicious; but the second is essentially a virtue, for it is the practice of duty to self, involving abstinence from the use of anything hurtful to body, mind or spirit. Moderation is not in antagonism to self-indulgence, but temperance is, for it implies "keeping under the body and bringing it into subjection" to the law of the mind. These distinctions are broad and vital. For instance, a man may be said to exercise moderation in the practice of some iniquity as compared with certain other men, because he runs not with them to the same excess in which they practice it; but certainly we could not say of him that because he exercises moderation in respect to said iniquity, therefore he is temperate in respect thereto; to be temperate in respect to any iniquity he must obviously abstain from it altogether. With this definition of temperance in our minds—and surely it is the true one—then it becomes evident that the nature or quality of the article must, in every instance, determine what constitutes temperance in respect to the use of it.

We are now ready to proceed with our investigation in answer to the question: What is temperance in respect to the use of intoxicating liquors? We shall endeavor to attain unto the mind of God on this subject, first, by searching it in the volume of his works; and second, by searching it in the volume of his words. In the volume of nature—the works of God—divine knowledge of what is good and what is evil for man is communicated to us in the phenomena of effects—"every tree is known by its fruit." Hence when we find out by analysis and observation that any given substance is evil in its nature, we have in that knowledge the mind of God in answer to what is our moral duty—what is temperance—in respect to the use of it. But in the volume of revelation—the word of God—divine knowledge of good and evil is communicated to us by the more direct process of precept and commandment. So far as moral duty is involved in the use of anything in the kingdom of nature, any command respecting it in the volume of revelation is always predicated upon the nature of the substance itself. For instance, the command of prohibition respecting a certain tree in the Garden of Eden was predicated upon the evil nature of said tree. "There is death in the fruit of this tree; therefore touch it not!" was the answer with which its effects would reply to the question: What is temperance in respect to the use of its fruit? But, in order that man might not be left to learn evil by actual experience of it, God utters his voice, commanding, distinctively and definitely, respecting said tree: "Thou shalt not eat of it, for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Here we see the relation which the volume of revelation bears to the volume of nature. The one does not substitute the other, but supplements it. And hence the mind of God respecting the use of anything is best ascertained by searching it in both volumes. The knowledge contained in the volume of nature often greatly assists in our understanding of the commands in the volume of revelation.

Supporting the Ministry.

MR. EDITOR: Much has been said and written on this subject, which apparently has been treated with little respect. As I am a member of the Methodist Church, and as I dearly love the church and its ministers, and being desirous to see it prosper, and the ministers fully compensated for their labor, which is indispensable to a civilized and enlightened people, therefore I have a suggestion, and at the same time a proposition, to make to all members who are farmers, and feel interested in the welfare of the church and its ministers.

I propose to give all the proceeds of one acre of land to the support of our ministers, and would like to see how many more there are on the Arcadia circuit who are willing to meet with such a proposal. Brethren, come up to the help of our ministers. They must have support, or abandon the ministry in order to gain a livelihood. God forbid that such a thing should occur. There are many delinquents inside the bounds of our circuit, all of which is truly embarrassing to the preacher.

I now suggest that every member who is a tiller of the soil plant one acre of land next year, and give the proceeds thereof to the support of his minister. It will be but a mere trifle to cultivate and gather the production of it. By this method we will be able to support our preacher, and in the end God will abundantly bless us.

J. M. M.

MOUNT LEBANON, LA., July, 1874.

The New Rule on Temperance.

MR. EDITOR: To pursue "S.'s" anti-teetotal proclivities we will commence with the assertion: "No church has a right to make a moral law." We do not see any force in this assertion when applied to the action of the late General Conference, as it made no new law upon the subject. The church, however, has a right to make a law, and the executors of law have a right to decide whether its violation is immoral or otherwise. According to Mr. Watson, an action is rendered moral by two circumstances—first, that it be voluntary; and second, that it be made in reference to a law which determines it to be good or bad. Hence any law that the church might make would be a moral law; but a drowning man will catch at a straw.

Another assertion that "S." makes is that the Bible in no way teaches total abstinence. In the investigation of the Scriptures we are not to take isolated texts and twist them into arguments to hang our theories upon. We must study each text in the light and true intent of the whole book. The whole design and scope of the Bible is to elevate and not to degrade man, to purify and not to poison him. It teaches sobriety and self-control—to crucify the body to all sensual lusts. No virtue was more persistently taught by Christ and his apostles than self-denial. No sin is more condemned by them than self-indulgence. From first to last the spirit of God's word is in favor of entire abstinence from every practice which tends to degrade or to destroy soul or body. God's word speaks sometimes of certain drinks as a blessing. In other passages it condemns certain drinks as dangerous and deadly. Unfortunately our translators of the Bible often translate both the innocent and the hurtful beverages under the common name of "wine" and of "strong drink." Moses Stuart, an accurate and profound scholar, after carefully investigating the subject for years, says: "My final conclusion is that, wherever the Scriptures speak of wine as a comfort, a blessing or a libation to God, they can mean only such drinks as contain no alcohol; but in those passages in which they denounce wine and prohibit it, and connect it with drunkenness, they can mean only the alcoholic intoxicant."

We do not know who "S." is, but, believing that the views of Bishop Bascom and John Wesley upon the subject of temperance will have as much weight with the church as his, we shall give a quotation from each of them. Bascom, before the General Conference of 1832, said: "And now that the engrossing question of total abstinence is arresting the attention of most evangelical churches in the United States, and in many of them becoming a term of membership, we are fully convinced it would be criminal in us to remain silent, and not to lend our aid and co-operation in purging the churches and redeeming the nation from this insidious yet alarming and desolating evil."

Mr. Wesley says: "First of all, sacredly abstain from all spirituous liquors. Touch them not on any pretense whatever." On their manufacture and sale he says: "It is amazing that the preparation or selling of this poison should be permitted, I will not say in any Christian country, but in any civilized State." He pronounces the gain of their sale "the price of blood, and says: "Let no lover of virtue say one word to extenuate the guilt of it." "Oppose it as you would oppose the devil, whose offspring and likeness it is." Of grocers in this traffic he says: "They murder mankind by wholesale, and drive them to hell like sheep." He denounces both the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors, unless for exceptional purposes, as a gross immorality. He says: "No man can get gain in this way without gaining the damnation of hell." One of the original rules of the Methodist societies, as drawn up by John and Charles Wesley, precluded not only drinking spirituous liquor, but also the traffic in it, unless in cases of extreme necessity. If the church had stood by its first rule there would be no necessity of making this second; but, as it did not, we hope that it has learned enough by sad experience to see the necessity of adopting the action of the late General Conference, and that it will show its faith by its works at the next Annual Conferences.

J. P.

MANSFIELD, Louisiana.

Southwest Louisiana.

MR. EDITOR: To redeem a promise long since made, I will endeavor to give as impartial an account as possible of this country.

It was the intention first to allude to the social and religious character of the people; but, as I have received letters of inquiry in regard to other matters, I think it best for the present to answer those inquiries first. That none may be deceived, I will state that I know of no churches in all this prairie region except Roman Catholic, Methodist and Episcopal. Perhaps nearly three-fourths of the people are Catholics, nominally or otherwise. There are Episcopal churches in several of the towns, and the others all over the country, except west of Bayou Plaquemine, where I heard it reported two years ago, in quarterly meeting, that there were thousands of people who had never heard a sermon. This country, as far as the Texas line, is comparatively poor and sparsely settled. I have seen, however, in that region some of the most independent people in the world.

This reminds me of a visit to Mr. Hiram Andrews', in that region, and a promise made to him in 1871. The year before I was there he made a trip to Galveston, and found a youth on a towboat who was in bad health, and went home with Mr. Andrews and died shortly afterward. Mr. Andrews was highly pleased with him, and requested me, if possible, to let his parents know of his death, as he lived nearly fifty miles from a post-office. E. C. Williams said his parents lived in Montgomery, Alabama. I do not recollect the cause of his leaving home, but believe his parents were represented as living at the time. It would no doubt afford his family great consolation to know he was well cared for.

Mr. Andrews, with his cattle, lives with much less trouble than those who fret over hired labor in making cotton and sugar.

This country is very peculiar in many respects. Strangers, on coming here, are often dissatisfied. They generally come by way of the Teche, where there are many who are interested in the rent and sale of land, and it is too often the case that they represent everything west of that region as particularly intolerable. I only write the truth in stating that many of them represent the people west as jayhawkers and thieves. The Vigilants did hang a number of cattle thieves in this and adjoining parishes last year. Two of these only were colored. They unfortunately, for the sake of doing a larger business, risked these white allies and were picked up. How strangely this sounds to the people of east Mississippi and other regions! They forget that they cannot raise a hog or even a cow in some regions; but the character of the people who do the stealing is too subtle to be picked up by the Vigilants. I have just been informed that several families in East Kemper, Mississippi, are about selling out for removal, and that two or three of them have consumption. As it is impossible to speak much of this country in this letter, I will close by a word of advice to all such. Be careful where you go and how you live. Everything depends on location. Those who have incipient consumption often get well, but almost all who stay indoors and take cough drops die.

J. B. RAMSEY.

ABBEVILLE, LA., August 19, 1874.

South Bossier Circuit,

HOMER DISTRICT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

MR. EDITOR: I notice a brief description of the Seashore camp meeting in the issue of the sixth of August, under the signature of T. The whole affair is certainly magnificent and on a grand scale. A number of the strong spiritual preachers of two or three Annual Conferences were in attendance, and three of our venerable and beloved Bishops also on hand, and a large and attentive congregation, surrounded with all the necessaries and conveniences of life, and no doubt many of the superfluities. Thus situated, we may reasonably expect great and glorious results. Camp meetings and district meetings are annually held in this district (Homer,) and the labors of our faithful ministers will be rewarded and show fruit in the day of eternity. But, alas! we have no seashore for a site for our camp grounds, and the result is we never have the presence of one of our beloved Bishops at our camp meetings or district meetings. Many of us are very desirous to see and to hear a Bishop preach before we die, and we annually contribute a small amount to assist in making up the Bishop's claim. I am now nearly sixty-two years old, and positively I have never even seen a Bishop's track, much less the man; and there are many persons in this part of the great moral vineyard in the same condition. It does appear to me that where three of these useful and good men can spare time from their laborious and many official duties to attend one camp meeting, one of them could surely spare the time to visit this district some time, and preside at a district meeting, or attend one of our backwoods camp meetings.

Your brother in Christ,

JAMES FORD.

Obituaries.

THOMAS COLVIT CORDILL, son of Joseph and Mary L. Cordill, was born in Franklin parish, Louisiana, May 19, 1873, and died in the same parish, July 3, 1874, after an illness of seven days.

LITTLE MINNIE MILTON was folded in her Savior's arms on the twenty-ninth day of June, 1874. She was the daughter of fond and devoted parents—Frank A. and E. Olivia Jones—and was the especial pet of brothers and sisters, none of whom will ever soon forget Sister Minnie. Many, too, bound to her by kindred ties, will ever remember with a sad pleasure little Minnie's sweet, artless face. She died at Hedgeland, Catahoula parish, Louisiana. She had passed only four summers on earth, being born on the ninth of August, 1870.

A. M. W.

DIED, of typhoid fever, in Rutledge, Alabama, August 8, 1874, RUBY, infant daughter of Mr. P. A. and Mrs. A. M. Tatum, of the same place, aged two years, three months and seventeen days. Just eight weeks before her departure from earth little Ruby sat on the steps of the pulpit in which her obsequies were since begun, and waited anxiously and almost impatiently to be dedicated to God in holy baptism, which was attended to by the writer at that time. May the consolations of divine grace sustain the bereaved ones, and may the whole family, in the sweet by and by, reunite in the home of the good.

B. F. BLOW.

DEPARTED THIS LIFE, near Chicot, St. Landry parish, Louisiana, ELIZA F. GRIGSBY, wife of L. M. Grigsby, and daughter of Joseph T. (deceased) and Sicily A. Boring. She was born in Claiborne parish, Louisiana, March 12, 1846, and died on the twenty-eighth of June, 1874. Sister Grigsby suffered, during her short illness, almost all the pain that flesh is heir to, yet her faith was firm to the last moment. She was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and died in the full triumphs of a living faith. She stated to her mother, a few hours before she breathed her last, that a day or two before she had been into the paradise of God, and that she saw there her departed father, her Sister Smith and Sister Milton, clothed in all the beauty of the redeemed.

A FRIEND.

MRS. AMELIA H. FOLSE departed this life July 7, 1874, in the thirty-sixth year of her age.

During the first part of her sickness she was much distressed, even to impatience, so great were her afflictions; yet toward the close her light became serene and steadfast. Jesus manifested himself to her, in the forgiveness of her sins, with such power that she was constrained to speak to his praise: "I am so happy." This degree of joy did not fall her during the rest of her life, which, alas! was only a few more days. In health she was much perplexed about denominational differences, but when our blessed Savior gave her peace her perplexities seemed to vanish. Her pastor visited her several times during her illness. Feeling desirous to commemorate the death and sufferings of Jesus, she partook of the holy sacrament with holy fervency, and with delight engaged in songs and prayers. After partaking of the supper, her family and friends, with her pastor, entered into a covenant to meet her in heaven. How impressive was that covenant!

A FRIEND.

MRS. LINDA SMITH, consort of R. M. Smith, Jr., and daughter of Major John T. and Susan L. Sibley, was born in Lake Providence, Louisiana, November 5, 1854, and departed this life at the residence of R. M. Smith, Sr., in Issaquena county, Mississippi, July 26, 1874. She was principally reared and educated in the city of New Orleans, and was married to R. M. Smith, Jr., at Monroe, Louisiana, December 18, 1873. While in New Orleans she connected herself with the Presbyterian Church, and lived a consistent Christian life to the time of her death. Her last illness was protracted. She was confined to her bed twenty-eight days. Her suffering was great. She was conscious the day before her death, and bid all in the room a final farewell. When asked by her husband if she was prepared to die, she exclaimed: "All's well, all's well!" We thank God for this last testimony of her acceptance with the divine Redeemer; and, while we mourn her departure, we tender to the bereaved husband, parents and friends our heartfelt sympathy. May we, too, who have loved her so well on earth, be prepared, when the summons comes, to say, as she did: "All's well!"

W. L. S.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

EDGAR NICKOLSON, son of Joseph B. and Elizabeth A. Wilkinson, was born June 14, 1863, and died July 28, 1874, aged eleven years, one month and fourteen days.

He has fallen asleep in Jesus. One of the beloved, none knew him but to love him. The writer knew him well, and can truly say that a lovelier and better little boy was not to be found in the Sabbath school or neighborhood. Our loss has been his eternal gain, and we doubt not that now, on this blessed Sabbath morning, he is with the angelic host around the throne of God, hymning the heavenly song of Moses and the Lamb.

Resolved, That in the death of our beloved scholar Edgar we (the Autaugaville Methodist Episcopal Sabbath school) have sustained a loss which we deeply deplore, and shall miss him sadly; yet we bow submissively to this painful dispensation of the divine will, and feel that the Lord doeth all things well.

Resolved, That this school hereby tender to the sorrowing family of the deceased our deepest sympathy for the irreparable loss they have sustained, and in testimony of which we direct that they be furnished with a copy of these resolutions, that the same be recorded upon the record-book of this Sabbath school, and that the same be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

ALBERT W. MCNEEL,
CHARLES E. DURDEN,
MIMS HOWARD,
Committee.

AUTAUGAVILLE, ALA., August 9, 1874.

DEPARTED THIS LIFE, in Franklinton, Louisiana, July 19, 1874, of pulmonary consumption, Mr. THOS. M. MAGEE, in the thirty-third year of his age.

Bro. Magee joined the church and was baptized about a year ago. He was kind and amiable in his nature, modest and retiring in his religious profession, esteemed and loved by those who knew him.

He delighted in hearing the Scriptures read, and having singing and prayer around his dying couch, and even in the solemn hour of death declared that he was not afraid to die. He leaves a disconsolate wife, and three children to her care, who, in the short space of a few revolving years, has witnessed the death of her mother, father, her oldest sister, her only brother, and now her beloved companion. May the mercy and grace of God sustain her.

A FRIEND.

At a called session of Franklinton Lodge, No. 101, F. A. M., held at the lodge-room in the town of Franklinton, July 19, A. D. 1874, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously passed:

Whereas, It hath pleased God, in the order of his providence, to remove from our midst, by the hand of death, our worthy and beloved brother, THOMAS M. MAGEE; therefore,

Resolved, That in his death the fraternity has lost a useful member of our order, society in general one of its true friends, and Christianity one of its brightest ornaments.

Resolved, That we bow in humble submission to the dispensation of God's providence which has deprived us of our brother, ever remembering that we, too, are fast passing onward to that bourn from whence no traveler returns, and that it is our duty to prepare for the solemn hour when we shall follow our brother.

Resolved, That this lodge be draped in mourning for the space of thirty days, and that the members of this lodge wear the usual badge for that time.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the lodge, and a copy of the same be furnished the family of the deceased by the secretary of this lodge, and also that a copy be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

J. F. CHAMBERS, W. M.
JOHN E. MORRIS, Sec.

REV. H. L. SMITH was born in the State of Georgia, November 13, 1832. He came to this State (Louisiana) many years ago. He was happily converted to God in an old cotton-field near this place (Pleasant Hill,) with his Bible open before him, and when no eye could see but the Savior's. This took place in October, 1853, and he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South about the same time, and was licensed to exhort in 1855, under Bro. Suggs, presiding elder, and to preach the gospel, in 1856, under Richmond Randall, presiding elder. He went into the army as a volunteer, January 6, 1862, and was made a chaplain just before the close of the war. He married Miss Lizzie H. McDow, of Selma, Alabama, June 7, 1865, and returned to this parish in the following July. He was employed by the presiding elder of the Shreveport district on first one and then another circuit or mission, where he was always faithful, always true and useful. He was also a Bible distributer for a time.

The final and fatal attack of his sickness took place last spring. He had gone to Mansfield on business, although in wretched health. On his return he reached my house very much exhausted and emaciated. However, he started home next day, but was compelled to stop at Bro. J. M. Gibbs', where he remained several weeks, receiving the kindest attention. He recuperated a little and finally reached his home, where he lingered a short while longer on the desolate shores of time, and then passed over Jordan's floods on Sabbath night, the fifth instant, at nine o'clock. On the prior Wednesday he received the blessed sacrament of the Lord's Supper, which seemed to add new strength to his faith and hope. He had his youngest child baptized at the same hour. A short time before his death he pointed toward heaven and said: "It's all right up there." A few minutes before he closed his eyes in death he asked for a little nourishment; but before it could be prepared God's host came, and the chains of mortal existence fell off, and he followed them into the Jerusalem above, to rest on the shady banks of Life's eternal river. He said at one time, during the early part of his sickness: "I never felt so great a desire to preach as I do now; and yet I have no strength, no voice." He said at another time: "I have no fear beyond." He indulged a fear about the last shock and throes of death—the strangling, struggling, grasping of the flesh after breath. The river, notwithstanding, was safely crossed, and doubtless he is now beyond the reach of every fear and pain.

In view of our excellent brother's death, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted by the Shreveport District Conference at its recent session at this place:

Whereas, It hath pleased almighty God, the great Shepherd and Bishop of our souls, in his wise providence, to remove from our midst a member of our body, Rev. H. L. Smith; therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Smith we have lost a most valuable member of our body, the church a most pious and zealous minister, his dear family a loving husband and father, while sinners have lost a true and faithful friend, whose voice and hand were ever lifted to warn and to entreat.

Resolved, That during all the trials and conflicts of mortal life, the bright escutcheon of his Christian character remained untarnished, down to the last moment, through faith in the anointed Jesus.

Resolved, That we condole with his dear wife and little ones, and that we offer them our Christian sympathy in their deep affliction and loss.

Resolved, That we comply with Bro. Smith's wish that Bro. John Pipes preach his funeral sermon, and that we request him to do so on Sabbath, the twenty-sixth instant, at such hour as he might select.

Resolved, That a copy of this paper be furnished the bereaved family, and another be sent to our paper, the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, for publication.

JAMES E. BRADLEY,
Chairman of Committee.

PLEASANT HILL, July 25, 1874.

THE United Presbyterian asks: "Where are the sermons?" and philosophizes in this vein: Perhaps upward of a hundred thousand of them are preached every week, heard by millions of people, yet where are they afterward? Men sit studying at them for days, reading, transcribing, comparing, digesting, writing, reviewing; and in fear and trembling, and with much effort, preach them on the Sabbath, after which they seem to have no existence. But the raindrops, which cannot be collected, are not lost; they show existence in the growth of flower and fruit, and in the fountains gushing from the hillside. So the sermons live in the improved lives of those who hear them, and in the streams of influence and Christian power which are gushing forth from the church of God.

HA IS the interjection of laughter; Ah is the interjection of sorrow. The difference betwixt them is very small, as consisting only in the transposition of what is no substantial letter, but a bare aspiration. How quickly, in the age of a minute, in the very turning of a breath, is our mirth changed into mourning.

THE rain on the earth and the Spirit on the heart are both from the Father in heaven. Then let the Lord be praised for his goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

TWO LOVERS.

BY GEORGE ELIOT.

Two lovers by a moss-grown spring:
They leaned soft cheeks together there,
Mingled the dark and sunny hair,
And heard the wooing thrushes sing.
O budding time!
O love's blest prime!

Two wedded from the portal stept:
The bells made happy carollings,
The air was soft as loosing wings,
While petals on the pathway slept.
O pure-eyed bride!
O tender pride!

Two faces o'er a cradle bent:
Two hands above the head were locked:
Those pressed each other while they rocked,
Those watched a life that love had sent.
O solemn hour!
O hidden power!

Two parents by the evening fire:
The red light fell about their knees
On heads that rose by slow degrees,
Like buds upon the lily spire.
O patient life!
O tender strife!

The two still sat together there:
The red light shone about their knees;
But all the heads by slow degrees
Had gone and left that lonely pair.
O voyage fast!
O vanished past!

The red light shone upon the floor
And made the space between them wide;
They drew their chairs up side by side,
Their pale cheeks joined, and said: "Once more!"
O memories!
O past that is!

Mabel.

A TRUE STORY.

"Will you go to meeting with me this afternoon, Mabel? Come; this is your last day here; do go once before you leave the White mountains."

"What do you do in 'meeting?'" asked the gay, beautiful, "High Church" New York belle, with just a shade of contemptuous inflection in her voice.

"Well—there will be no sermon; there never is in the afternoon. The good minister sits in the aisle, in front of the pulpit, and invites any one he likes to make a prayer. Any other one, who feels the need of it, may request that he or she be mentioned personally in the petition; and those who wish it may relate his or her experience."

"How very funny! All the old women 'speaklu' in meetin',' and scarlng themselves dreadfully. I'll go. I dare say I shall have a good laugh, if I don't fall asleep."

So we walked through the long, hilly street of Bethlehem, in the pleasant hour before sunset, in the sweet, warm, hazy air of early autumn. The glory of the Lord shone round about us; for all the mountains were burnished, splendid, gorgeous. In purple and crimson and gold. Mabel's deep gray eyes grew large and luminous as her artist-soul drank in the ineffable beauty.

The building was so crowded with the villagers and many visitors that it was with difficulty we obtained seats, apart from each other. Mabel found a place next to a young, sad-eyed, sweet-faced country woman, and looked, with her flower-like face and superb French costume, like some rare exotic by the side of a humble mountain daisy.

The minister opened the services with a few fervent, simple words, and then said: "Brother ——, will you lead in prayer?"

A plain old country farmer rose in the aisle before us, rugged, brown and bowed. His prayer—sincere, and, I doubt not, as acceptable, because sincere, as if it had been offered in polished language—made Mabel shake with laughter; and when he prayed that the Lord would "send down a long, soakin', drizzlin' rain, to cherk up the late crops," I laughed too, in that painful, agonized way which all know who have been betrayed into laughing on solemn occasions.

He sat down, and there was utter silence for a moment. Then a high, sweet woman's voice, far in front of us, sang out, clear as a bell:

"Sweet hour of prayer! sweet hour of prayer!
That calls me from a world of care,
And bids me at my Father's throne
Make all my wants and wishes known."

The congregation joined in; only one verse was sung; and again the strange, solemn silence fell upon us.

It was broken by the sudden rising of a lank, awkward boy, who hurried out, in a frightened nasal whine:

"I want to inform the congregation that I've found Jesus," and he dropped down as suddenly as he rose.

This time Mabel was convulsed with laughter; and when a girl in long corkscrew ringlets popped up, immediately behind the boy, with "I've found a hope," uttered in a sort of spasm of rapidity, and down she went, Mabel was in such aggravated spasms of mirth that I became terrified lest, in the just anger of those around us, we should be ignominiously expelled.

But the sweet singer, who saw in these utterances only the contrite souls of the speakers, burst forth triumphantly with:

"Oh, gift of gifts! oh, grace of faith!
My God, how can it be
That thou, who hast discerning love,
Should give that gift to me?"

Only one verse, as before. Then the pure notes, high above all the other voices, died away, and a strange-looking woman arose.

"I hain't got no gift o' language," said she; "but I want to give in my testimony. I've allers been a wicked woman; I've allers gone agin my conscience. I've made my folks to hum miserable for many a long year; and I'll allow thet thet's the reason God has poured trouble after trouble down outo me, till I was e'en-a-most drowned in 'em; an' I was about to take my own life, when some one—it must hev ben one o' God's angels—went singing through the woods. Shall I ever forget the words?

"With tearful eyes I look around;
Life seems a dark and stormy sea."

She stopped, her voice breaking into a hoarse sob, when the other sweet, pure voice immediately went on:

"Yet, 'mid the gloom, I hear a sound—
A heavenly whisper—'Come to me.'

"Oh, voice of mercy! voice of love!
In conflict, grief and agony,
Support me, cheer me from above!
And gently whisper: 'Come to me.'"

I looked at Mabel. She was not laughing. A strange, awed expression rested upon her features; her head was bowed down as the sad-eyed woman at her side rose, and, turning to the last speaker, said, in a low, gentle voice:

"My sister, we all thank our heavenly Father that he put his strong arm of protection about you while it was yet time; and since you have joined with us in profession of your faith, there has been no one more earnest in those good works without which faith is nothing."

Then, reverently folding her hands, she prayed that God would pardon her dear sister, and give them all love and charity, one for another, and his peace, which passeth all understanding.

Out rang the sweet voice:

"Haste thee on, from grace to glory,
Armed by faith, and winged by prayer!
Heaven's eternal day's before thee,
God's own hand shall guide thee there."

Mabel was now silently crying, and big tears were blinding my eyes, when a grand old man rose from his seat. Bent and feeble now, I could see that he had once been tall and stately, looking as the Puritan fathers must have looked when they first stepped upon "the stern and rock-bound coast" at Plymouth. Fine, clean-cut features, and eyes still blue and piercing remained, but his voice trembled painfully as he said:

"I am ninety-four years old, and most of those I love have gone to the grave-yard before me; I hev lived all these years in Bethlehem, and, boy and man, hev tried to serve the Lord; and I owe my blessed hope in my Savior to the teachin' an' example of my good and pious mother."

Then, with aged, trembling hands uplifted, he prayed that all the children present might be brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. After a moment's pause he added that, if it were God's will, he should be glad to leave this sorrowful life with the dying leaves outside, and hasten to meet his mother and his Savior in heaven. "Would God grant it for Jesus' sake. Amen."

With the "amen" the singer's voice, purer, more uplifted, seemed to bear that wearied soul away on wings of harmony, as the glorious words fell from her almost inspired lips:

"Jerusalem! this day I greet
Thine while thy gracious gate,
Free entrance to those longing feet,
At last released, though late,
From wretchedness and sinning,
And life's long weary way;
And now God's great gift winning
Eternity's bright day."

I almost expected the ceiling of the church to float away, and heaven's angels to come down. I looked again at Mabel. Every vestige of color had left her cheeks, and she sat motionless, like one in a trance.

Near us was a handsome, well-dressed man, past middle age, who had listened with absorbed attention to all that had been said, and who now seemed strangely agitated. In a moment he arose, and then he spoke:

"I presume that no one here remembers a poor boy, who nearly fifty years ago left this place to seek his fortune. Fatherless, motherless, with no claim upon any one here, I wandered away with a heavy heart to earn my bread. Many a time have I been exhausted, discouraged, almost hopeless, but my mother had taught me to pray—her dying gift to me was her own Bible. It has gone round the world with me, and God has never forsaken me. I have long been a rich man, and I have come once more to these grand hills—my childhood's home—to testify my gratitude to my Maker for all his goodness in some substantial way. I never intended to speak as I am now doing; but after what I have heard and witnessed I should be most ungrateful if I did not give my testimony and belief in the abounding love and mercy of God. Oh, friends! take me back! Let me be one with you in this most sweet and touching service, and, when I leave you, pray that I may never be ungrateful for the earthly blessings he has heaped upon me, and for the far more priceless gift of his Son Jesus Christ."

Every one had listened to the stranger in deep silence. Every heart had thrilled responsive to his words. It seemed as if the very breath of heaven had entered into the little church, cleansing and purifying each soul present, and filling it with inexpressible devotion, when, like a soft, trembling wave, the pure young voice came floating down the aisles, and we heard the solemn acknowledgment:

"A charge to keep I have,
A God to glorify;
A never-dying soul to save,
And fit it for the sky."

He sang alone; a feeling too deep for utterance had prevented the rest from joining in, and many heads were bent in silent prayer and thanksgiving.

But oh! what do I see? Pale as death, her eyes dilated, her whole frame quivering like an aspen, Mabel arose and essayed to speak. The muscles of her mouth refused to obey her will, but with a painful effort she faltered in low, broken tones, "Pray for me," and sank down upon her knees.

Oh, it was the voice of God that spoke in those three little words, "Pray for me," uttered so low, yet distinctly heard in every part of the church. Joyful tears were streaming down many women's faces, as for the first time the singer's voice trembled, broke, and at last sobbed through the humble entreaty:

"Just as I am—without one plea,
But that thy blood was shed for me,
And that thou bidst me come to thee,
O Lamb of God, I come."

As she finished, a young minister who was living in the same house with us, and whose life had been nearly sacrificed in missionary labors, rose to pray. The radiance of Heaven was upon his face, and God spoke through him to the awakened soul of Mabel in a way I had never heard before. The words poured out in an inspired flood, carrying her soul resistless upon its mighty waves to repentance, faith, prayer, praise, love, joy, peace, and at last heaven! Oh, it was surely a miracle which we had witnessed that day in Bethlehem!

With a solemn benediction the services were ended; and when we had come out it seemed as if the very heavens were rejoicing over the tidings which had gone up of the soul that day redeemed. All that was gorgeous and beautiful in color had taken possession of the sky. The clouds, like great gold and crimson banners, were moving high over our heads, furling and unfurling, as if carried by exultant angels, marching and singing their triumphant hallelujahs.

And Mabel, still white as an Easter lily, but with her deep gray eyes full of a proud humility, a new happiness, a steadfast resolution to live henceforth for Christ, walked by my side, watching the great glory of the heavens, with her arm lovingly entwined in mine. We did not speak; we had no need, for our thoughts were in perfect accord. I had witnessed the wonderful mystery of her instantaneous "change of heart." I knew it was well with the child.

Beautiful, gay, fashionable, the pet of society, I knew her also to be a staunch upholder of all that was noble, good and pure, and I felt a thorough conviction that she had indeed given herself up, body and soul, to him who had chosen to send his Holy Spirit into her heart, as she was going out of the little village which bore the blessed name of Bethlehem.—Fanny Barrow, in the Christian Union.

Mohammed and the Koran.

John Muehleisen Arnold, D. D., honorary secretary of the Moslem Mission Society, and late her British majesty's consular chaplain at Batavia, says the Christian Intelligencer, has recently issued from the press of Longmans, Green & Co., London, a volume entitled Islam—its History, Character and Relation to Christianity, which contains a large amount of new and interesting matter relative to the life of Mahomet or Mohammed, and the sacred book—the Koran—which is attributed to him.

It is well known that the beauty of the style and language of the Koran was appealed to by Mohammed as a proof of its inspiration, which theory is implicitly accepted by his followers. Dr. Arnold shows that this claim of the superior elegance and purity of the language of the Koran has been disputed by eminent Arabic scholars, and he quotes, in evidence, from the writings of the Arab philosopher Abd-el-Messih ben Isaac-el-Kindy, who lived a century after Mohammed, as follows:

"From my own intimate acquaintance with the book—for I am an Arab—I know that it contains corruptions, that it is destitute of order, style, elegance, or accuracy of composition or diction. It contains contradictions from first to last; one sentence abrogates another, and the whole is puerile and weak, yet it is said that men and genii together could not produce its equal. The writings of El Kals and other poets and learned men, who lived at or before the time of Mohammed, are clearer, more elegant and more subtle. Their discourses are deeper and plainer, and with them Mohammed contested when they questioned his rights and rejected his claims. I have read a so-called Koran, written by Maselmat el Hanafi, without any of the aid and assistance which your friend (Mohammed) received in his book. Had the former appeared before his it would have been accepted and received as the orthodox revelation, supposing even it were brought forward on the plea of the beauty of language, elegance and order alone."

Dr. Arnold points out some of the contradictions with which the Koran abounds, exposes the perversions of prophecies which are quoted as establishing the Arabian prophet's claims, and indicates passages by which the divine sonship of Christ, in the sense in which it is held by Christians, may be largely sustained from the words of the Koran itself. The cause of the delay in the burial of Mohammed, which has hitherto lacked satisfactory explanation, is thus accounted for:

"Mohammed died at the age of sixty-three, on the eve of a Monday, the twelfth day of the month of June. Having predicted that he would rise from the dead on the third day, he had charged his followers, before his death, not to bury him earlier on any account, as was customary; and in this way alone can we fully account for the delay which occurred in the burial. Though special blessings had been promised to those who should obey this injunction as to his burial being postponed, yet, when his body began to decompose on the third or fourth day, they were compelled to inter it, which they at last did very hastily on the night of the following Wednesday. We can easily comprehend why these facts as to the real cause of the delay of the burial were carefully excluded by the ordinary biographers of Mohammed, and it was left to El Kindy to record them. This also will alone account for the report of Dauzan—that Mohammed's body was buried unwashed, without the burial linen, but with the red scarf round his waist which he had worn during his last illness; and explain, above all, why Omar swore that Mohammed was not really dead, and that those who believed in his death should have their hands and their feet cut off. Omar himself predicted that, like Moses, the apostle of God might have disappeared for forty days. But while thus laying hold of the false notes which had been held out by the Arab prophet himself, his followers were suddenly overtaken by the net of dissolution; and, under these circumstances, it became naturally too late to wash his body, and to put it in the usual burial linen."

IT IS to wine-drinking, says an examiner of musty records, that we owe the origin of the kiss. After Micennius caught his wife sucking his finest wines through the bunghole of a barrel with a straw, the custom became general in Rome for the husbands to kiss the lips of their wives, that they might discover the quality of their good ladies' stolen libations; and Cato the elder recommends this plan to the serious attention of all careful heads of families.

WE ARE always looking into the future, but we see only the past.

Cow-Trees.

Among various kinds of trees which are celebrated for their utility, not the least valuable are those which yield a milky juice that does not solidify, and may be used as a nutritious article of food. Trees of this kind bear the general name of cow-trees. Of the different varieties of this species, the best known and most useful is the Brosimum Galactodendron. This tree is usually more than a hundred feet high, and is found in abundance on the sea coast of Venezuela. The milk of this tree is obtained by making incisions in the trunk, in very much the same way as the juice is obtained from the sugar maple trees. Its taste very much resembles that of sweet cream, and it is much used by the natives as food, being nourishing and wholesome, with but one unpleasant feature about it, which is that it is slightly glutinous.

In Venezuela and New Granada is also found another tree very similar to the one above described, and for medicinal purposes more valuable. This is the Clusia Rodactodendron, the milk of which is considered a specific for dysentery. The milk of this tree contains a resinous and astringent property, and an aromatic tonic substance. The natives use the milk of this tree freely, and by them dysentery is not feared, though their climate is one calculated to produce that disease. One of the peculiarities of this remedy is that it not only cures the disease, but prevents its return. This milk can be kept a year without losing its taste or its valuable medicinal properties.

Of this tree, and of the valuable properties of its milk, Mr. R. B. White gives a very interesting account. He states that out of a party of from five hundred to seven hundred men who were employed in building a railroad near Buenaventura, in western New Granada, where the climate was extremely unhealthy, a large number of cases of dysentery broke out, not one of which proved fatal. In some cases the milk was given with success when other remedies had failed, and when all hope of effecting a cure had been abandoned. He suggests, with much show of reason and propriety, that the milk of this tree should be tried in cases of cholera.—Our Church Work.

Massachusetts—Liquor—Opium.

Alas for Massachusetts! Her troubles seem to increase as she grows older. In spite of all efforts to make the world virtuous, her own people will have their cobblers and ale, and not only their cobblers and ale, but, oh, horrors, their opium! We discover from the New York Express that, having passed the prohibition law in all her towns and villages, she is now threatened with what may be called an opium plague. The cheering cocktail and the exhilarating cobbler being taken from him, the son of New England resorts to opium, and, what is even worse, the daughter of the same sacred soil seeks oblivion in the same Lethe cup. The result of all which is that Massachusetts is rather puzzled. To give up the spoils of the noble fight for temperance is too bitter a pill to swallow; but, on the other hand, it is a difficult matter to decide between the relative merits, or rather demerits, of whisky and opium. The fact is the learned pundits of Massachusetts have made an error in supposing that the absence of the first causes a craving for the latter. There are in New York not a few of the opium dens that are so graphically described by Charles Dickens in his "Mystery of Edwin Drood," and throughout the North, prohibition or no prohibition, the habit of opium-eating is indulged. One of the most soothing and invidious of all narcotics, it is used more extensively by those whose mental faculties are called into extensive use, and by those who would seek oblivion of a blighted past. Statistics show that the abandoned women of New York are the largest purchasers of laudanum, and that they are in the habit of using it daily. Students, authors and other Northern thinkers are sadly given to its use, and in many instances men who would not drink a drop of spirituous liquor indulge constantly in a habit which is infinitely more pernicious. So Massachusetts need not be alarmed. It may retain its prohibition and opium-eating will not increase one jot.—Episcopal Methodist.

A MOTHER'S LOVE.—Some time since, one very cold day in winter, a woman was obliged to cross a mountain with her little baby boy in her arms. When she got to the top of the mountain she became very cold, and began to fear that she and her little babe would freeze to death; but she resolved to take some of the clothing from herself and wrap it around her child and save his life. So she folded her shawl all around her infant; then she laid him out of the wind in a cleft of the rock. The next morning she was found dead near by, but the babe in the cleft of the rock was quite well and warm.

When that child grew up he must have loved that mother very much, for he knew how she had died to save his life.

He could not remember her face, for he was too young when she died; but he loved her, and was not ashamed of her, though she was a poor woman. If he had been, I think the boys in Scotland would have felt like taking him to some high mountain and leaving him there to freeze to death.

One day, many years after, a minister was relating this story, when a soldier came forward, and, with tears in his eyes, said: "That was my mother; she died to save my life; she hid me in the cleft of the rock. I love her; but I can never tell how I love my Savior, who, when I was in danger of dying the second death, said to me: 'I will put thee in the cleft of the rock, and will cover thee.'"

THE Lord has many fine farms from which he receives but little rent.

Religious Intelligence.

BERLIN has 100,000 less inhabitants than New York; yet the American metropolis has 470 places of worship and the German only 60.

THE most costly Protestant church in America is in process of erection for a Presbyterian society in New York. It will cost $900,000.

THE London Church Herald says: "John Bunyan was a sectarian of some natural ability, and no small literary power and ability?" That will do!

THE Turkish government has formally stated to the United States minister that it intends to adhere to its recent prohibition of the sale of Bibles in Turkey.

AN ARTICLE in a New York paper gives the number of churches within the city limits at about 350, which allows one church to every 2,857 inhabitants.

THE Earl of Dalhousie by his will leaves £20,000 ($100,000) to the Free Church of Scotland for the payment of salaries, of $1,000 a year each, to each of the pastors of the four Free churches on his estates.

MR. SWING is preaching now on Sunday mornings in McCormick's Hall, Chicago, to crowded audiences. The hall holds three thousand persons; and is packed at each service. More than twice as many persons as his church would contain are thus enabled to hear him.

THE Protestant Episcopal Convention of Virginia took action on temperance, providing as an amendment to the general rules that any person making, buying, selling or using, as a beverage, intoxicating liquor shall be, upon conviction, debarred from membership in the church.

THERE are three hundred different sects in England, and seven have sprung up during the past year. They call themselves Congregational Temperance, Free Church, Home Mission, New Methodists, Protestant Union, Union Christians, Unsectarians and Christian Dolphins.

CONGREGATIONALISM is not very strong in Canada. In the Province of Ontario only 13,000 members are reported, against 331,000 of the Church of England and 287,000 Wesleyans. The statistics are not very well kept, however, and the body is probably larger than these figures indicate.

THE cathedral now being built on Fifth avenue, New York, will be the most costly marble edifice on the American continent. It is expected that at the present rate of progress twenty or thirty years will elapse before it is finished, although a portion of it will soon be completed and ready for use.

THE Wesleyan Missionary Society has four missionary districts in South Africa—Grahamstown, Queenstown, Natal and Bechuana (on both sides of the Orange river)—to which the Transvaal republic mission has been added. Their statistics include colonists as well as natives. These districts embrace 15 circuits, 28 missionaries, 5,219 communicants and 5,346 scholars.

THE first delegated General Conference of our Wesleyan brethren in Canada, which will be held in Toronto, commencing September 16, is to be composed of both clerical and lay members, the latter elected by the district meeting in May last. To aid in defraying the expenses of the General Conference a collection was ordered to be taken up during the month of July.

THE work of the Presbyterian mission at Tabriz, Persia, has called forth persecution. A number of Mohammedans became interested in the mission services, which seems to be the case in other parts also of this field. They were apprehended, and such of them as had professed the faith of the Christians were severely beaten. Subsequent dispatches from Teheran proclaimed toleration for the Christians.

BISHOP CUMMINS has written a letter to the senior warden of Emanuel Episcopal church, Louisville, Kentucky, acknowledging the receipt of the certified copy of resolutions adopted by the congregation, expressing their desire to be received into the communion of the Reformed Episcopal Church, and giving his hearty consent to the reception of the congregation as co-workers in the great cause of reform.

THE attendance upon the Protestant services at Vezir Keopreu, in the Marsovan district, western Turkey, having recently increased from thirty to three hundred, a church has been organized and a native pastor called to that place. The journey to the ordination was rendered difficult by the unusually deep snow which covered Asia Minor last winter, and which, following upon the drouth of last year, has produced great distress throughout the country.

IN ONE of his recent speeches in England, Baboo Protap Chunder Mozoomdar, of India, said: "The name of Christ was not heard with indifference or hostility among the advanced thinkers of India. They had come to feel that to that soul they all owed a deep debt, repaid only by the best and purest of lives they could live in this world. Christians and Brahmas were approaching common ground, where they were destined to meet as friends and brothers."

THE movements toward consolidation and reorganization of the Methodist forces of the Dominion have at last culminated in the union of the Wesleyans of the eastern and western Provinces and the New Connection Methodists. The name of the united body is to be "The United Wesleyan Methodist Church of Canada," and, in case of further union with other bodies of the Methodist family, "The Methodist Church of Canada." The General Conference of the consolidated body, which has a ministerial membership of 1,000 and a lay membership of 100,000, will meet in Toronto in September.

MISSIONARY ADVENTURE.—The Lucknow Witness contains a most thrilling account of Rev. E. Johnson's missionary adventure in Afghanistan. This brother, it will be remembered, commenced that most interesting work in Southallston, now progressing so rapidly under the care of Messrs. Boerresen and Skregrud. He received a frightful injury from a tiger, escaping with the loss of an arm. His adventures in Afghanistan are marvelous, but will prepare the way for the spread of Christianity in that country. We may give some of the thrilling scenes described hereafter.

A PETITION is in course of signature among the extreme High Churchmen of England praying that the archbishops and bishops may be relieved from their duties in the House of Lords. The petitioners say that they do not wish to be understood as expressing any opinion for or against the present union between Church and State; but it is easy to guess what their opinion is. The passage of the public worship bill will be sure to send the whole High Church party into the Church Liberation Society.

JAPAN.—The Rev. Mr. Ballagh gives a most interesting account of the imprisonment and release of Fulagawa, one of the early converts to Christianity. He suffered much—everything but death. From the prisoners he received worse treatment than from the officers and jailors. They insulted him, and ridiculed his profession of Christianity. While in the midst of terrible sufferings he was liberated through the instrumentality of Hon. Mr. DeLong, the United States minister, to whom he sent grateful acknowledgments. He is an artless, earnest speaker, of winning address, and is doing a great work for the salvation of his countrymen. His release seems miraculous.

A NEW Hebrew theological college is to be located at Cincinnati. The building will be commenced as soon as $160,000 are raised. The annual income of the proposed college will be about $50,000, and with so ample an endowment no expense will be spared to secure the very best available talent on both sides of the Atlantic. At one time it was hoped that the learned Emanuel Dentsch might have been prevailed upon to take charge of the college, and since his death Dr. Wise has been in communication with the most learned philologist of Berlin, the only rival of Max Muller in all Europe. The education thus to be provided will be free in all its branches to Jew and Gentile alike.

THE twenty-first Conference of the French Methodist preachers was held at Nimes. The Conference proper opened on the fourth ultimo, and continued over a week. The Vice President Hocart occupied the chair in the place of President Cook, deceased. Subsequently Rev. J. P. Cook, brother of E. Cook, deceased, was elected president, subject to confirmation of the British Conference. Notwithstanding the difficulties of carrying on the work, for lack of men and material aid, the results have been encouraging. The slight decrease of fifty-nine members reported is more than counterbalanced by a large increase in the numbers on trial. Reports show there are over 2,000 members and nearly 10,000 stated hearers.

WEAK in numbers as the Moravians are—only 6,000 in this country—their missionary zeal is so genuine and effective that as a body they challenge the admiration and respect of the larger denominations. Next September their society for propagating the gospel among the heathen will be eighty-six years old, and during this period they have spread out their missions far and wide, into Greenland, Labrador, West Indies, among the North American Indians, Barbadoes, Central and South America, South, West and East Africa, Australia and West Himalaya. In these provinces there are 100 mission stations and outstations, with 3,767 laborers of all classes. These have established and sustained 310 schools of all grades. The number of converts is 69,401, which is more than three times the number of church members in the whole denomination in Europe and America.

THE commencement week at Andover this year varied imperceptibly from former occasions. There were the examinations of the graduating class; the society anniversaries, sermons, speeches and alumni greetings. The seminary turns out twenty-one new ministers, some of whom go direct to fields of labor. The address before the Porter Rhetorical Society was delivered by Rev. Dr. Peabody, of Cambridge, on the evidences of science and religion, in which he held that many of the supposed antagonisms of science and religion are imaginary. Rev. Mr. Atwood's report in the Congregationalist makes Dr. Peabody say that the development theory is not necessarily unchristian. "We might look complacently on an ancestry of apes if we might look forward to a posterity of angels. At any rate, these theories have no validity as against Christian faith." At the alumni meeting the subject of lay preaching was discussed, after two essays had been read upon it, Rev. Mr. Lamphear, in the negative, taking the ground that our polity regards a man as a minister because of his Christian culture, and that the times do not require laymen to enter this distinctive work. When the subject was thrown open to the meeting a very general sentiment was expressed in favor of lay preaching, or, as Dr. Smith put it, lay activity. The discussion was closed by Prof. Fisk, of Chicago seminary, who emphasized the point that in the West material interests are so pressing that it is difficult to induce young men to go through the curriculum of college and seminary, and in the East the expenses of college life are so great that only the sons of rich men can afford a liberal education, and the ministry is only scantily recruited from among them. Yet at the same time the West needed culture in its pulpit. It was the poorest place in the world to send young men out to grass. The problem is a difficult one how to reconcile these opposite conditions. Among the visitors at Andover was Prof. Bevan, of London, who is to fill Dr. Scudder's pulpit in Brooklyn for the rest of the season.—Christian Union.

The Christian Advocate,

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—112 CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the Patronizing Conferences.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
REV. A. J. BRIGGS.
REV. J. W. RUSH.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY
REV. J. O. JONES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

One Year	$2 00
Six Months	1 25
Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all Ministers of the Gospel, traveling or local and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers, with EIGHT DOLLARS.

Moderation and Peace.

The Inslances of violence and bloodshed which have occurred lately in the Southern States are to be regretted by all good citizens. Nothing but the necessities of self-defense can justify a resort to force. We would condemn in unmeasured terms all violence and indignity offered to individuals who are peacefully exercising their rights as citizens in the field of politics, or who are pursuing lawful avocations in any section of the country. Whether they be school teachers, preachers, farmers or politicians, they are entitled to protection. We would by no means overlook outrage and wrong, on whomsoever and by whomsoever perpetrated. If Northern Methodist preachers and teachers of colored schools in Texas have been murdered or persecuted because of their calling or political and sectional affiliations, the perpetrators of such crimes deserve the severest punishment. We are sure that the good and intelligent people of the South will neither countenance nor tolerate a course of outrage and violence toward any on the ground of mere political differences. They should rather interpose with their own lives for their protection, if necessary.

In reference to the cases which are reported to have occurred in Texas we have not heard all the particulars, and there may be some facts which will place them in a different light from that in which some of the Northern journals regard them. But if men have been murdered or molested, who were engaged in peaceful and lawful pursuits, the communities in which these crimes have been perpetrated should not rest until the guilty parties are brought to justice. Preachers and teachers, whether their mission be to whites or blacks, are entitled to protection, and, if honest and faithful in their calling, they are entitled to our respect. We know some worthy persons who teach negro schools, and we honor and esteem them none the less on that account. We could only wish that the colored children throughout the land had more of these competent and conscientious teachers. We believe that our church and our church people in Texas and elsewhere will frown upon all measures which would molest or injure any who may have come among them for lawful and peaceable pursuits. If their social, religious and political opinions are distasteful to us, and utterly at variance with our own, if upright and honest, they should be treated with courtesy, and not a hair of their heads should be touched by the hand of violence.

Those lamentable instances of riot and bloodshed, which are becoming somewhat frequent of late, are the natural outgrowth of our present social and political condition. It is a trial almost beyond endurance for a people to be oppressed by incompetent and dishonest officeholders, and to see their material interests sacrificed and their homes destroyed by the greed and villainy of those who have no other interest in the country than the plunder which they can extract from our impoverished land. That intelligent people who pay the taxes, and whose homes and families are being reduced to the extremity of want by a set of heartless vampires, should sit still and make no effort for deliverance until their ruin shall be completed, is more than can be expected of even a subjugated community. We doubt whether any people in the North would have borne these wrongs and indignities with anything like the patience and forbearance which our people have displayed.

The animosity of the negroes against the whites is the result of a systematic training by their political leaders, in large measure. Years of misrepresentation and incendiary teachings, combined with the political exigencies of the times, are beginning to bear fruit, and threaten to ripen into a war of races. Whatever the consequences, let it be remembered that the Black League was organized before the White, and that the tendency to a white man's party has been compelled by a united and armed organization of the negroes. In the main the white people have acted in self-defense to save the country, if possible, from utter destruction, and to protect their women from outrage and their homes from brutal violence. We cannot blame the white people of the South for organizing for peaceable political objects, nor for the purpose of protecting themselves against a race that has been incited to the most malignant hatred toward them.

There is danger of unreasonable violence, and of a departure from the line of strict self-defense. This is evident in the late affair at Trenton, Tennessee, and perhaps also in the trouble at Coushatta, in Louisiana. Lawless and reckless men commit high-handed crimes, and their course is without excuse. The negroes are the victims of bad associations and of false teaching. Kindness and forbearance toward them is a plain duty. In time they may be brought to understand their true interest, and to shake off the delusions with which their corrupt and sometimes their more conscientious leaders have inspired them. The enemies of the South are but too happy to have occasion of reproach. Whether justifiable or not, they will use every instance of violence against us. The truth is not likely to reach the public mind so as to rightly affect the public opinion of the nation. There is too much ignorance of the real situation, too much political interest involved, and too much sectional prejudice to make this possible. Moderation and peace are both right and expedient. Passion should be repressed, and affairs should be guided by calmness and wisdom. Nothing should be done that will not stand the severest scrutiny of justice and right. If deliverance cannot be achieved by these means—by a peaceable ballot, and by a firm assertion of principles—it cannot be secured at all.

The Southern States are in more danger from the tolerance of lawlessness, and from unjustifiable acts of violence, than from any other source. Hot-headed, unreasonable and reckless men should not be permitted to lead, nor should their deeds be countenanced. It is the duty of all intelligent and religious people to interest themselves actively in the exercise of their privileges as citizens. They must not only condemn wrong, but they must, as far as possible, prevent it. Instead of being led by hacks and pot-house politicians, they should stand at their posts, and assert their right to guide and influence in the nomination and election of their representatives and rulers. And, more than all, the hour has come when they should seek to restrain all extremes of temper and conduct, and to "seek peace and ensue it." The fact cannot be concealed that affairs have reached a crisis, and that the South is approaching a point in her probation before the nation which is to determine her destiny for a long time to come. Will our people have the vigilance and firmness, combined with the requisite wisdom and moderation, to pass through the ordeal without reasonable reproach? Will they have the temper and prudence to bear themselves without stain through the trials and provocations which surround them?

Whatever calamities may threaten, we should be careful not to precipitate them upon ourselves. We need political redemption, but we also need domestic quiet and peaceful industry. Perhaps all these may be secured by self-control, and by a vigorous, united and temperate action. By recklessness and violence all may be lost. We believe there is no purpose of lawlessness or of force on the part of our people. They stand simply on the defensive, and mean to exercise their rights as citizens in a peaceful way. Our words of advice and caution are to guard them against the peculiar dangers to which they are exposed. The passions and prejudices engendered of ordinary political strife are always fraught with mischief, but here we have; added to these, occasions of trouble of a far more serious nature. It is a time to watch and pray, that the wiles of the devil may be overcome.

EXPERIENCE is a torch lighted in the ashes of our delusions.

The Grape in Palestine.

A writer in the National Baptist, who has evidently spent much time in Palestine, gives an account of the culture and use of the grape, which goes far to explain the "Bible wine question." He says:

Is the Bible for or against prohibition? Perhaps the land can lend some light upon the subject. Is Syria, the home of the grape, and "Hebron, its primeval seat," according to Jewish tradition, a land of inebriates? Did God promise the children of Abraham a land of the vine to make them drunkards, or is the vine put to other uses than to feed men and women the poison of alcohol? In this article I intend to give a simple narrative of the uses to which the Syrians of today turn their vineyards. These vineyards abound upon the steep sides of Lebanon and Hermon, of Carmel and the mountains of Judah and Israel, and it is a beautiful sight to see these mountain-sides so neatly terraced and cultivated and dressed with the vine, olive, fig and mulberry-trees.

In the winter season the vines are cut back, so that only three or four thrifty arms remain, and these the three or four nearest the root, and which are to give the new wood and fruit of the approaching season. These arms are supported by crotched sticks a cubit or two long, which keep the vines from the ground, and give them room for ventilation and for putting forth their clusters. The soil in the vineyards is kept loose and free from weeds. The vines are planted from eight to ten feet apart. The heavy dews from April to October furnish the vines and fruit with sufficient moisture, for they get no rain during this season. The clusters grow to an enormous size. I have measured them half a yard long, reminding one of the grapes of Eschol, which the spies had to carry on a staff between them to avoid breaking the cluster. The varieties are as many and the qualities as varied as among our American grapes.

In July the natives begin to use the green grape in making sherbet (which means "a drink.") The sherbet of the winter and spring, made of orange blossoms, is very sweet, rich in perfume, and pleasant to the native palate, but not very refreshing; and the hot July weather compels the stomach to crave an acid, and the green grape pounded to a pumice in a mortar, strained, sweetened and diluted with water, furnishes a drink which rivals our best lemonade, and which the mountaineer employs as a substitute, and hesitates not to offer it even to his governor; and I have heard the latter compliment the beverage and approve its excellence by requesting his cup-bearer to refill his silver bowl. When the grapes ripen, which they begin to do in August, the natives eat them with their dry bread, and they become a staple article of daily food.

The grape season lasts through August, September, October and November. The grapes of Syria, being so saccharine, are easily converted into raisins, which, when dry, are pressed into cheeses, and then cut and eaten with bread, as we cut and eat our cheese. But we must hasten to the wine press, and see the Arabs manufacturing the juice of the grape. And first of all, the press deserves attention. Either cut out of the solid rock or built with large stones and cement upon the surface of the soil in the vineyard, it is a simple affair. The vats are usually four, six or eight feet square and one foot deep, slightly inclined to one end, where a small trough conducts the expressed juice into a receptacle of masonry, holding fifteen to twenty-five gallons. The grapes are placed in the vat, and a native or two with bare feet tread the grapes, and the juice runs off in the cistern, where it is carried in jars or leathern bottles to the home. The process of extraction is very simple and primitive—the vats just the same as those used two thousand years ago. The juice thus extracted is converted into molasses, wine, vinegar and jelly.

Molasses, called by the natives "dibs" (and in Hebrew "debesch,") is grape-juice boiled to a sirup; and while it retains the grape taste and a slight acid, we regarded it as more healthy and palatable than our own New Orleans. The natives often make their evening meal upon bread dipped into a bowl of "dibs," as children in this country frequently eat bread and molasses.

The wine is made by the grape-juice being placed in skins (in the New Testament called bottles,) and the smallest possible vent allowed for fermentation to keep the skins from bursting. The wine is generally reduced with water. There are a series of different wines in Syria, generally called after the place where it is made. As a whole, the wine of Syria would scarcely be called a heavy wine, rarely heavier than Bordeaux; seldom as strong as Port, Sherry or Madeira; but, although so light, it is scarcely ever used by the natives as a beverage. Comparatively but little wine is made in Syria, and that little is usually consumed by foreigners and travelers. During my two years' residence in the land I never saw a native intoxicated.

The vinegar is similar to our wine vinegar, and is mostly made from the pumice of the grape, after the juice has been extracted. Besides its ordinary table use, a pleasant drink is made by mixing it with sweetened water. The jelly is simply the juice boiled down; and by the addition of a little sugar it makes a very nice condiment. Besides being served as a compot, it is not infrequently presented as a sherbet, after being dissolved in water.

They also prepare a jam from the fruit, which is served as the jelly. These are the uses to which the denizens of Palestine put their vineyards at present—a worthy use, you will surely say, as worthy as our apple-orchards, and performing for the Syrians a greater variety of purposes in their dietetic economy than our apple-orchards do for us.

One can then look in Palestine upon a vineyard with delight, and invoke God's blessing upon it. The scene is not one which suggests drunken revelry and beastly excess, but it is the poor man's hope and the rich man's joy. And the longing of the traveler is that those old, hoary mountains may again be terraced from base to summit with vineyards, and cities quaff at every fountain; that the valleys may re-echo with the watchman's voice, who guards those fields from violence by night and by day, and whose call in the vineyard to his fellow still is: "Watchman, what of the night?"

Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and Thou Shalt be Saved.

BY W. S. PLUMER, D. D., LL.D.,
COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA.

That seems to be a very simple way—this way of faith in the Redeemer. It well suits my case. I am foolish and ignorant; Christ is the wisdom of God. I am very sinful and guilty; Christ is the Lord our righteousness. He is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth. I am very weak; I am without strength; Christ is the power of God unto salvation. I have no cloak for my sin. But the merits of Christ are the linen, white and clean, with which my poor soul may be beauteously arrayed. My tears cannot wash away my sins; but the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin. In him sinners boast the possession of greater blessings than angels have—even redeeming love and redeeming grace.

And then I am not required to bring any price in my hand. By the gospel, salvation is without money and without price. It is well for me that I am not required to pay for salvation. If I were, I should be forever lost. I am a poor sinner—as poor as my sins can make me. I have nothing to commend me to a just and holy God. I deserve all the evil he has denounced against me. I am guilty. I am all unworthiness; but Jesus is worthy. I rely on Jesus. I take Jesus for my Savior. He is all my desire and all my salvation. He has borne all the curse. He has died, the just for the unjust, the innocent for the guilty. He is the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. By his stripes we are healed.

One said: "I am no scholar, sir; I have taught myself the last fifteen years, and now I can read a good bit of the Bible; but I can't make out all the big words, you know, sir. Ah! sir, that word 'believe,' that is a great word with me; it is everything to me; and, as far as I can make out, there is no other way of getting to Jesus. He says: 'Come unto me;' and, thank God, I am very happy in coming to him by believing on him."

Oh, yes! no one can rely on Christ too much. He bids us do that great work—that work of God—believing on the Lord Jesus. To believe on him with the heart is always unto righteousness. It is to look unto him. It is to come unto him. It is to receive him to all the ends and purposes of a complete salvation. It is to reject all other plans, and accept the gospel plan. It is to refuse all other physicians, and accept the one great Physician.

Nor is there any danger of being rejected if we come to Christ. He says so: "Him that cometh unto me, I will in no wise cast out." Then, since men began in faith to call upon him, he has never spurned any from his presence. The penitent thief, the trembling jailer, and millions on millions have looked to him and were saved. In all the annals of time can be found no record of a sinner believing with the heart and then perishing in his sins.

Moreover, Christ's atonement is enough. He has satisfied. He has done enough. He has suffered enough. He has shed enough blood. His undertaking is a glorious undertaking; and it will appear more and more glorious to all eternity. His merits are all-sufficient.

"If all the sin that men have done,
In will, in word, in thought, in deed,
Since worlds were made, and time begun,
Were laid on one poor sinner's head,
The blood of Jesus Christ alone
Could for this mass of sin atone,
And sweep it all away."

Who dare say there is any limit to the sufficiency of Christ's atonement? I have never seen nor heard of any good man attempting so presumptuous a sin.

Then the door is so open: "Behold, I have set before thee an open door." And every needed preparation is made: "Behold, all things are ready." And the Lord is in such earnest: "As I live, saith the Lord, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but (I have pleasure) that the wicked turn from his way and live; turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?" And I am in such need of help, of just such help as is offered me in Christ Jesus. "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is none else." Of God, Jesus is made unto us wisdom and righteousness, and sanctification and redemption. He is all and in all. It is only by faith in Christ that we enter into rest—a blessed rest, that shall last forever.

"Rest, weary soul:
The penalty is borne, the ransom paid.
For all thy sins full satisfaction made.
Strive not thyself to do what Christ has done.
Take the free gift, and make the joy thine own!
No more by pangs of guilt and fear distressed.
Rest, sweetly rest."

BELIEVE IN THE LORD JESUS CHRIST, AND THOU SHALT BE SAVED.—Christian Age.

REVIVALS IN TEXAS.—Rev. S. D. Akin, writing from Hood county, August 20, says:

Along the frontier of Texas there is a considerable revival of religious interest. Every charge in the frontier district of the Northwest Texas Conference has been visited by the reviving power of the Spirit, and I hear of quite a number of revivals elsewhere. If you have any itching to visit our frontier, let me extend a hearty invitation to the editor and the agent to attend our camp meeting on the Paluxey, to commence on Thursday before the fourth Sunday in September.

Temperance People, Awake!

A circular has been issued by liquor dealers in this city (New York,) says the Christian Intelligencer, urging that all "persons engaged in the sale and manufacture of liquors, wine and beer in every city, village and town of the State" of New York, "should form themselves into liquor dealers' protective unions, preparatory to holding a State convention, at which delegates from the different organizations can convene and adopt such plans and measures as will give them not only protection, but a representation of a very large and heavily-taxed business." Immediate organization is called for in order that their "grievances may be properly placed before the people, the majority of whom are always willing to discriminate in favor of justice and equality before the law." And the precise object of this State convention is that liquor makers and dealers "may have a voice in framing a law, to be submitted to the next Legislature, which will restore" to them their "invaded rights."

The friends of temperance cannot too speedily combine against this mischievous combination of the liquor traffickers of all kinds to control the next State election with their money and political power. The "liquor dealers, brewers, distillers, wine and spirit traders and maltsters of the State of New York," to whom this circular is addressed, have felt the pressure of wholesome laws, and especially those which restrict their Sunday trade. And now they are girding themselves to resist these "attacks" of "an over-zealous class of fanatics, blinded as to the proper manner to secure what they call social reform." Their plan contemplates the imperative necessity of meeting these "blinded fanatics" "at every point where they make war upon" their "interests."

We have given much of the language of this circular, so that all good citizens, and especially the active friends of temperance and of the Sabbath, may know what to expect from these formidable foes of existing laws which protect the community, and of those other public movements by which the traffic has been repressed for the time. These men are forming a combination for a desperate fight. It will probably extend to every other State in the Union where they are not free to do as they please. Their resistance is not surprising, but its magnitude and strength should not be underrated for a moment. Prompt and decisive measures alone can avail against their compact combination.

Enlightened public opinion, free and full discussion before the people in all proper forms, and a thoroughly Christian basis of principle and organization are necessary to keep what has been secured, and to follow up the victories already gained. Friends of religion, and of moral and social reform, should be warned in time, and should act vigorously. A brave resistance is half the battle. Aggressive movements wisely arranged, and then carried out "in the strength of the Lord," will insure the triumph.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT.—A late number of the Baltimore Sun gave, from official data obtained at Annapolis, says the St. Louis Christian Advocate, some startling facts in regard to crime and its punishment in that State since 1869:

"Twenty-two have been executed since that year. Of these, seventeen were colored, eleven of whom were hung for murder and six for rape. There have been also seven commutations since 1869 of convicts for murder from death to imprisonment, of which five were colored convicts and two whites. Thus it seems that, while the negro population constitutes but one-fourth of the whole population of Maryland, it has furnished since 1869 more than three-fourths of the candidates for the gallows."

To this the Baltimore Methodist adds:

"When it is borne in mind that the negroes of Maryland are on a higher plane of civilization than their brethren in other Southern States, and that nearly half of them were freed before the war, and have enjoyed whatever advantages appertain to that condition, including, to a certain extent, the opportunities of education, what must be the condition of those Southern communities in which the black element is vastly larger, and in some States the dominant element! It is a fearful picture to contemplate. And what must we think when it is proposed to add to the political power with which this huge, seething mass has been already invested, the social equality which is the true and logical result of the civil rights bill?"

OUR MISSIONARY for September is an excellent number—we think better than any yet issued. It should have a circulation of at least one hundred thousand by January. Writing under the head of "Our Circulation," the editor says:

The second number reached an edition of 17,500, of which, perhaps, 1,000 were used as specimens sent to District Conferences, etc. By August 12 our circulation in Georgia was between 10,000 and 11,000. And the good work goes on. And South Carolina comes to the front. The Columbia District Conference subscribes for 1,135 copies. At the Batesville District Conference, White River Conference, Rev. J. H. Dye, presiding elder, as the Western Methodist reports, 1,050 of Our Missionary were ordered for use on the various circuits and stations. The Knoxville District Conference ordered over 600. What say the other Conferences?

We ought to have an edition of 100,000 by January 1, 1875. It is with the church.

OH, MAN! born to command, why dost thou degrade the dignity of thy being in allowing thyself to be enslaved by sin and overpowered by satan? Thou wast made to give laws, and thou renouncest the title of thy original nobility.

The Pope and the Bible.

Bishop Reinkens, the Old Catholic, does not believe in withholding the Bible from the people, and shows that it is no genuine Catholic doctrine or practice, but an innovation, a usurpation. In an address at the late Congress of Constance, according to the authorized report, he said:

"The Romish bishops and their clergy forbid the reading of the Holy Scripture. In vain do they appeal for sanction of this prohibition to the Council of Trent; for that council simply declared one Latin translation—namely, the Vulgate—as authentic (that is, as trustworthy,) and further forbade any interpretation of Scripture contrary to that which has always been received in the church, according to the unanimous testimony of the fathers. An essay of Cardinal Wiseman's states Rome's motives for withholding the Scriptures from the faithful. He says: 'God has not commanded us to read the Bible.' But Christ says: 'Preach the gospel to every creature;' and what is the Bible but the record of prophetic teaching? Do we suppose that, while the Jews and heathens of the first age could comprehend the gospels and epistles, we Christians are incapable of sounding their depths? If we are told that the Pope alone has the key to Scripture, what is to become of us when a Pope, as is the case with Pius the Ninth, knows no syllable of Greek or of Hebrew? Cardinal Wiseman says: 'God has not given to the church the instinct to circulate the Scriptures.' But in the first centuries no limit was placed upon their use; they were regarded as the common heirloom of Christians, and translated into every tongue. Scripture is the reflection of the sun of righteousness, and we will not obscure his rays. The Old Catholics committed to my charge know of no prohibition, no impediment in the way of reading the Bible. Rather I urge you all to read it. The apocalypse and the historical portions of the Old Testament may be more adapted to learned study than to general use; but I commend the great bulk of the New Testament to the diligent study of all. The preaching of the apostles is a more immediate proclamation of the word than the preaching of the best of the Popes. Above all, the Lord's discourses should be constantly read; the Sermon on the Mount speaks home to every believing heart. Wiseman says: 'Restrictions on the reading of the Bible are the safeguard of the church's unity.' True, if you mean the unity of Rome. You say that harmony will be disturbed. Yes, if you mean that harmony which sets a triple crown on the Pope's brow, which invests the Pope with the right to condemn mankind; for Christ has said: 'Judge not, that ye be not judged.' Holy Scripture is the Father's open house; let us enter in and sit down at Christ's feet. Our soul should turn to the divine book, as the flower to the sun. Not from curiosity, not to puzzle ourselves with the debates of the schools, should we read, but that we may draw ever nearer to God. Christ alone has the words of eternal life."

What is the Pope's denunciation of such a man but a fresh declaration of war against the Bible?—Bible Society Record.

THE following obituary of Mr. James Elder, by Bishop McTyeire, will be read with melancholy interest by the many friends of our deceased brother in New Orleans and Mobile. He was a good and useful Christian, and his death is a loss to the church.

James Elder died in Columbus, Kentucky, August 16, 1874. He was a native of Ireland, a thorough Protestant, an intelligent Methodist, a steadfast Christian, and a sterling man. I met him first in 1816, in Mobile, Alabama, where he was a leading member of the St. Francis Street church. Dr. Boring, the presiding elder, in putting me in charge of an important post, which had just been deprived of its able and popular pastor—Dr. Summers—by removal to editorial work in Charleston, gave me much judicious and well-timed advice—such as so young and inexperienced a man needed. For this service I have ever felt grateful. Among other things, he said this: "If at any time you need counsel, you will find the following persons, in your membership, safe and wise counselors;" and near the head of the list named was James Elder. I ever found him answering this description. His judgment was weighty, concise, practical, and never pragmatical. Next to good sense and honesty, candor was his quality. His first marriage was to Julia, a daughter of Major F. C. Heard—a happy marriage, which brought him many pleasant connections and associations, and left him one child—a daughter. Several years after this bereavement he was again blessed in marriage, with Mary, daughter of my excellent friend, Mrs. Susan Brown, niece of Bishop Waugh. The widow and her child will have the sympathies of the many who know their great loss and ours. Bro. Elder, like many others who had known fortune and luxury, was industriously making his way up from the ground-start, and, as agent of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, had lately taken up his residence at its northern terminus. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Atkinson, writes me that he was his Sunday school superintendent, and was to him the like true and helpful friend he had been to me twenty-eight years before. He died in peace.

THE Baptist Union well says: "There is no question that the power of evangelical religion over the minds of men is on the increase, and even rationalists are compelled to confess that no other belief works moral reformation among the people like this."

A CLERGYMAN in Dundee, Scotland, has announced to his congregation that in consequence of his inability to procure coals for his study fire, he has discontinued studying, and will preach his old sermons until coals can be procured.

Books and Periodicals.

THE SOUTHERN REVIEW for July has the following table of contents: 1. The Race for Empire in Europe. A very thoughtful and instructive exhibition of European affairs, and well worth a careful reading. It gives a very luminous and thorough insight of the policy of the several European powers, and of the movements in progress for the supremacy which the leading nations are striving to obtain. 2. The Relation of the Church to Education. An essay which will command general attention, and we hope will stimulate our people to increased zeal and liberality in the patronage and endowment of our denominational schools and colleges. We do not understand that the author takes ground against the public school, but he insists most stringently that education is a part of the work of the church, and that to neglect it is to be criminally negligent. 3. English Home Life. This is a review of "Memorials of a Quiet Life," in which Augustus Hare is the central figure, and in which we have many sweet and beautiful pictures of the domestic and religious life of a noble and godly man, as he was surrounded by friends and family, as he was engaged in his high calling as a minister, and as he at last fell asleep in Jesus. The reviewer draws largely upon the Memorials, and for substance gives us the book and its characters with remarkable discrimination and taste. 4. Foreknowledge and Free Will. A note informs us that this article is the chapter on the necessitarian argument from the foreknowledge of God, taken from Dr. Bledsoe's "Examination of Edwards on the Will," and published years ago. It is as conclusive as anything can be on this perplexing question, and can be accepted, we should think, by all as an ultimatum until the light of eternity shall make its disclosures. 5. Heroines of Old and New Romances Contrasted. Short, but brilliant, acute, and exhibiting the highest order of critical taste. Nothing could well be more entertaining. 6. The Irish Peasantry. Here we have an article of rich flavor, necessarily moistened with the humor, wit and cheerfulness of the Irish character. This home view of the manners, condition and traits of the peasantry of the Green Isle is of surpassing interest. 7. The Southern Review and Infant Baptism. So far as we are able to judge, Dr. Bledsoe's views of infant baptism are sound, and accord with Scripture and the doctrinal standards of Methodism. We regret the rather bitter personalities which appear in this article, and perhaps the article of Mr. Miller, to which the doctor replies, was open to the same objection. The maintenance of Christian temper in controversy is better than victory. 8. Alexandria in the Fifth Century. This is, for literary finish and for philosophical tone and clearness of statement, one of the best articles that has appeared in the Review for a long time. 9. Notices of Books. Among these our friend Miller gets another raking over the coals. The editor's critical acuteness and judgment are specially exhibited in the notice of Strauss, and of the Theory of the Beautiful. On the whole, this is a strong number of the Review, and should command the attention and patronage of our people.

POTTER'S COMPLETE BIBLE ENCYCLOPEDIA. Edited by Rev. William Blackwood, D. D. LL.D. With valuable contributions by other eminent divines. With nearly 3,000 fine illustrative engravings by the best artists. Philadelphia: John E. Potter & Co.

We have heretofore noticed this great work, and commended it as one of the finest in its line. The range of subjects is more extensive than in most works of the kind, going beyond matters strictly biblical, and embracing ecclesiastical, biographical, historical and scientific information. The engravings contribute much to the value of the work. They are not only numerous, but many of them are large, and all are well finished. We have received six parts, from thirteen to eighteen inclusive, in addition to the twelve parts noticed some months since. The parts are issued semi-monthly, and the work is to be completed in about fifty parts.

COMPLETE ARITHMETIC, THEORETICAL AND PRACTICAL. By William G. Peek, LL.D. A. S. Barnes & Co., New York and Chicago, 1874. Price, ninety cents sent by mail.

Dr. Peck is the well-known professor of mathematics and astronomy in Columbia College, and of mechanics in the School of Mines, and his arithmetical series is highly commended by competent judges.

THE Southern Cultivator for September has been received. It is an excellent number.

Centenary College.

The following communication from President Andrews brings the good news that he has secured an able principal for the preparatory department, and professor of modern languages in Centenary College. We believe Centenary will be better manned than usual for the opening in October.

MR. EDITOR: I rejoice in being able to announce to the friends of our college that I have secured the services of Thomas J. Kernan, A. M., as principal of our preparatory department, and as adjunct professor of modern languages.

Mr. Kernan is an A. M. graduate of the Washington and Lee University, of Virginia, and was employed for one session as an assistant professor in the same institution. He is a young man of dignified bearing and excellence of character, is thoroughly proficient in the whole college course, and can render us especial service in his entire competency to teach the German language.

C. G. ANDREWS.

JACKSON, LA., August 31, 1874.

A BROOKLYN MAN has named his rooster Robinson, because he cru-soe.

THE burial of the dead in Paris is performed by a chartered company that includes all interments under nine classes, everything supplied; the first costing over 7,000 francs, and the ninth about nineteen francs. The city pays the company five francs per body interred, and out of receipts the company allocates fifty-six per cent. of its profits to support the various religions recognized by law, and three-fourths of a million of francs per annum. The company is also bound to bury gratuitously the indigent, who in 1873 amounted to 25,000 cases, against nearly 19,000 who paid. The rich thus bury the poor, and the dead defray the religions rites of the living. The company has in its employment 585 agents, 570 hearses and mourning coaches, and 270 horses; and supplies a master of the ceremonies.

SPINSTER CITY is one of the oldest maiden towns in Missouri.

MARRIED.

HOLLINGSWORTH—BLACKSHAR.—On the eleventh of August, by Rev. James E. Bradley, R. R. Hollingsworth and Miss Ella Blackshar, the former of Sabine and the latter of DeSoto parish, Louisiana.

KENNARD—HIGGINBOTHAM.—September 1, 1871, at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Mary Murdock, in Yazoo City, Mississippi, by Rev. H. D. Norsworthy, Mr. William K. Kennard to Miss Hattie W. Higginbotham, both of the above-named place.

Conference Register.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Denver	Denver city	Aug. 27	Pierce.
Illinois	Murphysboro	Sept. 2	Wightman.
Western	Wyandotte	Sept. 9	Keener.
Columbia	Salem	Sept. 10	Pierce.
W. Virginia	Philippi	Sept. 16	Doggett.
Kentucky	Mt. Sterling	Sept. 16	Wightman.
Missouri	St. Joseph	Sept. 16	Keener.
S. W. Missouri	Lexington	Sept. 30	Keener.
Louisville	Princeton	Sept. 30	Wightman.
Tennessee	Oakdale	Oct. 7	Marvin.
Pacific	Stockton	Oct. 7	Pierce.
Holston	Asheville	Oct. 14	Doggett.
St. Louis	Caledonia	Oct. 14	Keener.
Indian Mission	North Fork	Oct. 22	McTyeire.
Arkansas	Fort Smith	Oct. 28	Kavanaugh.
Los Angeles	Carpenteria	Oct. 28	Pierce.
N. Alabama	Huntsville	Nov. 4	Doggett.
North Texas	Denton	Nov. 4	McTyeire.
White River	Searcy	Nov. 11	Kavanaugh.
Virginia	Elizabeth City	Nov. 18	Marvin.
N. W. Texas	Weatherford	Nov. 18	McTyeire.
Memphis	Humboldt	Nov. 18	Paine.
N. Mississippi	Aberdeen	Nov. 25	Doggett.
Little Rock	Monticello	Nov. 25	Kavanaugh.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 2	Marvin.
West Texas	Gonzales	Dec. 2	McTyeire.
N. Georgia	Cartersville	Dec. 2	Wightman.
Alabama	Opelika	Dec. 9	Doggett.
East Texas	Marshall	Dec. 9	McTyeire.
South Georgia	Savannah	Dec. 9	Pierce.
Florida	Live Oak	Dec. 16	Wightman.
S. Carolina	Greenville	Dec. 16	Marvin.
Mississippi	Hazlehurst	Dec. 16	Paine.
Texas	Houston	Dec. 16	Keener.
Louisiana	Alexandria	Jan. 6	Paine.
Baltimore	Washington City	Mar. 3	Marvin.

* German Mission Conference organized at same time and place. Bishop Keener has charge of the mission in Mexico.

Publisher's Department.

Acknowledgments of Letters and Funds

RECEIVED BY MAIL,

For the Week Ending Sept. 5, 1874.

A—R. Abbey, P. W. Archer, D. Ayers, American News Company, C. G. Andrews, Arthurs, Murray & Co., R. Albert Angel.

B—C. L. Bates, Robert Beckett, J. M. Boone $3.80, Robert Babbington, James E. Bradley $20, J. H. Butler & Co. $1, D. A. Bullock, G. W. Brown $10.

C—William O. Cocke, W. H. Christian 50 cents, A. W. Campbell, Cassell & Bangin, A. H. Coggesdale, J. S. Clower $6, J. C. Cottingham.

D—A. G. O. Doney, W. A. Duck, C. B. Dufose, W. R. Dennis $5, Charles E. Ditson.

E—Esterbrook Steel Pen Company, J. F. Evans, Eagle Pencil Company, Julius Erman & Co.

F—E. N. Freshman, D. W. Foster $40, Firey & Marks, E. A. Fulton, G. W. Fairman, Mary S. Foote, H. W. Featherstun.

G—Joseph Olliott & Son, Gould & Lincoln two letters, Barleigh Goodman, Ed. P. Goodwin, A. E. Goodwyn $3.

H—J. D. Harper, Hugh L. Hopper, William Harp, Miss Louisa Harden, R. A. Hood.

I—R. S. Isbell.

J—Moses R. Johnson $1, T. E. Jackson, James St. John Stationery Company.

K—Mrs. Mary J. Kearney, F. M. Knowles & Co., T. D. Kellogg, J. C. Keener.

L—Louisville Agricultural Works, H. P. Lewis three letters $8, J. B. Lippincott & Co. three letters, William H. Lyon, A. C. Littlejohn, Lee, Shepard & Dillingham two letters, P. O. Ledbetter, John Lusk, Charles M. Liddle.

M—Marietta Paper Mills Company, McMillan & Gardner, J. A. Matler agent, J. H. McLarty, D. D. Moore $12, J. P. Moss, C. K. Marshall, William H. Myers $2, J. M. Murray & Co., Mary C. Myers, H. H. Montgomery $6, R. A. Micar, J. M. McKee, Meneely & Co.

N—Thomas Nelson & Sons.

O—James Ormond.

P—S. M. Pettengill & Co., Poole & Hunt $31, Pierce & Lyle, John A. Pauly.

R—Renfro & Andrews, A. H. Redford agent, J. K. Bamhill, S. P. Rice $2, E. E. F. Ross two letters, A. Riser $5.

S—C. S. Stewart, St. Louis Advertising and Publishing Company, J. C. Shipp, S. H. Schroeder, J. D. K. Sleight, G. W. Swofford $32.25, J. M. Steel, W. D. Shea, Mrs. C. E. Smedes 18 cents, George Schlegel, R. G. Sewell, E. W. Simmons.

T—Unknown $1.25.

W—R. H. Wood, J. Wilkinson, P. M. Watterson, J. M. Weems, J. W. White two letters $51, W. J. Williams $2, E. W. Welch & Bro.

Y—E. H. Yetverton.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now making a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

A. C. LITTLEJOHN, ESQ., is our sole agent for the State of Texas. We commend him to the courtesies of our friends having advertisements for insertion or other business to transact with the ADVOCATE.

FAMILY CARRIAGES.—New Haven, Connecticut, has a national reputation for the elegance, finish and durability of its carriages and vehicles of every kind; and among the many manufacturers in that city we advise our friends to give special attention to the light family carriages manufactured by Messrs. R. O. Dorman & Co. See their advertisement.

OPTICIAN.—Glasses, telescopes, microscopes, stereoscopes, drawing instruments and everything in his line. Mr. H. Waldstein, of 545 Broadway, New York, an optician of fifty years' experience, advertises in our columns, and his advertisement, we trust, will receive due attention from all interested in using or selling them.

DIAMOND SPECTACLES.—The Spencer Optical Manufacturing Company advertise in another column their Diamond Spectacles, of which they are the patentees and sole manufacturers. Their establishment is located at Nos. 16 and 18 Maiden Lane, New York. See advertisement headed "Save Your Sight."

FRUITS AND FLOWERS.—A. M. Purdy, Esq., of Rochester, New York, makes the exceedingly liberal offer of his Fruit Recorder and Cottage Gardener three months free to any one who will pay the postage. See advertisement elsewhere.

LIGHT CARRIAGES.—A very large number of our readers live in level countries, with smooth roads—no stumps and no rocks. They only fear the mud, and want light vehicles that can be easily and rapidly drawn without killing their mules or horses. To all such, as well as to the keepers of livery stables, drummers riding over the plains of Texas and other Western States, we would say: Read the advertisement of Messrs. Seabrook & Smith, of New Haven, Connecticut.

TEACHER WANTED.—The directors of the Jackson District High School (Mississippi Conference,) located at Canton, Mississippi, need the services of a gentleman to take charge as principal of the school. Canton is a delightful town, made up mainly of moral and intelligent people, and we should think the position very desirable. See advertisement headed "Wanted," and signed by W. H. Cassell.

NOVELTIES.—The Elm City Novelty Company, New Haven, Connecticut, make a liberal offer on two new chromos, the Cherry Girls, and advertise all the patent novelties of the age. See advertisement elsewhere.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

WALTHAM WATCHES.—These celebrated Watches have been greatly improved during the present year, and several new sizes added to the list. The stem-winding and setting attachment can now be had with any grade or size, and all the old established grades of key-winders are also made as before. Any one who contemplates buying a Watch, either now or in the future, should send for our new Descriptive Price List, which is now ready AND SENT FREE. This describes all the Watches, large and small, Ladies' and Gentlemen's, Gold and Silver, with prices of each, and contains besides information in relation to watches useful to every one. It also explains in full our plan of sending single Waltham Watches at low prices to any place in the Union by mail or express, with the bill to collect on delivery, with privilege to the purchaser to open the package and examine the Watch before paying, and with no obligation to take it unless entirely satisfactory. Thousands have obtained genuine WALTHAM WATCHES from us in this way, and all have received full value for their money. A large assortment of extra heavy cases for the Pacific trade always on hand. Every one should send for a Price List; as the farther you live from New York the more advantage it is to deal with us. When you write please mention that the advertisement was seen in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Address HOWARD & CO., No. 222 Fifth avenue, New York. au27 1meow

BECKWITH PORTABLE SEWING MACHINE.—A Hand and Treadle Machine Combined.—The cost is small compared with other standard machines, and it is much simpler and easier to operate, while its work is unsurpassed for beauty and strength. The price is $20 without the treadle; $25 with the treadle. Don't fail to send for a circular before buying any other machine. Mr. EDWARD THOMPSON, 90 Baronne street, is the agent for the Southwest. se10 1m

OBSERVATIONS ON NASAL CATARRH.—An abstract from a forthcoming work on diseases of the throat and air passages, by A. N. WILLIAMSON, M. D., late Clinical Physician in the University Medical College, New York city. Mailed to any address for 10 cents. Address the author, 28 East Twentieth street, New York.

DR. WILLIAMSON'S great success in the treatment of Catarrh and throat and lung affections renders valuable whatever comes from his pen."—Journal of Medical Science. au20 5m

TAKE IT, take it on, and keep taking it. Reduce the dose so that it acts as a gentle laxative, and continue it on regularly. It is a tonic, and will strengthen you. It is not a long time to confirm your disease, and you can't get well in a day. Simmons' Liver Regulator, if persisted in, will cure the most stubborn Liver disease. There is no failure about it. se10 1t

BUILDING PAPER is a most excellent substitute for plastering, at half the cost. The Ornamental serves the purpose of plastering and wall paper combined, and makes a neat and durable finish. You can get samples and circulars by inclosing letter stamp to the agent, MR. EDWARD THOMPSON, 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. au27 4t

$57.60—AGENTS' PROFITS PER WEEK.—Will prove it or forfeit $500. New article just patented. Samples sent free to all. Address W. H. CHICESTER, 267 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

A SURE PREVENTIVE for Yellow Fever, Cholera and Smallpox. Price, $1, prepaid, with full directions. Address DR. H. BROWN, 697 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

BUY WERLEIN'S PIANOS, such as the Chickering, Dunham, Haines Bros., etc., which are the best in the market. Sold at lost prices, and on easy terms, if desired. New Pianos at $250, $275, $300, $450, $500, $550 and $600, at $20 per month. Second hand Pianos at $80, $50, $75, $100, $125, $150, $175, $200, $225 and $250, some at $10 per month—fully warranted, with renewed actions. Estey's Needham's and Woods' Organs at low rates. Have added Blackmar's large stock of Sheet Music, Band Instruments and Strings in great variety. Band Instruments, etc., repaired. PHILIP WERLEIN'S Mammoth Music House, Nos. 78, 80, 82 and 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. de25 ly

PIERSON & HEWS, fine Clothing, Shirts and Furnishing Goods, 13 and 15 Camp street, opposite City Hotel, New Orleans, Louisiana. We invite visitors from the interior to examine our stock and prices. We claim to sell first-class goods as low as can be afforded and live. We sell the celebrated Shoulder-Seam Shirts, warranted to fit, wear and give satisfaction. Liberal deduction made to Clergymen, and their trade solicited. mh5 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

GREENSBORO FEMALE COLLEGE, ALABAMA.

Two Hundred and Ten Dollars for Board and Tuition.

NO EXTRAS. No charge for tuition of Ministers' daughters.

THOMAS WARD WHITE, President.

se10 1t

WANTED.

A gentleman to take charge of the JACKSON DISTRICT (Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church South) HIGH SCHOOL, located at Canton, Miss.—to open on the first Monday in October, 1874—whose wife can assist him in teaching. References required. Address

W. H. CASSELL, Canton, Miss.

se10 2t

SEABROOK & SMITH, MANUFACTURERS OF LIGHT CARRIAGES FOR LIVERY USE,

Nos. 128 and 130 Park Street.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.

se10 3m

R. O. DORMAN, J. B. BRICKETT.

R. O. DORMAN & CO., MANUFACTURERS OF FINE LIGHT FAMILY CARRIAGES,

NOS. 71 AND 73 GOFFE STREET,

New Haven, Conn.

se10 4m

LIBERAL OFFER!—TWO NEW AND beautiful Chromos, THE CHERRY GIRLS, sent, post-paid, to any address for 50 cents. LARGE DISCOUNT to Agents. We have all the Patent Novelties of the age. Men, Women, Girls and Boys make more money by working for us than at anything else. Address

ELM CITY NOVELTY CO., New Haven, Conn.

se10 3m

THE FRUIT RECORDER AND COTTAGE GARDENER will be sent FREE for three months to all who will pay postage at office of delivery. We do not ask any one to subscribe for our paper until they know what they are to get. It speaks for itself. Price only $1 per year. Our Small Fruit Instructor is a work of 64 pages that tells in simple language just how to grow fruits in abundance for home use or market. Price, 25 cents, post-paid. A. M. PURDY, Rochester, New York.

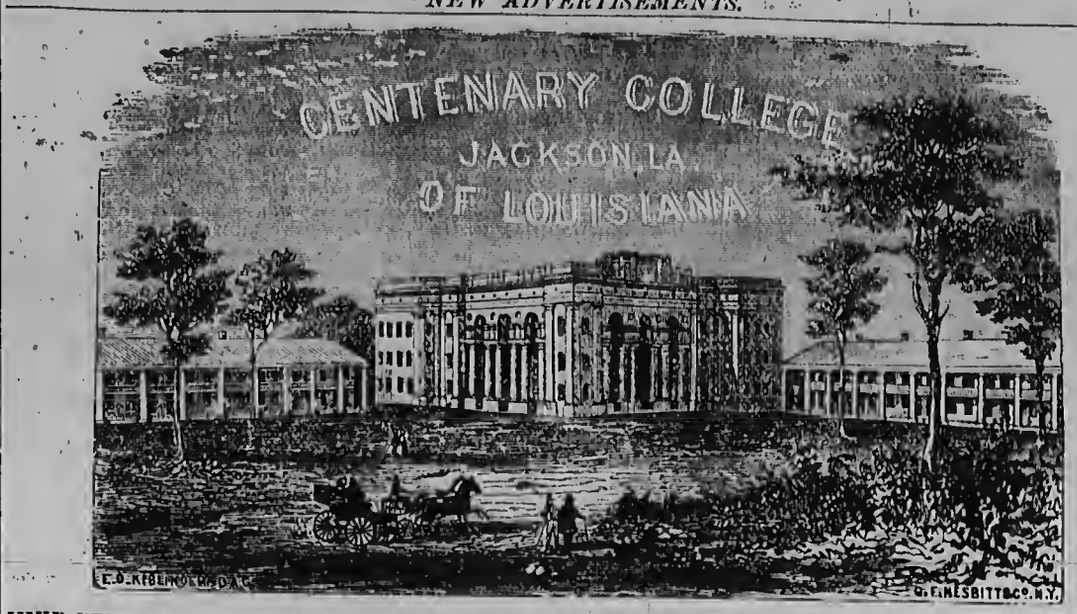
3 Months FREE.

se10 3t&am

AGENTS WANTED for the CENTENNIAL GAZETTEER OF THE UNITED STATES, showing the grand results of our first 100 Years. Everybody buys it, and agents make from $100 to $200 a month. Send for circular. ZIEGLER & McCURDY, St. Louis, Mo. my21 1yeow

$78 A WEEK TO AGENTS.—Best-selling articles out. Needle-Hook, with elegant Chromos, etc. Three valuable samples, 10 cents, or circular free. Address J. BRIDE & CO., 769 Broadway, New York. au29 3m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.



THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1874.

Faculty.—REV. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law; REV. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science; C. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages; T. S. JONES, M. D., Professor of Natural Science; REV. R. D. NORSWORTHY, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Charges.—Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College, $60; Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department, $40; Contingent expenses, $5. A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

Board.—Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $12 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

Location.—This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

When Founded.—The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

Alumni.—Its Alumni numbers two hundred and three, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

Apparatus and Cabinet.—The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

Literary Societies.—There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well-selected Library—about one thousand six hundred volumes each, which, added to the College Library of two thousand volumes, makes over five thousand volumes in the college.

Buildings.—The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of seven hundred feet.

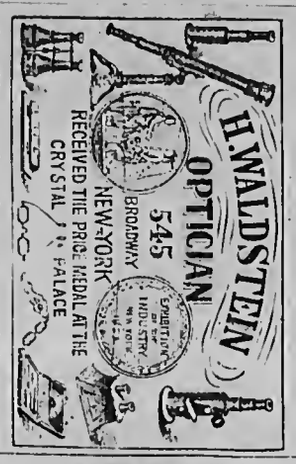
Preparatory Department.—In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.

The Faculty.—Its Faculty are men of experience and success in teaching.

Board of Trustees.—Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Mississippi.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.
Hon. and Rev. James H. Muse, St. Helena parish.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.
Rev. H. H. Montgomery, Sharon, Mississippi.
C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.
Joshua D. Nettles, Esq., East Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.
Hon. J. O. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.
B. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.
Samuel A. Norwood, Esq., Simmsport, Louisiana.
Col. William L. Nugent, Jackson, Mississippi.
Rev. J. L. Forsyth, Jackson.
S. L. Police, Esq., Natchez, Mississippi.
J. H. Keller, Esq., New Orleans, Louisiana.
Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Rev. W. H. Watkins, L. D., Natchez, Mississippi.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.
Robert M. Walmsley, Esq., New Orleans.
Rev. J. A. R. Jones, Port Gibson, Mississippi.
Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq., Baton Rouge.
Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, Louisiana.
Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Shreveport, Louisiana.

se10 tf Address C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.



Over thirty years' practice enables me to fit the most complex Eyes with Glasses, by correspondence as well as in personal interview. Satisfaction guaranteed. se10 3m

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT.

WHAT IS THIS GREAT REMEDY, and what are its effects? These are questions which the great American public has a right to ask, and it has also a right to expect a candid and satisfactory reply. The preparation is a mild and gentle saline, cathartic, alterative and tonic, and is most carefully prepared in the form of a snow-white powder, containing all the wonderful medical properties of the far-famed Seltzer Springs of Germany.

Of its effects, those who have tested the preparation are the best judges, and they declare, over their own signatures, that the preparation will promptly relieve indigestion, regulate the flow of the bile, cure every species of headache, tranquillize the nervous system, refresh and invigorate the weak, mitigate the pangs of rheumatism, neutralize acid in the stomach, cleanse and tone the bowels, assist the failing appetite, and cure the heartburn. If you are a sufferer, give this remedy one trial, and it will convince you of the above facts. Sold by all druggists. se11 2t

NEW CHURCH MUSIC-BOOK FOR 1874-1875.

THE LEADER!

BY H. R. PALMER, ASSISTED BY L. O. EMERSON.

Just issued and ready for sale. Its success already assured. Its price is a return to ante-war church-book rates, and its contents new, fresh, and cannot fail of winning a hearty indorsement from choir masters, the musical profession and the musical public. Specimen pages free on application.

PRICE, $1.38, OR $12 PER DOZEN.

RIVER OF LIFE. FOR SABBATH SCHOOLS.

A sale of over 30,000 in less than one year attests the merit of this book. The publishers are confident that no better Sabbath School book has been published in years, and none given such entire satisfaction.

Price, 35 Cts., Boards; $3.60 Per Dozen; $30 Per 100.

THOMAS' Sacred Quartets and Anthems

This day published. Has been many years in preparation, and will be welcomed by all the lovers of Mr. Thomas' Sacred Music—and who is not one? As a quartet-book for choirs it will be found indispensable.

Price, in Boards, $2.50; Cloth, $3.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

je18 1y

au13 3meow

BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO'S BELLS.

FINE-TONED, LOW-PRICED, WARranted against breakage. Catalogues, containing full particulars, prices, etc., sent free. BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO., Cincinnati, Ohio.

ap9 1yeow

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT speedily cured by Dr. Beck's well known and sure Remedy. NO CHARGE for treatment until cured. Call on or address DR. J. C. BECK, 112 John Street, CINCINNATI, OHIO

jy23 1yeow

$10 A DAY.—Employment for all. Patent Novelties. GEO. L. FELTON & CO., 119 Nassau street, New York. au13 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NOTICE EXTRAORDINARY.

REMOVAL.

THE EXTENSIVE

CROCKERY AND CHINA STORE

—AND—

House-Furnishing Warehouse

—OF—

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.

Will be REMOVED, from September 1, to the spacious Stores,

29 Camp and 112 Common Street,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

With the increased facilities our new and elegant Warerooms afford, we shall display the largest variety of

DINNER SETS,	TOILET SETS,
TEA SETS,	TETE-A TETE SETS,
CHAMBER SETS.	SETS OF GLASS, ETC.,

And GENERAL HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS ever offered in the Southwest, all of which are for sale at prices as LOW AS THE LOWEST.

Notice What a Little Money Will Buy!

An elegant White Granite DINNER SET, comprising 121 pieces, for.....	$15 00
to wit:
12 Dinner Plates,	1 Soup Tureen,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Salad Dish,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Covered Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Tea Cups and Saucers,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Dinner Coffee Cups and Saucers,	2 Pickle Shells.
A Porcelain DeTerre DINNER SET (equal to French China in appearance, and much more durable, same assortment as above.	$18 00
A French China Gem quality DINNER SET, same assortment, 124 pieces.....	30 00
Decoratist Porcelain DeTerre and French China DINNER SETS, from.....	$30 upp.
White Granite CHAMBER SETS, 6 pieces	$1 00
White Granite TEA SETS, 44 pieces.....	4 00
French China TEA SETS, 44 pieces.....	6 50
French China Decorated TEA SETS, 44 pieces.....	7 50
Good Table GOBLETS, from 50 cents per set up.

N. B.—When we ship these goods an additional charge is made for the package (box or barrel) and drayage.

These prices contemplate first-class goods, and are all warranted regular and perfect.

AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED

BLANCHARD CHURNS,

AND THE LARGEST DEALERS IN

HOUSEKEEPING NOVELTIES

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO., No. 29 Camp street and 112 Common street, New Orleans.

de11 1y

VALLEY GEM PIANO.

This Piano is thoroughly and carefully made by experienced manufacturers, and is a good, reliable instrument in every particular. Its durability is one of its important points of superiority, and, besides its other fine qualities, the low price will especially commend it to public favor.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue, containing choice music, to

D. H. BALDWIN & CO., 158 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

jy23 3m

TO THE SUFFERERS WITH RHEUMATISM.

In view of the numberless sufferers afflicted with this painful malady, I feel induced to offer to the public my "ANTI-RHEUMATIC MIXTURE," which medicine proves to be the only successful remedy in this line, for it always gives instant relief, and in most cases cures permanently.

During the last fifteen years I have cured thousands of people, in this State and city, of this dreadful disease, with this medicine; and, when astonishes most, the patient recovered by the use of a single bottle of it. This medicine cures nothing but Rheumatism, and should the patient not recover by using the first bottle of it, that patient is not afflicted with Rheumatism at all. This being the first time of making my discovery known to the public after fifteen years of most successful results, I hope the sufferers will take advantage of this rare remedy, and by doing so add their names to the thousands already cured by it.

For sale by W. J. JUROLEWITZ, Apothecary and Druggist, corner Magazine and Thalia streets, New Orleans, La. ap3 6m

WANTED.—AGENTS to canvass for our William M. Thayer, new book, "MESSIAH," by Rev. ——. Suited to all classes and denominations. Full of interest, and issued in a style attractive and substantial. Worthy the special notice of first class canvassers. H. B. HUSSELL, Publisher, Boston, Mass. se3 9t

COSTARS EXTERMINATORS AND INSECT POWDER

For Rats, Mice, Roaches, Ants, Red-bugs, Moths, etc. J. F. HENRY, CURTAN & CO., New York, Sole Agents. je11 3m5p

BUILDERS! Send for Catalogue of New Books on CARPENTRY AND BUILDING. A. J. RICKNELL & CO., 27 Warren street, New York. au13 3m

LEGS AND ARMS.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Pamphlet free. CHARLES M. EVANS, manufacturer, (se26 1y) 76 Fourth street.....LOUISVILLE, KY. 152 West Fourth street.....CINCINNATI, O.

MEDICAL.

NEARLY ALL DISEASES ORIGINate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Depression of Spirits, or the Blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and, being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 10 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR —OR— MEDICINE

Is harmless,
Is no drastic, violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
Is a faithless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

se25 1y

DR. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST ADVICE THAT CAN BE given to persons suffering from

DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS!

CONSTIPATION, COLIC, SICK HEADACHE,

Fever and Ague, Nervous Debility,

or of any disorder of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, is to tone, cleanse and regulate them by the use of

Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills.

They act very mildly, yet thoroughly restore the functional action of the Digestive Organs and the Intestines, and renovate the whole system, imparting a good appetite and healthy assimilation of food. They produce neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility, and may be taken at any time, without change of diet or occupation.

Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye

possesses qualities that no other dye does. Its effect is instantaneous, and is so natural that it cannot be detected by the closest observer. Being harmless and easily applied, it is in general use among the fashionable Hair-Dressers in every large city in the United States. Price, $1 a box. Sold everywhere.

Laboratory—Nos. 45 and 50 Cortlandt street, New York. se2 1y&s

METALLIC ELECTRIC SHIELDS.

Fully Indorsed by the Entire Medical Profession.

HAVE CURED THOUSANDS OF

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA,

AND ALL NERVOUS DISEASES.

☞ Simply applied and worn on the parts affected. For Lame Back, Local Pain, Local Palsy, Weakness, Poor Circulation, Varicose Veins and Affections of the Eyes it is a scientific cure. Sold by all Druggists, or General Agent,

GEORGE SWEETSER, 120 Wall St., New York.

Sent by Mail or Express, C. O. D. Price, $5 per pair. au20 3m

How I Made $70

the first week, and am now averaging $30 in a sure business. Any man or woman can do the same. ☞ The secret free. Write at once to COWAN & CO., Eighth St., New York

FOR 25 CTS, I mail, post-paid, a fine Steel Engraving worth double the amount, and a complete New Catalogue, 64 pages, of 3,000 Engravings, Chromos, etc. Agents wanted. G. E. PERINE, Publisher, 86 Reade street, New York. au29 3t

The Child's Corner.

THE SKYLARK.

God speed thee, little wanderer,
Wherever thou art flying!
On swift wing far above my head
Thy little form has upward sped,
And upward still is hieing.
Dear little bird, how sweet to gaze
As thou art high ascending,
And up in many a mystic maze
Thy heavenward path art wending.

God bless thee, little wanderer,
Singing as up thou soarest!
With joy I hear thy silver note,
That sweetly from thy little throat
So thankfully thou pourest.
Dear little bird, how sweet to hear,
As thou art high ascending,
Thy happy song, while cheerily
Thy heavenward path art wending.

God grant me, lowly wanderer,
A spirit ever winging
An upward flight, nor stooping, save
To plume her wing, and freely lave
In founts eternal springing!
And give me heart to sing as I
My heavenward path am wending,
Singing and soaring till my voice
With angels' songs is blending.

FOR THE ADVOCATE.

Letter from a Little Six-Year-Old Girl.

UNION GROVE CHURCH,
Marion, Mississippi, April 24, 1874.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: Thinking may be you would like to get a letter from a little girl, I have concluded to get Brother Willie to write one for me. (I can't write yet.) Our house is out in the country, about four miles from Marion. Brother Willie takes the ADVOCATE, and he and ma say they would not be without it for anything. I would not either, Mr. Editor. Henny and I always get it just as soon as we can, and look right for "The Child's Corner;" and O such good reading as we do find there! You have no idea how much disappointed I was, a short time ago, when the ADVOCATE came, and, as usual, we looked for "The Child's Corner," and found it filled up with an old advertisement. I felt a little mad with you at first, but then ma said you got money for the advertisement. So I thought may be it would make you able to make the paper better afterward; and, as it has been so good since, I reckon I will have to forgive you. But then I don't see why you could not have put it in some other part of the paper as well. I guess you will say the ADVOCATE is intended principally for older people. There is the Sunday School Visitor and Our Little People for the young folks; why not read them? That is true, Mr. Editor; but some of our papas and mammas think they are not able to take all; so they just subscribe for the ADVOCATE, and if it were not for "The Child's Corner" we would have nothing to read at all.

I will now tell you about our Sunday school. It is just one mile out to the church, and I go every Sunday. They say it is a Methodist Sunday school. I don't know anything about that, but I do know we learn a heap of good things. My lesson is in Our Little People. There is Gertie Henderson, Jennie and Cora Sims, Benny Barnes, and a whole heap more little boys and girls in my class. We have been learning about Jesus, God's only Son, who left heaven, came into the world, and suffered and died that we might get to heaven too, and be with him. O I don't see how we can keep from loving him, since he has done so much for us! There we learn about good Stephen, who was stoned to death by bad men because he loved Jesus so. Our lesson last Sunday was about bad Saul, and about good Phillip and the other disciples, and how they preached, and the people believed and were baptized.

Brother Willie says if we are good children we may have a picnic after awhile. That is just the same as to say that we are not always good. No, we are not; but when I am a good girl I am so much happier and feel so much better that I think I never will be bad again; but after awhile I forget and don't mind ma, or do something else bad, and then I feel—O I can't tell how bad! O that I could always be good! But then I know that I can't unless Jesus helps me. But then Jesus says: "Suffer little children to come unto me;" and I know that if I come unto him and trust him he will help me.

Your little friend,

ZULA DAY.

Adam and Eve Over Again.

There was an old couple who earned a poor living, working hard all day in the fields.

"See how hard we work all day," said the wife, "and it all comes of the foolish curiosity of Adam and Eve. If it had not been for that we should have been living now in a beautiful garden, with nothing to do all day long."

"Yes," said the husband; "if you and I had been there, instead of Adam and Eve, all the human family had been in paradise still."

The count, their master, overheard them talking in this way, and he came to them and said:

"How would you like it if I took you into my palazzo there, to live, and gave you servants to wait on you, and plenty to eat and drink?"

"Oh, that would be delightful indeed! That would be as good as paradise itself!" answered husband and wife together.

"Well, you may come up there, if you think so. Only remember, in paradise there was one tree that was not to be touched; so at my table there will be one dish not to be touched. You musn't mind that," said the count.

"Oh, of course not," replied the old peasant; "that's just what I say: when Eve had all the fruits in the garden, what did she want with just that one that was forbidden? And if we, who are used to the scantiest victuals, are supplied with enough to live well, what does it matter to us whether there is an extra dish or not on the table?"

"Very well reasoned," said the count. "We quite understand each other, then?"

"Perfectly," replied both husband and wife.

"You come to live at my palace, and have everything you can want there, so long as you don't open one dish, which there will be in the center of the table. If you open that you go back to your former way of life."

"We quite understand," answered the peasants.

The count went in and called his servant, and told him to give the peasants an apartment to themselves, with everything they could want, and a sumptuous dinner; in the middle of the table was to be an earthen dish, into which he was to put a little bird alive, so that if one lifted the cover the bird would fly out. He was to stay in the room and wait on them, and report to him what happened.

The old people sat down to dinner, and praised everything they saw, so delightful it all seemed.

"Look! that's the dish we're not to touch," said the wife.

"No; better not look at it," said the husband.

"Pshaw! There's no danger of wanting to open it when we have such a lot of dishes to eat our fill out of," returned the wife.

So they set to and made such a repast as they had never dreamed of before. By degrees, however, as the novelty of the thing wore off, they grew more and more desirous for something newer and newer still. Though when they at first sat down it seemed that two dishes would be ample to satisfy them, they had now seven or eight, and they were wishing there might be others coming. There is an end to all things human, and no other came. There only remained the earthen dish in the middle of the table.

"We will just lift the lid up a little wee bit," said the wife.

"No; don't talk about it," said the husband.

The wife sat still for five minutes, and then she said:

"If one just lifted up one corner of the lid it would scarcely be called opening it, you know."

"Better leave it alone altogether, and not think about it at all."

The wife sat still another five minutes, and then she said: "If one peeped in just the least in the world it would not be any harm, surely, and I should so like to know what can the count have put in that dish?"

"I'm sure I can't guess in the least," said the husband, "and I must say I can't see what it can signify to him if we did look at it."

"No; that's what I think, and, besides, how would he know if we peeped? It would not hurt him," said the wife.

"No, as you say, one could just take a look," said the husband.

The wife did not want more encouragement than that. But when she lifted one side of the lid the least mite she could see nothing. She opened it the least mite more, and the bird flew out. The servant ran and told his master, and the count came down and drove them out, bidding them never complain of Adam and Eve any more.—Roman Folk Lore.

Shutting Doors.

"Don't look so cross, Edward, when I call you back to shut the doors; grandpa's old bones feel the March wind, and, besides, you have got to spend your life shutting doors, and might as well begin to learn now."

"Do forgive me, gran'pa; I ought to be ashamed to be cross to you. But what do you mean? I ain't going to be a sexton. I am going to college, and then I am going to be a lawyer."

"Well, admitting all that, I imagine Squire Edward C. will have a good many doors to shut, if he ever makes much of a man."

"What kind of doors? Do tell me, gran'pa."

"Sit down a minute, and I will give you a list.

"In the first place, the door of your ears must be closed against the bad language and evil counsel of the boys and young men you will meet at school and college, or you will be undone. Let them once get possession of that door, and I would not give much for Edward C.'s future prospects.

"The door of your eyes, too, must be shut against bad books, idle novels, and low, wicked newspapers, or your studies will be neglected, and you will grow up a useless, ignorant man. You will have to close them sometimes against the fine things exposed for sale in the store windows, or you will never learn to lay up money, or have any left to give away.

"The door of your lips will need especial care, for they guard an unruly member, which makes great use of the bad company let in at the doors of the eyes and ears. This door is very apt to blow open; and, if not constantly watched, will let out angry, trifling or vulgar words. It will backbite sometimes worse than a March wind, if it is left open too long. I would advise you to keep it shut much of the time, till you have laid up a store of knowledge, or at least till you have something valuable to say.

"The inner door of your heart must be well shut against temptation, for conscience, the doorkeeper, grows very indifferent if you disregard his call; and sometimes drops asleep at his post, and when you may think you are doing very well, you are fast going down to ruin.

"If you carefully guard the outside doors of the eyes and ears and lips, you will keep out many cold blasts of sin, which get in before you think.

"This 'shutting doors,' you see, Eddy, will be a serious business—one on which your well-doing in this life and the next depends."—Church Union.

NOT to return one good office for another is inhuman; but to return evil for good is diabolical. There are too many even of this sort, who, the more they owe, the more they hate. There is nothing more dangerous than to oblige those people; for when they are conscious of not paying the debt, they wish the creditor out of the way.—Seneca.

Farm, Garden and Household.

Fall Crops.

Of these, oats first claim attention. We have urged an increase of this crop so often and so much that we are almost afraid our readers will become weary of it. But our profound conviction is that it should be the principal grain crop at the South for work animals. It is entitled to this position by its relative cheapness, certainty and value as food. The first point will be accepted without discussion. The second may not; but we beg the reader to recall the volunteer crops that have fallen under his notice. Have they not been equally if not more certain than corn on uplands? The secret of success with a crop of fall oats is an early start and good land. To resist freezes the plant must have time to root well, get a firm hold on the soil; and it must, in the next place, be able to find readily in the soil food to sustain it in the fight with the cold. In other words, we want a comparatively old and vigorous plant to pass successfully through the winter. In mild winters, like the last, these points are not so essential, but we speak, of course, of the average winter. Where the thermometer ranges below twenty degrees the crop ought to be started, if possible, before the twentieth of September; where the mercury seldom descends to twenty degrees, a month later will answer.

Sometimes the convenience of the farmer may require the seed to be sown in August, as in seeding down at last plowing of cotton; in that event, on good land, they will make too much growth before frost if it is seasonable, and are liable to be killed by cold unless grazed down.

In this connection we beg to make a suggestion. We have often urged the planting of the pea to itself, making it one of the regular crops of the farm. Planted late in June, and drilled and worked like cotton, it not only makes valuable returns as a food crop, but becomes an admirable cleanser to clear land of objectionable growth and fit it for subsequent crops. It prepares the way admirably, for instance, for a crop of fall oats, the seed of which may be sown at the last plowing of the peas, as they are at the last plowing of cotton. This last plowing of peas comes on later than that of cotton, and has, therefore, decided advantage over it; and, besides, the dense shading of the peas keeps the oats from making too much growth before frost. Lastly, the pea enriches the ground for the oats; in this respect being almost if not quite equal to a dressing of manure.

To sum up, sow early from the first to the twentieth of September, give enough manure to make strong, vigorous plants, and, if any disposition to joint is observed before cold weather, graze down. In spring give a top-dressing, and, if the rust-proof variety is sown, we venture the assertion that no crop raised on the farm is more certain to reward your labor.

CLOVER AND WINTER GRASS.

If drouth does not prevail, September is the best month for seeding down clover and grass. It gives ample time for the young plants to become well rooted before the hard freezes, and they are much less liable to be killed by drouth the following summer than spring-sown, because their roots will have had so much more time to descend deep into the soil. We have so often discussed the preparation for and seeding down of these crops that it is unnecessary to repeat. It may be summed up in a few words: Clean land, thoroughly pulverized, well manured, thick seeding and very light brushing, followed by rolling. For the grasses, ammoniated manures, like cotton-seed meal, or the seed itself, and Peruvian guano; for clover, ashes, bone-dust, superphosphate or plaster. On stiff soils sow common red clover; on light, sandy soils, the crimson clover or California clover would be better. Both of the last-named are annuals.

BARLEY AND RYE LOTS.

No farm is complete without these, and nothing on it pays better than they. The saving of dry forage, the health of animals, the copious flow of milk at a season when it is most scanty, all combine to urge them upon the attention of the farmer; and every farmer's wife is entitled to them, in consideration of her dairy alone. The land ought to be very rich, especially for barley, and well broken up by repeated plowings and cross plowings. Sow of barley not less than three bushels per acre; of rye, one and a half to two will answer; and the seeding down should be done early in the present month. This is absolutely essential to securing first-rate growth.—Southern Cultivator.

THE frequent use of apples, either before or after meals, has a most healthful effect upon the digestion. Better eat less meat and more fruit. An eminent French physician thinks that the decrease of dyspepsia and bilious affections in Paris is owing to the increased consumption of apples, which fruit, he maintains, is an admirable prophylactic and tonic, as well as a very nourishing and easily-digested article of food. The Parisians are said to devour one hundred millions of apples every winter—that is, they did before the war. Whether this estimate is true or not, the French are extravagantly fond of apples and other fruits.

ENGLISH, German, Swiss, French and Italian agricultural journals speak of the value of the sunflower as a preventive of malarious diseases. A recent account comes from Holland of a farmer upon the low banks of the Scheldt who planted some plots of sunflowers around his house, with the effect to preserve his homestead from fever, while it was very prevalent all around. The Swiss Times, in reporting this case, strongly recommends the planting of sunflowers, not only for this reason, but also for the value of its seeds for feed, and that of its stalks for fuel.

TRUTH is like a torch: the more you shake it the more it shines.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JAMES LEFFEL'S
IMPROVED DOUBLE
TURBINE WATER-WHEEL.

POOLE & HUNT, Baltimore,
Manufacturers for the South and Southwest.

Nearly Seven Thousand Now in Use, working under heads varying from 2 to 240 feet! Twenty-four sizes, from 5¾ to 96 inches.
The most powerful Wheel in the market, and most economical in use of Water. Large Illustrated Pamphlet sent post free.

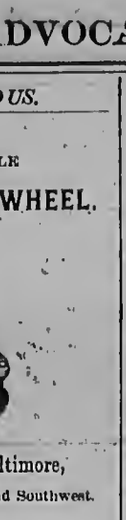
Manufacturers also of Portable and Stationary Steam Engines and Boilers, Babcock & Wilcox's Patent Tubulous Boiler, Ebaugh's Crusher for Minerals, Saw and Grist Mills, Flouring Mill Machinery, Machinery for White Lead Works and Oil Mills, Shafting Pulleys and Hangers.
Send for Circulars. se3 6m

BILLINGS' PATENT
Sewing Machine
SHUTTLES.



Twenty Varieties Now Made.
Forged solid from bar-steel and cold-pressed.
TRADE (B) MARK.
Also Wrought Iron and Steel
DROP FORGINGS
of all descriptions, for Guns, Pistols, Sewing Machines, Agricultural Implements, etc.
MANUFACTURED BY
Billings & Spencer Co.,
LAWRENCE STREET,
ap26m Hartford, Conn.

RELIGIOUS
AND STANDARD WORKS,
Published by Albert Mason, New York.
JOSEPHUS' WORKS.—A new and elegant Library Edition. Larger clear type. Tinted paper. 4 vols., cloth, $8.
A Popular Edition of the same, 2 vols., cloth, $1.50. 2 vols., sheep, $5.
WORDS AND MIND OF JESUS, AND FAITHFUL PROMISER.—In 1 vol., 32mo, red edges. Fifty cents.
Michel's Astronomical Works.

Planetary and Stellar Worlds	$1 75
Astronomy of the Bible	1 75
Popular Astronomy	1 75

THE DANCE OF MODERN SOCIETY.—By Prof. W. C. Wilkinson. 1 vol. 16mo. Cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents. se3 1y

Polytechnic College
OF THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—MARKET STREET, above Seventeenth St., Philadelphia. Twenty-first year begins September 15. Thorough professional training in Mine Engineering, Civil Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Analytical and Industrial Chemistry, Metallurgy and Architecture. The Diploma of the college is received as conclusive evidence of proficiency by the first engineers and companies engaged in works of improvement. Address
ALFRED L. KENNEDY, M. D.,
se3 4t President of Faculty.

Silk Class BANNERS, $5 EACH. Send for circular.
CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL BANNERS
T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, NEW YORK.
ap27 3m

SEAL PRESSES.
WARREN RICHARDS,
MANUFACTURER OF
SEAL PRESSES,
SEAL ENGRAVER AND DIE-SINKER,
12 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, O.
Special rates to Grangers for orders direct. Send for circulars, samples or information. ap6 2m

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
BATON ROUGE, LA.
The next session of this school will begin on Monday, OCTOBER 2, 1874. It is important to both parties that applications be made as early as possible, and the attendance of the pupil prompt. A few days' delay at the beginning increases the labor of the school and injures the pupil. For circulars, giving necessary information, apply to
W. H. N. MAGRUDER,
au6 3m Baton Rouge, La.

MEDICAL.

KEARNEY'S
EXTRACT BUCHU
is the only pure and unadulterated preparation prepared by a prominent, reliable and scientific physician of thirty years' practice. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its superiority in speedy and permanent cures of Gravel, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and all affections of the Kidneys in both sexes. The greatest Tonic and Diuretic of the age. Be sure and get
KEARNEY'S EXTRACT BUCHU.
Pleasant and agreeable in taste, and efficacious in its curative qualities.
Depot—104 Duane Street, New York.
Price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists everywhere. au13 1yap

NEW ASTHMA REMEDY.—HAVING struggled twenty years between life and death with ASTHMA or PHTHISIC, I experimented myself by compounding roots and herbs, and inhaling the medicine thus obtained. I fortunately discovered a most wonderful remedy and sure cure for Asthma and its kindred diseases. Warranted to relieve the severest paroxysm instantly, so the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Druggists are supplied with sample packages for free distribution. Call and get one, or address D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio. Sold by druggists. Price for full-size package, $1 25. se34t

$250 A MONTH TO AGENTS.—25 new articles. One lady made $21.80, August 10, in taking subscriptions to the FAMILY JOURNAL the best Literary and Fashion paper in America. Only $1 a year, with two $5 Chromos. Samples free. FAMILY JOURNAL, 369 Broadway, New York. au20 3m

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEORGE STINSON & CO. Portland, Maine. fe5 1y

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI,

ON THE NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD, fifty-seven miles south of Jackson, Mississippi, and one hundred and twenty-eight miles north of New Orleans, will
REOPEN ON THE THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.
The charges are low, and yet the advantages are unsurpassed. All extravagance in dress positively prohibited. If you send your daughter here we guarantee that you will be pleased; otherwise you may withdraw her at any time, and the money will be returned.
School books, medicines and medical attention furnished free of charge. Were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the location we could not afford the last two items.
Send for a catalogue.
jy16 3m H. F. JOHNSON, President.

READVILLA SEMINARY,
INCORPORATED IN 1859,
OPENS ITS
NEXT ANNUAL SESSION
OCTOBER 1, 1874.
Experienced and Successful Teachers
ARE ENGAGED IN EACH DEPARTMENT OF THE INSTITUTION,
and LECTURES adapted to the improvement of the pupils in Literature, Natural Science and other subjects are regularly given by able educators.
MUSIC, DRAWING, PAINTING,
AND THE
ANCIENT AND MODERN LANGUAGES,
Are a part of the Optional Course.
The number of pupils is LIMITED, and every advantage of agreeable HOME INFLUENCES secured to the residents of the Seminary. Address
MRS. M. W. READ, Principal,
se4 2m Baton Rouge, La.

FURMAN'S
ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL,
COR. MAGAZINE AND SECOND STREETS
NEW ORLEANS.
The Fall Session of this school will open on Tuesday, the first of September, 1874. Diligence and faithfulness on the part of the instructor are claimed; thoroughness instead of superficial display is aimed at. Mild and paternal discipline enforced. Boys prepared for college. French is taught. Pupils in any stage of progress received. Terms of tuition moderate.
Grateful for support in the past, the principal respectfully and confidently bespeaks a renewal and increase of patronage on the part of his friends and the community.
EVENING SCHOOL, from 7 to 9 P. M., for young men whose days are devoted to business.
J. L. FURMAN, Principal.
Refers to Rev. Dr. Linus Parker, Rev. J. C. Carpenter, Rev. John Mathews, Mr. Theo. Adze, Dr. S. M. Angell and Rev. Dr. Ed. G. Taylor. au27 1t

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.
The Fall Session of this institution will commence on Wednesday, SEPTEMBER 30, with an efficient corps of teachers. Board can be obtained in the institution.
This being a Conference institution, and educating the daughters of the traveling preachers of the Conference free of cost, we earnestly solicit their hearty co-operation and efforts to secure patronage for it.
au27 3m THOMAS ARMSTRONG.

THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,
GREENSBORO, ALA.
The next session of this institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN OCTOBER, with a full corps of instructors. The entire expense per annum, for board, tuition, etc., is from $180 to $242. For particulars or catalogue apply to
DR. A. S. ANDREWS or
PROF. H. F. CASEY.
Jy23 2m Greensboro, Alabama.

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.
Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.
H. HALLER,
NO. 49 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,
Sole Agent for Louisiana.
Sole Agent for the
CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER
in the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. no13 1y

STOVES.....STOVES.....STOVES.
The Cheapest and the "Best."
The "BEST" and the "COTTAGE" COOKING STOVES, to which I call particular attention, are unsurpassed by any in this market for economy, durability and most perfect BAKING. They carry a uniform heat in the oven, and can be adapted to burning COAL, COKE or WOOD, without any additional cost. Every one sold under a full guarantee to do as they are represented or the money will be refunded.
Also a variety of other COOKING STOVES of every grade and price, from $15 upward.
HEATING STOVES.
A very large and complete assortment, suitable for Offices, Parlors, Churches, School-Rooms, etc., all of which are offered at very low prices to suit the times. Also dealer in
TINWARE OF EVERY KIND
and description, to suit the country and city trade, which is offered at UNPRECEDENTEDLY LOW PRICES FOR CASH. Also Sole Agent for the manufacture and sale of the Steam Washer, or Woman's Friend.
Will cleanse your clothes WITHOUT RUBBING. Every one sold is FULLY WARRANTED. It saves labor, wear and tear, and the annoyance of wash-day. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Three hundred thousand have been sold already through the States since 1871.
State and County Rights for sale.
Call and see at NO. 53 GRAVIER STREET, near Tchoupitoulas.
Ja29 1y G. W. W. GOODWYN.

MONEY made rapidly with Stencil and Key-Check Outfits. Catalogues, samples and full particulars FREE. S. M. SPENCER, 117 Hanover street, Boston. au27 1y

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
ABINGDON, VA.
R. W. JONES, M. A., University of Virginia, President, with a full and skillful faculty for instruction in all branches taught in the best female colleges. The next session begins SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.
Charge for board and tuition, for entire session of forty weeks, built in advance, $250. Other charges moderate.
The surrounding mountain scenery is grand, the buildings commodious and elegant, the grounds incomparably beautiful.
The patronage for last session represented twelve Southern and Western States and Cuba.
Domestic department under the supervision of the President and wife. Healthfulness unsurpassed.
Opinions of Distinguished Patrons and Friends.
Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.
"I confided to the care of the President, during the present session, two of my daughters, with very sanguine hopes of their improvement in health and culture. My expectations have been more than realized. From experience, then, as well as prepossession, I cordially and confidently recommend Martha Washington College to parents who are seeking the best advantages for their daughters."
Prof. L. C. Garland, LL. D., University of Mississippi.
"Martha Washington College possesses remarkable advantages as a seat of learning. * * * The corps of instruction is composed of ladies and gentlemen of ability, fidelity and professional skill."
Bishop H. N. McTyeire, D. D.
"If I were to search the land around I know not another Abingdon—beautiful for situation, healthful, accessible. Its social atmosphere is of the right sort for a female school—sanguine, not fast, conservative, well toned. The perfume of the "Old Virginia" lingers about it still. Your immediate site, your grounds, please me more than any I have seen. Your shade-trees and your walks and your wide piazzas linger in my mind."
Faculty of the University of Virginia.
"We cordially recommend Major R. W. Jones, a Master of Arts of this institution, as a gentleman peculiarly well fitted by capacity, culture and experience for the conduct of an advanced seminary for young ladies."
For catalogue, etc., apply to the President.
jy23 2m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,
VIRGINIA.
On the Virginia and Tennessee Air-Line Railroad.
On the TENTH OF SEPTEMBER next the scholastic year begins, and continues forty weeks. It is divided into two terms of twenty weeks each, the second or Spring Term commencing on the twenty-eighth of January, 1875.
TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS,
PAID IN ADVANCE,
May cover the expenses of a student for
Tuition, Board, Fuel, Room-Rent, Washing, Library and Contingent Fees
DURING THE FORTY WEEKS.
We invite careful scrutiny into all the elements which have made this school so eminent.
For particulars or for a catalogue address
E. E. WILEY, President,
au20 4t Emory P. O., Va.

PORT GIBSON
COLLEGIATE ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES,
Port Gibson, Mississippi.
The next session will begin SEPTEMBER 16, 1874, with competent teachers in charge of each department.
EXPENSES FOR COLLEGIATE YEAR.—For tuition, English text-books, stationery, board, lights, fuel and washing, from $210 to $240. Charges for ornamental branches equally moderate. Daughters of itinerant ministers taught English branches free.
For circular and further particulars address
REV. JOHN A. B. JONES,
au20 1m President.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,
ASHLAND, VA.,
offers, on very low terms, the advantages of thorough instruction, a high grade of scholarship, under the best religious influences, in a retired community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness, just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad.
One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars
will pay all necessary expenses per term. Session opens on the last Thursday in SEPTEMBER. For catalogue address
REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, A. M., D. D., President, or au6 2m REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Secretary.

HIWASSEE COLLEGE.—SAID TO BE the best and cheapest school for boys in the Union. Patronage the past year, 147, from ten States. Under care of the Holston Conference, M. E. Church South. Founded in 1849. Seven miles from Sweetwater, on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad. Send stamp for twenty-four page catalogue. Address the President,
REV. J. H. BRUNER, A. M.,
jy4 1y Hiwassee College, East Tenn.

EMINENCE COLLEGE.
For Males and Females.
TEN THOUSAND CATALOGUES of this popular school now ready for gratuitous distribution. Apply to
W. S. OILTNER, President,
Jy30 8t Eminence, Ky.

Soulé's
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
The Commercial Athenæum of the South, corner Camp and Common streets (Story Building). Mercantile and Banking offices are connected with this institution, daily lectures given, and all branches of a business education practically, scientifically and philosophically taught. An English Department for boys, twelve to eighteen years of age, is a special feature of this Institution. French and Spanish are also taught.
GEO. SOULE, Principal.
N. B.—Soule's Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator, 880 octavo pages, the great arithmetical work of the age, is for sale at the College office. Ja22 1y

J. W. BLACKMAN'S
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
NO. 131 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS.
—This is the only Commercial College in this city where students from the country can board in the family of the principal. Terms reduced twenty per cent. Send for circular. Address
J. W. BLACKMAN,
Jo18 1y New Orleans, La.

BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS.

SOLD BY ALL DEALERS.

MANUFACTURERS' WAREHOUSE,

No. 91 John Street, New York.

JOSEPH GILLOTT & SON.

HENRY HOE, Sole Agent. se3 1y

THE AMERICAN

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION

OFFERS

Special Terms to Sunday Schools

IN THE SELECTION OF NEW AND

REPLENISHING OF OLD LIBRARIES

Catalogues furnished on application to any of the

SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPOSITORIES.

No. 1122 Chestnut street, Philadelphia—ALEX. KIRKPATRICK.
No. 10 Bible House, New York—J. S. SCOFIELD.
No. 40 Winter street, Boston—E. SHUTE.
No. 263 West Madison St., Chicago—W. R. PORT.
No. 207 N. Sixth St., St. Louis—S. PAXSON. m6 26m

R. ESTERBROOK & CO.'S

STEEL PENS.

FOR SALE BY

ALL BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Esterbrook Steel Pen Manufactur'g Co.,

49 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK.

Works—Camden, New Jersey. oc2 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

EXCELSIOR PLOWS,

CAST AND HARDENED STEEL.

Adapted to Every Variety of Soils.

COTTON SCRAPERS AND SWEEPS,

DOUBLE SHOVELS, ETC.

ALL WARRANTED.

MANUFACTURED BY

Louisville Agricultural Works,

LOUISVILLE, KY.

☞ Send for catalogue. se3 2m

WILLIAM GREGG. MRS. ADA GREGG.

GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU,

COR. CANAL AND BURGUNDY STS.,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A long acquaintance with the various kinds of

SEWING MACHINES

has induced us to make a specialty in this line. First-class Machines of all kinds at lowest rates. The New Under-Feed Buckeye Hand Machine, only $20. We repair all Machines at low rates. We take old Machines in part payment for new ones. Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs sold on monthly payments in the country to parties giving references.

MRS. ADA GREGG

respectfully offers her services in purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel, personal adornment or domestic goods for Ladies' and Children's use, including Millinery, Dry Goods, Jewelry, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Patterns, Underwear, Trimmings, Bridal Trousseaux, etc. Any article of Ladies' and Children's wear manufactured in the latest styles, under her own supervision.

N. B.—All inquiries relative to articles mentioned or ommentioned will be answered free of charge.

Second-hand Machines, in good order, at half price. The best Needles for all Machines.

REFERENCES.—E. A. Tyler, New Orleans; J. L. Power, Jackson, Mississippi.

Send for catalogue and circular.

se3 1y GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU.

HENRY PILCHER,

BUILDER OF

CHURCH ORGANS,

636 Portland Avenue.....636

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

Twenty-five years' experience in the business, and some of the finest Instruments in the country as specimens of my skill, are sufficient guarantee of the excellence of my work. Would solicit a share of the Southern patronage, and feel confident of my ability to please. The best of references as to ability and honorable dealing. Jy16 3m

STEAM

MARBLE SAW MILL,

318 TO 332 EAST TWENTY-THIRD ST.,

Between First and Second avenues, NEW YORK.

WILLIAM PATTISON,

DEALER IN

American and Foreign Marble

of all kinds, has constantly on hand, and will saw to order, ITALIAN MARBLE of the various dimensions, suitable for Monuments, Headstones, Furniture and Mantelpiece work, Tiling, etc., at the lowest market prices. Italian and American Marble in Blocks and Slabs. au27 3m

STAINED GLASS

—AND—

Decorative Art Establishment,

GIBSON'S BUILDING,

Broadway & Thirteenth St., New York.

Established in 1833.

The Designs of Architects and Amateurs artistically carried out. Designs for Memorial Windows a specialty. (au27 1y) WM. GIBSON.

CHAMBERS'

STERLING PIANOS.

"SPECIAL SAFE OFFER."

☞ READ! MARK! WRITE! ☜

Before you buy, send for information, circulars and price list. Guarantee unlimited. Pianos sent for approval, and satisfaction assured by our "Special Safe Offer." Address CHAMBERS PIANO FACTORY, 306 Fourth Ave., New York. au13 4m

ESTABLISHED 25 YEARS.

HENRY E. SHARP & SON,

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS,

FOR CHURCHES.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS A SPECIALTY.

117 and 119 East Twenty-Second Street,

NEW YORK. au20 3m

VANDERBURGH, WELLS & CO., manufacturers of POSTER AND OTHER WOOD TYPE. Dealers in Presses and Inks, Leads, Brass Rules, Ovals, Circles, Borders, etc. Printers' and Engravers' Boxwood Depot. Manufacturers of Eagle, California and other Improved Cabinets, with flush front, duplex and other cases. No. 110 Fulton and Nos. 18 and 18 Dutch street, New York. N.B.—Large stock of used Type and Presses for sale. Pattern and Brand Letters. Stamps for Soap, Dry Goods and other uses. au6 3m

WILLIAM COULTER & SON,

MANUFACTURERS OF

ORNAMENTAL, GROUND AND CUT

WINDOW GLASS,

104 East Second St., Cincinnati, O.

Ornamental Window Glass, of every description, for Churches, Private and Public Buildings, Steamboats, Railroad Cars, etc. Jy23 3m

F. L. MATTHEWS,

UNDERTAKER,

(CARRIAGES FOR HIRE AT ALL HOURS,)

338 Carondelet Street,

Bet. Thalia and Erato Streets, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood Coffins always on hand. Disinterring, Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses and Carriages for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. au20 1y

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

VOICE OF GOD.—A new and popular book for the people, beautifully illustrated and bound. Replete with information and choice reading. Recommended by pastors of all denominations. Agents can sell this book where no others can be sold. Also a

New and Elegantly Illustrated

LARGE PRINT FAMILY BIBLE

WITH BIBLE DICTIONARY.

A Complete Cyclopedia of Bible History.

Agents, send for Terms and Circulars to

Miller's Bible and Publishing House,

1102 and 1104 Sansom street,

e18 13t PHILADELPHIA

WILD LIFE IN THE FAR WEST!

Agents Wanted everywhere for this beautifully illustrated book of the Author's Thirty Years' Life and Adventures among the Indians, in the Mexican Wars, hunting wild animals, etc. Entirely new, and the best book ever published on the Far West. Thrillingly interesting, and selling faster than anything ever before known. Send for illustrated circular and liberal terms.

F. A. HUTCHINSON & CO.,

oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED!—ACT AT ONCE.—The people everywhere are eager to buy the only authentic and complete history of

LIVINGSTONE.

His wonderful discoveries and thrilling adventures during 30 Years in the wilds of Africa, resurrection by the daring STANLEY, and heroic death. Over 600 pages, beautifully illustrated; only $2.50. Going like wildfire! Write for extra terms; or, if you wish to begin at once, send $1 for outfit. VALLEY PUBLISHING CO.,

oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the Great $2 Books PHYSICAL LIFE OF WOMAN, PHYSICAL LIFE OF MAN. By Dr. A. H. Napheys. 185,000 copies sold. The demand still growing. Send for sample copies. Outfits Free. Express charges prepaid on good orders. ☞ Also for GROUNDSWELL, or History of the Workers' Movement. By Hon. J. Perham, Agricultural Editor of the Western Rural. Send for terms to N. D. THOMPSON & CO. 303 St. Charles street, St. Louis, Mo. Jy23 3m

AGENTS WANTED For the quickest and best selling new book out.

Ten Years in Washington

By Mary Clemmer Ames. "A work for the times and the people: a paying book for Agents." It portrays the Capital as a wide-awake "common sense if"—its Wonders, marvels, mysteries, etc. 886 in one week was made by a single Agent, and all say "it pays to sell it." Steady work, or for spare hours, for men or ladies on this first-class book. It unsells all others. One good working Agent wanted in every town. Book agents, clergymen, ladies and others offered large terms. Send for information to A. D. WORTHINGTON & CO., Hartford, Conn., or to QUEEN CITY PUBLISHING Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. se11 1y

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE FOR

KIT CARSON'S

LIFE AND ADVENTURES.

From facts narrated by himself. Embraces events in the life-time of America's Greatest Hunter, Trapper, Scout and Ranger; includes vivid accounts of the every-day life, Inner character and peculiar customs of all Indian Tribes of the Far West; an accurate description of the country, its condition, prospects, resources, its mountains, rivers, valleys and natural wonders. Also, a full and complete history of the Modoc Indians and the Modoc War.

Splendidly Illustrated and sells at sight. Agents reporting from 25 to 100 subscribers each per week. Illustrated circulars and terms sent free to any address by

EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING CO.,

oc2 1y St. Louis, Mo.

$2,500 A YEAR made with our grand

COMBINATION PROSPECTUS.

Represents 50 different books. Agents say this is

THE BEST THING EVER TRIED.

The books sell themselves in every family, and good men can make a business for life in one county. Agents Wanted on these and our magnificent Editions of Family Bibles. Full particulars free on application. Address JOHN E. POTTER & CO., Publishers, Philadelphia. au13 13t

CANVASSERS send No. of your Lodge, and name this paper. We will convince you agents with our superb Home Pictures for Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights Pythias, Grangers, Red-men, Mechanics, etc., are making double they could any other way; work pleasanter. J. HOLE POWERS & CO., Fraternity & Fine Art Pubs., Cincinnati, O.

Ja29 1y

BOOK AGENTS, REJOICE!—HARD Times no More! MARK TWAIN'S New Book, THE GILDED AGE, now ready. Secure territory before it is too late. Canvassing outfit, $1.50. For terms address

CONTINENTAL PUBLISHING CO.,

de1 1y New Orleans or St. Louis.

IRON WORKS—BELLS.

RAILINGS.....RAILINGS.

WROUGHT IRON AND WIRE RAILINGS

FOR

Public Grounds, Cemeteries, Cottages,

ETC., ETC.

Iron Bedsteads, with Wire Sackings, for Hospitals, etc. Verandas and every variety of Wrought Iron and Wire work. Every information by addressing the manufacturers,

M. WALKER & SONS,

se18 1y 805 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WIRE RAILING

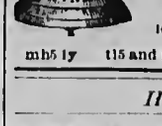
AND

ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.,

Manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. oc2 1y



BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hanging, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati

B. J. WEST, Agent,

mh5 1y 115 and 117 Magazine st., New Orleans.

HOTELS.

TERMS, $3 A DAY.

Bingham House, Philadelphia,

Corner of Eleventh and Market Sts.

CARLIS DAVIS, PROPRIETOR.

This popular Hotel being centrally located and accessible by street cars from all depots, makes it a desirable stopping-place for travelers. It will be conducted in the same liberal manner as heretofore, it being the intention of the proprietor to maintain the reputation it has always enjoyed of being in all respects a first-class hotel. se11 1y

ST. DENIS HOTEL,

BROADWAY AND ELEVENTH ST.,

NEW YORK.

This well-known House, conducted on the European plan, and centrally located opposite Grace Church, and near A. T. Stewart's up-town store, has first-class accommodations at moderate prices for permanent and transient guests.

GEORGE W. HUNT, Manager,

Formerly Proprietor of Irving and Westmoreland Hotels. se3 6m

CRAWFORD HOUSE,

COR. SIXTH AND WALNUT STREETS,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

I pride myself in providing for my guests the best living, cleanest house and more civility for less money than any other house in the city.

☞ Come and see me.

je25 tf FRANK J. OAKES, Proprietor.

Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers,

of every kind. Send stamp for Illustrated Price List to GREAT WESTERN GUN WORKS, Pittsburg, Pa. Jy9 13t

BUSINESS CARDS.

RICHARD FROTSCHER,

SEED MERCHANT,

12.....Dumaine St.....12

Near the French Market, New Orleans.

Dealer in BUIST'S GARDEN SEEDS, which are the most reliable seeds sold in the Southern market. Almanacs and catalogues furnished on application. Prices reasonable. Jy16 3m

D. H. WALLACE,

COTTON FACTOR AND GENERAL PURCHASING AGENT,

38.....Perdido St.....38

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Will give special attention to the sale of Cotton and other Produce, and will fill all orders for goods of every description at lowest cash prices. Jy2 1y

J. B. WILKINSON, JR.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT

FOR THE SALE OF

Hides, Moss, Wool and Country Produce Generally,

and for the purchase of Family, Plantation and Store Supplies, 29 PETERS AND 1 CLINTON STREET, near the Custom-house, New Orleans.

Liberal cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, Rice and other consignments. Connections with the principal Northern markets. Sole agent for the celebrated Armstrong Machine-cleaned Moss. je4 13m

J. A. KERNAN & T. WHITE,

PRACTICAL GILDERS,

100 Custom-house St., near Royal, New Orleans.

Regilding done in the best style. Oil Paintings restored, relined, cleansed and varnished. Looking-glass and Picture Frames made to order. Having a business experience of nearly forty years in this city, they hope to give satisfaction to their customers not only in the superiority of their work, but likewise in their moderate charges. Country orders promptly attended fe9 9m

LOUISIANA STEAM SASH, BLIND

—AND—

DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

New Orleans. Je11 1y

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

B. D. WOOD & BROS.,

106 Common St., opposite City Hotel,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat-load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. my7 1y

E. A. TYLER,

115.....Canal Street.....115

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

FINE WATCHES, DIAMONDS, JEWELRY, Plated-ware, Table Cutlery, Fancy Goods, etc. Pure Sterling silverware, suitable for presents. Clocks and Bronzes in great variety. Jewelry manufactured and repaired. Clocks and Watches repaired. fe26 1y

TO THE PUBLIC.—Returning thanks for past favors, the undersigned desires to inform his friends and the public that he has removed to

152 and 154 Camp St., cor. Calliope,

where he continues to Buy, Sell, Store, Remove, Pack and Repair FURNITURE of every description. Pictures and Looking-glasses framed.

JOHN BOIS,

fe26 1y Nos. 152 and 154 Camp street.

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

English Carpetings, Rugs, Etc., Etc.

Also Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc. oc23 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.

AIKEN & WATT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

60 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no6 1y

DELICIOUS SODA WATER

AND

FRESH FRUIT SYRUPS,

At Eckleburg's,

Corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue, New Orleans. Je11 3m

JAMES M. DOWLING,

SUCCESSOR TO J. M. JOHNSTON,

WHOLESALE GROCER, COMMISSION MERCHANT,

And Dealer in Western Produce,

NO. 25 DECATUR ST. (LATE OLD LEVEE,)

Je1 1y Cor. Custom-house St., New Orleans.

T. W. BOTHICK, UNDERTAKER,

No. 271 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood COFFINS always on hand, Black, Satin, Brown and White Merino Ladies' and Children's Shrouding. Embalming and Disinterring. Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses, Carriages and Cabs for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. de1 1y

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS,

TRADE-MARKS, COPYRIGHTS, ETC.,

Procured by

mh24 10m H. N. JENKINS,

No. 27 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

THE DOMESTIC

LOCK-STITCH SEWING MACHINE

WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME,

WILCOX & GIBBS' celebrated Twisted Loop-Stitch Sewing Machine, always ready and in order. Needles for all kinds of Sewing Machines.

M. S. HEDRICK,

my21 1y 103 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. D. COULON,

PORTRAIT PAINTER,

37.....Camp Street.....37

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Old Paintings restored. te19 tf

E. HEATH. M. LARA.

HEATH & LARA,

Importers and Dealers in

UPHOLSTERERS' GOODS, WALL PAPER WINDOW SHADES AND CORNICES,

Mirrors, Frames, Molding and Wire Screens,

No. 99 Camp Street,

no20 1y New Orleans.

T. WHINBEY CARTER,

ARCHITECT,

47.....POLYMNIA STREET.....47

ja15 1y New Orleans.

GAS FIXTURES,

GAS COOKING STOVES

AND PLUMBING MATERIALS

At New York Prices,

BY P. H. QUINLAN, 280 CAMP STREET,

Stores, Offices and Dwellings fitted up for Gas, Steam and Water in the most approved style. Country orders solicited. mh26 10m

F. J. KUHNHOLZ,

BOOK-BINDER,

112.....GRAVIER ST.....112

Near Camp, New Orleans.

Blank-Books ruled and bound to order. All other books, such as Magazines, Music, Law-Books, etc., bound with care and neatness, and at moderate prices. Jy22 1y

HUGH FLYNN,

107 POYDRAS ST., NEW ORLEANS,

All who want to purchase CHEAP FURNITURE can call at 107 Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet streets.

On account of retiring from the Furniture business, I am now selling off my large stock of New Furniture at greatly reduced rates. I am selling at rates below those of any house in the city.

Walnut Victoria Bed-room Sets, marble top..$125 00
Parlor Sets, eleven pieces..... 110 00
Double Bedsteads, with Testers and Rollers.. 12 00

Kitchen and Dining-room Furniture at equally low rates. Spring, Hair and Moss Mattresses of the best quality and at greatly reduced prices. de1 1y

T. A. BECK, COOPER,

NOS. 23 AND 24 FRONT STREET,

Between Custom-house and Bienville streets (Sugar Landing,) New Orleans,

has constantly on hand Sugar Hogsheads, Molasses Barrels, Half Barrels, Kegs, Hoop Poles, etc. Orders promptly attended to. Particular attention paid to trimming. de4 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

TURPIN'S CELEBRATED

EXTRACT OF MEAD.

THE ONLY GENUINE RECIPE FOR

MAKING MEAD SIRUP AND MEAD SODA.

DIRECTIONS HOW TO USE ON EACH BOTTLE.

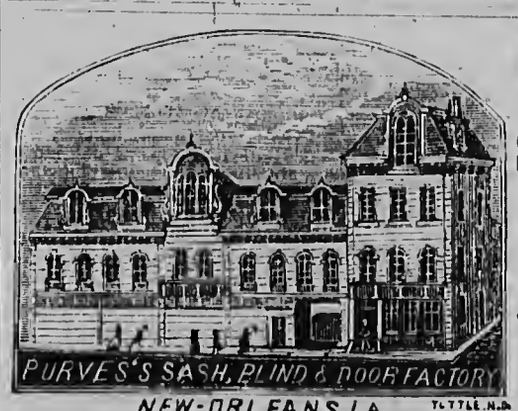
THIS BRISK AND MOST LUSCIOUS BEVERAGE is becoming daily more popular throughout the principal cities of the United States. As a cooling, soothing and thirst-quenching beverage it has no superior.

Families can make their own Sirup by following the directions on each bottle of my Extract. It is superior to Lemonade in warm climates. A little water added to this Sirup quenches thirst and imparts a cooling feeling throughout the body. Those who have used it have pronounced it the NECTAR of tropical countries. Try it once and you will never be without it.

The undersigned, being the compounder and sole proprietor, warns the public against all counterfeits. Price, per dozen, bottles, $12. One bottle is sufficient to flavor thirteen gallons of Mead Soda or three gallons of Mead Sirup. Address

ERNEST TURPIN,

au13 1m Nos. 112 and 114 Poydras Street, New Orleans.



GEORGE PURVES'

PERSEVERANCE

Sash, Blind and Door

STEAM FACTORY,

AND

LUMBER YARD,

Cor. of St. Charles and Cito Sts., New Orleans.

GLAZED SASH.

Send for Price List.

de11 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

J. A. LE'M. FRANK H. HOOKER.

J. A. LE'M & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

CARRIAGES, HARNESS, ETC.,

162 Gravier and 13 Union Street.

☞ A SPECIALTY MADE OF CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES. mh5 1y

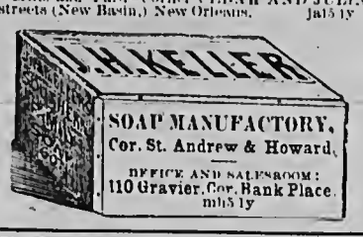
THOMAS HASAM,

LUMBER.

CARINS MADE TO ORDER.

Every description of LUMBER always on hand. Sash, Blinds, etc.

Mills and Yard—Corner CEDAR AND JULIA streets (New Basin,) New Orleans. Ja15 1y



mh5 1y

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

RESIDENCE AND OFFICE,

Corner Magazine and Second Streets,

New Orleans.

Office Hours—Eight to nine A. M. and three to four P. M. Je29 tf

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152.....Julia Street.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed.

Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. de1 1y

DR. J. J. LYONS,

NO. 240 CARONDELET STREET

Between Julia and St. Joseph,

Ja2 1y New Orleans, La.

G. W. RACE. W. M. FOSTER.
E. T. MERRICK, formerly Chief Justice, Louisiana.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

ATTORNEYS, COUNSELORS AND SOLICITORS,

Corner of Camp Street and Commercial Place,

se25 NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS

PURCHASING BUREAU.

To the Ladies of the South.

A Purchasing Agency has been established in New Orleans, Louisiana, for the benefit of those residing at a distance from the city, and who have not the facilities for obtaining just what they require.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE

respectfully offers her services in selecting, purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel or personal adornment for ladies' and children's use, including MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, JEWELRY, BRIDAL TROUSSEAUX, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Trimmings, Underwear, Sewing Machines, etc., etc.

Scrupulous care with reference to the price and quality and fidelity to the interest and fulfillment of the wishes of correspondents, will be sedulously carried out.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE'S

Dressmaking Establishment,

Nos. 91 and 93 Canal St., New Orleans.

Refers by permission to D. H. Holmes & Co., New Orleans. fe19 1y

WILLIAM N. THOMSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

Thomson's Leather-Preserver,

FOR

Boots, Shoes, Harness, Belting & Hose.

ALSO DEALER IN

LACE LEATHER, RIVETS, RUBS, BELT HOOKS, BELT STUDS,

Punches, Belt Sets, and all goods connected with the Belting business,

NO. 52 RACE STREET,

mu6 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

GLASS STAINERS

AND BENDERS.

BELCHER & POVEY,

13 West Broadway, cor. Reade St.,

NEW YORK.

Works—Newark, N. J. mh13 1y

FOUND.—The place to buy EUCALYPTUS GLOBULUS, Blue Gum or Fever-Tree SEED. Also all Seeds known in Australia, New Zealand, South America or California. To be had of

B. F. WELLINGTON,

425 Washington St., San Francisco, Cal.

Send for circulars. Je11 3m

MISCELLANEOUS.

CINCINNATI

PIANO-FORTE

MANUFACTORY.

F. W. BIERE & SON,

WAREROOMS,

170 Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The attention of our friends and the public in general is most respectfully invited to our fine stock of HOME-MADE PIANOS.

We permit no inferior instrument to go out of our factory, but endeavor to EXCEL ALL MAKERS by producing PERFECT INSTRUMENTS ONLY, and thereby secure the entire confidence of the public. Jy23 3m

MONUMENTS A SPECIALTY.

AMERICAN GRANITE

AND ITALIAN MARBLE.

IMPORTERS OF

Scotch Granite Monuments

AND STATUARY FROM ITALY.

This is the OLDEST AND LARGEST establishment of the kind in the Western country, and would solicit a share of the Southern patronage. Being in the business for years, I feel confident of giving the utmost satisfaction, having in my employ men of experience.

A. WHITE.

OFFICE AND WORKS,

251, 253 and 257 West Fifth St.,

Jy23 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

STAR IRON WORKS.

WALTON, HEMLER & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

IRON RAILINGS,

SAFES AND BANK VAULTS,

JAIL CELLS, IRON STAIRS, DOORS AND SHUTTERS, Awning Frames, Gratings, Bolts, Stirrups, Verandas, Balconies, Patent Sidewalk and Sky-Lights, and all kinds of Iron Work for buildings.

Nos. 234 and 236 West Pearl Street,

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Orders promptly attended to and satisfaction guaranteed. Jy23 4m

LEVY BROS.'

Dry Goods Establishment,

AT

580.....MAGAZINE STREET.....580

Between St. Andrew and St. Mary.

NEW GOODS EVERY WEEK.

We are now opening a large and well-assorted stock of SPRING GOODS, which have been bought and will be sold at prices that will suit all purchasers.

Give Us a Call.

N. B.—Orders from the country will be promptly filled. mh5 1y

FLINN'S PATENT

SELF-FASTENING AND ADJUSTABLE

BED SPRINGS

Make the Best Spring Beds in Use.

They are complete in themselves, and can be applied in a few minutes to any slat bedstead.

☞ From three to five dozen make a Set.

JOHN FLINN,

248 South Second St., Philadelphia, Pa

Cor. S. Water and Champlain Sts., Cleveland.

Agents wanted everywhere. se18 1y

S. COLLINS & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK.

Office and Depot—26 Frankfort St.,

NEW YORK.

GEO. H. MORRILL & CO., Boston, Mass.
MORRILL & CO., San Francisco, Cal. au27 3m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER

AND

STEAM POWER LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTER,

82 Beekman Street, New York.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for catalogue. mh1 1y

JAMES S. PATTERSON,

WOOD ENGRAVER,

28.....Beekman Street.....28

au13 1y NEW YORK CITY.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,

17.....CHARTRES STREET.....17

A. BROUSSEAU & CO., Importers and Dealers at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings; Floor Oil Cloths; Table and Enameled Oil Cloths; Window Shades; Table and Piano Covers; Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces Curtain and Furniture Materials; Brocatelles, Cotellenes, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains; Haircloth Ticking; Springs; Burlaps; Step Covers, etc.

de4 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO

CHARLES H. TURNO,

STAINED-GLASS FOR CHURCHES.

Memorial Windows a specialty. No. 333 East Twenty-Third street, New York. au27 3m

MACHINERY, TIES, ETC.

LANE & BODLEY,

CINCINNATI, OHIO,

MANUFACTURERS OF STANDARD

PLANTATION

MACHINERY,

STATIONARY & PORTABLE

STEAM ENGINES,

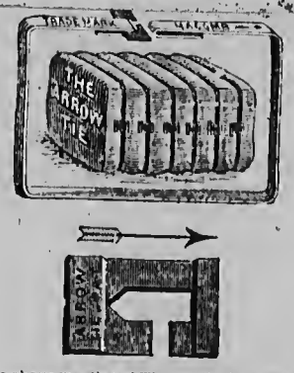
Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Shafting Hangers, Pulleys, etc. Our Machinery is strong, simple and well made, and is especially adapted to the wants of Farmers and Planters for Ginning, Sawing, Grinding and Factory use. Send for an Illustrated Catalogue.

LANE & BODLEY,

Jy23 1y John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, O.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.



The above-mentioned Ties are the best and most popular Ties in use for Baling Cotton. They are manufactured of the best quality of English Iron, and are sold under full guarantee, at the lowest market price, by all dealers in Baling Stuffs in New Orleans, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, Charleston, Wilmington, Petersburg, Baltimore, Memphis, Louisville, Nashville, New York, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

R. W. RAYNE & CO.,

(Late Bartlett & Rayne,)

GENERAL AGENTS,

48 Carondelet Street, cor. Union,

Je18 6m New Orleans.

au20 3m

DANIEL PRATT'S

Improved Cotton Gin.

PRICE REDUCED

TO $4 PER SAW.

JOSEPH B. WOLFE & CO.,

GENERAL AGENTS,

No. 39 Carondelet Street,

Je4 6m NEW ORLEANS.

PLOWS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC.

PLOWS

AND ALL IMPROVED

Agricultural Implements.

PLANTATION HARDWARE.

Steam Engines, Saw and Grist Mills.

PUMPS, SHAFTING, ETC.,

AT LOW PRICES FOR CASH.

B. J. WEST,

115 and 117 Magazine St., New Orleans,

MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

mh19 10m

N. F. BURNHAM'S

1874 TURBINE

WATER WHEEL

The best in the Market, and sold at less price than any other first-class Wheel.

84 per cent. guaranteed with

☞ Send for a pamphlet and be convinced.

mu6 1m N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

CRESCENT MACHINE SHOP.

JOSEPH WALKER,

Machinist, Engineer, Blacksmithing,

ETC., ETC.,

CORNER ST. JOSEPH AND CONSTANCE STS., New Orleans.

☞ Plantation Machinery manufactured and repaired. Jobbing promptly attended to. fe6 1y

TRUSSES AND BRACES.

Club Feet cured without the knife. The Radical-Cure Truss, patented May 8, 1866, applied. All instruments for deformities—Crutches, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Ear Trumpets—on hand at DR. A. O. FORSBERG'S, No. 5 East Fourth street, east of Main, up stairs, Cincinnati, Ohio. Sign of Golden Eagle. au6 3m

New Orleans Markets.

From the New Orleans Price Current.

The river is 12 feet 4 inches below high-water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the fourth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales...	1,131
Mobile		172
Texas		19
Total		1,322

On Saturday strict good ordinary sold as low as 14⅝c., and strict low middling, in trifling lots, at 15⅜, 15⅝c. the 16c. The quotations were given to some extent nominal, but were submitted for the information of planters as the nearest approximation that could be made to the actual situation of the market, without considering the pretensions of the largest holders. The sales were confined to 130 bales. On Monday the demand was extremely limited, only three buyers participating in the business, who took respectively 30, 40 and 100 bales. High style new low middling, with good staple, sold at 16c., or ⅛c. above the outside figures for that grade, and new strict low middling at 16¼c., or ⅛c above the outside figures, neither of which, considering the staple, conflicted with the quotations, which were reduced ⅛c. for low-middling and ⅛c. in the outside figures for middling. On Tuesday buyers came forward with more spirit, and took 800 bales at irregular prices, a part of the business showing no falling off, and the rest a further advantage on the side of the buyer. Strict good ordinary sold at 14¾c., and good style low middling at 15⅜c.

The above makes an aggregate for the past three days of 1,100 bales, against 700 for the corresponding time last week and 1,100 the week before.

We quote:

Interior	8	@ 9
Low ordinary	10¼	@ 10⅝
Ordinary	11¾	@ 12
Strict ordinary	13	@ 13¼
Good ordinary	14⅛	@ 14⅜
Strict good ordinary	14¾	@ 15⅛
Low middling	15⅛	@ 15⅜
Strict low middling	16	@ 16⅛
Middling	16⅛	@ 16⅜
Strict middling	17	@ —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1874...bales		15,953
Arrived past three days	1,322
Arrived previously	1,029—	2,351
		18,304
Exported past three days	2,557
Exported previously	400—	2,957
Stock on hand and on shipboard		15,347

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—There is a fair demand for dealers' and grocers' trade, and the stock is being very much reduced. On Saturday 200 hhds. fully fair to prime, not refilled, sold at 9⅛@9⅜c. ℔ lb.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Northern syrup is selling at 57c.; city refinery molasses, 40c. for common, 50c. for fair, 55c. for good fair, 60c. for prime, and 65c. ℔ gallon for choice.

CORN.—On Saturday 1,100 sacks sold at 95c. for yellow and yellow mixed, and 95c.@$1 for choice white.

OATS.—On Tuesday 500 sacks sold at 60@63c. for prime and 65c. for choice white.

PORK.—On Saturday 200 bbls. mess sold at $25, though later that price was refused and $25.25 ℔ bbl. asked for choice Cincinnati.

BACON.—On Tuesday the sales embraced 260 casks and 42 boxes at 11c. for shoulders, 15½c. for clear rib sides, and 15½@15¾c. for clear sides, the market closing buoyant, with some asking still higher rates.

HAMS.—They are quoted at 15@15½c., though on Saturday a lot of 10 tierces brought 16¼c. ℔ lb.

LARD.—On Tuesday a lot of 50 tierces refined sold at 15¾c. ℔ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT.—None in first hands. Shoulders would command 10¼c.; retailing by dealers at 10¾c. ℔ lb. On Tuesday a lot of a few casks shoulders sold at 10¾c. ℔ lb.

BREAKFAST BACON.—Is in light supply, and commands 15¾@16c. ℔ lb. for Western.

CORN MEAL.—On Saturday the sales were confined to 300 bbls., in lots, at $3.60@3.65, and on Monday only 600 bbls. sold, on the landing, at $3.60@3.65, and 75 in store at $3.75 ℔ bbl. On Tuesday only 150 bbls. sold, in store and on the landing, at $3.75, which is the asking price, but is obtained only in job lots.

POULTRY.—Western-grown chickens sell at $4.50, young do. $4@4.50, ducks $4@4.50, geese $5@7, turkeys $15@18 ℔ dozen. Louisiana-grown chickens $4.50@5, young do. $3@3.50, ducks $2.75@3, geese $6@7, turkeys $12@15 ℔ dozen.

BRAN.—Has been in light supply and fair demand, and prices have advanced 15c. ℔ 100 lbs. On Saturday 300 sacks sold at $1.10@$1.20 ℔ 100 lbs. No sales on Monday. On Tuesday 50 sacks sold at $1.25 ℔ 100 lbs., owing to scarcity.

RICE.—Good demand. We quote No. 2 3¾@4c., common 5¼@5½c., ordinary 5¾@6c., fair 6⅛@6½c., prime 7@7¼c., choice 7⅛@7¾c. ℔ lb.

BAGGING.—The demand is good. Domestic jute is retailing at 16c., hemp 15½c., India, in bales and rolls, 12@12¾c. ℔ yard.

EGGS.—Louisiana 22½@25c. ℔ dozen.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 109⅛@109¾ (against 109¾ at New York,) and after a limited business closed at 109⅜@109⅝ (against 109⅞ in that market.)

Nothing has been reported in silver except $1,000 in American half dollars on Monday at 105. It is quoted at 104½@105 for American half dollars. Mexican dollars closed at 97¾ gold.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS:
Cotton scrapers	$1 50	— —
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. and shovel-tooth	9 00	12 50
Cultivators, riding and walking	25 00	35 00
Shovels and spades	7 50	16 00
Axes	11 00	16 00
Shovel plows	5 00	7 50
Half do., with cutters	6 00	7 50
Manly's double-shovel plow	6 00	8 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	425 00
Bradford's grist mills	150 00	225 00
BRICKS, ℔ M:
Lake	9 50	15 00
Country	7 00	9 00
English fire	45 00	47 50
American fire	35 00	— —
CANDLES, ℔ lb.:
Sperm, New Bedford	30	31
Tallow	14	— —
CHOCOLATE, ℔ lb.:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	— —	— —
Sweet	22	— —
COAL, ℔ ton:
Anthracite	12 50	13 00
Western, ℔ bbl	— —	— —
COFFEE, ℔ lb.:
Mexican	— —	— —
Java	28	30
COTTON SEED:
Rough, ℔ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	10 00
EGGS, ℔ dozen:
Western	10	18
FERTILIZERS, ℔ ton:
Stern's raw-bone superphosph'e	— —	65 00
Stern's fine-ground bone	— —	45 00
FLOUR, ℔ bbl.:
Double extra	— —	4 75
Superfine	— —	4 25
Fine	— —	— —
GLASS, ℔ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	— —	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 10 by 14 to 12 by 20	4 00	4 25
French, 14 by 18 to 18 by 20	4 25	4 75
HAY, ℔ ton:
Prime	— —	26 00
Choice	26 50	27 00
IRON, ℔ ton:
English, ℔ lb	4	5
Swedes, assorted	7¼	8
Hoop	6	9
Sheet	6	9
Nail rods	— —	9¾
Castings, American	5¾	6
LEATHER, ℔ lb.:
Sole, hemlock	30	33
Sole, oak	40	44
Harness	39	45
Calf-skins, ℔ dozen	35 00	100 00
Texas, rough, ℔ lb	24	26
LIME, ℔ bbl.:
Western	1 50	1 75
Cement	2 50	2 75
Plaster Paris	— —	2 75
LUMBER, ℔ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	— —	— —
Boards, cypress	— —	— —
Flooring, dressed	18 00	20 00
Flooring, rough	— —	16 00
Ceiling, dressed	12 00	14 00
Weatherboards, dressed	14 00	16 00
Weatherboards, rough	— —	— —
Scantling	10 00	12 00
Shingles, ℔ M	— —	3 25
Laths	— —	— —
OILS:
Lard, ℔ gallon	1 10	1 15
Coal oil, in barrels	17	20
Linseed, raw	1 02	— —
SUGAR, ℔ lb.:
Havana, white	— —	— —
Havana, yellow	— —	— —
Havana, brown	— —	— —
Crushed	11¾	12
Pulverized	11¾	12
TEAS, ℔ lb.:
Imperial	75	— —
Gunpowder	65	— —
Hyson	70	— —
Young Hyson	70	1 40
Pouchong	30	— —
Oolong	25	— —
WAGONS, CARTS, ETC.:
Wagon, two-horse	85 00	90 00
Wagon, four-horse	115 00	125 00
Wagon, two-horse, thim. skein	80 00	85 00
Wagon, four-horse	100 00	110 00
Cane wagon	210 00	215 00
Ox wagon	00 00	125 00
Ox cart, complete	110 00	115 00
Cane cart	110 00	115 00
Tongue cart, complete	120 00	125 00
Plantation cart	55 00	65 00

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8, 1874.

Texas beeves, choice, ℔ head	$— —	@$40 00
Texas beeves, first quality, ℔ head	30 00	@ 35 00
Texas cattle, second quality, ℔ head	20 00	@ 25 00
Texas cattle, third quality, ℔ head	12 00	@ 18 00
Western beeves, ℔ lb. net	— —	@ — —
Sheep, first quality ℔ head	4 00	@ 5 00
Sheep, second quality, ℔ head	3 00	@ 4 00
Milch cows, choice, ℔ head	80 00	@100 00
Milch cows, ℔ head	35 00	@ 40 00
Calves, ℔ head	7 00	@ 9 00
Yearlings, ℔ head	9 00	@ 9 00

Advertisers' Directory

OF THE

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Alphabetically Arranged Under the Heads of the Business or Articles Advertised.

NOTE.—We take no advertisements except from those who we have good reason to believe are respectable and reliable. The publisher urges his solicitor and agents to seek the advertisements of the most worthy and reliable representatives in every branch of business, and not to apply to or accept business from persons of doubtful character. We have refused business to the extent of thousands of dollars each year for want of satisfactory information in reference to applicants. We think we may safely claim for the list below that it embraces, as a rule, the very best men and firms in the different branches represented.

☞ We retain no dead advertisements.

Agencies.
Gregg's Purchasing Bureau, corner Canal and Burgundy streets.
Mrs. H. Mogridge, Purchasing Bureau, 94 and 96 Canal street.
J. Dale Powers, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.
N. D. Thompson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Agricultural Implements.
Louisville Agricultural Works, Louisville, Ky.

Architects.
T. Whinrey Carter, 47 Polymnia street, New Orleans.

Banners.
T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, New York.

Barber.
Baptiste, St. Charles Hotel.

Bed Springs.
John Flinn, Philadelphia.

Bells.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Buckeye Bell Foundery, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Belting.
W. N. Thomson, 52 Race street, Cincinnati, O.

Book-Binder.
F. J. Kuhnholz, 112 Gravier street.

Books and Stationery.
Robert J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.
American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
Continental Publishing Co., St. Louis, Missouri.
Chas. H. Ellison & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, Mass.
F. A. Hutchinson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Albert Mason, New York.
Miller's Bible and Publishing House, 1102 and 1104 Sansom street, Philadelphia.
Nettleton & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
John E. Potter & Co., Philadelphia.
Queen City Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
H. H. Russell, Boston, Mass.
Valley Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo.
A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn
Ziegler & McCurdy, St. Louis, Mo.

Building.
A. J. Bicknell & Co 27 Warren street, New York

Building Paper.
Edward Thompson, 90 Baronne street, New Orleans.

Carpets.
A. Brousseau & Co., 17 Chartres street.
Elkin & Co., 168 Canal street.

Carriages, Wagons, Etc.
J. A. Lum & Co., 162 Gravier and 13 Union street.

China and Crockeryware.
W. C. Shepard & Co., 55 Camp street.

Chromos, Etc.
G. E. Perine, 66 Reade street, New York.

Clothing and Furnishing Goods.
Pierson & Hews, 13 and 15 Camp street.

Coal and Wood.
H. D. Wood & Bros., 106 Common street.

Cooperage.
T. A. Beck, 23 and 24 Front street.
P. A. Leblanc, 22 Front street.

Cotton Gins.
J. B. Wolfe & Co., 39 Carondelet street.

Cotton Ties.
Hartlett & Rayne, 48 Carondelet street.

Croquet.
Bradley's Patent Croquet, Robt. J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Dentists.
Dr. John G. Angell, 152 Julia street.

Direct Trade.
Dr. Thomas D. Worrall, 24 and 26 Camp street.

Dry Goods.
Levy Bros., 580 Magazine street.

Educational.
Blackman's Commercial College, 131 Carondelet street.
Centenary College, C. G. Andrews, president, Jackson, La.
Collegiate Academy, Rev. J. A. B. Jones, president, Port Gibson, Miss.
Collegiate Institute, Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge, La.
Eminence College, Eminence, Ky.
Emory and Henry College, Rev. E. E. Wiley, Emory P. O., Va.
Furman's English and Classical School, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Hiwassee College, Rev. J. H. Brunner, prest.
Mansfield Female College.
Martha Washington College, Abingdon, Va.
Polytechnic College, Philadelphia, Pa.
Randolph Macon College, Rev. James A. Duncan, A. M., D. D., president, Ashland, Va.
Readville Seminary, Mrs. M. W. Read Baton Rouge, La.
Soule's Commercial College, corner Camp and Common streets.
Southern University, Greensboro, Ala
Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va. Rev. W. A. Harris, president.
Whitworth Female College, H. F. Johnson, president, Brookhaven, Miss.

Engravers.
John Gibson, 82 Beekman street, New York.
J. W. Hart, Cincinnati, Ohio.
J. S. Patterson, 25 Beekman street, New York.
Warren Richards, 42 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Edward Sears, 48 Beekman street, New York.

Exterminators.
J. F. Henry, Curran & Co., New York.

Extract of Meat.
Ernest Turpin, 112 and 114 Poydras street, New Orleans.

Factors and Commission Merchants.
Aiken & Watt, 60 Carondelet street.
D. H. Wallace, 38 Perdido street.
J. B. Wilkinson, Jr., 29 Peters and 4 Clinton st.

Fire-Arms.
Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburg, Pa.

For Sale.
Tent on Seashore camp ground, Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Framers and Gilders.
Kernan & White, 106 Customhouse street.

Furniture.
John Bois, 152 and 154 Camp street.
Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Co., 166 Julia street, New Orleans.
Hugh Flynn, 167 Poydras street.

Gas Fixtures.
P. H. Quinlan, 280 Camp street.

Glass Staining.
Belcher & Povey, 13 W. Broadway, New York.
William Gibson, Broadway and Thirteenth street, New York.
Henry E. Sharp & Son, New York.
Charles H. Turno 333 East Twenty-third street, New York.

Grocers.
J. M. Dowling, 25 Decatur street.

Hotels.
Bingham House, Philadelphia.
Crawford House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Frank J. Oakes, proprietor.
St. Denis Hotel, Broadway and Eleventh street, New York.

Iron Manufacturers.
M. Walker & Sons, Philadelphia.
Walton, Hemler & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Job Printing.
Pelican Job Office, 112 and 114 Poydras street.

Lumber.
Thomas Hasam, cor. Cedar and Julia streets.
Georga Purves, cor. St. Charles and Clio streets.
Roberts & Co., 301 to 307 Gravier street.

Machinery.
Hilllings & Spencer Co., Hartford, Conn.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., 664 to 694 Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Lane & Bodley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Menecely & Kimberly, Troy, New York.
Reynolds Cotton Press, W. H. Reynolds, New Orleans.
Turbine Water-Wheel, N. F. Burnham, York, Penna.
Turbine Water-Wheel, Poole & Hunt, Baltimore, Md.
Jos. Walker, cor. St. Joseph and Constance sts.
Well-Auger, W. Giles, St. Louis, Mo.
B. J. West, 115 and 117 Magazine street.

Marble Works.
William Pattison, 318 to 332 East Twenty-third street, New York.
Alfred White, 251, 253 and 257 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Medical.
Adderley's Syrup Bromide Chloral, W. H. Adderley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Anti Rheumatic Mixture, W. J. Jurgielewicz, corner Magazine and Thalia streets.
Artificial Limbs, Charles M. Evans, 76 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky.
Asthma Remedy, D. Langell, Apple Creek, O.
Citrate of Magnesia, etc., Holmann & Co., N. Y.
Dyspepsia and Liver Complaints, Dr. Justus J. Spreng, New York.
Dr. Fitler's Vegetable Rheumatic Syrup, E. J. Hart & Co., New Orleans.
Dr. A. O. Forsberg, 5 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Hebbard's Cure, E. Dibblee, 814 Sixth avenue, New York.
Kearney's Extract Buchu, Kearney & Co., 104 Dunne street, New York.
Opium Cure, Dr. J. C. Beck, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Preventive of Yellow Fever, Dr. B. Brown, 697 Broadway, New York.
Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cure, Geo. Sweet spr, 120 Wall street, New York.
Rogers' Effervescing Citrate of Magnesia, A. Rogers, 193 Spring street, New York.
Rupture and Piles Cure, Dr. H. Neeson, 182 St. Charles street.
Simmons' Liver Regulator, J. H. Zeilin & Co. Philadelphia, Pa.
Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient.
Treatment of Catarrh, Dr. A. N. Williamson, New York.
Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills, 18 and 20 Platt street, New York.

Mineral and Soda Water.
Eckleburg, corner Washington street and St. Charles avenue.

Musical Instruments, Publications, Etc.
Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.
D. H. Baldwin & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
F. W. Biere & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Chambers Piano Factory, 300 Fourth avenue, New York.
Henry Erben & Co., 235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-third street, New York.
Henry Pilcher, 656 Portland avenue, Louisville, Ky.
Philip Werlein, 78 to 90 Baronne street.
Whitney & Holmes Organ Co., Quincy, Ill.
Novelties.
J. Bride & Co., 769 Broadway, New York.
W. H. Chidester, 267 Broadway, New York.
Cowan & Co., Eighth street, New York.

Paper Mills.
Atlanta Paper Mills, Atlanta, Georgia.

Patents.
H. N. Jenkins, 27 Commercial place.
John A. Wiedersheim & Co., Philadelphia.

Patent Novelties.
George L. Felton & Co., 119 Nassau street, New York.

Pens.
R. Esterbrook & Co., New York.
Joseph Gillott & Son, New York.

Periodicals.
Family Journal, 300 Broadway, New York.
Offord's Pulpit of the Day, R. M. Offord, New York.

Portrait Painters.
G. D. Conlon, 37 Camp street.

Printing Ink.
S. Collins & Co., 26 Frankfort street, New York.

Professional.
Dr. C. J. Bickham, office, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Dr. J. J. Lyons, office, 219 Carondelet street.
Race, Foster & E. T. Merrick, law office, corner Camp and Comarercial place.

Railroads.
Great Jackson Route, A. D. Sheldon, agent, 22 Camp street, corner of Common.

Seeds.
B. F. Wellington, 425 Washington street, San Francisco, Cal.

Sewing Machines.
Domestic, M. S. Hedrick, 103 Canal street.
Wm. Gregg, cor. Canal and Burgundy streets.

Soap.
J. H. Keller, 110 Gravier street.

Steamships and Shipping.
Cromwell Line New York Steamers, Alfred Moulton, agent, 41 Carondelet street.
General Transatlantic Company, L. Grand, Gallier court, letter H.
Merchants' Line New York Steamers, J. H. Ludwigsen, 190 Common street.
State Line, A. K. Miller & Co., 29 Carondelet st.

Stoves.
G. W. W. Goodwyn, 52 Gravier street.
H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Tea.
Great China and Japan Tea Warehouse, 170 Canal street.

Tobacco and Cigars.
Ed. L. Zell, cor. Canal and Carondelet streets.

Type and Presses.
Vanderburgh, Wells & Co., 110 Fulton and 16 and 18 Dutch street, New York.

Undertakers.
T. W. Bothick, 271 Camp street. New Orleans.
F. L. Matthews, 338 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

Upholstery.
Heath & Lara, 99 Camp street.

Washing Machines.
Ringen Washer, H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Watches and Jewelry.
E. A. Tyler, 115 Canal street.
Waltham Watches, Howard & Co., 222 Fifth avenue, New York.

Window Glass.
William Coulter & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Wire Railing, Etc.
Dufur & Co. Baltimore, Maryland.

Special Notices.

OFFORD'S PULPIT OF THE DAY.—A Monthly Magazine of Sermons by the greatest preachers living. $1 a year. On trial, 25 cents from August till December Sample copy, 10 cents. R. M. OFFORD, 6 Park place, New York. au20 3m

Religious Notices.

CAMP MEETING.—Mr. Editor: We believe that the way to support camp meetings in our pine woods country is to make them self-supporting, and we have appointed a camp meeting to be held one mile west of Clanton, Alabama, on the S. and N. railroad, to commence on Friday before the fourth Sunday in September, 1874. We cordially invite all persons who can worship God upon these terms. There will be several extra tents erected for rent. Any person who wishes to rent will please address the pastor, and he will confer with the trustees and answer at once. Come one! come all! Provision will be made for preachers and their families. We shall be glad if we can have you with us. R. A. MICAR, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Rose road, commencing on Friday night before and embracing the first Sabbath in October. It will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within ten or fifteen miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Friday morning.

J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

NOTICE.—The camp meeting will commence at Choctaw camp ground, on the Butler circuit, Demopolis district, Alabama Conference, on Friday before the third Sunday in September. The camp ground is on the Bladon road, ten miles below Butler. Ministers of the gospel are earnestly solicited to attend, and they will be cared for. We ask the prayers of the church that the Lord may abundantly bless us. D. J. WRIGHT, P. C.

CAMP MEETING.—Our camp meeting on Big Creek, Rapides circuit, Louisiana Conference, commences on Wednesday, the twenty-third of September. Preachers and their families are cordially invited to attend. They will be amply provided for. The people generally are expected. Come prepared to entertain and be entertained. JOHN F. WYNN, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING at Smith's camp ground, three miles west of Desotoville, northern portion of Choctaw county, Alabama, will begin on Friday before the first Sabbath in October. Ministerial brethren are invited to attend. C. B. DUBOSE, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting at Girard, Richland parish, Louisiana, commencing September 23, 1874. It will be on the self-sustaining plan. We invite all who can to attend. Ministers are invited to "come over and help us."

T. S. RANDLE.

THE DISTRICT MEETING for Opelousas district will commence on Thursday, September 24. Rev. J. M. Brown will preach the opening sermon. J. E. COBB, P. E.

THERE will be a camp meeting on Spring Creek circuit, Louisiana Conference, commencing on Friday before the second Sunday in October. Come one! come all! This meeting will be conducted on the self-sustaining plan. There will be corn at or near the camp ground, on reasonable terms. Special provision will be made for ministers and their horses.

FRED. WHITE, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING at China Grove, Dale county, Alabama, will commence on Friday night before the first Sunday in October next, and close on Wednesday morning after. Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South are invited to attend. A. DOWLING, Pastor.

THERE will be a camp meeting nine miles north of Enfaw, Greene county, Alabama Conference, commencing on Thursday night before the second Sabbath in October, 1874. Preachers are respectfully invited.

J. W. MCCANN, P. C.

THE Alexandria District Conference will be held at Evergreen, commencing on Friday, September 18. Preachers and people are specially requested to be in attendance.

J. H. STONE, P. E.

THE Summit District Conference will be held in Greensburg, Louisiana, commencing October 8, 1874, to be continued over Sunday.

A. B. NICHOLSON, P. E.

SAVE YOUR SIGHT!

Once Lost, It Cannot be Restored.

The Diamond Spectacles

WILL PRESERVE IT.

For sale by a responsible Agent in nearly every city and town.

TRADE MARK, stamped on every pair.

SPENCER OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., Patentees and Sole Manufacturers, se10 3m8p 10 and 18 Maiden Lane, New York.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

DEMOPOLIS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Livingston	Sept. 12, 13
Butler, at camp ground	19, 20
Greene, at camp ground	Oct. 10, 11
Eutaw	17, 18
Belmont, at Belmont	24, 25
Forkland	31, Nov. 1
Cuba, at York	Nov. 7, 8
Gaston, at Smith's camp ground	10
Gainesville, at Ramsey	14, 15
Bladon, at Isney	21, 22
Demopolis	Dec. 5, 6

40 S. H. COX, P. E.

MOBILE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Grand Bay	Sept. 19, 20
Pollard	26, 27
Black Water	Oct. 3, 4
Citronelle	10, 11
Milton	17, 18
Pensacola	24, 25
St. Stephen's	31, Nov. 1
Mount Pleasant	Nov. 7, 8
Whistler	14, 15
St. Paul's	21, 22
St. Francis street	28, 29
Franklin street	Dec. 5, 6

3 J. HAMILTON, P. E.

APPOINTMENTS FOR PREACHING ON THE SELMA DISTRICT.

On my last round I will preach at the following times and places, viz.:

Summerfield	Sept. 12, 13
Orrville	17
McKinley, Orrville circuit	18
Center chapel, Orrville circuit	19, 20
Benton, East Selma mission	26, 27
Tallahatta	Oct. 3, 4
Union, Jackson circuit	10, 11
Grove Hill, Jackson circuit	12, 15
Amity, Suggsville circuit	16
Suggsville, at night	16
Fort Madison, at night	17, 18
Walker's Section	23, 25
Uniontown	24, 25
Dayton	25, 26
Jefferson, Dayton circuit	29, 30
Linden, Dayton circuit	31, Nov. 1
Selma	Nov. 7, 8
Remberi Hills	14, 15
Sweetwater, Choctaw Corner circuit	21, 22
Payne's chapel	21, 22
Bethel	23, 24
Pleasant Hill, Peachtree circuit	24, 25
Asbury, Peachtree circuit	28, 29

The preachers will announce the special subjects upon which they have requested me to preach at the above appointments.

3 ANDREW J. BRIGGS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BROOKHAVEN DIS.—FOURTH ROUND.

Monticello	Sept. 12, 13
Hogan Chitto, at Johnson's Station	19, 20
Brookhaven	26, 27
Zion, at Bethel	Oct. 3, 4
Georgetown, at Bethesda	10, 11
Providence, at Dahlia	17, 18
Beauregard, at Beauregard	24, 25
Raymond	31, Nov. 1
Scotland	Nov. 7, 8
Brandywine at Reindoth	14, 15
Crystal Springs and Terry	21, 22
Hazlehurst	28, 29

3 W. E. M. LINFIELD, P. E.

JACKSON DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Jackson station	Sept. 19, 20
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Palmetto Home	26, 27
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	Oct. 3, 4
Camden circuit, at Camden	10, 11
Bear circuit, at Dover	17, 18
Mount Olivet circuit, at Mount Olivet	24, 25
Sharon circuit, at Lone Pine	31, Nov. 1
Carthage circuit, at Goshen	Nov. 7, 8
Madison circuit, at Madison station	14, 15
Brownsville circuit, at Green's Hill	21, 22
Thomastown circuit	28, 29
Canton station	Dec. 5, 6

The local preachers will please to remember that the law now requires them to give a written statement of their labors for the year to the fourth Quarterly Conference. I hope they will be ready with their reports. Trustees of church property will please have their reports ready also. Secretaries of Church Conferences will please have their reports on statistics ready also.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E., Sharon, Mississippi.

3

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

ALEXANDRIA DIS.—FOURTH ROUND.

Bayou Boeuf	Sept. 26, 27
Chilcot	Oct. 3, 4
Spring Creek (camp meeting)	10, 11
Rapides	17, 18
Shelly Island	24, 25
Columbia	Nov. 7, 8
Caldwell	14, 15
Montgomery	21, 22
Centerville	28, 29
Evergreen and Big Cane	Dec. 12, 13
Alexandria

3 J. H. STONE, P. E.

MEDICAL.

DYSPEPSIA,

IN ITS RELATION TO THE LIVER AND DIGESTIVE ORGANS.—JUSTUS J. SPRENG, M. D., member of the New York Academy of Medicine, devotes his special attention to Liver and Stomach diseases. Pamphlet mailed for 20 cents. Address the author, No. 291 West Twenty-Second street, New York city.

"The author's conclusions are marked, and governed by sound judgment and long practical experience."—Medical Gazette. se4 1ysp

DR. ROGERS'

VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

A brave man may suffer pain, when inflicted upon himself, heroically; but he

CANNOT SEE HIS CHILD SUFFER.

There is no other malady incident to childhood that is accompanied with more indescribable wretchedness to the little sufferers than that

PRODUCED BY WORMS;

and when the parent fully comprehends the situation he will not delay a moment in securing the most prompt and efficient remedies to insure the expulsion of the intruders. This remedy may be found in

DR. ROGERS'

VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP,

Please bear in mind that

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Is the reliable preparation.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Is a palatable preparation.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is liked by children.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Positively destroys Worms.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP leaves no bad effects.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is highly recommended by physicians, and is unquestionably the BEST WORM MEDICINE IN THE WORLD.

Price, 25 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

JOHN F. HENRY, CURRAN & CO., Proprietors, au20 1m 8 and 9 College Place, New York.

DIRECT TRADE.

DIRECT TRADE.

Merchants and business men of the Mississippi Valley who desire to purchase IMPORTED GOODS of British manufacture, at little if any over half the cost of such when purchased in New York, should correspond with or call upon DR. THOMAS D. WORRALL, American Director of the Direct Trade Company, 24 and 26 Camp street, New Orleans.

Samples of stock constantly on hand. je18 1m

WHITNEY & HOLMES

ORGANS.

FIFTY ELEGANT STYLES, with Valuable Improvements; New and Beautiful Solo Stops. Over One Thousand Organists and Musicians indorse these Organs, and recommend them as Strictly First-class in Tone, Mechanism and Durability. Warranted for five years. Send for price lists.

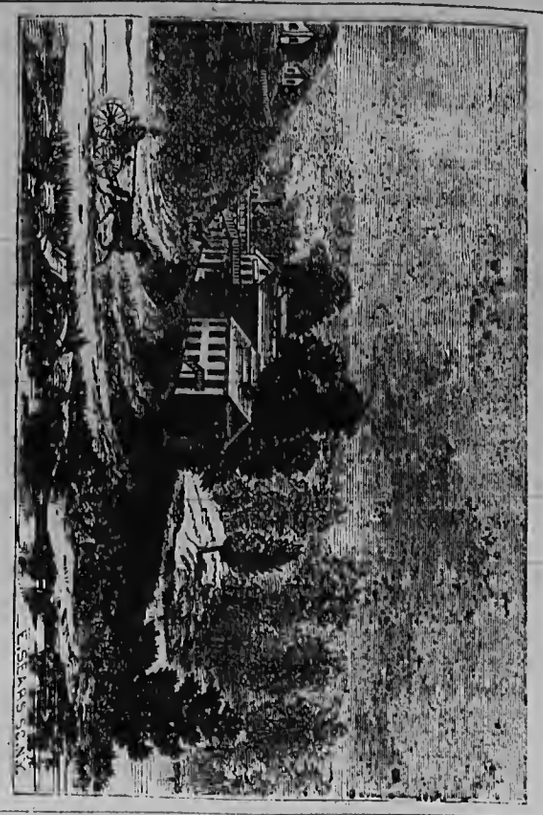
WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO., au27 13eow Quincy, Illinois.

ROGERS' EFFERVESCING

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA,

in six-ounce bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for Sick Headache, Sour or Sick Stomach, and all Febrile cases. Good for all seasons of the year. Prepared by ARTHUR ROGERS, 403 Spring St., N. Y. For sale by all druggists. E. J. HART & Co., wholesale agents, New Orleans. au27 1yeow

PAPER MILLS.



ATLANTA PAPER MILLS.

JAMES ORMOND, PROPRIETOR.

OFFICE—No. 43 BROAD STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

☞ For Specimen of "News" we refer to this issue of this Paper. ☜

Cash Orders Solicited. au6 1y

MEDICAL.

DR. C. M'LANE'S

Celebrated American

WORM SPECIFIC,

OR

VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eyelid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular; at times costive; stools slimy, not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, etc.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE

Will certainly effect a cure.

The universal success which has attended the administration of this preparation has been such as to warrant us in pledging ourselves to the public to

RETURN THE MONEY

in every instance where it should prove ineffectual: "providing the symptoms attending the sickness of the child or adult should warrant the supposition of worms being the cause."

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. 20. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1874. NO. 38.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

VICKSBURG, Sept. 11.—Several days ago a call for a meeting by the former soldiers of the Union and Confederate armies was published. The call stated the purpose of the meeting was to foster and encourage kindly relations between the soldiers of the late war, and to form a band of mutual friendship and good feeling. Several preliminary meetings were held, which were largely attended by the representatives of both armies, those of the Union army, residents of this city, being nearly equal in numbers to the Confederate. At the meeting last night the body formed itself into an association to be known as the Order of the Blue and Gray. The speeches were indicative of the utmost good feeling, and relief at this public acknowledgment of the break in the dark cloud of prejudice which has been oppressing all alike.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The September cotton returns of the Department of Agriculture show a very heavy decline in the prospects of the cotton crop in all States except Virginia. There it about holds its own. The cotton crop of Virginia is too small, however, to exercise any influence on the general result.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The President has just issued the following proclamation:

Whereas, It has been satisfactorily represented to me that turbulent and disorderly persons have combined together with force and arms to overthrow the State government of Louisiana, and to resist the laws and constituted authorities of said State; And whereas, It is provided in the Constitution of the United States that the United States shall protect every State in this Union on application of the Legislature, or the executive when the Legislature cannot be convened, against domestic violence; And whereas, It is provided in the laws of the United States that in all cases of insurrection in any State, or of obstruction to the laws thereof, it shall be lawful for the President of the United States, on application of the Legislature of such State, or of the executive when the Legislature cannot be convened to call forth the militia of any other State or States, or to employ such part of the land and naval forces as shall be judged necessary for the purpose of suppressing such insurrection or causing the laws to be duly executed; And whereas, The Legislature of said State is not now in session, and cannot be convened in time to meet the present emergency, and the executive of said State, under section four of the Constitution of the United States laws passed in pursuance thereof, has therefore made application to me for such part of the military force of the United States as may be necessary and adequate to protect said State and the citizens thereof against domestic violence, and to enforce the due execution of the laws; And whereas, It is required that whenever it may be necessary in the judgment of the President to use the military force for the purpose aforesaid, he shall forthwith, by proclamation, command such insurgents to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective homes within a limited time:

Now therefore I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, do hereby make proclamation and command said turbulent and disorderly persons to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes within five days from this date, and hereafter to submit themselves to the laws and constituted authorities of said State; and I invoke the aid and cooperation of all good citizens thereof to uphold law and preserve the public peace.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this fifteenth day of September, in the year of our Lord 1874, and of the Independence of the United States the ninety-eighth.

U. S. GRANT.

By the President.
HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.

FOREIGN.

PANAMA, Sept. 4.—Advices from Lima to August 29 give an account of an attempt to assassinate the President of Peru. Letters had been received, stating that there was a conspiracy to murder him, but the President refused to pay any attention to them. The attack was made as the President was leaving the palace to walk to his house, which is situated about five blocks from the government building. A number of men had posted themselves ready for the onslaught. Many shots were fired, but none struck his excellency.

The leader of the movement was wounded and captured after a hand-to-hand conflict with Colonel Santa Maria. The other conspirators fled, but thirteen of them have since been captured and will be subjected to a rigorous trial. The plot was no doubt a widespread conspiracy among the discontented and unemployed military officers. The people assembled in great crowds before the President's house and cheered him on his escape.

BERLIN, Sept. 9.—It is reported that an order will soon be issued expelling from Prussia all foreign priests, monks and nuns.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A terrible collision occurred this morning on the Great Eastern railway, near Norwich. Twenty persons were killed outright, and fifty wounded, some of whom are very badly hurt, and additional deaths are expected every hour.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—François Pierre Guillaume Guizot, the eminent statesman and writer, died to-day, at his residence in Valecher. He will be buried in St. Ouen cemetery. The funeral will be strictly private and unceremonious, in accordance with the wishes of the deceased.

Letter from Arkansas.

HARRISBURG, ARK., August 31, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: I find much interest in your well-filled paper. Your crop prospect, after the high waters, gives us great relief. Your sugar and syrups we are greatly interested in. Much solicitude is manifest on this subject in all our country. Your political trouble also gives us great concern, for we have been sadly taught how to sympathize with you.

Your crops, we hope, will not be cut off by drouth, as ours have been. From the tenth of July to the twelfth of August was the severest weather we have ever known, the temperature rising as high as one hundred and twelve degrees, burning our crops to tinder. We cannot gather more than one-fourth the crop of ordinary seasons; and the country being badly in debt, great suffering must ensue, especially among the poor classes.

Your religious prospects also are flattering. Your camp meetings were gracious sensons, and your protracted meetings, we see, are attended with great good.

The church among us also is prospering. We have fine revivals. Our crop failure will militate much against large assemblages, as will also the great scarcity of water for stock and people; yet our small meetings are successful in winning many souls to Christ. So what we lack in the "bread that perishes" we hope to realize in the "true riches."

J. M. STEEL.

A STORY OF TOM MARSHALL.—On one occasion Tom Marshall heard R. J. Breckinridge preach, and, falling in with him after the service, accompanied him home. "Why don't you preach better?" said Marshall. "I do as well as I can," answered Breckinridge. "Why don't you preach as the Savior did?" continued Marshall. "That's hard to do," rejoined Breckinridge. "Preach in parables," said Marshall; "that is a very simple and easy thing to do; that's the way our Lord sets forth the truth." "Well, Tom," said Breckinridge, "I have as high an opinion of your talents as anybody else has, and I set a higher estimate on your reading and information than most people do. I defy you to make a parable, and I defy you to find one in literature—outside of the New Testament." "Nonsense!" exclaimed Marshall; "I can make fifty, and I can find a hundred." "Well, try it, and let me know," replied Breckinridge. Shortly afterward they met again. "Well, Bob," said Marshall, "what about those things—the parables? I have tried my best, and I can't make one; I've looked everywhere, and I can't find one. What does it all mean? I give it up." "You see," replied Breckinridge, "why I don't preach in parables. I can't do that."—Galaxy.

HERE is another one on the irrepressible boy. Some Sunday school teachers must lecture their children whenever they give them a treat. One of these men, who was trying to improve the occasion at the close of a strawberry party, said to his youthful guests: "Have you enjoyed these berries to-day?" "Yes, sir," "Yes, sir," came from all sides, with unmistakable heartiness. "Well, children, if you had seen these berries growing in my garden, and had slipped in through the gate without my leave, and picked them from the vines, would they have tasted as good as new?" "No, sir," was the prompt reply. "Why not?" "Because," said the irrepressible, "then we shouldn't have had sugar and cream with 'em."

APOSTOLICAL SUCCESSION.—A few years ago several young clergymen were dining at the house of a gentleman who attended both the services of the Established Church and the Wesleyan chapel. After dinner there was a lively discussion on apostolical succession, but turning chiefly in favor of it as asserted by zealous curates fresh from Oxford and Cambridge. The eldest son of the host, who had been a silent listener, was at length appealed to for his opinion on the subject, when he replied: "Had the apostles foreseen what sort of characters would have claimed to be their successors, they would have taken care to have cut off the entail."

THE most minute events of our life, nay, every need and every obstacle in our paths, are channels of the grace, goodness and power of God, and those who wait on him in prayer and watchfulness shall see it is no vain thing to rest on him. The tide of our sorrows and sins has often arisen from a trivial spring; and the same is true of our earthly joys. Our daily trials and hourly blessings gather something of the radiance of the bow in the clouds in the day of rain, as we receive them from the pierced hands of him whose death and intercession have made all things ours.—Anna Shipton's "Waiting Hours."

OH, how sweet to work all day for God, and then lie down at night beneath his smile.—McCheyne.

Mass Meeting in New Orleans.

At about half-past eleven o'clock on Monday, September 14, Mr. R. H. Marr and other gentlemen of the committee of seventy called together the people around the Crescent billiard saloon.

Some five thousand men quickly assembled, and M. Musson was unanimously called to the chair, which he took.

Vice Presidents—Samuel Bell, H. Renshaw, J. I. Adams, Perry Nugent, Samuel Flower, S. H. Boyd, M. Gillis, Robert Hare, Jules Vairin, Louis Bush, J. J. Gilder, J. K. Russ, J. J. Warren.

Mr. Marr then read an address to the people of Louisiana, showing the right the people had to bear arms. He then read a series of resolutions, as follows:

Resolved, That we reaffirm solemnly the resolutions adopted by the white people of Louisiana, in convention assembled at Baton Rouge, on August 24, 1874.

That the white people of Louisiana have no right to deprive the colored people of their rights.

That W. P. Kellogg is a mere usurper, and we denounce him as such.

That his government is arbitrary, unjust and oppressive, and can only maintain itself through Federal interference; that the election and registration laws, under which this election is being conducted, were intended to perpetuate the usurpation by depriving the people, and especially all naturalized citizens, of an opportunity to register and vote.

Therefore, in the name of the citizens of New Orleans, in mass meeting assembled, and of the people of the State of Louisiana, whose franchise has been wrested from them by fraud and violence, and all of whose rights and liberties have been outraged and trampled upon, we demand of WILLIAM PITT KELLOGG his immediate abdication.

Resolved, That a committee of five be immediately appointed by the chairman to wait on W. P. Kellogg, to present to him these resolutions, to demand of him an immediate answer, and to report the result of such interview to this meeting.

Mr. Marr then continued to speak. The committee would wait on Kellogg, would go without arms, open or concealed, and would immediately report to the meeting Governor Kellogg's answer to the demand of the people. Mr. Marr asked the meeting not to adjourn until the committee reported Kellogg's answer.

The following gentlemen were then named as the committee: R. H. Marr, Jules Tuyes, J. M. Seixas, J. B. Woods and Samuel Choppin.

At about one o'clock the committee sent to Kellogg returned in carriages amid a series of cheers that never were equaled in all history, until the very air rang with shouts.

Mr. Marr appeared at once on the gallery, and made the report of the committee. The committee had called at Kellogg's office, but found him absent.

Henry C. Dibble, who reported himself as being on Kellogg's staff, received them, and they laid the demand of the people before him. Dibble demanded a few moments' consideration, retired and then returned with a communication nominally from Kellogg, but with no signature thereto.

This communication recited that Kellogg had learned that large bodies of armed white men were congregated in various portions of the city, at the same call as the mass meeting, and who were summoned to enforce the demand of the people; that he could only regard this as a menace, and a menace to which he could not yield; but if the people would meet peaceably in mass meeting he (Kellogg) was perfectly willing to listen to their petitions.

THE COMMITTEE'S REPLY.

The committee replied to Dibble that it was false, that there were no armed men on Canal street, and that no men had been called to enforce the demand of the people, and that if Kellogg resigned he would not be at all hurt.

Mr. Marr then left it to the people to decide what they should do—whether they should endure this any longer or rise and drive out the usurper.

Cries of "Hang Kellogg," "We'll fight," "Call out the troops."

Dr. Beard then came forward, and with glowing words called on the people to defend their rights, to hold the city against Kellogg and all his hirelings, to make the whole city an armed camp, and never to leave it until the last of Kellogg's gang left the city. Their wives, their brothers, would bring them food and cheer them in their fight.

TO COME ARMED

The crowd received this with another round of cheers, and called for immediate action and for leaders.

Mr. Marr then addressed the people, telling them to go home and get their arms and report at Canal street at half-past two.

At that time they would find leaders and an organized body there, who would properly draft and arrange all military matters and furnish guns; and that then the action to be taken by the people could be determined on.

In the greatest earnestness, enthusiasm and excitement the crowd broke up in couples and groups.

THE COMMITTEE'S REPLY.

Herewith is the text of the committee's report, including Kellogg's response to the demand and the official statement of what ensued:

STATE OF LOUISIANA, EXEC. DEPT., New Orleans, Sept. 14, 1874.

GENTLEMEN: I have communicated with the Governor, and he directs me to say to you that he must decline to receive any communication from the committee appointed by the mass meeting assembled on Canal street; he does so, I am instructed to say, because he has definite and accurate information that there are now assembled—several large bodies of armed men in different parts of the city, who are met at the call which convened the mass meeting which you represent. He regards this as a menace, and he will receive no communication under such circumstances.

He furthermore directs me to say that, should the people assemble peacefully and without menace, he would deem it one of his highest duties to receive any communication from them, and to entertain any petition addressed to the government.

I have received you, gentlemen, and I convey the Governor's answer as a member of his staff.

H. C. DIBBLE.

In answer to the organ of the Governer, H. C. Dibble, I stated:

That we represented no armed body, but a mass meeting of unarmed citizens, assembled on Canal street; that there were no armed men on Canal street, so far as we knew and believe; that we came on a mission of peace, and that if the Governor should have acceded to our proposition, we believe it would have produced perfect peace throughout the State, and that we were prepared to pledge ourselves that no harm should be done to him, either in person or property, but, on the contrary, that there should be perfect immunity to both.

To which Mr. Dibble replied that, although it was doubtless true that armed men were not on Canal street, yet that they were known to be within a short distance, and that they were assembled on the same call which convened the mass meeting.

R. H. MARR.
JULES TUYES.
SAMUEL CHOPPIN.
J. M. SEIXAS.
JOHN B. WOODS.

The conflict between the people and the Metropolitans began in the afternoon, and the result is thus summed up as things stood late on Monday night:

THE CITIZENS VICTORIOUS.

At about seven o'clock the citizens were in complete possession of the city save the St. Louis Hotel, occupied by about a dozen peelers and a gang of negroes, and the Third Precinct Station, occupied by the remnant of the Metropolitan brigade, now only about two hundred in number, and rapidly decreasing by desertions and resignations. Among the resignations we may mention that of Captain McCann.

The City Hall, the telegraph offices and the streets were all held by the citizens, and with Lieutenant Governor Penn acting as Governor.

GOVERNOR PENN'S REMONSTRANCE TO THE CUSTOMHOUSE.

Acting Governor Penn, hearing that the citizens had been fired on from the customhouse, issued an order to General Ogden to communicate with the collector of customs, of whoever held command at the customhouse, and to inform him that the citizens had been fired at from the customhouse by certain persons lodged therein, and to demand from him that this be prohibited.

The shots fired were by the defeated policemen who took refuge in the customhouse, and who kept up a constant fire therefrom. Mr. Fred Mohrman, clerk of the Administrator of Commerce, was killed while peaceably walking on Tchoupitoulas street. Mr. J. M. West, an old newspaper man, was also killed by this volley while he was standing on the neutral ground taking notes.

THE KILLED AND WOUNDED.

The list of killed and wounded, as far as we could get it, is as follows:

CITIZENS' PARTY.

Killed—E. Toledano, cotton weigher; Fred. Mohrman, city employe; Dick Lindsey, J. M. West, reporter; Major J. K. Gourdain, Albert Gantier, S. B. Newman, Jr. Total, 12.

Wounded—Major Wells, mortally; Fidel Keller, E. Bozonier, W. J. Butler and others. Total, 13.

POLICEMEN.

Killed—Sergeant James McManus, Officers Wm. Thornton, M. O'Keefe, Edward Simon. Total killed, about 30.

Wounded—Over 30, among them J. P. Champagne, Auguste Fretag, Charles Bergeron, Tebault, Gonzales and others.

General Badger's wound is serious, but not necessarily fatal. If he dies it will be from loss of blood, and not from the wounds. He will certainly lose his leg.

During the entire fight no negro was killed. One Metropolitan, a mulatto, was wounded at the foot of Canal street.

SURRENDERS.

Twenty-five policemen, who were stationed in a building on Decatur street, were cut off at the rout of Badger's forces. They were visited by half a dozen citizens and promptly surrendered to them their arms and retired from service. A force of about a dozen men, at the central police station, likewise surrendered when called on to do so. The station was then taken possession of and guarded by citizens.—Picayune.

IN pocket-picking, as in everything else, a man never succeeds until he gets his hand in.

From the Work.

REV. L. ERCANBRACK, of Cedar Creek, Texas Conference, under a recent date, writes:

We have had several interesting revivals on my circuit recently. Between forty and fifty conversions, and between thirty and forty accessions. Good and refreshing times. Have several more meetings to be held. Hope to report more conversions and accessions.

DESOTO CIRCUIT, DESOTO, MISSISSIPPI.—Mr. Editor: As we are in the midst of a revival of God's work, I write, having closed two protracted meetings of much interest—one at New Hope church, and the other at Soule chapel—resulting in forty accessions to the church, and, we trust, as many conversions. These conversions were clear and powerful. The church is greatly blessed, and God's cause is honored.

G. M. GILMORE, P. C.

PAULDING CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: My third Quarterly Conference was held at Philadelphia church on the twenty-ninth and thirtieth of August, embracing the fifth Sunday. The meeting resulted in the conversion of eighteen souls, with seventeen accessions to the church, some backsliders reclaimed, and the church greatly revived. I also baptized ten children. To God be all the glory, both now and forever.

J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

PAULDING, Sept. 3, 1874.

PAULDING CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: I have just closed my second protracted meeting on the Paulding circuit, Mississippi Conference. This meeting was held at the Hodder church, in the western part of the circuit. I held the meeting four days, assisted by Revs. A. M. Fikes and Thomas Linden, local preachers on my circuit. The meeting resulted in the conversion of fourteen souls, thirteen received into the church, five children baptized, some backsliders reclaimed, and the church greatly revived. J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

PAULDING, Miss., Sept. 10, 1874.

AMITE CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: On the twenty-ninth and thirtieth of August our third Quarterly Conference was held, and was well attended by the members, at Adams' church, near the old camp ground of the same name, the memory of which is precious to many souls throughout the South.

Our meeting was protracted nine days altogether. The result was twenty-eight accessions to the church, over twenty conversions, and the church greatly revived. The whole congregation seemed to be pervaded by the Spirit of the Lord. We closed with more than forty penitents.

J. RITCHEY, P. C.

ADAMS' CAMP GROUND, Sept. 7, 1874.

ENTERPRISE CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: I began my series of protracted meetings at Sequelun church, August 18. From then until this time I have had a protracted service at three of my appointments. The Master, in his power, has been in our midst. Sinners were cut to the heart, mourners rejoiced in all holy delight of first love, and Christians were greatly revived. All praise to the "Giver of every good and perfect gift." Result in accessions, thirty-nine. Revs. J. D. Hays and U. B. Phillips, and Bro. Murphy, a local preacher, assisted me. Yours in love,

T. Y. ARMSTRONG.

SEPTEMBER 8, 1874.

HOLMESVILLE CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—A Revival at Every Point.—Mr. Editor: At China Grove we closed on the twenty-sixth of July. Forty-nine additions to the church, and about the same number of conversions. At Sartin's we closed an interesting meeting on the eleventh of August. Twenty-eight joined; several converted.

At Holmesville we closed a very interesting meeting of nine days on the twenty-third of August. Thirty-five additions to the church; quite a number of bright conversions.

At Magnolia, on the sixth of September, we closed a meeting of ten days. The preaching was plain and pointed. Congregations large and attentive to the last. Several persons found peace by believing. Fourteen additions to the church. Now comes work for the pastor. One hundred and twenty-six converts to look after! God give me grace, wisdom and strength to do the work of a faithful pastor.

H. P. LEWIS, P. C.

HOLMESVILLE, Sept. 8, 1874.

RETLEDGE CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: This circuit includes the principal portion of Crenshaw and a small portion of Covington county, Alabama, which is a large tract of, rather poor (but might be well-to-do) country. We began the year with ten churches, two of which have been consolidated, and one church and two preaching-places have since been added. We also began the year with two Sunday schools, and now have eleven, nine of which are very prosperous, and all of which are using our own literature. We have spent $122 for Sunday school purposes, and sold over $100 worth of our own books. We have taken steps to build four new churches, which we hope to finish by the end of the year, and which will be worth about $3,000. Last, but not least, the pastor has been provided for.

We have up to this time, as tangible results, one hundred and twenty-seven accessions to the army of God, besides sixty precious lambs dedicated to God in holy baptism; all of which we lay at the feet of Jesus a shining trophies of redeeming grace and dying love. Amen.

B. F. BLOW, P. C.

GREENVILLE, ALA.—Mr. Editor: We have received many tokens of the Lord's presence with us at Greenville circuit. At our first meeting at Spring Hill the Spirit of the Master was felt with power. Sinners came to the altar deeply penitent, and many found peace with God. We had a meeting of six days, and twenty were added to the church.

Our next meeting was at Bethel, which began in the hearts of God's people at the first appointment. The entire church was revived, and such witnessing of the Spirit I never saw. Thirty were added to the church. Several were heads of families—husbands and wives, with their children.

The meeting at Sandy Ridge was one of unusual interest. We had been laboring and praying all the year for a revival of religion. We began our meeting there the first day of the week of prayer. We had commenced with faith, but that faith increased, and day by day the power of the love of God was reigning in the hearts of his people. At the first invitation for penitents some twenty-five came to the altar, and did not cease to come until Jesus was precious to their souls. We labored together in the Lord until Thursday at noon, when we closed. The church was thoroughly revived, and four-three were added.

P. H. MOSS.

SEPTEMBER 2, 1874.

FARMERVILLE CIRCUIT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We have had our camp meeting in the regions beyond, where the Macedonian cry has been heard a long time. We gathered into the church sixty-eight members, about twenty of whom were old members, and joined by letter. About fifty souls were converted, and several baptized. We were assisted by Bros. J. A. Miller, Upton and Brenton. After they left we had to preach four times each day. This was in Union parish, Louisiana, near the Arkansas line. We had about one thousand people in attendance. We dismissed with nearly one hundred penitents at the altar. We have never known a more unanimous turning to Christ and pleading for mercy. What a contrast there must have been between our arrangement and Round Lake and your Seashore camp ground. Think of a camp meeting in the poorest neighborhood, where, I was told, many families had no meat; but the meeting was to be self-sustaining, and it was carried out in that style. The first Sabbath caught us in the rain, with bush arbor and without shelter. The mistake of putting on a roof that would not turn rain was revealed to many by the rain, as the tents did not turn water. The people all fell in love with camp meeting, and say they are going to have a good shed and tents next year. We tried to raise funds to build a church here for them, but have failed. We want help. Here are sixty-eight members without a house. We want to raise $1,000 to put up a comfortable house of worship here, where Methodism has never been established. Although our State is in a condition of political excitement out in this region, we did not hear of anything that was going on in the outside world. "Christ is the shadow of the great rock in this weary land." The meeting lasted ten days. This work was carried forward by men who were not members of the church. Our chief of police was not a member of the church, neither were the committee of arrangements.

R. PARVIN.

AUGUST 28, 1874.

Kentucky Correspondence.

OWENSBORO, KY., September 1, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: The ADVOCATE comes to Owensboro, and it is a favorite with the most judicious critic in the household of the preacher in charge. (You know the limitation rule of our church precludes the idea of a pastorate, and therefore I am estopped from the use of the word pastor. Preacher in charge is the word. Is it not a beautiful one? More anon.) The proposed change of the general rule on temperance is now occupying the attention of the church. Dr. Lovick Pierce has thundered about right on the issue.

I yearned to be with you all at the Seashore camp meeting! That six weeks at Ocean Springs in the summer of 1872 gave me an attachment to the coast and some of its people. Letters from there now warm our hearts. The South will come through ultimately. "If I forget thee, oh, Jerusalem!"

I have begun this letter at a fortunate hour, for company comes in and I have to close, and therefore it will not be a long one. Everything pleasant and promising, thus far, up here. Congregations have steadily increased, and now the house is filled. We have had Rev. Mr. Mitchel, of Houston, Texas, with us for two weeks past. He has preached elegantly. He is a man of high order, and his visit here has been refreshing.

What a luxury a refined, broad-minded Methodist preacher is! Bret Harte says, in "Caiquita:"

"Taint every man as can ride as knows
What a hoss has got in him."

JOSEPH B. COTTRELL.

HOW TO TELL fresh shad—First decide what you want to tell it, then whisper in its ear.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

WRITTEN AT MY MOTHER'S GRAVE.

BY GEORGE D. PRENTICE.

The trembling dew-drops fall
Upon the shutting flowers—like souls at rest;
The stars shine gluriously—and all
Save me is blest.

Mother!—I love thy grave!
The violet, with the blossom blue and mild,
Waves o'er thy head. When shall it wave
Above thy child?

'Tis a sweet flower—yet must
Its bright leaves to the coming tempest bow.
Dear mother—'tis thine emblem—dust
Is on thy brow!

And I could love to die—
To leave untasted life's dark, bitter streams;
By thee, as erst in childhood, lie,
And share thy dreams.

And must I linger here
To stain the plumage of my sinless years,
And mourn the hopes of childhood dear
With bitter tears?

Aye—must I linger here,
A lonely branch upon a blasted tree,
Whose last frail leaf, untimely sere,
Went down with thee?

Oft from life's withered bower,
In still communion with the past I turn,
And muse on thee, the only flower
In memory's urn.

And when the evening pale
Bows like a mourner on the dim, blue wave,
I stray to hear the night winds wail
Around thy grave.

Where is thy spirit flown?
I gaze above—thy look is imaged there;
I listen, and thy gentle tone
Is on the air.

Oh, come—whilst here I press
My brow upon the grave—and, in those mild
And thrilling tones of tenderness,
Bless, bless thy child!

Yes, bless thy weeping child,
And o'er thy urn—religion's hallest shrine—
Oh, give his spirit undefiled
To blend with thine.

What Is Temperance

IN RESPECT TO THE USE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS?

NO. II.—BY J. W.

In order to answer this question intelligibly, we must first ascertain the nature of the substance about which we raise the question of temperance; for, as already stated, temperance relates not so much to the quantity as to the quality of a thing. A moderate use of coffee, for example, may be temperance in respect to the use of it; but a moderate use of arsenic is certainly intemperance in respect to it. Let us begin this investigation, then, by asking: What is intoxicating liquor—to what class of substances does it belong? There are substances which are classified as "good for food,"—substances nutritive to the human organism; and there are substances which are classified as "poisons"—substances destructive to the human organism. To which of these two classes does intoxicating liquor belong? If to the former, then its use in moderation is temperance; only the excessive use is intemperance, as when a man gluttonizes with bread and meat. If to the latter, then any use of it is intemperance, except in such extreme cases as any other poisonous agent may be used in the medical treatment of disease. Intoxicating liquors are such because they are alcoholic; to the degree that any liquor is sufficiently charged with alcohol to produce alcoholic effects, it is intoxicating. This being the case, it is for us, then, to inquire: Is alcohol good for food—good when used in moderation? Or is it a poison, evil in its very nature, and therefore evil when used even in moderation? Let us not rush to any hasty conclusion here, for this question lies at the very root of the controversy upon the subject of temperance. If alcohol be a substance good for food, then unquestionably the use of it in moderation is true temperance, and the present rule in the Discipline of our church on this subject ought not be altered. But if alcohol is a poison, the liquor that contains it is necessarily poisonous, just as a loaf of bread into which strychnine was diffused is poisonous—poisonous in degree according to the amount of alcohol in the liquor, or strychnine in the bread. If temperance—the rational subjection of our appetites to the law of self-preservation—requires our total abstinence from strychninized bread as an eatable, then assuredly temperance likewise requires our total abstinence from alcoholic liquor as a beverage. In view of these inevitable conclusions, let us simplify our inquiry into the nature of alcohol by asking: Is it or is it not a poison? How shall we proceed to answer this question? Must we not search out the necessary information from the great chemists? Well, we refer to the works of the celebrated toxicologist, Dr. Christison, and in his "Treatise on Poisons" we find such substances divided into three classes—irritant poisons, narcotic poisons, narcotico-acrid poisons; and in this last list, side by side with nightshade, hemlock, hellebore, and other deadly substances, we find alcohol. In describing the effects of the narcotico-acrid poisons, Dr. Christison says: "In large doses, narcotism predominates; in smaller, irritation." Now do the effects of alcohol upon the human system correspond with this statement of the effects of narcotico-acrid poison? Is it true that when used in moderation, taken in the "smaller doses," the effects produced upon the human system by alcohol are those of an irritant poison? Let Dr. Carpenter, of London, answer. His great abilities as a physiologist and practical chemist, acquired during long and laborious studies as "examiner of physiology in the University of London," certainly entitle him to a respectful hearing. He brings to the investigation of this subject all the light which science can shed upon it, as well as the accumulation of facts derived from experience and observation. After prolonged examination of the influence of alcohol upon the physical, chemical and vital properties of the animal fabric, Dr. Carpenter says:

"The most important physical change which the contact of alcohol effects in the softer animal tissues is that of corrugation, which change is entirely due to the difference in the capillary attraction of the tissue for alcohol and for water respectively. If animal membranes be placed in alcohol in a fresh state (in which they are thoroughly charged with water,) there are formed, at all points where water and alcohol meet, mixtures of the two; and as the animal texture absorbs much less of an alcoholic mixture than of pure water, a larger amount of water is of course expelled than of alcohol taken up, and the first result is a shrinking of the animal substance. * * * This corrugating effect of alcohol will be usually increased by the coagulating influence which it will exert on whatever soluble albumen the tissues may contain. * * * The physical change thus described must have an important influence upon the chemical relations of the tissues; since it is impossible that alcohol can be substituted, in however small a proportion, for their constituent water, without producing a decided alteration in their chemical properties, which must disturb the normal series of changes involved in their nutritive operations.

"Secondly. We find that when alcoholic liquids are applied to living tissues, especially to the vascular surface of the skin or mucus membrane, they induce redness, heat and pain, indicating an increased determination of blood to the part. * * * Alcohol, when applied to the living tissues in a sufficiently dilute form, exalts for a time their vital activity; but this exaltation is temporary only, and is followed by a corresponding depression. * * * We are justified, therefore, in regarding alcohol as belonging to the class of stimulants, and as subject to the laws of their operation. It has been affirmed by some that alcohol in small doses is tonic; but of this there is no adequate proof. The property of tonic remedies is to increase the vital contractility of the animal solids in general, but more especially that of the walls of the blood vessels. Now although some slight effect of this kind is at first manifested, after the application of very dilute alcohol to a living membrane, yet it is very transitory, and is succeeded by a much longer period of diminution of the tonic contractility of the walls of the blood vessels."

The doctor points out the value of alcoholic stimulant as a remedial medical agent in the treatment of certain abnormal conditions of the human system, but in view of the fact that, while the advantage is temporary, the after effect is deleterious to the vital organs, he goes on to say: "Every kind of 'forcing' must be in the end injurious to the vital powers, and more especially to those of the nervous system. * * * Every such irregularity tends to derange the nutrition of the system; and if a renewal of the irregularity should take place before the effects of the preceding derangement have been recovered from, they are of course aggravated; and thus a cumulative result is produced, and a permanently disordered state of nutrition established, which manifests itself at last in some serious and settled form of cerebral disease. * * * The most beneficial results from the medical use of stimulants are to be experienced by those who are habitually abstinent; since the quantity of alcoholic liquor which they require for the purpose is extremely small; and whatever injurious effects it may produce will be more likely to be dissipated when a considerable interval elapses before it is again resorted to. When alcoholic liquor is employed as an ordinary beverage, the quantity required to give the desired aid, on the occasions in question, is such as must of itself exert a prejudicial influence upon the system."

The summing up of the doctor's investigation of the effects of alcohol upon the human system is in these words: "Alcohol is to almost every one a true poison, slower or more rapid in its operations, according to the rate at which it is taken. Like many other poisons, it may be a most valuable remedy, when administered with caution and discrimination, in various forms of disease."

In confirmation of the foregoing, a multitude of the ablest physicians and chemists in Europe and America are constantly testifying. A certificate to this effect was signed, since the publication of Dr. Carpenter's work, by upward of two thousand of his professional brethren, in all grades and degrees, from the court physicians and leading metropolitan surgeons to the humble country practitioner. Dr. Mussey says that so subtle and diffusive is the irritant poison power of alcohol upon the human system, "not a blood vessel, however minute, not a thread of nerve in the whole animal economy escapes its influence." Dr. Samuel Emlin, late secretary of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Philadelphia, writes: "We should not admit the popular reasoning as applicable to alcoholic liquors, that the abuse of a thing is no argument against its use. All use of ardent spirits—that is, as a beverage—is an abuse. They are mischievous under all circumstances." Dr. Frank declares that "their tendency, even when used moderately, is to induce disease, premature old age and death." Dr. Aiden, of Massachusetts, says: "On every organ they touch, ardent spirits operate as a poison. Nowhere in the human body are they allowed a lodgment, until the vital powers are so far prostrated that they cannot be removed. They are hurried on from one organ to another, marking their course with irregularity of action and disturbance of function. * * * To a man in health there is no such thing as a temperate use of spirits. In any quantity they are an enemy to the human constitution." We might multiply this sort of testimony indefinitely. There has been a vast amount of medical research on this subject of late years, and nearly all of it concurs with the quotations here made. All the testimony is in proof, we see, that the effects of alcohol used in moderation—that is, "in the smaller doses"—are identically the irritant effects of a narcotico-acrid poison "in the smaller doses."

In our next we shall pursue this investigation by inquiring if the effects of alcohol upon the human system, in large doses, are identically those of a narcotico-acrid poison.

THE gait of a fast age—Investigate.

Rev. Hugh Montgomery Finley.

HIS CONVERSION, WORK AND END.

He was my father's third son—one of six brothers. Our father was born in North Carolina more than one hundred years ago. He grew up and married our mother in that State, and soon after his marriage followed Boone into the wilds of Kentucky; and from there emigrated to Alabama, and settled in Greene county, six miles from Greensboro, about fifty-five years ago, where all the younger members of the family grew up to maturity.

Our father descended from an old Irish Presbyterian family, from whom he received an impress favorable to the sanctities of the Christian Sabbath, honesty, integrity and morality. But his life was not as good as his creed, for he had imbibed all those notions of chivalry peculiar to frontier life. To resist, even to blood, an insult coming from any one; not to back down, even though the assailant should be the bully of the battalion; to fight it out on the line of honor, which implied no pistols, knives or any other weapon—that was cowardly; and never to say enough to any man—die first; these views our father cherished and practiced, and successfully instilled into every son that he raised.

He was exceedingly fond of music and dancing, and spared no pains to impart the accomplishment to each child as it grew up.

One all-pervading rule of family discipline was obedience to parents. An infraction of this rule brought down the penalty upon the back of the transgressor in a shower of birch that was very impressive. We were permitted to go to church when opportunity offered, provided we behaved well when there. A Baptist church, one and a half miles from home, was the only church we had in that community, and a preacher, called Billy Clark, was the pastor. His usual mode of opening his discourses was: "I shall preach on election to-day. 1. Election is a Bible doctrine, and is therefore true. 2. Jesus Christ died only for the elect, and none other. 3. No one can be saved for whom Christ did not die."

In conclusion he exhorted all—everybody—to come to Christ and be saved. Billy Clark was no ordinary man. His voice was clear and musical; he was full of sympathy; his eyes often ran down in tears, and many were moved to weep with the preacher. First he tied them all down, hand and foot, with the iron chains of election and reprobation, and then opened upon them a tearful exhortation, in which he always, and in the same language, portrayed the sufferings of Christ in such way as did good. The people did not understand the election, neither did he; but the pathetic exhortation they did understand, and it often told upon their lives. We knew nothing of Methodism then, except in so far as we heard from the lips of our parents expressions of contempt and ridicule for a sect of ranting hypocrites, with whom respectable people should form no alliances, but shun.

With these surroundings, and under this cloud of ignorance of divine things, Hugh M. Finley reached his majority, and started out to engineer his future. Physically he was a model—nearly six feet in height, weighing one hundred and seventy-five pounds, erect and trim, with black hair and eyes, Roman nose, exquisite mouth, handsome face and manly bearing. Just at this critical period in his short life an incident occurred, which changed all his plans that looked to the future, and opened up before him a new line of duty. Surrounded and invested with difficulties that appalled his manly nature, the pursuit of business brought him into the vicinity of a Methodist camp meeting in Marengo county, some thirty miles from home. He visited the camp ground and listened to several sermons from such men as Dr. Robert L. Kennon, Ebenezer Hearn and E. V. Levert. The word reached his heart, and to the altar he went, where he soon realized the salvation that is in Christ. The news of his conversion reached the family two weeks before his arrival. Father could not believe it, mother doubted, and the boys were reticent, as with terror.

Finally Hugh M. returned. All were shy of him for a time, but at length former relations seemed to be restored, and he regained his place in the bosom of the family. Then began a series of strategical movements on his part to win the family to Christ and to the church of his choice. A single blunder would have been fatal to his design; but he proved himself master of the situation. He took another session in the neighborhood school, and matured and executed the great design that was nearest his heart.

He had not joined the church nor had he been baptized. He resolved to honor his wicked father by asking his permission to join the hated Methodist Church. This he did, and in such a manner as to obtain it. This occurred several months after his conversion. He joined at Wesley chapel, ten miles from home—a church midway between Greensboro and Erie. His next step was to ask permission of the sinful father to hold family prayer. This occurred on Sunday evening, and is cherished in the memory of all of that large family who still dwell in earthly tents. The manner of asking was so submissive, reverential and filial that the father could not say: "No." He said: "Yes." The noble boy read a chapter, sang a hymn, and offered the first prayer that was ever formally made under that parental roof of which I have any knowledge. The effect upon the family will never be forgotten. When he said "amen" all rose from their knees and made for the doors, almost convulsed with emotions, father only excepted, and he was much embarrassed. By and by the family came in, one by one, and filed off to bed. The blow was now struck, and an open Methodist altar would have caught the mother, five sons and four daughters if it had been there. The work of conviction was now too deep to fail of results, especially under the nursing care of this skillful young tactician, whom God was training for his own standard-bearer on a more extended field of conquest. The work of conversion was not long delayed. It commenced with the eldest brother, and continued until the last one testified for Jesus in the remission of sins. It followed up every branch of the family to a distance of sixty miles, and arrested and brought in a brother-in-law who was an infidel, and he became a prince in Israel. Hugh M., James L., and the writer, who was the baby boy, all entered at different times upon the itinerant ministry of the Methodist Church. The father was converted when about seventy years of age, under the ministry of his youngest son. He and mother both died at ninety, and in great peace. The writer and the elder brother, Colonel C. W. Finley, now aged seventy years, living in California, and two sisters in Mississippi, are all that remain.

It seemed good to the writer to thus briefly outline the work of grace in his father's family, as the biography of Hugh M. Finley could not be even sketched with anything like justice to his precious memory from any other standpoint. He was licensed to preach, and joined the Alabama Conference in 1832. His first appointment was on Cedar Creek circuit as junior preacher, Rev. Daniel Monahon in charge. It was during this year that I saw him for the last time. We parted on the bank of the Alabama river. I received his last counsel and blessing—being then a boy of seventeen years. He made character as a preacher rapidly, and the next year (1834) he was placed in charge of the Chambers circuit, a Bro. Squires, with several years' experience, as junior. This was his last appointment. In labors he was abundant. The people flocked to his ministry everywhere. He threw the light and flame of gospel truth athwart the darkness of sinful humanity with a skill that augured a brilliant career in the vineyard of the Master. But, alas! this bright torch was soon to be extinguished by the rude hand of death. At a camp meeting on his circuit, which was held late in the fall, his excessive labors in pulpit and altar proved too much for him in the cold night air, and at its close he complained of indisposition. Unwisely he set out on his circuit to fill a string of appointments. The next Sunday found him in his pulpit, to preach his last sermon on the text, Hebrews xi, 24-26. Closing his discourse, he received twenty-one new members into the church, and retired to the house of a brother, where his sickness increased from day to day. Pneumonia had fastened upon his exhausted lungs, and on the next Sabbath, surrounded by a multitude of his friends, he breathed his last. He talked freely in holy triumph. He asked a sister to sing his favorite hymn: "A charge to keep I have." When he could no longer speak he pointed his finger at the Bible, and motioned them to read it and follow its sacred teachings.

I do not believe that St. Paul, apart from his inspiration, was a better man than was Hugh Montgomery Finley. He was not only good, but he had the elements of greatness, which would have developed themselves in a few years if he had lived. He was a fine, dignified declaimer. His piety, prudence and generalship I have never seen equaled by any one of his age. His brother,

ROBERT S. FINLEY.

TYLER, TEXAS, August 18, 1874.

Obituaries.

SARAH A. THOMS was born in the parish of West Feliciana, Louisiana, October 10, 1846. Her maiden name was Smith, daughter of Calvin and Sarah A. Smith. She was married to James A. Thoms April 2, 1873, and died March 30, 1874, aged twenty-seven years, five months and twenty days.

Earth is poorer and heaven is richer by the death of this excellent lady. In the family and social circles Sister Thoms was esteemed because of her purity and energy. Her genial nature won the love of all hearts. As a wife she heeded the divine word: "As the church is subject unto Christ, so let wives be to their own husbands in everything." Thus to her husband she was a gift of the Lord—"a good thing," "a prize far above rubies." She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Jackson, Louisiana, in the year 1871, and professed religion in September, 1872, and lived a consistent member until she departed to join the church triumphant.

D. C. LANGFORD.

AT a regular session of the Carondelet Sabbath school, held August 23, 1874, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Almighty God, in his wise but mysterious providence, has removed from the field of usefulness in our Sabbath school, and from the society of those who loved him, HARRY W. BOULLEMET, who had been connected with this school, as a scholar and officer, from early childhood, and in all these relations was loved and admired by us all for his exemplary conduct and mental capacities; be it, therefore,

Resolved, That we hereby express our deep sense of sorrow and personal loss in the death of Harry.

Resolved, That we hereby tender to his bereaved family our sincerest condolence, and pray our heavenly Father to bless this affliction to them in the assurance that their worthy son and brother Harry is not lost, but gone before them to that better land beyond the grave.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and a copy sent to the family.

H. W. SPEAR, Sec.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas, God in his providence, the wisdom of whose ways is incomprehensible, has visited our Sunday school and has seen fit to take therefrom our brother, D. CLARK, we, as teachers and classmates, take this occasion of expressing the respect we entertain for him; therefore, be it Resolved, That in this sore bereavement the Rolling Fork Sunday school has lost a worthy member and an efficient, the community a valuable citizen, and the family an obedient son and a kind brother.

Resolved, That while we feel deeply grieved thus to have one to whom we were so much attached so unexpectedly taken from us, we also bow in humble resignation to the will of almighty God.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the bereaved family of our departed brother.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, one handed to the family, and one sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

MARY S. FOOTE,
MARY C. MYERS
BURLEIGH GOODMAN,
Committee.

ROLLING FORK, MISS., September 1, 1874.

MRS. LETITIA QUAYLE was born in the county of Antrim, Ireland, March 22, 1842, and died at Warrington (Navy Yard,) Florida, August 4, 1874. Her maiden name was Speirs. She moved to America when a child. In 1859 she joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in the city of New Orleans, under the ministry of the Rev. Dr. J. B. Walker. On the thirty-first of December, 1860, she was married to Mr. Thomas C. Quayle, and in 1862 moved to Warrington, Florida, where she closed her earthly pilgrimage.

Sister Quayle was a meek and unobtrusive Christian, exemplary and consistent in her life. Her religion was rather one of deeds than of words. Devotedly attached to the church of her choice, she freely gave of her substance to its support, and her house was ever the home of the embassador of Christ. She was deeply concerned for the church at the Navy Yard, which for a time has been without a regular pastor, and deeply deplored the deprivation of this means of grace; but she did not forget her allegiance to her Savior. Impressed with the injunction of holy writ, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might," she was industrious and frugal, guided well her house, and was truly a helpmate to her husband, lighting up his home with the sunshine of Christian cheerfulness and hope. The large procession of friends that followed her remains to their last resting-place bore testimony to her moral worth in the community. Her illness was brief, and her death was calm and tranquil. We "weep not as others who have no hope," feeling assured that our loss is her eternal gain, and that she has been called from labor to rest.

WESLEY B. DENNIS.

THE following lines are affectionately inscribed to the memory of JENNIE COUCH, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Couch, of Point Mabin, near Delhi, Louisiana, who departed this life January 6, 1874, at the residence of her grandmother, Mrs. Long, near Rocky Springs, Mississippi, in the seventeenth year of her age.

Sleeping calmly 'neath the daisies,
In her narrow, peaceful bed,
Is my darling, gentle Jennie;
Can I think of her as dead?

Little white hands gently folded,
Loving heart forever still;
Give us strength, oh, great Creator,
To resign us to thy will.

She who never wronged or pain'd
E'en the humblest one of earth,
Like a ray of sunlight flitting
Thro' our home and round our hearth.

She so lovely and so gentle,
Winning all the hearts she knew
With her almost angel graces,
And her eyes of liquid blue.

Ah! my life, can we submit us
To this fatal, killing blow?
Gone thou art from all who loved thee,
And from ruder things below.

"God has given, God has taken,
And at last he will restore,"
In a purer, brighter kingdom,
Where death-partings are no more.

Just as an earthly gleaner plucks
Fairest, sweetest, rarest flowers,
So has death plucked and bore from us—
She, the fairest one of ours.

Heal thy bleeding heart, fond mother;
Decks she now a higher sphere—
She's transplanted in that garden
Where she needs no earthly care.

Parents, thy fond child awaits thee
In yon pure, celestial dome,
With angel wings outstretched to meet
And welcome to that heavenly home.

A. C. C.

BEAUREGARD, MISS., July 14, 1874.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

HON. NEIL MCMILLAN was born in Robeson county, North Carolina, November 23, 1806; moved to Escambia county (now Santa Rosa,) Florida, in 1828; returned to North Carolina in 1829, and married Elizabeth Wilkinson, and came back to Escambia county in 1830. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church about 1832, and was class-leader and steward about forty years. Elizabeth died in 1854, by whom he had three children, and two married at the time of the death of their mother. He married Catherine M., widow of John Night, and daughter of John Salter, deceased, late of Escambia county, Florida, June 17, 1856, by whom he had three children—one daughter and two sons—as was the case by his first wife, and died on the twentieth of March, 1874, aged sixty-seven years, three months and twenty-seven days. His last whispering words were: "Victory! victory!"

He had been senator from the second district of Florida, and an assemblyman from Santa Rosa county before the war; was assemblyman from Santa Rosa county at the time of his death, and on his return from the Legislature he died before reaching his home. He had been judge of probate, a justice of the peace and county commissioner of Santa Rosa county, and when he died held the appointment from the Governor as tax collector of Santa Rosa county, and over had the confidence and esteem of all who knew him.

He was initiated October 18, 1854, passed October 20, 1854, and raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason October 23, 1854, in Santa Rosa Lodge, No. 16, Florida, of which he died a member. As a Free and Accepted Mason he loved the order, and held the office of treasurer at the time of his death and for many years before. As a Mason and Christian gentleman, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in the office of class-leader, steward, trustee, superintendent of Sabbath school and a delegate to District Conferences, his work was "true work," square work, work," and just such work as several offices demanded and expected of a Christian gentleman, a Mason, in the offices of assemblyman, judge of probate, justice of the peace and county commissioner, his work was "true work, square work, good work," and such work as was demanded of a patriot. And as a Mason; character of a husband, father, neighbor and friend, life was near faultless as it is possible in human nature, by grace, to be.

We mourn his loss, and bow submit to the demand of our preme Grand Master, who has him from labor in our lodge freshment in the Grand Lodge where the Grand Architect of universe presides; therefore, be Resolved, by Santa Rosa No. 16, That we have lost one most worthy workmen, and we feel; but he has, we doubt gained everlasting rest and ness. No less a loss has the and church sustained, and his ily a much heavier loss.

Resolved, That while we have much else to bestow, and do sincerely, deeply and affectionately sympathize with immediate relatives and friends our deceased brother, and especially with his widow and

Resolved, That a copy of going be furnished to the widow family of our deceased brother also one to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and Christian and fraternal request the same be published in that

JOHN CARTOVIT
JAS. A. CHAFFE
JOHN CHAIN,
Committee.

DIED, in Mobile, Alabama, morning of Sunday, August 9, Mrs. SARAH E. HEARD Gor her sixtieth year. She was b Abbeville district, South Car but resided in Mobile for the thirty-five years, and was a me of the St. Francis Street Meth Episcopal Church.

From early youth she had the services of the house of God though living at a great dis from the church, the road to lay through a sparsely-settled trict, she was always found drinking in eagerly the lesso truth and wisdom heard from pulpit. Class meeting was al held at the conclusion of the ing services, and while atten one of these meetings she was pily converted. Her first im and desire was to consecrate h to the service of God, and, wi waiting to "confer with flesh blood," she united with the ch Her family were not religious, waited for her when she remain class meeting, and she was freque obliged to traverse alone the distance between the church and home. When she announced assembled family that she member of the church, a severe awaited her. Her mother bade Institute family worship—a hard for a girl in her early teens, rounded by cold, unsympathi relatives. The struggle was God sustained her, and this was taken up. Through her sistent life—owing its consistenc great measure to secret pra through her prayers and effort their salvation, that mother other members of the family soon brought into the church.

After her removal to Mobile, more than twenty years she wa active, earnest, zealous Chris For the last ten years of her life was an invalid, being confined greater portion of that time to bed with rheumatism. Altho denied the privileges of the sa ary, and greatly afflicted in b her faith in God never wave She was a marvel of Christian tience, and many a silent ser was preached by her quiet sub sion to the lot God gave her; her trust in her Savior was al precious, but trebly so in her h of pain and suffering. Her int in the church was always k Many a prayer for the prosperit Zion went up from her heart, w no opportunity was lost of spea words of encouragement to Ch tians, words of warning to the unconverted. Her life was no do prolonged by the gentle, unti ministrations of her husband, daughters and a son, all of wh are professed followers of Christ, are upheld in this time of grief affliction by the sustaining powe religion.

For her death was robbed of terrors. The grave was but portal through which she must p to the glories of heaven. Like I she desired "to depart and be w Christ," but waited patiently for summons, and when it came, le ling on him who has said, "Lo am with you alway, even unto end of the world," she entered dark valley undismayed. A b struggle in quitting its tenemen flesh, and her spirit winged its fli to that happy clime where ther "no more death, neither sorrow crying, neither shall be any m pain," to join the song of the deemed: "Unto him that loved and washed us from our sins in own blood, and hath made us kin and priests unto God and his Fath to him be glory and dominion over and ever. Amen."

"Thou art gone to the grave, but we will not plore thee,
Whose God was thy ransom, thy guardian guide;
He gave thee, he took thee, and he will re thee;
And death has no sting, for the Savior died."

L.

A DIAMOND is no more self-lumi ous than any other clod. The diff ence lies in the transparency—th is, in the power of receiving transmitting light; and in the ke ling one's self in connection with t One who is the light.—Rev. W. Baker.

THE essence of true nobility ueglect of self. Let the thoughts self pass in, and the beauty of a gre action is gone, like the bloom fro soiled flower.

e Christian Advocate.

SDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

ENLISTED.

BY GEORGE COOPER.

Only a willow tent,
And guarded well;
Only a soldier sent
The ranks to swell.
Only to learn the drill
So strange and odd,
Only a while to fill
Life's awkward squad.

Only a pair of hands
The strife to meet;
Only to wait commands
With tireless feet.
Only a gallant fight
While toils beset;
Only to choose the right—
The soul's brevet.

Only a march by day,
In storm and sun;
Only a brief delay,
Then "halt" is won.
Only an order sent
For our release;
Only a darksome tent,
Then all is peace!

Mental Hygiene.

CHARLES F. WINGATE.

he sake of convenience I shall ny subject under three separate viz.: the amount and best work, of exercise, and of sleep. he first place, the amount of work that can be safely per- daily by an average adult is than is generally supposed. In work I mean labor which ds severe mental effort—such inal invention or composition, bservation or judgment. We many things which require ental effort and help fill up ily life, but which, though xhaust the patience and tire ly, yet can hardly be classed the head of work in the full f the word.

ien, we make this limitation, additions set aside all the of tremendous feats of mental by various persons as being quite exceptional or purely rphal, and take the average mance of a fair number of rep- ative literary and professional t will be found that from four e hours a day is the usual t, and that in the case of many ndustrious and prolific workers ven less. Without further in- tion, I will cite a few facts in of this assertion.

Franklin asserted that if every the world would work four per day their labor would suf- supply all the necessaries of on's day's work consisted of seven hours. Shelley frequently ixteen hours out of the twenty- at his daily average was mostly ten hours, and, as he read but ooks—Plato, Homer, a Greek y or the Bible—this cannot be severe exertion. The poet ell rose at seven, wrote busi- etters and read the newspaper morning; but his own literary consumed less than four hours e afternoon. He seldom did ing at night. At sixty-two he ix hours, studied twelve, and d six, and wrote to a friend oranges, exercise and early serve to keep him flourishing." ter Scott wrote all his voluminworks before breakfast; and, including his labors as a writer e Signet, which were merely tonical, he seldom was at his desk than nine hours per day. Dick- role in the morning till one or o'clock, and then after lunch slept two hours. Gibbon always his literary labors with the and usually with the morning. e laid aside his pen at three— g in later years abandoned work—and spent an hour or in walking. Bulwer accom- d his voluminous productions ree hours daily—usually from until one; while Anthony Trol- ends his literary work by noon. erton, the English artist and , says that four hours' painting usts his powers and uses him up e day. Guizot, at eighty-five, up his usual habits—rising at nd after breakfast working till then lunching and resuming until two o'clock, when he a long walk of five miles at He never writes later than hour. M. Thiers, while president e French republic, always rose e, having gone to bed at mid- His usual day's work, con- g of consultations, dictations to secretary, and receptions of ons, consumes about six hours. ides out for at least two hours, then takes a nap for an hour or and, after a late dinner, enter- company during the evening. class of persons are forced to er exertion than journalists, and he most prolific of them do not very many hours continuously. column daily is a fair average he New York press for an edito- writer, and this could be written few hours; while three articles week is the usual stint for the writers on the London Times. race Greeley's literary labors, as they were, did not occupy y hours, and much of his time consumed in seeing visitors, ng and traveling; and even he died of overwork, as did ry J. Raymond, though he too s took long periods of rest after pasms of severe work. Samuel les, by the aid of a stenographer, through a full day's stint of edi- writing and correspondence in hours daily. Charles A. Dana the Sun office from about ten to while much of this time is given eiving visitors and other light . Whitelaw Reid and Louis J. ings edit their respective papers ng two hours of each afternoon three or four hours at night. e Gedwin, D. G. Croly and r Bundy, who all three have ge of afternoon newspapers, their office hours usually from o'clock to four at the most, h includes an hour for luncheon. sample of the daily life of an ptionally hard working journal- the following account given by ry Watterson, editor of the isville Courier-Journal, may be resting. It is taken from an un- ished letter, and it should be re- membered that it is written by a man who is partly blind:

"I wake up at ten o'clock in the morning, and after a cup of coffee I write for two hours in bed. I get up at noon and have a plunge bath, and take breakfast with my family, who then have taken their lunch. I go to the office afterward, and remain there till seven, prepared to see everybody that calls. During the same time the work of the day is planned out and everybody begins it. I then go home and have supper, and spend the evening until ten o'clock there, usually listening to reading by my wife or having a little music. At ten o'clock I am back to the office again, where I remain until two o'clock. I am only able to write two hours a day myself, and the rest is done by dictation. I read but little myself; but glance through the exchanges, in order to get an idea of things, having important articles read out loud to me. I have no time for exercise and do not care for riding, all the exercise I get being in walking to and from the office."

As an example of the literary productiveness of some of the most brilliant and steady writers on the press, I may add that John Hay writes only two hours a day, usually in the afternoon, though his favorite time of composition is before breakfast. He writes rapidly; but his daily average is only one column of Tribune brevier. The other members of the Tribune's staff—Hassard, Noah Brooks, Bromley and Congdon—do about the same. The average amount written by the staff of the Times is about the same.

Two of the hardest literary workers in America are Edward Everett Hale and James Parton. Yet the former is at his desk but three hours each day, and always insists on having nine hours' sleep, which is the same amount that President Grant requires; while Mr. Parton calls his daily work four hours' composition and three hours' research, or about seven in all, and never exceeds this limit. George Eliot writes only from six to nine A. M.; while Tom Taylor, the dramatist, in a recent speech at the Literary Fund dinner in London, said that during the last twenty years his literary work had been chiefly done in the invaluable three hours before breakfast. Prescott usually worked only three hours daily.

Rufus Choate asserted that six hours a day was enough time to give to the study of law, thus confirming the time-honored maxim of Coke:

"Six hours to law, to soothing slumber six;
Twelve to the world allot, the rest on Heaven fix."

Sir Matthew Hale, after telling how he nearly killed himself by studying law for sixteen hours a day at first, advises the student to limit himself to six hours per day; while an eminent modern English jurist once observed of a young lawyer of promise that he had been disposed to think well of the latter's prospects until he heard him say that during the previous four years he had read fourteen hours a day, since which he had not thought anything of him. Chief Justice Story ended his work with the daylight, thus limiting himself to about eight hours.

Commodore Vanderbilt limits his work to a few hours each morning. He drives out afterward, and devotes the evening to whist, while he goes to bed regularly at ten. He possesses the power of leaving his business cares in his office and never thinking of them during his hours of recreation. Yet he has managed his personal affairs, involving forty millions of dollars at least, without the least anxiety or apparent effort, keeping hardly any books, but carrying everything in his head.

A. T. Stewart visits his retail store punctually at ten o'clock A. M. and remains until five. H. B. Claflin's business hours are about the same, and hence both of these great merchants are still in the prime of health.

Moses Taylor's daily life is as follows: He rises early, takes a bath, eats a simple breakfast, and is down to the bank before the clerks. He is never excited, never in a hurry; is self-possessed and master of the situation. Business over, he rides up town in an omnibus, has a frugal dinner, takes a bath, and after a refreshing sleep writes down the business of the day until ten, and then goes to bed.

Prof. Draper, the historian, is an extraordinary worker, his daily average being about sixteen hours. In a conversation with a young man, some four years since, he mentioned this fact, and added that, though his practice was contrary to the laws of health, he did not feel any ill effects from it. He thought that much depended upon keeping up the general health and following regular habits. Eight hours of literary composition would exhaust the body; but the rest of the day might be taken up with collating or revising, while lecturing was a change and a rest.

Chief Justice Chase and John Stuart Mill were both shining examples of the danger of exceeding the average amount of work which most men perform. The chief justice rose early and was fond of exercise; but he worked too hard and too long—ten hours on an average—and hence his attack of paralysis in 1870, which led to his death at the age of sixty-five. Mr. Mill, according to a good authority, worked sixteen hours a day for the greater part of his life, and this in spite of his delicate constitution. Is his death, therefore, at the comparatively early age of sixty-seven, to be wondered at?

Another untimely loss must also be credited to neglect of those precautions which nature requires in order to maintain moral health and vigor. Prof. Agassiz, naturally possessed a vigorous constitution; but it had been undermined by the toil and work of an activity that knew no bounds, and his death at the age of sixty-six cannot but seem premature. Nearly ten years before his physicians began to counsel repose and change of work; but, instead of taking that rest which his years and constitution demanded, he only assumed greater burdens and girded himself for vaster undertakings, to which his vital powers had at last to yield.

How many more like losses are in store for us, for lack of prudence in this most important respect?

These numerous practical proofs of the premises laid down at the outset are supported by the testimony of several medical experts, whose opinion is entitled to much weight, and with which I will conclude my argument.

Dr. Edward H. Clarke, author of the late admirable little work on "Sex in Education," which has attracted and deserved so much attention, says in a note to the writer: "My own views confirm your conclusions that four hours' brain labor is a fair daily average." Dr. Willard Parker, a high authority, asserts that "no man can do hard work faithfully for more than four or six hours each day. If that time is exceeded, all the phosphorus is carried off, and the man becomes irritable, broken down, and has softening of the brain. I have seen this overwork in lawyers, doctors, clergymen and merchants who have worked the brain for ten hours. They have dropped under the burden. You cannot violate the law of God with impunity."—Independent.

Alcohol in the Kitchen.

I am not sure but every crusade against strong drink in the house should begin in the kitchen and end in the drawing-room.

Look at the vast array of fruit-cakes, pies, puddings, jellies, sauces, preserves, in their well-nigh interminable variety, and witness the insidious workings of the alcoholic fiend under the guise of necessary nutriment. Why cannot the luscious fruits of the summer and the autumn-time be preserved with their natural flavor and pleasantness, and the "devil's juice" of brandy left out of the process? Why must the most harmless and healthful of articles be contaminated with the poison of alcohol before they are placed upon our tables? Why must sweet cream, and snowy sugar, and choice fruits, and the variety of things, good and healthful in themselves, used in puddings and pastries and desserts, in jellies and confections, be "doctored" with alcohol? These are serious questions for the thoughtful Christian women of to-day. If they are to be the leaders and saviors of the land in the war against intemperance, let them be careful that no blood of the inebriate be found at the doorways of their kitchens. Let them purge the culinary art of all that is bad and vicious, notably of every alcoholic preparation whatever. It must be clear to observant people that if from every kitchen of the land, in hotel, boarding-house, and the houses of private living, there issued only healthful, excellent foods and drinks, and these everywhere in abundance, and served with scrupulous neatness and the appliances of real comfort, there would be a heavy blow stricken at depraved physical appetites and tastes. "High" living and poor living have combined to curse the nation in multitudinous cases, and drive their victims to the maddening bowl to satisfy cravings of appetite which should have been answered by full supplies of sweet, pure and healthful food and drink. As yet unwritten tale of history will rise up in judgment against the careless, unwise or unthrifty housewives who have permitted these things, and its record will be mighty with evil. In the excitement of other and bolder phases of the drink question, alcohol in this quieter but none the less deadly sphere of its operations has largely been forgotten.

In a collection of recipes before me, published under the auspices of a religious society of ladies, I find, in the list of puddings and sauces, such directions as these: "Wine to the taste," "eat with wine-sauce," "add a cup of wine;" of "Eve's pudding" it is said that "Adam wouldn't eat it without wine;" "pour two tablespoonfuls of brandy over it," "two tablespoonfuls of brandy;" and all on a single page. In a cake list which I have inspected, also prepared by the hands of religious women, we have items like "brandy," "half a teacup of brandy," "half a glass of brandy," etc.; of "miscellaneous" items we have "hot wine-sauce," "brandy," "one pint of wine," etc. These samples are quite sufficient to show the range which the use of liquor takes in the cookery of many households; and this would be extremely mild, doubtless, in comparison with numerous cases in the ultra fashionable ranks of society.

A war, then, in the kitchen, upon every brandy-flask and demijohn and decanter and wine-bottle, upon every sight and smell of the hateful poison! A grand campaign, with mop and broomstick and shovel and poker, against old King Alcohol! Clear away the cider cask from the cellar below, and baste the sides of the portly rum-jug till all the spirits is out of it. Hard at them all, mistress and maid, in a hand-to-hand fight, a home "crusade," until your queenly dominions are forever rid of the lusty giant! And sign a treaty and solemn compact, a kitchen pledge, to be true to the real friend of the housewife, the patron of her helpers, and the crowning blessing of the well-ordered house—sweet, cleansing, healthful and life-giving water!—National Temperance Advocate.

A REVIVAL INCIDENT AT DUNDEE.—According to a local paper, a scoffing young man recently attended a revival meeting in that town, and at the close stayed behind to attend the "anxious inquirers'" meeting—not from any worthy motive, but simply to find material for the amusement of himself and his associates. With this ignoble end in view, he anxiously inquired of one of the ministers "whether he could work a miracle or not." He had not to wait long for a satisfactory reply; for the reverend gentleman, seizing him firmly by the shoulders, replied: "We cannot work miracles, but we can cast out devils;" and, suiting the action to the word, pitched his young friend bodily outside the church door, which was immediately closed in his face. The anxious inquirer disappeared rapidly in the darkness.—London Nonconformist.

The Influence of Books.

A little incident in the life of the poet Coleridge shows of how much importance in shaping his future destiny are the acts of even a boy. The poet in after years said of himself: "From eight to fourteen I was a day-dreamer and a gluttonous devourer of books."

He was at that period an attendant at the "Blue-Coat School," and one day while walking along the street his mind was busy, as usual, in visionary dreams of his favorite hero, and he imagined himself swimming across the classical Hellespont. In this fancied voyage he was throwing out his arms as if in the act of swimming, and ran one hand against the breast-pocket of a gentleman who was approaching him from the opposite direction.

"What!" said the gentleman, "so young and yet so wicked. You tried to pick my pocket."

"I did not, sir," sobbed the frightened boy. "Indeed, sir, I did not mean any such thing."

"Well, what were you doing with your hand so near my coat?" inquired the gentleman, now evidently softened by the boy's truthful face.

"I thought I was Leander, and that I was swimming across the Hellespont," was the ready response, "and I did not think of my hands coming in contact with any one in the water."

The gentleman laughed heartily at the novelty of the incident, and was so favorably impressed by the boy's simple-hearted frankness that he gave him a ticket of admission to a circulating library in Cheapside. He rightly judged that this readiness of access to books would be the highest possible gratification to such a youth, and herein was probably laid the foundation for the subsequent career of the poet Coleridge.

His wonderful metaphysical and philosophical talents were thus developed, and his rare colloquial powers cultivated by converse with books, till in "linked sweetness" he poured forth the melody of his cultivated genius to the delight of all about him.

His mind was fed, but the soul was starved; and when near the close of his life he frequently lamented that with an intellect such as few men of his age had been blessed with, his career, in all the best purposes of life, had been a failure. Had the religious element mingled more largely in the books of which the circulating library was composed, how different might have been the career of this gifted man.

Books, even more than other surroundings, carve their own features upon the minds and hearts of the young and impressible; and too much care and judgment cannot be exercised in the selection of the literature of the school and family. All about us, sown broadcast over the whole land, is a literature reeking with infidelity, pollution and extravagance. Let us see to it that such books are crowded out of our houses by the introduction of those worthy to be read; and the false principles they inculcate, out of the hearts and minds of our children, by laying the foundations of that true wisdom which cometh down from above, by a knowledge of God's holy word, a reverence for his Sabbaths, and a spirit of obedience to his laws.—American Messenger.

BULLS THAT ARE NOT IRISH.—It was a Scotch woman who said that the butcher of her town only killed half a beast at a time; it was a Dutchman who said that a pig had no marks on his ears except a short tail; and it was a British magistrate who, being told by a vagabond that he was not married, responded: "That's a good thing for your wife;" it was an English reporter who stated, at a meeting of the Ethnological Society, that there were "casts of the skull of an individual at different periods of adult life, to show the changes produced in ten years," though Dean Swift certainly mentions two skulls preserved in Ireland, one of a person when he was a boy, and the other of the same person when he grew to be a man; it was a Portuguese mayor who enumerated among the marks by which the body of a drowned man might be identified, when found, "a marked impediment in his speech;" it was a Frenchman—the famous Curtius—who, contentedly laying his head upon a large stone jar for a pillow, replied to one who inquired if it was not rather hard: "Not at all, for I've stuffed it with hay;" it was an American lecturer who solemnly said one evening: "Parents, you may have children, or, if not, your daughters may have;" and it was a German orator who, warming with his subject, exclaimed: "There is no man, woman or child in the house, who has arrived at the age of fifty years, but what has felt the truth thundering through their minds for centuries."

I THINK that the church of God and the Sabbath are only an armory where we are to get weapons. When war comes, if a man wants to fight for his country he does not go to Troy or Springfield to do battling, but he goes there for swords and muskets. I look upon the church of Christ and the Sabbath day as only the place where we are to get armed for Christian conflict, but the battle-field is on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. A sermon is useless unless we can take it with us behind the plow and the counter. The Sabbath day is worthless if it lasts only twenty-four hours.—Talmage.

I HAVE COME to believe that a man may cast himself too passively upon the bosom even of his God. Our Creator wants a man to be manly. One thing I do know: there are cases where he refuses to answer importunate prayer by anything in return, outer or inner—repels, casts off the supplant; not only because that supplant is selfish in his seeking, but whining and whimpering, and indulging in a sickly sort of dependence, when he ought to stand up like a man, bear troubles silently, and do known duty stoutly, whatever the duty may be.—Rev. W. M. Baker.

Religious Intelligence.

PROVISION has been made by the Maine Universalists for the ordination of women to the ministerial office.

THE increase in the Primitive Methodist connection the past year was 4,002, making the present total strength of the denomination 194,660.

THE Wesleyan mission at Ceylon has established six stations in its southern mission, which includes Shanghai. The leaven of the gospel is at work.

A SERIES of revival services are being carried on successfully at Liverpool by a committee of gentlemen connected with the evangelical denominations of the town.

MORE than one-fourth of all the people of Upper Canada, at the last census, reported themselves as Methodists. More than one-half of all the church buildings are Methodist churches.

THE Roman Catholics are not losing ground in New York, where last year the Society for the Propagation of the Faith enjoyed an income of $1,104,838, and the archbishop confirmed 15,000 persons.

IN ENGLAND two sessions of the Sunday school each Sunday are held. The people there are beginning to agitate the question of abandoning one of them. But the project is looked upon as a radical innovation.

THERE is in India a large class known as Borderers. They are those who have cut loose from Hindooism, but have not openly become Christians. According to the confession of one of them they are like the vast multitude of those in Christian lands, "in the valley of decision."

THE work of translating the Bible into Japanese is now going forward in that country under the direction of a committee, of whom Rev. S. R. Brown is chairman and Rev. D. C. Greene secretary. The former is a missionary of the Reformed Church, and the latter of the American Board.

THE Reformed Episcopal Church is moving slowly ahead, making good progress when you take into account the tide that sets against it. A new society has just been organized at Sussex, N. B., and the Rev. E. D. Neill, the late Presbyterian, is seeing what he can do to plant the new standard in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

LUTHERAN STATISTICS.—At present the General Synod embraces about 700 ministers, 1,200 congregations and 105,000 communicants; the General Council embraces about 500 ministers, 950 congregations and 150,000 communicants, and the Synodical Conference embraces about 900 ministers, 1,400 congregations and 220,000 communicants.

A GREAT sensation has been caused at Rome in Roman Catholic circles by the conversion to Protestantism of another distinguished clergyman of that church. The name of the convert is Alceste Lauria. He was a parish priest, a doctor of divinity, and has been professor of philosophy at the Vatican Seminary, and teacher of mathematics at a polytechnic school.

THE St. Johanner Zeitung says in reference to the exhibition of relics now taking place in the cathedral of Aix-la-Chapelle: "Of pretendedly genuine dresses of the Virgin Mary there exist more than 300; of haircombs, if all those attributed to her be genuine, she must have had 530; and if the collectors of relics be right, she used for the infant Christ not less than 400 swaddling cloths."

MONASTIR is a city, in European Turkey whence a resident missionary writes that he recently noticed in one of the warehouses a number of barrels of rum from Boston. He says that America sends to foreign ports considerably more liquor than gospel, and that the influence is bad. In making calls on New Year's day and other holidays he notices that New England rum is frequently set before the guests.

THE sixtieth annual report of the American Baptist Missionary Union gives an encouraging view of the home work of the society. Six missionaries, with their wives, and four lady missionaries, were appointed during the year, and eight men and one lady are under appointment. The receipts of the society were $261,530, being an increase of more than $45,000 over last year, and the debt of the Union has been reduced to $27,778.

IN DAMASCUS, where St. Paul was converted, and where the wonderful events recorded in the ninth chapter of Acts transpired, the Lord is at work bringing this ancient city to himself. The missionary work is under the direction of the Presbyterians, and their prospects are most encouraging. An unusual interest is awakened among the Arabs to hear the gospel. Let the church pray that this old city may be taken for Christ!

LIEUTENANT CURLEY, of the British navy, having seen a good deal of the Newfoundlanders, felt such an interest in them that he several years ago gave a steam yacht for a mission ship to the Church of England mission in Newfoundland. Now he follows the gift by going himself to the work of ministering to the poor fishermen who form the principal population of the island. That is a good way to follow up one's beneficence.

THE General Triennial Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which meets in October, promises to be a very important meeting. The questions which have been agitating Low and High Churchmen for some time past will undoubtedly come up for settlement in some manner. There are large numbers of Low Churchmen who, though remaining in the old church, are restive and discontented. It is said that a contemplated effort to keep these questions out of the body cannot possibly succeed.

THE American Baptist Home Mission Society makes this report for the past year: Three hundred and thirty-four missionaries have been employed; 30,494 sermons have been preached; 2,264 believers have been baptized; 1,000 prayer meetings have been attended; 80,119 families and individuals have been visited; 28,062 children have been gathered into Sunday schools; 113 Baptist churches have been organized; $18,500 have been contributed by missionary churches; 7 freedmen's schools have been supported; 740 freedmen and freedwomen have been under instruction in these schools.

IN Iceland the Lutheran is the prevailing church. There are about 66,000 people in the island, with 321 churches among them. These churches are under the pastoral care of 189 clergymen, most of whom are very poorly paid, the average ministerial salary being much less there than in our country, and with no $10,000 salaries to count against the starvation prices paid to the poorest. Most of the Iceland ministers are compelled to do some secular work to make a living.

THE Romish cabinet and cardinals are discounting the death of the Pope by endeavoring to have everything at the Vatican swept and garnished in anticipation of that no distant event. To this end they are negotiating, it is said, with the governments of Austria, France and Portugal to obtain the renunciation of their right of excluding candidates for the papacy at the next papal election. We shall see whether these governments will be sufficiently docile to surrender the veto, the exercise of which they have claimed for so many generations.

WHEN the flames seized the great house of worship belonging to the First Baptist church in Chicago, brethren, who had labored hard to save it, said one to another: "Our house must go, but let us have one more prayer within its walls." And they bowed before God in face of the coming flames, while one who had been wont to lead in the fire and thunder of battle, led the cry of these faithful heroes before the mercy-seat. Then, rising to their feet, they sang as they retreated:

"From every stormy wind that blows,
From every swelling tide of woes,
There is a calm, a sure retreat—
'Tis found beneath the mercy-seat."

REV. MATTEO PROCHET appeals to the American Presbyterians again to come to the aid of the Waldensian churches, which are now holding out manfully in Italy. "We do not ask help," he writes, "to build our houses or to sustain our congregations in the valley inhabited by the Waldensians; but we say to our brethren: The Lord is giving the land into our hands; will you not come up and help us? If your church were a poor one, I should never even think of applying to you. But I am fully convinced that were you to grant us $5,000 or $6,000 per annum, that would not take a potato off the table of a single member of your great church."

EGYPT.—The oppression of the people is exceedingly great. They suffer for every comfort of life.—Squalid destitution is seen everywhere. Their filth and wretchedness cannot be described. But the gospel is working wonders among them in its elevating, saving power. "The Holy Spirit attends its preaching, schools, Sabbath meetings for prayer, catechisings and songs of praise." Says Rev. I. G. Bliss, in the Christian Intelligencer: "Repentances, conversions, consecrations to God, communion seasons, a living, working church, are the fruit that have sprung in this unfriendly soil from the sowing here of the incorruptible seed of the word of God."

THE additions by examination to our churches (Presbyterian) the past year, says the Evangelist, were 36,971, giving an excess of 8,163 over the average (28,808) of the preceding four years, since the reunion. This, as the Presbyterian well remarks, is the largest number of persons gathered into the fold in any one year since the Presbyterian Church was established in this country. "A larger proportionate number—namely, 34,160—was gathered in during the year 1832. The church then included the whole South. Should we take into account the same geographical limits now, we must add the 7,129 received by the Southern Church on examination to our own figures. The result is the round, if not quite sacred, number of 44,100."

THE MORAVIANS IN LABRADOR.—The Moravians make but little of a sensation in their mission work, but keep at what they undertake with remarkable persistency. They select the least comfortable fields of labor in the world. Their work in Greenland is well known. Now they have opened a new station in the southern part of Labrador, where the thermometer indicates as low as sixty degrees below freezing-point in January. The missionaries sometimes lose their way in snow drifts, and their Esquimaux dogs give out with weariness; but though the Esquimaux population regard Christ as but little better than one of their own sorcerers, the work is pushed on as bravely as if the encouragement were greater. When we think of the comparative ease with which our home evangelical work is managed, the labors of these half-frozen Moravians seem the very concentration of all human self-sacrifice.—Christian Leader.

AND now the telegraph tells us that Father Hyacinthe has resigned his curacy in Geneva. For some time past this celebrated preacher, who broke from the Roman Church and turned an Old Catholic, has been engaged in a quarrel with his new coreligionaires. He was even called publicly a hypocrite by Fathers Mouls and Junca, who live in Belgium now, and who were the promoters of the Old Catholic movement in France. Later Father Hyacinthe saw his moderate views rejected by the Old Swiss Catholic Conference held at Berne. Finally he had last month a bitter quarrel with one of his own curates. All this grows out of Father Hyacinthe's earnest adhesion to extreme moderate views, which bring him, indeed, on the border-land of Protestantism. It seems not improbable now that, having thrown away his monk's white robe, he will find a permanent home within the fold of the Protestant Church.—Christian at Work.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—112 CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.
Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street New Orleans.
AGENTS—All the members of the Patronizing Conferences.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
REV. A. J. BRIGGS.
REV. J. W. RUSH.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

One Year	$2 00
Six Months	1 25
Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all Ministers of the Gospel, traveling or, local and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers, with EIGHT DOLLARS.

The Sunday Habit.

It is to be counted a great mercy—a piece of good fortune under a most benign Providence—that one's childhood and youth have been spent in habitual reverence for the Sabbath. Everything in nature seems to be imbued with a sense of the sacredness of the hours. The aspects of the outward world—the trees, the sunshine, the atmosphere—have a softness and beauty which they do not have on other days. The song of the birds, the murmur of the brooks, the ripple of the waves and the hum of insects lose their secular glee, and become a cheerful but holy psalmody. The very light has something of heaven in it, the clouds move across the sky with a more noiseless tread and the rain comes down with a fall, if not always more gentle, yet with a peculiar refreshing. The storms, however dark and terrific, the fierce tempests, the lightning and thunder, have a different voice, more directly the voice of God, and the manifestation of his majesty and power. This sense of Sunday, this habitual consciousness of sacredness, and of a divine and holy appropriation of the day, once deeply implanted, and wrought into the fibers of the youthful heart, is a precious heritage.

Few who have been reared to remember the Sabbath day, and who have been blessed with a wise and judicious training, wherein the day has been made to them cheerful and bright, as well as hallowed, ever altogether lose the impressions that have been made. It can never become to them as other days, even when they have gone far astray, and have been led to the extremes of desecration. The day to them becomes a life-long admonition and reminder, and, while they might wish to forget, it lives both as a prophet and as an evangel in the memory. Most blessed are they who have had the boon of Christian Sundays in their childhood homes and in all their early associations! It would be well for parents to consider how much this one thing has to do with the character and future welfare of their children. Make the Sabbath at home impressive and authoritative, so that it shall not be like other days; but, besides the religiousness of it, let it be different in the greater brightness and pleasantness of the in-door life. A child's Sabbaths at home should be fragrant with all beautiful flowers, and aglow with the quiet but fascinating light of the choicest sunbeams.

Christians who have spent their years in the observance of the day have this wholesome Sunday habit most thoroughly wrought into their inner and outer life. We have known them sometimes to mistake the day, but, until the error was disclosed, all nature wore its Sabbath livery, the angels seemed to be walking thickly amidst the scenes of earth, and the divine presence shone about them as from "between the cherubim." We have read of men cast upon desert islands, who, having lost the reckoning, were compelled to appoint the day at a venture, and their loneliness and dissolution were cheered by the sense of rest and the spirit of worship which marked the Sabbath of their distant homes. The beneficence of this habit can be most fully appreciated by the devout as they open their eyes upon a day given to [illegible] privileges and duties. How it enables them, with their morning bath, to wash off the grime and coil of the week's labor and care, and to enter, as it were, into a new, different and more spiritual world! To them it is a type of the better land, and most helpful in preparing them for it.

There is a hebdomadal periodicity in nature. The moon and the weather, and the elements in general, sometimes seem to recognize the law. Seven was a sacred, and the perfect number in the inspired writings. It has been found out by experience that one-seventh, rather than one-tenth, or any other proportion, is the precise amount of time best adapted to rest and recuperation. Nature and experience alike testify to the wisdom of the seventh day. Our religious needs doubtless accord with this general law. The devout soul falls in with it most heartily. Not only for rest, but for prayer, public worship and religious duties does man require this seventh. "The Sabbath was made for man," and most emphatically for the religious and spiritual man. It is the Lord's day, that it might be man's day by eminence. It was hallowed and set apart by God, and claimed as his, that he might give it to us in a better and truer sense than other days are given. The Christian's nature is in accord with the institution. The Sabbath is the key that winds him up for the week, it is the mess that stands him in hand through the time of death and travail, it is the oasis that welcomes him at the end of every week's pilgrimage. As he parts with one, he begins already to look wistfully toward the next. Thus his life is from Sabbath to Sabbath, and his spiritual history is written in chapters of which Sunday is the uniform but never monotonous title.

He is fortunate who can carry something of the Sunday aroma with him into the very heart of the week. Monday or Wednesday cannot be as this day, nor should it be. The holy and the secular day are not to be confounded by any degree of piety. Let the days be different, as God has appointed, but the zodiacal light should linger and spread its mantle over us even until the sun appears again. A good friend of ours, not long since gone to heaven, used to tell us that he kept on his Sunday clothes sometimes till the middle of the week, that by the force of association he might carry the atmosphere of the day with him into the affairs of business.

Beyond the religious work and the public service, Sunday should be a day at home. This is a good feature in the best Sunday habits we have known. The preacher should have no visitors on Saturday, his Saturday nights should never be intruded on, and his Sundays should not be molested. No Christian home should be regarded as open for receptions on the Sabbath, beyond the most intimate friendships and the briefest interchange of passing courtesies. The day is needed for retirement, for meditation, reading and prayer, and for religious intercourse, cheerful associations and godly instruction in the family. It is important that right usages and rules should be established in every household, and that religious people should respect and observe them.

Letter from Tennessee.

NEAR FRANKLIN, TENN., Sept. 2, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: The Tennessee Conference will be in session in five weeks from to-day. There are three candidates for admission whose families reside near my charge—one of them a son of my presiding elder. It is remarkable how many sons of our best ministers of the Tennessee Conference enter the itinerancy. Two or three are expected to apply for admission next month. Of course we will have more preachers than charges for the Bishop and cabinet to provide for; and we expect to hear Bishop Marvin urge the importance of some of them transferring West or South. What will be the measure of his success you may ascertain from our list of appointments in the Nashville Advocate of about October 17. So many transfers ask annually to be retransferred that some who think seriously of responding to the many calls South and West are thereby discouraged. I was struck forcibly by a recent letter from the presiding elder of a district beyond the Father of Waters, writing in terms highly complimentary of his preachers, who gave great satisfaction to their people as pastors, who would part with them with deep regret; but three out of his district proposed retransferring to their former Conferences, on this side of the Mississippi, at the approaching session of their Conference. Such things are greatly in the way of those inclined to transfer from our crowded Conferences. The expense of travel to and fro, and the loss of a place among their co-laborers, are also items in the bill to be considered.

How much we will miss Drs. A. L. P. Green, Thomas Maddin and Rev. F. E. Pitts at Conference! We saw the venerable trio of our gifted senior members during the session of our General Conference in Louisville, in May. The two first to pass away were then in apparently good health. How strangely sad and solemn that three such men should be buried from one church in two months! At our last session we requested Dr. Green and Bro. Pitts each to preach us a semi-centennial discourse at our next Conference session. But we will be disappointed in our anticipated jubilee feast from those grandly gifted preachers of the gospel; and in lieu thereof we will attend the funeral services of our three departed fathers. Six years ago Dr. Maddin preached us his semi-centennial sermon—the only discourse of that character we have had for twenty years or more. Dr. McFerrin is now our senior member, and he will be absent attending the Pacific Conference in California. Surely it will be different from all of our Conference sessions hitherto held.

This is our camp meeting season here, but owing to the severe drouth of the past summer it was thought wholly inexpedient to hold camp meetings at either Windrow's or Pope's—the only two places convenient for me to attend. I regret the deprivation. I esteem it a great privilege to participate in these annual feasts of tabernacles. As yet I have only heard from one camp meeting in our Conference, and there the brethren were blessed with a gracious refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

Very few revivals are yet reported from the charges of our Conference; yet I hope there are many of which we have not heard. Are not too many of our ministers rather reticent in refusing to publish what God is working in their charges for the salvation of souls? Who that loves the Master, and those for whom he died, does not love to read of the Lord reviving his work, and with his own arm bringing salvation? How much are we stimulated and encouraged to pray, work and hope for showers of blessing upon our own fields of toil when we hear that God is visiting and blessing his people in other parts of his great vineyard! Let us, then, publish the tidings of great joy for the benefit of others, and to give expression of our gratitude to God, to whom we ascribe all the praise and glory. During the past three weeks my own charge was greatly blessed with a precious season of awakening grace. The blessed baptism of the Holy Ghost upon the church resulted in an ingathering of souls. Twenty-three persons made a hopeful profession of faith. Twenty-two joined our church. The prayer meetings at Trinity now are nearly as largely attended as the preaching of the word on Sunday mornings.

Our old citizens testify that they never knew so severe a drouth in this portion of Tennessee as we have had the past summer. Corn, cotton, oats, tobacco, potatoes and hay are cut very short. From a fourth to a half a crop will be made, I presume. Vegetables are very scarce and small. Fruit is inferior in quality and quantity. Times hard, money scarce, but the health of the people good.

S. M. CHERRY.

Presbyterian Missions in Brazil.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: In your column of Religious Intelligence occurs, this week, a statement in regard to Protestant missions in Brazil which is not strictly correct. "The Presbyterian Board has the field to itself"—I quote from memory, my copy of your paper having been mislaid. The reference seems to be entirely to the Northern Presbyterian Church, which is doing a noble work in that Roman Catholic empire. Our Southern Presbyterian Church, I am happy to say, has for some time past been at work in the same important field, and has established two missions—one at Pernambuco, in the northeastern part of the empire, and the other at Campinas, in the southern portion. At the first Rev. J. Rockwell Smith and Rev. John Boyle and wife have been at work about a year. The other is an older mission, and is successfully conducted by Rev. Messrs. Morton and Lane and their wives, and Rev. Mr. LeConte, and Misses Henderson and Kirk. At Campinas our missionaries have established, in their own buildings, a school of a high grade, or rather a college, which has just closed its sessions with one hundred and forty students, and with the inability to meet the demand made upon them through the anxiety of the Brazilians to secure a good education for their sons.

Yours truly,

R. Q. MALLARD.

(NOTE BY THE EDITOR.—We are very glad to receive the above note of correction from our esteemed Bro. Mallard. Mistakes will happen. The item referred to was taken from the current news, but we do not remember the source.)

TIME never sits heavily upon us but when it is badly employed.

Living by the Day.

The present evil is all that God intends us to bear. He promises strength according to our day; he teaches us to ask day by day for our daily bread; when we would pry into the future to know what it has in store of evil for us; he says: "What is that to thee? Follow thou me." He points us to the fowls of the air, fed daily by his hand, to convince us that much more will he feed us. The whole teaching of Scripture forbids gloomy forebodings, and commands us to hope in God. Duties are ours; events are God's. Why should we seek to be independent of God by laying up grace for more than the duty and the sufferings which are now before us? That which we fear may never come, or, if it come, we shall have grace for it as our day requires. Forethought is the work of reason and the gift of God; but fear for the future is the fruit of a diseased imagination and the work of the devil. We may and must exercise forethought so far as to sow the seed and diligently to use the means to gain the harvest, but when we distress ourselves through all the period of its growth with fears of its failure and of consequent famine, that is to bring the trouble of the future, real or apprehended, and to lay it upon the present hour, and that is forbidden by our Lord.

And the evil of the day is enough for us to bear. Each day brings its trials. We have, or ought to have, enough of trial in our daily vocations to make us weary in body and mind at night. We have our disappointment in business, our conflicts with bad men, our family cares, our struggles with our own appetites and passions, our bodily pains, our sense of sinfulness, our contest with the adversary, and many other ills, ordinary and extraordinary, coming upon us every day. And are not these enough to bear? The evils of life are like so many sacks filled for the shoulders of the laborers. He can take one at a time and carry it comfortably to its place, and he has time given him to carry all. What folly, then, it would be for him to load himself under its weight. Day by day let us accomplish, as a hireling, our appointed task.

It is this adding of the future evil, and the past to the present, that breaks men down and leads to despair, madness and suicide. It is not what a man has to endure at the present moment that crushes him—that he could bear. But in some dark hour of trial his thoughts fly rapidly over the past and seize only on his troubles; it seems to him as if he had nothing else; it is dreadful to think of living as he has done, with storm after storm buffeting him, or he looks forward and sees no way of extricating himself from his difficulties; he has brought trouble and shame on his family, he is forsaken by friends, he cannot bear to think of going forth again to renew the conflict, and to meet the scoffs and reproaches of men; darkness gathers thicker and thicker around him, dismal thoughts chase each other through his mind; it is satan's hour, and the power of darkness is upon him, tempting him to all manner of thoughts, hard, uncharitable and depressing feelings, shutting out the light of heaven and curtaining him with the shades of hell, until at last the wretched man gives way under the pressure, and, reckless and maddened, rushes on to ruin, perhaps to self-destruction. The very same scene would appear far otherwise to him a day or an hour later. He has had just as great trials before, or the same have been upon him for weeks, and he has never thought of yielding to them; but just now he is in the very temper to gather all that is evil in the past, the present and the future, and try his strength upon all in one fearful load. Is it any wonder that he breaks down? If he could stave off his thoughts for one day, one hour, he might be bright and hopeful again.

But it may be said the philosophy of all this is very good, but the difficulty is to act upon it. We reason and strive against our fears, and think we will take up only the present duty and cross, and leave all the rest to God, but we are borne down by the tempest. What shall we do?

A good, healthful state of the body is a great help in practicing upon the philosophy here taught. Elijah, faint and exhausted, begged that he might die; but Elijah, fed and refreshed, rose, and went in strength through a forty days' journey. Satan is a cowardly assailant, who loves to take us at a disadvantage, as he assailed our Lord when he was a-hungered. When the body is shattered he will shake the soul with pains. We should ask, therefore, when sad or depressed: It is because I have been more wicked than usual, or have more real trouble, or is it only because I am weak in health, and so more sensitive? To be depressed because we are feeble and so fearful would be about as sensible as to be depressed because we were hungry when food was before us. Use the remedy, and the evil will be more tolerable. Paul, after three days of gloom, received meat and was strengthened.

But the grace of God is our great help in practicing upon these precepts. Sufficient to the day is the evil, and sufficient to the evil is the grace offered. These dark hours are sent to try us as the weights are put on to test the strength of steel. We love the spirit which, like a good Damascus blade, can be bent double without breaking, and spring, elastic, back from the trial; and God loves it too, and will employ such as possess it in the battles of his kingdom. "But if thou faint in the day of adversity thy strength is small." We may be sure that God will never lay upon us more than we can bear. We may cry out in agony of fear, but just as we are sinking, the outstretched hand of Jesus will lay hold of us, as it did of Peter, and we shall walk in safety over the troubled waves of life. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will, with the temptation, also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it." In the assurance of this let us go on. The past is forgiven; the future God is ordering for our good, and for the present evil his grace is sufficient. There may be some dreadful calamity awaiting us to-morrow or next month. It may be temporal distress, it may be sickness, it may be death, or something worse than death. But when it comes we may say: The Savior's grace will be sufficient for me—I must live by the day. What is now before me or upon me? Is it work, is it suffering? Can I do it or bear it? Will God help me now, so that I can get through this day or this hour with my load? Then that is all I have to care for. All else it is my privilege to resign, after taking reasonable forethought and precaution, without disquietude, into the hands of God.—Rev. W. H. Lewis, D. D., in Churchman.

Rev. Whitfield Harrington.

MR. EDITOR: This has been a disastrous year to the church of God in all parts of the world, and in all its branches, in the death of many of her distinguished ministers. This is certainly true of our beloved Methodism. Many great lights have been extinguished. Many princes have fallen. Many beautiful characters, shedding the sweet light of holiness upon the surrounding moral darkness, and upon the observation of thoughtful men, have disappeared from the walks of this life. Many a strong mind and warm heart, blended in fervent devotion, and wrought up to passionate ardor in the pursuit of souls for whom Christ died, has been stricken down, and the world is poorer in the loss of these treasures, and the church feels sadly the plucking these jewels from her brow. But the goodness and wisdom of God are manifest in the fact that, though the workmen fail, the glorious work goes on.

The church in Mississippi is mourning the loss of one of her distinguished sons and eloquent preachers in the death of our beloved brother, Whitfield Harrington, who died of pneumonia, on the twelfth of May last, at his home in Madison county, Mississippi. Bro. Harrington was born in Amite county, Mississippi, on the third of December, 1829. His parents—Hezekiah and Martha Harrington—were pious Methodists, and brought up Whitfield in the fear of the Lord. In his nineteenth year he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the following year was happily converted. About this time his parents sent him to Oxford, Georgia, where he enjoyed the benefits of college life in the cultivation of his mind. Here he became acquainted with Isabella Morrisson, whom he married, and who survives him in widowed desolation.

Bro. Harrington was licensed to preach in October, 1854, and the same year (in November) was admitted into the Mississippi Conference on trial. He was appointed at that Conference to the Attala circuit for the year 1855, and returned in 1856. For the years 1857 and 1858 he was appointed to Greenville, Washington county, Mississippi. In 1859 and 1860 he was stationed in Jackson, Mississippi; was afterward appointed to the Vicksburg station, and remained at that place until it fell into the hands of the Federal army. After this, on account of failure in health, he located for a year or two. He was then readmitted into the Conference, and was appointed to Camden circuit, near his home. After this his health was too much impaired to receive regular work from the Conference, and at our last Conference asked for a location.

Bro. Harrington was not only very popular and useful as a preacher, pastor and man, in all his appointments, but very highly esteemed and very much beloved in all these respects.

He was an earnest, eloquent and successful preacher of the gospel. The writer once heard an intelligent physician—though skeptical—say, after hearing him preach to his regular congregation, that "he had rather listen to Mr. Harrington's preaching than to eat the most sumptuous dinner when hungry."

Bro. Harrington was a friend after the truest and most honorable type. He carried all his friends in his heart, and warmed up affectionately over them at the mention of their names. It pained him much if any word or act of his offended or wounded any one, and he would not rest until the amende honorable was fully made.

The writer remembers hearing, on one occasion, a word fall from his lips, as he left the church, which painfully wounded a brother preacher to whom he addressed himself. Their homes were only a few paces off, and they had reached them only a few minutes when the wounded preacher received a note, asking most earnestly his pardon; but before he had time to answer, Bro. Harrington was at his gate in distress, asking his pardon; and, when heartily granted, he took the preacher by the hand and said: "Now go over to the church and pray for me." They went and prayed, and God sanctified their friendship for life.

Bro. Harrington was a warm-hearted Christian gentleman in all his intercourse with men, and to know him was to love him.

But, alas! his noble form, his shining face, his warm heart and brilliant mind have received the fatal shock which hurried him away from us in the noon of life, and the splendor of intellectual and Christian manhood. While on his dying bed he was asked by Bro. Ward if he knew that it was possible that he might not recover. He answered: "Oh, yes, from the beginning." And again: "Is the gospel which you have preached to others precious to you now?" He answered: "Oh, yes, it is." But under the pressure of opiates, and a dreadful and fatal malady, his mind and speech failed, and notwithstanding the earnest and energetic efforts of medical skill and tender love, the disease could not be arrested, nor the prey wrested from its fatal grasp. Our dear brother has gone from us. We mourn for him as one very near to us. We have been with him in sickness and health, amidst gloom and sunshine, amidst friends and foes. We have fought many hard gospel battles, and made many successful charges upon the great enemies of God and man—sin and the devil and his hosts—side by side, and we have not met a braver soldier of the cross, nor a truer friend of Christ and of man, in all the hosts of Israel's army.

May God bless the widow and children of Bro. Harrington in their desolation, and be to them a husband and father. He is gone from us, but we expect to go up to his glorious home among the redeemed and good, and see him "on that beautiful and immortal shore in the sweet by and by."

WILLIAM B. HINES.

Disturbance and Change.

The past few days in New Orleans have been marked by conflict and bloodshed. A public meeting of the citizens opposed to the Kellogg government assembled on Canal street on Monday, the fourteenth instant. Resolutions were passed, and a committee sent to Mr. Kellogg, demanding his immediate resignation. He refused to accede to the demand, and a collision soon ensued between the people and the Metropolitan brigade. In a few hours the Metropolitans were scattered, and the city was for the most part in possession of the people. The McEnery government, Lieutenant Governor Penn acting, at once assumed the reins, proclamations were issued, the militia called out and organized, and the important points in the city were occupied and strongly guarded.

The losses in killed and wounded by the Metropolitans, on Monday, were about thirty, those of the people about twenty-five. As we write (on Tuesday morning) the streets at certain points, and embracing certain lines, are barricaded and manned by the McEnery militia. The Statehouse is yet in the hands of the Kellogg party, and many of the leaders of the latter are said to have sought refuge, along with some of the Metropolitans, in the Customhouse. Thus far the United States soldiers have not interfered, and no negroes have been killed. The colored population have maintained perfect order, and the city at large has an aspect of quiet and peace.

It is apparently not only a contest for the State government between the McEnery and the Kellogg parties, but an uprising of the people against intolerable oppression. The Metropolitans are reported to have inaugurated the war, and to have shed the first blood by opening fire on the people. It will take time to bring out the facts. We have deprecated any resort to armed violence, and have urged on our people the duty of standing only on the defensive in the protection of their lives, families and property. It is doubtful whether anything will be gained in the end by other than peaceable means, and the precious lives already sacrificed may have been offered to little purpose.

Without passing upon the expediency of the movements of the last two or three days, there is occasion for the utmost calmness and moderation. The justly excited indignation of the people, so grievously wronged and outraged, should be restrained, and all excesses of the rash and thoughtless should be firmly repressed. We admit fully and recognize clearly the occasion of this violent demonstration against usurpation and tyranny, but we stand in doubt of the final result. Meanwhile we trust that prudent and wise counsels may prevail, and that nothing shall be done which shall not command the respect and approval of all judicious and right-minded men. The people of New Orleans and of Louisiana cannot afford to forfeit the moral support and sympathy of the just and good throughout the nation and the world.

Thus far no gratuitous acts of cruelty have been recorded in the late uprising, and, as affairs seem to be quiet, we believe that bloodshed is at an end. The men at the head of the movement have kept themselves and their followers well in hand, and the people deserve credit for their general quiet and orderly demeanor.

Since we began this article we learn that the Statehouse has been surrendered, and that General Longstreet and the entire Metropolitan force have given up their arms and retired from the conflict. Kellogg is said to have taken refuge in the Customhouse, and the situation seems to be in possession of the McEnery government. A few days will develop the policy of the government at Washington, and the final results will appear after awhile.

A HAPPY HOME.—"Six things," says Hamilton, "are requisite to create a 'home.' Integrity must be the architect and tidiness the upholsterer. It must be warmed by affection and lighted with cheerfulness, and industry must be the ventilator, renewing the atmosphere and bringing in fresh salubrity day by day, while over all, as a protecting glory and canopy, nothing will suffice except the blessing of God."

A New Article of Merchandise.

The devotional observances of Roman Catholics take on some very odd forms, and sometimes reach to the grotesque. Indeed the more absurd the practice that may be suggested or recommended to the crude fancies of the credulous devotees of the Romish Church, the more fondly they embrace them. The Romish priests and leaders thoroughly understand this characteristic of their ignorant followers, and minister to it occasionally with comical ingenuity. For instance, an enterprising Romanist was recently inspired by a desire to invent something whereby he might "turn an honest penny," and forthwith, "with happy ingenuity" (as the Tablet says,) he invented "a finely worked and elegantly designed holy water bottle." Moreover, the "ingenious" inventor gravely informs us that "the bottle is made of glass," that its "stopper is surmounted with a cross and the front is marked with the painted figure of the blessed Virgin," and that it "will be a useful receptacle as well as a pious image in the rooms and homes of every Catholic." "Pious image" is good. But the eloquence of the Tablet, under the inspiration of the bottle, is better. "Both rich and poor," it says, "must recognize, when the idea is presented to them, the necessity, the propriety and the importance of having in their homes a marked and unmistakable receptacle for holy water. Bottles of various kinds have hitherto been used, and mistakes of a grave nature been made. Other fluids have been supposed to represent holy water, because of the vessels in which they have been contained. (There is something very naif in this admission about 'bottles of various kinds' leading to 'gross mistakes,' and the use of 'other fluids.') There are holy water fonts of many kinds, but the water evaporates by exposure to the air. As there are special vessels for nearly all other holy things in the Catholic Church, so there should be one for holy water, wherein it might be safely and permanently retained." And then, descending from this lofty vein, we are informed that "half pints are fifty cents each" and "pints seventy-five cents." Alas! "mummy has become merchandise." Christian Intelligencer.

THE following note tells the sad news of the bereavement of our esteemed Bro. Crawford, of the Alabama Conference. The sorrowing family have our sympathy and prayers.

DEMOPOLIS, September 7, 1874.

Mr. Editor: It devolves upon me to give you the intelligence of the death of Minnie, the only daughter and the eldest child of Rev. R. B. Crawford, the pastor in charge of this station. Little Minnie, aged only eight years, suffered only three days with a violent fever, when she died on Saturday night, the fifth instant.

She was greatly beloved wherever known. The great sympathy felt and expressed by the large concourse of people at the funeral was not confined to the members of Bro. Crawford's church, but was shared in by all those of other denominations, and by all classes in Demopolis. We placed little Minnie sweetly to rest in her quiet grave, on the banks of the Tombigbee, with the same consolation that another Sabbath-school scholar had gone to join the shining band in blood-washed robes above.

A. D. McVOY.

THE camp meeting at Marvin camp ground, near St. Louis, closed on Sunday night, August 30. "Reporter," writing to the St. Louis Christian Advocate, speaks of it as follows:

During the entire meeting there were something near twenty conversions. The result, all told, was not what had been desired, but in the main good. The committee are better pleased than the ministry. They are undivided in heart and effort, and feel that their labors are now crowned with the permanent establishment of their cherished institution. So it is, and so may it ever be. Marvin camp ground has become a sacred center, around which cluster and grow the most endearing memories. With mingled thousands of every name, from Rome to Methodism, from city and country, the sweetest harmony and order prevailed.

IN THE proceedings of the British Conference for August 6, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, reprinted in the Methodist Recorder, August 11, after reprinting the communication from the Conference of Eastern British America, we find the following:

"The secretary of the Conference also read a communication which he had received from the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

"Both addresses were received, and the Conference letter-writers were directed to send official replies."

Perhaps the address of our General Conference to the British Conference—which must be what is meant—will be published in a future issue of the Recorder. We have published the address of the British Conference to our General Conference, and would like for the Methodists in England to know what we have to say to them, through their Conference.

THE DEATH OF BISHOP MORRIS.—Rev. Thomas Ashbury Morris, D. D., senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died at his residence in Springfield, Ohio, on Wednesday, September 2, in the eighty-first year of his age. It is generally known that this venerable minister for several years has not been able for service. The General Conferences of 1864 and 1868 released him from episcopal duties, and at the last General Conference he was placed on the non-effective list. Twice he has been prostrated by attacks of apoplexy, and his death was not unexpected, although for some time past he has enjoyed good health for one of his age.

Twinkling of the Stars.

The subject of the twinkling of stars has engaged a good deal of attention of late years, and some interesting results have been obtained. A few years ago the Italian astronomer Respighi announced the discovery of the cause of scintillation in certain dark bands which were seeking to traverse the spectrum of a star, indicating changes in the refrangibility of our atmosphere, from hot and cold strata, which produce something of the effect of a passing mirage. A layer of hot air would bend the rays less than the colder and denser air around; and thus the star's light would not reach the observer—rays which traversed the hot stratum passing over his head, and those which traversed the cold air below being bent so as to fall beneath his feet. As the rays of different colors are differently bent in their passage through the air (the red rays being the least refracted,) different parts of a star's spectrum would be thus cut off in succession, as the relative temperatures of the layers of the air varied. Arago's not very lucid explanation of the phenomena, as a result of the interference of light, is in this way completely disposed of.

M. Montigny, of Brussels, has been investigating the amount of scintillation in different stars by the help of an ingenious contrivance, to which he gives the name of scintillometer. His plan is to make use of the persistence of impressions on the retina by causing a thick plate of glass, mounted obliquely on an axis parallel to that of the telescope used, and fixed just in front of the eye-piece, to rotate rapidly. The effect of this is to displace the star's image, so that, owing to the varied inclination of the glass plate, the star appears to move in a circle, which, if the rotation is rapid enough (three or four times in a second,) forms a continuous circle of light, just as in the case of a burning stick whirled rapidly. The changes in the color of a star will be seen on this circle, the successive points of which give the appearance of the object at successive small fractions of a second; and in this way, by counting the alternations of color in the circumference of this circle of light, M. Montigny has succeeded in observing nearly two hundred alternations of color in a second of time.

The point sought to be established was the connection between these changes and the constitution of the stellar light; for it is easy to see that rays which are deficient cannot be acted on by undulations of the atmosphere, and that there will be therefore fewer changes of color the more dark bands there are in a star's spectrum. Now Seahi has divided the stars of which he has examined the spectra into four types, and M. Montigny has observed the scintillations of stars belonging to three of these types, namely: bluish-white stars, exhibiting four black lines in their spectrum; yellow stars, like our sun, showing numerous fine dark lines; and orange stars, which have a spectrum somewhat resembling a colounade. As far as the results obtained by M. Montigny go, it seems that the greatest amount of twinkling is to be found in the first type (white stars,) and that the mere brightness of the star has no influence on the phenomena. But the principle of combining observations of different nights without any further correction, on which M. Montigny has acted, is highly objectionable, and destroys our confidence in his conclusions. The proper way of treating such measures is to arrange the stars in sequence representing the order of scintillation, just as Sir John Herschel formed sequences of brightness as a basis for his standard magnitudes of stars.—The Academy.

Mr. Beecher's Fast Horses.

A correspondent of the New York Sun, writing from Peekskill, New York, says that Rex and Duke, Mr. Beecher's fleetest span of bays, easily make their 2.37 when the dominie himself holds the ribbons. Village rumor asserts that over $10,000 were paid by Mr. Beecher for that pair of horses. The other span, a pair of light-bodied, clean-limbed, long-tailed, bright bays, cost $5,000. They are seen on the road almost every day.

Imagine the Apostle Paul or Peter "holding the ribbons" of a 2.37 team on the Appian way. We rather think they traveled the footpaths on either side. Going on foot was a mode of traveling not unknown to St. Paul. He did say something of races, however, in one of his epistles: "So run that you may obtain." Perhaps Mr. Beecher thinks that injunction intended for clerical jockeys on a race track!

Well, fast horses and a fast preacher would seem to suit each other. But how anybody can claim the downfall of that manner of man as a disgrace to Christianity is difficult to understand. Most of the New York papers, which would revel in any damage to the reputation of a true minister of the gospel, naturally take Beecher's part, for the reason that they recognize him as one of themselves. Indeed there have been rumors that if he should leave Plymouth church he would become editor of a Republican paper in New York, and propagate "moral ideas" through that medium—quite a suitable one—instead of the pulpit.—Baltimore Episcopal Methodist.

CURED BY AN APE.—A gentleman was suffering from an ulceration of the throat, which at length became so swollen that his life was despaired of. His household came to the bedside to bid him farewell. Each individual shook hands with the dying man, and then went away weeping. Last of all came a pet ape, and, shaking the man's hand, went away also with its hand over its eyes. It was so ludicrous a sight that the patient was forced to laugh, and laughed so heartily that the abscess broke, and his life was saved.—The Sanitarian.

SHALL I grudge to spend my life for him who did not grudge to shed his life-blood for me?—Beveridge.

THREE MODES OF LIVING.—Here are sensible words from Froude, the popular historian:

"There are but three ways of living—by working, by begging or by stealing. Those who do not work, disguise it in whatever pretty language we please, are doing one of the other two. The Ten Commandments and a handcraft make a good and wholesome equipment to commence life with. A man must learn to stand upright upon his own feet, to respect himself, to be independent of charity or accident. It is on this basis only that any superstructure of intellectual cultivation worth having can possibly be built. It hurts no intellect to be able to make a boat or a house, or a pair of shoes, or a suit of clothes, or hammer a horse-shoe; and if one can do either of these he has nothing to fear from fortune. Spinoza, the most powerful intellectual worker that Europe had produced for the last two centuries, waiving aside the pensions and legacies that were thrust upon him, chose to maintain himself by grinding object-glasses for microscopes and telescopes."

WHEN a man finds at last that there is something beyond this to live for, the moment that conception gets into his mind life is transfigured and glorified into the nobler sphere of action. It becomes always glorious and fresh. Some men will tell you that life is tasteless, wearisome and exhausting; in every case they are men who have tried to live in a narrow, selfish manner. Life is transfigured to every true, loving, brave and diligent soul. Each man, faithful in his sphere, transfigures it, and makes grand the humblest position. We may say that the act of transfiguration takes place when a man realizes his own soul and its worth and work. Do we all realize that in us is an element which will outlast the stars?—Dr. Chapin.

MARRIED.

ELMORE—ELMORE.—At the residence of the bride's father, in Holmes county, Mississippi, September 10, 1874, by Rev. W. P. Barton, Mr. P. M. Elmore, of Kentucky, and Mrs. M. S. Elmore, of Mississippi.

ELLETT—NOEL.—By the Rev. R. H. Adair, on the evening of August 20, 1874, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mr. W. A. Ellett, of Jonesville, Texas, to Miss Sudie Noel, of Caddo parish, Louisiana.

Conference Register.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Denver	Denver city	Aug. 27	Pierce.
Illinois	Murphysboro	Sept. 2	Wightman.
Western	Wyandotte	Sept. 9	Keener.
Columbia	Salem	Sept. 10	Pierce.
W. Virginia	Philippi	Sept. 16	Doggett.
Kentucky	Mt. Sterling	Sept. 16	Wightman.
Missouri	St. Joseph	Sept. 16	Keener.
S. W. Missouri	Lexington	Sept. 30	Keener.
Louisville	Princeton	Sept. 30	Wightman.
Tennessee	Gallatin	Oct. 7	Marvin.
Pacific	Stockton	Oct. 7	Pierce.
Holston	Asheville	Oct. 14	Doggett.
St. Louis	Caledonia	Oct. 14	Keener.
Indian Miss'n	North Fork	Oct. 22	McTyeire.
Arkansas	Fort Smith	Oct. 28	Kavanaugh.
Los Angeles	Carpentoria	Oct. 28	Pierce.
N. Alabama	Huntsville	Nov. 4	Doggett.
North Texas	Denton	Nov. 4	McTyeire.
White River	Searcy	Nov. 11	Kavanaugh.
Virginia	Elizabeth City	Nov. 18	Marvin.
N. W. Texas	Weatherford	Nov. 18	McTyeire.
Memphis	Humboldt	Nov. 18	Paine.
N. Mississippi	Aberdeen	Nov. 25	Doggett.
Little Rock	Monticello	Nov. 25	Kavanaugh.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 2	Marvin.
West Texas	Gonzales	Dec. 2	McTyeire.
N. Georgia	Cartersville	Dec. 2	Wightman.
Alabama	Opelika	Dec. 9	Doggett.
East Texas	Marshall	Dec. 9	McTyeire.
South Georgia	Savannah	Dec. 9	Pierce.
Florida	Live Oak	Dec. 16	Wightman.
S. Carolina	Greenville	Dec. 16	Marvin.
Mississippi	Hazlehurst	Dec. 16	Paine.
Texas*	Houston	Dec. 16	Keener.
Louisiana	Alexandria	Jan. 6	Paine.
Baltimore	Washington City	Mar. 3	Marvin.

*German Mission Conference organized at same time and place. Bishop Keener has charge of the mission in Mexico.

Publisher's Department.

Acknowledgments of Letters and Funds

RECEIVED BY MAIL,

For the Week Ending Sept. 12, 1874.

A—American News Company two letters, Thos. Armstrong, J. S. Abernathy, A. F. Andre two letters $18.47, J. Arthurs, Murphy & Co., Edwin Alden $4.50, N. W. Ayer & Son $8.10, T. A. S. Adams $38.67, E. A. Acruman $100.

B—J. W. Burke & Co., S. B. Bernard $12, Eugene H. Bee two letters, Thomas A. Brown $3.40, E. Bourgeois $1, L. Barnhart, Barnes & Wilkinson, J. M. Boone, Biglow & Main, C. H. Briggs two letters, H. Clay Bard $2, A. M. Barrington, J. H. Butler & Co., J. Bride & Co., Booram & Pease.

C—S. C. Collins, J. F. Christian $1.10, S. H. Cox (for DuBose) $21, J. S. Clower, J. B. Cottrell, Baxter Clegg.

D—Donaldson & Co. two letters $25, Arthur Daniels, Charles H. Ditson & Co. two letters, B. D. Dashiell, R. B. Davell & Sons, W. B. Dennis, Dustin, Gilman & Co.

E—Eldridge & Bro., W. J. Elder, L. Ercanbrack, Eastland & Co., J. W. Ellison $4.10.

F—C. T. French, E. N. Freshman four letters $9.90, J. P. Ford & Co. $14, George W. Fairman, Firey & Marks $6.50, E. A. Flowers.

G—W. H. Gummersell & Co., George W. Graves $8.50, Mrs. M. B. Givin, W. A. Gill, Ed. P. Goodwyn $2, Henry Goldsmith, W. Griffin & Co.

H—C. A. C. Herlong, Bythell Haynes, Z. D. Hargis $2, A. M. Hill, Hearth and Home, F. Howarth, J. T. Harris, W. C. Halslip, W. C. Hamilton, Harris & Cage.

I—Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co.

J—J. Sambola Jones $1.50, R. & S. Jordan, T. E. Jackson, W. Jones.

K—Mrs. M. A. Keener, M. W. Kemp.

L—Lee, Shepard & Dillingham two letters, A. P. Langston, R. B. Long, A. C. Littlejoha three letters, R. P. Littlejohn, D. A. Little 75 cents, J. S. Lacey, Charles M. Liddle $5, S. C. Littlepage.

M—E. H. Mounger $12, H. H. Montgomery, Albert Mason, James W. McLaurin, John G. Mitchell, Money order $1.50, C. K. Marshall, R. T. Miller, D. Merchant, J. E. Mason, W. M. McKie, John Magee, John P. Morton & Co., Mrs. R. F. Moore $1.50, A. D. McVoy.

N—R. D. Norsworthy, George W. Niles.

O—W. P. Owen.

P—Powers Paper Company, Thomas Price, J. B. Price, J. I. Puckett, Pierce & Terry, G. J. Penn two letters, Porter & Coates, A. M. Purdy, M. S. Park, S. M. Pettengill & Co.

R—H. M. Ragan, George Routledge & Sons, Reed & Lathrop three letters, W. S. Robinson, J. M. Reuss, Robinson & Co., A. B. F. Randolph & Co., E. E. F. Ross, Thomas Richardson, J. K. Randall $31.26, A. H. Redford agent.

S—W. R. Stewart, C. S. Stewart three letters $23.66, A. H. Sutherland, Mrs. Sarah A. Sibley, Seay & Seay two letters, Scales & Bullock, J. W. Schermerhorn, George W. Smith & Co., James E. Sisler.

T—F. M. Taylor $250, F. H. G. Taylor, A. J. Thompson $1.25, Mrs. M. D. Tate $1, J. T. Taylor, A. R. Taylor.

V—George Vresinsky.

W—A. D. Worthington & Co. $12.50, W. G. Wilkinson, William Wood & Co., Woods & Daniels $46.31, Woolworth, Ainsworth & Co., Thos. Ward White, J. L. Williams $2.75, Willey Wallach, Wilson, Hinkle & Co.

A. C. LITTLEJOHN, ESQ., is our sole agent for the State of Texas. We commend him to the courtesies of our friends having advertisements for insertion or other business to transact with the ADVOCATE.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now making a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

CARRIAGE MANUFACTURERS.—The attention of our readers who may be dealing in carriages of the various styles and qualities, as well as all who may buy at the manufactories for their own use, is directed to the advertisement of Messrs. Durham & Wooster, of New Haven, Connecticut, to be found in our advertising columns to-day.

LIGHT FAMILY CARRIAGES.—The manufactory of Mr. Charles Blackman, of New Haven, Connecticut, is turning out a great variety of light family carriages, phaetons and buggies. Those interested in the trade or use of carriages are directed to his advertisement in another column for further information.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE LIVER is more frequently the seat of disease than is generally supposed. Its upon its regular action depends, in a great measure, the powers of the stomach, bowels, brain, and the whole nervous system. Regulate that important organ by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator, and you prevent most of the diseases that flesh is heir to. se17 1t

BECKWITH PORTABLE SEWING MACHINE.—A Hand and Treadle Machine Combined.—The cost is small compared with other standard machines, and it is much simpler and easier to operate, while its work is unsurpassed for beauty and strength. The price is $20 without the treadle; $25 with the treadle. Don't fail to send for a circular before buying any other machine. Mr. EDWARD THOMPSON, 91 Baronne street, is the agent for the Southwest. se10 1m

OBSERVATIONS ON NASAL CATARRH.—An abstract from a forthcoming work on diseases of the throat and air passages, by A. N. WILLIAMSON, M. D., late Clinical Physician in the University Medical College, New York city. Mailed to any address for 10 cents. Address the author, 23 East Twentieth street, New York.

"DR. WILLIAMSON'S great success in the treatment of Catarrhal and throat and lung affections renders valuable whatever comes from his pen."—Journal of Medical Science. au20 3m

BUILDING PAPER is a most excellent substitute for plastering, at half the cost. The Ornamental serves the purpose of plastering and wall paper combined, and makes a neat and durable finish. You can get samples and circulars by inclosing letter stamp to the agent, MR. EDWARD THOMPSON, 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. au27 4t

$57.60—AGENTS' PROFITS PER WEEK.—Will prove it or forfeit $500. New article just patented. Samples sent free to all. Address W. H. CHINEMAN, 267 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

BUY WERLEIN'S PIANOS, such as the Chickering, Dunham, Hale, Pleyel, etc., which are the best in the market. Sold at low prices and on easy terms, if desired. New Pianos at $450, $475, $490, $550 and $600, at $20 per month. Second-hand Pianos at $40, $50, $75, $100, $125, $150, $175, $200, $225 and $250, some at $10 per month; fully warranted, with renewed actions. Estey's, Needham's and Woods' Organs at low rates. Have sold Blackmar's large stock of Sheet Music. Band Instruments and Strings in great variety. Band Instruments, etc., repaired. PHILIP WERLEIN'S Mammoth Music House, Nos. 78, 80, 82 and 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. de27 1y

PIERSON & HEWS, fine Clothing, Shirts and Furnishing Goods, 13 and 15 Camp street, opposite City Hotel, New Orleans, Louisiana. We invite visitors from the interior to examine our stock and prices. We claim to sell first-class goods as low as can be afforded and live. We sell the celebrated Shoulder-seam Shirts, warranted to fit, wear and give satisfaction. Liberal deduction made to Clergymen, and their trade solicited. mh15 1y

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CHARLES BLACKMAN,

MANUFACTURER OF ALL STYLES OF

LIGHT FAMILY CARRIAGES,

BUGGIES, AND PHAETONS.

(THE BLACKMAN ROADCART.)

Nos. 111, 116 and 118 Park Street,

se17 3m NEW HAVEN, CONN.

GET THE BEST.

10,000 WORDS AND MEANINGS NOT IN OTHER DICTIONARIES.

3,000 Engravings. 1,840 Pages Quarto. Price, $12.

"THE BEST PRACTICAL ENGLISH DICTIONARY EXTANT."—London Quarterly Review, Oct., 1873.

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield, Mass. Sold by all Booksellers. se17 1t

RELIGIOUS —AND— STANDARD WORKS.

Josephus' Works, 4 vols., cloth, Library Edition	$3 00
Popular Edition of the above, 2 vols., cloth	4 50
The same, 2 vols., sheep	5 00
MacDuff's Words and Mind of Jesus and Faithful Promiser, 3 vols. in one, 32 mo. cloth, red edges	50
Wilkinson's Dance of Modern Society, 1 vol., 16 mo, cloth	50

"This work is admirably written, with great cogency and elegance. It costs but a trifle, and will be found of great price."—Zion's Herald.

Macaulay's Complete Works, Riverside Edition, 16 vols., cloth	$32 00
The same, Students' Edition, 8 vols., cloth	16 00

ALBERT MASON, Publisher, se17 1t New York.

CENTENARY FEMALE COLLEGE, SUMMERFIELD, ALA.

This institution will open on the THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER, 1874, with a full and efficient Faculty.

Economy can be consulted here as rarely elsewhere. Board and tuition for scholastic year, $212. Washing, $2 a month. Music, $60. Art, $30 to $50.

Daily hacks from Selma during the two weeks of opening.

For further information address the president, se17 2t A. D. McVOY.

SEABROOK & SMITH, MANUFACTURERS OF LIGHT CARRIAGES FOR LIVERY USE,

Nos. 128 and 130 Park Street,

se10 3m NEW HAVEN, CONN.

WANTED.

A gentleman to take charge of the JACKSON DISTRICT (Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church South) HIGH SCHOOL, located at Canton, Miss.—to open on the first Monday in October, 1874—whose wife can assist him in teaching. References required. Address

W. H. CASSELL, se10 2t Canton, Miss.

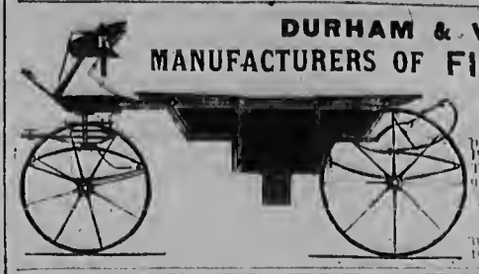
BUILDERS! Send for Catalogue of New Books on CARPENTRY AND BUILDING. A. J. BICKNELL & CO., 27 Warren street, New York. au13 3m

LEGS AND ARMS.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Pamphlet free. CHARLES M. EVANS, manufacturer, (and 1y)

76 Fourth street..... LOUISVILLE, KY.
152 West Fourth street..... CINCINNATI, O.

$10 A DAY.—Employment for all. Patent Novelties. G. L. FELTON & CO., au13 1y 119 Nassau street, New York.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.



DURHAM & WOOSTER, MANUFACTURERS OF FINE CARRIAGES, NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Landaus, Landaulettes, Coaches, Coupees, Rockaways, Barouches, Victorias, Pleasure and all styles of Top and No-Top Buggies constantly on hand or manufactured to order.

A Saving of 25 Per Cent.

made by ordering direct from our Factory. Send for Cuts. se17 3m

THE

SONG MONARCH!!

By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, with the distinguished assistance of Prof. L. O. EMERSON, of Boston. These gentlemen, in the SONG MONARCH, present to the public a book unrivaled for the use of

SINGING CLASSES,

whether in the form of Singing Schools, or in Normal Music Schools, Conventions, Colleges or Academies, and the higher Common Schools.

Price, 75 Cents.—Per Dozen, $7.50.

RICHARDSON'S NEW METHOD FOR THE PIANO-FORTE.

The most Popular Method ever issued; 250,000 already sold, and the book is received. If anything, with increasing favor from year to year. Teachers and Pupils buy

25,000 COPIES ANNUALLY.

Recently enriched by the addition of "CZERNY'S LETTERS ON THE ART OF PLAYING THE PIANO," and of "SCHUMANN'S MAXIMS." It is now a book of 250 large pages.

Price, $3.75.

All books mailed, post-paid, for the retail price.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.

je18 1y

NOTICE EXTRAORDINARY.

REMOVAL.

THE EXTENSIVE

CROCKERY AND CHINA STORE

—AND—

House-Furnishing Warehouse

—OF—

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.

WILL be REMOVED, from September 1, to the spacious Stores,

29 Camp and 112 Common Street,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

With the increased facilities our new and elegant Warerooms afford, we shall display the largest variety of

DINNER SETS,	TOILET SETS,
TEA SETS,	TETE-A-TETE SETS,
CHAMBER SETS,	SETS OF GLASS, ETC.,

And GENERAL HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS ever offered in the Southwest, all of which are for sale at prices as LOW AS THE LOWEST.

Notice What a Little Money Will Buy!

An elegant White Granite DINNER SET, comprising 124 pieces, for.....	$15 00
to wit:
12 Dinner Plates,	1 Soup Tureen,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Salad Dish,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Covered Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Tea Cups and Saucers,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Dinner Coffee Cups and Saucers,	2 Pickle Shells.
A Porcelain DeTerre DINNER SET (equal to French China in appearance, and much more durable,) same assortment as above	$18 00
A French China (best quality) DINNER SET, same assortment, 124 pieces.....	30 00
Decorated Porcelain DeTerre and French China DINNER SETS, from.....	$30 up.
White Granite CHAMBER SETS, 11 pieces	$4 00
White Granite TEA SETS, 41 pieces.....	4 00
French China TEA SETS, 44 pieces.....	6 50
French China Decorated TEA SETS, 41 pieces.....	7 50
Good Table GOBLETS, from 50 cents per set up.

N. B.—When we ship these goods an additional charge is made for the package (box or barrel) and drayage.

These prices contemplate first-class goods, and are all warranted regular and perfect.

AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED

BLANCHARD CHURNS,

AND THE LARGEST DEALERS IN

HOUSEKEEPING NOVELTIES

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,

No. 29 Camp street and 112 Common street, de11 1y New Orleans.

EXCELSIOR CHURCH. SABBATH-SCHOOL.

FURNITURE.

EXCELSIOR FOLDING-SEAT; CURVED-BACK PEW in as unsightly of end. It excels any thing yet offered to the public in comfort, unity, convenience, cleanliness, healthfulness, and economy. ALL STYLES PEWS MADE TO ORDER. The best reference the unrivaled favorite, used by Schools of Philadelphia, Jersey City, Detroit, Cincinnati, New Orleans, St. Louis, Memphis, Kansas City, Cleveland, and in most of the United States. BLACKBOARDS, for Sabbath and Day Schools, Globes, Maps, Charts and all Apparatus used in schools. SEND FOR PRICE-LIST

EXCELSIOR SCHOOL FURNITURE MFG. CO

Cincinnati,	124 Walnut St.	Philadelphia,	1003 Arch St.
St. Louis,	704 Chestnut St.	Omaha,	Creighton Block
New Orleans,	166 Julia St.	Atlanta,	102 Whitehall St.

au6 3meow

HENRY ERBEN & CO., ORGAN MANUFACTURERS,

235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-Third St., Bet. Second and Third Aves., NEW YORK.

There are seventeen Organs in this city of our make, among them the largest. au27 1yeow

EDWARD SEARS' WOOD ENGRAVING ESTABLISHMENT,

Designing, Photographing and Engraving, NO. 18 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK.

Velvet Labels and Show Card Printing a specialty. au20 3meow

$25 A DAY GUARANTEED using our WELL-AUGER and DRILL in good territory. Highest Testimonials from Governors of Iowa, Arkansas and Dakota. Catalogues free. W. GILES, St. Louis, Missouri. au6 4meow

ESTABLISHED 25 YEARS.

HENRY E. SHARP & SON, STAINED GLASS WINDOWS, FOR CHURCHES.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS A SPECIALTY.

147 and 149 East Twenty-Second Street, NEW YORK. au20 3m

E. O. DORMAN. J. H. CROCKETT.

R. O. DORMAN & CO., MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE LIGHT FAMILY CARRIAGES,

NOS. 71 AND 73 COFFE STREET,

se10 4m New Haven, Conn.

MONEY made rapidly with Stencil and Key-Check Outfits. Catalogues, samples and full particulars FREE. S. M. SPENCER, 117 Hanover street, Boston. au27 1y

MEDICAL.

NEARLY ALL DISEASES ORIGINATE from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Depression of Spirits, or the Blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and, being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR MEDICINE

Is harmless,
Is no drastic, violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
Is a faultless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies,

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

se25 1y

DR. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST ADVICE THAT CAN BE given to persons suffering from

DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS!

CONSTIPATION, COLIC, SICK HEADACHE,

Fever and Ague, Nervous Debility,

or of any disorder of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, is to tone, cleanse and regulate them by the use of

Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills.

They act very mildly, yet thoroughly restore the functional action of the Digestive Organs and the Intestines, and renovate the whole system, imparting a good appetite and healthy assimilation of food. They produce neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility, and may be taken at any time, without change of diet or occupation.

Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye

possesses qualities that no other dye does. Its effect is instantaneous, and is so natural that it cannot be detected by the closest observer. Being harmless and easily applied, it is in general use among the fashionable Hair-Dressers in every large city in the United States. Price, $1 a box Sold everywhere.

Laboratory—Nos. 46 and 50 Cortlandt street, New York. oc2 1y

METALLIC ELECTRIC SHIELDS.

Fully Indorsed by the Entire Medical Profession.

HAVE CURED THOUSANDS OF

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA,

AND ALL NERVOUS DISEASES.

Simply applied and worn on the parts affected. For Lame Back, Local Pain, Local Palsy Weakness, Poor Circulation, Varicose Veins and Affections of the Eyes it is a scientific cure. Sold by all Druggists, or General Agent,

GEORGE SWEETSER, 120 Wall St., New York.

Sent by Mail or Express, C. O. D. Price, $5 per pair. au20 3m

TO THE SUFFERERS WITH RHEUMATISM.

In view of the numberless sufferers afflicted with this painful malady, I feel induced to offer to the public my "ANTI-RHEUMATIC MIXTURE," which medicine proves to be the only successful remedy in this line, for it always gives instant relief, and in most cases cures permanently.

During the last fifteen years I have cured thousands of people, in this State and city, of this dreadful disease, with this medicine; and, what astonishes most, the patient recovered by the use of a single bottle of it. This medicine cures nothing but Rheumatism, and should the patient not recover by using the first bottle of it, that patient is not afflicted with Rheumatism at all. This being the first time of making my discovery known to the public after fifteen years of most successful results, I hope the sufferers will take advantage of this rare remedy, and by doing so add their names to the thousands already cured by it

For sale by W. J. JURISLEWICZ Apothecary and Druggist, corner Magazine and Thalia streets, New Orleans, La. ap30 6m

VALLEY GEM PIANO.

This Piano is thoroughly and carefully made by experienced manufacturers, and is a good, reliable instrument in every particular. Its durability is one of its important points of superiority, and, besides its other fine qualities, the low price will especially commend it to public favor.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue containing choice music, to

D. H. BALDWIN & CO., 158 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O. jy27 3m

How I Made $70

the first week, and am now averaging $60 in a week business. Any man or woman can do the same. Write at once to COWAN & CO., au27 1y Eighth St., New York.

LIBERAL OFFER!—TWO NEW AND beautiful Chromos, THE CHERRY GIRLS, sent, post-paid, to any address for 50 cents. LARGE DISCOUNT to Agents. We have all the Patent Novelties of the age. Men, Women, Girls and Boys make more money by working for us than at anything else. Address ELM CITY NOVELTY CO., se10 3m New Haven, Conn.

FOR 25 CTS. I mail, post-paid, a fine Steel Engraving, worth double the amount, and a complete New Catalogue, 64 pages, of 3,000 Engravings, Chromos, etc. Agents wanted. G. E. PERINE, Publisher, 25 Reade street, New York. se17 3m

WANTED.—AGENTS to canvass for our new book, "MESSIAH," by Rev. William M. Willett. Suited to all classes and denominations. Full of interest, and issued in a style attractive and substantial. Worthy the special notice of first-class canvassers. H. B. RUSSELL, Publisher, Boston, Mass. se17 4t

The Child's Corner.

LITTLE NOBODY.

Am I a torment, mamma?
Bridget called me that,
'Cause I mixed the mud pies
In my Sunday hat.

Am I a Cruel, mamma?
Flora called me so:
For covering pussy's face up
In a cake of dough.

Am I a Greedy, mamma,
For eating all the cake?
You tell me that's for Billy
Every time you bake.

Am I a Careless, mamma?
Bridget slammed the door;
The mud came in itself, ma,
And tracked the kitchen floor.

Do I make awful musses?
I only wrote my name
With gingerbread and 'lasses
On the window-pane.

Let's send away this Bridget
And get a pretty one,
That likes mud in her kitchen,
And wants a little fun.

Send her straight off, mamma,
There ain't no work to do;
We can easily do it,
Father, me and you.

The Old Fisherman's Story.

A little bright-faced boy just put a match to the kindling-wood of the grate, and was watching the flame as it forced its way among the crackling coal, when, half in thought and half aloud, he said: "Who would think a little match would make so big a fire?"

"Ah, yes, my little man," said his father, "a little match, like other little things, may do great good or great harm. A good apostle once said: 'Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth.' And now, as our fire is burning, I will tell you a story about a little match, and the good that it did."

"Far away down on the shore of the Bristol Channel stands a small fisherman's cabin. It is just far enough from the water to be out of the reach of the great waves that come rolling from the Irish Channel; and near it is a creek, or little river, in which the fisherman used to shelter his boat. At the time of my story the man happened to have left his little cabin and gone to Tenby. It was market day there, and, as the weather was rough and wintry, he had stayed away from home. It was desolate and dreary about that little house on the cold December day of which I am speaking. A dull, leaden sky; a cold, keen blast, sweeping up clouds of sand along the shore; the moaning of the sea birds, and the regular beat of the waves upon the shore, formed the total of the sights and sounds on the coast that day.

"A strong wind had been blowing for three days, and all who thought of the sailor at sea prayed to God to keep him from its dangers. A good brig had just made the entrance of the channel, and was beating up toward Bristol. She had a captain, mate and six sailors for her crew. Their voyage had been a pleasant one, and was now nearly over. They were thinking of their homes and friends when the fierce storm came on. The rigging was stiff with ice, and it was hard to handle the ropes or manage the ship. The men did their duty, as all true English sailors will do; but it was in vain. The winds and the waves and the bitter cold were too strong for them, brave as they were, and carried the poor brig steadily toward the shore. Soon they heard a sound terrible to seamen; it was the noise of the breakers. The captain called all hands about him, and raised his voice in prayer. He prayed for their safety, if God so willed it, that they might have strength to meet the fierce waves, and that, if they could not be saved from shipwreck, they might be safe in the mercy of God.

"The brig soon struck, and, as she lay with her side to the shore, the water for a little space was so calm that the small boat was safely launched, and every man seated in it. But, alas! before they could reach the shore a great wave struck the little boat, and the poor men were cast into the boiling sea. Four of them, with the captain, reached the land, and, though scarcely able to move, dragged themselves forward to find shelter. They raised a shout when they came in sight of the little cabin; but, alas! there was the creek between it and them. 'We must go through or die,' said the captain; and after a great struggle, in their tired state, they reached the other side; but the brave captain could go no further. 'Leave me, my men,' said he; 'get help for yourselves, and then come back, if you can.' The men gained the house, but were horrified to find it empty. One man only took heart as he looked at the fireplace and the wood near it. But, alas! there was neither flint nor steel to strike a light. A moment he stood in agony; but, as he raised his head, he saw upon the rude mantle a small box marked 'matches.' With trembling haste he seized it, and found one single little match! O how much depended on that little match. Here were four sailors; a little way off lay their brave captain. All their lives depended, one might say, upon that single match. If it failed, all must die; for cold and hunger were fast doing their work upon the poor men. With a trembling hand and a silent prayer he drew the match; and, as the little feeble flame broke out, 'Thank God!' burst from the men.

"They soon managed to make the wood catch fire; and, as the bright blaze shot up, the glare brought relief to the poor captain, who lay on the beach too weak to crawl.

"The feeling that now he should be saved helped to keep him alive. When the sailors came to where he lay he was nearly gone; but they hurried him in, and gradually he revived.

"Remember how much good a thing that seems so insignificant as a match can do."—Christian Leader.

Lie—Never!

Not long ago, on board an English steamer, four days out from Liverpool, a small boy was hid away behind the cargo. He had neither father nor mother, sister nor brother, friends nor protector, among either passengers or crew. Who was he? Where did he come from? Where going? Only nine years old, the poor little stranger, with ragged clothes, but a beautiful face, full of innocence and truth! Of course he was carried before the mate.

"How came you to steal a passage on board this ship?" asked the mate sharply.

"My stepfather put me in," answered the boy; "he said he could not afford to keep me or pay my passage to Halifax, where my aunt lives. I want to go to my aunt."

The mate did not believe the story. He had often enough been deceived by stow-aways. Almost every ship finds, one or two days out at sea, men or boys concealed among the cargo, trying to get a passage across the water without paying for it. And this is often troublesome, as well as expensive. The mate suspected some of the sailors had a hand in the little boy's escape, and he treated him pretty roughly. Day after day he was questioned about his coming, and it was always the same story—nothing less, nothing more. At last the mate got out of patience, as mates will, and, seizing him by the collar, told him, unless he confessed the truth in ten minutes, he would hang him on the yard-arm. A frightful threat indeed.

Poor child, with not a friend to stand by him! Around him were passengers and sailors of the midday watch, and before him the stern first officer, with his watch in his hand, counting tick-tick-tick of the minutes as they swiftly went. There he stood, pale and sorrowful, his head erect, and tears in his eyes; but afraid?—no, not a bit!

Eight minutes were already gone. "Only two minutes more to live," cried the mate. "Speak the truth and save your life, boy!" "May I pray?" asked the child, looking up into the hard man's face.

The officer nodded his head, but said nothing. The brave boy knelt down on the deck, with hands clasped and eyes raised to heaven, repeated the Lord's Prayer, and then prayed the dear Lord Jesus to take him home to heaven. All eyes were turned toward him, and sobs broke from stern hearts.

The mate could hold out no longer. He sprang to the boy, took him in his arms, kissed him, and told him he believed his story, every word of it. A nobler sight never took place on a ship's deck than this—a poor, unfriended child willing to face death for truth's sake!

He could die; but lie—never! God bless him! Yes, God stands by those who stand by him. And the rest of the voyage, you may well think, he had friends enough. Nobody owned him before; everybody now was ready to do him a kindness. And everybody who reads this will be strengthened to do right, come what will, by the noble conduct of this dear child.

THE LINEN THREAD.—"Charity thinketh no evil." Eva, a farmer's daughter, was a most skilful spinner, and had some very fine thread spread out to bleach in her father's garden. Barbara, the daughter of a neighbor, often entered the garden, expressed great pleasure in looking at the beautiful thread, and kindly assisted her friend in the care of it. One unfortunate day Eva observed that several skeins were missing. She at once suspected her friend, ran to her, and cried: "Barbara, you have stolen my thread! No stranger, except you, ever enters our garden. Return the thread, or I will accuse you of the theft." Barbara wept and asserted her innocence, but in vain. Eva accused her, as she threatened, and the justice investigated the case. Nothing, however, was proved, except that the thread was gone, and that Barbara was considered a thief in the whole village.

The succeeding year the old stork nest on their church-tower was repaired, and lo! the lost thread was found in the stork nest; for the stork had taken it to make a soft bed for her young, without knowing that was called stealing.

Then Eva repented that through her Barbara had lost her good name. With tearful eyes she besought the young girl and her parents to pardon her for the cruelly unjust accusation. But Barbara's father replied only: "Why didst thou cherish such suspicion in thy heart?"

SHE TOOK OUT THE "IF."—A little girl was awakened to anxiety about her soul at a meeting where the story of the leper was told.

One day a poor leper came to Jesus and worshiped him, saying: "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And Jesus put forth his hand and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean; and immediately his leprosy was cleansed."

Well, this dear little girl, who was anxious, said: "I noticed that there was an 'if' in what the man said, but there was no 'if' in what Jesus said; so I went home and took out the 'if' by granny's fireside, and I knelt down and said: 'Lord Jesus, thou canst, thou wilt make me clean; I give myself to thee.'"

My beloved little reader, have you thus come to Jesus? And if not yet, will you come now? Come to him! He can, he will make you clean—yes, whiter than snow. You are a sinner, and sin is a far worse disease than leprosy. Nothing can take it away but the blood of Jesus. Come to him this very minute.—Seeds of Truth.

WHEN you hear wise men talk about the tariff, remember this: When the Moors held the south of Spain they made all vessels that passed through the Straits of Gibraltar pay toll at the little town of Tarifa, according to the value they carried. Thence came the word tarif, found in all European languages. It means properly a list of goods with the duties that must be paid for bringing them into the country. The duty is the money, the tariff is the list.—Little Corporal.

WHAT portions of the body are the best travelers? The two wrists (tourists.)

Farm, Garden and Household.

Curious Norwegian Dishes.

Still, in most countries there is something to be learned—some peculiar dish (not unfrequently the queerest-looking) which will reward investigation. Occasionally, indeed, the inquirer will meet with a rebuff; but is not this the case in all original research? Never shall we forget our first and last acquaintance with that northernest and nastiest of foods, called stockfische. We had arrived at a settler's hut far away in the Arctic regions of Norway, hungry as starved wolves, and lo! one set before us what looked and felt like a large splinter of pine wood. As we raised it to our lips, however, we became fully aware by the perfume, which can only be described as noisome, that it consisted of animal matter; still, undaunted, we managed to bite off a portion. At first it seemed tasteless, but as it became slowly reduced by actively-working jaws, such a sickening flavor unfolded itself that in horror and amazement we fled from the food and the hut that could harbor it. Our feeling on first tasting the plum soup of Norway, served at the commencement of dinner, was one of indignant surprise, not much inferior to that of the bucolic gentleman who bit into an olive under the impression that it was a preserved green gage; and though it is not itself absolutely nauseous, we confess we could never abide it. There is, however, one exceilent dish which the Norwegian traveler meets with at every little inn. It is called "carbonado," and consists of minced meats, eggs and fine herbs made up into a kind of cake, and then fried or baked. The meat probably, if cooked in an ordinary way, would defy mastication, but thus treated it is really a dainty dish. Equally common at the post stations is salmon, dried and prepared in some sublime manner, far superior to the kippered salmon of commerce, and eaten raw in the thinnest possible slices.—Fraser's Magazine.

THE MEDICAL USE OF SALT.—The Medical World says that in many cases of a disordered stomach a tablespoonful of salt is a certain cure. In a violent internal pain, termed colic, a teaspoonful of salt, dissolved in a pint of water, taken as soon as possible, with a short nap immediately after, is one of the most effectual and speedy remedies known. The same will relieve a person who seems almost dead from a heavy fall. In an apoplectic fit no time should be lost in pouring down salt water, if sufficient sensibility remains to allow swallowing; if not, the head must be sponged with cold water until the senses return, when salt will completely restore the patient from the lethargy. In a fit the feet should be placed in warm water, with mustard added, and the legs briskly rubbed; all the bandages removed from the neck, and a cool aperient procured, if possible. In cases of severe bleeding at the lungs, when other remedies failed, Dr. Bush found two teaspoonsful of salt stayed the blood.

UNFERMENTED WINE.—Dr. Stayman, in the Western Planter, says: "To make unfermented wine, press your grapes and let the must stand about six hours to settle some. Then draw off the clearest and put into a boiler; heat it to the boiling point, and skim it. Then put it up into wine bottles, hot as you put up fruit, and seal air-tight, while hot, and keep it in a cellar. To keep the bottles from breaking, place a wet cloth several folds thick on the table, and set the bottles on it while filling them with hot wine."

Scientific.

THE Boston Journal of Chemistry, in speaking of the heart, gives the following facts: The average weight of this little piece of mechanism is a little over half a pound, or, to be exact, 9.39 ounces. The work done by the heart in a given time exceeds that done by the muscles in a boat race in the proportion of about 20 to 15; but this work is unceasing during life, while that of the muscles in a boat race can be continued for only a few minutes. Helmholtz showed that the heart exerts force enough to raise its own weight 20,250 feet in an hour. An active climber can accomplish only 9,000 feet in nine hours (?) or one-twentieth of the work done by the heart, while the best locomotive can only raise its own weight 2,700 feet in the same time.

PROF. AGASSIZ, in a lecture, stated that in some respects the ancients were more conversant with natural history than the moderns. He said: "In some ways the study of natural history has lost rather than gained in modern civilization. You would be surprised to learn how well informed the Greeks were, for instance, about the structure of animals. Aristotle knew more of certain kinds of animals and their general relations than is known now. For instance, he never confounded sharks and skates with ordinary fishes, while all modern naturalists would put them in one and the same class. Strange to say, I have studied the selacians on the South American coast by the light of Aristotle's researches upon them in the Mediterranean sea, more than two thousand years ago. I can fairly add that the knowledge of Aristotle on these topics is so far ahead of the current information recorded in modern works of natural history that his statements can only be understood by one who has made a special study of these animals. The community evidently shared his knowledge, for he refers to text-books of natural history which must, from the details he gives about them, have been superior to those we have now. You may seek in vain in the anatomical atlases of Wagner or Carus for information about the structure of the reproductive apparatus of selacians, to which Aristotle alludes as contained in the text-books of anatomists, and belonging to the current knowledge of the time."

A FIRST-RATE AXIOM—A man should always grind his own axes.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1874.

Faculty.—REV. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law; REV. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science; G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages; ——— ———, Professor of Natural Science; THOMAS J. KERNAN, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department and Adjunct Professor of Modern Languages.

Charges.—Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College, $60; Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department, $40; Contingent expenses, $5. A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

Board.—Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $12 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

Location.—This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

When Founded.—The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

Alumni.—Its Alumni numbers two hundred and three, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

Apparatus and Cabinet.—The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

Literary Societies.—There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well-selected Library—about one thousand six hundred volumes each, which, added to the College Library of two thousand volumes, makes over five thousand volumes in the college.

Buildings.—The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each a front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of seven hundred feet.

Preparatory Department.—In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.

The Faculty.—Its Faculty are men of experience and success in teaching.

Board of Trustees.—Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Mississippi.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.
Hon. and Rev. James H. Muse, St. Helena parish.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.
Rev. H. H. Montgomery, Sharon, Mississippi.
C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.
Josiah D. Nettles, Esq., East Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.
Hon. J. O. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.
Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Simmsport, Louisiana.
Col. William L. Nugent, Jackson, Mississippi.
Rev. J. L. Forsyth, Jackson.
S. L. Gulce, Esq., Natchez, Mississippi.
J. H. Keller, Esq., New Orleans, Louisiana.
Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Mississippi.
Rev. J. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.
Robert M. Whitmley, Esq., New Orleans.
Rev. J. A. B. Jones, Port Gibson, Mississippi.
Wilmot H. Beadle, Esq., Baton Rouge.
Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, Louisiana.
Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Shreveport, Louisiana.

sc10 tf — Address C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
ABINGDON, VA.

R. W. JONES, M. A., University of Virginia, President, with a full and skillful Faculty for Instruction in all branches taught in the best female colleges. The next session begins SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

Charge for board and tuition, for entire session of forty weeks, half in advance, $220. Other charges moderate.

The surrounding mountain scenery is grand, the buildings commodious and elegant, the grounds incomparably beautiful.

The patronage for last session represented twelve Southern and Western States and England.

Domestic department under the supervision of the President and wife. Healthfulness unsurpassed.

Opinions of Distinguished Patrons and Friends.

Prof. F. H. Smith, M. A., LL. D., University of Virginia.

"I confided to the care of the President, during the present session, two of my daughters, with very sanguine hopes of their improvement in health and culture. My expectations have been more than realized. From experience, then, as well as prepossession, I cordially and confidently recommend Martha Washington College to parents who are seeking the best advantages for their daughters."

Prof. L. C. Garland, LL. D., University of Mississippi.

"Martha Washington College possesses remarkable advantages as a seat of learning. * * * The corps of instruction is composed of ladies and gentlemen of ability, fidelity and professional skill."

Bishop H. N. McTyeire, D. D.

"If I were to search the land around I know not another Abingdon—beautiful for situation, healthful, accessible. Its social atmosphere is of the right sort for a female school—salubrious, not fast, conservative, well toned. The perfume of the "Old Virginia" lingers about it still. Your immediate site, your grounds, please me more than any I have seen. Your shade-trees and your walks and your wide piazzas linger in my mind."

Faculty of the University of Virginia.

"We cordially recommend Major R. W. Jones, a Master of Arts of this institution, as a gentleman peculiarly well fitted by capacity, culture and experience for the conduct of an advanced seminary for young ladies."

For catalogue, etc., apply to the President.
jy23 2m

MEDICAL.

KEARNEY'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

Is the only pure and unadulterated preparation prepared by a prominent, reliable and scientific physician of thirty years' practice. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its superiority in speedy and permanent cures of Gravel, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and all affections of the Kidneys of both sexes. The greatest Tonic and Diuretic of the age. Be sure and get

KEARNEY'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

Pleasant and agreeable in taste, and efficacious in its curative qualities.

Depot—104 Duane Street, New York.

☞ Price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists everywhere. au1' 6mp

NEW ASTHMA REMEDY.—HAVING struggled twenty years between life and death with ASTHMA or PHTHISIC, I experimented myself by compounding roots and herbs, and inhaling the medicine thus obtained. I fortunately discovered a most wonderful remedy and sure cure for Asthma and its kindred diseases. Warranted to relieve the severest paroxysm instantly, so the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Druggists are supplied with sample packages for free distribution. Call and get one, or address D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio. Sold by druggists. Price for full-size package, $1.25. se3 4t

Silk Class BANNERS, $5 EACH. Send for circular. T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, NEW YORK. au27 3m

SEAL PRESSES.
WARREN RICHARDS,
MANUFACTURER OF
SEAL PRESSES,
SEAL ENGRAVER AND DIE-SINKER,
42 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, O.
Special rates to Grangers for orders direct. Send for circulars, samples or information. se6 2m

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEORGE STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine. fe5 1y

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI,

ON THE NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD, fifty-seven miles south of Jackson, Mississippi, and one hundred and twenty-eight miles north of New Orleans, will

REOPEN ON THE THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.

The charges are low, and yet the advantages are unsurpassed. All extravagance in dress positively prohibited. If you send your daughter here we guarantee that you will be pleased; otherwise you may withdraw her at any time, and the money will be returned.

School books, medicines and medical attention furnished free of charge. Were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the location we could not afford the last two items.

☞ Send for a catalogue.

jy16 3m — H. F. JOHNSON, President.

READVILLA SEMINARY,
INCORPORATED IN 1859,
OPENS ITS
NEXT ANNUAL SESSION
OCTOBER 1, 1874.

Experienced and Successful Teachers
ARE ENGAGED IN EACH DEPARTMENT OF THE INSTITUTION,

and LECTURES adapted to the improvement of the pupils in Literature, Natural Science and other subjects are regularly given by able educators.

MUSIC, DRAWING, PAINTING,
AND THE
ANCIENT AND MODERN LANGUAGES,
Are a part of the Optional Course.

The number of pupils is LIMITED, and every advantage of agreeable HOME INFLUENCES secured to the residents of the Seminary. Address
MRS. M. W. READ, Principal,
se3 2m — Baton Rouge, La.

EMINENCE COLLEGE,
For Males and Females.

TEN THOUSAND CATALOGUES of this popular school now ready for gratuitous distribution. Apply to W. S. GILTNER, President, jy30 8t — Eminence, Ky.

FURMAN'S
ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL,
COR. MAGAZINE AND SECOND STREETS
NEW ORLEANS.

The Fall Session of this school will open on Tuesday, the first of September, 1874. Diligence and faithfulness on the part of the instructors are claimed; thoroughness instead of superficial display is aimed at. Mild and paternal discipline enforced. Boys prepared for college. French is taught. Pupils in any stage of progress received. Terms of tuition moderate.

Grateful for support in the past, the principal respectfully and confidently bespeaks a renewal and increase of patronage on the part of his friends and the community.

EVENING SCHOOL, from 7 to 9 P. M., for young men whose days are devoted to business.
J. L. FURMAN, Principal.

Refers to Rev. Dr. Linus Parker, Rev. J. C. Carpenter, Rev. John Mathews, Mr. Thos. Anze, Dr. S. M. Angell and Rev. Dr. Ed. D. Taylor. au27 4t

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.
The Fall Session of this institution will commence on Wednesday, SEPTEMBER 30, with an efficient corps of teachers. Board can be obtained in the institution.

This being a Conference institution, and educating the daughters of the traveling preachers of the Conference free of cost, we earnestly solicit their hearty co-operation and efforts to secure patronage for it.
au27 3m — THOMAS ARMSTRONG.

THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,
GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session of this institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN OCTOBER, with a full corps of instructors. The entire expense per annum, for board, tuition, etc., is from $150 to $242. For particulars or catalogue apply to
DR. A. S. ANDREWS or
PROF. O. F. CASEY,
jy23 2m — Greensboro, Alabama.

PORT GIBSON
COLLEGIATE ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES,
Port Gibson, Mississippi.

The next session will begin SEPTEMBER 16, 1874, with competent teachers in charge of each department.

EXPENSES FOR COLLEGIATE YEAR.—For tuition, English text-books, stationery, board, lights, fuel and washing, from $210 to $250. Charges for optional branches equally moderate. Daughters of itinerant ministers taught English branches free.

For circular and further particulars address
REV. JOHN A. H. JONES,
au20 1m — President.

Polytechnic College
OF THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—MARKET STREET, above Seventeenth St., Philadelphia. Twenty-first year begins September 15. Thorough professional training in Mine Engineering, Civil Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Analytical and Industrial Chemistry, Metallurgy and Architecture.

The Diploma of the college is received as conclusive evidence of proficiency by the first engineers and companies engaged in works of improvement. Address
ALFRED L. KENNEDY, M. D.,
se3 4t — President of Faculty.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,
ASHLAND, VA.,

offers, on very low terms, the advantages of thorough instruction, a high grade of scholarship, under the best religious influences, in a refined community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness, just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad.

One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars

will pay all necessary expenses per term. Session opens on the last Thursday in SEPTEMBER. For catalogue address
REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, A. M., D. D., President, or au6 2m — REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Secretary.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
BATON ROUGE, LA.

The next session of this school will begin on Monday, OCTOBER 2, 1874. It is important to both parties that applications be made as early as possible, and the attendance of the pupil prompt. A few days' delay at the beginning increases the labor of the school and injures the pupil. For circulars, giving necessary information, apply to W. M. N. MAGRUDER.
au6 3m — Baton Rouge, La.

HIWASSEE COLLEGE.—SAID TO BE the best and cheapest school for boys in the Union. Patronage the past year, 137, from ten States. Under care of the Holston Conference, M. E. Church South. Founded in 1849. Seven miles from Sweetwater, on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad. Send stamp for twenty-four page catalogue. Address the President,
REV. J. H. HUNNER, A. M.,
je4 1y — Hiwassee College, East Tenn.

Soule's
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
The Commercial Athenæum of the South, corner Camp and Common streets (Story Building.) Mercantile and Banking offices are connected with this institution, daily lectures given, and all branches of a business education practically, scientifically and philosophically taught. An English Department for boys, twelve to eighteen years of age, is a special feature of this institution. French and Spanish are also taught.
GEO. SOULE, Principal.

N. B.—Soule's Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator, 880 octavo pages, the great arithmetical work of the age, is for sale at the College office. ja22 1y

J. W. BLACKMAN'S
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
NO. 131 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS.

This is the only Commercial College in this city where students from the country can board in the family of the principal. Terms reduced twenty per cent. Send for circular. Address
J. W. BLACKMAN,
je18 1y. — New Orleans, La.

BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS.

SOLD BY ALL DEALERS.

MANUFACTURERS' WAREHOUSE,

No. 91 John Street, New York.

JOSEPH GILLOTT & SON.

HENRY HOE, Sole Agent. se3 1y

THE AMERICAN

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION

OFFERS

Special Terms to Sunday Schools

IN THE SELECTION OF NEW AND

REPLENISHING OF OLD LIBRARIES

Catalogues furnished on application to any of the

SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPOSITORIES.

No. 1122 Chestnut street, Philadelphia—ALEX. KIRKPATRICK.
No. 10 Bible House, New York—G. S. SCOFIELD.
No. 40 Winter street, Boston—E. SHUTE.
No. 261 West Madison St., Chicago—W. H. PORT.
No. 207 N. Sixth St., St. Louis—S. PAXSON. mh28 6m

R. ESTERBROOK & CO.'S

STEEL PENS.

FOR SALE BY

ALL BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

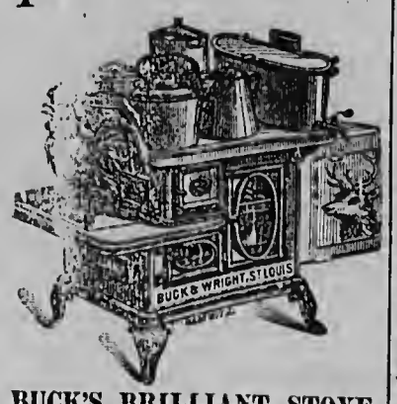
Esterbrook Steel Pen Manufactur'g Co.,

49 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK.

Works—Camden, New Jersey. oc2 1y

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

THE UNRIVALED



BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.

Every Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,

NO. 49 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the

CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER

in the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. no13 1y

STOVES.....STOVES.....STOVES.

The Cheapest and the "Best."

The "BEST" and the "COTTAGE" COOKING STOVES, to which I call particular attention, are unsurpassed by any in this market for economy, durability and most perfect BAKING. They carry a uniform heat in the oven, and can be adapted to burning COAL, COKE or WOOD, without any additional cost. Every one sold under a full guarantee to do as they are represented or the money will be refunded.

Also a variety of other COOKING STOVES of every grade and price, from $15 upward.

HEATING STOVES.

A very large and complete assortment, suitable for Offices, Parlors, Churches, School-Rooms, etc., all of which are offered at very low prices to suit the times. Also dealer in

TINWARE OF EVERY KIND

and description, to suit the country and city trade, which is offered at UNPRECEDENTEDLY LOW PRICES FOR CASH. Also Sole Agent for the manufacture and sale of the Steam Washer, or Woman's Friend.

Will cleanse your clothes WITHOUT RUBBING. Every one sold is FULLY WARRANTED. It saves labor, wear and tear, and the annoyance of wash-day. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Three hundred thousand have been sold already through the States since 1871.

☞ State and County Rights for sale.

Call and see at NO. 52 GRAVIER STREET, near Tchoupitoulas.

ja28 1y G. W. W. GOODWYN.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EXCELSIOR PLOWS,

CAST AND HARDENED STEEL.

Adapted to Every Variety of Soils.

COTTON SCRAPERS AND SWEEPS,

DOUBLE SHOVELS, ETC.

ALL WARRANTED.

MANUFACTURED BY

Louisville Agricultural Works,

LOUISVILLE, KY.

☞ Send for catalogue. se3 2m

STEAM

MARBLE SAW MILL,

318 TO 332 EAST TWENTY-THIRD ST.,

Between First and Second avenues, NEW YORK.

WILLIAM PATTISON,

DEALER IN

American and Foreign Marble

of all kinds, has constantly on hand, and will saw to order, ITALIAN MARBLE of the various dimensions, suitable for Monuments, Headstones, Furniture and Mantelpiece work, Tiling, etc., at the lowest market prices. Italian and American Marble in Blocks and Slabs. no27 3m

STAINED GLASS

—AND—

Decorative Art Establishment,

GIBSON'S BUILDING,

Broadway & Thirteenth St., New York.

Established in 1833.

The Designs of Architects and Amateurs artistically carried out. Designs for Memorial Windows a specialty. (au27 1y) WM. GIBSON.

CHAMBERS'

STERLING PIANOS.

"SPECIAL SAFE OFFER."

☞ READ! MARK! WRITE! ☜

Before you buy, send for information, circulars and price list. Guarantee unlimited. Pianos sent for approval, and satisfaction assured by our "Special Safe Offer." Address CHAMBERS PIANO FACTORY, 306 Fourth Ave., New York. ao13 4m

VANDERBURGH, WELLS & CO., manufacturers of POSTER AND OTHER WOOD TYPE. Dealers in Presses and Inks, Leads, Brass Rules, Ovals, Circles, Borders, etc. Printers' and Engravers' Boxwood Depot. Manufacturers of Eagle, California and other improved Cabinets, with flush front, duplex and other cases. No. 110 Fulton and Nos. 16 and 18 Dutch street, New York.

N. B.—Large stock of used Type and Presses for sale. Pattern and Brand Letters. Stumps for Soap, Dry Goods and other uses. au6 3m

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

RELIGIOUS

AND STANDARD WORKS,

Published by Albert Mason, New York.

JOSEPHUS' WORKS.—A new and elegant Library Edition. Large, clear type. Tinted paper. 4 vols., cloth, $9. A Popular Edition of the same, 2 vols., cloth, $4.50. 2 vols., sheep, $5.

WORDS AND MIND OF JESUS, AND FAITHFUL PROMISER.—In 1 vol., 32mo, red edges. Fifty cents.

Mitchel's Astronomical Works.

Planetary and Stellar Worlds..... $1 75
Astronomy of the Bible..... 1 75
Popular Astronomy..... 1 75

THE DANCE OF MODERN SOCIETY.—By Prof. W. C. Wilkinson. 1 vol, 16mo. Cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents. se3 1y

WILD LIFE IN THE FAR WEST!

Agents Wanted everywhere for this beautifully illustrated book of the Author's Thirty Years' Life and Adventures among the Indians, in the Mexican Wars, hunting wild animals, etc. Entirely new, and the best book ever published on the FAR WEST. Thrillingly interesting, and selling faster than anything ever before known. Send for illustrated circular and liberal terms.

F. A. HUTCHINSON & CO.,

oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED!—ACT AT ONCE.—The people everywhere are eager to buy the only authentic and complete history of

LIVINGSTONE.

His wonderful discoveries and thrilling adventures during 30 Years in the wilds of Africa, resurrection by the daring STANLEY, and heroic death. Over 600 pages, beautifully illustrated; only $2.50. Going like wildfire! Write for extra terms; or, if you wish to begin at once, send $1 for outfit. VALLEY PUBLISHING CO.,

oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the Great $2 Books—PHYSICAL LIFE OF WOMAN, PHYSICAL LIFE OF MAN. By Dr. G. H. Napheys. 185,000 copies sold. The demand still growing. Send for sample copies. Outfits Free. Express charges prepaid on good orders. ☞ Also for GROUNDSWELL, or History of the Farmers' Movement. By Hon. J. Perinm, Agricultural Editor of the Western Rural. Send for terms to N. D. THOMPSON & CO., 302 St. Charles street, St. Louis, Mo. Jy23 3m

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE FOR

KIT CARSON'S

LIFE AND ADVENTURES.,

From facts narrated by himself. Embraces events in the lifetime of America's Greatest Hunter, Trapper, Scout and Guide; includes vivid accounts of the every-day life, inner character and peculiar customs of all Indian Tribes of the Far West; an accurate description of the country, its condition, prospects, resources, its mountains, rivers, valleys and natural wonders. Also, a full and complete history of the Modoc Indians and the Modoc War.

Splendidly illustrated and sells at sight. Agents reporting from 75 to 100 subscribers each per week. Illustrated circulars and terms sent free to any address by

EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING CO.,

oc2 1y St. Louis, Mo.

$2,500 A YEAR made with our grand

COMBINATION PROSPECTUS.

Represents 50 different books. Agents say this is

THE BEST THING EVER TRIED.

The books sell themselves in every family, and good men can make a business for life in one county. Agents Wanted on these and our magnificent Editions of Family Bibles. Full particulars free on application. Address JOHN E. POTTER & CO., Publishers, Philadelphia. no13 13t

CANVASSERS send No. of your Lodge, and name this paper. We will convince you agents with our superb Home Pictures for Masons, Odd-Fellows, Knights Pythias, Grangers, Red-men, Mechanics, etc., are making double they could any other way; work pleasanter. J. HALE PDWERS & CO., Fraternity & Fine Art Pubs., Cincinnati, O. Ja29 1y

BOOK AGENTS, REJOICE!—HARD Times no More! MARK TWAIN'S New Book, THE GILDED AGE, now ready. Secure territory before it is too late. Canvassing outfit, $1.50. For terms address

CONTINENTAL PUBLISHING CO.,

de1 1y New Orleans or St. Louis.

IRON WORKS—BELLS.

RAILINGS.....RAILINGS.

WROUGHT IRON AND WIRE RAILINGS

FOR

Public Grounds, Cemeteries, Cottages,

ETC., ETC.

Iron Bedsteads, with Wire Sackings, for Hospitals, etc. Verandas and every variety of Wrought Iron and Wire work. Every information by addressing the manufacturers:

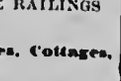
M. WALKER & SONS,

se18 1y 805 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WIRE RAILING

AND

ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.



DURYEA & CO.,

No. 36 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.,

Manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. oc2 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati

B. J. WEST, Agent,

mh5 1y 115 and 117 Magazine st., New Orleans.

HOTELS.

ST. DENIS HOTEL,

BROADWAY AND ELEVENTH ST.,

NEW YORK.

This well-known House, conducted on the European plan, and centrally located opposite Grace Church, and near A. T. Stewart's up-town store, has first-class accommodations at moderate prices for permanent and transient guests.

GEORGE W. HUNT, Manager,

Formerly Proprietor of Irving and Westmoreland Hotels. se3 6m

CRAWFORD HOUSE,

COR. SIXTH AND WALNUT STREETS,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

I pride myself in providing for my guests the best living, cleanest house and more civility for less money than any other house in the city.

☞ Come and see me.

je25 tf FRANK J. OAKES, Proprietor.

WILLIAM GREGG. MRS. ADA GREGG.

GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU,

COR. CANAL AND BURGUNDY STS.,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A long acquaintance with the various kinds of

SEWING MACHINES

has induced us to make a specialty in this line. First-class Machines of all kinds at lowest rates. The New Under-Feed Buckeye Hand Machine, only $20. We repair all Machines at low rates. We take old Machines in part payment for new ones.

Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs sold on monthly payments in the country to parties giving references.

MRS. ADA GREGG

respectfully offers her services in purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel, personal adornment or domestic goods for Ladies' and Children's use, including Millinery, Dry Goods, Jewelry, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Patterns, Underwear, Trimmings, Bridal Trousseaux, etc. Any article of Ladies' and Children's wear manufactured in the latest styles, under her own supervision.

N. B.—All inquiries relative to articles mentioned or unmentioned will be answered free of charge.

Second-hand Machines, in good order, at half price. The best Needles for all Machines.

REFERENCES.—E. A. Tyler, New Orleans; J. L. Power, Jackson, Mississippi.

Send for catalogue and circular.

Je18 1y GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU.

WILLIAM COULTER & SON,

MANUFACTURERS OF

ORNAMENTAL, GROUND AND CUT

WINDOW GLASS,

104 East Second St., Cincinnati, O.

Ornamental Window Glass, of every description, for Churches, Private and Public Buildings, Steamboats, Railroad Cars, etc. Jy23 3m

Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers,

of every kind. Send stamp for Illustrated Price List to GREAT WESTERN GUN WORKS, Pittsburg, Pa. Jy9 13t

BUSINESS CARDS.

RICHARD FROTSCHER,

SEED MERCHANT,

12.....Dumaine St.....12

Near the French Market, New Orleans.

Dealer in BUIST'S GARDEN SEEDS, which are the most reliable seeds sold in the Southern market. Almanacs and catalogues furnished on application. Prices reasonable. jy16 3m

D. H. WALLACE,

COTTON FACTOR AND GENERAL PURCHASING AGENT,

38.....Perdido St.....38

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Will give special attention to the sale of Cotton and other Produce, and will fill all orders for goods of every description at lowest cash prices. jy2 1y

J. R. WILKINSON, JR.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT

FOR THE SALE OF

Hides, Moss, Wool and Canatry Produce Generally,

and for the purchase of Family, Plantation and Store Supplies, 29 PETERS AND 4 CLINTON STREET, near the Customhouse, New Orleans.

Liberal cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, Rice and other consignments. Connections with the principal Northern markets. Sole agent for the celebrated Armstrong Machine-cleaned Moss. je4 10m

J. A. KERNAN & T. WHITE,

PRACTICAL GILDERS,

106 Custom House St., near Royal, New Orleans.

Regilding done in the best style. Oil Paintings restored, relined, cleansed and varnished. Looking-glass and Picture Frames made to order. Having a business experience of nearly forty years in this city, they hope to give satisfaction to their customers not only in the superiority of their work, but likewise in their moderate charges. Country orders promptly attended fe19 9m

LOUISIANA STEAM SASH, BLIND

—AND—

DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

New Orleans. je11 1y

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

B. D. WOOD & BROS.,

106 Common St., opposite City Hotel,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat-load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. my7 1y

E. A. TYLER,

115.....Canal Street.....115

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

FINE WATCHES, DIAMONDS, JEWELRY, Plateware, Table Cutlery, Fancy Goods, etc. Pure Sterling Silverware, suitable for presents. Clocks and Bronzes in great variety. Jewelry manufactured and repaired. Clocks and Watches repaired. fe26 1y

TO THE PUBLIC.—Returning thanks for past favors, the undersigned desires to inform his friends and the public that he has removed to

152 and 154 Camp St., cor. Calliope,

where he continues to Buy, Sell, Store, Remove, Pack and Repair FURNITURE of every description. Pictures and Looking-glasses framed.

JOHN BOIS,

fe26 1y Nos. 152 and 154 Camp street.

THOMAS HASAM,

LUMBER.

CABINS MADE TO ORDER.

Every description of LUMBER always on hand. Sash, Blinds, etc.

Mills and Yard—Corner CEDAR AND JULIA streets (New Basin,) New Orleans. Ja15 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

108.....CANAL STREET.....108

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

English Carpetings, Rugs, Etc., Etc.

Also Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc. oc23 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.

AIKEN & WATT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

60 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no6 1y

JAMES M. DOWLING,

SUCCESSOR TO J. M. JOHNSTON,

WHOLESALE GROCER, COMMISSION MERCHANT,

And Dealer in Western Produce,

NO. 23 DECATUR ST. (LATE OLD LEVEE,)

je1 1y Cor. Customhouse St., New Orleans.

T. W. BOTHICK, UNDERTAKER,

No. 271 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood COFFINS always on hand. Black, Satin, Brown and White Merino Ladies' and Children's Shroudlog. Embalming and Disinterring. Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses, Carriages and Cabs for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. de1 1y

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS,

TRADE-MARKS, COPYRIGHTS, ETC.,

Procured by

mh26 10m H. N. JENKINS,

No. 27 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

THE DOMESTIC

LOCK-STITCH SEWING MACHINE

WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME.

WILCOX & GIBBS' celebrated Twisted Loop-Stitch Sewing Machine, always ready and in order. Needles for all kinds of Sewing Machines.

M. S. BEDRICK,

my21 1y 103 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. D. COULON.

PORTRAIT PAINTER,

37.....Camp Street.....37

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Old Paintings restored. fe19 tf

E. HEATH. M. LARA.

HEATH & LARA,

Importers and Dealers in

UPHOLSTERERS' GOODS, WALL PAPER WINDOW SHADES AND CORNICES,

Mirrors, Frames, Moldings and Wire Screens,

No. 99 Camp Street,

no20 1y New Orleans.

T. WHINBEY CABTER,

ARCHITECT,

47.....POLYMNIA STREET.....47

Ja15 1y New Orleans.

GAS FIXTURES.

GAS COOKING STOVES

AND PLUMBING MATERIALS

At New York Prices,

BY P. H. QUINLAN, 280 CAMP STREET.

Stores, Offices and Dwellings fitted up for Gas, Steam and Water in the most approved style. Country orders solicited. mh26 10m

F. J. KEINHOLZ,

BOOK-BINDER,

112.....GRAVIER ST.....112

Near Camp, New Orleans.

Blank-Books ruled and bound to order. All other books, such as Magazines, Music, Law-Books, etc., bound with care and neatness, and at moderate prices. ja22 1y

HUGH FLYNN,

167 POYDRAS ST., NEW ORLEANS.

All who want to purchase CHEAP FURNITURE can call at 167 Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet streets.

On account of retiring from the Furniture business, I am now selling off my large stock of New Furniture at greatly reduced rates. I am selling at rates below those of any house in the city.

Walnut Victoria Bed-room Sets, marble top..$125 00
Parlor Sets, eleven pieces..... 110 00
Double Bedsteads, with Testers and Rollers.. 12 00

Kitchen and Dining-room Furniture at equally low rates. Spring, Hair and Moss Mattresses of the best quality and at greatly reduced prices. de1 1y

T. A. BECK, COOPER,

NOS. 22 AND 24 FRONT STREET,

Between Customhouse and Bienville streets (Sugar Landing,) New Orleans,

has constantly on hand Sugar Hogsheads, Molasses Barrels, Half Barrels, Kegs, Hoop Poles, etc. Orders promptly attended to. Particular attention paid to trimming. de1 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

NEW ORLEANS, LA. TYLER, N.O.

GEORGE PURVES'

PERSEVERANCE

Sash, Blind and Door

STEAM FACTORY,

AND

LUMBER YARD,

Cor. of St. Charles and Clio Sts., New Orleans.

GLAZED SASH.

Send for Price List.

de11 1y

BUSINESS CARDS.

J. A. LUM. FRANK H. HOOKER.

J. A. LUM & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

CARRIAGES, HARNESS, ETC.,

162 Gravier and 13 Union Street.

☞ A SPECIALTY MADE OF CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES. mh5 1y

mh5 1y

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

DR. C. J. RICKHAM,

RESIDENCE AND OFFICE,

Corner Magazine and Second Streets,

New Orleans.

Office Hours—Eight to nine A. M. and three to four P. M. je29 1f

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152.....Julia Street.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed.

Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. de4 1y

DR. J. J. LYONS,

NO. 219 CARONDELET STREET

Between Julia and St. Joseph,

Ja2 1y New Orleans, La.

G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER.
E. T. MERRICK, formerly Chief Justice, Louisiana.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

ATTORNEYS, COUNSELORS AND SOLICITORS,

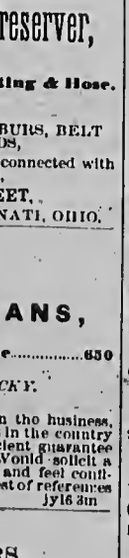
Corner of Camp Street and Commercial Place, se25 NEW ORLEANS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLINGS' PATENT

Sewing Machine

SHUTTLES.



Twenty Varieties Now Made.

Forged solid from bar-steel and cold-pressed.

TRADE B MARK.

Also Wrought Iron and Steel

DROP FORGINGS

of all descriptions, for Guns, Pistols, Sewing Machines, Agricultural Implements, etc.

MANUFACTURED BY

Billings & Spencer Co.,

LAWRENCE STREET,

ap9 6m Hartford, Conn.

NEW ORLEANS

PURCHASING BUREAU.

To the Ladies of the South.

A Purchasing Agency has been established in New Orleans, Louisiana, for the benefit of those residing at a distance from the city, and who have not the facilities for obtaining just what they require.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE

respectfully offers her services in selecting, purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel or personal adornment for ladies' and children's use, including MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, JEWELRY, BRIDAL TROUSSEAUX, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Trimmings, Underwear, Sewing Machines, etc., etc.

Scrupulous care with reference to the price and quality and fidelity to the interest and fulfillment of the wishes of correspondents, will be sedulously carried out.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE'S

Dressmaking Establishment,

Nos. 94 and 96 Canal St., New Orleans.

Refers by permission to D. H. Holmes & Co., New Orleans. fe19 1y

WILLIAM N. THOMSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

Thomson's Leather-Preserver,

FOR

Boots, Shoes, Harness, Belting & Hose,

ALSO DEALER IN

LACE LEATHER, RIVETS, BURS, BELT HOOKS, BELT STUDS,

Punches, Belt Sets, and all goods connected with the Belting business,

NO. 52 RACE STREET,

an6 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

HENRY PILCHER,

BUILDER OF

CHURCH ORGANS,

656.....Portland Avenue.....650

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

Twenty-five years' experience in the business, and some of the finest instruments in the country as specimens of my skill, are sufficient guarantee of the excellence of my work. Would solicit a share of the Southern patronage, and feel confident of my ability to please. The best of references as to ability and honorable dealing. jy16 3m

GLASS STAINERS

AND BENDERS.

BELCHER & POVEY,

13 West Broadway, cor. Reade St.,

NEW YORK.

Works—Newark, N. J. au13 1y

$250 A MONTH TO AGENTS.—35 new articles. One lady made $21.80, August 10, in taking subscriptions to the FAMILY JOURNAL, the best Literary and Fashion paper in America. Only $1 a year, with two $5 Chromos. Samples free. FAMILY JOURNAL, 300 Broadway, New York. ao29 3m

MISCELLANEOUS.

JAMES LEFFEL'S

IMPROVED DOUBLE

TURBINE WATER-WHEEL.

POOLE & HUNT, Baltimore,

Manufacturers for the South and Southwest.

Nearly Seven Thousand Now in Use,

working under heads varying from 2 to 240 feet! Twenty-four sizes, from 5½ to 96 inches.

The most powerful Wheel in the market, and most economical in use of Water. Large Illustrated Pamphlet sent post free.

Manufacturers also of Portable and Stationary Steam Engines and Boilers, Babcock & Wilcox's Patent Tubulous Boiler, Ebaugh's Crusher for Minerals, Saw and Grist Mills, Flouring Mill Machinery, Machinery for White Lead Works and Oil Mills, Shafting Pulleys and Hangers.

☞ Send for Circulars. se3 6m

CINCINNATI

PIANO-FORTE

MANUFACTORY,

F. W. BIERE & SON,

WAREROOMS,

170 Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The attention of our friends and the public in general is most respectfully invited to our fine Stock of HOME-MADE PIANOS.

We permit no inferior Instrument to go out of our factory, but endeavor to EXCEL ALL MAKERS by producing PERFECT INSTRUMENTS ONLY, and thereby secure the entire confidence of the public. jy23 3m

MONUMENTS A SPECIALTY.

AMERICAN GRANITE

AND ITALIAN MARBLE.

IMPORTERS OF

Scotch Granite Monuments

AND STATUARY FROM ITALY.

This is the OLDEST AND LARGEST establishment of the kind in the Western country, and would solicit a share of the Southern patronage. Being in the business for years, I feel confident of giving the utmost satisfaction, having in my employ men of experience.

A. WHITE.

OFFICE AND WORKS,

251, 253 and 257 West Fifth St.,

jy23 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

STAR IRON WORKS.

WALTON, HEMLER & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

IRON RAILINGS,

SAFES AND BANK VAULTS,

JAIL CELLS, IRON STAIRS, DOORS AND SHUTTERS, Awning Frames, Gratings, Bolts, Stirrups, Verandas, Balconies, Patent Sidewalk and Sky-Lights, and all kinds of Iron Work for buildings.

Nos. 231 and 236 West Pearl Street,

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Orders promptly attended to and satisfaction guaranteed. jy23 3m

LEVY BROS.'

Dry Goods Establishment,

AT

580.....MAGAZINE STREET.....580

Between St. Andrew and St. Mary.

NEW GOODS EVERY WEEK.

We are now opening a large and well-assorted stock of SPRING GOODS, which have been bought and will be sold at prices that will suit all purchasers.

Give Us a Call.

N. B.—Orders from the country will be promptly filled. mh5 1y

FLINN'S PATENT

SELF-FASTENING AND ADJUSTABLE

BED SPRINGS

Make the Best Spring Beds in Use.

They are complete in themselves, and can be applied in a few minutes to any slat bedstead.

☞ From three to five dozen make a Set.

JOHN FLINN,

248 South Second St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Cor. S. Water and Champlain Sts., Cleveland.

Agents wanted everywhere. se18 1y

S. COLLINS & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK.

Office and Depot—26 Frankfort St.,

NEW YORK.

GEO. H. MORRILL & CO., Boston, Mass.
MORRILL & CO., San Francisco, Cal. au27 3m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER

AND

STEAM POWER LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTER,

82 Beekman Street, New York.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for catalogue. au6 1y

JAMES S. PATTERSON,

WOOD ENGRAVER,

28.....Beekman Street.....28

au13 1y NEW YORK CITY.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,

17.....CHARTRES STREET.....17

A. BROUSSEAU & CO., Importers and Dealers, at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings; Floor Oil Cloths; Table and Enameled Oil Cloths; Window Shades; Table and Piano Covers; Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces Curtain and Furniture Materials; Brocatelles, Coteleces, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains; Haircloth Ticking; Springs; Burlaps; Step Covers, etc. de1 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO

CHARLES H. TURNO.

STAINED GLASS FOR CHURCHES.

Memorial Windows a specialty. No. 333 East Twenty-Third street, New York. au27 3m

MACHINERY, TIES, ETC.

LANE & BODLEY,

CINCINNATI, OHIO,

MANUFACTURERS OF STANDARD

PLANTATION

MACHINERY,

STATIONARY & PORTABLE

STEAM ENGINES,

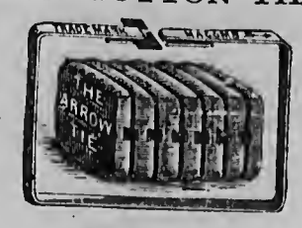
Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Shafting Hangers, Pulleys, etc. Our Machinery is strong, simple and well made, and is especially adapted to the wants of Farmers and Planters for Ginning, Sawing, Grinding and Factory use. Send for an Illustrated Catalogue.

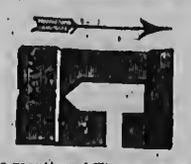
LANE & BODLEY,

Jy23 1y John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, O.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.





The above-mentioned Ties are the best and most popular Ties in use for Baling Cotton. They are manufactured of the best quality of English Iron, and are sold under full guarantee, at the lowest market price, by all dealers in Baling Stuffs in New Orleans, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, Charleston, Wilmington, Petersburg, Baltimore, Memphis, Louisville, Nashville, New York, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

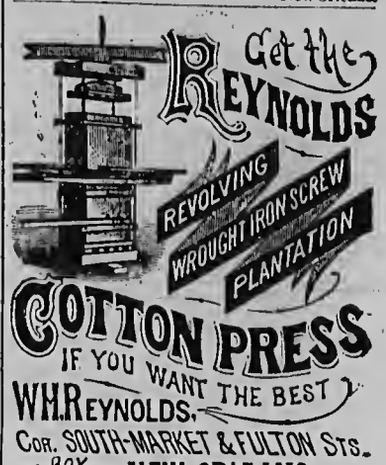
R. W. RAYNE & CO.,

(Late Bartlett & Rayne.)

GENERAL AGENTS,

48 Carondelet Street, cor. Union,

Je18 6m New Orleans.



au20 3m

DANIEL PRATT'S

Improved Cotton Gin.

PRICE REDUCED

TO $4 PER SAW.

JOSEPH B. WOLFE & CO.,

GENERAL AGENTS,

No. 59 Carondelet Street,

Je4 6m NEW ORLEANS.

PLOWS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC.

PLOWS

AND ALL IMPROVED

Agricultural Implements.

PLANTATION HARDWARE.

Steam Engines, Saw and Grist Mills.

PUMPS, SHAFTING, ETC.,

AT LOW PRICES FOR CASH.

B. J. WEST,

115 and 117 Magazine St., New Orleans,

MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

mh19 10m

N. F. BURNHAM'S

84 per cent. guaranteed with WATER WHEEL

The best in the Market, and sold at less price than any other first-class Wheel.

1874 TURBINE

☞ Send for a pamphlet and be convinced.

au6 4m N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

CRESCENT MACHINE SHOP,

JOSEPH WALKER,

Machinist, Engineer, Blacksmithing,

ETC., ETC.,

CORNER ST. JOSEPH AND CONSTANCE STS., New Orleans.

☞ Plantation Machinery manufactured and repaired. Jobbing promptly attended to. fe5 1y

TRUSSES AND BRACES.

Club Feet cured without the knife. The Radical-Cure Truss, patented May 8, 1866, applied. All instruments for deformities—Crutches, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Ear Trumpets—on hand at DR. A. D. FORSBERG'S, No. 5 East Fourth street, east of Main, up stairs Cincinnati, Ohio. Sign of Golden Eagle. au6 3m

New Orleans Markets.

From the New Orleans Price Current.

The river is 14 feet 1 inch below high-water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the eleventh instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi ....bales..	2,489
Lake	7
Mobile	173
Texas	359
Total	3,028

On Saturday the general tendency was in favor of buyers, without any quotable variation except a reduction of ⅛c. in the outside figures for low middling and the inside for strict low middling. The sales embraced 300 bales. Low middling sold at 15c. The market was extremely dull throughout the day. On Monday operations were interrupted by the political movement, and the sales were confined to 270 bales, but prices hardened under the telegrams from Liverpool, and low middling in particular was fully ⅛c. stronger. At about noon business was generally suspended, and the Exchange closed its doors at 1:30 P. M. On Tuesday the attention of the trade was so completely absorbed by the political movement that business was suspended, and we did not hear of a sale. At 1 P. M. the Cotton Exchange closed its doors "as a mark of sympathy with the movement to establish the legitimate government of Louisiana."

The above makes an aggregate for the past three days of 550 bales, against 4,450 for the corresponding time last week and 700 the week before.

We quote:

Inferior	8	@ 9
Low ordinary	10	@ 10⅝
Ordinary	11⅛	@ 12
Strict ordinary	12⅛	@ 13
Good ordinary	14	@ 14⅛
Strict good ordinary	14⅛	@ 14⅝
Low middling	15⅛	@ 15¼
Strict low middling	15¼	@ 15½
Middling	16	@ 16⅛
Strict middling	16⅛	@ 16⅜
Good middling	17	@ 17¼

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1874 ..bales		15,953
Arrived past three days	3,058
Arrived previously	4,217	7,275
		24,188
Exported past three days	1,273
Exported previously	6,376	7,649
Stock on hand and on shipboard		16,549

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—There were sales on Saturday and Monday at 150 hhds., in lots, at 8½c. for good common, 9½c. for good fair, 9¾@9⅞c. for fully fair, 10c. for prime, 10⅜c. for choice, and 10½@10¾c. for yellow clarified.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—Northern syrup is selling at 57c.; city refinery molasses, 44c. for common, 50c. for fair, 55c. for good fair, 60c. for prime, and 65c. ₱ gallon for choice.

CORN.—On Saturday 970 sacks sold at 97c. for yellow, 98c. for white mixed, and $1 for mixed and white, and on Monday only 500 sacks sold at $1 for choice white.

OATS.—There is very little change to note. The supply continues good, with a limited demand at previous prices. On Saturday 1,800 sacks sold at 60@63c., and on Monday only 300 sacks sold at 60@61c. for prime and 62c. for choice.

BRAN—Is in light supply, barely sufficient for the local trade. Only 50 sacks sold on Saturday and 80 on Monday at $1.25 ₱ 100 lbs.

PORK—Is dull but firm at unchanged prices, and a small stock on hand. Mess is quoted at $25@25.25 ₱ bbl., the latter for choice Cincinnati.

BACON.—On Saturday nearly 200 casks sold, in lots, at 11¼c. for shoulders, 15½c. for clear ribsides, and 16@16¼c. for clear sides.

HAMS—Continue in good supply and dull at 14½@15½c. for choice sugar cured.

LARD—Is scarce, particularly keg, and the demand is good. Tierce commands 13c., keg 16½c. ₱ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT.—On Saturday 15 casks shoulders, a little off, sold, in two lots, at 9½c. ₱ lb.

BREAKFAST BACON—Is in light supply and fair demand at 16c. ₱ lb. for Western.

BEANS AND WESTERN PEAS.—The supply of Northern beans is light. No Western beans or green peas in market. Northern beans sell at 4½@4¾c. ₱ lb.

BAGGING.—The demand is good. Domestic jute is retailing at 16c., hemp 17½c., India in bales and rolls 12@12½c. ₱ yard.

CORN MEAL.—The stock is small, with a scarcity of fresh, and there is little or none coming in. Holders ask $4.25 ₱ bbl., and obtain that in the job trade. On Saturday only 50 bbls. sold at $4 ₱ bbl.

BUTTER.—The supply of Western and Goshen is light, and the demand is good. Inferior Goshen is selling at 30@35c., medium 35@38c., choice 38@40c., common Western 20@27c., medium 25@28c., choice 29@33c. ₱ lb.

CHEESE.—Choice is scarce and common is plentiful. Choice is in fair demand, but common is neglected. Choice Western factory is selling at 13@13½c., English dairy nutmeg and family favorite 17@17½c., New York cream 16c. ₱ lb.

GUNNY BAGS.—They are quoted at 15c. in bales and 16c. apiece resewed.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 109¼@109½ (against 109¾ at New York,) and after a pretty general suspension of business closed at 109¼@109½ (against 109¾ in that market.)

Nothing has been reported in silver. It is quoted at 104½@105 for American half dollars. Mexican dollars closed at 97 gold.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS:
Cotton scrapers	$1 50	— —
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. and shovel-tooth	9 00	12 50
Cultivators, riding and walking	25 00	35 00
Shovels and spades	7 50	16 00
Axes	11 00	16 00
Shovel plows	5 00	7 50
Half do., with cutters	6 00	7 50
Manly's double-shovel plow	6 00	6 75
Corn mills, Coleman's	120 00	225 00
Bradford's grist mills	150 00	225 00
BRICKS, ₱ M:
Lake	9 50	15 00
Country	7 00	9 00
English fire	45 00	47 50
American fire	35 00	— —
CANDLES, ₱ lb.:
Sperm, New Bedford	39	31
Tallow	11	— —
CHOCOLATE, ₱ lb.:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	— —	— —
Sweet	22	— —
COAL, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	12 50	13 00
Western, ₱ bbl.	— —	— —
COFFEE, ₱ lb.:
Mexican	— —	— —
Java	28	30
COTTON SEED:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	10 00
EGGS, ₱ dozen:
Western	15	20
FERTILIZERS, ₱ ton:
Stern's raw-bone superphosph'e.	— —	65 00
Stern's dine-ground bone	— —	45 00
FLOUR, ₱ bbl.:
Double extra	— —	4 75
Superfine	— —	— —
Fine	— —	— —
GLASS, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	— —	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 10 by 14 to 12 by 20	4 00	4 25
French, 14 by 18 to 18 by 20	4 25	4 75
HAY, ₱ ton:
Prime	— —	— —
Choice	— —	27 00
IRON, ₱ ton:
English, ₱ lb.	4	5
Swedes, assorted	7¼	8
Hoop	6	9
Sheet	6	9
Nail rods	— —	9¾
Castings, American	5¾	6
LEATHER, ₱ lb.:
Sole, hemlock	30	33
Sole, oak	40	44
Harness	38	45
Calfskins, ₱ dozen	35 00	100 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb.	24	28
LIME, ₱ bbl.:
Western	1 50	1 75
Cement	2 50	2 75
Plaster Paris	— —	2 75
LUMBER, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	— —	— —
Boards, cypress	— —	— —
Flooring, dressed	18 00	20 00
Flooring, rough	— —	16 00
Ceiling, dressed	12 00	14 00
Weatherboards, dressed	14 00	16 00
Weatherboards, rough	— —	— —
Scantling	10 00	12 00
Shingles, ₱ M	— —	3 25
Laths	— —	— —
OILS:
Lard, ₱ gallon	1 10	1 15
Coal oil, in barrels	17	20
Linseed, raw	1 02	— —
SUGAR, ₱ lb.:
Havana, white	— —	— —
Havana, yellow	— —	— —
Havana, brown	— —	— —
Crushed	10¾	12
Pulverized	11¾	12
TEAS, ₱ lb.:
Imperial	25	— —
Gunpowder	65	— —
Hyson	70	— —
Young Hyson	70	1 00
Pouchong	30	— —
Oolong	25	— —
WAGONS, CARTS, ETC.:
Wagon, two-horse	85 00	90 00
Wagon, four-horse	115 00	125 00
Wagon, two-horse, thim. skein	80 00	85 00
Wagon, four-horse	100 00	110 00
Cane wagon	210 00	215 00
Ox wagon	90 00	125 00
Ox cart, complete	110 00	115 00
Cane cart	110 00	115 00
Tongue cart, complete	120 00	125 00
Plantation cart	55 00	65 00

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 15, 1874.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	— —	@40 00
Texas beeves, first quality, ₱ head	30 00	@ 35 00
Texas cattle, second quality, ₱ head	20 00	@ 25 00
Texas cattle, third quality, ₱ head	12 00	@ 18 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— —	@ — —
Sheep, first quality, ₱ head	4 00	@ 5 00
Sheep, second quality, ₱ head	3 00	@ 4 00
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	35 00	@ 40 00
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@ 9 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	6 00	@ 9 00

Advertisers' Directory

OF THE

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Alphabetically Arranged Under the Heads of the Business or Articles Advertised.

NOTE.—We like no advertisements except from those who we have good reason to believe are respectable and reliable. The publisher urges his solicitor and agents to seek the advertisements of the most worthy and reliable representatives in every branch of business, and not to apply to or accept business from persons of doubtful character. We have refused business to the extent of thousands of dollars each year for want of satisfactory information in reference to applicants. We think we may safely claim for the list below that it embraces, as a rule, the very best men and firms in the different branches represented.

☞ We retain no dead advertisements.

Agencies.
Gregg's Purchasing Bureau, corner Canal and Burgundy streets.
Mrs. H. Mogridge, Purchasing Bureau, 94 and 96 Canal street.
J. Hale Powers, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.
N. D. Thompson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Agricultural Implements.
Louisville Agricultural Works, Louisville, Ky.

Architects.
T. Whitney Carter, 47 Polymnia street, New Orleans.

Banners.
T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, New York.

Barber.
Baptiste, St. Charles Hotel.

Bed Springs.
John Filbu, Philadelphia.

Bells.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Buckeye Bell Foundery, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Belting.
W. N. Thomson, 52 Race street, Cincinnati, O.

Book-Binder.
F. J. Kulmbolz, 112 Gravier street.

Books and Stationery.
Robert J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.
American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
Centennial Publishing Co., St. Louis, Missouri.
Chas. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, Mass.
F. A. Hutchinson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Albert Masun, New York.
Nettleton & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
John E. Potter & Co., Philadelphia.
Queen City Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
B. R. Russell, Boston, Mass.
Valley Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo.
Ziegler & McCurdy, St. Louis, Mo.

Building.
A. J. Bicknell & Co 27 Warren street, New York.

Building Paper.
Edward Thompson, 90 Baronne street, New Orleans.

Carpets.
A. Brousseau & Co., 17 Chartres street.
Elkin & Co., 168 Canal street.

Carriages, Wagons, Etc.
R. O. Dorman & Co., 71 and 73 Oolfe street, New Haven, Conn.
J. A. Lum & Co., 162 Gravier and 13 Union street.
Seabrook & Smith, 128 and 130 Park street, New Haven, Conn.

China and Crockeryware.
W. C. Shepard & Co., 55 Camp street.

Chromos, Etc.
G. E. Perine, 66 Reade street, New York.

Clothing and Furnishing Goods.
Pierson & Hews, 13 and 15 Camp street.

Coal and Wood.
H. D. Wood & Bros., 106 Common street.

Cooperage.
T. A. Reck, 23 and 24 Front street.
P. A. Lelilanc, 22 Front street.

Cotton Gins.
J. B. Wolfe & Co., 39 Carondelet street.

Cotton Ties.
Bartlett & Rayne, 48 Carondelet street.

Croquet.
Bradley's Patent Croquet. Robt. J. Harp, agent. 110 and 112 Camp street.

Dentists.
Dr. John G. Angell, 152 Julia street.

Direct Trade.
Dr. Thomas D. Worrall, 24 and 26 Camp street.

Dry Goods.
Levy Bros., 580 Magazine street.

Educational.
Blackman's Commercial College, 131 Carondelet street.
Centenary College, C. G. Andrews, president, Jackson, La.
Collegiate Academy, Rev. J. A. B. Jones, president, Port Gibson, Miss.
Collegiate Institute, Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge, La.
Eminence College, Eminence, Ky.
Furman's English and Classical School, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Hiwassee College, Rev. J. H. Brunner, presi.
Mansfield Female College,
Martin Washington College, Abingdon, Va.
Polytechnic College, Philadelphia, Pa.
Randolph Macon College, Rev. James A. Duncan, A. M., D. D., president, Ashland, Va.
Readville Seminary, Mrs. M. W. Read Baton Rouge, La.
Soule's Commercial College, corner Camp and Common streets.
Southern University, Greenshoro, Ala
Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va. Rev. W. A. Harris, president.
Whitworth Female College, H. F. Johnson, president, Brookhaven, Miss.

Engravers.
John Gibson, 82 Beekman street, New York.
J. W. Hart, Cincinnati, Ohio.
J. S. Patterson, 28 Beekman street, New York.
Warren Richards, 42 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Edward Sears, 48 Beekman street, New York.

Factors and Commission Merchants.
Aiken & Watt, 60 Carondelet street.
D. H. Wallace, 38 Perdido street.
J. B. Wilkinson, Jr., 29 Peters and 4 Clinton st.

Fire-Arms.
Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburg, Pa.

For Sale.
Tent on Seashore camp ground, Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Framers and Gilders.
Kernan & White, 106 Customhouse street.

Furniture.
John Bois, 152 and 154 Camp street.
Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Co., 160 Julia street, New Orleans.
Hugh Flynn, 167 Poydras street.

Gas Fixtures.
P. H. Quinlan, 280 Camp street.

Glass Staining.
Belcher & Povey, 13 W. Broadway, New York.
William Gibson, Broadway and Thirteenth street, New York.
Henry E. Sharp & Son, New York.
Charles H. Turno 333 East Twenty-third street, New York.

Grocers.
J. M. Dowling, 25 Decatur street.

Hotels.
Crawford House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Frank J. Oakes, proprietor.
St. Denis Hotel, Broadway and Eleventh street, New York.

Iron Manufactories.
M. Walker & Sons, Philadelphia.
Walton, Hemler & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Job Printing.
Pelican Job Office, 112 and 114 Poydras street.

Lumber.
Thomas Hasani, cor. Cedar and Julia streets.
George Purves, cor. St. Charles and Clio streets.
Roberts & Co., 301 to 307 Oravler street.

Machinery.
Billings & Spencer Co., Hartford, Conn.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., 664 to 694 Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Lane & Bodley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Meneely & Kimberly, Troy, New York.
Reynolds Cotton Press, W. H. Reynolds, New Orleans.
Turbine Water-Wheel, N. F. Burnham, York, Penna.
Turbine Water-Wheel, Poole & Hunt, Baltimore, Md.
Jos. Walker, cor. St. Joseph and Constance sts.
Weil-Auger, W. Giles, St. Louis, Mo.
B. J. West, 115 and 117 Magazine street.

Marble Works.
William Pattison, 318 to 332 East Twenty-third street, New York.
Alfred White, 251, 253 and 257 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Medical.
Adderley's Sirup Bromide Chloral, W. H. Adderley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Anti-Rheumatic Mixture, W. J. Jurgielewicz, corner Magazine and Thalia streets.
Artificial Limbs, Charles M. Evans, 76 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky.
Asthma Remedy, D. Langell, Apple Creek, O.
Citrate of Magnesia, etc., Hohmann & Co., N. Y.
Dyspepsia and Liver Complaints, Dr. Justus J. Spreng, New York.
Dr. Fitler's Vegetable Rheumatic Sirup, E. J. Hart & Co., New Orleans.
Dr. A. O. Forsberg, 5 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Hebbard's Cure, E. Dibblee, 814 Sixth avenue, New York.
Kearney's Extract Buchu, Kearney & Co., 104 Duane street, New York.
Opium Cure, Dr. J. C. Beck, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Preventive of Yellow Fever, Dr. B. Brown, 697 Broadway, New York.
Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cure, Geo. Sweetser, 120 Wall street, New York.
Rogers' Effervescing Citrate of Magnesia, A. Rogers, 193 Spring street, New York.
Rupture and Piles Cure, Dr. H. Neeson, 162 St. Charles street.
Simmons' Liver Regulator, J. H. Zeilin & Co. Philadelphia, Pa.
Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient.
Treatment of Catarrh, Dr. A. N. Williamson, New York.
Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills, 18 and 20 Platt street, New York.

Musical Instruments, Publications, Etc.
Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.
D. H. Baldwin & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
F. W. Blere & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Chambers Piano Factory, 336 Fourth avenue, New York.
Henry Erben & Co., 235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-third street, New York.
Henry Pilcher, 656 Portland avenue, Louisville, Ky.
Philip Werlein, 75 to 90 Baronne street.
Whitney & Holmes Organ Co., Quincy, Ill.

Novelties.
J. Bride & Co., 709 Broadway, New York.
W. H. Chidester, 257 Broadway, New York.
Cowan & Co., Eighth street, New York.
Elm City Novelty Company, New Haven, Conn.

Optical Instruments.
Spencer Optical Manufacturing Company, 16 and 18 Maiden Lane, New York
H. Waldstein, 545 Broadway, New York

Paper Mills.
Atlanta Paper Mills, Atlanta, Georgia.

Patents.
H. N. Jenkins, 27 Commercial place.
John A. Wiedersheim & Co., Philadelphia.

Patent Novelties.
George L. Felton & Co., 119 Nassau street, New York.

Pens.
H. Esterbrook & Co., New York.
Joseph Gillott & Son, New York.

Periodicals.
Family Journal, 300 Broadway, New York.
Fruit Recorder and Cottage Gardener, A. M. Purdy, Rochester, N. Y.
Offord's Pulpit of the Day, B. M. Offord New York.

Portrait Painters.
G. D. Coulon, 37 Camp street.

Printing Ink.
S. Collins & Co., 26 Frankfort street, New York.

Professional.
Dr. C. J. Hickham, office, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Dr. J. J. Lyons, office, 219 Carendelet street.
Race, Foster & E. T. Merrick, law office, corner Camp and Commercial place.

Railroads.
Great Jackson Route, A. D. Sheldon, agent, Camp street, corner of Common.

Sewing Machines.
Beckwith Sewing Machine, Edward Thompson, 90 Baronne street, New Orleans.
Domestic, M. S. Hedrick, 103 Canal street.
Wm. Gregg, cor. Canal and Burgundy streets.

Soap.
J. H. Keller, 110 Gravier street.

Steamships and Shipping.
Cromwell Line New York Steamers, Alfred Moulton, agent, 41 Carondelet street.
General Transatlantic Company, L. Grand, Galliet court, letter H.
Merchants' Line New York Steamers, J. H. Ludwigsen, 120 Common street.
State Line, A. K. Miller & Co., 29 Carondelet st.

Stoves.
G. W. W. Goodwyn, 52 Gravier street.
H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Tea.
Great China and Japan Tea Warehouse, 170 Canal street.

Tobacco and Cigars.
Ed. L. Zell, cor. Canal and Carondelet streets.

Type and Presses.
Vanderburgh, Wells & Co., 110 Fulton and 16 and 18 Dutch street, New York.

Undertakers.
T. W. Bothick, 271 Camp street, New Orleans.

Upholstery.
Heath & Lara, 99 Camp street.

Wanted.
Teacher, W. H. Cassell, Canton, Miss.

Washing Machines.
Rogen Washer, H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Watches and Jewelry.
E. A. Tyler, 115 Canal street.
Waltham Watches, Howard & Co., 221 Fifth avenue, New York.

Window Glass.
William Coulter & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio

Wire Railing, Etc.
Dufur & Co. Baltimore, Maryland.

Special Notices.

OFFORD'S PULPIT OF THE DAY.—A Monthly Magazine of Sermons by the greatest preachers living. $1 a year. On trial, 25 cents from August till December Sample copy, 10 cents. B. M. OFFORD, 6 Park place, New York. au20 3m

Religious Notices.

THERE will be a camp meeting at Siloam, four miles from Louisville, Winn parish, Louisiana, commencing on Friday before the second Sunday in October next, which the itinerant and local preachers in the district are specially invited to attend. Preparations will be made to accommodate all the preachers and everybody else. The people are also specially invited.

C. A. C. HERLONG,
Preacher in Charge, Louisville Circuit.

THERE will be a camp meeting at the Beulah camp ground, commencing on the sixteenth of October, 1874. The meeting will be on the self-supporting plan. Everybody is invited to come. Preachers will be taken care of, and are earnestly solicited to attend.

J. M. FRANKLIN, P. C.

CAMP MEETING.—Mr. Editor: We believe that the way to support camp meetings in our pine woods country is to make them self-supporting, and we have appointed a camp meeting to be held one mile west of Clanton, Alabama, on the S. and N. railroad, to commence on Friday before the fourth Sunday in September, 1874. We cordially invite all persons who can worship God upon these terms. There will be several extra tents erected for rent. Any person who wishes to rent will please address the pastor, and he will confer with the trustees and answer at once. Come one! come all! Provision will be made for preachers and their families. We shall be glad if we can have you with us. R. A. MICAR, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Rose road, commencing on Friday night before and embracing the first Sabbath in October. It will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within ten or fifteen miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Friday morning.

J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

CAMP MEETING.—Our camp meeting on Big Creek, Rapides circuit, Louisiana Conference, commences on Wednesday, the twenty-third of September. Preachers and their families are cordially invited to attend. They will be amply provided for. The people generally are expected. Come prepared to entertain and be entertained. JOHN F. WYNN, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING at Smith's camp ground, three miles west of DeSotoville, northern portion of Choctaw county, Alabama, will begin on Friday before the first Sabbath in October. Ministerial brethren are invited to attend. C. B. DUBOSE, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting at Girard, Richland parish, Louisiana, commencing September 23, 1874. It will be on the self-sustaining plan. We invite all who can to attend. Ministers are invited to "come over and help us."

T. S. RANDLE.

THE DISTRICT MEETING for Opelousas district will commence on Thursday, September 24. Rev. J. M. Brown will preach the opening sermon. J. E. Conn, P. E.

THERE will be a camp meeting on Spring Creek circuit, Louisiana Conference, commencing on Friday before the second Sunday in October. Come one! come all! This meeting will be conducted on the self-sustaining plan. There will be corn at or near the camp ground, on reasonable terms. Special provision will be made for ministers and their horses.

FRED. WHITE, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING at China Grove, Dale county, Alabama, will commence on Friday night before the first Sunday in October next, and close on Wednesday morning after. Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South are invited to attend. A. DOWLING, Pastor.

THERE will be a camp meeting nine miles north of Enlaw, Greene county, Alabama Conference, commencing on Thursday night before the second Sabbath in October, 1874. Preachers are respectfully invited.

J. W. MCCANN, P. C.

THE Summit District Conference will be held in Greensburg, Louisiana, commencing October 8, 1874, to be continued over Sunday.

A. B. NICHOLSON, P. E.

SAVE YOUR SIGHT!
Once Lost, It Cannot be Restored.
The Diamond Spectacles
WILL PRESERVE IT.
For sale by a responsible Agent in nearly every city and town.
TRADE MARK, stamped on every pair.
SPENCER OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO.,
Patentees and Sole Manufacturers.
se10 3m8p 16 and 18 Maiden Lane, New York

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

CAMDEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Monterey, at Hickory Hill	Sept. 19, 20
Sepulga, at McKenzie's	26, 27
Lowndesboro, at Lowndesboro	Oct. 10, 11
Pleasant Hill, at Warrenton	17, 18
Camden, at Reaves'	24, 25
Pineville, at Tallahatchie	31, Nov. 1
Monroeville, at Claiborne	Nov. 7, 8
Evergreen, at Prayearville	14, 15
Brewton, at Black's	21, 22
Georgiana, at Oakey Streak	28, 29

17 J. W. SHORES, P. E.

DEMOPOLIS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Livingston	Sept. 12, 13
Butler, at camp ground	19, 20
Greene, at camp ground	Oct. 10, 11
Eulaw	17, 18
Belmont, at Belmont	24, 25
Forkland	31, Nov. 1
Cuba, at York	Nov. 7, 8
Gaston, at Smith's camp ground	10
Gainesville, at Ramsey	14, 15
Bladon, at Isney	21, 22
Demopolis	Dec. 5, 6

10 S. H. COX, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

VICKSBURG DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

South Warren, at Rovina	Oct. 3, 4
Vicksburg and Grove street	10-12
Kingston, at Kingston	17, 18
Natchez	24, 25
Fayette	31, Nov. 1
Cayuga, at Cayuga	7, 8
Port Gibson	14, 15
Rocky Springs	21, 22
Rolling Fork	28, 29
Clover Hill	Dec. 5, 6
Beechland	12, 13

17 F. M. FEATHERSTON, P. E.

JACKSON DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Jackson station	Sept. 19, 20
Yazoo City and Silver Creek, at Palmetto Home	26, 27
Yazoo circuit, at Locust Grove	Oct. 3, 4
Camden circuit, at Camden	10, 11
Dover circuit, at Dover	17, 18
Mount Olivet circuit, at Mount Olivet	24, 25
Sharon circuit, at Lone Pine	31, Nov. 1
Carthage circuit, at Conway	Nov. 7, 8
Madison circuit, at Madison station	14, 15
Brownsville circuit, at Queen's Hill	21, 22
Thomastown circuit	28, 29
Canton station	Dec. 5, 6

The local preachers will please to remember that the law now requires them to give a written statement of their labors for the year to the fourth Quarterly Conference. I hope they will be ready with their reports. Trustees of church property will please have their reports ready also. Secretaries of Church Conferences will please have their reports on statistics ready also.

H. H. MONTGOMERY, P. E.,
Sharon, Mississippi.

MEDICAL.

DYSPEPSIA,

IN ITS RELATION TO THE LIVER AND DIGESTIVE ORGANS.—JUSTUS J. SPRENG, M. D., member of the New York Academy of Medicine, devotes his special attention to Liver and Stomach diseases. Pamphlet mailed for 20 cents. Address the author, No. 241 West Twenty-Second street, New York city.

"The author's conclusions are marked, and governed by sound judgment and long practical experience."—Medical Gazette. se21 1yep

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. Trade Mark. Patented.

WHAT IS THIS GREAT REMEDY, and what are its effects? These are questions which the great American public has a right to ask, and it has also a right to expect a candid and satisfactory reply. The preparation is a mild and gentle saline cathartic, alterative and tonic, and in most carefully prepared in the form of a snow-white powder, containing all the wonderful medical properties of the fur famed Seltzer Springs of Germany.

Of its effects, those who have tested the preparation are the best judges, and they declare, over their own signatures, that the preparation will promptly relieve indigestion, regulate the flow of the bile, cure every species of headache, tranquilize the nervous system, refresh and invigorate the weak, mitigate the pangs of rheumatism, neutralize acid in the stomach, cleanse and tone the bowels, assist the failing appetite, and cure the heartburn. If you are a sufferer, give this remedy one trial, and it will convince you of the above facts. Sold by all druggists. se10 2t

DR. ROGERS'
VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

A brave man may suffer pain, when inflicted upon himself, heroically; but he

CANNOT SEE HIS CHILD SUFFER.

There is no other malady incident to childhood that is accompanied with more indescribable wretchedness to the little sufferers than that

"PRODUCED BY WORMS;"

and when the parent fully comprehends the situation he will not delay a moment in securing the most prompt and efficient remedies to insure the expulsion of the intruders. This remedy may be found in

DR. ROGERS'
VEGETABLE WORM SIRUP.

Please bear in mind that

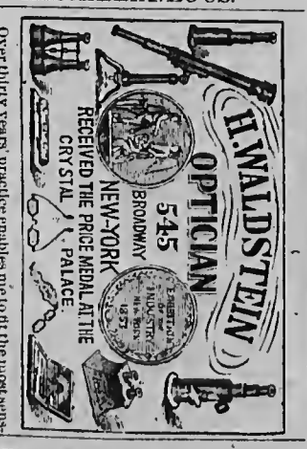
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Is the reliable preparation.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Is a palatable preparation.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is liked by children.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP
Positively destroys Worms.
ROGERS' WORM SIRUP leaves no bad effects.

ROGERS' WORM SIRUP is highly recommended by physicians, and is unquestionably the BEST WORM MEDICINE IN THE WORLD.

Price, 25 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

JOHN F. HENRY, CURRAN & CO.,
Proprietors,
ao20 1m 8 and 9 College Place, New York.

MISCELLANEOUS.



Over thirty years' practice enables me to fit the most delicate eyes with Glasses, by correspondence, as well as if personal interview. Satisfaction guaranteed. se10 3m

DIRECT TRADE.

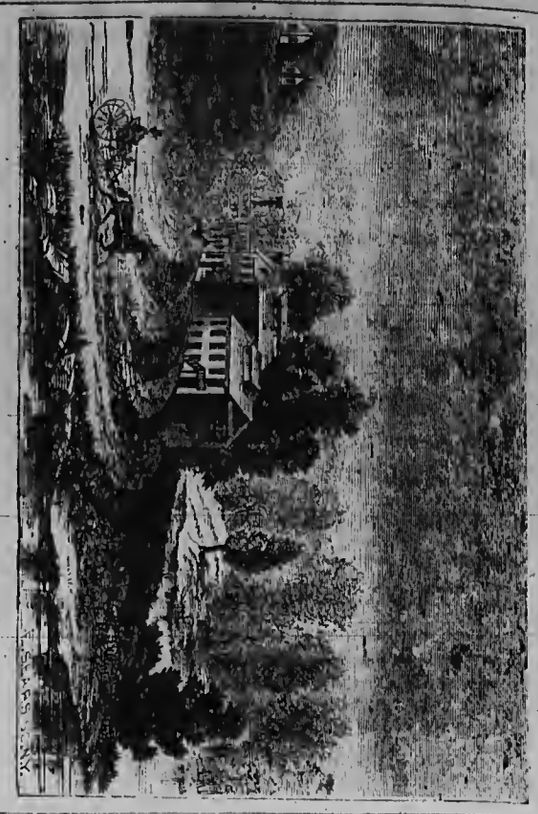
DIRECT TRADE.

Merchants and business men of the Mississippi Valley who desire to purchase IMPORTED GOODS of British manufacture, at little if any over half the cost of such when purchased in New York, should correspond with or call upon DR. THOMAS D. WORRALL, American Director of the Direct Trade Company, 24 and 26 Camp street, New Orleans.

Samples of stock constantly on hand. je18 4m

$78 A WEEK TO AGENTS.—Best-selling articles out. Needle-Book, with elegant Chromos, etc. Three valuable samples, 10 cents, or circular free. Address J. BRIDE & CO., 709 Broadway, New York. au20 3m

PAPER MILLS.



ATLANTA PAPER MILLS.

JAMES ORMOND, PROPRIETOR.

OFFICE—NO. 48 BROAD STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

☞ For Specimen of "News" we refer to this issue of this Paper. Cash Orders Solicited.

MEDICAL.

DR. C. M'LANE'S
CELEBRATED
LIVER PILLS,
FOR THE CURE OF
LIVER COMPLAINT,
DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increase on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder-blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them A FAIR TRIAL.

P. S. Dealers and Physicians ordering from others than Fleming Bros. will do well to write their orders distinctly, and take none but Dr. C. M'Lane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of base imitations. To those wishing to give them a trial, we will forward per mail, post paid, to any part of the United States; one box of Pills for twelve three-cent postage stamps, or one vial of Vermifuge for fourteen three-cent stamps. All orders from Canada must be accompanied by twenty cents extra.

DR. C. M'LANE'S
VERMIFUGE
Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up HEALTHY, STRONG, and VIGOROUS MEN and WOMEN, give them a few doses of
M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,
TO EXPEL THE WORMS.
Ja29 1yeow

RHEUMATISM NEURALGIA
WE CLERGYMEN WERE CURED

OF CHRONIC AND ACUTE RHEUMATISM, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica, Kidney and Nervous diseases, after years of suffering, by taking DR. FITLER'S VEGETABLE RHEUMATIC SIRUP. Prescription of J. P. Fitler, M. D., graduate of 1833. The only physician in the world's history treating these diseases thirty-nine years consecutively.

It is truly a certain cure, and in our judgment the only specific ever discovered.—Rev. C. H. Ewing, Media, Pa., suffered sixteen years; became hopeless. Rev. Thomas Mur

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. 20. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1874. NO. 39.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17, 1 P. M.—The ...ling expressed by the merchants ...ere, and the utterances of the press, ...dicate sympathy with the people ...f Louisiana in respect to the misrule ...f the Kellogg government and om... arrassments caused thereby; and ...e Washington administration is ...elieved here to be thoroughly dis...atisfied with that government, as ...as evinced by the President's mes...age to Congress last winter on ...Louisiana affairs.

Both the press and the people ...ere, however, irrespective of party, ...re unanimous in condemnation of ...he revolutionary method adopted ...y the citizens of Louisiana to dis...lace the Kellogg dynasty, holding ...hat such action establishes a bad ...recedent, destructive of all good ...overnment.

Louisiana bonds are unsalable ...uring the present condition of af...airs.—Picayune.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The Episcopal ...Convention elected Dr. Seymour, rec...or of St. Mark's church, New York, ...Bishop of Illinois on the second ...ballot.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The Trib...ne, in an editorial headed "The Pres...ident's Victory," says: General Grant ...as vanquished the people of Louis...iana again. He has telegraphed to ...is generals and his admirals, he has ...et the army and navy in motion, ...nd the lawful government of Louis...iana surrenders. If there was any ...doubt before as to the character of ...he usurpation which rules the un...happy State by favor of the Presi...dent, any question whether the ...people really acquiesced in it, there ...can be none now. The outrage stands ...out henceforth in all its naked de...formity, an unpardonable crime ...against popular suffrage and the sov...ereignty of a State. A government ...which the people loathe and despise ...was forced upon Louisiana by the ...soldiers of the President. Left ...to themselves for a moment, the ...people threw it off and installed the ...officers whom they had regularly ...chosen at the polls. The deposed ...intruders made no fight; they were ...as helpless and cowardly as children ...in the presence of the indignant ...people; but, cowering behind the ...shatters of the Custom-house, they ...telegraphed to the President: "The ...people have put us out. This is your ...job. Come you and put us back ...again." Two years ago Grant yielded ...to the bad advice of his disreputable ...associates and installed Kellogg at ...New Orleans by fraud and force, be...cause he wanted the electoral vote of ...the State, which a majority of the ...voters had given to the other side. ...That wicked deed has brought forth ...a full crop of crimes. We have seen ...him dispersing a Legislature at the ...point of the bayonet, expelling a ...legitimate government with threats ...of martial law, and reversing the ...course of justice by the scandalous ...support of a perjured court. His own ...friends have exclaimed at the iniquity ...of these proceedings and warned him ...to desist. The hottest partisans of ...his administration have denounced ...the wicked usurpations of Kellogg ...and Durell with an indignation that ...does them credit. Seventeen Repub...lican senators voted in February, ...1873, to declare the pretended election ...of Kellogg null and void, and to turn ...him out of office. The President ...himself finally admitted in a special ...message to Congress that so many ...forgeries and frauds had been discov...ered that he was not sure of Kellogg's ...title. An official investigation proved ...the rascality of the whole transaction ...beyond any possibility of denial. ...But the President would not halt; ...he must carry out his original crime ...to its natural consequences, and the ...inexorable logic of events has led him ...to this crowning shame. For the first ...time in the history of the United States ...the soldiers of the Union are em...ployed to drive out a legitimate Gov...ernor and place a miserable pretender ...in the State-house, to shoot down in ...the streets the people who may refuse ...to obey him. For this disgraceful ...and disheartening spectacle the Con...gress which refuses to act on the ...Louisiana report, and the Republican ...party which tacitly approved the ...wrong, are both to blame; but it is ...upon the President that the chief re...sponsibility must rest. The Presi...dent, who began the long course of ...oppression; the President, who could ...have stopped it at any moment if he ...had chosen, and could stop it now; ...the President, who is probably the ...only man in America not ashamed ...of the whole business, and who comes ...forward in the midst of it asking for ...a third term.

BAYOU SARA, Sept. 18.—On Wed...nesday night we received reports of ...the intention of a large body of ne...groes to enter, sack and burn the ...town, which were not entirely with...out foundation. All the available ...men were gotten ready for the at...tack, which did not take place until ...last night about eleven o'clock, when ...a body of negroes advanced on the ...town by the Woodville road, having ...cut the telegraph line and torn up ...the railroad about five P. M.

They entered a store outside of our ...pickets, took what they wanted, and ...asked for coal oil to burn the houses; ...and said that the store they were in ...then would be the only one excepted ...from the burning. When they were ...halted they closed up and fired with...out answering. Citizens gave them ...two or three volleys, when they re...treated in great disorder, leaving ...guns, hats and one horse. They ...were mounted.

Two were wounded that we know ...of, and it is supposed others. They ...had wagons along, supposed to be for ...the purpose of taking out spoils. Many colored citizens unite with us in defending our homes, and deserve credit. Telegraph and railroad repaired early this morning.

They are reported to be organizing a large force, even going into Mississippi for recruits. We are on the alert, but need arms badly. The squad that fired on the rioters was commanded by the sheriff, a colored man.

Mounted posse out now endeavoring to arrest the leaders. Will keep you posted.

Later.—We are indebted to Major E. A. Burke for the following copy of a dispatch received here yesterday:

The rioters are headed and led by Kellogg senator and representatives. The citizens are acting lawfully and with our colored sheriff. We are attempting to arrest ringleaders with lawful warrants. Scouts in the immediate vicinity report all quiet; but reports from the country say Swayzie and Armistead are recruiting their forces, and the excitement has spread among the negroes in Wilkinson county, Mississippi. Many good colored men are acting with us. Telegraph wire cut and railroad track torn up. Country stores entered and pillaged. F. M. MUMFORD.

Still Later.—Troops have arrived, also reinforcements from the country. From all indications an attack is intended to-night.

Twenty Mississippi negroes were persuaded to return to their homes by a committee of Radicals, sent down to them by the mayor of Woodville, but the balance of them were determined to attack to-night. The presence of troops may overawe them. All quiet and thoroughly prepared. Swayzie is under arrest.—Picayune.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—A dispatch from Fall River, timed 10.45, says the fire is principally confined to the Granite mill, which is a total loss. The property is insured for $400,000. The fire is still burning, but is under control. The hands went to work as usual, when shortly afterward the fire burst forth with lightning quickness, cutting off the fire alarm and egress from the building, which contained some seven hundred men, women and children. Many perished in the flames, and others jumped from the upper windows and were killed. The cries of the women and children are heartrending. It is impossible to get the number of killed.

FALL RIVER, MASS., Sept. 19.—The loss is estimated at $500,000. The operatives in the spooling-room in the fifth story were seized with a panic. Thirty were killed or are dying, and the injured amount to as many more.

There are twenty-five bodies of victims by the fire at the police station; the others were taken elsewhere. The fire originated in what is known as the hat-box in the mule-head.

Four firemen lost their lives in heroic efforts to save the lives of girls in the mill. The dead number forty, the injured eighty.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—In response to the offer to send aid to Fall River by the superintendent of the Fall River railroad, in this city, the following dispatch has been received:

Fall River, Sept. 19.—J. R. Kendrick, Superintendent: No help is required. The fire is under control. Probably eight or ten lives were lost, mostly by jumping from the fifth story.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The State Department to-day paid to Great Britain nearly $2,000,000 gold, to satisfy the British claimants under the awards of the mixed commission under the treaty of Washington. Two and a half per cent. was withheld to pay the expenses of the commission. The $16,000,000 paid by England to satisfy the Alabama claims from American citizens is still covered in the treasury.

Major H. C. Hodges, chief quartermaster, Department of the Gulf, has been assigned to New Orleans.

Dr. G. B. Todd's death is officially announced from Pensacola; also that of Commander Franklin, at the same place, from yellow fever. Three medical officers have arrived, also Prof. Logan, a volunteer from New Orleans, at Pensacola. The latest intelligence from the navy-yard shows no abatement of the fever.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The Tribune says with reference to the recent rumors of a large shipment of arms to the South: "A careful inquiry among the agents of manufacturing companies and large dealers shows that in the main such reports have been unfounded."

Reverdy Johnson thinks the best solution of the Louisiana difficulty would be for both Kellogg and McEnery and the Lieutenant Governors under them to resign, and submit to a new election.

The house of Maurer, the fanatical priest, in Brazil, was attacked by national troops to the number of eight hundred. His followers made a stubborn resistance. The deaths among them were nine men, four women and two children. Six soldiers were killed and thirty wounded. The Brazilian forces at present in Assuncion are to be withdrawn at once.

AN English church paper says: "Some time since Father Ignatius was about to preach at a well-known church. A popular hymn of Dr. Watts' was sung before the sermon, and when it ended the preacher repeated slowly the last two lines:

"'Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all;'

adding: 'Well, I am surprised to hear you sing that. Do you know that altogether you put only fifteen shillings into the bag this morning?'"

A Military Governor.

The New Orleans Picayune of Thursday, Sept. 17, says: Governor McEnery, Lieutenant Governor Penn and Mr. R. H. Marr held a long private interview with General Emory at the St. Charles Hotel, between half-past two and five P. M. During this interview a courier was dispatched for Colonel Brooke, United States army, who after some time appeared and joined the conference, the result of which is as follows, on the authority of Mr. R. H. Marr:

After long consultation, Governer McEnery agreed to turn over the Statehouse property to General Emory. General Brooke will be appointed military governor, and all will act under him.

The police will remain as now constituted under Mr. Boylan, but will be turned over to the management of the mayor.

The city government will remain as now constituted, it being recognized by General Emory as in full force and efficiency.

It is not understood that the city is under martial law, although under a military governer.

ORDER OF GENERAL EMORY.

The Governer and Lieutenant Governor returned to the Statehouse about half-past four o'clock, and reported the following as the order of General Emery in response to the communication of the State officials:

HEADQUARTERS DEPT. OF THE GULF,
New Orleans, Sept. 17, 1874.

CIRCULAR.

John McEnery and D. B. Penn, styling themselves respectively Governor and Lieutenant Governor of the State of Louisiana, having informed the department commander of their willingness, under the President's proclamation, to surrender the State property now in their possession and to disband the insurgent forces under their command:

Brevet Brigadier General J. R. Brooke, lieutenant colonel Third Cavalry, is charged with the duty of taking possession of the arms and other property. He will occupy the Statehouse, arseual and other State buildings until further orders.

He is hereby appointed to command the city of New Orleans until such time as the State and city government can be organized.

The present police force in the city, under charge of Thomas Boylan, will remain on duty, and be responsible for the good order and quiet of the city until regularly relieved.

By command of Colonel and Brevet Major General W. H. Emory.

LUKE O'RIELLY,
Capt. Nineteenth Infantry, A. D. C.

To the M. E. Church South.

WEST POINT, MISS., Sept. 1, 1874.

The members of the Methodist church at this place, after trying to relieve their church of an indebtedness that is due and must be paid this fall, find that after having expended their utmost endeavors to do so, they have yet to pay $1,200.

Our church for this amount is mortgaged, and we will no longer be indulged by our creditors.

Unable any further to help ourselves, we appeal to the Methodist Church at large for contributions.

Brother, sister, little children, will you contribute, if it is only a mite, toward saving one of our Lord's houses of worship?

Remit by postoffice order to

W. S. SYKES.

Being solicitous for the success of the church at West Point, and satisfied of their financial inability, we heartily indorse and concur in this appeal. T. Y. RAMSEY, P. E.
R. PAINE, Bishop.

THE ALABAMA RADICAL PROGRAMME.—We read in the Montgomery Advertiser of the thirteenth instant:

A copy of a secret circular lately sent out from the headquarters of the Radical State executive committee has fallen into our hands. A number of questions are propounded by it, the sixth of which is to this effect: "What do you need to carry your county?" To this question the reply was: "More guns and $600 in money."

So they have been distributing arms among the negroes. Those to whom we now refer have not received enough; they want more. Will the people of Alabama make a note of this? The negroes propose to carry the election with money and guns! Seven hundred, armed with Springfield muskets, marched against Eutaw the other day. The Register was curious to know where those muskets came from. It appears that they came from Mobile, and that C. E. Meyer sent them out.

"FREDERICK DOUGLASS advises the negroes to migrate from the States in which they are in a minority to those in which they are in a majority. He thinks that South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana may in this way be secured to permanent negro control."

And is not this advice, says the New York Observer, precisely in the teeth of all that Mr. Douglass and his people have been preaching these many years past? They have been fighting for "equality" on the same ground, and now he proposes that they should go where they can have "control."

A MINISTER in Keokuk, Iowa, recently married a couple at Bonaparte. The ceremony was performed by telegraph. That's beginning life in a business-like way.

From the Work.

WOODVILLE DISTRICT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We are having good times on this district. Many accessions and many conversions. You will hear from us again.

J. L. FORSYTH.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1874.

RAPIDES CT., LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Since my report of July 30 I have held several protracted meetings, resulting in about forty conversions, and thirty-eight added to the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Yours in Christ,

JOHN F. WYNN.

SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

UNIONTOWN STATION, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We have had a glorious revival in this charge. I was assisted by Bros. S. M. Thames and Kelley. The preaching was in power and demonstration of the Spirit, and proved the power of God unto the salvation of many. The church was revived, backsliders were reclaimed, and thirty-two persons were received into the church. To God be all the praise.

J. W. GLENN.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1874.

PEACHTREE CIRCUIT.—Mr. Editor: In the lower part of Selma district we are enjoying a precious revival. Just closed the third round with hundreds of new recruits to fight the battles of the Lord. Bros. Turner, Rice, Wade, Frazer and Hundley are working on the high places. Yesterday twenty-five were received. Baptisms, eleven adults and ten infants, at Liberty, on this circuit. This has been a year of great toil and suffering to the preachers, but they have endured hardness as good soldiers, and now reap their reward. A. J. BRIGGS.

SEPTEMBER 14, 1874.

ELBA CIRCUIT, ELBA, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: We have had another precious revival on this work. On the seventh of September, at Rose Hill, in Covington county, we closed a two weeks' meeting, which resulted in twenty-five conversions or more, and fourteen accessions to the church from the world, and five joined by letter. This was by far the best revival enjoyed at this church for years. Members of the church were penitents at the altar, and were savingly converted. Persons who were never known to shout before publicly praised God. The mourners, when they made profession of religion, enjoyed a bright manifestation of God's redeeming love. They would first pray aloud for mercy, and then give glory to God. Some who lately made profession of faith in Christ have erected the family altar. A young men's prayer meeting is also established at this place, and some of the new converts have taken up the cross. The Lord be praised!

B. G. BLACKWELL, P. C.

ELBA, ALA., Sept. 15, 1874.

FANNIN, MISSISSIPPI.—Mr. Editor: We are having a glorious time on the Fannin circuit, Mississippi Conference. We began our protracted efforts at Shiloh. Three united with our church here.

On the first Sabbath in this month we closed a nine days' meeting at Union, seven miles northwest of Brandon, where God most graciously and powerfully revived his work. People came from fifteen to twenty miles, and no sooner did they enter the sanctuary than the holy fire from heaven met them in godly reverence. Day and night immense crowds gathered, and scores fell before the throne, sought mercy, and found the pearl of great price. We were forcibly reminded of a camp meeting in South Carolina long years ago. The results of the meeting were truly wonderful. Sixty-five professed saving faith in Christ, forty-five joined our branch of the church, and twenty-two were baptized.

We are under special obligations to Bro. W. H. Lieth, of Brandon, for valuable services rendered us. We are also under obligations to Bro. Robert A. Whitfield, of the Baptist Church. W. W. HURST, Pastor.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1874.

MANSFIELD, LOUISIANA.—Mr. Editor: Our Bethel camp meeting commenced on Friday, the fourth of September, and closed on Tuesday night, the eighth. We had good weather, a good attendance, good preaching, and a good time generally. There were seven accessions to the church, three baptisms, several conversions, and the church much revived.

To our agreeable surprise, Rev. C. G. Andrews, president of Centenary College, made his appearance in our midst on Sabbath evening. He did us good service in the way of preaching; also had a showing to present the claims of the college. For a president of a college to travel two hundred and fifty or three hundred miles over this rough country, in a rickety buggy, driving a mule which apparently had its full share of bones, in the interests of the college, could hardly fail to leave the impression that he is consecrated to his work. Our missionary collection amounted to $44 in cash and subscriptions. My presiding elder requires me to bring up fifty cents per member. That seems to be very little, yet it is more than we usually get. J. P.

SEPTEMBER 8, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: The preachers in southern Mississippi and east Louisiana—at least the most of them—are having gracious success in their churches. Some of them have almost doubled their membership this year. I believe one preacher (H. P. Lewis) received into church membership, on the Holmesville circuit, about one hundred and twenty-five in four weeks. I think the people are being converted in the apostolic way. The work in many instances is rather remarkable for religious power. We trust the end is not yet. The preachers, as a rule, have dropped everything else but services of the church, and the cry is: "Come and help me." We have among us a Northern Methodist minister—chaplain of McComb City. He is a most excellent preacher, a zealous man, and makes himself very pleasant and useful among us; in fact it looks as if we could not get along well, right at this time, without him. I write this that our Zion may know that the Lord is doing great things for us, whereof we are glad. A. B. NICHOLSON.

SUMMIT, MISS., Sept. 14, 1874.

CENTERVILLE, ALEXANDRIA DISTRICT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: I write to give you some revival news. You have heard of some of the good things which the Lord has done for us from Rev. Dr. Taylor. But since then the Lord has visited his plantation, and poured out upon his people showers of divine grace.

About the first of August we held a meeting at Centerville, which lasted eight days. We were assisted by Bros. E. W. Yancey, W. V. Taylor and John Sale, local. This meeting was owned and crowned of God. Here twenty souls began life anew, being born of the Spirit. Some of these conversions were the brightest I ever saw. Eight of these converts felt it a privilege to join the church and become Methodists.

We have also had a protracted meeting at Trout Creek—an appointment on this circuit—which resulted in great good. Never in life have I seen more powerful evidences of the presence of the Spirit. Here there were some twelve conversions, while twenty-four have joined the church this year at this place. Bro. John Sale assisted here.

On Saturday, the twenty-ninth of August, Bros J. Sale and J. N. Riley, local, and your correspondent began a meeting at Duke's, near Catahoula lake. This has been an uncultivated field since the late civil war. The people, as might be expected, were hungry for the gospel. The meeting lasted four days. Here we had a gracious time, and six souls testify that the Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sin. We had here fourteen additions to the church. We expect to organize a Methodist church at this place.

Our third quarterly meeting convened at Centerville, September 5 and 6. Bro. Stone, our efficient and effective elder, was here. We had a pleasant Quarterly Conference. Several ministerial brethren were with us. Our morning love-feast was a feast indeed. The meeting was not protracted, but the Lord was present in converting power. There were five conversions and six additions to the church.

But to conclude: during the year, so far, we have had fifty-four conversions and eighty accessions to the church. To God be the glory evermore. Your brother in Christ,

W. R. W.

MIDWAY CAMP MEETING, NORTH LOUISIANA.—Mr. Editor: Our camp meeting closed last Monday night. The increase in tents and interest over last year will hardly bear comparison. Bro. Wright preached the opening sermon on Thursday night, from Abraham's intercession for Sodom. God manifested himself from the very commencement; but the greatest blessing seems to have been reserved till Monday night, when almost everybody seemed to have realized God's presence either in conviction or rejoicing. Such wonderful displays of God's power we have rarely witnessed. Bro. Carter, our esteemed presiding elder, was present, preaching in great power. In fact all the preachers seemed to be under the immediate inspiration of the Holy Spirit during the meeting, and labored with great acceptability.

Preachers present during the meeting: Bro. Evans, of Monroe; Manley, of Bastrop; McClendon, of Lind Grove; Wright, of Oak Ridge; Randle, of Rayville; George Jackson, of Winnsboro; J. M. Billingsley, of Wesley chapel; J. G. Miller, of Lake Providence. Local: Renen and Halloway, the latter being licensed to preach at our third quarterly meeting, which was held on Saturday, during camp meeting. Considering the meeting from the commencement to the close, perhaps it was one of the most wonderful we have had in the country since the war. The exact number of converstens is not known. The last night the altar was crowded with penitents. Fourteen joined the church, the most of whom are males, and among the best citizens of the country. God has greatly revived the membership of the church in this and adjoining communities, as well as sending the revival influence of his Spirit all over the district.

The good that has been accomplished during our camp meeting cannot be fully realized this side of eternity. The sermons, prayers and songs still linger while we write, and more forcibly than ever do we realize the remarks of the disciples when they said: "Did not our hearts burn within us while he talked with us by the way?" All hail to the tenters and good people for the hospitality and kindness extended to ministers and people from a distance. Thanks also to the North Louisiana and Texas railroad for favors extended. God speed the day when each circuit shall have a permanent camp ground, where the people every year can enjoy a feast of tabernacles.

H. M. LIVERMAN.

SEPTEMBER 10, 1874.

GREENSBORO DISTRICT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The District Conference for Greensboro district this year, which was held at Ivy Creek, Methodist Episcopal Church South, August 27–29, was a very interesting session. In the absence of a Bishop the chair was occupied by Dr. A. H. Mitchell, presiding elder. William H. Mason was elected secretary, and J. S. Hansborger assistant secretary. Every charge in the district was represented save one. From the reports of the various pastoral charges we learn that the spiritual state of the church has improved during the year. Much more attention is paid to family worship than formerly. Class meetings and prayer meetings are observed in most of the charges, though in some these means of grace are wholly neglected. There are thirty-nine Sabbath schools, with eleven hundred and fifty scholars, and a bare supply of teachers. Our Sunday school literature is used in most of the schools.

There is a general interest felt throughout the district on the subject of education, but the financial condition of the country is such as to put it out of the power of our people in many places to have even neighborhood schools, and consequently but few children are sent from home to be educated. Denominational schools were highly recommended by the Conference.

There are two missions in the district, in each of which much good is being accomplished. The number of churches and, also the membership have nearly doubled within the last two years. There is yet a large scope of territory unoccupied.

The financial condition of the district is by no means encouraging. A little over one-third of the amount of the assessments made on the district has been paid, leaving the two-thirds to be gathered up with the gathering in of the cotton crop. No systematic plan has been devised—with one or two exceptions—by which the various allowances are to be raised. Every charge seems to have a plan peculiar to itself. In view of the straightness of the times no definite plan was recommended.

The report on temperance elicited longer and louder discussion than any other subject. The discussions, however, on this and all other subjects were courteous, agreeable and to the point. The use of intoxicating liquors is damaging to the church in some charges, though not generally. A resolution was passed indorsing the action of the late General Conference proposing to amend the General Rules so as to forbid the making, buying and selling of intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage.

Prof. John Massey, of the Centenary Male Institute, addressed the Conference on the subject of education. We expect to hear that speech soon again through the columns of your paper.

The following persons were elected delegates to the next Annual Conference: Dr. Samuel Perry, Dr. Charles M. Howard, Dr. S. P. Smith and James L. Claughton. Alternates—J. S. Hansberger and G. L. Smith.

Marion was selected as the place for holding the next District Conference.

The preaching during the whole session was good. The congregations were large and attentive. There were several accessions to the church on Sunday night.

The kindness and hospitality of the community about Ivy Creek church cannot be surpassed, and some of us will never forget the pleasant acquaintances formed and kindnesses shown us while there.

WM. H. MASON, Sec.

P. S.—The pleasure of the occasion was seriously marred on Saturday night by a sad accident which befell our beloved brother, the Rev. B. D. Gayle. He preached for us that night, and after services, when he had left the church, while unhitching his horse he was kicked by another horse near by, having his leg broken just above the knee. He was taken to the residence of Dr. C. M. Howard, where he will receive every attention demanded of medical skill and Christian sympathy.

W. H. M.

Periodicals.

ST. NICHOLAS for October has every variety of entertainment for the young folks. The illustrations are numerous and very fine. Among other articles of interest are: A Letter from Egypt, The Earth, the Moon and the Comet, Ice in India, Our Lighthouses and Lightships. Our boys at home always look and wait impatiently for the monthly visits of this splendid magazine. Published by Scribner & Co., New York. Price, $3 per annum.

OLD AND NEW for October has: The Lost Palace, Our Sketching Club, Logan, the Mingo Chief, The Way we Live Now, King-Making in the Sandwich Islands, The Relations of the National and State Governments to Advanced Education, and other articles.

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for September maintains its high reputation for splendid illustrations and instructive reading matter.

DEATH to a good man is but passing through a dark entry, out of one little dusky room of his Father's house into another that is fair and large, lightsome and glorious, and divinely entertaining.—Adam Clarke.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1874.

THE TWO HARVESTS.

BY AUSTIN Q. BARKMAN.

Full-eared and ripe the wheaten harvest stands
O'er many a fruitful field;
And sturdy harvesters with busy hands
Gather the golden yield.

Not slothful are the strong-armed reaping hands,
Their labor is not grief.
For fair, full recompense before them stands
In every heavy sheaf.

The nations for the gospel's harvest, too, are white;
Vast fields for toilers wait;
O reapers, with God's sickle sharp and bright,
Go ere it is too late.

Go ere the beckoning fields grow dark and sere,
And the harvest-time be past;
Lest, when the shadows of death's night draw near,
Empty ye stand at last.

But when the evening comes his Lord's rich wages
He who reaps receives,
And through the years of everlasting ages,
Joy o'er his precious sheaves.

What Is Temperance

IN RESPECT TO THE USE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS?

NO. III.—BY J. W.

In the "Treatise on Poisons," already alluded to, it is stated that when narcotico-acrid poison is taken in the larger doses, narcoticism predominates. The question before us in this article is: Does alcohol, when used in the larger doses, produce such effects as identify its nature as that of a narcotico-acrid poison? Narcoticism is a fearfully destructive principle. It not only dissolves the physical fabric of man, but disorders the intellectual faculties of man; it not only kills the body, but demoralizes the soul. It is strangely satanic in its destroying influences upon man. Narcoticism is literally the deadening of the power to feel; it is the paralyzing of the nervous system—the suspension of the wonderful nerve telegraphy whereby the soul maintains living relation with the various parts of the body. The fell charm of a narcotic is that it partially and temporarily stupefies consciousness, so that the individual becomes oblivious, more or less, of his pains and cares, of his relations and obligations to others; he thereby gets to himself peace where there is no peace—gets to himself lawless relief from the activities of the moral sense. This abnormal exemption from the promptings of consciousness—this strange relaxing of the sense of duty—suffuses a negative pleasure in the soul which drowses and demoralizes the will-power of the individual with a cowardly shrinking from pain on the one hand, and a prodigal craving after self-indulgence on the other hand. It is in the nature of a narcotic thus to excite, more and more, as it is made use of, desires in the individual for its abnormal effects, until this desire strengthens into a fierce appetite, when, henceforth, the fierce appetite for the narcotic usurps the will-power of the individual, and rules him as if he were possessed of an evil spirit. When narcoticism predominates in a human being—when the sense of moral obligation to self, to family, to society, to God, is thereby bewitched into brute-like indifference—it is easy to see how readily he becomes the dupe of satan, "taken captive by him at his will." Moreover, it is well known that a narcotic so injures and lowers the tone of the delicate sensatory organs, upon which it directly acts, that the susceptibility of these organs decrease with every action of the narcotic, thereby necessitating an increased amount of the drug in every subsequent effort to produce the desired effects. Hence we see that it is in the nature of a narcotic to establish in him who takes it a law of increase—the smaller dose inevitably tends to the larger dose—the most moderate use is but the first link of a chain whose end is excessive use.

Does alcohol possess this diabolical power? When taken in the larger doses, does narcoticism predominate? Dr. Jewett, of New York, furnishes a case in proof, which as sufficiently answers this question as would the citation of the many similar cases of which we read and hear and see every day:

"An individual had, in a drunken brawl, fractured both bones of the leg below the knee. When I reached his wretched home he was seated on the side of his bed, still under the influence of the drink which had broken his bones. His reason being dethroned, and his nerves for the time paralyzed, he was making himself quite merry over this serious injury. Grasping the leg just below the knee with both hands, he raised the foot from the floor, and, swinging it from side to side, exclaimed: 'Look here, doctor; see what a funny leg I have got. You see I have a new joint in it.'"

All the other narcotic effects of alcoholic liquor are only too palpable. We need not ransack books in search of them. What else than the fruits of narcoticism are the blighting and blasting which alcoholic liquor produce in the mind and morals of the man who uses it in the "larger doses!" We see alcoholic liquor rendering such a man insensible and irresponsive to every obligation, however sacred. We see it enervating his will, disordering his intellect, incapacitating his soul for all noble discipline, emasculating his manhood of everything good and true and beautiful, and breathing corruption into his affections, his tastes, his ambitions. Who so scandalously neglects wife and children as the drunkard? Who lives so regardless of all moral duties to God and man and self as the drunkard? Who so unreliable and irresponsible in all the avocations of life as the drunkard? Who so weak in self-government and so enslaved by the lower passions as the drunkard? Who so fruitful in all manner of vice and crime as the drunkard? Who so asleep to his temporal concerns and dead to his eternal interests as the drunkard? Let the impoverished homes, and the insane asylums, and the parish workhouses, and the State penitentiaries, all over the land, make answer! A committee of eminent physicians in London testify before the British House of Commons that 75 out of every 100 cases of disease are the effect of drinking alcoholic liquors. What a tale does that tell of its destructive power upon the human body! Of 880 maniacs in asylums, in 1856, it has been ascertained that 400 resulted directly from the use of alcoholic drink. Does not that tell fearfully of its disorganizing power upon the human mind? Of 1,700 crimes committed in London during a given period, more than five-sixths of the whole were by persons given to the use of alcoholic liquor; of 44 murders among said crimes, 43 were committed by drunkards. One of the magistrates of Albany, New York, testifies that of 50 criminal cases brought before him in one week, 48 originated in drinking; and that 96 in 100 of all criminal cases which he had investigated during the year were traceable to the same cause. Do not these facts tell most convincingly the damning influence of alcoholic liquor upon human morals! Who does not know that possessed of a devil truly is the man who has gone on in the use of alcoholic liquor till an insatiable appetite therefor is established within him—till the fiend in the cup has leaped into the throne of his soul, and henceforth rules and goads him to swift and everlasting destruction! Ah, verily, it is in its narcotic power we have the secret of the desolation with which alcoholic liquor preyeth upon its victims, day-time and night-time.

It is in the nature of a narcotic, we have seen, to produce in him who takes it at all a constantly increasing desire for larger and stronger doses of it. Is this the case with alcoholic liquor? We find the great mass of evidence upon the subject distinctly affirming that this law of the narcotic is emphatically that of alcoholic liquor. Some individuals, for various obvious reasons, are not so much under the power of this law as others; but analyze the cases of even the most moderate drinkers of alcoholic liquors, and we generally find in them traces, more or less, of the operation of this law—they are evidently at one end of a chain of causes, the end whereof is absolute enslavement to alcoholic liquor. We find occasional statements respecting alcoholic liquor which, if true, would disprove that this law is one of the inherent evil forces of alcoholic liquor. It is said that France and other vine-growing countries of Europe, where the people are generally given to the use of light forms of alcoholic liquor, are comparatively free from drunkenness—that there the moderate use does not lead to the excessive use. But this is simply a presumption, not a fact. In a late issue of La Constitutionel, a Parisian journal, we find the following from the pen of one who knows his countrymen and their habits better than any mere railroad tourist can know them. Says he:

"It is unanimously admitted that the habit of drunkenness has increased in France year by year since the beginning of the century. In all directions its increase is remarked, and complaints are made of the disastrous effects which it produces on public health as well as on public morality. The habitues of the taverns and the wine-shops lose all inclination for work; they desert the workshop during several days of the week, and the gains of the other days are entirely devoted to the indulgence of their passion for drink. * * * The drunkenness caused by wine is less dangerous than that by stronger drink. Unhappily the passage from one to the other is rapid. Men begin with wine; soon the palate is jaded and asks for stronger excitement. Strong alcoholic liquor is taken. In forty years the consumption of the stronger forms of alcoholic liquor has tripled in France."

They drink coffee in France very freely, but it has no such effect upon them as is here described of the wine-drinking. Who ever knew an individual who wasted his estate and beggared his family for coffee? Why is it that the alcoholic-drinker, when asked to have a second glass, cannot answer like the coffee-drinker, when asked to have a second cup: "No!" Why? Ah, is it not because the alcoholic liquor possesses the fearful quality of a narcotic? Beyond a doubt it is in the very nature of any alcoholic liquor to beget in him who uses it an abnormal, irrational, insatiable desire therefor—a desire that does, if not struggled against, steadily increase and intensify until it will not be satisfied with other than the stronger forms and the larger doses. The experience of millions is in melancholy proof of this statement. Then, seeing that in the "smaller doses" it is an irritant poison, and that in the "larger doses" narcoticism predominates—judging the tree by its fruits—alcoholic liquor by its effects upon the human system—is it not manifest that just to the extent that any liquor is alcoholic or intoxicating, it is in its nature a narcotico-acrid poison? "An intoxicating liquor" is therefore a poisoning liquor; and indeed the term "intoxication" is frequently used in medical works to designate "that series of phenomena which results from the action of all such poisons as first produce stimulation and then narcoticism." Among French medical writers "intoxication" is considered as an equivalent for our word "poisoning." The question we are investigating resolves itself, therefore, into this: "What is temperance in respect to the use of poisoning liquors?" We know what is temperance in respect to the use of hemlock. We know what is temperance in respect to the use of strychnine. We know that the temperate use of such deadly narcotic poisons is absolutely and only the medical use of them. Can we hesitate to give a similar answer in respect to intoxicating liquors? When we find that even the moderate use of intoxicating liquors is always injurious, more or less, to the human system, and establishes, as a law of sin in our members, a seductive tendency to excessive use; and that the excessive use not only diseases and destroys the organs of the body, but so enervates the will and drowses the moral sense as to dethrone reason, pervert the judgment, debase the principles, deprave the affections, thereby making of its victims invalids, brutes, lunatics, criminals—do not these deleterious effects of intoxicating liquor upon the human system distinctly articulate to us the mind of God respecting the use of such liquors? Do they not give as unmistakable answer to the question we are investigating as if the Creator had written, in burning letters, upon the intoxicating cup: "Touch not, taste not, handle not?"

Mrs. Emma C. Holt.

A LIFE THAT SPEAKETH.

Mrs. Emma C. Holt was born in the State of Georgia, January 7, 1812, and died in peace, at Jackson, Mississippi, June 30, 1874. Most of her life was spent in her native State and the city of Mobile. Mrs. Holt embraced religion and became a member of the Methodist Church in September, 1827, and throughout these forty-seven years, until the weary wheels of life stood still, she was always scrupulously consistent and faithfully exact in her Christian character and duties. In the death of this highly cultured woman the church has lost a pure and valuable member, the world a bright and holy example, and her stricken family the presence and sweet counsels of a true and loving mother. In this age, so fraught with suspicion and depreciation, no tongue ever questioned her sincerity, nor eye marked inconsistency in her godly walk. Few, if any, have ever lived with brighter evidences or a grander experience. She attained heights in Christian hope and happiness which all may, but, alas! how few ever reach. Not satisfied with pardoning grace, it was the prayer and labor of her life to go on to perfection. For this blessing—this lofty Pisgah view of the promised land—she earnestly labored, and without doubt had closer intimacy with Jesus, and sublimer evidences of divine power, than enter into the conceptions of the average Christianity of to-day. When visiting her pastorally the writer always felt greatly strengthened and encouraged spiritually—that he was in the presence of one closely akin to the angel hosts of the church triumphant. A great sufferer for years, unable to attend the public services of the sanctuary, she was always happy and uncomplaining. However dark the world without, she had sweet peace and glorious light within. Our sainted sister wrote much and beautifully on her favored themes of Christian growth and trust. Her neatly-kept journal, one volume of which is now before me, will compare favorably with that of Payson or Carvosso in the depth and fervor of religious expression and experience. As illustrative of her high appreciation of the blessed privileges of sanctuary worship, read the following beautiful sentiment, written after hearing a sermon by Dr. Hamilton in Mobile: "O may that heart-searching sermon, so faithfully delivered from the sacred desk this day, never be forgotten by me. For we were told that not every one that says 'Lord! Lord!' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he that does the will of God; and it is his will that we should be always abounding in his work, redeeming the time, walking circumspectly, and serving him with fervency of spirit. * * * The religion of Christ admits of no mediocrity, no neutrality. It requires the whole heart. It is incompatible with the friendship of the world, and calls its votaries strangers and pilgrims here."

Though her trials were often severe, no murmuring word ever escaped her lips. Amid great physical suffering and family bereavement she wrote these words, little less remarkable for sublime Christian faith and cheerfulness than for rare classic beauty: "June 12, 1870.—Hold out, faith and patience! It is but a little while and your work will be at an end; but a few moments, and these sighs and groans shall be converted into everlasting hallelujahs; but a few weary steps, and the journey of life will be finished. O blessed eternity! with what cheerful splendor dost thou dawn on my soul! With thee comes liberty and peace and love and endless felicity. I am just upon the shores of those happy realms where uninterrupted day and eternal spring reside. What unutterable ecstasies shall I feel when I meet those smiles which enlighten heaven and exhilarate all the celestial regions!"

As the hart panteth after the water-brooks, so her soul thirsted for the living God. Read this and take courage: "The more of the love of God I enjoy, the more I wish to enjoy. As I grow in grace, new beauties and new glories in religion still appear, and my thirsty soul is continually upon the wing, and is still unsatisfied. At times I have received such wonderful manifestations of the divine favor and the outpourings of God's Spirit as to fill my soul to overflowing. I have no fears of death, but a perfect resignation to the will of God, and a delight in his service."

Troubles, as stated above, only led her nearer the cross. Here is the way she overcame them: "I have been enabled, whenever a wave of trouble comes, to mount up above it by simply looking to Jesus. O this is the secret of this hallowed enjoyment—this being endued with power from on high, this living above the world! It is looking unto Jesus. How simple it is! * * * O may we not, as Christians, be satisfied to stand on the shore, now and then catching a glimpse of the promised land by a wave of mercy that may occasionally refresh our weary feet; but let us launch out into the broad ocean of his love, that we may be filled with all his communicable fullness, and when at last the angels of God shall unfurl their wings to waft us to their spirit-home, we may each be one in the constellation of never-failing luminaries that shall shine forever around the sun of righteousness, gathering increasing brightness from his beams."

Again she writes: "April 20, 1871.—Anniversary day of my husband's departure to the spirit-land. My feelings have been truly exercised this day. There has been a commingling of both joy and sorrow in my heart. This day one year ago the earthly prop which I had leaned upon for forty-two years—my support and comfort under the labors and anxieties of this mortal state—was knocked from under me, and I felt to swing loose from the world and hung upon Jesus, my blessed Redeemer. * * * I feel that I can say in all sincerity and truth: 'Let what will come—sickness or health, life or death, prosperity or adversity—the will of the Lord be done; only let me feel that I am at peace with God and all mankind, and all things else are of minor importance to me.' Oh, let me hear those heavenly whispers that give me the foretaste of immortal pleasures—let me enjoy, at this earthly distance, those smiles that are the bliss of angels in heaven! It will brighten the passage of life, it will direct me through its mazes, and gild its rough and gloomy paths. * * * Recollecting that this was the day, twelve months ago, that his happy spirit soared away to be at rest, I retired to my room of prayer, the hallowed place where Jesus deigns to meet me and hold sweet communion together. It is hard by the gates of heaven. In order to solemnize my mind, it has been a practice with me for years to read first a chapter in Psalms, and after prayer to read in some other parts of the Bible; and this is done while bowed at a throne of grace. The first place I opened to was the one hundred and third Psalm. It seemed that my reading was all directed by God, and during prayer I felt such a depth of humble love as I cannot express. I felt

The sacred awe which dares not move,
And all the silent heaven of love," etc.

Our beloved sister professed the blessing of perfect love, and has thus beautifully recorded her views of the doctrine: "Perfect love does not consist in frames and feelings, but an abiding trust in my dear Redeemer, and a strong reliance on the promises of my covenant-keeping God. My hope is anchored within the vail. I thank God for the blessed assurance that when I am done with the trying scenes of time, I have a home in heaven. I would not part with this resting in the arms of my Savior, and the depth of solid peace I now feel, for all the wealth and honors of the world."

Her last illness was short, and her death sudden but divinely peaceful. When asked by her physician if she wished to see her pastor, the calm reply was: "No! I made all my preparations more than forty years ago." After leaving a mother's parting blessing for her children, she sweetly fell asleep in Jesus. Thank God for such a life. She verified the honored saying that "the Methodists die well." May we all as happily live and peacefully die, and at last enter into blissful rest.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

Obituaries.

DIED, of congestion of the brain, August 13, 1874, our little daughter, MINNIE LEE, aged two years, nine months and twenty-two days.

J. T. MARSHALL.
ALVERNON M. MARSHALL.

DIED, on Sunday, August 30, 1874, at half-past ten o'clock A. M., CHAS. GARDINER GARRETT, second son of William and Helen A. Garrett, of Caddo parish, Louisiana, aged twenty-six years and eleven months.

MINNIE MCKEE, infant daughter of Charles and Maggie Roberts, was born at their home in Oxford, Mississippi, on the twelfth of April, 1873. On the eighth of August, 1874, her sweet spirit winged its flight to heaven.

THE subject of this notice, Bro. A. WARREN, came to Alabama when a young man, where he was happily married to Miss H. A. Sperlin, with whom he spent a life of usual length, sharing each other's fate until they were separated by death, March —, 1874, near Bay St. Elmo, where he had gone for the purpose of trying to regain his health and recuperate his wasted frame. He was very kindly disposed to his family, and thought much of his children. He was much attached to the things of this world, however, in early and middle life, though in the end he had his mind turned to eternity. He talked frequently and freely on the subject of death, and said he was not afraid to die. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South the fall before he died, and was received into full connection. Soon after he arranged all his business matters, he said, to die, for he was nearing his end. He then bid farewell to his home and friends, and in company with his devoted wife and youngest son left for the coast, where he soon met with the fate of all men. He was conscious almost to the last, and met death calmly yet bravely. He said he was ready and willing to die.

G. M. G.

ROLLING FORK SUNDAY SCHOOL,
Issaquena Co., Miss., Aug. 23, 1874.

Whereas, It has pleased almighty God to take unto himself our little friend, EVAN ROBERTS, It becomes us as members of the Methodist Sunday school of Rolling Fork, wishing to express our great sorrow, to render this last tribute to his memory; therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we bow in humble resignation to the will of a kind Providence, yet we deplore the fact that grim death has again appeared in our midst and claimed one of our little band.

Resolved, That although we believe that little Evan is now in that better land where no sorrow is known, still we cannot help mourning his loss, and expressing feelings of the deepest sympathy to his bereaved family.

Resolved, That the sudden and untimely death of our little friend reminds us all of the uncertainty of life, and should stimulate us to greater exertion, so that when our time shall come we may be ready to leave this land of sorrow and go to work in that vineyard above.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be given to the afflicted family, and one sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication, and that they also be spread upon the secretary's book.

MARY S. FOOTE,
MARY C. MYERS,
BURLEIGH GOODMAN,
Committee.

E. C. CLEMENTS, S. S. Sec.

MISS MARY C. SIMMONS was born in Madison county, Mississippi, June 4, 1840, and died of consumption, March 14, 1874. She was converted and joined the Baptist Church at the age of fourteen, and lived a consistent member of the same until her death. From early girlhood she was noted for her kindness to the sick. Many that preceded her to the better land will greet her as the one that nursed them in their last hours. She suffered long, but patiently. She was sick about twelve months. About six months before her death she went to her brother-in-law's, in East Baton Rouge parish, Louisiana, hoping that the change would be beneficial to her. She gradually grew worse, and, seeing that her dissolution was near, she asked to be sent home to die. The evening before she died she called the attention of those that were with her to the singing of the angels, and said that they had come for her. The next morning her mother asked her if she did not want to get well and live. She said: "No, ma; I would not live an hour only to see Sister Sallie"—an absent sister, whom she hoped would come before she died. She said that the angels had come for her, and she must go. She then asked for the family to be called in, took a last look at all and fell asleep.

E. W. SIMMONS.

ELVIRA KIMBELL was born in Jackson, Clarke county, May 16, 1823; was married to Mr. Edmund M. Portis, May 14, 1856; and died at Suggsville, Clarke county, August 10, 1874, in great peace. Her remains were carried to Jackson, to be interred in the family burying ground. Her funeral was preached by Bro. E. M. Turner.

Thus another faithful servant has been called to come up and enjoy the rest in the mansions prepared for us. Can we not trust a loving Providence with our dear one who has gone before us?

Another wife and mother gone, another home made desolate on earth! But, ah! another golden tie united to heaven's bright chain, and linked by friendship, love and faith. Time, in its onward flight, can never rob us of sweet memories that cluster about our hearts of girlish days and youthful pleasures. Truly did faith in a crucified and risen Savior triumph over the fear of death; and the grace of our God enables you to give your darlings into his care who never forsakes or forgets his own. Then, father, sisters, brothers, husband and children, mourn not, but humbly bow in calm resignation to the divine will that chasteus while it loves.

Elvira joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, at a camp meeting in Marengo county, in 1843, Dr. Boring receiving her into the church. May she be a guide to her children in the example of her Christian life and her triumphant death, and may we all so live as to meet her by the beautiful river that flows by the throne of God.

A FRIEND.

LUCY MARION TROWER, youngest daughter of Henry and Martha Trower, was born in Harrodsburg, Kentucky, December 20, 1819.

When just grown, and during a revival meeting conducted by Rev. John Newland Mallit, she professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in Harrodsburg, and ever after lived a consistent Christian life. She was united in marriage to G. A. A. Riggs on the seventeenth of November, 1842, in Ashley, Pike county, Missouri. Less than a year ago Sister Riggs joined the Louisiana Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church South, of New Orleans, by letter; and, finding the little church struggling for an existence, she threw herself unhesitatingly and unreservedly into the Master's work in that part of his vineyard. She was always ready to go anywhere, visit anybody, or do anything she could for the church, and seemed to be all alive with holy zeal. Though of a retiring and sensitive nature, so much did she feel it her duty to spare herself in nothing, that of her own motion, much to the gladdening of her pastor's heart and the evident advancement of the church's spirituality, she organized, led and kept up, as long as she could get out, a ladies' weekly prayer meeting. A true Methodist, she was a regular attendant at class meeting, and her experience was always such as to encourage, showing a steady growth in grace, a constantly strengthening faith and an ever brightening hope. Living in the intimate and blessed companionship of her Savior, she has for months past been ripening, mellowing and rounding out into all the symmetry and perfection of Christian character; and, taking on the softest tints and richest coloring of eternal sunshine, she has been rapidly maturing for glory. Sister Riggs had most certainly gotten "out of self into Christ," and hers truly was a "life hid with Christ in God." Often have I noticed the tear in her eye during preaching, especially when redeeming love or the preciousness of Christ was the theme, or when ever the name of Jesus was mentioned.

She was confined to her bed first by sunstroke, and was afterward kept there by the typhoid fever, which left her so weakened that she was unable to rally; but, sinking slowly yet surely under the excessive heat, she "sweetly fell asleep in Jesus" at seven o'clock on Sabbath morning, August 16, 1874. Whenever, during her sickness, she was asked as to her hope, she always answered in language of the strongest possible assurance. Knowing in whom she believed, her faith never wavered; and, having had a life-long friendship with the King's Son, she was sure she would meet him at the ford, and by him be carried in triumph to her abiding rest, there to be crowned and set down with him upon his throne. Dying to earth on a bright Sabbath morn, she lived to heaven, finding herself in the enjoyment of the unending Sabbath of the kingdom of God. There her free soul, unclogged by dull clay, invigorated by the atmosphere of infinite love, is harping forth, in strains of ravishing melody, all its love for the Lamb that was slain, who hath washed her in his own precious blood, and hath saved her with the salvation of God. She leaves a husband, a son and two daughters to mourn her loss; but the Christian wife and mother has left them a priceless legacy in the aroma of her Christian life.

"For thus the actions of the just,
When memory hath enshrined them,
E'en from the dark and silent dust
Their odor leave behind them."

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

JOHN T. SAWYER.

HARRY W., son of Stephen and Elizabeth Boullemet, was born in New Orleans, August 20, 1853, and died at the residence of his parents, in this city, August 18, 1874, after an illness of ten days. During his sickness he was carefully and tenderly watched and nursed by his own family. Though thus tending him, they had no intimation of the end until about one hour before he died. The call was sudden, the stroke severe.

Harry was in life and character all that parents and friends could desire. Reared by Christian parents in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, he heard the gentle voice of Jesus calling, and gladly answered. The true Christian character cannot be portrayed in this short sketch. Words are hardly adequate to the simple task of giving the life and character of our friend.

In home life he was the dutiful, obedient and affectionate son to parents. Their wish was his supremest law. To brothers and sisters his heart was filled with true brotherly love. Self-forgetting in all little or great things, his pleasure was to make the loved ones at home happy. His tender care and gentle kindness endeared him above others to his sisters, to his brothers. The heart that had almost reached manhood's full beat was responsive with brotherly love and faithful care. The charmed circle of home was his delight; and, though social and fond of society, nothing could draw him away from the hearthstone.

In society he was genial, polite, blithesome—the center and joy of a large circle of friends. His was a naturally affectionate nature, and the true warmth and glow of friendship, as it beamed from his eye and was expressed by the lips, drew to him a large circle of friends not only from those of his own age, but also from many of maturer years. All feel that we have met with a personal loss in Harry's death, and ask: "Who has not lost a friend?"

Harry was a Christian—at the time of his death a member of Carondelet Street church, which he joined three years since. His life as a Christian was one of active, energetic work. He was a member of the church, a member of the Sunday school—an honor to the cause of Christ, whose banner he bore manfully to the end. He was reared in the church of which he died a member. The Sunday school was his delight, and from the infant to the Bible class he passed, loved and loving all—teachers and classmates. He was one of the librarians of the Sunday school, and was urbane in manner and deportment, thereby winning the praise and love of scholars and teachers. He was also actively engaged in the mission Sunday school meeting, in the evening, at Louisiana Avenue church. Truly, then, can I say that the Sunday school was his delight. Harry possessed a good musical voice, and he truly delighted to sing praises. His voice, as he sang "Over There," "Work for Jesus," "A Home in Heaven," still sounds in the writer's ear.

Harry had a good testimony, and had set to his seal that God is true. He witnessed a good profession in the class meeting; his life, walk and conversation told he walked with Jesus. He was useful to the church, he was helpful to the Sunday schools. His place is vacant. We miss him. From usefulness and work here below God has taken him. The family circle is broken. Hearts of loved ones are disconsolate—the mother broken in heart and sorrowful, the father bent and bowed beneath the blow, the sisters and brothers seeking and looking in vain for the dear brother. Loved ones, trust in God. Words cannot assuage your grief. Harry's life and character you can treasure and love. Then he has only gone before. "Heaven is our home." May we bow submissively, and devoutly say: "Thy will be done."

K.

SEVEN WAYS OF DOING GOOD.—1. Teaching Sunday school. In this way you may be continually training ministers, Christian legislators, lawyers, merchants, mechanics, etc., the religious instruction of whose congregations and families will be, at least partially, owing to your labors.

2. Visiting, relieving and exhorting the poor, who may become "rich in faith" through your instrumentality.

3. Visiting prisons, hospitals and almshouses, and persuading the inmates to accept the "great salvation."

4. Persuading the intemperate and others to pledge themselves to total abstinence, thus expelling the demon who destroys the peace of so many miserable families.

5. Personal appeals, by conversation and by letters, to the unconverted, to seek repentance and faith before the "door" is forever "shut."

6. Distributing Testaments (sold for ten cents each) and other religious books and tracts, in families, factories, taverns, and by the wayside, etc. It is said that one tract ("The Great Question Answered") was the means of placing one hundred thousand children under religious instruction.

7. Persuading idle children to engage in all those and other "ways of doing good;" for a blessing on which let your fervent prayers ascend to him who alone can give "the increase."—Sunday School World.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1874.

THIS AGE OF OURS.

Dear me, how wondrous wise the world
Has grown since we began it!
Even school girls now can search the skies,
And play with each new planet;
Can sweetly chant of nebulæ,
Descant on nature's wonders,
Laugh down the stupid elder folk,
And ridicule their blunders.

The merest boy, with clever head
And proper education,
Can put to shame the heirs of his Grandfather'ly relation.
With feet that fear no ditch, he goes
On puzzling raids and rambles,
And makes his way, without a scratch,
Through philosophic brambles.

And children of the larger growth—
The full-blown men and women
Of these enlightened days—why they Are surely more than human.
With hands that hold all things, they seize
The universe and weigh it,
Take down the sun from heaven and try
By science to assay it.

The cause of all that is to them
Is just as plain as preaching,
And every useful thing they are Quite capable of teaching.
They know exactly how the earth
Became what we behold it,
And hint it might be better had
The task been theirs to mold it.

But still, ah! still these hearts of ours
Throb in the same old fashion,
And feel, just as our fathers felt,
The pang of every passion.
Great progress has been made, no doubt,
Where science spreads her highways;
But still poor human nature gropes
Through many cheerless byways.

Independent.

The Gwennap Pit on Whit Monday.

All the readers of Wesley's journal are familiar with the name of Gwennap—a name imperishable in Methodist history. In the pit, as it is commonly called—the amphitheater, as Wesley phrases it—the great itinerant preacher was accustomed to address vast multitudes of hearers. The stormy scenes of his earlier ministry subsided in course of time; and when in later years he revisited this part of the country, the thronging crowds, greater than ever, that gathered to hear him, hung with loving veneration upon his lips. Here, in this amphitheater, he addressed the largest audience to which he ever preached; he himself calculated it at thirty-two thousand, for the pit was full, and the surrounding parts were covered with people. He affirms that all could hear; and, without vanity, adds that it was "perhaps the first time that a man of seventy had been heard at once"—forgetting, probably, the last address of Moses to the congregation of Israel. In memory of Wesley's work in this celebrated spot an annual service is held on Whit Monday, the interest of which does not seem in the least to diminish, judging from the number who attend.

Every loyal Methodist resident in Cornwall is supposed to go at least once to Gwennap Pit, be it only to see how many good Cornish folk there are, and to do honor to this classic ground. How, then, could we decline the opportunity, which perhaps might never occur to us again? Afar off, even beyond the sea, thrilling emotions had been excited within us by reading and hearing of that magnificent natural temple, in which John Wesley's voice had been heard in preaching and in prayer by many thousands; and now there was the prospect of hearing one of his successors, and seeing the descendants of those who listened to him for the last time nearly a century ago. How was the place to be reached? The railway company considerately offered to convey all goers to Redruth and back for single fare; but the probability of a selfish crowd, and the certainty of a lengthy walk, decided us in favor of a private conveyance. It was not a handsome vehicle, being, in fact, an open drag, in shape like a tank on wheels, with a raised box-seat in front. Seniors and juniors filled it pretty full, and the start was made. Two horses, or rather ponies, of a dark-brown color, had the honor of exercising their locomotive power.

On any other day the quiet village of Chacewater would have been startled by the apparition of a strange-looking conveyance sweeping down its single street; but it was "Pit day," when vehicles are numerous, from donkey carts to hackney coaches, and the driver vainly tried to attract much attention by extra speed. Beyond, the roads grew narrower; there were many of them, and they seemed to lead nowhere in particular; but the streams of pedestrians, mixed with carriages, clearly pointed out the direction. Suddenly, in a narrow part of the road, we came upon two sweetmeat stalls, placed, no doubt, to tempt luxurious wayfarers to make unprofitable investments. It was strange the stalls were not run into, for there was barely passing-room; but perhaps the equal terror on each side kept the horses in the middle of the road. We were nearing Carn-Marth, which in most countries would be a gentle-sloping ridge, but here it looks like a mountain. Soon we saw a stationary crowd, pulled up, and sought, just as singing began, a convenient position to see and hear. Threading our way slowly and carefully, chiefly in the rear of the ladies, for these always make their way in a throng with wonderful facility, we stood upon the edge of the pit, and delightedly gazed upon the mass of humanity below and around.

Changes have taken place in the amphitheater since the days of yore. A wall has been built around it, reducing its dimensions; the interior is nicely terraced into seats, the whole kept in good order by the Gwennap circuit, to which the spot belongs. The place was pretty full, crowded on the outside, but with vacant spaces at the base. There might have been five thousand people—some would say more; even those make a splendid audience. Clouds had been gathering, and for a time it seemed as if we might have rain, but we were more fortunate than many holiday-seekers in other parts of the country, whose pleasure was spoiled by violent thunderstorms. To us the heavens were propitious; a more suitable day could not be wished. The preacher on the occasion was one of the most popular and effective in the Cornwall district; and it was soon evident that he intended to make himself heard. The text was too long for an open-air service; it would have been better to select a few words easily remembered. The theme was the parable of the fruitless fig-tree, many points of which could not fail to be applicable to such an audience. Some minutes were spent in needlessly proving the simplicity and plainness of our Lord's teaching. As the preacher warmed with his subject, his voice rang out in louder, clearer tones, till it could be heard distinctly by the outside circle of listeners. Faithful appeals were made to the sinful conscience; but perhaps it was not sufficiently borne in mind that the majority of the hearers were Christian people. The discourse, if not very original or thoughtful, was at the close impassioned and telling; all must have felt the truth of the remark that those standing round would never meet together on earth again. Looking upon that vast assemblage, the contrast between it and the multitude that listened to Wesley was great, in dress, countenance, behavior. There were no wild shouts such as greeted him in early days, nor was there the intense earnestness and enthusiasm which welcomed his last appeal. The majority were elderly and middle-aged folks, who joined in the singing "lustily and with a good courage," and gave forth responses, many of them, yet not so as to drown the preacher's voice. Sermons and listening crowds were not new things to them. On the outer circles were smartly-dressed girls. By degrees, as their animal spirit declined, and the voice of the preacher rose, they became quiet. Beyond the limits of the pit some fast young gentlemen showed their taste and independence by smoking cigars; while a few stall-keepers plied their trade in nuts, sweets, oranges and ginger-pop; yet there was little noise and no disorder. At the close of the sermon a collection for foreign missions was announced. While we were fishing in almost vacant depths for the stray sixpence which had hitherto escaped appropriation, our next neighbor held in his hand a few shillings, and was turning them over, apparently hesitating which of them should have the honor of going into the Lord's treasury. But the box did not come within eighteen inches of him, and his modesty would not allow him to reach over; the shilling was retained for the time, and in charity let as hope given at the meeting at Carharrack chapel in the evening. Hymn and prayer close the service. Then hurried handshakings, a drive homeward by another and more beautiful route, and the service at Gwennap Pit becomes a pleasant and not profitless memory.

London Methodist.

The Great German Painter of To-Day.

At those brilliant Berlin assemblages known as "opera-house balls," which were held last winter, there was often seen a man who excited the curiosity of every stranger among the company. He was rather short and quite elderly, with a homely but very strong face, a head remarkable in shape and almost devoid of hair, overhanging eyebrows, with a piercing gaze which allowed nothing visible to go unobserved. He seldom conversed with any one, but walked about alone, casting his searching glances at the people around him, and noting every remarkable face or figure and every striking effect in the costumes.

Among the Berliners there he created no surprise, for there were few of them, if any, who did not know that this "chiel amang" them "takin' notes" was Adolf Menzel, the great German artist, and that it was one of his constant habits to study the appearance of every person or thing which might come under his observation.

This man is eminently one of the Germans of to-day. He is thoroughly imbued with the prevailing belief in German unity and power, is a Prussian of the Prussians, and is especially earnest in his allegiance to the house of Hohenzollern—der grosse Friedrich in particular having been his ideal hero from his early youth upward. He is a man after Carlyle's own heart—full of that force and persistence which have contributed so much toward giving the German people the place they now hold in the world's estimation; and one of the Leipsic journals referred to him the other day as "the Bismarck of artists." This, of course, was meant for the highest possible praise, but to us, who do not look at Bismarck with German eyes, and who can properly appreciate the honest loyalty, the brave struggle against poverty, obscurity and adverse opinion, and the earnestness and truth to his convictions, that have marked Adolf Menzel's whole life, the comparison does not appear so flattering as it was intended to be.

Menzel's career affords a record of as stern a contest as any of the battles he has painted. He was born at Breslau in 1815, his father being the principal of a school in that city. During Adolf's boyhood the family removed to Berlin, where the father began making himself familiar with lithography—which was just then coming into use—intending to make it his profession. But he soon died, and his son was left at the age of fourteen in circumstances that forced him to use every exertion for the maintenance of himself and his dependent relatives. He had been in the habit of drawing since he could first hold a pencil, and soon found employment as a lithographer, and also in executing light and fanciful designs for cards, advertisements and similar matters. But while these labors necessarily occupied the greater part of his time, he devoted his leisure moments almost entirely to hard study of the profession in which he hoped one day to take a place. During all the hardships and discouragements of his early life he never lost sight of the mark he had set for himself, and allowed nothing to shake his faith in his ability to make himself a painter.

Gradually he rose above the mere rudimentary occupations on which he was at first engaged, and his drawings began to attract the attention of the best art critics of Berlin. Franz Kugler had written his History of Frederick the Great, and the work was to be published as a counterpart of the French Life of Napoleon, by Laurent, with illustrations by Horace Vernet: Menzel was selected to illustrate Kugler's book, and he went to work with a thoroughness that showed what was in him. He devoted himself to such a deep, untiring study of the manners, customs and dresses of the eighteenth century, and made himself so well acquainted with the main characters of the book by close observation of statues, paintings, and everything else that could give him any help, that he might almost be said to have transported himself into a bygone age. The result not only made him famous, but marked the beginning of a new era in the department of art to which these illustrations belonged. The style of the admirable wood-cuts in German books and periodicals of the present day may be said to date from the publication at Leipsic of the History of Frederick the Great.—Lippincott's Magazine.

IS THE editor of the Presbyterian Banner a Jesuit or an ignoramus? We ask for information. In his last issue he quotes the account given by the Rev. Dr. Brown, of St. Paul, concerning the relations of Calvin and Servetus, and adds that "no statement is more clearly confirmed by history than the above." Here now is the statement thus vouched for by the Banner:

"The facts, however, are that Servetus, who held and uttered blasphemous heresies, that by the laws of all Christian countries in his day were punished with death, had been condemned for them to death in Catholic Austria, and escaped and fled to Geneva. There they tried to silence him; but he would not be silenced, and was brought before the council, tried and condemned. After he was condemned Calvin tried to save his life; but the council refused, and the other Swiss States protested and demanded his death, and he was burnt at the stake."

In the first place, it was not in "Catholic Austria," but in the town of Vienne, France, that Servetus was first condemned to death. How much Dr. Brown and the Banner know about the case is obvious from their confounding Vienne with Vienna. In the second place, Calvin furnished the Catholics of Vienne the proofs upon which Servetus was condemned to death by them. In the third place, they did not try to silence him in Geneva, for he was in that city incognito. He did not try to speak there; it was only just as he was escaping from the city that he was discovered and arrested. The crime of heresy for which he was condemned was not committed in Geneva. Calvin's council had no sort of jurisdiction over him; his arrest and confinement by them was a high-handed outrage. In the fourth place, Calvin did not try to save his life. He tried to have his sentence commuted from burning to decapitation. That was something to his praise, but that was all. In the fifth place, all the other Swiss States were much less eager for his execution than were Calvin and his fellow-citizens. The other States were consulted as to what disposition should be made of the heretic; but their replies were so non-committal that the Genevese councillors, bent on blood, were greatly disconcerted by them. In tracts published shortly after the execution of Servetus, Calvin expressly justifies the capital punishment of heretics. He denies that the Roman Catholics have the right to kill errorists; but they who possess the "true faith" are bound to do it. And the following threat would have been very significant to people like Dr. Brown and the Banner if they had lived in his day: "Whoever," he says, "shall now contend that it is unjust to put heretics and blasphemers to death will knowingly and willingly incur their very guilt. This is not laid down on human authority; it is God himself who speaks and prescribes a perpetual rule for his church." The very slightest attention to history makes all these attempts to vindicate Calvin from the charge of murdering Servetus utterly contemptible. The men who persist in making them deserve no respect. The day for the perpetration of pious frauds and the falsification of history has gone by. "It is time," we respectfully suggest to the Banner, "that men who claim to be honorable gentlemen" should stop telling lies.—Independent.

FOR SELF OR FOR OTHERS?—The secret of dullness and discontent with many a life is that it has no other life to bless. It is shut up to itself. It never breaks bounds and gets abroad. Get out of self, begin to think of another, to care for another, labor for another, and all the tides of the soul are in motion. The dull self-brooding is at an end.

When self is forgotten, its weariness and fretfulness are forgotten. It is delivered from its own hardened consciousness by entering with hearty good will into the experience of the friendless and helpless.

This is the cure which is needed for jaded spirits. It is sovereign and infallible. Find somebody to help, and you help yourself; some heart to cheer, and you cheer your own; some burden of another to bear, and yours becomes light; enter into the straightened lot of one in need, and you get enlargement from your own bondage; learn to weep with those that weep, and your tears are a balsam to your own heart; rejoice with those that do rejoice, and your own griefs are assuaged, and your joys are doubled. It may be but little that you can do; do that little, and the world is so much happier and better, and a brighter sky shines upon your face. You have but an ounce or two of strength to spare; share that with one who is spent, and the perfume of this small benefaction will be to you as reviving incense. The remedy is safe and sure.

Dr. A. L. Stone.

MANY people who live in the country all their lives get up a distant bowing acquaintance with nature, and that is all.

The Perplexed Teacher.

She was one of the kind that some people call unconverted teachers—that is to say, she had never made a profession of religion, and her name was not on the roll of any church.

From one end another and another of her classes around her, scholars were being converted. She looked on with interest, but had no particular expectation that any of her scholars would experience a change of heart. She had never thought much about renewed hearts.

There were so many conversions in the school that everybody was talking about it. From the superintendent's desk and from the pulpit the harvest was spoken of in terms of thankfulness, hopefulness and joy.

Two girls came to this teacher, one sunshiny Sunday morning, and told her that they wanted her to talk with them about their souls. They were in trouble, and wanted her to lead them to the light, and tell them about Jesus Christ.

What could she do? She had no idea that any of this work of conversion would come so near her. She had a short talk with them, which was not very satisfactory, either to them or to herself; and then they left her. Then she went to the superintendent.

"I want you to supply my class next Sunday. I shall be away and am not coming again."

"Going out of town, to be gone for some time?"

"No; that's not it. These girls are being converted, and I don't know what to do with them. I'm troubled about it. I'm going to give up."

"What! Give up now, when you are just beginning to reap a harvest? Surely you don't mean to throw your work away in that style?"

"The Spirit of God is in my class, sir, and the class is no place for me. Here's your class-book, at your service. I am not fit to teach."

"Keep the class-book till next week, and pray that every girl whose name is in it may be brought to Jesus."

"But I have not come to Jesus myself."

"Pray for yourself then, too, and come to Jesus."

She kept that class-book. She prayed for herself. She is over her perplexity. She has come to Jesus herself. Nearly all her scholars have come. She has made public profession of her faith in Jesus, and is happy in it. If she was formerly unfit to teach, she now has blessed fitness, the result of a happy experience. She was formerly uncomfortable in telling her girls about a religion of which she had no practical knowledge; but now she is happy, because she walks in the light to which she is trying to lead them.

COMPULSORY KISSING!—Everybody in Paraguay smokes, and every female above the age of thirteen chews. I am wrong. They do not chew, but put tobacco in their mouths, keep it there constantly, except when eating, and, instead of chewing it, roll it about and suck it. Only imagine yourself about to salute the red lips of a magnificent little Hebe, arrayed with satin and flashing with diamonds, as she puts you back with one delicate hand, while with the other she draws forth from her mouth a brownish-black roll of tobacco quite two inches long, looking like a monster grub, and then deposits the savory lozenge on the brim of your sombrero, pats up her face, and is ready for a salute. I have sometimes seen an over-delicate foreigner turn away with a shudder of loathing under such circumstances, and get the epithet of the savage applied to him by the offended beauty for his sensitive squeamishness. However, one soon gets used to this in Paraguay, where you are, per force of custom, obliged to kiss every lady you are introduced to, and one half you meet are really tempting enough to render you regardless of the consequences, and you would sip the dew of the proffered lip in the face of a tobacco factory—even in the double-distilled honey-dew of old Virginia.

GIFT OF THE SPIRIT.—We have great reason to adore the wisdom and goodness of God in the dispensation of the gospel, that by the sending down of his Holy Spirit to endow the first publishers of this heavenly doctrine with such miraculous powers and gifts. He hath given such abundant testimony to the truth of our religion, and such plain grounds for our faith to rely upon. Had God left the Christian religion to have been propagated only by its own rational force upon the minds of men, what a slow progress would it in all probability have made. So St. Paul intimates that, and not the mighty power of God accompanied their preaching, and made it effectual to the conversion and salvation of men, they would have been tempted to have been ashamed of the gospel of Christ. Thus by the belief of the gospel men should live in the obedience of faith, and conformably to the precepts of that holy religion which the Son of God by so many miracles hath planted and preserved in the world.—Archbishop Tillotson.

A SEA TELESCOPE.—It is said that the fishermen of Norway carry in their fishing-boats a water telescope or tube three or four feet in length. They immerse one end in the water, and then, looking intently through the glass, they are enabled to perceive objects ten or fifteen fathoms deep as distinctly as if they were within a few feet of the surface. Hence, when they discover plenty of fish, they surround them with their large draught nets, and often catch them by hundreds at a haul, which, were it not for these telescopes, would prove precarious and unprofitable fishing. This instrument is not only used by the fishermen, but is also found in the navy and coasting vessels.

THERE are two forms of tyranny: one real, which arises from oppression; the other is seated in opinion, and is sure to be felt whenever those who govern establish things shocking to the present ideas of a nation.

Montesquieu.

Religious Intelligence.

A SCHEME is on foot for the union of the Presbyterian missions of India.

FULL returns of the communicants in the Established Church of Scotland make the number 460,566.

DR. REUSCH, of Bonn, has been appointed by Bishop Reinkens Old Catholic vicar general for Prussia, and has been recognized as such by the government.

DURING the last thirty years the sum of £1,069,282 has been expended on endowments, buildings, restorations and schools connected with the Church of England in the diocese of Peterboro.

THE Old Catholic movement is extending to Southern Germany. In Bavaria, at Limbach, Bishop Reinkens has consecrated a new church, the first church edifice that the Old Catholics have erected in Germany. An Old Catholic committee has also been formed at Stuttgardt.

THE Pope has addressed a congratulatory letter to Mgr. Gilbert, Archbishop of Paris, in which he says: "The French people, who have always given such proofs of attachment to the mother church, will no doubt weep at the accounts of our miseries, and will pray to the Almighty for liberation." Poor old prisoner!

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE is just now excited by an exhibition of alleged relics of Charlemagne. Some thousands of Walloons, Flemings, Dutch and Germans have been there. On a recent Saturday no less than 65,000 pilgrims defiled before the shrine. The next day the crowd was so considerable that it was thought advisable to leave the sacred objects throughout the day in the large gallery of the cathedral.

THE history of the missions to the Maoris in New Zealand has been a sad one. The beginnings of missionary labor among this heroic people were full of promise, until the wars between the colonists and the Maoris destroyed almost all that had been accomplished. Now the race has been reduced to a remnant, and their confidence in European teachers has almost entirely been lost. It is therefore the more cheering to find some evidences of improvement given in the reports of the Church Missionary Society. The Bishop of New Zealand has recently ordained a Maori, who is the ninth clergyman of that race now laboring in his diocese. In the Mercury Bay district the natives have contributed $625 to the building of a chapel.

THE annual report of the Church Missionary Society on the Island of Mauritius states that 1,800 Indian coolies have been baptized through its instrumentality during the last sixteen years; 212 of these during 1873. The number on the list at the close of last year was 1,118. Thirteen catechists are employed—6 to the Tamil coolies and 7 to those from Calcutta. The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel has 594 members and 2 missionaries. The Roman Catholics have a larger work than either of these societies. The London Missionary Society formerly made Mauritius the base of its operations on Madagascar, but no longer requires a station here for that purpose. Out of a population of 318,000, 216,000 are Indian and 2,000 Chinese coolies. The churches among them are reported as doing well, in the main; but the return of the coolies to their native land after a term of years gives a temporary character to the work.

THE recent revival among the Syrian Christians of Malabar has drawn renewed attention to this venerable body of monophysite believers. The Friend of India states that after all the persecutions of Romanists, through the Inquisition at Goa, by which multitudes were forced into the Catholic Church, the community of Syrian Christians dwelling in Cochin and Travancore still numbers 340,000. The Church Missionary Society has long taken deep interest in this body. Through its efforts some 10,000 of them have accepted the purer teachings of the Church of England, and a spirit of reform has spread through the old church, as the revival has shown. It is divided into 128 parishes, under a metropolitan, who is consecrated by the patriarch of Antioch, from a Travancore family, in which the office has become hereditary. The vicars of the parishes have an income from a fund which amounts to $25,000 a year. At present, however, the machinery of the church is quite out of gear, through the existence of two rival metropolitans, and the neglect of the Madras government to secure order and justice in the management of the church property.

THE LAW OF CHURCH BELLS IN SCOTLAND.—On Friday decision was given in the Court of Session in the action of the Minister and Kirk session of Peebles against the magistrates and town council of that burgh, fixing the hours for ringing the bell of the parish church to summon to worship on Sundays the congregations other than that of the Established Church. The case came up on appeal by the pursuers against the finding of the lord ordinary (Shand) who had refused to grant the interdict craved. Lord Deas, who delivered the leading judgment, held that the bell could not be used for ecclesiastical purposes, save in connection with the parish church, to whose use it had been dedicated, in which opinion Lord Jerviswoode and the lord president concurred. Lord Ardmillan said he could not agree with their lordships, and held that the magistrates were entitled to use the bell for warning Dissenters to worship as one of the ordinary purposes of the town, in respect of which they had the full control of the bells, just as much as ordering them to be rung on a queen's birthday. The court recalled the lord ordinary's interlocutor, and granted interdict as craved.

A REMARKABLE awakening is reported as having recently occurred in northern China, two hundred miles away from the permanent residence of any missionary, and away from the great lines of travel. During the progress of the work 160 persons have been received as hopeful converts. Not much missionary labor has ever been bestowed on the people. Two years ago or more a young man, a Buddhist, visiting Cheefoo, strayed into a chapel from curiosity, where a missionary was preaching to a handful of Chinese of the lower classes. It was the first time he had heard the gospel. He was so much interested that he remained a fortnight in the city, constantly visiting the chapel; he received Christ, was received into the church, and returned to tell the story to his fellow-villagers. At first he was persecuted, and few would receive his testimony. After a year a missionary visited the village, when two more converts were found. Last autumn, on the occasion of a second visit, the interest was so deep and widespread that the missionary spent the whole winter, and his visit was blessed by this large outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

New York Christian Advocate.

THE India mission of the United Presbyterian Church is the chief of its recent enterprises, and through the medical labors of Dr. Valentine and the educational efforts of Dr. Murdoch, through the excellence of its methods and the marked individuality of some of its converts, has achieved for itself a high position. It is situated in the heart of the Rajpootan States, whose people, the Rajpoots, have been called "the chivalry of northern India," and who to the number of 10,000,000 or 12,000,000 up to the time of the meeting, when the United Presbyterians entered upon the field, had not yet received the gospel. There are 6 stations, 11 ordained European missionaries, 5 medical missionaries, 99 helpers and teachers, 122 communicants, and 3,058 pupils in 77 schools. One of the chief features of the mission are the 5 orphanages, with 400 children. They grew out of the famine which a few years ago swept away 1,400,000 Rajpoots. The China mission, with 2 stations and 36 members, strives to labor in the hitherto uncared-for parts of north China. The Spanish mission, with 3 stations and 115 members, suffers with the general depression of evangelical labor in that country. The Japan mission, with 3 missionaries, has just been begun. The summary of the United Presbyterian missions is as follows: 48 European and 6 native missionaries, 8 medical missionaries, 261 helpers and teachers (mostly natives,) 54 main and 138 outstations, 6,927 communicants and 1,187 inquirers, 9,079 pupils in 166 schools.

BAPTIST.—Prof. Rauschenbusch gives the following account of the Stundists of Russia: "In Russia many sects have separated from the national church, claiming to be the true orthodox Greek Church, and in some of them there seems to be some real piety. But the Stundists differ from them all, as they have arisen by the contact of religiously-disposed native Russians with pious Germans in southern Russia. Several hundred thousand Germans live in southern Russia, and a very large proportion have descended from the so-called 'Pietists,' or 'Stundists,' who emigrated from Wurtemberg to Russia about fifty or sixty years ago. 'Pietists' is a nickname given to earnest Christians all over Germany; Stundists, from the German word Stunde, hour—i. e., hour of prayer or for prayer meeting. Many of these German Pietists of Russia have become Baptists, and a large proportion of the native Russians who inclined toward the views and practices of the Pietists were on the point of becoming Baptists when the persecution broke out and prevented them from being baptized. This will account for the fact that the Baptists are called Stundists, which is a general term, embracing Baptists and Pedobaptists. It will also account for the fact stated, that some Stundists recently brought their children to the priests to be christened. Doubtless they never had been Baptists, but were simply people who attended prayer meetings. I have positive information that the tendency of the Stundist movement among the native Russians is decidedly toward the Baptists."

THE thirteenth annual report of the foreign missions of the Southern Presbyterian Church gives the missionary income for the last year at $42,431. Although this is somewhat less than the receipts of the previous year, it is gratifying to notice that 200 more churches have contributed last year than the year before, making the number of contributing churches 890. The Missionary, published at Columbia, South Carolina, is the chief means of diffusing missionary interest in the denomination. The missionary force consists of 21 ordained ministers, 24 assistant missionaries and 14 native helpers. The oldest mission is that among the Cherokees, Creeks, Seminoles and Choctaws in Indian Territory. There are 7 main stations, 20 church organizations, and the number of members is given from 1,000 to 1,200, in a population of about 70,000. As the schools in the Territory, though supported by government annuities, are very poor, the two educational institutions of the mission have special importance. One of these, the Muskogee Institute, recently begun and under the charge of Miss Hoge, of Virginia, has 22 girls; and the Spencer Academy, in which the most influential men of the Territory were educated, has 50 pupils. The secretary, Dr. Wilson, in his recent tour among these Indians, finds that they have rather gone backward than forward in twenty years, though the increasing number of whites who have come in with the railroads have added to the material prosperity of the country. The other missions are those to the United States of Columbia, with two stations and a growing school; to Brazil, with one station at Pernambuco and another at Campinas, where the institute has 110 pupils; China, with two stations at Hangchau and Suchau; Italy, where Miss Rouzone labors as a teacher at Milan, in connection with the Waldensian Church; and the two new missions commenced during the past year—Greece (Dr. Kalopothakes) and northern Mexico, at Matamoras. The statistics of the report are too imperfect to permit of any summary.

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1874.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—112 CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the Patronizing Conferences.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
REV. A. J. BRIGGS.
REV. J. W. RUSH.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

One Year	$2 00
Six Months	1 25
Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all Ministers of the Gospel, traveling or local and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers, with EIGHT DOLLARS.

Revivals Prevailing.

The revivals now prevailing in almost every section of our Southern Methodism are going forward in the face of temporal conditions not usually regarded as favorable to the success of the gospel. Much political excitement is supposed to exist, and, if we may believe the representations of the radical newspapers, there is general riot and social disturbance. If we were to credit the reports which are spread abroad through these sheets, we should suppose that our people were devoting themselves exclusively to Kukluxing and to conspiracies against the well-being and lives of the carpet-baggers and their colored followers. And yet throughout these States there is a greater religious interest, more conversions, and a larger increase of membership than for years past.

Certainly we must conclude that our preachers are about their Master's business, and not much embroiled in the troubles of the day, and that our Southern Methodists are too much enlisted in the work of God to be stirring up strife. It is a most gratifying fact that the preachers are earnestly and zealously pursuing their high calling—preaching the gospel of Christ, calling sinners to repentance—and that they permit no perils or excitements in the social or political situation to move them away from the path of duty. The people are awake to religious convictions as seldom before, and thousands are converted every week. The work goes forward amidst the engrossing and sometimes tumultuous and violent demonstrations of the belligerent rabbles and mobs which have been stirred up by the enemies of the country. We note this feature in the cheering work of grace as significant. Our church is doing the work of a church of Christ nobly, her ministry are devoted to the saving of souls, and the disorder of the times seems to have helped rather than hindered the work of God.

A very common mention connected with the revival reports which come to us from week to week is that the preachers are having a hard time, poorly paid, badly supported, and that the people are struggling with poverty, burdened with the oppressions of political despotism, and discouraged by failures in the crops. Notwithstanding, the word of God has been with power, and these calamities of the country have seemingly contributed to the spread of the gospel. Like the Thessalonians of old, the people are receiving "the word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Ghost." Never are people so likely to feel their need of the gospel as in times of trouble. They are prepared to accept the great and divine consolation because they long for comfort and support, and because the world has none to give.

In individual afflictions suffering is often graciously sanctified. The experience of tens of thousands will testify that they received the word not in prosperity, not in full health and in the midst of success, but in the hour of anguish and suffering. Driven from that refuge of lies—worldly pleasure and gain—they fled to the Christian refuge, and laid hold on this hope. Through the bitterness of repentance, and through faith in a merciful Savior, they reached a comfort and obtained a consolation which enabled them to rejoice in tribulation: "In much affliction, with joy of the Holy Ghost." There is no contradiction here, but a relation which often obtains between the greatest temporal suffering and the clearest and most comforting manifestations of the divine presence. The abounding grace of God, and the power of the gospel to save men from eternal death, are compensations in the cup of adversity.

However our misfortunes have been brought about, and by whatever agencies of human wickedness and malice, it is much that God smiles upon his people in their times of sorrow, and sends them what is better even than temporal prosperity. The existing revival influence proves that the day of tribulation, and the time when men's minds are aroused by other exciting issues, are perhaps the most favorable for the effective presentation of the gospel. Throughout the fall there should be no relaxation of effort, and no diversion from the great work of saving souls. The salvation of the country, as well as of the individual, depends largely on the spread of the gospel. A good revival of religion in a community, or in the country at large, is worth more than all other expedients for its welfare and preservation.

A Sample Brick.

The following remarkable facts are transmitted from Walker county to the Montgomery Advertiser, by letter, dated Arkadelphia:

Permit me to trespass upon your valuable columns for the purpose of informing the citizens at large what recently transpired in Beat No. 15 of this county. A few days ago twenty-seven members of the Northern Union Methodist Church abandoned their faith and order, both religiously and politically, and joined the Missionary Baptist Church, and were baptized by Rev. L. Williams, of Jasper. They were all Republicans, but when they abandoned their denomination they also abandoned their Radicalism. Now they declare themselves Democrats, and will support the Democratic State ticket. The reason for this change was because their presiding elder, one Lakin, while on his grand rounds preferred staying with his negro brethren in preference to the white members of his church. This man Lakin is nothing more than the scum of the Union Methodist Church of New York, sent down here, I presume, to regenerate the negroes in religion and politics. When preaching to his God-loving, social equality brethren his text is the civil rights bill. Long may he live on earth to kiss the negro children and fondle them on his paternal and patriarchal knee.

D. A. R.

The above paragraph, cut from the Mobile Register, explains itself, except that the Methodist Episcopal Church (North) is called the "Northern Union Methodist Church." Who the writer (D. A. R.) is I know not, but feel sure that he has stated facts.

I send the paragraph, Mr. Editor, that its publication in the ADVOCATE may show your readers the political character of the Northern Methodist preachers, as their character is expressed in their degraded social habits and radical pulpit politics.

My own opinion is that this man Lakin, whom D. A. R. describes "as nothing more than the scum of the Union (Northern) Methodist Church" (and of whom we have heard before in this State,) is above the average of his class, but that his essential character is the essential character of all of them—that he is a fair specimen, "a sample brick." These are the men who have indorsed, by their sermons, prayers, letters and conversations, that infamous system of carpetbagism which has corrupted our Legislatures and courts, absorbed and squandered our wealth, prostrated all our material resources, and pushed up the poor negroes to the very verge of a gigantic social war. These are the men sent into our midst to prosecute in their own way the policy, often and plainly repeated, of disintegration and absorption.

I hope also and specially, Mr. Editor, that this "sample brick" will fall under the inspection of our "two Bishops, missionary secretary and leading D. Ds." of Round Lake and Sea Cliff fame, that they may know what sort of things, following their example, we away down here will be forced to take into our bosoms. These high functionaries and doctors doubtless thought they were representing Southern Methodism; but I doubt if the church would have elected them or anybody else to represent her on those great occasions; for on that subject I have heard but one expression, and that has been a profound and sorrowful regret that they saw fit to constitute themselves our representatives.

So long as the brilliant Bishop Haven continues to publish in the Independent or any other paper his venomous contributions of vituperation and falsehood; so long as Presiding Elder Lakin, in "his grand rounds," preaches from the civil rights bill as his text, and actually practices his social equality doctrine; so long as the Northern Church refuses to cancel her disintegration policy, and indorses such men as Haven and Lakin—so long as these things continue, Mr. Editor, many of us don't care to be represented in their meetings; and if we have fraternity, prefer that it be formal—very.

Yours, etc., J. W. RUSH.

MOBILE, September 17, 1874.

Romish Mendacity.

Some time ago, says the Christian Intelligencer, we called attention to the systematic plan of Jesuit and other Roman Catholic teachers to rewrite history, eliminating from it any facts that are to the discredit of the Romish Church, its popes, prelates, ecclesiastics and partisans generally; and injecting upon it falsifications reflecting upon the religion of Protestants, and the character of its greatest advocates and defenders.

The object of the writers who are industriously engaged in this vile business is palpable. They do not expect to be credited by the intelligent and scholarly classes even of their own faith. These will search out the facts for themselves, and will form judgments more or less in accordance with the truth, in proportion to their capability for original research, their ability to weigh testimony, or their impartiality. In the main, they will accept the versions of eminent historians, and, while they remain firm in their allegiance to the church in which they were born, will deplore those acts of its members which have tarnished its fame and made its policy odious to the great mass of Christendom.

The aim of these papistical writers who are engaged in the task of travestying history, we repeat, is not to produce an effect upon the minds of this small and select class of Romanists; but it is to influence the opinions and confirm the faith of the ignorant masses of that church, who are incapable of making a judgment of their own, and must take the facts of history at second hand. For these history must be manipulated, manufactured out of "whole cloth," and to this labor Romish priests, Jesuits and hireling advocates are industriously devoting themselves with characteristic artifice and the most fecund powers of falsehood. To make room for their adulterated and emasculated histories, the accepted works of writers of renowned scholarship, who have written with impartiality, and have neither extenuated anything in favor of Protestant or Romanist, or set down aught in malice against them, are to be driven out of the libraries of Catholics, and are not to be permitted to come into the hands of their youth at school or of the common people, who will by this means be kept from contact with inconvenient truth, and may be held docile believers in the doctrines and practices of a church which dreads the light.

As an illustration of the manner in which Romish writers sophisticate history, we invite attention to the following extract from a work on the ecclesiastical history of Great Britain, recently written by one of their number—a Mr. James Walsh. We think it unnecessary to undertake the useless task of exposing its tissue of falsehood, or to supplement it by even a word of comment. It would be an insult to the intelligence of our readers to do either. Our object will have been attained if we succeed in directing their notice to the conspiracy against the truth of history in which Romanists are now industriously engaged. The extract to which we refer professes to describe the character of the celebrated John Knox, which it does in terms almost the exact opposite of the truth, as follows:

"His whole public life was spent in treason, conspiracy, rebellion, turbulence and bloodshed. He was born of poor parents, educated by the charity of the Catholic Church, ordained a priest at the age of twenty-five, was admonished, and afterward expelled from the office of the priesthood for his crimes of impurity, and for teaching heresy. He joined the band of assassins who murdered Cardinal Beaton, and became their chaplain; was condemned to the galleys in France as one of the criminals, where he remained for nineteen months, and was then liberated. Knox then came to England, where he became a preacher of Lutheranism and Episcopalianism, although he professed to be a sort of Calvinist in Scotland. * * * In 1559 he returned to Scotland still a rebel; he at once joined the rebellion going on against the regent Mary of Guise. He wrote letters to the English government under a feigned name, soliciting money to aid the rebels, and an English army to invade and lay waste his native land. He urged the people to destroy and ruin the churches, abbeys and religious establishments, and to burn all the civil and ecclesiastical histories, documents, charters and records of the country. He was a coarse, vulgar and vindictive rebel and traitor to his queen and country from the day Mary landed until she was dethroned. * * * He was at all times a despicable coward, who fled from that danger which was the consequence of his crimes. In his writings he defended and praised the assassination of Cardinal Beaton, the Duke of Guise, and David Riccio as being the work of God; he also maintained that all Catholics, clergy and laity, kings and subjects, ought to be put to death, so that he was thus the advocate of murder and the fiercest intolerance. He was unsettled in his own creed, or else acted the hypocrite, as he was an Episcopalian during his stay in England, whilst in Scotland he was a Calvinist and Presbyterian. He was a calumniator and slanderer of the worst kind, as he, in his writings and sermons, distorted facts, misrepresented passing events, falsified history, and defamed the best of men and most virtuous of women."

TIMES of general calamity and confusion have ever been productive of the greatest minds. The purest ore is produced from the hottest furnace, and the brightest thunderbolt is elicited from the darkest storm.

THE closest walk with God is the sweetest heaven that can be enjoyed on earth.—Brainerd.

OUR State affairs have apparently become settled again. The usurping Governor and other officials, who were put in possession of the government two years ago by the arbitrary interference of President Grant, have been reinstated by the same power. After a day or two of liberty, our State has been remanded, by Federal bayonets, to the grinding despotism which could not exist for an hour but for the unrighteous intervention of the national government. The gallant resistance and uprising of the people, the speedy overthrow of their tyrants, and the establishment of the rightful government, has not, we trust, been altogether in vain. The Kellogg dynasty has been more clearly than ever exposed as a sham and fraud, and as being utterly incapable of maintaining itself apart from the national military arm. It is no government of the people, but the creature of fraud and usurpation, and sustained and controlled by the President and his army. When honest and intelligent men of every section come to understand the events of Monday, the fourteenth instant, they will see the vileness and the disgrace of the misgovernment to which the people of Louisiana have been subjected. It was no war of races, it was no opposition to the national authority, but resistance to local oppression which could no longer be borne. Self-respect and self-preservation demanded a protest in some form, and that it ended in violence and bloodshed must be attributed to the despotism against which the demonstration of the people was directed. However thwarted in their efforts for a good government, and however defeated in the immediate result, it will be some satisfaction to our people that they have vindicated their right to be free. The spirit of liberty is not dead, and its suppression is a lasting shame to the nation.

OUR News from the Work brings tidings of many conversions every week. This autumn, amidst outward troubles and poverty, God is blessing the church with an abundant harvest of souls. Our preachers are manifestly in earnest and faithful in their work. Such tidings should inspire the church with increased faith and zeal. Dr. McCarty, presiding elder, sends us the following cheering note from the Montgomery district, Alabama Conference:

AUBURN, ALA., Sept. 14, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: We are having good times on the Montgomery district. The district camp meeting (last Sunday of August) was a time of great power. Since then Bro. Graham has had good meetings on Crawford circuit. Bro. Mangum has a wonderful meeting going on at Tuskegee; about thirty conversions in one night. Bro. Loveless received twenty-five members at Auburn yesterday, and eight or ten last night, and still the meeting goes on. Bro. Motley has promise of the best meeting I have ever seen at Opelika; souls are being converted and the church greatly refreshed. Bro. Turrentine, at Tallassee, has had twenty-six added to the church. Bro. Perdue, on Elmore circuit, has added ninety-six, and still the work goes on. Before these meetings the church seemed more indifferent and sinners harder than I have ever seen them before. The preachers were alarmed at the state of the case, and they have preached faithfully the terrors of the law, and the result is visible, wonderful, glorious.

A Good School.

By reference to the card of Prof. Magruder it will be seen that the Baton Rouge Collegiate Institute opens on Monday, October 5. This sterling school for boys is of long standing and of wide repute as among the very best in the country. The school is beautifully located in the suburbs of Baton Rouge, and its record for health will compare to advantage with any located in the mountains of Virginia. The students are members of the family of the president, eat at his table, and are surrounded by the refining and wholesome influence of a Christian home. The standard of instruction is high and thorough, and boys can be taken through the entire college course, or fitted for admission to the best colleges of the country. The terms are not high in reality, as $300 pays for everything for the entire year. It is, in fact, a cheap school, and as excellent as it is cheap.

IMPORTANT TO UNDERGRADUATES.—It would seem that Bishop Paine is of opinion that the Conferences should this year elect to orders under the old rule. We quote the following from the Nashville Christian Advocate:

Bishop Paine writes us that he agrees with us "that the Conferences should this year elect to orders under the old rule." We hope all those who were admitted on trial last year will pass a good examination on the course of study for two years, and be ordained deacons; and that those who were ordained deacons last year will in like manner pass a good examination on the two years' course, and be ordained elders.

HE who laughs at cruelty sets his heel on the neck of religion.

Denver Conference.

We are much obliged to Bishop Pierce, says the Nashville Christian Advocate, for the prompt returns of the minutes of the Denver Conference, and to Dr. McFerrin for an interesting communication accompanying them. The new Conference starts off with fair prospects. Our old Alabama and Little Rock friend, the Rev. W. C. Hearn, is secretary; that is right. We see that he is stationed at Denver—we guess that is also right. R. M. Craven was admitted on trial; S. W. Debusk into full connection; W. C. Hearn, J. J. Carden, D. L. Collie were received by transfer. S. W. Debusk was elected and ordained deacon. Asbury H. Quillin (local) was ordained deacon. T. R. Pierce, C. W. Sanford, E. J. Stanley, E. M. Mann were elected and ordained elders. A. A. Morrison, superannuated. There are 636 white members and 9 local preachers; 32 infants and 150 adults baptized; 11 Sunday schools, 53 teachers, 402 scholars; $24.60 collected for claimants; $218.27 for missions. The next session is to be at Helena, Montana.

After this was in type we received the minutes from Bro. Hearn, and a letter, from which we copy as follows:

"The first session of the Denver Conference was held in the city of Denver, Colorado, August 27-29, 1874; Bishop Pierce, president. After the usual devotional exercises the Bishop addressed the Conference, and announced the transfer of W. C. Hearn, from Little Rock Conference; J. J. Carden, of West St. Louis Conference; and D. L. Collie, of Louisville Conference, to the Denver Conference. Twelve clerical and three lay members answered to their names and took their seats. W. C. Hearn was elected secretary, and E. M. Mann assistant. The session was most harmonious and pleasant.—Bishop Pierce, in the pulpit, chair and social circle, won upon all hearts. He preaches and presides just as well at the base of the Rocky mountains as he does in Nashville. Dr. McFerrin was Dr. McFerrin—and you know what that is. He preached, talked, suggested and aided everywhere. He closed with a talk to the children, on Sunday afternoon, saying: 'Meet me in heaven; good-by;' retiring by a back door, leaving moistened eyes, and also carrying such away. Our statistics are necessarily imperfect—so many of the preachers absent, because of distance, and sending no report; but we have done the best we could. Two men—Bros. Sanford and Stanley—came 1,000 miles (450 by stage) to get to Conference. Think of it! Let the preachers on the railroads keep silence. The Bishop announced his appointments on Saturday afternoon—not a murmur was heard. Our field is large, our labor hard, but a noble band of self-sacrificing men step forth into the new Conference, to work and suffer for Jesus Christ. We need your prayers, and of the church generally. After a most impressive sermon at eleven o'clock on Sunday, by the Bishop, the deacons and elders were ordained."

VOTE ON THE CHANGE OF THE GENERAL RULE.

This is to certify that the proposed change in the Discipline, page 27, was not adopted, to wit:

"Drunkenness, or drinking spirituous liquors, unless in cases of necessity.

"Then substitute the following:

"Making, buying, selling or using, as a beverage, intoxicating liquors."

The vote was 12 clerical and 3 lay—all voting "No."

WILLIAM C. HEARN,
Sec. Denver Conf., M. E. C. S.

DENVER, COL., August 29, 1874.

Conversions in a Week.

The Baltimore Episcopal Methodist gives the following as the conversions and accessions in the Southern Methodist Church for one week in September:

Conferences.	Conversions.	Accessions.
Baltimore	146	101
California	70	65
Tennessee	337	303
Holston	135	128
Louisiana	147	142
Mississippi	47	47
North Mississippi	197	138
Alabama	50	57
North Alabama	58	51
Kentucky	101	126
Texas	25	30
Virginia	138	132
West Virginia	12	14
Louisville	77	101
North Georgia	143	147
South Georgia	92	82
North Carolina	277	263
South Carolina	286	273
Little Rock	152	130
White River	30	21
Memphis	78	72
St. Louis	55	46
West St. Louis	25	15
Missouri	37	28
Florida	40	39
Arkansas	150	130
Trinity	70	61
Illinois	23	20
Totals	3,007	2,731

LITTLE ROCK CONFERENCE.—Time of Holding Session Changed Back from November 25 to December 9.—I learn that some six of the presiding elders of the Little Rock Conference are not satisfied with the change I made in the time of holding that Conference, from the ninth of December to the twenty-fifth of November, and the outcry is on the finances. These brethren ought to know. That I may not embarrass the brethren on this point of vital interest these very hard times, I hereby change the time back to December 9, 1874. H. H. KAVANAUGH.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 28, 1874.

CHANGE OF THE TIME OF THE SESSION OF THE NORTH ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—The ensuing session of the North Alabama Conference will commence November 11, instead of November 4, as published in the plan of visitation. This change has been made by urgent request, though it does not extend as late as was desired, in consequence of the alteration in the times of other Conferences which it would necessitate.

D. S. DOGGETT.

PRUDENT MEN look up their motives; letting familiars have a key to their hearts, as to their gardens.

Last Hours of Napoleon III.

The Emperor fully understood the great danger of the operations which he consented to submit, and was well aware that their result might be fatal. He, in fact, prepared for death. He revised and made a codicil to his will—a very curious document, of which I shall perhaps have occasion to again speak—and gave it to his wife; and on the day before the first operation he made what the Catholics call "a good confession," received absolution, and approached the blessed sacrament. Indeed he had been scrupulously attentive to his religious duties for several months past. He, the Empress and the prince imperial never failed to go to mass on every Sunday, on every holiday of obligation, and on every day of devotion. It turns out not to be true that Father Goddard, the Catholic priest at Chiselhurst, did not arrive in time to administer to the dying Emperor the last rites of the church. He was with him for ten minutes before he expired; the condition of the Emperor made it impossible for him to receive the viaticum, but the sacrament of extreme unction was administered. This sacrament, in the Catholic faith, remits venial sins, moral sins having been already remitted by the sacrament of penance and confession; it heals the soul of its infirmity and weakness, it helps to remove something of the debt of punishment due to past sins, it imparts strength to the soul, and arms it against the attempt of its spiritual enemies. Father Goddard had administered this sacrament, which consists in anointing the sick person in the form of a cross, upon the eyes, ears, nose, mouth, hands and feet, repeating the words: "Through this holy unction, and his most tender mercy, may the Lord pardon thee whatever sins thou hast committed;"—and he was just commencing with the words, "Depart, O Christian soul, from this world, in the name of God the Father almighty, who created thee; in the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God, who suffered for thee; in the name of the Holy Ghost, who has poured forth upon thee," when the Emperor, who had just given his last kiss to the Empress, breathed two faint sighs and expired. The Empress, who up to that moment had remained perfectly calm, uttered a shriek of grief and anguish, and fell faintly in a chair; and for a few moments nothing was heard in the room but the low voice of the priest as he continued his prayer and the sobbing of the kneeling spectators of the scene. There were present, at the moment of death, the Empress, M. Liebri, some of the other members of the household, all of the physicians and Father Goddard.—Correspondent of New York World.

THE CHURCHES OF GENOA.—I have said the Genoese are pious, and I must now speak of some of their religious customs. Before the revolution of 1793 there were at least three hundred and fifty churches in this city: at present there are about eighty, all of which deserve a visit, either on account of their architectural beauty, their costly marbles or the works of art they contain. The ceilings of many of them gleam with burnished gold, and are vivid with all the colors of the rainbow; pillars of porphyry, jasper, and even of agate, support the glittering roofs; and the altars are frequently composed of mosaics in which malachite, lapis-lazuli and similar stones are lavishly used; while in the Duomo and Annunziata the altars are of pure silver. Pictures by Vandyke, Rubens, Guido, Giulio Romano and Pierino la Vaga adorn them, and the chapels are often covered with frescoes by Piola and the two Cambiasi, who surpassed Correggio in the beauty of their putti or cherubim. On festivals the number of tapers burnt before the sacred shrines is very great. I have seen the Annunziata illuminated with ten thousand wax-lights. This is considered the most gorgeous church in Italy, and on the occasion I speak of its interior rather resembled a hall in Aladdin's palace than a place of prayer. A hundred chandeliers hung from the golden roof and caught upon their sparkling prisms the twinkling of the thousands of tapers which were arranged in wreaths, garlands and monograms about the ten altars which line either side of the magnificent temple. The twenty-four marble columns dividing the nave were encircled at their capitals with a blaze of light, and the high altar was almost too dazzling to look at. The superb rosso-antique columns in this church are said to have cost the united families of Lomellini, Durazzo and Pallavicino a million francs apiece, or one million sterling for the twenty-four.—Lippincott's Magazine.

IT IS pleasant to say to all the brotherhood and sisterhood of ugliness and lameness: There is every reason to believe that there is no such thing in heaven as a one-legged or club-footed soul—no such thing as an ugly or mis-shapen soul—no such thing as a soul with tainted blood in its veins; and that out of these imperfect bodies will spring spirits of consummate perfection and angelic beauty—a beauty chastened and enriched by the humiliations that were visited upon their earthly habitations.—Dr. Holland.

THE Nashville Christian Advocate says: Bishop Paine writes us, Aberdeen, Mississippi, September 10: "I have just closed a series of District Conferences, running through the whole summer. Am tired. Thank God for the many indications of his saving power displayed in the conversion of sinners and the revival of members of the church at these meetings. Health tolerable."

DR. J. M. REID, who was elected by an almost unanimous vote Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the General Conference at Napanee, Canada, August 29, declined the honor, and Rev. Dr. A. Carman, president of Albert College, was elected Bishop.

TESTAMENTARY charities are no better than dead sacrifices.—Sherlock.

Letter from England.

MR. EDITOR: The English Wesleyan Conference met in Camborne, Cornwall, on the twenty-ninth of July, and closed its sittings in two weeks. The preparatory committees met before the Conference, and transacted the business committed to them. The reports and the debates following showed Methodism to be pervaded with a healthy, vigorous and growing life, and has yet a work to do exceeding vast in its proportions, and surpassingly glorious in its issues.

There were but three vacancies in the Legal Hundred—a fewer number than has been for a long series of years. Two of these were filled by nomination and one by seniority. Seven ministers were nominated, and the Revs. Richard Roberts and H. W. Holland were chosen. Mr. Roberts is popular as a preacher, and has spent the greater part of his ministerial life in London. Mr. Holland has spent all of his public life in the provinces. He is a man of vigorous grasp of mind, and is an abler and more thoughtful preacher than Roberts, but not so oratorically attractive, nor so polished in the minutiæ of style and address. The minister's name who passed into the hundred by seniority is Jones.

Eight clergymen were nominated for the presidency, and the Rev. Dr. Punshon was chosen by an overwhelming majority. He received 220 votes, and Mr. Arthur, the next, only 48. The doctor's inaugural is a gem—bold, brave, eloquent and beautiful. In reference to sacerdotalists, their teachings and their claims, he was incisive and decided: "We must be bold to affirm that there is no human priesthood save that royal one to which the whole company of believers is summoned." In reference to the position of Methodism he was unmistakably pronounced: "We must maintain our self-respect. As we are so often asked to consent to unite or be absorbed into another church, I think the time has come when on this question of our ecclesiastical position we should give forth no uncertain sound. The time has long gone by when we will listen to any proposals for union except on equal terms."

The representatives from other branches of Methodism addressed the Conference and public, in an open session, on the evening of the first day of the assembly's deliberations. France, Ireland and the United States (North) were represented worthily and with great ability. Dr. McAnley and Bishop Harris were the Western representatives.

During the last ten years one thousand two hundred and fourteen chapels have been built, and nearly four millions of money expended on them.

A high grade school is to be established in Cambridge, and a lengthened and vigorous discussion took place in reference to the choice of a principal. The result was that Rev. Dr. Moulton, of Richmond College, was appointed.

Letters of fraternal sympathy and regard were sent to three ex-presidents who were not able to be present at the Conference—Revs. John Lomas, S. R. Hall and S. D. Waddy, D. D.

The mortuary list is large—twenty-two died in England and seven on mission stations. Some of these were useful and able men, but none of them eminent or leaders of thought and opinion.

The Rev. H. Keet submitted a grievance to the Conference in the form of a correspondence which passed between himself and the Archbishop of Canterbury and Bishop of Lincoln anent the erection of a tombstone over the grave of his daughter in a parish church-yard. The rector of the parish would not permit the stone to be placed over the grave unless the word reverend would be erased from before his name on the inscription. Could Rome surpass that in bigotry, intolerance and exclusiveness? Dr. Wordsworth, the Bishop to whom Mr. Keet wrote, indorses the action of the rector in a most insulting letter, which led Dr. James to say in Conference that his lordship was afflicted with ecclesiastical monomania, and ought to be prayed for. The primate's letter was polite but passive. Dr. Tait knows how to adapt himself to circumstances, and can so effectually enwrap his priestliness in an incumbent courtesy as to conceal its arrogance. The matter excited much indignation in Conference. It was referred to the committee of privileges.

The affairs of the book-room are in a prosperous condition. The officers were reappointed. A new hymn-book is to be compiled during the year. A number of books were presented to Bishop Harris, Dr. McAuley and two other ministers from different parts of Methodism.

Dr. Osborn was reappointed for six years to the chair of theology in Richmond College. The doctor is an able man, and a scholarly theologian of the true and sterling old-school type.

A temperance committee was appointed—part abstainers and part non-abstainers. Dr. Osborn made a strong speech against total abstinence as enjoined by Scripture, or as absolutely indispensable to aid the temperance movement. A monster temperance meeting was held during the sittings of the Conference.

Dr. Cather had an opportunity of airing his league, not in the Conference, but at a public meeting. It was stated in the advertisement that the doctor attended as a deputation. But who deputed him? Himself. He was both the deputant and deputy. He is an amazing man—Dr. Cather. OBSERVER.

August 26, 1874.

THE "world" never harms a Christian so long as he keeps it out of his heart. Temptation is never dangerous until it has an inside accomplice. Sin within betrays the heart to the outside assailant.

"OH, DEAR SIR," says Brainerd, in writing to a friend, "do you think it enough to live at the rate of commonplace Christianity?"

Revival in Bryan, Texas.

BRYAN, TEXAS, Sept. 10, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: We are now in the midst of the greatest revival I have ever known in my life. Commencing with the week of prayer, it continues with unabated power, though the phases of it are greatly changed. The changes are clearly for the better. The physical demonstrations are less than at the first, but the power of truth is more clearly perceived; the divinity of the gospel, as the power of God unto salvation, more manifest. The processes by which God in his infinite mercy, through his abounding grace and truth, brings man to himself, are much more clearly apprehended by the wisest of us than ever before. Already we have one able minister of the gospel restored to the church and his embassy—recommissioned by the church, and endowed from on high for the great work; and his work already is approved of the Master. The hand of God, I feel confident, is on three young men who will go out from this Pentecost to preach the gospel.

We have had over one hundred conversions, sixty-six accessions to our church, and I feel that the work has only fairly commenced. God willing, we will continue it until Conference. We are now reaching the professional men—doctors, lawyers and skeptics. Already many of the strongest intellects are among the captives of truth. I have done most of the preaching myself, or rather the Holy Ghost through me. We had one sermon from Bro. Veal, one from Bro. Smith, of the Bryan circuit, one from Bro. W. F. Cummings, of Dallas, and four from Bro. C. E. Brown, of Calvert station. All effective.

The pastors of the Old School Presbyterian Church and Baptist Church of this city agreed to join me in a union meeting, and we wrote for Drs. Walker, Bunting and Howard, of Galveston, to come up and give us a start on the Hammond union plan. They declined to come, and the pastors here preferred to hold meetings in their own churches in their own way. The Presbyterians held two protracted meetings, with some good results. The Baptist brethren held one of four or six weeks, resulting, I believe, in about fifteen accessions by letter and profession.

Our revival has been and still is of pure Methodistic character. While both Presbyterians and Baptists, from their love to Christ and the charity that love inspires, have continued with us, laboring with us at the altar and in the community with us much zeal as ourselves, I realize more than ever that love for God and zeal for the salvation of men, with a firm conviction that the gospel is the power of God to the salvation of all that believe, from which arises a just sense of our duty to Christ in pressing his claims upon all, with the assurance that all may will to be saved, is the true basis of union, effective and acceptable service. Truly yours in Christ,

S. C. LITTLEPAGE.

Homer College.

HOMER, LA., Sept. 15, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: Please say to all, especially to those in north Louisiana, that no tuition will be charged in Homer College for the present (fall) session. This session closes February 1.

I think it probable that this proposition will be continued until June next, and possibly for many years to come.

Young men without means, and wishing to obtain a collegiate education, now have an excellent opportunity offered them. By renting a room and cooking their own provisions their expenses need not exceed $8 per month.

I trust that all your readers, especially preachers, will give publicity to this generous proposition of the board of trustees. I trust also that all papers favoring the gratuitous education of young men will call the attention of their readers to this offer. THOS. J. UPTON, Financial Sec. Homer College.

THE PILGRIM AND THE KNIGHT. In a noble castle there once resided a very rich knight. He expended much money in adorning and beautifying his dwelling, but he gave very little to the poor. A weary pilgrim came to the castle and asked for a night's lodging. The knight haughtily refused him, and said:

"This castle is not an inn."

The pilgrim replied: "Permit me to ask two questions, and then I will depart."

"Upon this condition, speak," replied the knight; "I will readily answer you."

The pilgrim then said to him: "Who dwelt in this before you?"

"My father," replied the knight.

"And who will dwell here after you?" still asked the pilgrim.

The knight said: "With God's will, my son."

"Well," said the pilgrim, "if each dwells but a time in the castle, and in time must depart and make way for another, what are you here otherwise than guests? The castle, then, is truly an inn. Why, then, spend so much money adorning a dwelling which you will occupy but a short time? Be charitable, for he that hath pity upon the poor lendeth to the Lord, and that which he hath given he will pay him again."

The knight took these words to heart. He gave the pilgrim shelter for the night, and was ever afterward more charitable unto the poor.

HARD ON HIMSELF.—William M. Evarts, at a public dinner lately, told this good story on himself: A few summers since, at the request of one of his youngest daughters, he sent up to his country place in Vermont a donkey for her use. She had read about donkeys, but was not familiar with their braying. The animal's noise inspired her with the profoundest pity for what she thought was his distress. So she wrote to her father: "Dear Papa—I do wish you would come up here soon; my donkey is so lonesome."

INFORMATION has been received at the Navy Department that Commander Chas. L. Franklin, on duty at Pensacola navy-yard, died of yellow fever on the eighteenth instant. He was a native of Ohio and had been in the service nearly twenty years. The three medical officers recently ordered to duty at that yard have arrived there. Prof. Logan, of New Orleans, who is supposed to have volunteered his services, has also reached the yard. The latest intelligence at the department shows no abatement of the yellow fever. Captain A. A. Semmes, executive officer at the yard, has been taken with the fever.

A FAITHFUL Scotch minister of the gospel being one day engaged in visiting some members of his flock, came to the door of a house where his gentle tapping could not be heard for the noise of contention within. After waiting a little he opened the door and walked in, saying, with an authoritative voice: "I should like to know who is the head of this house." "Weel, sir," said the husband and father, "if ye sit doon a wee, we'll maybe be able to tell ye, for we're e'en noo trying to settle that point."

A GERMAN JEW was eating a pork-chop in a thunder-storm. On hearing an unusually loud clap he laid down his knife and fork, and observed: "Veil, did anypoty efer hear such a fuss nbout a leedle peece of bork?"

MARRIED.

REDDING—LINFIELD.—In the Methodist church, Hazlehurst, Mississippi, September 10, 1874, by Rev. E. H. Mounger, Mr. Charles A. Redding and Miss Sallie A. Linfield, second daughter of Rev. William E. M. Linfield, of the Mississippi Conference.

PREWITT—PUGH.—On the eighth of September, 1874, by Rev. J. M. Patton, Mr. L. A. Prewitt and Miss L. O. Pugh, all of Sumter county, Alabama.

SMAW—HERNDON.—On the fifteenth of September, 1874, in the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Eutaw, Alabama, by Rev. J. M. Patton, Mr. William Smaw and Miss Sallie J. Herndon, all of Greene county, Alabama.

HARPER—ELTON.—August 18, 1874, by Rev. J. L. Wright, at the residence of the bride, Mr. M. C. Harper and Mrs. E. C. Elton, all of Morehouse parish, Louisiana.

HAWSEY—BOWMAN.—By the same, September 1, 1874, at the residence of Matthew Bowman, Esq., Mr. Thomas L. Hawsey, of Morehouse parish, to Miss Mary E. Bowman, of Ouachita parish, Louisiana.

Conference Register.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Denver	Denver city	Aug. 27	Pierce.
Illinois	Murphysboro	Sept. 2	Wightman.
Western	Wyandotte	Sept. 9	Keener.
Columbia	Salem	Sept. 9	Pierce.
W. Virginia	Philippi	Sept. 16	Doggett.
Kentucky	Mt. Sterling	Sept. 16	Wightman.
Missouri	St. Joseph	Sept. 16	Keener.
S. W. Missouri	Lexington	Sept. 30	Keener.
Louisville	Princeton	Sept. 30	Wightman.
Tennessee	Gallatin	Oct. 7	Marvin.
Pacific	Stockton	Oct. 7	Pierce.
Holston	Asheville	Oct. 14	Doggett.
St. Louis	Caledonia	Oct. 14	Keener.
Indian Miss'n.	North Fork	Oct. 22	McTyeire.
Arkansas	Fort Smith	Oct. 28	Kavanaugh.
Los Angeles	Carpenteria	Oct. 28	Pierce.
North Texas	Denton	Nov. 4	McTyeire.
N. Alabama	Huntsville	Nov. 11	Doggett.
White River	Searcy	Nov. 11	Kavanaugh.
Virginia	Elizabeth City	Nov. 18	Marvin.
N. W. Texas	Weatherford	Nov. 18	McTyeire.
Memphis	Humboldt	Nov. 18	Paine.
N. Mississippi	Aberdeen	Nov. 25	Doggett.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 2	Marvin.
West Texas	Gonzales	Dec. 2	McTyeire.
N. Georgia	Cartersville	Dec. 2	Wightman.
Alabama	Opelika	Dec. 9	Doggett.
East Texas	Marshall	Dec. 9	McTyeire.
South Georgia	Savannah	Dec. 9	Pierce.
Little Rock	Monticello	Dec. 9	Kavanaugh.
Florida	Live Oak	Dec. 16	Wightman.
S. Carolina	Greenville	Dec. 16	Marvin.
Mississippi	Hazlehurst	Dec. 16	Paine.
Texas*	Honston	Dec. 16	Keener.
Louisiana	Alexandria	Jan. 6	Paine.
Baltimore	Washin'n city	Mar. 3	Marvin.

*German Mission Conference organized at same time and place. Bishop Keener has charge of the mission in Mexico.

Publisher's Department.

Acknowledgments of Letters and Funds

RECEIVED BY MAIL,

For the Week Ending Sept. 19, 1874.

A—American Sunday School Union, R. C. Armstrong, American News Company three letters, Daniel Appleton & Co. four letters, J. O. Andrew.

B—A. J. Briggs, T. C. Belsher, B. G. Blackwell, James E. Bradley, A. Bruntz, Robert Babington, J. H. Barbee, A. A. Barnette $2, D. H. Baldwin & Co. $26, W. P. Barton, A. M. Box.

C—Thomas Cutton, S. N. Clark $9, J. T. Curliss, George Colmer, O. M. Curnwell agent, Lyman Carley, H. Clegg, A. H. Conners, Cassell & Haughn $50.

D—C. H. Duflose, Paul Delery, C. H. Dilson & Co., James F. Dumble $5, J. J. Davis, G. M. Danforth, A. W. Dennison.

E—W. G. Elder two letters, John D. Emack.

F—Firey & Marks, Chauncey J. Filley, E. N. Freshman two letters, M. C. Fillas, J. M. Frankhu, M. Fater & Co. $1.65.

G—J. B. Guthrie, W. Griffin & Co., Guilford, Woods & Co., C. C. Glover, J. E. Gildersleeve, W. A. Gill, James S. Gildersleeve.

H—T. L. Hinman, C. C. Hoover, J. J. Henerentt two letters, T. W. Hines $17.18, J. T. Hay, James H. Houston, W. C. Halslip.

I—Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co.

J—R. S. Jackson.

K—W. P. Kimball, J. C. Keener, Sim. D. Kehoe, J. T. Kilgore, J. M. Kemp.

L—Lee, Shepard & Dillingham, S. C. Law, J. B. Lippincott & Co., A. C. Littlejohn three letters, W. J. Lester, W. B. Lewis.

M—J. G. Meader 30 cents, Jethro Moore $100, Albert Mason two letters, J. McMurray & Co., E. Miller, Mrs. J. A. Minkle, P. J. Moss, John G. Mitchell two letters, James A. McNeill $24, W. T. Melugin, James H. McLarty $7.70, H. McCallen, J. A. McKinney, John C. Morton & Co.

N—R. D. Narsworthy, R. T. Nahors, National Railway Publishing Company.

O—Edgar Organ, James Osmond, J. Osgood, H. W. Olford.

P—Powers Paper Company two letters, S. M. Pettengill & Co. $17.25, Pope Bros. & Kugeman, George W. Petels, G. J. Penn, Wick. B. Parsons, J. W. Powell & Co., Porter & Coates.

R—Read & Lathrop two letters, A. H. Redford agent, A. D. F. Randolph & Co., Mrs. M. W. Read, Mrs. M. O. Ronaldson, A. M. Ragland $1, J. W. Rush.

S—S. B. Smith, E. W. Spencer, James E. Slater, W. S. Sykes $2, J. E. Surratt, St. Louis Advertising and Publishing Company; Thomas M. Smith, E. E. Stone, G. S. Sandell $5, J. L. Skipper $1, J. J. Smith, Robert Smilie, A. G. Stacey.

T—Ennis W. Taylor, B. A. Thomasson $5.35, W. H. Tutt, A. J. Thomson $3.50, J. M. Truitt $1.50.

W—James L. Wright, J. C. Wooters & Co. $21, W. B. Williams, W. M. Winn, R. J. Williams, Wilson, Hinkle & Co., W. C. Wilkinson, Willy Wallach, James S. White $45, John F. Wynn.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now making a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

AGENTS WANTED.—See advertisement of Ingersoll & Co.

PAINTS.—We have received specimens of the paints prepared by the Ingersoll Paint Works, 156 South street, New York, with pamphlet, and must say that if these paints can be applied, as per instructions, to attain a result even approximating these specimens, it will be great economy, especially to those living in communities remote from practical painters. See comments of the New York Methodist, headed "Paint that Will Stand."

VEGETABLES, FRUITS AND FLOWERS.—The advertisement of Hovey & Co., 53 North Market street, Boston, Massachusetts, is worthy of the attention of farmers and gardeners. They offer every description of bulbs, new and rare plants, and garden requisites. Catalogues sent free.

CARPENTERS AND BUILDERS who wish to inform themselves thoroughly in reference to their occupation will do well to send to A. J. Bicknell & Co., 27 Warren street, New York, for catalogue of new books on carpentry and building. See advertisement in another column.

LIFE OF JESUS.—Agents wanted for the sale of a book with the above title, published by H. S. Goodspeed & Co., 11 Barclay street, New York. See advertisement in to-day's issue. No copy of the book has reached us, and we are unable to speak of its merits.

RUBBER STAMP AGENTS are wanted for the sale of them. See advertisement of Ingersoll & Co., New York. These stamps have been used in some of our banks and business houses, and have, as far as we have heard, given satisfaction.

CHROMOS.—E. & H. T. Anthony & Co., 594 Broadway, New York, have one of the largest manufacturing and importing establishments on the continent devoted to chromos, frames, stereoscopes, etc. See advertisement.

PAPER PATTERNS.—Messrs. Avery & Co., 119 Chambers street, New York, advertise for agents to sell their Peerless paper patterns. See advertisement elsewhere, headed "$1,000 a Year for Ladies."

CANCER.—We direct the attention of those suffering with cancer and kindred diseases to the advertisement of Dr. Thorpe, of Philadelphia.

A. C. LITTLEJOHN, ESQ., is our sole agent for the State of Texas. We commend him to the courtesies of our friends having advertisements for insertion or other business to transact with the ADVOCATE.

A LIBERAL OFFER.—See advertisement of the People's Ledger.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

WALTHAM WATCHES.—These celebrated Watches have been greatly improved during the present year, and several new sizes added to the list. The stem-winding and setting attachment can now be had with any grade or size, and all the old established grades of key-winders are also made as before. Any one who contemplates buying a Watch, either now or in the future, should send for our new Descriptive Price List, which is now ready AND SENT FREE. This describes all the Watches, large and small, Ladies' and Gentlemen's, Gold and Silver, with prices of each, and contains besides information in relation to watches useful to every one. It also explains in full our plan of sending single Waltham Watches at low prices to any place in the Union by mail or express, with the bill to collect on delivery, with privilege to the purchaser to open the package and examine the Watch before paying, and with no obligation to take it unless entirely satisfactory. Thousands have obtained genuine WALTHAM WATCHES from us in this way, and all have received full value for their money. A large assortment of extra heavy cases for the Pacific trade always on hand. Every one should send for a Price List, as the farther you live from New York the more advantage it is to deal with us. When you write please mention that the advertisement was seen in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Address HOWARD & CO., No. 222 Fifth avenue, New York. an27 1meow

BECKWITH PORTABLE SEWING MACHINE.—A Hand and Treadle Machine Combined.—The cost is small compared with other standard machines, and it is much simpler and easier to operate, while its work is unsurpassed for beauty and strength. The price is $20 without the treadle; $25 with the treadle. Don't fail to send for a circular before buying any other machine. Mr. EDWARD THOMPSON, 90 Baronne street, is the agent for the Southwest. se24 1m

OBSERVATIONS ON NASAL CATARRH.—An abstract from a forthcoming work on diseases of the throat and air passages, by A. N. WILLIAMSON, M. D., late Clinical Physician in the University Medical College, New York city. Mailed to any address for 10 cents. Address the author, 28 East Twentieth street, New York.

"DR. WILLIAMSON'S great success in the treatment of Catarrhal and throat and lung affections renders valuable whatever comes from his pen."—Journal of Medical Science. an20 3m

BUY WERLEIN'S PIANOS, such as the Chickering, Dunham, Hale, Pleyel, etc., which are the best in the market. Sold at low prices, and on easy terms, if desired. New Pianos at $350, $375, $400, $450, $500, $550 and $600, at $20 per month. Second hand Pianos at $40, $50, $75, $100, $125, $150, $175, $200, $225 and $250, some at $10 per month; fully warranted, with renewed actions. Estey's, Needham's and Woods' Organs at low rates. Have added Blackmar's large stock of Sheet Music, Band Instruments and strings in great variety. Band Instruments, etc., repaired. PHILIP WERLEIN'S Mammoth Music House, Nos. 78, 80, 82 and 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. de25 1y

PIERSON & HEWS, fine Clothing, Shirts and Furnishing Goods, 13 and 15 Camp street, opposite City Hotel, New Orleans, Louisiana. We invite visitors from the interior to examine our stock and prices. We claim to sell first-class goods as low as can be afforded and live. We sell the celebrated Shoulder-Seam Shirts, warranted to fit, wear and give satisfaction. Liberal deduction made to Clergymen, and their trade solicited. mh5 1y

A SURE PREVENTIVE for Yellow Fever, Cholera and Smallpox. Price, $1, prepaid, with full directions. Address DR. B. BROWN, 197 Broadway, New York. se24 6t

$57.60—AGENTS' PROFITS PER WEEK.—Will prove it or forfeit $500. New article just patented. Samples sent free to all. Address W. H. CHICHESTER, 267 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

SHINGLES.

400,000 FIRST-CLASS

CYPRESS

SHINGLES,

ALL HEART.

Great Economy in Labor,

ABSOLUTE SECURITY FROM LEAKING,

AND NO WASTE

IN USING THESE SHINGLES.

ROOF SMOOTH AS SLATE.

ADDRESS

LOUISIANA SHINGLE COMPANY,

Box 814, New Orleans, La.

se24 3t

WORK At home, male or female. $35 per week, day or evening. No capital. for all. We send valuable package of goods by mail free. Address, with six-cent return stamp, M. YOUNG, 173 Greenwich street, New York. se24 6m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CANCER.

IT IS WELL KNOWN that the whole medical faculty of all schools of medicine have pronounced Cancers incurable. What sublime effrontery in any person to stand up boldly in the face of all this authority and claim to be able to cure Cancer. To put forth such a claim in the teeth of the medical profession, in the city of Philadelphia, with its world-renowned scientific professors and medical colleges, would be, unless it be substantiated in the most unquestionable manner, a height of impudence rarely attained by mortal man. Dr. Thorpe boldly claims that he can cure, has cured, does cure, and will cure Cancer, as well as diseases of a chronic and scrofulous nature; and, further, that he cures every case taken by him. He does this by a system which no other physician in the world practices. His method of treatment invigorates the body, stirs up the dormant energies of nature, purifies and cleanses the system, and imparts tone and health to all the organs of the body. His method is the most potent ever discovered, and that it is what it is claimed to be will be established, to the entire satisfaction of any one who will investigate. Address

THOMPSON INSTITUTE,
se24 3t No. 3208 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. Trade Mark. Patented.

THE Great Preserver of Health.—TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT can always be relied upon as a pleasant, mild, speedy and positive cure in all cases of Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Flatulency, Fullness of Blood, and all Inflammatory Complaints where a gentle, cooling cathartic is required. So says the chemist, so says the physician, so says the great American public of the nineteenth century. Heed ye, then, and be not without a bottle in the house. Before life is imperiled, deal judiciously with the symptoms. Remember that the slight internal disorder of to-day may become an obstinate, incurable disease to-morrow. Sold by all druggists. se24 2t

PAINT THAT WILL STAND.—OUR neighbors, the New York Independent, are painting their new building in the most gorgeous manner with Ingersoll's celebrated Ready-Mixed Old English Lead and French Zinc, by Quartermain's Formula. This elegant paint contests very much any other paint, and is very reasonable in price. We are using it, and advise our readers who use paint, and all who keep stores, to inclose postage stamps and have sent free their complete work, "How Every Man Can Paint," with specimens of thirty colors, brush, price, terms, etc. The address is Ingersoll Paint Works, 156 South street, New York.—New York Christian Advocate. se24 1m

AGENTS WANTED FOR

THE LIFE OF JESUS,

For Young People.

A WORK presenting Christ to the young in a more interesting and attractive manner than has ever before been done. Agents always succeed with it, because persons will have it for their children. Contains 550 quarto pages, with 50 full-page Engravings. For territory address

H. S. GOODSPEED & CO.,
se24 6m Publishers, 11 Barclay St., New York.

AWARDED THE HIGHEST MEDAL AT VIENNA.

E. & H. T. ANTHONY & CO.,

591 Broadway, New York.

Opp. Metropolitan Hotel,

MANUFACTURERS, IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

CHROMOS AND FRAMES,

Stereoscopes and Views, Albums, Graphoscopes, Megalethoscopes and suitable Views, Photographic Materials, Photo-Lantern Slides a specialty. se24 3m

READ THIS TWICE!

THE PEOPLE'S LEDGER contains NO continued stories. Eight large pages (48 columns) of choice miscellaneous reading matter every week. ☞ I will send the People's Ledger on trial every week for three months on receipt of only 25 cents. HERMAN K. CURTIS, No. 12 School street, Boston, Mass. se24 3m

$1,000 a Year for Ladies.

PEERLESS PAPER PATTERNS.—Always get the best. $1,000 a year for Ladies. 300 Branches. Goods consigned. Business pleasant and respectable. No canvassing. Sample retailing everywhere for $1, and full particulars on receipt of 25 cents. Agents wanted everywhere.

AVERY & CO.,
se24 3m 119 Chambers street, New York.

WANTED!—WANTED!—WANTED!—AGENTS IN EVERY SECTION TO SELL MY FINE STEEL ENGRAVINGS AND CHEAP PRINTS. 64-PAGE PAMPHLET, WITH TERMS AND PARTICULARS, SENT BY MAIL FOR 10 CENTS. GEO. E. PERINE, ENGRAVER, 25 BEADE ST., NEW YORK. se24 3m

NOTICE EXTRAORDINARY.

REMOVAL.

THE EXTENSIVE

CROCKERY AND CHINA STORE

—AND—

House-Furnishing Warehouse

—OF—

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.

Will be REMOVED, from September 1, to the spacious Stores,

29 Camp and 112 Common Street,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

With the increased facilities our new and elegant Warerooms afford, we shall display the largest variety of

DINNER SETS,	TOILET SETS,
TEA SETS,	TETE-A-TETE SETS,
CHAMBER SETS,	SETS OF GLASS, ETC.,

And GENERAL HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS ever offered in the Southwest, all of which are for sale at prices as LOW AS THE LOWEST.

Notice What a Little Money Will Buy!

An elegant White Granite DINNER SET, comprising 124 pieces, for..... $15 00

to wit:

12 Dinner Plates,	1 Soup Tureen,
12 Tea Plates,	1 Sauce Boat,
12 Soup Plates,	1 Salad Dish,
12 Preserve Plates,	2 Covered Dishes,
12 Butter Plates,	2 Vegetable Dishes,
12 Tea Cups and Saucers,	4 Meat Dishes,
12 Dinner Coffee Cups and Saucers.	2 Pickle Shells.

A Porcelain DeTerre DINNER SET (equal to French China in appearance, and much more durable,) same assortment as above.. $18 00

A French China (best quality) DINNER SET, same assortment, 124 pieces..... 30 00

Decorated Porcelain DeTerre and French China DINNER SETS, from..... $30 up.

White Granite CHAMBER SETS, 11 pieces $4 00

White Granite TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 4 00

French China TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 6 50

French China Decorated TEA SETS, 44 pieces..... 7 50

Good Table GOBLETS, from 50 cents per set up.

N. B.—When we ship these goods an additional charge is made for the package (box or barrel) and drayage.

These prices contemplate first-class goods, and are all warranted regular and perfect.

AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED

BLANCHARD CHURNS,

AND THE LARGEST DEALERS IN

HOUSEKEEPING NOVELTIES

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

W. C. SHEPARD & CO.,
No. 29 Camp street and 112 Common street,
del 1y New Orleans.

PERFEZIONE strengthens, perfects and develops the limbs, $1, postpaid. DR. VAN HOLM, 143 Court street, Boston, Mass. se24 1y

GARDEN AND FLOWER SEEDS.—Every description. Bulbs, New and Rare Plants, and all Garden Requisites. Catalogues free. HOVEY & CO., 53 N. Market St., Boston, Mass. se24 3m

WANTED.—500 persons to send for pamphlet (free) explaining how enormous profits are made in Stock Privileges, costing $1 per share. RUMRILL & CO., 52 Broadway, New York. P. O. Box 4905. se21 3m

300 PER CENT. MADE by RUBBER Stamp Agents. $1 sample and catalogues, postpaid, 35 cents. INGERSOLL & CO., 245 Broadway, New York. se21 3m

MEDICAL.

NEARLY ALL DISEASES ORIGINATE from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Depression of Spirits, or the Blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and, being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 10 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

OR MEDICINE

Is harmless,
Is no drastic, violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,
Is a faultless family medicine,
Is the cheapest medicine in the world,
Is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant,
Does not interfere with business,
Does not disarrange the system,
Takes the place of Quinine and Bitters of every kind,
Contains the simplest and best remedies.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

se25 1y

DR. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST ADVICE THAT CAN BE given to persons suffering from

DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS,

CONSTIPATION, COLIC, SICK HEADACHE,

Fever and Ague, Nervous Debility,

or of any disorder of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, is to tone, cleanse and regulate them by the use of

Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills.

They act very mildly, yet thoroughly restore the functional action of the Digestive Organs and the intestines, and renovate the whole system, imparting a good appetite and healthy assimilation of food. They produce neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility, and may be taken at any time, without change of diet or exposure.

Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye

possesses qualities that no other dye does. Its effect is instantaneous, and is so natural that it cannot be detected by the closest observer. Being harmless and easily applied, it is in general use among the fashionable Hair-Dressers in every large city in the United States. Price, $1 a box. Sold everywhere.

Laboratory—Nos. 48 and 50 Cortlandt street, New York. oc2 1y5p

METALLIC

ELECTRIC SHIELDS.

Fully Indorsed by the Entire Medical Profession.

HAVE CURED THOUSANDS OF

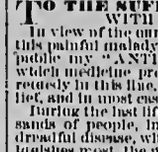
RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA,

AND ALL NERVOUS DISEASES.

☞ Simply applied and worn on the parts affected. For Lame Back, Local Pain, Local Palsy Weakness, Poor Circulation, Varicose Veins and Affections of the Eyes it is a scientific cure.—Sold by all Druggists, or General Agent,

GEORGE SWEETSER,
120 Wall St., New York.

Sent by Mail or Express, C. O. D. Price, $5 per pair. au29 3m



How I Made $70

the first week, and am now averaging $36 in a safe business. Any man or woman can do the same. ☞ The worst free. Write at once to COWAN & CO., au27 1y Eighth St., New York.

LIBERAL OFFER!—TWO NEW AND beautiful Chromos, THE CHERRY GIRLS, sent, post-paid, to any address for 50 cents. ☞ LARGE DISCOUNT to Agents. We have all the Patent Novelties of the age. Men, Women, Girls and Boys make more money by working for us than at anything else. Address ELM CITY NOVELTY CO.,
se10 3m New Haven, Conn.

WANTED.—AGENTS to canvass for our new book, "Messiah," by Rev. William M. Willett. Suited to all classes and denominations. Full of interest, and issued in a style attractive and substantial. Worthy the special notice of first class canvassers. B. B. RUSSELL, Publisher, Boston, Mass. se24 4t

AGENTS WANTED for the CENTENNIAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

GAZETTEER Showing the grand results of our first 100 Years. Everybody buys it, and agents make from $100 to $200 a month. Send for circular. ZIEGLER & McCURDY, St. Louis, Mo. my24 1ycow

BUILDERS! Send for Catalogue of CARPENTRY AND BUILDING. A. J. BICKNELL & CO., 27 Warren street, New York. au13 3m

LEGS AND ARMS.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Pamphlet free. CHARLES M. EVANS, manufacturer. (au6 1y)
76 Fourth street..... LOUISVILLE, KY.
132 West Fourth street..... CINCINNATI, O.

VALLEY

GEM PIANO.

This Piano is thoroughly and carefully made by experienced manufacturers, and is a good, reliable instrument in every particular. Its durability is one of its important points of superiority, and, besides its other good qualities, the low price will especially commend it to public favor.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue, containing choice music, to

D. H. BALDWIN & CO.,

158 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

jy23 3m

ESTABLISHED 25 YEARS.

HENRY E. SHARP & SON,

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS,

FOR CHURCHES.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS A SPECIALTY.

147 and 149 East Twenty-Second Street,

NEW YORK. au20 3m

LADIES Can make $5 to $10 per day at home. Address, with stamp, MRS. M. A. BROWN, Box 1, Station D, New York. au27 1y

AGENTS WANTED for the CENTENNIAL GAZETTEER OF THE UNITED STATES. Showing the grand results of our first 100 Years. Everybody buys it, and agents make from $100 to $200 a month. Send for circular. ZIEGLER & McCURDY, St. Louis, Mo. my24 1ycow

AGENTS WANTED for the CENTENNIAL GAZETTEER OF THE UNITED STATES. Showing the grand results of our first 100 Years. Everybody buys it, and agents make from $100 to $200 a month. Send for circular. ZIEGLER & McCURDY, St. Louis, Mo. my24 1ycow

The Child's Corner.

THE LIFE-CLOCK.

FROM THE GERMAN.

There is a little mystic clock,
No human eye hath seen,
That beateth on—and beateth on
From morning until e'en.

And when the soul is wrapped in sleep,
And heareth not a sound,
It ticks, and ticks the livelong night,
And never runneth down.

Oh, wondrous is that work of art
Which knells the passing hour,
But art ne'er formed, nor mind conceived,
The life-clock's magic power.

Nor set in gold, nor decked with gems,
By wealth and pride possessed;
But rich or poor, or high or low,
Each bears it in his breast.

When life's deep stream, 'mid beds and flowers,
All still and softly glides,
Like the wavelet's step, with a gentle bent,
It warns of passing tides.

When threat'ning darkness gathers o'er,
And hope's bright visions flee,
Like the sullen strokes of the muffled oar,
It beateth heavily.

When passion nerves the warrior's arm
For deeds of hate and wrong,
Though heeded not the fearful sound,
The knell is deep and strong.

When eyes to eyes are gazing soft,
And tender words are spoken,
Then fast and wild it rattles on,
As if with love 'twere broken.

Such is the clock that measures life,
Of flesh and spirit blended;
And thus 'twill run within the breast
Till that strange life is ended.

The Spider and Grasshopper.

One summer afternoon I set out on a walk of a couple of miles to visit a man who was old, sick and soon to die. The day was warm and the road hilly. Becoming warm and tired, I sat down on a large stone beside the road. Very soon I became interested in watching what well-nigh proved a tragic scene in the insect world. A grasshopper had evidently been caught in a spider's web in the grass near my feet. The spider was close by, but seemed to be standing still, while the grasshopper was slowly whirling round and round. I could not understand what was going on, so determined to wait and see what would become of it. By and by I saw the legs of the unfortunate grasshopper were drawing up closer and closer to his body. He would seem to struggle now and then to straighten them out, but for some strange reason did not succeed. He kept on turning round in a mysterious way.

After watching sharply for some time, I saw that little threads were wound about him. It was now clear that the spider was turning him round and winding a thread about him, so as to hold him till he could kill and eat him. The threads became more and more visible. Tighter and stronger grew the cord every time the grasshopper went 'round. After awhile he looked as if he had been put into a closely-fitting sack. It was of no use now for him to try and get away, poor fellow. He seemed to be in despair, for he hardly tried to escape. The spider now drew back to rest, and was, no doubt, very happy, thinking what a rich feast he would have for supper.

"You wicked spider," I said, "you will go hungry yet."

I took out my penknife and went to work to cut open very carefully the sack, so as not to hurt Grassay. Soon he was free, but did not move. What, dead, poor thing! I tried to rouse him, as you sometimes do your sleepy brother in the morning. At last his legs began to move a little, and, after he got them all arranged, with one hop away he went in happy freedom and safety. Narrow escape, that! I was happy too, and got up and walked on, and what do you suppose I thought?

I thought that it was just like this that a great many young folks are destroyed. The spider of sin winds about them a great many little threads. At first they are so small that they can hardly be seen—thoughts and words and habits that are just a little bad. There are more and more of these till they are many—are like strong cords—and it is hard to break away from them. One gets all tied up in the wrong and sin sometimes, so that he hardly tries or cares to get away, and cannot alone if he does try. Look out for those first little threads that evil ones tie round you.

And here is another thought I had as I finished my walk, and that I have had many times since that day. Jesus does for us just what I did for that grasshopper. If he could have talked, he would have asked me to save him. Now Jesus looks on, and, when he sees us fall into temptation and evil, he pities us and wants to save us. He only waits that we may ask him. He knows all our trouble, and is close by. Just as soon as we see we are in danger, and the cords are getting too strong for us to break, if we will look up we shall see him watching us with loving eyes; and if we cry to him for help he will at once break the bands of sin and save us. Ask him, and see if he will not—the kind and blessed Jesus.—Rev. A. B. Dascomb, in Congregationalist.

Putnam's Wolf Den.

The boys of the last generation knew more about the story of "Putnam and the Wolf" than those of the present, but the following account of the scene of the incident, from a correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, will be interesting to all:

"It was my fortune, while making a short stay recently in the pleasant town of Pomfret, Connecticut, to visit, in company with a jolly picnic party, the famous 'Wolf Den' where General Putnam, when a young man, in 1739, attacked and killed a she wolf, whose depredations upon the sheep and goats of the neighborhood had roused the whole county against her. General Humphreys, in his Life of Putnam, published in 1778, has given a very minute account of this adventure, and in his description of the den he says:

"'The aperture of the den, on the east side of a very high ledge of rocks, is about two feet square; from thence it descends obliquely fifteen feet, then, running horizontally about ten feet more, it ascends gradually sixteen feet toward its termination. The sides of this subterranean cavity are composed of smooth and solid rocks, which seem to have been divided from each other by some former earthquake. The top and bottom are also of stone, and the entrance in winter, being covered with ice, is exceedingly slippery. It is in no place high enough for a man to raise himself upright, nor in any part more than three feet in width.'

"I was curious to investigate this historical den for myself, and, though the prospect was far from inviting, I stripped off my coat and crawled in. I had provided myself with a stout stick, about four feet in length, to feel my way ahead, as the passage was entirely closed by my entrance, and I could see nothing as I proceeded. After working myself along on my elbows with considerable difficulty, I at length reached the end of the cave, and found myself in a small chamber, very low indeed, but some wider than the entrance to it.

"As Humphreys says, the entrance is about two feet square, but as to there being an oblique descent, and an ascent toward the termination, he is utterly at fault. As I crawled in I did not notice the least depression in any part of the way, and when I reached the end of the cave, where I found a little more room, a few rays of light from the entrance struck the rocky wall opposite, which could not have taken place if the passage had not been level. Furthermore, the passage is perfectly straight from the opening to the end, and not oblique, while the distance, which I carefully measured, is not over twenty-five feet. Humphreys' account makes it over forty feet. I effected my retreat from this hole by the only possible method—that of backing out—and was thankful not to have encountered any of those reptiles (snakes) which, according to tradition, infest the place.

"Notwithstanding the dramatic way in which Humphreys tells his story, besides making the passage from which his hero was drawn out by his leg a crooked one, and nearly double its true length, still 'Old Put's' achievement is entitled to the admiration of all boys of small or larger growth."

Around the World.

A low-spirited turtle who came creeping near me the other day gave such a melancholy puff of a sigh that I couldn't help asking him what was the matter.

"Matter?" he gulped. "Matter enough, I can tell you. I heard a school boy say, this very morning, that this earth is over twenty-four thousand miles in circumference. That means around, doesn't it?"

"Certainly," said I.

"Well, then, how do you suppose I feel? How, in the name of all the inches, am I ever to accomplish it? Why, life isn't long enough for the purpose! I can't do it!"

"Do what, my friend?"

"Why, go around the earth, of course."

"Well, I tried and tried to persuade the turtle that there wasn't the least sense in his trying to do such a thing; that nobody wanted him to, and nobody would care a snap if he didn't; but I might as well have talked to the wind. Around the world he must, could, should and would go. So I said at last, by way of consolation:

"Well, my friend, it might be worse. Think of the planet Jupiter, one of those worlds that twinkle up in the sky. I heard a school boy say that Jupiter was fourteen hundred times larger than the earth! Think of that. You ought to be thankful that your lot is cast here, instead of there."

At these sensible words what did that ridiculous turtle do but roll his eyes and gasp harder than ever.

"Alas!" said he, "I didn't put myself here; and how do I know but as soon as I get around this globe I shall find myself suddenly placed on the other one, and I never, never could travel around that, I am sure. Fourteen hundred times bigger—fourteen hun—dred—times—Oh, my!"

Out of all patience, I shouted out, as he hitched himself along: "Get out of your shell, then, and scamper, you absurd thing! Get out of your shell and scamper, or you'll never finish your journey!"

But, children, if you meet that poor, misguided turtle, don't turn him round. It will put him back, you know. It is a notion common to all the turtles that they must travel around the world, and I suppose that's why, if you pick one up and set him down with his head in an opposite direction from the one in which he was going, he'll turn right around again.

I wonder if girls and boys ever are so foolish as my low-spirited turtle. St. Nicholas.

THE LITTLE DREAMER.

"A little boy was dreaming,
Upon his nurse's lap,
That the pins fell out of all the stars,
And the stars fell in his cap.

"So when his dream was over,
What should this little boy do?
Why, he went and looked inside his cap,
And found it wasn't true!"

A SIGN-POST TO THE BETTER COUNTRY.—In 1860, when the convention of the Young Men's Christian Association met in New Orleans, a number of delegates went together from Cincinnati on a steamboat, which was for a month, during the going and returning trips, a floating bethel. A precious revival, in which Christians were quickened and sinners hopefully converted, was a novel experience on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. The boat stopped at a sugar plantation in Mississippi, where one of the company had the following talk with an old negro slave:

"You are an old man; will you not die soon?"

"Yes, massa."

"Well, where are you going?"

"To the good land."

"What makes you think so?"

"Well, massa, I can't zactly 'splain; but somehow, as I comes nearer to death, Jesus and I get nearer and nearer together."

Farm, Garden and Household.

Mushroom Culture.

The cultivation of this delicious escuient is seldom attempted by amateurs and not often by professional gardeners. The old system of cultivation involved a great deal of trouble and not a little of a certain sort of mystery. Of late years, however, the French, who use great quantities of them, have greatly simplified the process, and now any person of ordinary intelligence may grow them with no more trouble than any common vegetable.

Immense quantities of them are grown in the headings and galleries of the mines or underground quarries of Montrouge, Fripilion, Bagneux, Mery-Sur-Ouse, Bicetre and Moulin de la Roche—the markets of Paris being supplied from these places—as much as three thousand pounds a day being frequently sent from Mery alone to the Paris market. Some cultivators have from ten to twenty miles in length of mushroom beds in these curious subterranean gardens.

We will not go into the details of growing them on a large scale, but will give directions such as will enable any one having a warm, dry cellar to obtain a liberal supply. In an open shed or in any place protected from heavy rains, ordinary fresh horse manure, free from rubbish or long straw, is to be laid up in beds of two or more feet thick, pressing it down with the fork as it is laid up, and when finished treading it down firmly with the feet. It should then be thoroughly watered and again trodden down, and left to ferment for eight or ten days. At the expiration of this time it must be turned over with the fork and made again into a similar bed, care being taken that the outsides of the previous bed should form the center of the new bed. In another ten days or a fortnight it will be ready for use. Tubs are then to be provided, which may be done by sawing flour barrels in halves crosswise, and boring four or five half-inch holes in the bottom of each for drainage. Fill the tubs two or three inches deep with any good fresh garden soil, and add the prepared manure until the tub is half full. Place six or seven pieces of spawn, each about the size of a hen's egg, upon the manure in each tub, and fill the tub full of manure, pressing it well down and rounding off the top, dome-shaped. The spawn, which may be obtained of any of our seedsmen, comes in the shape and size of common bricks. At the end of ten days, if the spawn have taken—which may be known by its developing white, thread-like filaments—cover it with an inch or two of fresh soil screened through a coarse sieve.

The tubs when made up should be placed in a dark cellar, free from draughts of cold air, in which the temperature can be kept as nearly as possible at fifty degrees. The main points to be attended to are that the temperature of the manure is at its proper height (about seventy-six degrees Fahrenheit) when the spawn is inserted, and that it should not be covered with soil until the spawn is well developed. Should the soil and manure in the tubs become dry they should be watered by sprinkling them with water at about blood-heat or one hundred degrees.

In a few days the mushrooms will show themselves. They should be gathered every other day, by breaking off in the soil—a slight twist with the hand facilitating this operation. Never use a knife to gather them, and fill up with fresh soil any hole that may be made in pulling them. They will continue yielding for three or four weeks; and a second but smaller crop can be obtained, after the first is gathered, by giving another dressing of fresh soil about half an inch thick, beating it down moderately with the spade and watering it with blood-warm water.—American Garden.

RIPENING SUMMER PEARS.—Summer pears (previous to October) should never be allowed to ripen upon the tree, as they are thus liable to decay at the core or to become mealy and dry of flesh. Gather them as soon as they have attained full size or when the seeds begin to brown, and place them in a cool, dark room or closet between two blankets. They will then ripen of a bright color, be juicy and have full flavor. Woolen blankets ripen them much better than packing in hay, fern leaves, cotton wadding or any other material, and do not impart to the fruit the disagreeable flavor which other materials are apt to do. If the fruit is placed in a closet without being covered with soft materials of some kind it is liable to shrivel and to become too acid; which will not happen between a pair of soft blankets, as the temperature is more equable, and the air is, to a great extent, excluded.

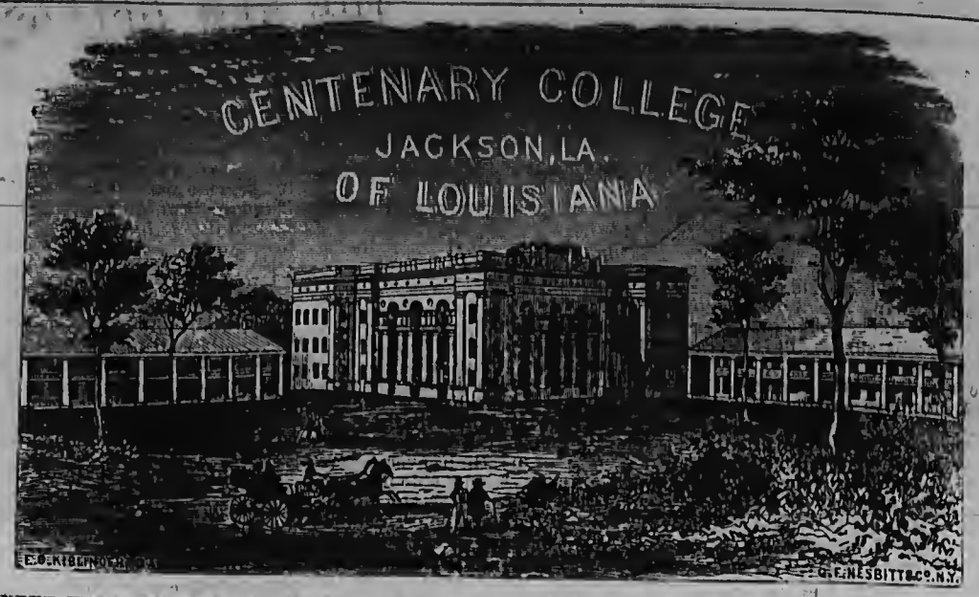
WOLF TEETH IN HORSES.—A correspondent of the Rural World says: William Horne, veterinary surgeon, of Janesville, Wisconsin, has recently made an examination of one thousand horses, with a view of settling the question as to whether the so-called wolf teeth are injurious to the eye. Out of 1,073 animals examined he found 13 blind in both eyes, 7 blind in one eye only, 37 having affection of one or both eyes, 6 of that number being nearly blind. The whole number of wolf teeth found was 216; only one of the number had a false molar, and only one animal with a wolf tooth showed any symptoms of disease of the eye. Dr. Horne regards this as settling the question positively that these teeth do not do any injury whatever to the eyes, and this conclusion is certainly justified by his statement of facts.

GOLD or silver embroidery may be cleaned with a sponge and warm alcohol. Dry and rub it well with soft new canton flannel.

ALUM or vinegar is good to set colors—red, green or yellow.

PRIDE is a garment, all stiff brocade outside, all grating sackcloth on the side next the skin.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.



THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1874.

Faculty.—REV. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law; REV. A. R. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science; G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages; ——— ———, Professor of Natural Science; THOMAS J. KERNAN, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department and Adjunct Professor of Modern Languages.

Charges.—Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College, $60; Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department, $40; Contingent expenses, $5. A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

Board.—Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $12 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

Location.—This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its bland and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

When Founded.—The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

Alumni.—Its Alumni numbers two hundred and three, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

Apparatus and Cabinet.—The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

Literary Societies.—There are two regular Literary Societies connected with the institution. These are of great utility to young men acquiring a liberal education—improving them in the art of public speaking, making them in some degree familiar with the proceedings of deliberative bodies, and in cultivating systematic business habits. Each Society has a convenient hall and a well-selected library—about one thousand six hundred volumes each, which, added to the College library of two thousand volumes, makes over five thousand volumes in the college.

Buildings.—The Trustees are determined to continue the repairs on the buildings till completed. The grand Center Building is a noble specimen of architectural beauty and adaptation to the purposes of its erection. The wings, built of solid brick, present each in front of two hundred feet, with upper and lower galleries the entire length, supported by Tuscan columns, and with the center making in the perspective a continuous front of seven hundred feet.

Preparatory Department.—In the Preparatory Department students are fitted for regular college classes, or may obtain a thorough English or commercial education.

The Faculty.—Its Faculty are men of experience and success in teaching.

Board of Trustees.—Rev. Bishop J. C. KEENER, D. D., President, New Orleans.

Hon. Edward McGehee, Woodville, Mississippi.
Hon. John McVea, Clinton.
Hon. and Rev. James H. Muse, St. Helena parish.
Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge.
Rev. H. H. Montgomery, Sharon, Mississippi.
C. G. McGehee, Esq., Wilkinson county, Miss.
Rev. John C. Miller, Jackson.
Josiah D. Nettles, Esq., East Baton Rouge, La.
Rev. J. A. Godfrey, Clinton.
Hon. E. T. Merrick, New Orleans.
Hon. J. O. Fuqua, Baton Rouge.
D. C. Hardee, Esq., Clinton.
Rev. R. J. Harp, New Orleans.
Samuel J. Norwood, Esq., Shumsport, Louisiana.
Col. William L. Nugent, Jackson, Mississippi.
Rev. J. L. Forsyth, Jackson.
S. L. Guice, Esq., Natchez, Mississippi.
J. H. Keller, Esq., New Orleans, Louisiana.
Hon. Edward J. Gay, parish of Iberville.
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Natchez, Mississippi.
Rev. L. Parker, D. D., New Orleans.
Robert M. Walmsley, Esq., New Orleans.
Rev. J. A. R. Jones, Port Gibson, Mississippi.
Wilmot H. Goodale, Esq., Baton Rouge.
Rev. C. G. Andrews, Jackson, Louisiana.
Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, Shreveport, Louisiana.

se10 tf Address C. G. ANDREWS, President, Jackson, La.

MEDICAL.

KEARNEY'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

is the only pure and unadulterated preparation prepared by a prominent, reliable and scientific physician of thirty years' practice. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its superiority in speedy and permanent cures of Gravel, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, and all affections of the Kidneys in both sexes. The greatest Tonic and Diuretic of the age. Be sure and get

KEARNEY'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

Pleasant and agreeable in taste, and efficacious in its curative qualities.

Depot—104 Dunne Street, New York.

Price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists everywhere. au14 1y6p

NEW ASTHMA REMEDY.—HAVING struggled twenty years between life and death with ASTHMA or PHTHISIC, I experimented myself by compounding roots and herbs, and inhaling the medicine thus obtained. I fortunately discovered a most wonderful remedy and sure cure for Asthma and its kindred diseases. Warranted to relieve the severest paroxysm instantly, so the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Druggists are supplied with sample packages for free distribution. Call and get one, or address D. LANGELL, Apple Creek, Ohio. Sold by druggists. Price for full-size package, $1.25. se3 4t

MISCELLANEOUS.

EXCELSIOR PLOWS,
CAST AND HARDENED STEEL.
Adapted to Every Variety of Soils.
COTTON SCRAPERS AND SWEEPS,
DOUBLE SHOVELS, ETC.
ALL WARRANTED.
MANUFACTURED BY
Louisville Agricultural Works,
LOUISVILLE, KY.
Send for catalogue. se3 2m

Silk Class BANNERS, $5 EACH. Send for circular.

T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, NEW YORK. au27 3m

SEAL PRESSES.
WARREN RICHARDS,
MANUFACTURER OF
SEAL PRESSES,
SEAL ENGRAVER AND DIE-SINKER,
42 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, O.
Special rates to Grangers for orders direct. Send for circulars, samples or information. au6 2m

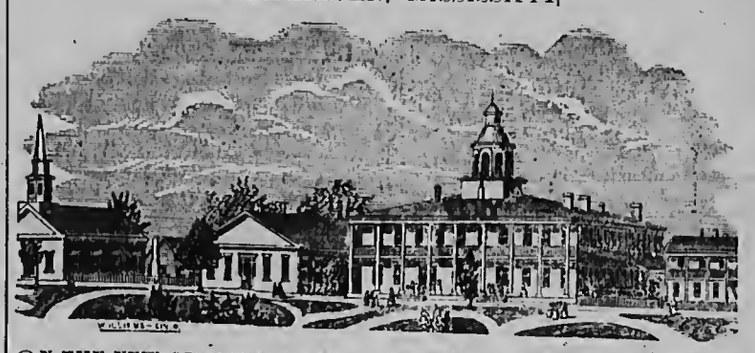
STAINED GLASS
—AND—
Decorative Art Establishment,
GIBSON'S BUILDING,
Broadway & Thirteenth St., New York.
Established in 1831.
The Designs of Architects and Amateurs artistically carried out. Designs for Memorial Windows a specialty. (au27 1y) WM. GIBSON.

WILLIAM COULTER & SON,
MANUFACTURERS OF
ORNAMENTAL, GROUND AND CUT
WINDOW GLASS,
104 East Second St., Cincinnati, O.
Ornamental Window Glass, of every description, for Churches, Private and Public Buildings, Steamboats, Railroad Cars, etc. jy23 3m

CHAMBERS'
STERLING PIANOS.
"SPECIAL SAFE OFFER."
READ! MARK! WRITE!
Before you buy, send for information, circulars and price list. Guarantee unlimited. Pianos sent for approval, and satisfaction assured by our "Special Safe Offer." Address CHAMBERS PIANO FACTORY, 306 Fourth Ave., New York. au13 4m

$10 A DAY.—Employment for all. Patent Novelties. GEO. L. FELTON & CO., 119 Nassau street, New York. au13 1y

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISSISSIPPI,



ON THE NEW ORLEANS, JACKSON AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD, fifty-seven miles south of Jackson, Mississippi, and one hundred and twenty-eight miles north of New Orleans, will

REOPEN ON THE THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.

The charges are low, and yet the advantages are unsurpassed. All extravagance in dress positively prohibited. If you send your daughter here we guarantee that you will be pleased; otherwise you may withdraw her at any time, and the money will be returned.

School books, medicines and medical attention furnished free of charge. Were it not for the extreme healthfulness of the location we could not afford the last two items.

Send for catalogue.

jy16 3m H. F. JOHNSON, President.

READVILLA SEMINARY,
INCORPORATED IN 1859,
OPENS ITS
NEXT ANNUAL SESSION
OCTOBER 1, 1874.
Experienced and Successful Teachers
ARE ENGAGED IN EACH DEPARTMENT OF THE INSTITUTION,
and LECTURES adapted to the improvement of the pupils in Literature, Natural Science and other subjects are regularly given by able educators.
MUSIC, DRAWING, PAINTING,
AND THE
ANCIENT AND MODERN LANGUAGES,
Are a part of the Optional Course.
The number of pupils is LIMITED, and every advantage of agreeable HOME INFLUENCES secured to the residents of the Seminary. Address
MRS. M. W. READ, Principal,
se3 2m Baton Rouge, La.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.
The Fall Session of this institution will commence on Wednesday, SEPTEMBER 30, with an efficient corps of teachers. Board can be obtained in the institution.
This being a Conference institution, and educating the daughters of the traveling preachers of the Conference free of cost, we earnestly solicit their hearty co-operation and efforts to secure patronage for it.
au27 3m THOMAS ARMSTRONG.

CHARLES BLACKMAN,
MANUFACTURER OF ALL STYLES OF
LIGHT FAMILY CARRIAGES,

BUGGIES, AND PHAETONS,
(THE BLACKMAN ROCKAWAY.)
Nos. 114, 116 and 118 Park Street,
se17 3m NEW HAVEN, CONN.

STEAM
MARBLE SAW MILL,
318 TO 332 EAST TWENTY-THIRD ST.,
Between First and Second avenues, NEW YORK.
WILLIAM PATTISON,
DEALER IN
American and Foreign Marble
of all kinds, has constantly on hand, and will saw to order, ITALIAN MARBLE of the various dimensions, suitable for Monuments, Headstones, Furniture and Mantelpiece work, Tiling, etc., at the lowest market prices. Italian and American Marble in Blocks and Slabs. au27 3m

Polytechnic College
OF THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA,—MARKET STREET, above Seventeenth St., Philadelphia. Twenty-first year begins September 15. Thorough professional training in Mine Engineering, Civil Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Analytical and Industrial Chemistry, Metallurgy and Architecture. The Diploma of the college is received as conclusive evidence of proficiency by the first engineers and companies engaged in works of improvement. Address
ALFRED L. KENNEDY, M. D.,
se3 4t President of Faculty.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE,
ASHLAND, VA.,
offers, on very low terms, the advantages of thorough instruction, a high grade of scholarship, under the best religious influences, in a refined community, and at a location remarkable for healthfulness, just sixteen miles north of Richmond, on the R., F. and P. Railroad.
One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars
will pay all necessary expenses per term. Session opens on the last Thursday in SEPTEMBER. For catalogue, address
REV. JAS. A. DUNCAN, A. M., D. D., President, or au6 2m REV. ALEX. G. BROWN, Secretary.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE,
BATON ROUGE, LA.
The next session of this school will begin on Monday, OCTOBER 2, 1874. It is important to both parties that applications be made as early as possible, and the attendance of the pupil prompt. A few days' delay at the beginning increases the labor of the school and injures the pupil. For circulars, giving necessary information, apply to
W. H. N. MAGRUDER,
au6 3m Baton Rouge, La.

CENTENARY FEMALE COLLEGE,
SUMMERFIELD, ALA.
This institution will open on the THIRTIETH OF SEPTEMBER, 1874, with a full and efficient Faculty.
Economy can be consulted here as rarely elsewhere. Board and tuition for scholastic year, $212. Washing, $2 a month. Music, $40. Art, $30 to $50.
Daily hacks from Selma during the two weeks of opening.
For further information address the president, se17 2t A. D. McVOY.

HIWASSEE COLLEGE.—SAID TO BE the best and cheapest school for boys in the Union. Patronage the past year, 137, from ten States. Under care of the Holston Conference, M. E. Church South. Founded in 1849. Seven miles from Sweetwater, on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad. Send stamp for twenty-four page catalogue. Address the President,
REV. J. H. BRUNNER, A. M.,
je4 1y Hiwassee College, East Tenn.

Soule's
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
The Commercial Athenæum of the South, corner Camp and Common streets (Story Building.) Mercantile and Banking offices are connected with this institution, daily lectures given, and all branches of a business education practically, scientifically and philosophically taught. An English Department for boys, twelve to eighteen years of age, is a special feature of this institution. French and Spanish are also taught.
GEO. SOULE, Principal.
N. B.—Soule's Philosophic Commercial and Exchange Calculator, 880 octavo pages, the great arithmetical work of the age, is for sale at the College office. ja23 1y

J. W. BLACKMAN'S
COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
NO. 181 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS.
This is the only Commercial College in this city where students from the country can board in the family of the principal. Terms reduced twenty per cent. Send for circular. Address
J. W. BLACKMAN,
je18 1y New Orleans, La.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEORGE STINSON & CO. Portland, Maine. fe6 1y

The Sonthals.

At a late missionary meeting in London the Rev. L. Skersfund, a Baptist missionary from India, gave the following account of the success of a mission among the Sonthals:

"My colleague and I were instrumental in bringing the chiefs to an agreement that no Sonthal Christians should be excommunicated, and that anybody who said that a Sonthal Christian was an outcast should himself be an outcast. They then built their own chapels, and commenced to maintain their own preachers and schoolmasters; and then they commenced to pray in their own villages, and thus went on working. And we have at last between 600 and 700 communicants, after six years' labor. Such a wondrous work has not been done by us, my friends, but by the Sonthals themselves. The money they used to spend upon drink is now put in the mission-box; and the women, instead of keeping their ornaments, have brought them and laid them at our feet, and said: "Sell them, and put it into the mission-box." (Loud applause.) This is not worthy of applause, my friends, but it is worthy of being copied. There is not now a boy, girl, man or woman who does not preach the gospel. There were 500 Sonthal chiefs who came to me before I left, and said they all wanted to become Christians. Another 111 came and wanted to be baptized. I said: "You must be converted first;" and I heard from my colleague that a large number of these had been baptized since. What I wish to impress more particularly upon you now is that we are under no pecuniary relation to them. They build their own chapels, support their own pastors and teachers, and they have, in addition, formed a missionary society to carry the word of God 2,000 miles away to other people."

BOOKS, STATIONERY, ETC.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S

STEEL PENS.

SOLD BY ALL DEALERS.

MANUFACTURERS' WAREHOUSE,

No. 91 John Street, New York.

JOSEPH GILLOTT & SON.

HENRY HOE, Sole Agent. se3 1y

THE AMERICAN

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION

OFFERS

Special Terms to Sunday Schools

IN THE SELECTION OF NEW AND

REPLENISHING OF OLD LIBRARIES

Catalogues furnished on application to any of the

SUNDAY SCHOOL DEPOSITORIES.

No. 122 Chestnut street, Philadelphia—ALEX. KIRKPATRICK.
No. 10 Bible House, New York—G. S. SCOFIELD.
No. 40 Winter street, Boston—E. SUTTY.
No. 261 West Madison St., Chicago—W. R. PORT.
No. 207 N. Sixth St., St. Louis—S. PAXSON. mh26m

R. ENTERBROOK & CO.'S

STEEL PENS.

FOR SALE BY

ALL BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Enterbrook Steel Pen Manufactur'g Co.,

49 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK.

Works—Camden, New Jersey. oc2 1y

HARDWARE, STOVES, ETC.

THE UNRIVALED

BUCK'S BRILLIANT STOVE.

Very Brilliant is Fully Guaranteed.

H. HALLER,

NO. 49 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS;

Sole Agent for Louisiana.

Sole Agent for the

CELEBRATED RINGEN WASHER

the States of Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi. no13 1y

STOVES.....STOVES.....STOVES.

The Cheapest and the "Best."

The "BEST" and the "COTTAGE" COOKING STOVES, to which I call particular attention, are surpassed by any in this market for economy, ability and most perfect BAKING. They carry uniform heat in the oven, and can be adapted to using COAL, COKE or WOOD, without any additional cost. Every one sold under a full guarantee to do as they are represented or the money to be refunded.

Also a variety of other COOKING STOVES of every grade and price, from $15 upward.

HEATING STOVES.

A very large and complete assortment, suitable for Offices, Parlors, Churches, School-Rooms, etc., all of which are offered at very low prices to suit the times. Also dealer in

TINWARE OF EVERY KIND

of every description, to suit the country and city trade, which is offered at UNPRECEDENTEDLY LOW PRICES FOR CASH. Also Sole Agent for the manufacture and sale of the Steam Washer, or Woman's Friend.

Will cleanse your clothes WITHOUT RUBBING. Every one sold is FULLY WARRANTED. Saves labor, wear and tear, and the annoyance of wash-day. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Three hundred thousand have been sold already through the States since 1871.

For State and County Rights for sale.

Call and see at NO. 52 GRAVIER STREET, Tchoupitoulas

1y W. W. GOODWYN.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

RELIGIOUS

AND STANDARD WORKS,

Published by Albert Mason, New York.

JOSEPHUS' WORKS.—A new and elegant Library Edition. Large, clear type. Tinted paper. 4 vols., cloth, $6. A Popular Edition of the same, 2 vols., cloth, $4.50. 2 vols., sheep, $5.

WORDS AND MIND OF JESUS, AND FAITHFUL PROMISER.—In 1 vol., 32mo, red edges. Fifty cents.

Michel's Astronomical Works.

Planetary and Stellar Worlds..... $1 75
Astronomy of the Bible..... 1 75
Popular Astronomy..... 1 75

THE DANCE OF MODERN SOCIETY.—By Prof. W. C. Wilkinson. 1 vol. 16mo. Cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents. se3 1y

WILD LIFE IN THE FAR WEST!

Agents Wanted everywhere for this beautifully illustrated book of the Author's Thirty Years' Life and Adventures among the Indians, in the Mexican Wars, hunting wild animals, etc. Entirely new, and the best book ever published on the FAR WEST. Thrillingly interesting, and selling faster than anything ever before known. Send for illustrated circular and liberal terms.

F. A. HUTCHINSON & CO.,
oc9 1y. St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED!—ACT AT ONCE.—The people everywhere are eager to buy the only authentic and complete history of

LIVINGSTONE.

His wonderful discoveries and thrilling adventures during 30 Years in the wilds of Africa, resurrection by the daring STANLEY, and heroic death. Over 600 pages, beautifully illustrated; only $2.50. Going like wildfire! Write for extra terms; or, if you wish to begin at once, send $1 for outfit. VALLEY PUBLISHING CO.,
oc9 1y St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS WANTED for the Great $2 Books—PHYSICAL LIFE OF WOMAN, PHYSICAL LIFE OF MAN. By Dr. G. H. Napheys 185,000 copies sold. The demand still growing. Send for sample copies. Outfits Free. Express charges prepaid on good orders. ☞ Also for GHOLNDSWELL, or History of the Farmers' Movement. By Hon. J. Perham, Agricultural Editor of the Western Rural. Send for terms to N. D. THOMPSON & CO., 303 St. Charles street, St. Louis, Mo. jy23 3m

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE FOR

KIT CARSON'S

LIFE AND ADVENTURES.

From facts narrated by himself. Embraces events in the life-time of America's GREATEST HUNTER, TRAPPER, SCOUT AND GUIDE; includes vivid accounts of the every-day life, inner character and peculiar customs of all INDIAN TRIBES OF THE FAR WEST; an accurate description of the country, its condition, prospects, resources, its mountains, rivers, valleys and natural wonders. Also, a full and complete history of the Modoc Indians and the Modoc War.

Splendidly illustrated and sells at sight. Agents reporting from 75 to 100 subscribers each per week. Illustrated circulars and terms sent free to any address by

EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING CO.,
oc2 1y St. Louis, Mo.

$2,500 A YEAR made with our ground

COMBINATION PROSPECTUS,

Represents 50 different books. Agents say this is

THE BEST THING EVER TRIED.

The books sell themselves in every family, and good men can make a business for life in one county. Agents Wanted on these and our magnificent Editions of Family Bibles. Full particulars free on application. Address JOHN E. POTTER & CO., Publishers, Philadelphia. mh13 13t

CANVASSERS send No. of your Lodge and name this paper. We will convince you agents with our superb Home Pictures for Masons, Odd-Fellows, Knights Pythias, Granges, Red-men, Mechanics, etc., are making double they could any other way; work pleasanter. J. HALE POWERS & CO., Fraternity & Fine Art Pubs., Cincinnati O.
ja29 1y

BOOK AGENTS, REJOICE!—HARD Times no More! MARK TWAIN'S New Book, THE INLIED AGE, now ready. Secure territory before it is too late. Canvassing outfit, $1.50. For terms address

CONTINENTAL PUBLISHING CO.,
de4 1y New Orleans or St. Louis.

IRON WORKS—BELLS.

WIRE RAILING AND ORNAMENTAL WIRE WORKS.

DUFUR & CO.,

No. 36 N. Howard St., Baltimore, Md.,

Manufacture Wire Railing for Cemeteries, Balconies, etc.; Sieves, Fenders, Cages, Sand and Coal Screens, Woven Wire, etc. Also Iron Bedsteads, Chairs, etc. oc2 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY. Established in 1837.

Superior Bells of Copper and Tin, mounted with the best Rotary Hangings, for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factories, Court Houses, Fire Alarms, Tower Clocks, Chimes, etc. Fully Warranted.

Illustrated Catalogue sent Free.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second St., Cincinnati.
B. J. WEST, Agent,
mh5 1y 115 and 117 Magazine st., New Orleans.

HOTELS.

ST. DENIS HOTEL,

BROADWAY AND ELEVENTH ST., NEW YORK.

This well-known House, conducted on the European plan, and centrally located opposite Grace Church, and near A. T. Stewart's up-town store, has first-class accommodations at moderate prices for permanent and transient guests.

GEORGE W. HUNT, Manager,
Formerly Proprietor of Irving and Westmoreland Hotels. se3 3m

CRAWFORD HOUSE,

COR. SIXTH AND WALNUT STREETS,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

I pride myself in providing for my guests the best living, cleanest house and more civility for less money than any other house in the city.

☞ Come and see me.

je25 tf FRANK J. OAKES, Proprietor.

WILLIAM BREGG. MRS. ADA GREGG.

GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU,

COR. CANAL AND BURGUNDY STS., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A long acquaintance with the various kinds of

SEWING MACHINES

has induced us to make a specialty in this line. First-class Machines of all kinds at lowest rates. The New Under-Feed Buckeye Hand Machine, only $20. We repair all Machines at low rates. We take old Machines in part payment for new ones. Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs sold on monthly payments in the country to parties giving references.

MRS. ADA GREGG

respectfully offers her services in purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel, personal adornment or domestic goods for Ladies' and Children's use, including Millinery, Dry Goods, Jewelry, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Patterns, Underwear, Trimmings, Bridal Trousseaux, etc. Any article of Ladies' and Children's wear manufactured in the latest styles, under her own supervision.

N. B.—All inquiries relative to articles mentioned or unmentioned will be answered free of charge.

Second-hand Machines, in good order, at half price. The best Needles for all Machines.

REFERENCES.—E. A. Tyler, New Orleans; J. L. Power, Jackson, Mississippi.

Send for catalogue and circular.

je18 1y GREGG'S PURCHASING BUREAU.

HENRY PILCHER,

BUILDER OF

CHURCH ORGANS,

656.....Portland Avenue.....656

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

Twenty-five years' experience in the business, and some of the finest instruments in the country as specimens of my skill, are sufficient guarantee of the excellence of my work. Would solicit a share of the Southern patronage, and feel confident of my ability to please. The best of references as to ability and honorable dealing. jy16 3m

VANDERBURGH, WELLS & CO., manufacturers of POSTER AND OTHER WOOD TYPE. Dealers in Presses and Inks, Leads, Brass Rules, Ovals, Circles, Borders, etc. Printers' and Engravers' Boxwood Depot. Manufacturers of Eagle, California and other Improved Cabinets, with flush front, duplex and other cases. No. 110 Fulton and Nos. 16 and 18 Dutch street, New York.

N. B.—Large stock of used Type and Presses for sale. Pattern and Brand Letters. Stamps for Soap, Dry Goods and other uses. no6 3m

Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers,

of every kind. Send stamp for Illustrated Price List to GREAT WESTERN GUN WORKS, Pittsburg, Pa. jy9 13t

BUSINESS CARDS.

RICHARD FROTSCHER,

SEED MERCHANT,

13.....Dumaine St.....13

Near the French Market, New Orleans.

Dealer in BUIST'S GARDEN SEEDS, which are the most reliable seeds sold in the Southern market. Almanacs and catalogues furnished on application. Prices reasonable. jy16 3m

D. H. WALLACE,

COTTON FACTOR AND GENERAL PURCHASING AGENT,

38.....Perdido St.....38

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Will give special attention to the sale of Cotton and other Produce, and will fill all orders for goods of every description at lowest cash prices. jy2 1y

J. B. WILKINSON, JR.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANT FOR THE SALE OF

Hides, Moss, Wool and Country Produce Generally,

and for the purchase of Family, Plantation and Store Supplies, 22 PETERS AND 4 CLINTON STREET, near the Customhouse, New Orleans.

Liberal cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, Rice and other consignments. Connections with the principal Northern markets. Sole agent for the celebrated Armstrong Machine-cleaned Moss. je1 10m

J. A. KERNAN & T. WHITE,

PRACTICAL GILDERS,

106 CUSTOMHOUSE ST., near Royal, New Orleans.

Regilding done in the best style. Oil Paintings restored, relined, cleansed and varnished. Looking-glass and Picture Frames made to order. Having a business experience of nearly forty years in this city, they hope to give satisfaction to their customers not only in the superiority of their work, but likewise in their moderate charges. Country orders promptly attended. fe19 9m

LOUISIANA STEAM SASH, BLIND —AND— DOOR FACTORY,

ROBERTS & CO., PROPRIETORS,

301, 303, 305 and 307 Gravier Street,

New Orleans. je11 1y

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

B. D. WOOD & BROS.,

106 Common St., opposite City Hotel,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in all kinds of COAL. Pittsburg Coal delivered by boat-load or less on the coast, and shipped in casks or in bulk at lowest market rates. City trade supplied. my7 1y

E. A. TYLER,

115.....Canal Street.....115

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

FINE WATCHES, DIAMONDS, JEWELRY, Plated-ware, Table Cutlery, Fancy Goods, etc. Pure Sterling Silverware, suitable for presents. Clocks and Bronzes in great variety. Jewelry manufactured and repaired. Clocks and Watches repaired. fe26 1y

TO THE PUBLIC.—Returning thanks for past favors, the undersigned desires to inform his friends and the public that he has removed to

152 and 154 Camp St., cor. Calliope,

where he continues to Buy, Sell, Store, Remove, Pack and Repair FURNITURE of every description. Pictures and Looking-glasses framed.

JOHN BOIS,
fe26 1y Nos. 152 and 154 Camp street.

THOMAN BASAM,

LUMBER.

CARINS MADE TO ORDER.

Every description of LUMBER always on hand. Sash, Blinds, etc.

Mills and Yard—Corner CEDAR AND JULIA streets (New Basin,) New Orleans. jat5 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

English Carpetings, Rugs, Etc., Etc.

Also Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc. oc23 1y

ANDREW J. AIKEN. JOHN W. WATT.

AIKEN & WATT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

60 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

Special attention given to orders for the purchase of all descriptions of Produce, Agricultural Implements and Plantation Supplies. no6 1y

JAMES M. DOWLING,

SUCCESSOR TO J. M. JOHNSTON,

WHOLESALE GROCER, COMMISSION MERCHANT,

And Dealer in Western Produce,

NO. 25 DECATUR ST. (LATE OLD LEVEE,)

je4 1y Cor. Customhouse St., New Orleans.

T. W. BOTHICK, UNDERTAKER,

No. 271 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Metallic, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Rosewood COFFINS always on hand. Black, Satin, Brown and White Merino Ladies' and Children's Shrouding. Embalming and Disinterring. Bodies carefully shipped. Hearses, Carriages and Cabs for hire. Funerals attended to in person by the proprietor, who hopes, by strict attention, to obtain a share of public patronage. de4 1y

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS,

TRADE-MARKS, COPYRIGHTS, ETC.,

Procured by

mh26 10m H. N. JENKINS,
No. 27 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

THE DOMESTIC

LOCK-STITCH SEWING MACHINE

WILL LAST A LIFE-TIME.

WILCOX & GIBBS' celebrated Twisted Loop-Stitch Sewing Machine, always ready and in order. Needles for all kinds of Sewing Machines.

my21 1y M. S. HENDRICK, 103 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. D. COULON,

PORTRAIT PAINTER,

37.....Camp Street.....37

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Old Paintings restored. fe19 tf

E. HEATH. M. LARA.

HEATH & LARA,

Importers and Dealers in

UPHOLSTERERS' GOODS, WALL PAPER WINDOW SHADES AND CORNICES,

Mirrors, Frames, Molding and Wire Screens,

No. 99 Camp Street,

no20 1y New Orleans.

T. WHINBEY CARTER,

ARCHITECT,

47.....POLYMNIA STREET.....47

ja15 1y New Orleans.

GAS FIXTURES,

GAS COOKING STOVES

AND PLUMBING MATERIALS

At New York Prices,

BY P. H. QUINLAN, 280 CAMP STREET.

Stores, Offices and Dwellings fitted up for Gas, Steam and Water in the most approved style. Country orders solicited. mh26 10m

F. J. KUHNHOLZ,

BOOK-BINDER,

112.....GRAVIER ST.....112

Near Camp, New Orleans.

Blank-Books ruled and bound to order. All other books, such as Magazines, Music, Law-Books, etc., bound with care and neatness, and at moderate prices. ja22 1y

HUGH FLYNN,

167 POYDRAS ST., NEW ORLEANS.

All who want to purchase CHEAP FURNITURE can call at 167 Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet streets.

On account of retiring from the Furniture business, I am now selling off my large stock of New Furniture at greatly reduced rates. I am selling at rates below those of any house in the city.

Walnut Victoria Bed-room Sets, marble top.$125 00
Parlor Sets, eleven pieces..... 110 00
Double Bedsteads, with Testers and Rollers.. 12 00

Kitchen and Dining-room Furniture at equally low rates. Spring, Hair and Moss Mattresses of the best quality and at greatly reduced prices. de11 1y

T. A. BECK, COOPER,

NOS. 23 AND 24 FRONT STREET,

Between Customhouse and Bienville streets (Sugar Landing,) New Orleans,

has constantly on hand Sugar Hogsheads, Molasses Barrels, Half Barrels, Kegs, Hoop Poles, etc. Orders promptly attended to. Particular attention paid to trimming. de1 1y

MISCELLANEOUS.

GEORGE PURVES'

PERSEVERANCE

Sash, Blind and Door

STEAM FACTORY,

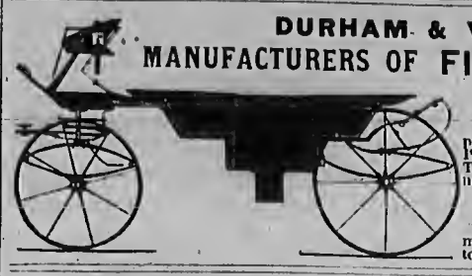
AND

LUMBER YARD,

Cor. of St. Charles and Clio Sts., New Orleans.

GLAZED SASH.

Send for Price List.
de11 1y



DURHAM & WOOSTER,

MANUFACTURERS OF FINE CARRIAGES,

NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Landaus, Landaulettes, Coaches, Coupees, Rockaways, Broughams, Victorias, Phaetons, and all styles of Top and No-Top Buggies constantly on hand or manufactured to order.

A Saving of 25 Per Cent.

made by ordering direct from our Factory. ☞ Send for Cuts. se17 3m

BUSINESS CARDS.

J. A. LUM. FRANK H. HOOKER.

J. A. LUM & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

CARRIAGES, HARNESS, ETC.,

162 Gravier and 13 Union Street.

☞ A SPECIALTY MADE OF CHILDREN'S CARRIAGES. mh5 1y

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

RESIDENCE AND OFFICE,

Corner Magazine and Second Streets,

New Orleans.

Office Hours—Eight to nine A. M. and three to four P. M. je29 tf

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

DENTAL SURGEON,

152.....Julia Street.....152

All operations in Operative, Mechanical and Surgical Dentistry carefully performed.

Nitrous Oxide and other Anæsthetics administered. de4 1y

DR. J. J. LYONS,

NO. 219 CARONDELET STREET

Between Julia and St. Joseph,

ja2 1y New Orleans, La.

G. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER.
E. T. MERRICK, formerly Chief Justice, Louisiana.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

ATTORNEYS, COUNSELORS AND SOLICITORS,

Corner of Camp Street and Commercial Place, se25 NEW ORLEANS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BILLINGS' PATENT

Sewing Machine

SHUTTLES.

Twenty Varieties Now Made.

Forged solid from bar steel and cold-pressed.

TRADE (B) MARK.

Also Wrought Iron and Steel

DROP FORGINGS

of all descriptions, for Guns, Pistols, Sewing Machines, Agricultural Implements, etc.

MANUFACTURED BY

Billings & Spencer Co.,

LAWRENCE STREET,

ap0 6m Hartford, Conn.

NEW ORLEANS

PURCHASING BUREAU.

To the Ladies of the South.

A Purchasing Agency has been established in New Orleans, Louisiana, for the benefit of those residing at a distance from the city, and who have not the facilities for obtaining just what they require.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE

respectfully offers her services in selecting, purchasing and forwarding any article of apparel or personal adornment for ladies' and children's use, including MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, JEWELRY, BRIDAL TROUSSEAUX, Fancy and Toilet Articles, Trimmings, Underwear, Sewing Machines, etc., etc.

Scrupulous care with reference to the price and quality and fidelity to the interest and fulfillment of the wishes of correspondents, will be sedulously carried out.

MRS. H. MOGRIDGE'S
Dressmaking Establishment,
Nos. 94 and 96 Canal St., New Orleans.

Refers by permission to D. H. Holmes & Co., New Orleans. fe11 1y

WILLIAM N. THOMSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

Thomson's Leather-Preserver,

FOR

Boots, Shoes, Harness, Belting & Hose.

ALSO DEALER IN

LACE LEATHER, RIVETS, BURS, BELT HOOKS, BELT STUDS,

Punches, Belt Sets, and all goods connected with the Belting business,

NO. 52 RACE STREET,

au6 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

GLASS STAINERS

AND BENDERS.

BELCHER & POVEY,

13 West Broadway, cor. Beade St.,

NEW YORK.

Works—Newark, N. J. au18 1y

$250 A MONTH TO AGENTS.—35 new articles. One lady made $21.81, August 10, in taking subscriptions to the FAMILY JOURNAL, the best Literary and Fashion paper in America. Only $1 a year, with two $5 Chromos. Samples free. FAMILY JOURNAL, 809 Broadway, New York. au20 3m

MISCELLANEOUS.

JAMES LEFFEL'S

IMPROVED DOUBLE

TURBINE WATER-WHEEL.

POOLE & HUNT, Baltimore,

Manufacturers for the South and Southwest.

Nearly Seven Thousand Now in Use,

working under heads varying from 2 to 240 feet! Twenty-four sizes, from 5½ to 96 inches.

The most powerful Wheel in the market, and most economical in use of Water. Large Illustrated Pamphlet sent post free.

Manufacturers also of Portable and Stationary Steam Engines and Boilers, Babcock & Wilcox's Patent Tubulous Boiler, Ebaugh's Crusher for Minerals, Saw and Grist Mills, Flouring Mill Machinery, Machinery for White Lead Works and Oil Mills, Shafting Pulleys and Hangers.

☞ Send for Circulars. se3 6m

CINCINNATI

PIANO-FORTE

MANUFACTORY.

F. W. BIERE & SON,

WAREROOMS,

170 Court Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The attention of our friends and the public in general is most respectfully invited to our fine stock of HOME-MADE PIANOS.

We permit no inferior Instrument to go out of our factory, but endeavor to EXCEL ALL MAKERS by producing PERFECT INSTRUMENTS ONLY, and thereby secure the entire confidence of the public. jy23 3m

MONUMENTS A SPECIALTY.

AMERICAN GRANITE

AND ITALIAN MARBLE.

IMPORTERS OF

Scotch Granite Monuments

AND STATUARY FROM ITALY.

This is the OLDEST AND LARGEST establishment of the kind in the Western country, and would solicit a share of the Southern patronage. Being in the business for years, I feel confident of giving the utmost satisfaction, having in my employ men of experience.

A. WHITE.

OFFICE AND WORKS,

231, 253 and 257 West Fifth St.,

jy23 1y CINCINNATI, OHIO.

STAR IRON WORKS.

WALTON, HEMLER & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

IRON RAILINGS,

SAFES AND BANK VAULTS,

JAIL CELLS, IRON STAIRS, DOORS AND SHUTTERS, Awning Frames, Gratings, Bolts, Stirrups, Verandas, Balconies, Patent Sidewalk and Sky-Lights, and all kinds of Iron Work for buildings.

Nos. 234 and 236 West Pearl Street,

CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Orders promptly attended to and satisfaction guaranteed. jy23 3m

LEVY BROS.'

Dry Goods Establishment,

AT

580.....MAGAZINE STREET.....580

Between St. Andrew and St. Mary.

NEW GOODS EVERY WEEK.

We are now opening a large and well-assorted stock of SPRING GOODS, which have been bought and will be sold at prices that will suit all purchasers.

Give Us a Call.

N. B.—Orders from the country will be promptly filled. mh5 1y

S. COLLINS & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

PRINTING INK.

Office and Depot—26 Frankfort St.,

NEW YORK.

Geo. H. Morrill & Co., Boston, Mass.
Morrill & Co., San Francisco, Cal. au27 3m

JOHN GIBSON,

ENGRAVER

AND

STEAM POWER LITHOGRAPHIC PRINTER,

82 Beekman Street, New York.

Checks, Notes, Drafts, Receipts, Bonds, Certificates of Stock and Deposit, Bill, Letter and Note Headings, Business Cards, Envelopes, Druggists' Fancy and Perfumery Labels, etc. Druggists wishing Labels, send for catalogue. au6 1y

JAMES S. PATTERSON,

WOOD ENGRAVER,

28.....Beekman Street.....28

au13 1y NEW YORK CITY.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,

17.....CHARTRES STREET.....17

A. BROUSSEAU & CO., Importers and Dealers at Wholesale and Retail, in English and American Carpetings; Floor Oil Cloths; Table and Enameled Oil Cloths; Window Shades; Table and Piano Covers; Crumb Cloths, in squares or pieces Curtain and Furniture Materials; Brocatelles, Cotelines, Terries, Reps, Lace and Nottingham Lace Curtains; Haircloth Ticking; Springs; Burlaps; Step Covers, etc.

de1 1y A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

CHARLES H. TURNO.

STAINED GLASS FOR CHURCHES.

Memorial Windows a specialty. No. 333 East Twenty-Third street, New York. au27 3m

MACHINERY, TIES, ETC.

LANE & BODLEY,

CINCINNATI, OHIO,

MANUFACTURERS OF STANDARD

PLANTATION

MACHINERY,

STATIONARY & PORTABLE

STEAM ENGINES,

Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Shafting Hangers, Pulleys, etc. Our Machinery is strong, simple and well made, and is especially adapted to the wants of Farmers and Planters for Ginning, Sawing, Grinding and Factory use. Send for an Illustrated Catalogue.

LANE & BODLEY,
jy23 1y John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, O.

IMPORTANT TO PLANTERS.

IRON COTTON TIES.

The above-mentioned Ties are the best and most popular Ties in use for Baling Cotton. They are manufactured of the best quality of English Iron, and are sold under full guarantee, at the lowest market price, by all dealers in Baling Stuffs in New Orleans, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, Charleston, Wilmington, Petersburg, Baltimore, Memphis, Louisville, Nashville, New York, and by country merchants generally throughout the Cotton States.

R. W. RAYNE & CO.,

(Late Bartlett & Rayne,)

GENERAL AGENTS,

48 Carondelet Street, cor. Union,

je18 6m New Orleans.

DANIEL PRATT'S

Improved Cotton Gin.

PRICE REDUCED

TO $4 PER SAW.

JOSEPH B. WOLFE & CO.,

GENERAL AGENTS,

No. 52 Carondelet Street,

je4 6m NEW ORLEANS.

PLOWS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC.

PLOWS

AND ALL IMPROVED

Agricultural Implements.

PLANTATION HARDWARE.

Steam Engines, Saw and Grist Mills.

PUMPS, SHAFTING, ETC.,

AT LOW PRICES FOR CASH.

B. J. WEST,

115 and 117 Magazine St., New Orleans,

MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

mh19 10m

N. F. BURNHAM'S

WATER WHEEL

The best in the Market, and sold at less price than any other first-class Wheel.

84 per cent. guaranteed with

1874 TURBINE

☞ Send for a pamphlet and be convinced.

au6 4m N. F. BURNHAM, York, Pa.

CRESCENT MACHINE SHOP.

JOSEPH WALKER,

Machinist, Engineer, Blacksmithing, ETC., ETC.,

CORNER ST. JOSEPH AND CONSTANCE STS., New Orleans.

☞ Plantation Machinery manufactured and repaired. Jobbing promptly attended to. fe6 1y

TRUSSES AND BRACES.

Club Feet cured without the knife. The Radical Cure Truss, patented May 8, 1866, applied. All instruments for deformities—Crutches, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Ear Trumpets—on hand at DR. A. O. FISHBERG'S, No. 5 East Fourth street, east of Main, up stairs Cincinnati, Ohio. Sign of Golden Eagle. au6 3m

New Orleans Markets.

From the New Orleans Price Current.

The river is 11 feet 6 inches below high-water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the eighteenth instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	bales...	4,446
Lake		7
Mobile		1,170
Texas		284
Total		5,857

On Saturday the market opened with a fair inquiry, and about 700 bales changed hands during the morning at irregular and easier prices, the same descriptions selling at a difference of ⅛c. after which the movement was continued, but mostly at the inside figures accepted at an earlier hour. Good ordinary, good style, sold at 14c., strict good ordinary at 14⅛@14¼c., strict good ordinary to low middling at 14⅜, 14⅝@14⅝c., low middling at 14½, 14⅝@14⅝c., strict low middling at 15c., and middling at the same. The market was a good deal demoralized. A high style of good middling sold at 15⅛c. The sales embraced 1,200 bales at a decline of about ⅛c. in the medium grades, and ⅛@⅜c. in the higher. On Monday the movement commenced with a moderate but not very general inquiry, buyers apparently standing off awaiting the opening of more samples, but in the afternoon the demand became more lively, and resulted in sales to the extent of 900 bales. With increasing receipts factors found it necessary to be free sellers, and, as buyers refused to go on unless at lower rates, the bulk of the business was at a reduction of ⅛c. in good ordinary, ¼c. in strict good ordinary, and ⅛c. in the grades above. The sales embraced 1,950 bales. On Tuesday the demand was still more active, but at lower prices. Strict good ordinary sold at 13¾, 13⅞@14c., and one lot of benders, with very good staple, at 14⅛c., low middling at 13⅝, 14, 14⅛@14⅛c., middling at 14⅛c., and good middling in middling lair at 15⅛c. At the close 14c. was regarded as a fair quotation for a good style of low middling. The sales were the largest yet this season, amounting to a little over 2,150 bales.

The above makes an aggregate for the past three days of 4,400 bales, against 550 for the corresponding time last week and 1,100 the week before. We quote:

Low ordinary	9½	@ 10
Ordinary	11¾	@ 12
Strict ordinary	12½	@ 13
Good ordinary	13¼	@ 13⅝
Strict good ordinary	13⅝	@ 13⅞
Low middling	13⅞	@ 14⅛
Strict low middling	14⅛	@ 14⅜
Middling	14⅜	@ 14⅝
Strict middling	14⅝	@ 15
Good middling	15¼	@ 15⅜

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1874	bales...	15,953
Arrived past three days	5,857
Arrived previously	10,322—	16,209
		32,162
Exported past three days	3,098
Exported previously	7,649—	10,747
Stock on hand and on shipboard		21,415

LOUISIANA SUGAR.—There were sales on Saturday and Monday of 150 hhds. at 9¼c. for good common, 9½c. for good fair, 9⅝@10c. for fully fair, 10⅜c. for strictly prime, 10⅝c. for choice, 10¾c. for yellow clarified, and 11¼c. for white clarified.

LOUISIANA MOLASSES.—The market is bare of Louisiana, and there are only 240 bbls. New York syrup in the sheds. Northern syrup is selling at 65c. Refinery molasses is in good demand at 40c. for common, 50c. for fair, 55c. for good fair, 60c. for prime, and 65c. ₱ gallon for choice.

CORN.—On Saturday only 650 sacks sold at 98c. for white mixed, 98c. for yellow mixed in burlaps, and $1 for choice white.

OATS.—Are in light supply, and, although the demand is moderate, prices have advanced. On Saturday 500 sacks sold at 60@62c., and on Monday 800 sacks sold at 61@65c. ₱ bushel.

BRAN.—The stock is small, and the demand moderate at lower prices. On Saturday 800 sacks sold at $1.12½@$1.18, and on Monday 300 sacks sold at $1.15 ₱ 100 lbs.

PORK.—Only 100 bbls. mess sold on Tuesday at $26 ₱ bbl. It is retailing at $27 ₱ bbl.

BACON.—We have to note a dull market in the job trade as well as at wholesale. Shoulders are quoted nominally at 11½c., clear rib sides 16½c., clear sides 17¼c. Deniers' job rates are 11¾c. for shoulders, 17c. for clear rib sides, and 17½c. for clear sides. No sales.

HAMS.—Choice sugar-cured are quoted at 14½@15c. ₱ lb. On Tuesday 10 and 25 tierces sold on private terms.

LARD.—Tierce commands 15¾@16c., keg 16½@16¾c. ₱ lb. Dealers' rates in their job trade are 16¾c. for tierce and 17c. for keg. On Tuesday a lot of 25 tierces refined sold at 15½c. ₱ lb.

DRY SALT MEAT—Is dull, and shoulders are held at 10¼c. ₱ lb. Dealers are jobbing them at 10½@10¾c. ₱ lb. On Saturday 25 casks shoulders sold on private terms, and 40 boxes and 12 casks were sold at retail at 10¾c. ₱ lb.

BREAKFAST BACON—Is in light supply, and Western commands 16½@17c. ₱ lb.

MONETARY.

Gold opened on Tuesday at 109⅛@109⅜ (against 109⅛ at New York,) and after a fair business closed at 109⅛@109⅜ (against 109⅜ in that market.)

Nothing has been reported in silver. It is quoted at 104@105½ for American half dollars. Mexican dollars closed at 90 go'd.

New Orleans Wholesale Prices.

REVISED AND CORRECTED WEEKLY.

Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS:
Cotton scrapers	$1 50	— —
Cotton sweeps	4 50	6 00
Cultivators, Diam. and shovel-tooth	9 00	12 50
Cultivators, riding and walking	25 00	35 00
Shovels and spades	7 50	16 00
Axes	11 00	16 00
Shovel plows	5 00	7 50
Half do., with cutters	6 00	7 50
Manly's double-shovel plow	6 00	6 75
Corn mills, Coloman's	120 00	425 00
Bradford's grist mills	150 00	225 00
BRICKS, ₱ M:
Lake	9 50	15 00
Country	7 00	9 00
English fire	45 00	47 50
American fire	35 00	— —
CANDLES, ₱ lb.:
Sperm, New Bedford	30	31
Tallow	14	— —
CHOCOLATE, ₱ lb.:
Cocoa	38	60
No. 1	— —	— —
Sweet	22	— —
COAL, ₱ ton:
Anthracite	12 50	13 00
Western, ₱ bbl	— —	— —
COFFEE, ₱ lb.:
Mexican	— —	— —
Java	28	30
COTTON SEED:
Rough, ₱ ton	— —	— —
In sacks	— —	10 00
EGGS, ₱ dozen:
Western	15	26
FERTILIZERS, ₱ ton:
Stern's raw-bone superphosph'e	— —	65 00
Stern's fine-ground bone	— —	45 00
FLOUR, ₱ bbl:
Double extra	— —	4 62½
Superfine	— —	4 00
Fine	— —	— —
GLASS, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 by 10	— —	3 75
French, 10 by 12	3 75	4 00
French, 10 by 14 to 12 by 20	4 00	4 25
French, 14 by 18 to 18 by 20	4 25	4 75
HAY, ₱ ton:
Primo	25 00	7 00
Choice	— —	27 00
IRON, ₱ ton:
English, ₱ lb	4	5
Swedes, assorted	7½	8
Hoop	6	9
Sheet	6	9
Nail rods	— —	9¾
Casting, American	5¾	6
LEATHER, ₱ lb.:
Sole, hemlock	30	33
Sole, oak	40	44
Harness	38	45
Calf-skins, ₱ dozen	35 00	100 00
Texas, rough, ₱ lb	24	26
LIME, ₱ bbl.:
Western	1 50	1 75
Cement	2 50	2 75
Plaster Paris	— —	2 75
LUMBER, ₱ M feet:
Boards, yellow pine	— —	— —
Boards, cypress	— —	— —
Flooring, dressed	18 00	20 00
Flooring, rough	— —	16 00
Ceiling, dressed	12 00	14 00
Weatherboards, dressed	14 00	16 00
Weatherboards, rough	— —	— —
Scantling	10 00	12 00
Shingles, ₱ M	— —	3 25
Laths	— —	— —
OILS:
Lard, ₱ gallon	1 10	1 15
Coal oil, in barrels	17	20
Linseed, raw	1 02	— —
SUGAR, ₱ lb.:
Havana, white	— —	— —
Havana, yellow	— —	— —
Havana, brown	— —	— —
Crushed	12⅞	12¾
Pulverized	12⅝	12¾
TEAS, ₱ lb.:
Imperial	25	— —
Gunpowder	65	— —
Hyson	70	— —
Young Hyson	70	1 40
Pouchong	30	— —
Oolong	25	— —
WAGONS, CARTS, ETC.:
Wagon, two-horse	85 00	90 00
Wagon, four-horse	115 00	125 00
Wagon, two-horse, thim. skein	80 00	85 00
Wagon, four-horse	100 00	110 00
Cane wagon	210 00	215 00
Ox wagon	90 00	125 00
Ox cart, complete	110 00	115 00
Cane cart	110 00	115 00
Tongue cart, complete	120 00	125 00
Plantation cart	55 00	65 00

CATTLE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 22, 1874.

Texas beeves, choice, ₱ head	$— —	@$40 00
Texas beeves, first quality, ₱ head	30 00	@ 35 00
Texas cattle, second quality, ₱ head	20 00	@ 25 00
Texas cattle, third quality, ₱ head	12 00	@ 18 00
Western beeves, ₱ lb. net	— —	@ — —
Sheep, first quality ₱ head	4 00	@ 5 00
Sheep, second quality, ₱ head	3 00	@ 4 00
Milch cows, choice, ₱ head	80 00	@100 00
Milch cows, ₱ head	35 00	@ 40 00
Calves, ₱ head	7 00	@ 9 00
Yearlings, ₱ head	8 00	@ 9 00

Advertisers' Directory

OF THE

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Alphabetically Arranged Under the Heads of the Business or Articles Advertised.

NOTE.—We take no advertisements except from those who we have good reason to believe are respectable and reliable. The publisher urges his solicitor and agents to seek the advertisements of the most worthy and reliable representatives in every branch of business, and not to apply to or accept business from persons of doubtful character. We have refused business to the extent of thousands of dollars each year for want of satisfactory information in reference to applicants. We think we may safely claim for the list below that it embraces, as a rule, the very best men and firms in the different branches represented.

☞ We retain no dead advertisements.

Agencies.
Gregg's Purchasing Bureau, corner Canal and Burgundy streets.
Mrs. H. Mogridge, Purchasing Bureau, 94 and 96 Canal street.
J. Hale Powers, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.
N. D. Thompson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Agricultural Implements.
Louisville Agricultural Works, Louisville, Ky.

Architects.
T. Whitney Carter, 47 Polymnia street, New Orleans.

Banners.
T. J. Potter, 32 Bible House, New York.

Barber.
Baptiste, St. Charles Hotel.

Bells.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Buckeye Bell Foundery, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Belting.
W. N. Thomson, 52 Race street, Cincinnati, O.

Book-Binder.
P. J. Kruhlholz, 112 Gravier street.

Books and Stationery.
Robert J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.
American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
Continental Publishing Co., St. Louis, Missouri.
Chas. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.
Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, Mass.
F. A. Hutchinson & Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Albert Mason, New York.
Nettleton & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
John E. Potter & Co., Philadelphia.
Queen City Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
B. B. Russell, Boston, Mass.
Valley Publishing Company, St. Louis, Mo.
Ziegler & McCurdy, St. Louis, Mo.

Building.
A. J. Bicknell & Co 27 Warren street, New York.

Building Paper.
Edward Thompson, 90 Baronne street, New Orleans.

Carpets.
A. Broussenn & Co., 17 Chartres street.
Elkin & Co., 168 Canal street.

Carriages, Wagons, Etc.
Charles Blackman, New Haven, Conn.
R. O. Dorman & Co., 71 and 73 Goffe street, New Haven, Conn.
Durham & Wooster, New Haven, Conn.
J. A. Lum & Co., 163 Gravier and 18 Union street.
Seabrook & Smith, 128 and 130 Park street, New Haven, Conn.

China and Crockeryware.
W. C. Shepard & Co., 55 Camp street.

Chromos, Etc.
G. E. Perine, 66 Reade street, New York.

Clothing and Furnishing Goods.
Pierson & Hews, 13 and 15 Camp street.

Coal and Wood.
R. D. Wood & Bros., 106 Common street.

Cuspergage.
T. A. Beck, 23 and 24 Front street.
P. A. Lelhume, 22 Front street.

Cotton Gins.
J. R. Wolfe & Co., 39 Carondelet street.

Cotton Ties.
Bartlett & Rayne, 48 Carondelet street.

Croquet.
Bradley's Patent Croquet, Robt. J. Harp, agent, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Dentists.
Dr. John G. Angell, 152 Julia street.

Direct Trade.
Dr. Thomas D. Worrall, 24 and 26 Camp street.

Dry Goods.
Levy Bros., 580 Magazine street.

Educational.
Blackman's Commercial College, 131 Carondelet street.
Centenary Female College, Summerfield, Ala.,
A. D. McVoy, president.
Centenary College, C. G. Andrews, president, Jackson La.
Collegiate Institute, Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Baton Rouge, La.
Hiwassee College, Rev. J. H. Brunner, prest.
Mansfield Female College.
Polytechnic College, Philadelphia, Pa.
Randolph Macon College, Rev. James A. Duncan, A. M., D. D., president, Ashland, Va.
Readville Seminary, Mrs. M. W. Read Baton Rouge, La.
Soule's Commercial College, corner Camp and Common streets.
Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va, Rev. W. A. Harris, president.
Whitworth Female College, H. F. Johnson, president, Brookhaven, Miss.

Engravers.
John Gibson, 82 Beekman street, New York.
J. W. Hart, Cincinnati, Ohio.
J. S. Patterson, 28 Beekman street, New York.
Warren Richards, 42 West Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Edward Sears, 43 Beekman street, New York.

Factors and Commission Merchants.
Aiken & Watt, 69 Carondelet street.
D. H. Wallace, 38 Perdido street.
J. B. Wilkinson, Jr., 29 Peters and 4 Clinton st.

Fire-Arms.
Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburg, Pa.

Fur Sale.
Tent on Seashore camp ground, Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.

Framers and Gilders.
Kernan & Waite, 106 Custom house street.

Furniture.
John Bois, 152 and 154 Camp street.
Excelsior School Furniture Manufacturing Co., 196 Julia street, New Orleans.
Hugh Flynn, 167 Poydras street.

Gas Fixtures.
P. H. Quinlan, 230 Camp street.

Glass Staining.
Belcher & Povey, 13 W. Broadway, New York.
William Gibson, Broadway and Thirteenth street, New York.
Henry E. Sharp & Son, New York.
Charles H. Tirno 333 East Twenty-third street, New York.

Grocers.
J. M. Dowling, 25 Decatur street.

Hotels.
Crawford House, Cincinnati, Ohio, Frank J. Oakes, proprietor.
St. Denis Hotel, Broadway and Eleventh street, New York.

Iron Manufactories.
Walton, Hemler & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Job Printing.
Pelican Job Office, 112 and 114 Poydras street.

Lumber.
Thomas Hasam, cor. Cedar and Julia streets.
George Purves, cor. St. Charles and Clio streets.
Roberts & Co., 301 to 307 Gravier street.

Machinery.
Billings & Spencer Co., Hartford, Conn.
Blymyer Manufacturing Co., 664 to 684 Eighth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Lane & Bodley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Menecly & Kimberly, Troy, New York.
Reynolds Cotton Press, W. H. Reynolds, New Orleans.
Turbine Water-Wheel, N. F. Burnham, York, Penn.
Turbine Water-Wheel, Poole & Hunt, Baltimore, Md.
Jos. Walker, cor. St. Joseph and Constantee sts.
Well-Auger, W. Giles, St. Louis, Mo.
B. J. West, 115 and 117 Magazine street.

Marble Works.
William Pattison, 318 to 332 East Twenty-third street, New York.
Alfred White, 251, 253 and 257 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Medical.
Adderley's Sirup Bromide Chloral, W. H. Adderley, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Anti-Rheumatic Mixture, W. J. Jurgielewicz, corner Magazine and Thalia streets.
Artificial Limbs, Charles M. Evans, 70 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky.
Asthma Remedy, D. Langell, Apple Creek, O.
Citrate of Magnesia, etc., Hofmann & Co., N. Y.
Dyspepsia and Liver Complaints, Dr. Justus J. Spreng, New York.
Dr. A. D. Forsberg, 5 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dr. Heidenreich's Cure, E. Dibblee, 814 Sixth avenue, New York.
Kearney's Extract Buchu, Kearney & Co., 104 Duane street, New York.
Opium Cure, Dr. J. C. Beck, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Rheumatism and Neuralgia Cure, Geo. Sweetser, 129 Wall street, New York.
Rogers' Effervescing Citrate of Magnesia, A. Rogers, 195 Spring street, New York.
Simmons' Liver Regulator, J. H. Zeilin & Co. Philadelphia, Pa.
Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient.
Treatment of Catarrh, Dr. A. N. Williamson, New York.
Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills, 18 and 20 Platt street, New York.

Musical Instruments, Publications, Etc.
Robert J. Harp, 110 and 112 Camp street.
D. H. Baldwin & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.
F. W. Bhere & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Chambers Piano Factory, 306 Fourth avenue, New York.
Henry Erben & Co., 235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-third street, New York.
Henry Pilcher, 656 Portland avenue, Louisville, Ky.
Philip Werlein, 78 to 80 Baronne street.
Whitney & Holmes Organ Co., Quincy, Ill.

Novelties.
J. Bride & Co., 769 Broadway, New York.
W. H. Chidester, 267 Broadway, New York.
Cowan & Co., Eighth street, New York.
Elm City Novelty Company, New Haven, Conn.

Optical Instruments.
Spencer Optical Manufacturing Company, 16 and 18 Maiden Lane, New York
H. Waldstein, 545 Broadway, New York

Paper Mills.
Atlanta Paper Mills, Atlanta, Georgia.

Patents.
H. N. Jenkins, 27 Commercial place.

Patent Novelties.
George L. Felton & Co., 119 Nassau street, New York.

Periodicals.
Family Journal, 300 Broadway, New York:
Fruit Recorder and Cottage Gardener, A. M. Purdy, Rochester, N. Y.
Offord's Pulpit of the Day, H. M. Offord New York.
Penn.
R. Esterbrook & Co., New York.
Joseph Gillott & Son, New York.

Portrait Painters.
G. D. Conlon, 37 Camp street.

Printing Ink.
S. Collins & Co., 28 Frankfort street, New York.

Professional.
Dr. C. J. Bickham, office, corner Magazine and Second streets.
Dr. J. J. Lyons, office, 219 Carondelet street.
Race, Foster & E. T. Merrick, law office, corner Camp and Commercial place.

Railroads.
Great Jackson Route, A. D. Sheldon, agent, Camp street, corner of Common.

Sewing Machines.
Beckwith Sewing Machine, Edward Thompson, 90 Baronne street, New Orleans.
Dunnette, M. S. Hedrick, 103 Canal street.
Wm. Gregg, cor. Canal and Burgundy streets.

Soap.
J. H. Keller, 110 Gravier street.

Steamships and Shipping.
General Transatlantic Company, L. Grand, Gallier court, letter H.
Merchants' Line New York Steamers, J. H. Ludwigsen, 180 Common street.
State Line, A. K. Miller & Co., 29 Carondelet st.

Stoves.
G. W. W. Goodwyn, 52 Gravier street.
H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Tea.
Great China and Japan Tea Warehouse, 170 Canal street.

Type and Presses.
Vanderburgh, Wells & Co., 110 Fulton and 16 and 18 Dutch street, New York.

Undertakers.
T. W. Bathick, 271 Camp street, New Orleans.

Upholstery.
Heath & Lara, 49 Camp street.

Wanted.
Teacher, W. H. Cassell, Canton, Miss.

Washing Machines.
Jungen Washer, H. Haller, 49 Camp street.

Watches and Jewelry.
E. A. Tyler, 115 Canal street.
Waltham Watches, Howard & Co., 222 Fifth avenue, New York.

Window Glass.
William Coulter & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Wire Railing, Etc.
Dunn & Co. Baltimore, Maryland.

Special Notices.

CANDLES.—Don't fail to send twenty-five cents for Offord's humorous, entertaining, witty and practical Lecture on Candles, embracing the pith of C. H. Spurgeon's Sermons in Candles. "Charmingly interesting."—Brooklyn Times. R. M. OFFORD, 700 Broadway, New York. au20 3m

Religious Notices.

CAMP MEETING NOTICE.—A camp meeting will be held in McComb City, commencing on Wednesday, October 14, 1874, and will continue one week. The meeting will be self-supporting, and every person will be expected to provide for their own food and lodging. We have some four or five houses within one-fourth of a mile of the ground, of five large rooms each, which can be had for a small rent for the meeting. Each suite of rooms has ample accommodations for a whole society.

Tent-poles can be had on the ground. The De Soto House, a temperance hotel, the largest and finest hotel in the State, will furnish board and lodging for the week at $1.50 per day; board, without lodging, at $1.25 per day. Fifty cents per meal, and same for lodging, for transient customers.

No pains will be spared to make this a profitable meeting to the people of southern Mississippi.

Half-fare tickets will be furnished by the New Orleans, St. Louis and Chicago railroad, and the railroad company will send extra trains on Sabbath morning to McComb City, from the north and south, if the people on the road generally wish it. The trains leave McComb City every night going north at half-past ten, and south at eleven P. M.

We have secured the promise of several eminent clergymen to attend the meeting and give us their help. Our help is in the name of the Lord.

Further arrangements will be published when made.

If we have a good rally and success we may make a permanent arrangement for a yearly feast of tabernacles for southern Mississippi.

Ministers will be provided for by the meeting.

Any communication desiring information can be addressed to Rev. H. M. Church, McComb City, Mississippi.

A. B. NICHOLSON,
E. R. STRICKLAND,
H. P. LEWIS,
D. P. BRADFORD,
J. W. SANDELL,
C. C. WATKINS,
J. RITCHEY,
H. M. CHURCH, Pastors.

SUMMIT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—There will be conveyances at Tangipahoa station on the seventh of October for those who wish to come by railway. I hope every member will be present, as ample provision has been made for their entertainment. I wish you could attend, Mr. Editor, and see what a warm-hearted people I have worked among for four years. The members and visitors will please inform me, as early as possible, how they expect to come. Place and date are given by the presiding elder.

D. P. BRADFORD, P. C.

AMITE CITY, La., Sept. 13, 1874.

DISTRICT CAMP MEETING.—The Delhi district camp meeting will begin on Thursday, October 15, 1874, at the district camp ground, four and a half miles south of Delhi, on the Delhi and Winnsboro road, Franklin parish, Louisiana. Only preachers and their horses will be provided for. Attendance of ministerial brethren is solicited. Conveyance for preachers will be at Delhi October 15 and 16.

CAMP MEETING ON DEKALB CIRCUIT.—The annual camp meeting on the above circuit will commence on the second Sabbath in October next. To ministers and friends interested we give a most cordial invitation. Brethren, come over and help us. THOMAS COTTON, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting at Siloam, four miles from Louisville, Winn parish, Louisiana, commencing on Friday before the second Sunday in October next, which the itinerant and local preachers in the district are specially invited to attend. Preparations will be made to accommodate all the preachers and everybody else. The people are also specially invited.

C. A. C. HENLONG,
Preacher in Charge, Louisville Circuit.

THERE will be a camp meeting at the Beulah camp ground, commencing on the sixteenth of October, 1874. The meeting will be on the self supporting plan. Everybody is invited to come. Preachers will be taken care of, and are earnestly solicited to attend.

J. M. FRANKLIN, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting on the Paulding circuit, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference, twelve miles west of Enterprise, near the Enterprise and Mount Rose road, commencing on Friday night before and embracing the first Sabbath in October. It will be conducted on the primitive style. Provision will be made for all ministers and persons living at a distance. Persons living within ten or fifteen miles of the camp ground must not expect accommodations from the tent-holders. All ministers are respectfully invited and urged to attend. There will be conveyance for ministers at Enterprise on Friday morning.

J. H. HOLLAND, P. C.

THE CAMP MEETING at Smith's camp ground, three miles west of DeSotoville, northern portion of Choctaw county, Alabama, will begin on Friday before the first Sabbath in October. Ministerial brethren are invited to attend.

C. B. DUBOSE, P. C.

THERE will be a camp meeting on Spring Creek circuit, Louisiana Conference, commencing on Friday before the second Sunday in October. Come one! come all! This meeting will be conducted on the self-sustaining plan. There will be corn at or near the camp ground, on reasonable terms. Special provision will be made for ministers and their horses.

FRED. WHITE, P. C.

THE Summit District Conference will be held in Greensburg, Louisiana, commencing October 8, 1874, to be continued over Sunday.

A. B. NICHOLSON, P. E.

THE CAMP MEETING at China Grove, Dale county, Alabama, will commence on Friday night before the first Sunday in October next, and close on Wednesday morning after. Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South are invited to attend. A. DOWLING, Pastor.

THERE will be a camp meeting nine miles north of Eutaw, Greene county, Alabama Conference, commencing on Thursday night before the second Sabbath in October, 1874. Preachers are respectfully invited.

J. W. MCCANN, P. C.

SAVE YOUR SIGHT!

Once Lost, It Cannot be Restored.

The Diamond Spectacles

WILL PRESERVE IT.

For sale by a responsible Agent in nearly every city and town.

☞ TRADE MARK, stamped on every pair.

SPENCER OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., Patentees and Sole Manufacturers,
se10 3m8p 16 and 18 Maiden Lane, New York.

Appointments for Quarterly Meetings.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

CAMDEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Monterey, at Hickory Hill	Sept. 19, 20
Sepulga, at McKenzie's	26, 27
Lawndesboro, at Lawndesboro	Oct. 10, 11
Pleasant Hill, at Warrenton	17, 18
Camden, at Benvet	24, 25
Pineville, at Tallahatchie	31, Nov. 1
Monroeville, at Philborne	Nov. 7, 8
Evergreen, at Prayerville	14, 15
Brewton, at Hinek's	21, 22
Georgiana, at Oakey Streak	28, 29

J. W. SHORES, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BRANDON DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Fannin circuit	Oct. 3, 4
Hillsboro circuit	10, 11
Walnut Grove circuit	17, 18
Philadelphia circuit	24, 25
Centerville circuit	30, Nov. 1
Morton circuit	Nov. 7, 8
Lake and Forest circuit	14, 15
Trenton circuit	21, 22
Ittitch circuit	28, 29
Garlandsville circuit	Dec. 5, 6
Brandon station	12, 13

Local preachers will be on hand with a report of their work. Church secretaries are requested to be present with statistical reports. Trustees will be present with their reports, and the recording stewards with the journal of the Quarterly Conference, as the late edition of our Discipline requires. Preachers in charge will please urge the above upon the brethren.

24 F. M. WILLIAMS, P. E.

WOODVILLE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Woodville station	Oct. 3, 4
Wilkinson, at Pisgah	10, 11
Pipkin's chapel station	17, 18
Buffalo, at Friendship	24, 25
East Feliciana, at Winans'	31, Nov. 1
Meadville, at Meadville	Nov. 7, 8
Amite, at Salem	14, 15
Bayou Sara, at New Hope	21, 22
East Baton Rouge, at Beech Grove	28, 29
Clinton station	Dec. 5, 6
Jackson station	12, 13

24 J. L. FORSYTH, P. E.

VICKSBURG DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

South Warren, at Bovina	Oct. 3, 4
Vicksburg and Grove street	to 12
Kingston, at Kingston	17, 18
Natchez	24, 25
Fayette	31, Nov. 1
Cayuga, at Cayuga	7, 8
Port Gibson	14, 15
Rocky Springs	21, 22
Rolling Fork	28, 29
Clover Hill	Dec. 5, 6
Beechland	12, 13

17 F. M. FEATHERSTON, P. E.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DYSPEPSIA,

IN ITS RELATION TO THE LIVER AND DIGESTIVE ORGANS.—JUSTUS J. SPRENG, M. D., member of the New York Academy of Medicine, devotes his special attention to Liver and Stomach diseases. Pamphlet mailed for 20 cents. Address the author, No. 24 West Twenty-Second street, New York city.

"The author's conclusions are marked, and governed by sound judgment and long practical experience."—Medical Gazette. se8 1ysp

Over thirty years' practice enables me to fit the most sensitive Eyes with Glasses, by correspondence as well as in personal interview. Satisfaction guaranteed. se10 3m

DIRECT TRADE.

DIRECT TRADE.

Merchants and business men of the Mississippi Valley who desire to purchase IMPORTED GOODS of British manufacture, at little if any over half the cost of such when purchased in New York, should correspond with or call upon DR. THOMAS D. WORRALL, American Director of the Direct Trade Company, 24 and 26 Camp street, New Orleans.

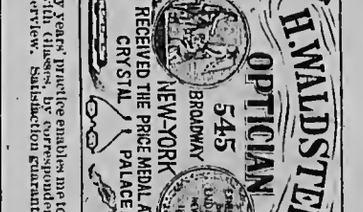
Samples of stock constantly on hand. je18 4m

WHITNEY & HOLMES

ORGANS.

FIFTY ELEGANT STYLES, with Valuable Improvements: New and Beautiful Solo Stops. Over One Thousand Organists and Musicians Indorse these Organs, and recommend them as Strictly First-class in Tone, Mechanism and Durability. Warranted for five years. Send for price lists.

WHITNEY & HOLMES ORGAN CO.,
au27 13teow Quincy, Illinois.



au13 3m1eow

FINE-TONED, LOW-PRICED, WARranted against breakage. Catalogues, containing full particulars, prices, etc., sent free.

BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO.,
ap9 1yeow Cincinnati, Ohio.

OPIUM MORPHINE HABIT speedily cured by Dr. Beck's well known and sure Remedy.

NO CHARGE

or treatment until cured. Call on or address

DR. J. C. BECK,
112 John Street, CINCINNATI, OHIO
jy23 1yeow

ROGERS' EFFERVESCING

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA,

in six-ounce bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick Headache, Sour or Sick Stomach, and all Febrile cases. Good for all seasons of the year. Prepared by ARTHUR ROGERS, 193 Spring St., N. Y. For sale by all druggists. E. J. HART & Co., wholesale agents, New Orleans. au27 1yeow

MONEY made rapidly with Stencil and Key-Check Outfits. Catalogues, samples and full particulars FREE. S. M. SPENCER, 117 Hanover street, Boston. au27 1y

THE

SONG MONARCH!!

By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, with the distinguished assistance of Prof. L. O. EMERSON, of Boston. These gentlemen, in the SONG MONARCH, present to the publick book unrivaled for the use of

SINGING CLASSES,

whether in the form of Singing Schools, or in Normal Music Schools, Conventions, Colleges or Academies, and the higher Common Schools.

Price, 75 Cents. Per Dozen, $7.50.

RICHARDSON'S NEW METHOD

FOR THE PIANO-FORTE.

The most Popular Method ever issued; 250,000 already sold, and the book is received. If anything, with increasing favor from year to year. Teachers and Pupils buy

25,000 COPIES ANNUALLY.

Recently enriched by the addition of "CZERNY'S LETTERS ON THE ART OF PLAYING THE PIANO," and of "SCHUMANN'S MAXIMS." It is now a book of 200 large pages.

Price, $3.75.

All books mailed, post-paid, for the retail price.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
711 Broadway, New York.
OLIVER DITSON & CO.,
Boston.
ja16 1y

THE

SONG MONARCH!!

By H. R. PALMER, of Chicago, with the distinguished assistance of Prof. L. O. EMERSON, of Boston. These gentlemen, in the SONG MONARCH, present to the publick book unrivaled for the use of

SINGING CLASSES,

whether in the form of Singing Schools, or in Normal Music Schools, Conventions, Colleges or Academies, and the higher Common Schools.

Price, 75 Cents. Per Dozen, $7.50.

RICHARDSON'S NEW METHOD

FOR THE PIANO-FORTE.

The most Popular Method ever issued; 250,000 already sold, and the book is received. If anything, with increasing favor from year to year. Teachers and Pupils buy

25,000 COPIES ANNUALLY.

Recently enriched by the addition of "CZERNY'S LETTERS ON THE ART OF PLAYING THE PIANO," and of "SCHUMANN'S MAXIMS." It is now a book of 200 large pages.

Price, $3.75.

All books mailed, post-paid, for the retail price.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
711 Broadway, New York.
OLIVER DITSON & CO.,
Boston.
ja16 1y

PAPER MILLS.

ATLANTA PAPER MILLS.

JAMES ORMOND, PROPRIETOR.

OFFICE—NO. 43 BROAD STREET, ATLANTA, GA.

☞ For Specimen of "News" we refer to this issue of this Paper. ☜

Cash Orders Solicited. no6 1y

The Christian Advocate.

PUBLISHED BY ROBT. J. HARP, FOR THE ALABAMA, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.

VOL. 20. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1874. NO. 40.

News of the Week.

DOMESTIC.

ONTGOMERY, Sept. 24.—The south-und train on the Selma, Rome and lton railroad went through Waxa-tchie Creek bridge, about two les from Columbiana, Alabama, at r o'clock this morning. The dge was a new single span Howe ss, one hundred feet long and fifty t high. The engine and six cars re badly wrecked. Hon. William rd, ex-Judge of the Supreme Court Alabama, and a prominent citizen Selma, and Henry Mellon, the ored fireman, were instantly kill-. C. Duncan, the engineer, and e Rev. Mr. Willis, of Marion, have en killed. Mrs. Willis, of Marion, n.; Mrs. Carlisle, of Selma; Dr. de, of Marion; Mrs. Pittnor, of me, Ala.; G. W. Swilts, Thomas ntley, A. J. Neal, A. T. England, ilroad employee; William Blake, Mobile; Colonel McLaughlin, of rmingham, Ala., were seriously jured. J. W. Crenshaw, wife and n, of Marion; Mrs. Lockett and ughter, of Jacksonville, Ala.; H. llison, of Montevallo, Ala.; William cGarr, roadmaster; John Bacon, ohn Schultz, railroad employee; . A. Stewart, of Louisville, Ky.; r. Debute, of Ludlow, Ky.; Rev. r. Tichenor, of Montgomery, Ala.; rs. Lister and children, of Union-wn, Ala., and W. R. Nelson, of lma, were slightly injured.

It is intimated that the bridge was mpered with. The bodies of the lled will arrive here to-night on a ecial train. Some of the seriously ounded will probably die.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Post-aster Jewell has no information of terruption of the mails South.

Governor Moses, of South Carolina, his constitutional appeal for aid in dgefield county, says: "I am owerless to enforce my orders."

The President replies that he be-eves the company of United States oops now in Edgefield is sufficient.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 26.—The anking firm of Townsend & Co., ith liabilities of nearly $3,000,000, as been taken in charge by a re-eiver. Investments in Southern tate and railroad bonds, which have radually depreciated, compelled heir suspension. It is said the de-positors will realize about forty per ent.

SAVANNAH, Sept. 28.—There was heavy storm last night and this orning. The river is higher than has been for twenty years. The ce plantations in this vicinity are verflowed and much damage done the crop. The estimated loss in ce is $100,000.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The existence a cordial and sympathetic letter om the Czar to Don Carlos, which as hitherto been denied at Berlin nd elsewhere, is now acknowledged. t was written in reply to one from Don Carlos, thanking the Czar for is refusal to recognize Serrano.

VIENNA, Sept. 25.—The New Free Press says the Sultan intends to ap-oint his eldest son to the chief com-mand of the army, and this is a step reliminary to declaring him heir to he throne, contrary to the immemo-ial precedent for the order of suc-ession.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—A frightful yphoon has just passed over Hong Kong. The steamers Leonor and Albay and eight other vessels were wrecked or foundered, and many are missing. A great number of houses were destroyed, and it is reported ne thousand persons were killed. The damage to property in the city nd harbor and surrounding country s immense.

ROME, Sept. 28.—Mount Etna is till agitated. The rumbling noise was heard inside yesterday, and the arthquake shook the mountain to its base. The shocks extended to the illage of Raudozza and destroyed everal houses.

MADRID, Sept. 29.—Unofficial dis-patches have been received here stat-ng that fighting in the Province of Navurre, between the Carlists and Republicans under General Morlones, continued on Friday last, making four days of conflict. These dis-patches state that battalions of the insurgents attacked General Morl-ones' army at Bersaln, near the town of Tufalla. A sanguinary conflict ensued, resulting in the repulse of the Carlists along the whole line. Their loss was heavy. They were compelled to ask the Republicans for medical assistance.

SOME of the negro representatives in the South Carolina Legislature manifest a singular conscientiousness about the sale of votes. Thus we are told of a negro preacher, a member of that body, who would never take more than $10 for his vote. It was perfectly right, he thought, to sell his vote; but it was all wrong to ask too high a price for it. The morality of his procedure he summed up by saying: "Dis ting of gettin' a $100 for a vote is all wrong; $10 is as much as it is worf."

FATHER BOYLE, of Washington, has doubtless a well-developed hump of humor. Of him it is reported that on one occasion, addressing a school on the subject of Easter celebrations, a young miss asked him: "Father Boyle, what is the origin of Easter eggs?" "A hen, no doubt, miss," replied the father quietly.

CHRISTIANS, you are fortunate when you are insulted and perse-cuted, for this is the best proof that your testimony has been clear and decided, that the point of the sword has not been blunted.

Justice for Louisiana.

The Chicago Tribune, commenting upon the Louisiana infamy, declares that "had this Kellogg usurpation been attempted in Ohio, Illinois or Michigan it would not have been tol-erated one day by the people of either State; nor could all the army and navy of the United States have induced or compelled them to submit to such an atrocious despotism and fraud." Undoubtedly these words correctly express the feelings of the free men of the great Northwest. They would spring to arms and defy the entire military and naval power of Mr. Grant's government before they would permit him to do to them what he has done to the people of Louisiana.

Is this sentiment confined to the Northwest? Do we not share it here in New York? Let us take the ex-perience of Louisiana home to our-selves. Suppose that there was a struggle going on in our State between a gang of self-imported black and white thieves and adventurers and the honest, tax-paying citizens to ob-tain possession of the offices, the first for the purpose of plunder and the last to save themselves from ruin. Suppose that the ticket nominated and supported by the honest citizens was elected, and that a drunken Feder-al judge issued a midnight order preventing the officers so elected from entering upon their duties, and direct-ing the Federal troops to protect the self-imported black and white thieves and adventurers in taking possession of the State. Suppose that the Presi-dent of the United States should con-firm the act of the drunken Federal judge and order the bayonets of American soldiers to sustain the usur-pation. Suppose that the villains thus fastened upon us by orders from Washington should proceed to rob us of our property by means of taxation and confiscation, and enrich them-selves with it. Suppose that the Su-preme Court of the United States re-jected our appeal for want of juris-diction, and Congress refused to in-terfere for want of common decency and humanity. Suppose that the only gleam of hope we saw for release from our misery was in an election about to take place, and that the self-imported thieves and adven-turers in power blocked our prospects by passing an election law giving themselves entire control of the bal-lot-boxes. Suppose all this to have happened in the State of New York, would we have submitted to it?

Our forefathers went to war with England for less than this. Can we in decency blame our fellow-citizens of Louisiana for protesting with all the means in their power against out-rages to which we would not submit for a moment? The Louisianians have been put down by force. They are helpless. The self-imported thieves and adventurers are reinstated in the offices to which they have no legal claim, and will proceed to plunder and confiscate as before. General Grant stands by with drawn sword and loaded Gatlins and threatens to slay the people if they resist. Since they are helpless, and we people of the North who are all-powerful sym-pathize with them, what shall we do to relieve them from the frightful oppression under which they labor? We can save them by voting against the candidates of the party which is responsible for the Louisiana infamy; the party which applauded and up-held Grant's ruffianly seizure of the State in the interest of the self-im-ported thieves and adventurers in 1872; the party of which the poltroon Kellogg, the drunken Durell, Pinch-back, Packard, Antoine, West, Sy-pher and brother-in-law Casey belong. We can restore Louisiana to freedom, and thereby do that justice, as fellow-Americans, which a recreant Federal administration refuses to do, by elect-ing a Democratic Congress. Let all Democrats and all other honest men who have hitherto acted with the Republican party, and who are dis-gusted with the policy of the ad-ministration and the party which up-holds it, turn in now with a will and make the Forty-Fourth Congress anti-Radical. In that way, and that only, can the blot be wiped out which unprincipled and unpatriotic men have put upon the honor of the re-public.—New York World.

THE taxes of the Astors, paid in New York recently, amounted to $259,057.83. This is believed to rep-resent an assessed valuation of about $12,000,000, and the assessed value is usually about two-thirds of the real value. Upon this basis we find the Astors paying taxes on about $18,-000,000. But, for some inscrutable reason, the assessment upon the As-tors' real estate is said to be only one-third its value, and so we have the real estate alone worth about $36,-000,000. This, however, does not touch the bottom of the matter, for there is said to be as much more, the taxes upon which are paid by lessees. Thus we have the snug little sum of $72,000,000 for real estate alone, and how much deeper the plummet would sink in the great sea of wealth, after striking the personal property, may be only left to conjecture.

A PLAIN-SPEAKING country minis-ter was asked one day how it happened that, considering the good example supposed to be set before them, so many ministers' sons should turn out ne'er-do-weels. "That's easily ac-counted for," said the worthy divine. "Ye see the deevil kens he canna get hand o' the geese, so he just maks grab among the gaislins!"

THERE is no courage but in inno-cence; no constancy but in an honest cause.—Southern.

Compromise.

The following is the text of the agreement mutually accepted on Tuesday, September 29, by the com-mittees of the Republican and Peo-ple's party:

The undersigned announce the fol-lowing as the result of the conference between the committees of the two political parties of the State of Lou-isiana:

1. The committee representing the Conservative People's party pledge themselves to cause all violence, and intimidation, if any exist, to cease throughout the State, and to assist the constituted authorities in main-taining peace and insuring a strictly fair and impartial registration and election. Also to discountenance acts and threats of personal violence and all improper influences to control the will of the electors, and render as-sistance and use every effort to sub-ject to the penalties of the law all persons who may commit acts of vio-lence or intimidation, or conspire to do the same.

2. In order to guarantee a fair reg-istration and election there is hereby constituted and established an ad-visory committee, composed of five members, namely: Mr. Albert Voor-hies and E. A. Burke, selected by the representatives of the Conserva-tive People's party, and Messrs. S. B. Packard and B. F. Jonhert, se-lected by the representatives of the Republican party, and of an umpire, namely: Dr. M. F. Bonzano, who has been jointly selected.

This advisory committee is to su-pervise and carry on the registration throughout the State, on behalf of all parties, to the full extent of sug-gesting changes in the registration officers, and the manner of conduct-ing and carrying on the registration.

Governor Kellogg, in the interest of a fair and impartial registration, of his own accord, pledging himself to act upon the advice and sugges-tions of the advisory committee, so long as such advice and suggestions are in consonance with and permit-ted by the existing laws of the State.

It is agreed that two persons shall be named by the representatives of the Conservative People's party, who shall be elected, according to law, to fill two vacancies, which shall be by resignation in the Returning Board within twenty days.

D. F. KENNER,
For the Conservative Committee of Conference.
A. A. ATOCHA,
For the Republican Committee of Conference.

The following-named gentlemen were the two committees who have been acting as a committee of confer-ence:

Committee Representing the Conservative Party.—John McEnery, D. B. Penn, B. F. Jonas, Samuel Chop-pin, Albert Voorhies, D. F. Kenner, C. Beard, G. W. Nott, D. S. Cage.

Committee Representing the Republican Party.—W. P. Kellogg, S. B. Packard, A. A. Atocha, B. F. Flanders, James Lewis, O. F. Blan-din, W. G. Brown, B. F. Joubert.—Picayune.

The Brooklyn Bridge.

The work on the towers of the Brooklyn bridge, though tempora-rily suspended for want of stone, will be pushed forward during the fall and winter as fast as possible. In nine or ten weeks from this time the Brooklyn tower will be finished and the New York tower advanced to a point above the spring of the arches. By this time next year the latter tower will also be finished, as well as the anchorages on both sides, leav-ing the cables to be strung and the bridge completed some time in the summer or fall of 1877. The New York tower is completed to a point 150 feet above high tide, while that on the Brooklyn side is 243 feet high.

With reference to the security of the bridge and the length of the span the engineers say that, whereas the span of the bridge across the Ohio at Cincinnati is 1,057 feet and the span of the East river bridge 1,595, the former bridge has only two wire ca-bles, while the latter is to have four. The Ohio cables are 12½ inches in diameter, and the East river bridge will be 16 inches. In fact, owing to these and other differences of con-struction, the latter bridge will be three times as strong as the former. The span of the Niagara bridge is 821 feet, and an ordinary railroad train crossing it causes a depression of only three or four inches.

There is a bridge in France, over the Dordogne at Cubsac, which has a single span of 1,040 feet, and there is now a proposal to construct a sus-pension bridge over the Hudson river at Anthony's Nose, four miles above Peekskill, with a span of 1,605 feet.—New York Observer.

AN extensive landslide in Oregon lately carried an entire township into an adjoining county, and the residents of that wandering town now refuse to pay their taxes in the county they slid from, because they are not there; nor will they pay them in the county into which they slid, because they say they don't be-long there.

A LITTLE GIRL, happening to hear her mother speak of going into half mourning, said: "Why are we going into half mourning, mamma? Are any of our relations half dead?"

A WISCONSIN man thought mus-tard seed was flax seed and sowed hundreds of acres. He stands a good chance to reap a "right smart crop."

THIS short life, being only a pas-sage to eternity, should be spent as a continual preparation for it.

From the Work.

LAKE STATION, MISSISSIPPI.—Mr. Editor: We have just closed a glo-rious meeting at this place, which re-sulted in ten or twelve conversions and forty-four accessions to the church. The Lord be praised for his goodness. We were assisted by Bros. T. Y. Armstrong, J. M. Weems and T. S. West. J. D. HAYS.

SEPTEMBER 18, 1874.

REMBERT HILLS CIRCUIT, ALA-BAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: On last evening, the tenth instant, we closed a meeting of considerable interest at Hampden. Several con-versions; nineteen united with the church, nine of whom were heads of families, and prominent citizens of the community. The Holy Spirit was manifested, and the membership was greatly revived. The meeting was a most refreshing season. Thank God for it.

Yours fraternally,
JOHN S. FRAZER, P. C.

P. S.—Bro. Rice, preacher in charge of the Tallahatta circuit, has just in-formed me that he has recently closed a very interesting meeting on his work at Mount Pleasant. The mem-bership greatly strengthened; thir-teen additions to the church.

J. S. F.

SHILOH, ALA., Sept. 11, 1874.

FROM TEXAS.—Mr. Editor: Camp meetings are again at the front. The writer has just returned from the Kickapoo camp meeting, having spent five days on the ground. It is most favorably located in Anderson county, fifteen miles from Palestine and ten miles from the railroad—a spacious arbor, with good plank tents, and "much water," and that of the finest quality. Many wagons and cloth tents, spread out on the adjacent grounds, with a multitude of people, constituted the visible preparations. The pulpit was ably manned, and the preaching was good and well adapted to the occa-sion. We left it on Wednesday even-ing in full blast. A blessed revival was in progress, and the tenters and preachers had resolved not to adjourn before next Monday.

The Tyler camp meeting, located five miles west of the city, begins to-day. We are looking for good times. The Starrville camp meeting, twelve miles east of Tyler, is to embrace the third Sabbath in October. So you see we are in the midst of camp meetings just now. You may hear from us again. R. S. FINLEY.

TYLER, TEXAS, Sept. 25, 1874.

OZARK CIRCUIT, ALABAMA CON-FERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Our pro-tracted meeting at Haw Ridge began on Saturday before the fourth Sab-bath in August, and closed on Wed-nesday night following. The church was revived. There were a few con-versions and four accessions.

At Pleasant Ridge we continued five days, embracing the fifth Sab-bath in August. There were several conversions, the church greatly re-vived, and three additions.

We began at Post-Oak on Saturday before the first Sabbath in Septem-ber, and closed on Thursday night after. Here the conflict was heavy, but at last the victory was won, and the church was gloriously happy. Many converted, and ten joined.

The meeting was commenced at Wesley chapel on Saturday night be-fore the second Sabbath in Septem-ber, and closed on Wednesday night after. Here the church was slow and the burden great; nevertheless, the victory was obtained. There were some conversions and eight received.

In most of the above meetings I am indebted to the local preachers for help, and in others to Bro. Phillips.

In the last two months we have re-ceived ninety-two members on this circuit. A. DOWLING.

OZARK, ALA., Sept. 17, 1874.

LOWER PEACHTREE CT., SELMA DISTRICT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE. Mr. Editor: At Liberty church, on Sunday last, I closed a meeting of nine days' duration. Twenty-five were added to the church. A large number obtained the witness of their divine acceptance. Backsliders were reclaimed, professing more power of godliness than they ever knew before. Lukewarm members were filled with a holy zeal that has set them to work in earnest. We had the hearty co-operation of some of our Presbyterian and Baptist brethren and sisters, who aided us with their prayers as well as tem-poral support. Rev. Dr. Turner, from Suggsville, was with us five days, and, as usual for him, preached with much power and effect. Rev. George Watson, local, did us great service. Our beloved presiding elder, Rev. A. J. Briggs, was with us the last six days. He preached every day, doing much of the altar work each hour. We had two sermons each day. The meeting was well attended. On Sunday, the last day of the meeting, Bro. Briggs preached to a very large audience on the sub-ject of infant baptism. It was a dove-tailed argument from the Bible.

We rejoice and give God thanks that, after two years of almost an en-tire failure of crops in this district, there is a fine grain and corn crop, and a tolerably fair cotton crop throughout the district; and, above all, God is blessing his people spirit-ually, and building up the church in all of its interests, and now waits to see if the people will honor him with their substance.

A. C. HUNDLEY.

LOWER PEACHTREE, Sept. 16, 1874.

DAYTON CIRCUIT, SELMA DIS-TRICT, ALABAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: For some time we have been suffering with religious cold-ness in our work; but the sun of righteousness is again dawning upon us, and its genial rays are infusing new life and vigor into all of our hearts, and we hope that it will rise to its zenith and remain there until its illuminating beams shall be felt in every heart under our charge. We commenced a meeting at Spring Hill on the twelfth of September, and closed it on the night of the twentieth, in which we were as-sisted by Bros. Crews, Glenn and Kelley. The church was ready. The Lord was there, and sinners were converted and soundly converted unto God. The ministry from the beginning seemed imbued with the Spirit from above, and the earnest way in which they wielded the sword of the Spirit accomplished the great object of the gospel. We have seldom seen such demonstrations of the power of the Spirit in the salva-tion of sinners as was witnessed on the occasion. It reminded us of the days of primitive Methodism, when God in an abundant measure poured out his Spirit upon the people. Sin-ners were not only brought from darkness to light, but the entire church was blessed. The meeting closed with twenty-four conversions and twenty-four accessions to the church. During the last quarter we have received thirty-five members in all into the church.

Yours fraternally,
S. M. THAMES.

LAKE, BRANDON DISTRICT, MIS-SISSIPPI CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: Permit me, through the columns of your paper, to announce to its many readers the glorious news of a revival that is now going on at this place, it being on Bro. John D. Hays' work, Brandon district, Mississippi Confer-ence, which commenced on Satur-day, September 5, and closed on the thirteenth instant. I never attended a camp meeting, but I imagine this to be something similar to the one held at the Seashore camp ground last summer. The officiating min-isters present were Bros. Hays, Arm-strong, West and Weems, all of this Conference. The church first went to work to get its spiritual strength renewed by a mutual covenant to pray for the same. The interest of the meeting rapidly increased, there being one of the largest congregations we ever saw at this place; and when the opportunity presented itself the mourners crowded around the altar from two to three deep for prayer.

The people seem to have been awakened to a sense of their duty. The merchant closed his house, the farmer left his cotton patch, the miller drew the fire from his furnace, and the carpenter laid down his tools and came up to the house of worship to wait upon the Lord.

This is Monday, the fourteenth, and the meeting closed last night with the glorious result of forty-four accessions to the church, and eight children consecrated to our Lord and Master. May they stand firm in the strength of our Lord, and become true and faithful workers in the church, and a blazing light to the world, that all the honor and glory may be given to the Author of every good and perfect gift.

Yours fraternally, J. L. M.

LAKE, MISS., Sept. 16, 1874.

AUTAUGAVILLE CIRCUIT, ALA-BAMA CONFERENCE.—Mr. Editor: I have held three meetings on my work. The first was in this place—Autaugaville. It continued sixteen days, and resulted in several conver-sions and seventeen accessions. Since then two others have joined, besides some by letter. The members say it was the best meeting they have had here since the war. I had the as-sistance of Bro. E. S. Smith, of Pratt-ville, part of the time, but most of the time was alone.

My next meeting was at Pleasant Valley. This continued five days, resulting in several professions and three accessions to our church. Four joined the Baptists. I had here the assistance of Bros. R. S. Woodward and E. S. Starr, of Summerfield.

My last meeting was held at Ivy Creek, where the district meeting for this (the Greensboro) district had been held two weeks before. At the close of the district meeting seven persons presented themselves as can-didates for membership. During my subsequent meeting the number was increased to seventeen. This meet-ing was different, in one respect, from most meetings I have ever par-ticipated in: the result was not so much the effect of the services of the meeting as of previous labors and providential occurrences. There had been several deaths of children in the community, and one by lightning. This fact, in connection with Sabbath school instruction, the regular min-istry of the word and pastoral labors, had produced an unusual seriousness in the minds of the children and youth, so that when the meeting came on their minds were made up. Several professed to have already ex-perienced a change of heart, and we had little to do but to receive them into the church. Several of them had to be baptized—as also at my other meetings—and I baptized a number of children during the meet-ing. Taking all things into consid-eration, we have had a pleasant and somewhat prosperous year. We thank God and take courage, hoping and praying that still more good may be done. W. A. MONTGOMERY.

SEPTEMBER 19, 1874.

UNION SPRINGS DISTRICT CON-FERENCE.—Mr. Editor: The Union Springs District Conference held its last session at Greenville, Butler county, Alabama, July 29 to August 2. In the absence of a Bishop our energetic and highly efficient pre-siding elder, Rev. S. P. Richardson, took the chair. Rev. G. W. Briggs was elected secretary, and Rev. W. Padgett assistant.

The attendance was large, all the pastors save three being present, and the lay delegation well represented. The session was interesting and har-monious. The reports were, in the aggregate, very encouraging. The district seems to be rapidly advanc-ing in all points. The financial out-look seems peculiarly bright. Bro. Richardson having given special at-tention to this important feature in the prosperity of the church. Mis-sions, missions, Sabbath schools, financial systems, etc., were discus-sed with pleasure and profit to all. Prominence was given to the sub-ject of education, and the Conference was stimulated to new zeal in this direction by remarks from the chair-man, Rev. H. Urquhart, president of the Greenville High School, Bros. Stott and others, and especially by a truly eloquent and interesting ad-dress on "Christian Culture," by the Rev. A. S. Andrews, D. D., presi-dent of the Southern University.

Religious services were held both morning and evening during the en-tire session. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered on Sabbath night.

Among the visiting brethren was Rev. J. W. Shores, presiding elder of the Camden district, who took an active part in our deliberations.

The following resolutions were adopted and ordered to be printed in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN AD-VOCATE, and read from the pulpit of every charge:

Resolved, That the houses of wor-ship within the bounds of the Con-ference, under the control of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, should be ceiled, and receive such other repairs as may be necessary to render them comfortable.

Resolved, That the great need of the church for its prosperity and ad-vancement is more of the Spirit of God in its ministry and membership, and we recommend that the preach-ers of this Conference specially insist upon this in preaching and exhorta-tion.

Delegates to the Annual Confer-ence—J. A. Gillens, James H. Dunk-lin, F. A. Boswell and L. Sessions. Alternates—F. Law, W. H. Parks, L. H. Parks and Sidney Frazer.

Fort Deposit was selected as the place of holding the next session.

G. WAVERLEY BRINOS,
Secretary.

Books at Atlanta and Macon, Ga.

J. W. BURKE & CO.

MR. EDITOR: It has always been the desire of the book agent to place the publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House within the convenient reach of the preach-ers of the several Annual Confer-ences whenever it could be done without imperiling the interest and success of the house.

It is certainly gratifying to me that this want for the Conferences convenient to Atlanta and Macon, Georgia, has been fully provided for by the energy and devotion to the church of J. W. Burke & Co.

For several years a large and flour-ishing book store and publishing house has been in successful opera-tion under the auspices of this com-pany in Macon, and, for the special accommodation of the church lying more convenient to Atlanta, these brethren have established a branch house at that point.

The object of this communication is to call the attention of preachers, whose fields of labor are more con-venient to these cities than to Nash-ville, to the propriety of making their purchases there, instead of here, and thus save time and expense in transportation. I fully appreciate the views and feelings of brethren who prefer to deal at headquarters rather than elsewhere. If the object, however, next to the dissemination of a pure literature, is to aid in build-ing up the fortunes of our Publish-ing House, I would suggest that this can be done as effectually by the purchase of our books from J. W. Burke & Co. as though the order was sent directly to me at Nashville. Every hymn-book and Discipline, indeed every book bearing the im-print of the Southern Methodist Pub-lishing House, must first be pur-chased from us before it can be placed on the shelves of these houses; and hence, through them, the Publishing House may be patronized and sus-tained. What I have here said in reference to J. W. Burke & Co. ap-plies equally to E. R. Smith, Balti-more; Lafferty & Co., and T. L. D. Walford, Richmond, Virginia; South-western Book and Publishing Com-pany, St. Louis, Missouri; and R. J. Harp, New Orleans, Louisiana. If the brethren, however, from any cause, prefer to send their orders to Nashville, they will be promptly filled. A. H. REDFORD, Agent.

THAT popular ballad, "Mother, bring my little kitten," is thus noticed: "The mew-sick is fair, so far as we are able to judge; but the words seem to have been scratched off rather hurriedly, and strung out to such a length that there is a fetine of relief when the singer comes to a paws." Those acquainted with the ballad will back up these assertions.

M. JAMIN lately exhibited before the French Academy a magnet ca-pable of carrying upward of twenty-two times its own weight. Hitherto the maximum carrying power of artificial magnets has been but four or five times their own weight.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1874.

THE CLOUD OF WITNESSES.

"Are they not all ministering spirits?"

I leaned upon a burial urn,
And thought how life is but a day,
And how the nations, each in turn,
Have lived and passed away.

The earth is peopled with the dead,
Who live again in deathless hosts,
And come and go with noiseless tread—
A universe of ghosts.

They follow after flying skips,
They flicker through the city's marts,
They hear the cry of human lips,
The beat of human hearts.

They linger not around their tombs,
But far from church-yards keep aloof,
To dwell in old familiar rooms
Beneath the household roof.

They waken men at morning light,
They cheer them in their daily care,
They bring a weary world at night
To bend the knee in prayer.

Their errand is of God assigned
To comfort sorrow till it cease,
And in the dark and troubled mind
To light the lamp of peace.

There is a language, whispered low,
Whereby to mortal ears they speak,
To which we answer by a glow
That kindles in the cheek.

Dear shadows, fairer than the day,
With heavenly light they wrap us round,
Wherein we walk a gilded way,
And over holy ground.

Oh, what a wondrous life is theirs!—
To fling away the mortal frame,
Yet keep the human loves and cares
And yearnings still the same!

Oh, what a wondrous life is ours!—
To dwell within this earthly range,
Yet parley with the heavenly powers—
Two worlds in interchange!

Oh, balm of grief!—to understand—
What whom our eyes behold no more
Still clasp us with as true a hand
As in the flesh before!

What Is Temperance

IN RESPECT TO THE USE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS?

No. IV.—BY J. W.

In our search for an answer from the mind of God to the above question, we have inquired first in the volume of nature. There we learn, in the plainest and most unequivocal terms, that intoxicating liquor is evil in its nature, only evil, and that continually; and that therefore nothing less than abstinence—total abstinence—is temperance in respect to the use of it. We now proceed to the volume of revelation with the same inquiry, presuming that in it we shall find positive command from God against the use of a substance which we have already learned from the volume of nature is fearfully productive of physical and moral evil in man. We stand reverently in the auditorium of the temple wherein God utters his voice, and with a sincere desire to know, in the most direct and definite form, his will concerning the use of intoxicating liquors, we syllable the question again: "What is temperance in respect to the use of intoxicating liquors?" The answer comes clear and emphatic from the sacred oracle: "LOOK NOT UPON THE WINE when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." Here is a command as absolutely prohibitory of any use of wine, when it is alcoholic and intoxicating, as was the command respecting the use of the fruit of the tree of evil in the Garden of Eden. A hundred passages from the Bible might be cited as expressive of the same prohibition, by direct command or by plain implication. It would occupy too much space to call them up here. The one we have stated is sufficient for our present purpose. One clear utterance of the voice of God upon any subject as much reveals his mind to us therein as if we had a thousand varied repetitions of the same; for, unlike the mind of man, the divine mind on any subject is always the same—"the same yesterday and to-day and forever"—"no variableness, neither shadow of turning." But while we have this clear testimony, and much like it, revealing the will of God as prohibitory of the use of intoxicating liquor, we find in other passages of the same volume of revelation what strangely appears to be a contradiction of the same. While in many passages of the Bible wine is denounced as a thing poisonous and deceptive to man in its nature, and its use absolutely prohibited to man, we find other passages referring to it as a thing good in its nature, and its use recommended to man. Under the unctuous inspiration of the Holy Ghost, David thanks God for "wine that maketh glad the heart of man." Jesus—the Immanuel himself—turned water into wine at the wedding feast in Cana, and supplied it in great abundance to the guests. The Apostle Paul recommends Timothy to "drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thine often infirmities." And then we find many other passages which indicate that not total abstinence but moderate use is temperance in respect to the use of wine, as when it is declared of the deacons that they must not be given "to much wine." Here is difficulty. How are we to account for these contrary statements respecting wine? Wine, as we commonly know it, is certainly an intoxicating liquor. The wine of which the word of God distinctly declares, "Look not upon" it, is unmistakably intoxicating, for the very process by which the original grape-juice is transformed into an alcoholic liquor is almost literally described in the words by which the wine is designated in the passage; and, moreover, it is further identified as of alcoholic nature in that it is declared to be a narcotico-acrid poison—"it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder"—it is "a mocker," deceiving men into the love of it, and into the belief that it is good and not evil in its nature—"whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." Yet we read that Jesus Christ made wine, supplied it in great abundance to others, drank it himself, and perpetuated its use in the sacrament commemorative of his death. What is more natural than that we should ask, in the midst of our perplexity: Was the wine which Jesus used the same sort of wine which is pronounced in the words of inspiration to be a poison and a mocker? "Yes," answer the interpreters, "the same identically. When the word is the same the thing is the same; if, therefore, wine signifies intoxicating liquor in one place it signifies the same in every place." But would Jesus make a liquor that is poisonous to the human system—so declared alike in the works and in the words of God—a liquor so evil in its very nature that even the moderate use of it contains the germs of excessive use, with all the fearful results which are inevitable therefrom to individuals and society? Would he put bottles—gallons—of it to his neighbor's lips, full of woe that it is? Would he who was "given for our example" drink it himself, and then counsel us to pray: "Lead us not into temptation?" Suppose, after all, the interpreters are at fault—suppose they have given us a false interpretation of one of the words of God? Is it not barely possible that they are wrong in asserting that the word "wine" always means an intoxicating liquor? Let us turn from the interpreters and ask historians if among the ancients, and especially among the Jews in the days of the prophets, and of Christ and his apostles, there was any sort of wine in common use other than that which was intoxicating? "Why, most certainly there was," answer a score of ancient writers. Pliny and Horace and various other authors make frequent reference to the use of sweet, unintoxicating wine in the times of the Romans. After a diligent examination among such historians as are available to us, we find that in Judea and other Eastern countries the people not only preserved the juice of the grape in an unfermented state for years, and called it "wine," but that they regarded this sort of wine of superior quality and higher flavor than fermented wine; that this unfermented wine was unintoxicating, and was most generally used at wedding feasts and the like; that many of the people had such a passionate fondness for it that they drank it to epicurean and voluptuous excess. Nicander says that the Greeks and the Hebrews always called the fresh juice of the grape "wine." Columella says the Greeks called the unfermented wine "good wine," designating it "liers," because it did not affect the nerves.

This unintoxicating wine was the juice of the grape preserved by boiling, filtration, and other means, from that fermentation which develops an alcoholic element in the liquor, whereby it becomes intoxicating. This sort of wine is still used in grape-growing countries, and is well known as not only a sweet and nutritious beverage, but remarkably restorative to persons in feeble health. When Judge Elsworth was on his way to Paris, after his appointment to the office of United States embassador to France, some years ago, he had occasion to pass through a portion of Spain, where a wine was offered him which was unintoxicating; of this wine he drank freely, and found it to be, he says, "a precious balm after the fearful exhaustion of long-continued sea-sickness."

Now with these facts before us, let us re-examine the volume of revelation, and see if we cannot discern two sorts of wine—one good and the other evil—referred to therein. Let us remember that the nature of a thing is not always signified to us in the word by which mention is made of it; that often we must learn the nature of the thing spoken of from the context in which we find it. Love, for instance, may be of the nature of pure affection or of the nature of lust, in any given sentence; not the word itself, but the context, must determine for us the sort of love which the word refers to. Only from the context do we know that the angels who fought under the leadership of Michael were good angels, and that the angels who fought under satan were evil angels; the word "angel" does not in itself convey to us the knowledge whether the being spoken of is good or bad. So of the word "man," "wife," etc. Let us apply this rule of interpretation to the word "wine." We find that there is one sort of wine in the Scriptures which is qualified as "new wine," "sweet wine," "fruit of the vine," and the sort thus named is always classed with corn, oil, olives, orchard fruit, and the like; it is of this sort, distinctly, that we read: "There's a blessing in it." In no single instance does the context in which the words "new wine" are found indicate that the liquor referred to possessed intoxicating properties; but, on the contrary, that it was the fresh, unfermented juice of the grape. "New wine" is always referred to as a thing good in its nature, and is never forbidden to man. The only passage in which it has the appearance of the contrary is where the mob at Jerusalem said of Peter and his associates, on the day of Pentecost: "These men are full of new wine." From this it would appear that "new wine" was regarded by them as an intoxicating liquor; but in that they said it in a "mocking" manner, is it not evident that the very word "new" was used in the way of irony, as when some French writer, for example, accused Proudhomme of being "a water-drinker!" really meaning the very opposite—"a brandy-tippler?" This is the more evident from the fact that the proper translation of the Greek word gleukos, used by the mockers in this case, is not "new wine," but "sweet wine." We have, then, one sort of wine in the Scriptures which can readily be distinguished as the fresh, unfermented juice of the grape, and which is distinctly marked "good" by the word of God. There is another sort of wine in the Scriptures which is characterized as "disturbing wine," "maddening wine," "wine of violence," wine which inflames, wine which causeth men to err. The wine thus named is never, in one single instance, classed in connection with corn, oil, olives, or anything good, but only with things poisonous, deceitful. This sort of wine is readily identified in the context in which it is found as intoxicating wine; very frequently the qualifying phrase, "strong drink," marks it as of that class of liquors. Wherever wine of this sort—wine named in these connections and with these qualifications—is mentioned in the Scriptures, it is distinctly branded by God as a thing evil in its very nature, and its use forbidden to man. With these two well-marked sorts of wine known to us, is it not probable, at least, that when wine is forbidden in the Scriptures, the intoxicating sort is referred to; and that when wine is spoken of in eulogistic terms, and its use in moderation recommended, by word and by example, that the unintoxicating sort is referred to? With our minds impressed with the fact that there were two sorts of wine in use among the Jews and their cotemporaries—one intoxicating and the other not—ought it not to be as easy for us to discern which sort of wine is referred to in any given passage in which the word "wine" occurs as it is for us to discern which sort of angel is referred to in any passage in which the word "angel" occurs? Is it not because the unintoxicating sort of wine is unfortunately altogether supplanted in our day by the intoxicating sort, that we fall into the mistake of supposing that every wine mentioned in the Scriptures is an intoxicating wine? Granted that the two sorts of wine were well known to our generation, would we have any difficulty in discriminating which sort was referred to, for instance, in each of the following passages?

"The new wine in the cluster. * * Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it."—Isaiah lxv, 8.

"Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."—Proverbs xxiii, 31, 32.

In our next we shall proceed to investigate those passages of Scripture containing the word "wine," in which it is most important for us to know the sort of liquor referred to.

Church Membership.

MR. EDITOR: I wrote a short article on this subject some time ago. I am very much obliged to Dr. Abbey for his favorable criticism, and to the editor of the Nashville Advocate for republishing. I see several articles in the ADVOCATE attempting a criticism. In all kindness I would say to those brethren that they misunderstand the whole subject. My article was not written as a criticism, but simply to show that the practice of receiving penitents into the church was in harmony with the doctrines of the church, and to make a radical change in the conditions of membership would necessitate a change in our theology. I stated the fact that our troubles on this subject grew out of our want of well-defined relations of man to the church. I was not then informed that there was a preacher in the church who was ignorant of the fact that the Methodist Church had never defined the relation of humanity to the church. Our theology limps a little at some points. When Mr. Wesley left the Catholic and Calvinistic Churches he brought off all the bracelets and jewels, but unfortunately he brought along the bones of Joseph too. I think I understand Methodism in its fundamentals, as well as in its development—the church, humanity and Methodism. Mr. Editor, you do not wish to publish a book in the ADVOCATE, and if you did I have no time to write one. I only rise to explain.

God created man in his own image; not only Adam, but all men. St. James iii, 9: "Men which are made after the similitude of God." The Bible nowhere teaches that man was created holy. He could not be, for holiness is a relation, and not a creation. Created holiness could not be the result of a moral agent, from the plain fact that the acting force would be God, and not man. Therefore the holiness would be the actor's, and not the thing acted upon. Created holiness could only be holy instinct. If Adam had been created holy he would have remained so, from the fact that he could not uncreate himself. The law is holy, and man is only holy when he is in heart and life conformed to it. Adam was created perfect as a man, as was everything else of its kind that was created. He was innocent; straight, not crooked; equal, not unequal. If righteous or holy, why not leave him to follow the instincts of his creation? Why place him under the eternal law of good and evil if it was not to work out the holiness, the end for which he was created? Man never will be finished. God is infinitely holy; man can only be finitely so, and therefore was made to progress to all eternity. Adam was created innocent and perfectly free. He chose to sin, and he sinned just like any other man or angel sins. St. James explains, i, 14, 15: "But every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. Then, when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." If Adam was created the holy man we read of in books, he was the worst man that ever lived. One brother says that I said man was not created holy, and yet he fell, not from grace, but from holiness. He did not understand what I was writing about. Adam was living under the law of holiness, and not under the law of grace. He was condemned by the law of the knowledge of good and evil, and not grace. He did not sin against grace. There was no grace in the government in which he was placed. Grace is a legal term, and has respect to the action of a governor when he pardons insolvent debtors. Adam was saved from judicial death, and his posterity from oblivion, by grace that was introduced into the divine government by the death of Christ after Adam sinned, that God might be just in pardoning sin. Adam could sin but once, and then perish under the law. Grace, by Christ's death, having been introduced into the divine government, man may sin many times and be pardoned. "Of many offenses unto justification."—Romans v, 16. The universal law of the knowledge of good and evil was not abrogated by the death of Christ, but supplemented with the pardoning power. The Savior says: "I came not to destroy the law." Now if children are not born in this gracious church or covenant, where are they born? The Savior commanded his apostles to preach the gospel to every creature. What is the gospel but God's power in Christ to pardon sin? The Methodists, as a church, baptize children of Jews and Gentiles, and yet we teach that all children will be saved if not baptized. Bro. Hawkins says: "Brought into the church by baptism." Then all that are not baptized are out of the church, and, if saved, saved out of the church. Now if any one can be saved out of the church, may not all be saved? Here Bro. Hawkins' theology not only limps, but has lost both legs. I suppose he would say that all the heathen children not baptized are saved in Christ. How can they be saved in Christ if not born in Christ, where there is no visible church, and their parents never heard of Christ?

My brethren, in their attempted criticisms, talk of Mr. Watson and Wesley, etc. They will very much oblige their heterodox brother by giving the book and page where Mr. Watson or Wesley define the relation of man to the church. Suppose the apostles had left the Savior when the crowd that followed left, and there had been no visible church organization, as there was none in the largest part of the world—where would all the children have been? Still in the ark? But with this view of the subject there would have been no ark. Then the whole infantile part of the race would have been in the flood and all lost. But if a child is born in the church, why baptize it? If a child is born into the world, why feed it? Food is not life. The child already has life. If it had not, you could not feed a dead child. Then why feed it? From the plain fact it will die if you don't. Isaac was not brought into the church by circumcision; but the Lord told his father that if he did not circumcise him he would break out of the church. "He hath broken my covenant."—Genesis xvii, 16. With this view of the subject our Methodism stands erect. We can say to parents: If you do not have your children baptized you put your children out of the church—you "break God's covenant." There is no branch without the vine, no child without Christ. In Christ were all made alive. The Savior settles the question when speaking of little children. He says: "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." This misunderstood churchism is what has led the world astray. The Methodists are right in practice, but need definition in theory. The members are not the church, not the fold, but the sheep; not the vine, but the branches. If Peter had been the church, when he was cursing and lying, it would have been in a deplorable condition. All this blow about the keys and succession is nothing but a rope of sand—has no foundation in truth or the Bible. The Bible teaches that Christ's kingdom rules over all. All children are born in it, and stay in it until they sin out. There is no life for the branch but in the vine—no protection for the sheep out of the fold. Holiness is the problem which every man has to work out for himself in the vine, for there is no life out of the vine. The man who has cut himself off from the vine or church by sin, let him graft in again at once, for there is no life out of the vine. Let parents keep their children in the church, and not break God's covenant, but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

Some of the brethren seem to be troubled about original sin and total depravity. We are not discussing the nature of man so much as his relation. The seventh article of our creed has settled that question. The Savior preached three years and never mentioned Adam. If we can only get rid of our own sins, the Lord will take care of Adam's part of it. The fact that a child is born into the world does not prove that it was not born blind, etc.

S. P. RICHARDSON.

ABSENT-MINDEDNESS AND MENTAL POWER.—It is worthy of notice that the growth of the mind is often accompanied by an apparent loss of power in particular respects; and this fact is exceedingly important, especially to all who desire to estimate the condition of their own mind. The mental phenomenon called (not very correctly) absence of mind is often regarded by the person experiencing it, and still more by those who observe it in him, as a proof of failing powers. But it often, if not generally, accompanies the increase of mental power. Newton displayed absence of mind much more frequently and to a much more marked degree when his powers were at their highest than in his youth, and not only did instances become much less frequent when he was at an advanced age, but the opposite quality, sensitiveness to small annoyances, began then to be displayed. Even an apparent impairment of the memory is not necessarily indicative of failing mental powers, since it is often the result of an increased concentration of the attention on subjects specially calling for the exercise of the highest forms of mental power—as analysis, comparison, generalization and judgment. I have already noted that profound thinkers often refrain from exercising the memory, simply to avoid the distraction of their thoughts from the main subject of their study. But this statement may be extended into the general remark that the most profound students, whether of physical science, mathematics, history, politics, or, in fine, of any difficult subject of research, are apt to give the memory less exercise than shallower thinkers. Of course the memory is exerted to a considerable degree, even in the mere marshaling of thoughts before theories can be formed or weighed. But the greater part of the mental action devoted to the formation or discussion of theories is only indirectly dependent upon the exercise of memory.—Popular Science Monthly.

MEN are never so easily deceived as while they are endeavoring to deceive others.

Obituaries.

MRS. CARRIE JANE, wife of Mr. Godie Finkley, and daughter of James M. and S. A. Burgess, was born in Monroe county, Alabama, May 15, 1850, and died in the same county and State, August 9, 1874.

She gave her young heart to God and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South at the age of twelve years, of which she lived an honored member until the day of her death. Sister Finkley being a specimen of nature's most exquisite finish, and possessing all the ennobling elements of a sound Christian experience, was a subject of universal esteem.

J. L. SKIPPER, Pastor.

DIED, after a lingering illness, at his home on Red river, Bro. F. P. MCKINNEY, who was born in Natchitoches parish, Louisiana, in 1836. He professed religion in 1860; was married in 1865, and died on the second of May, 1874.

He lived a consistent Christian. He was brought up in the lap of religion. His father was a Methodist preacher, and he had the blessing of a pious mother's prayers even to his latest hour. He was a kind husband, a gentle and affectionate father. He was remarkable for his gentle and unassuming manners. He was not permitted to leave any dying testimony, but we "sorrow not as those without hope." He left a wife to fight the great battle of life alone, with four little children to care for. May she trust in him who has promised to "take care of the widow and the orphan."

THE subject of this memoir, ALICE P. MCKINNEY, was born December 1, 1833; joined the Methodist Church at the early age of ten years; professed religion in 1854; was married to T. C. Walmsley on the twenty-third of December, 1852, and died very suddenly, July 19, 1874.

She was the mother of nine children, four of whom had passed on before. She was a good daughter, a kind sister, a faithful, loving wife, a judicious and affectionate mother. She was beloved from her girlhood for her cheerful and pleasant disposition. She was loved most by those who knew her best. She was exemplary in all her ways. She leaves a mother, sisters, brothers, and a husband and five children to mourn their irreparable loss. May God send consolation to their bereaved hearts, and may the children follow the example and precepts of their mother. Farewell, dear Cousin Alice; and may the Lord strengthen us in the hope of meeting thee, with many of our loved ones, at the "beautiful river."

DEPARTED THIS LIFE, on the thirtieth of August, 1874, near Thomastown, Mississippi, Sister MARSELLA GOBER, aged forty-eight years and some months.

Sister Gober was born in Kentucky, in the year 1826; moved to Mississippi, and was married to Elijah C. Gober on the tenth of February, 1853; professed religion and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church South in August or September of the year 1856, in which relation she remained until removed by death to the church triumphant. The deceased was the mother of nine children, three of which number passed over the flood to the eternal shore in infancy. The remaining six yet linger upon Time's side of eternity to comfort the bereaved father and husband. Then "let us not sorrow as those who have no hope," but realize to believe that our loss is her eternal gain.

S. D. TERRY, P. C.

THE subject of this brief memoir, WILSON G. WILLIAMS, was born in St. Helena parish, Louisiana, April 17, 1840, in which he lived contiguously until his death, which occurred June 13, 1874. He received a good English education at the Floridian Academy, presided over by the late John L. Spencer. He served as a lieutenant in Company F, Sixteenth Louisiana Regiment, and participated in some of the most sanguinary battles of the war. In his disposition he was quiet and retiring, and was ever a welcome visitor at the house of affliction. Having never married, he spent his life in the home of his childhood, administering, as long as health would permit, to the wants of his parents and sisters. His illness was protracted and painful, and his anxious friends saw "passing away" plainly written upon his brow for months before he died. Too well we know that words of consolation are but empty sounds to the bereaved family. Oh, may this affliction urge them on the way of everlasting life. N. T.

MELROSE, LA., August 22, 1874.

MRS. S. M. MCCLURG was born August 14, 1837, and died August 18, 1874. And was this all of a life-time? That was all of it, counted in years and days. But who can estimate the good accomplished by this Christian woman during these years? God only knows; and yet the loneliness felt by the bereaved husband and children indicates that they, in part, can appreciate her endeavors to do and suffer the will of God. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at the age of twelve years, lived a devoted Christian, and died a triumphant death. She was a kind wife and mother, and was one of the best women I ever knew. As death drew near she kissed her husband, bade him farewell, and told him to raise their children right, so that they might all meet her in heaven. When asked if she was prepared to die, she replied: "I am;" and then clapped her hands and said:

"Jesus can make a dying bed
Feel soft as downy pillows are,
While on his breast I lean my head,
And breathe my life out sweetly there."

May God help husband and children to so live that they may meet her in that home to which she has gone, and where they will never be parted. A. R. H.

J. H. EVANS was born in Butler county, Alabama, March 11, 1851; embraced religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Hickory Hill, in August, 1867; was united in marriage with Miss Mary Gilchrist, November 12, 1873, and died at his residence in Butler county, Alabama, July 31, 1874. In his twenty-third year he was called from the scenes of earth.

He was a man diligent in business, and nothing trusted to his care lacked attention. His plans were well formed and his efforts were crowned with success, and in the even tenor of his way he lived and acted among us. He loved the church of his choice, and his seat in the sanctuary was rarely vacant, and none delighted more in singing the songs of Zion. An acceptable member of the church, a good citizen, and an affectionate husband is gone from our midst. The hand of disease was laid upon him suddenly, while in the vigor of strength, and after intense suffering for forty-eight hours, he calmly fell asleep in Jesus. When asked if he loved Jesus he said: "O yes; I love him." Friends knelt around his dying bed, and earnest prayer was offered, and when the petition, "Not my will be done, but thine," he fervently responded: "Amen." The visions of loved ones gone before seemed to be present with him. Though bright prospects awaited him in this world, yet no desire to stay was heard; all was left behind without a murmur. Truly the goodness of God is manifested in giving his "beloved sleep." P. H. M.

JOSEPH S. BILBOE, son of William and Huldah Bilboe, departed this life October 27, 1873, at West Fork, Calcasieu parish, Louisiana. He was born in Calcasieu parish, Louisiana, January 18, 1841. He united with the Methodist Episcopal Church South at about the age of fifteen. He was more than ordinarily consistent, for he went through all the temptations of the war without deviating, although many of his companions who joined about the same time he did were led away by the fatal influence of the war. He was afflicted for about five years. He had been such a sufferer that he had made every preparation for death that was necessary. When the physician informed him that he would soon die he was overjoyed to know that he would be released from his sufferings. He told his wife not to shed a tear for him, for he would be better off. When the end did come he calmly and quietly fell asleep. Leaning his head on the breast of his Savior, he breathed his life out sweetly there. W. B.

MRS. MARY COLE, consort of Absalom Cole, a resident of Hickory Flat, Louisiana, departed this life October 17, 1873, at the residence of William Bilboe (her son-in-law and daughter,) at whose house she had been living for the last twelve years.

She was born at Cole's Creek, Mississippi, February 15, 1785, and remained at the same place until she was married to Absalom Cole in 1812. With her husband she moved to Hickory Flat, Louisiana. She united with the Baptist Church about the year 1830, of which she lived a consistent member until her death. Sister Cole was happy in the possession of a very calm and placid spirit, having a strong faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Although she was identified with the Baptist Church, she was not of those who are possessed with a spirit of bigotry or jealousy. She truly loved all the true followers of her Lord of other denominations. She was conscious of her death from the first attack of sickness. She was perfectly calm and resigned, looking to that event as a matter of course. She was ready and willing to depart and be with her Lord. She remarked to the writer, some time previous to her death, that she felt that the Lord had especially blessed her in permitting her to live to see all her children grown and married, and—what was a gratification—that she had reared them all honorably. I never saw any one look upon death with a greater resignation. Truly a mother in Israel is fallen asleep. W. B.

DEPARTED THIS LIFE, about forty minutes past nine o'clock P. M. on the eleventh instant, Mrs. SARAH CABANISS, consort of Colonel H. R. Cabaniss, aged fifty-two years and ten months.

She was confined to her bed for eleven long weeks, during which time no tongue can tell the suffering she had to undergo. As able physicians as our country affords attended her during her illness.

Friends and relatives stood by her side both day and night, endeavoring to do something in her behalf; but her disease baffled all skill. An all-wise Providence saw fit to call her away. She has been a member of the Missionary Baptist Church for many years, during which time Mrs. Cabaniss has lived a devoted Christian. I never attended a sick person who expressed a more full and satisfactory evidence of faith in her Savior than Mrs. Cabaniss. Oftentimes she talked to her family and friends of her hope of heaven, the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death, persuading them to meet her in heaven. She said that her way was clear—no doubts nor fears of meeting her God. She bore her affliction with the greatest fortitude and patience I ever witnessed on the part of any one. Mrs. Cabaniss was a devoted wife, an affectionate mother, and a kind and generous neighbor.

The day prior to her death Providence also saw proper to remove from earth her little grandson, JAMES CABANISS. Doubtless they are in heaven together. "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." A NEIGHBOR.

RUSTON, LA., August 12, 1874.

THE FESTIVAL OF COWS.—A writer in the Madras Herald-Mail says that during this festival in India whole households prostrate themselves before the astonished cows and bulls, each one offering extemporo prayer to this effect: "O mother, be gracious to us," etc.

THERE are two reasons why some people don't mind their own business. One is that they haven't any business; the other is that they haven't any mind.

The Christian Advocate.

THURSDAY, OCTORER 1, 1874.

LITTLE BY LITTLE.

When the new years come and the old years go,
How, little by little, all things grow!
All things grow—and all decay—
Little by little passing away.
Little by little, on fertile plain,
Ripens the harvests of golden grain;
Waving and flashing in the sun
When the summer at last is gone;
Little by little they ripen so
As the new years come and the old years go.

Low on the ground an acorn lies;
Little by little it mounts to the skies,
Shadow and shelter for wandering herds,
Home for a hundred singing-birds.
Little by little the great rocks grew,
Long, long ago, when the world was new;
Slowly and silently, stately and free,
Cities of coral under the sea
Little by little are builded; while so
The new years come and the old years go.

Little by little old tasks are done;
So are the crowns of the faithful won,
So is heaven in our hearts begun.
With work and with weeping, with laughter and play,
Little by little the longest day
And the longest life are passing away,
Passing without return; while so
The new years come and the old years go.

Hard-Shell Considerations.

The plumage of the robin redbreast, the mottled sides of the Saranac trout, the upholstery of a spider's web, the waist of the wasp fashionably small without tight-lacing, the lustrous eye of the gazelle, the ganglia of the star-fish, have been discoursed upon; but it is left to us, fagged out from a long ramble, to sit down on a log and celebrate the admirable qualities of the turtle. We refer not to the curious architecture of its house—ribbed, plated, jointed, carapace and plastron divinely fashioned—but to its instincts, worthy almost of being called mental and moral qualities.

The tortoise is wiser than many people we wot of, in the fact that he knows when to keep his head in his shell. No sooner did we just now appear on the edge of the wood than this animal of the order Tridactinata modestly withdrew. He knew he was no match for us. But how many of the human race are in the habit of projecting their heads into things for which they have no fittedness. They thrust themselves into discussions where they are almost sure to get trod on. They will dispute about vertebræ with Cuvier, or metaphysics with William Hamilton, or paintings with Ruskin, or medicine with Dr. Rush, and attempt to sting Prof. Jaeger to death with his own insects. The first and last important lesson for such persons to learn is, like this animal at our foot, to shut up their shell. If they could see how, in the case of this roadside tortoise, at our appearance the carapace suddenly came down on the plastron, or, in other words, how the upper bone snapped against the lower bone, they might become as wise as this reptile.

We admire also the turtle's capacity of being at home everywhere. He carries with him his parlor, nursery, kitchen, bed-chamber and bath-room. Would that we all had an equal faculty of domestication. In such a beautiful world, and with so many comfortable surroundings, we ought to feel at home in any place we are called to be. While we cannot, like the tortoise, carry our house on our back, we are better off than he, for by the right culture of a contented spirit we may make the sky itself the mottled shell of our residence, and the horizon all around us shall be the place where the carapace shuts down on the plastron.

We admire still more the torloise's determination to right itself. By way of experiment, turn it upside down, and then go off a piece to see it regain its position. Now there is nothing, when put upon its back, which has such little prospect of getting to its feet again as this animal. It has no hands to push with and nothing against which to brace its feet, and one would think that a turtle once upside down would be upside down forever. But put on its back, it keeps on scrabbling till it is right side up. We would like to pick up this animal from the dust and put it down on Broadway, if men passing by would learn from it never to stop exertion, even when overthrown. You cannot by commercial disasters be more thoroughly flat on your back than five minutes ago was this poor thing; but see it yonder nimbly making for the bushes, from which we must run to head it off, or lose our wayside sermon. Vanderbilt or Jay Gould may treat you as we did the tortoise a few moments ago. But do not lie still, discouraged. Make an effort to get up. Throw your feet out, first in one direction and then in another. Scrabble! Do not have less pluck and perseverance and enterprise than this East Hampton tortoise.

We find from this day's roadside observation that the turtle uses its head before it does its feet; in other words, it looks around before it moves. You never catch a turtle doing anything without previous careful inspection. We would all of us do better if we always looked before we leaped. It is easier to get into trouble than to get out. Better have goods weighed before we buy them. Better know where a road comes out before we start. We caught one hundred flies in our sitting-room yesterday, because they sacrificed all their caution to a love of molasses. Better use your brain before you do your hands and feet. Before starting, the turtle always sticks its head out of its shell.

But tortoises die. They sometimes last two hundred years. We read that one of them outlived seven bishops. They have a quiet life, and no wear and tear upon their nervous system. Yet they, after awhile, notwithstanding all their slow travel, reach the end of their journey. For the last time they draw their head inside their shell and shut out the world forever. But notwithstanding the useful thoughts they suggest while living, they are of still more worth when dead. We fashion their bodies into soup and their carapace into combs for the hair, and tinged drops for the ear, and bracelets for the wrists. One of Delmonico's soup tureens is waiting for the hero we celebrate, and Tiffany for his eight plates of bone. Will we be as useful after we are dead? Some men are thrown aside, like a turtle-shell crushed by a cart-wheel; but others, by deeds done or words spoken, are useful long after they quit life—their example an encouragement, their memory a banquet. He who helps build an asylum or gives healthful and cultured starling to a young man, may twenty years after his decease be doing more for the world than during his residence upon it. Stephen Girard and George Peabody are of more use to the race than when Philadelphia and London saw them. Yet many a grave-yard is only a heap of empty shells that stopped their mission when the turtles died.

But we must get up off this log, for the ants are crawling over us, and the bullfrogs croak as though the night were coming on. The evening star hangs its lantern at the door of the Night to light the tired Day to rest. The wild roses in the thicket are breathing vespers at an altar enshrined with moss, while the fireflies are kindling their dim lamps in the cathedral of the woods. The evening dew on strings of fern is counting its beads in prayer. The "whip-poor-will" takes up its notes of complaint, making us wonder on our way home what "Will" it was that in boyhood maltreated the ancestors of this species of birds, whether William Wordsworth or William Cowper or William Shakespeare, so that the feathered descendants keep through all the forests, year after year, demanding for the cruel perpetrator a sound threshing, forgetting the Bryant that praised them, and the Tennyson that petted them, and the Jean Ingelow who throws them crumbs, in their anxiety to have some one whip poor Will.—Christian at Work.

Degradation of the English Peasant

The "hind" or serf of the English soil has hitherto been the very dullest, most stolid, ignorant and torpid of all specimens of human nature; but at last he has been aroused to self-assertion. The great strike of two years ago began in "England's garden," the fairest and richest of the English shires, where, "as you ride along the ever-famous highway between Coventry and Warwick, abundance seems written all over the fecund earth; laboring under its lavish crops, and adorned by its beautiful hedge-rows and oaken avennes." But in the midst of all this plenty the peasant is half starved; in the most warm, cozy of English landscapes he is half frozen; amidst a universal growth and prosperity he alone grows not, but remains stunted amidst an arid existence, cut off apparently from all prospect of either material or moral advancement. * * * * The four great evils under which the English peasants in every shire have long been oppressed are lack of good food, lack of healthful and decent habitation, lack of adequate wages, and lack of education. A moment's consideration of actual figures indicates the inadequacy of wages. In the southern counties, such as Dorset, Hampshire, Devon and Somerset, the wages of the peasant range from nine to twelve shillings a week ($2.25 to $3.) In the eastern shires, such as Cambridge, Suffolk, Essex and Huntingdon, they range from twelve to fourteen or fifteen shillings ($3 to $3 40 or $3.75.) The recent great "lock-out" in eastern England was caused by the demand of the peasants for fourteen instead of thirteen shillings. In the northern shires—York, Lincoln, Cumberland, Westmoreland, Durham—the wages range from fourteen shillings to one pound ($3.50 to $5.)—Thus the very highest wages in that part of the country where farm labor is most stalwart and most healthy consists of sixty to seventy-five cents a day, while in the great fruit, dairy and garden produce counties the hind has to subsist as he may on forty or fifty cents a day. The period of daily work averages about twelve hours, though at certain seasons this widens to fourteen and fifteen hours. * * * Besides their regular wages the peasants are provided, either by the great landlord directly or by the tenant farmer, with what are very picturesquely called "cottages." We have a pleasantly romantic idea of the English rural cottage. Its thatched and moss-hung roof, its clambering woodbine and honeysuckle, its venerable age, its cozy nestling among the rich, dark-green foliage, gratify the eye and fascinate the fancy. The reality is a sad and suggestive contradiction to all this. Spitalfields and Seven Dials, the New Road and Smithfield, slums of overcrowded London, are not more reeking with disease or with moral pestilences than the wretched hamlets, in the midst of exquisite landscape, of the English hinds. The peasant has been doomed not only to ignorance himself, but to see his children grow up in an ignorance as dense and hopeless as his own. The squire and farmer have been in the habit of regarding education, as applied at least to peasants, as an interloper, a conspirator and a nuisance. When, a year or two ago, the new system of national education was established, by which each locality was permitted to elect a school board or not, as it chose, in the farming districts school boards were almost invariably voted down by large majorities; and to-day the boon of universal and free education, made permissive by Parliament, is rejected in those places where the rural magnates and the established clergy possess the dominant influences. "It is impossible," says an English writer, "to exaggerate the ignorance in which the peasants live and move and have their being. As they work in the field, the external world has some hold upon them through the medium of their senses; but to all the higher exercises of intellect they are perfect strangers. You cannot address them without being at once painfully struck with the intellectual darkness which enshrouds them. There is in general neither speculation in his eyes nor intelligence in his countenance; the whole expression is more that of an animal than a man. Education has advanced him but little beyond the position which he occupied in the days of William the Norman. The farm laborer has scarcely participated at all in the improvement of his brethren. As he was generations gone by he is now—a physical scandal, a moral enigma, an intellectual cataleptic." The average age at which the peasant children attend the primary school is constantly sinking. Most of them leave school to begin their long and weary life of drudgery at nine years of age. They leave it with a blundering knowledge of reading and writing. "Many of them are instructed by poor, ignorant women, who just know how to read, write and cipher." As a matter of fact, a large majority of the English peasantry do not read or write.

The Religion of the Lapianders.

The church was full of Lapps, and, although I saw here and there as fine a young fellow as I would wish to meet, the major part of them were little, brown, weather-beaten, stunted, bandy-legged fellows, not rising above five feet nothing, all clad in Lapp costume. One and all seem to have been cast in the same pugilistic mold—bullet heads, high cheek bones, low foreheads, bright, sunken eyes and flattened noses.—In fact, if they had only been cropped close, and dressed in tight trowsers and Newmarket coats, I would have challenged all London to pick out a bunch of more thorough-paced little blackguards than I could have collected from this congregation. The women ranged in pews on one side, the men on the other (and this is the fashion in all Swedish churches,) and, except that the former keep their high-peaked, sugar-loaf caps on during the service, you could see little difference between the two. None of the ladies could boast of much personal attraction, their countenances being exactly like those of the men, and quite as brown and knotty. But there was one face which peeped down from the gallery, from which I could hardly take my eyes, and which even haunts me to-day. It was that of a young, flaxen-haired Lapp girl, about seven years old; and a sweeter or more cherub-looking face I never set my eyes on; and the little blue-peaked cap, braided with silver, perched jauntily on her head, gave a lively kind of expression to perhaps the sweetest face I ever saw in my life. I never yet saw a child so beautiful as this wild Lapp, and a painter could have made his fortune if he could only have transferred the expression of that countenance to his canvas. Certainly there can be no truth in breeding if such a little angel came from the rough stock that filled the body of the church. The services passed off quietly enough, the communion began, and a curious sight it was to see these vagabonds run along the tops of the pews, like so many rats on a plank, in hot chase to reach the altar. And now commenced a scene such as I never witnessed in a house of God, and trust I shall never witness again. It seems that within the last few years a kind of fanaticism has crept in among these Lapps, and the word of God, instead of "pouring oil upon a bruised spirit," as every one is taught to believe who will read the Scriptures aright, only fills them with imaginary terrors; and, far different from the creed of the real Christian, they seem to think the best atonement they can make for their sins lies in outward show. I have seen a little of this in other churches in Sweden, where at certain parts of the service the women all commence groaning and sobbing so loud that you can scarcely hear the clergyman. These Lapps, however, must have been more susceptible or far more wicked, for all at once, when the communion service began, two or three women sprang up in different parts of the church, and commenced frantically jumping, howling and clapping their hands. I observed one middle-aged female particularly energetic, and who sank down in a kind of fit after about five minutes' exertion. The infection soon spread, and in a few minutes two-thirds of the congregation "joined in the cry," and all order was at an end. Five or six would cluster around one individual, hugging, kissing, weeping and shrieking, till I really thought that some one would be smothered. One old patriarch in particular, who sat close behind me, seemed an object of peculiar veneration, and the Lapps crowded from all parts of the church to hug him. How he stood it I cannot imagine; but he sat meekly enough, and at one time I counted no less than seven "miserable sinners" hanging about the old man weeping and shrieking. The religious orgies of the wild aborigines in Australia round their camp-fire are not half so frightful as this scene, for they at least do not desecrate a place of worship with their mad carousals.—Shilling Magazine.

LONG SERMONS.—Not long ago I met a clergyman in whom I was interested, a worthy man, who somehow did not seem to "get on." Nobody had anything against him, but nobody wanted to hear him preach. He was sound, solid, pious, and all this. Venturing on the privilege which belongs to a friend, I said to him: "My dear brother, I hear only one fault found with you. People say that you preach very long; that you make nothing of preaching for an hour, or an hour and a quarter." He answered: "Well, when I take up a subject I like to discuss it fully. I like to do justice to a subject, even if I have to go beyond the ordinary limits." "Justice to the subject!" I exclaimed; "and is no justice to be shown to the audience? Is the sermon the means or the end? Did God Almighty send you into the world to discuss subjects or to convert souls?"

ONE of Disraeli's admirers, in speaking about him to John Bright, said: "You ought to give him credit for what he has accomplished, as he is a self-made man." "I know he is," retorted Mr. Bright, "and he adores his maker."

BECAUSE gold is rare, gilding has been invented, which, without its solidity, has all its brightness; thus, to replace the kindness which we are without, we have invented politeness, which has every appearance of it.

Prof. Tyndall.

Prof. Tyndall has at length avowed himself a materialist. In his opening address, as president of the British Association, he said:

"It seemed to him that the time had come to make a statement, to declare the position which science assumes, and to define the proper limits of scientific and religious discussion. To that end he has gone over the history of scientific inquiry from the beginning, traced the origin and progress and development of the ideas and methods which have now become dominant, and announced in unfaltering tones the convictions at which a few leading minds have arrived. Not shrinking even from the terrible question of the origin not merely of species, but of life, he has proclaimed the doctrine of materialism in words to which his most bitter opponent cannot deny the merit of frankness."

Prof. Tyndall's exact words are these:

"Abandoning all disguise, the confession that I feel bound to make before you is that I prolong the vision backward across the boundary of the experimental evidence, and discern in that matter which we in our ignorance, and notwithstanding our professed reverence for its Creator, have hitherto covered with opprobrium, the promise and potency of every form and quality of life."

The science which the British Association represents is purely experimental and demonstrative. It accepts nothing as true which is not capable of such proof. But Prof. Tyndall has now gone beyond the domain of science, asserted what he cannot demonstrate, and assumed the wildest speculation as a fact. Theology never took so much for granted.

When the British Association produces an intellectual being out of that matter in which Prof. Tyndall says he sees it, we will accept his theory as science. Now it does not deserve the name.—New York Observer.

MORAL COURAGE IN DAILY LIFE. These maxims, under the head of "Moral Courage," are posted on the office door of a New York merchant, who gives them to the Evening Mail for publication:

Have the courage to discharge a debt while you have the money in your pocket.

Have the courage to do without that which you do not want, however much your eyes may covet it.

Have the courage to speak to a friend in a seedy coat, though you are in company with a rich one, and richly attired.

Have the courage to speak your mind when it is necessary, and hold your tongue when it is prudent you should do so.

Have the courage to own you are poor, and thus disarm poverty of its sting.

Have the courage to tell a man why you refuse to credit him.

Have the courage to tell a man why you will not lend him money.

Have courage to cut the most agreeable acquaintance you have, when you are convinced that he lacks principle; a friend should bear with a friend's infirmities, but not with his vices.

Have courage to show your respect for honesty, in whatever guise it appears, and your contempt for dishonesty and duplicity, by whomsoever exhibited.

Have the courage to wear your old clothes until you can pay for new ones.

Have the courage to prefer comfort and propriety to fashion in all things.

Have the courage to acknowledge your ignorance, rather than seek for knowledge under false pretenses.

Have the courage, in providing an entertainment for your friends, not to exceed your means.

BRAMWELL was a plain preacher, and to some extent an uncultivated preacher; but he was full of faith and zeal, and his ministry was attended with marvelous power. He was preaching in a little village, on one occasion, and the German minister, Trubner, was induced to go and hear him. Trubner was a very cultivated scholar and a profound critic; and when some of Bramwell's friends saw him there they said: "Alas! alas! for poor Bramwell; how Trubner will criticise him!" Precious little did Bramwell care for him or for all the philosophers under the sun. He preached, and set before his audience the everlasting gospel of Jesus Christ; and when Trubner went out of the church one of his friends said to him: "How do you like him? Don't you think he wanders a good deal in his preaching?" "Oh, yes," said the old Lutheran, "he do wander most delightfully from de subject to de heart."

THE professor of German flatters himself that he has mastered English pronunciation, and tells some friends: "Is it not a shdrainch ting, laties, dat de Latin race gan not aguire de Enklish pronuncy-ation? I haf choost dis momend ba det from an Idalian chendleman (a crade vreut of mine ant a very gleffer man) who has lifed in New York almost as long as I haf—tvendy-vife eeeerrs—an foot you pelief it? He shbeegs Enklish vit a kvite shdroug voreign indonation? How to you agound vor a zo eggshdraorrthary zeergoomshdanz as tat?"

IN a Brooklyn infant class there is a premium for good behavior, the excellence of the behavior consisting largely in abstinence from wriggling. At the close of a recent session the teacher said to a small girl: "Beckie, my dear, you were a very good little girl to-day." "Yes'm. I couldn't help bein' good. I got a 'tiff neck," the youthful Beckie replied with perfect seriousness.

IT IS a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness or speaking a true word, or making a friend. Seeds thus sown by the wayside often bring forth abundant harvest.

Religious Intelligence.

THE London Times reports that Pere Hyacinthe has resigned his pastoral charge in Geneva, by reason of the disagreement of the two sections of the Old Catholic party. He goes with the moderates, and takes the leadership.

A REVIVAL movement has commenced in Calcutta. The Times correspondent, who announces it, reports that all the Protestant bodies—the Episcopalian chaplains excepted—take part in the work, and hold meetings nightly.

WHIFFS FROM ARARAT is the title of a missionary periodical published at Erzeroom, Turkey. The diocese of the three missionaries there includes a population of about 1,200,000, not quite 1,000 of whom, however, are Protestant Christians.

THERE are 87 Protestant missionaries working in Japan. Of these the American Board has sent 20, the Presbyterians 13, the Reformed (Dutch) 11, the Episcopalians 11, the Methodists 10 and the Baptists 6—leaving 16 who have come from about as many of the minor sects.

THE work of translating the Bible into Japanese is now going forward in that country under the direction of a committee, of whom Rev. S. R. Brown is chairman, and Rev. D. C. Greene secretary. The former is a missionary of the Reformed Church, and the latter of the American Board.

THE Baptists of Burmah recently held a missionary convention lasting five days. The proceedings were conducted in three languages—Burman, Karen and English. There was an attendance of 137 delegates. The reports showed that the mission work has been greatly extended among the Karens.

FULL statistics have been published of the results of the labors of Messrs. Moody and Sankey in Glasgow. Between the beginning of the year and May services were held in 310 congregations in the city and surrounding country. The number of converts was 3,133, of whom 1,070 were men and boys.

RECENTLY the Bishop of Lincoln (Dr. Wordsworth,) at the close of a lecture on the "Life and Times of John Wesley," moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer, and spoke some encouraging words for Wesleyans. It is noticed that more than the usual quantity of compliment is paid, just now, to the English Wesleyan Church.

THE Sunday school works its way into Japan. One is established at Kobe, in that country, the first in which the Japanese language is used. There are about forty scholars, whose ages range from five to fifty years. As the Berean lesson papers have been issued in Hindoostanee and Chinese, we suppose a Japanese edition will now be called for.

REV. W. C. VANMETER has gone back to Rome. In an account of the recent printing of the Bible in Rome he says: The first lot of Testaments printed by the Protestants in Rome—10,000 in number—were paid for by the children of the Sabbath schools of America. They were printed in Nero's garden, where the early Christian martyrs were burned.

THE attitude of the Brazilian government, in opposing the pretensions of the Romish bishops, continues to be very decided, and there is a growing popular feeling in favor of the government. In a recent issue of the Mosquito, published at Rio de Janeiro, the Pope and his adherents were mercilessly satirized in a cartoon published with that journal.

THE name "Seventh Day Baptists" is by no means a high-sounding one, but it is expressive of just what the brethren who bear it mean. A grandiloquent writer in one of their organs suggests that the name be changed to "Saints of the Most High." Such a name would be the ruin of any denomination, whatever the theological belief of the people who bear it.

THE pastor of one of the American Mahratta churches, himself a converted Mohammedan, is engaged in translating the Koran into the Marathi. The work will be valuable to Mohammedans, ignorant alike of Arabic and the Koran, in teaching them what their religion really is; and to native Christians in supplying them with arguments for their conversations with Mohammedans.

IN SOUTH INDIA the London Missionary Society has 21 European and 11 native missionaries, besides 164 evangelists, catechists and teachers, making the total working force 196. These care for 131 stations, with 8,099 native Christians and 5,228 scholars in the schools. From the south as well as from the north of India it is reported that the number of secret disciples is rapidly increasing, and that the caste is losing its power.

THE thirty Roman Catholic parochial schools in New York city give instruction to nearly 27,000 boys and girls. These schools, says the Evening Post, are in the most populous parts of the city, and some of them are provided with excellent buildings. In addition to these, there are about as many private schools, which charge for tuition. In all these schools the sexes are rigidly kept separate, and one hour a day is devoted to catechetical instruction.

THIRTEEN out of forty-one American dioceses have taken definite synodical action in favor of correcting the version of the Nicene Creed so as to make it refer the procession of the Son only to the Father. This is historically a pretty serious difference, being a chief line of division between the Catholic and Greek churches. Why does not the Presbyterian Banner suggest that if these dioceses don't like their creed they ought in honesty to join the Greek Church?

THE American Bible Society, it is stated, is about to take another important step toward the general diffusion of the Holy Scriptures among all classes of our people. They now propose to supply all the railroad cars with copies of the Holy Bible. We are not informed as to the details of the plan, but trust to see it carried out at an early day for the benefit of our immense traveling public, especially those on the longer railroad routes.

MR. ADAMS' medallion of John Wesley, which is about to be placed in Westminster Abbey, is now very nearly completed. Under the profile of the great reformer there will be a representation in bas-relief of Wesley preaching on his father's grave. The fund to defray the expenses has chiefly been raised by Dr. Jobson, the eminent Wesleyan minister. The Dean of Westminster has taken great interest in the matter.

CANADA PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH. Number of ministers, 329—an increase of 14 in the year; regular charges, 650—an increase of 12; vacancies, 78; families, 28,260; communicants, 50,702; stipend paid amounted to $237,001.25; total contributions for strictly congregational purposes, $103,247.82; for schemes of the church, $55,991.12½, and for all purposes, $611,359.30, an increase over the amount reported last year of $68,457.58.

THE minutes of the several Canada Wesleyan Conferences show a total of 696 ministers, of whom 130 are on trial, 75 superannuates and 23 supernumeraries. In the circuits and missions there are 196 workers. The total membership is 73,567. There are 1,003 Sunday schools, with 9,836 teachers and 73,691 pupils. The amount raised for missionary purposes is $108,968.08. The total number of churches, 1,253; and the value of church property, $3,281,818.

THE Independent says there are a few churches remaining in New York, below Fourteenth street, that are well filled. Among these are Trinity, John Street Methodist and the Church of the Strangers. The Independent says several of the congregations which have moved up town would have had more worshipers and larger Sunday schools, and would have done a great deal more of practical Christian work at a much smaller expense, if they had staid in their old churches.

M. FLAMINIO SIRVI, grand rabbi of Casale, has prepared statistics of the Israelites in different parts of Europe. He reckons 50,000 in France, 124,000 in Germany, 1,221,000 in Austria and Hungary, 52,000 in Great Britain, 2,600,000 in Russia and Poland, 43,000 in Italy, 3,000 in Belgium, 68,000 in Holland, 5,300 in Switzerland, 5,600 in Greece, 250,000 in Roumania, 3,000 in Spain, 3,500 in Portugal, 10,000 in Scandinavia and 350,000 in European Turkey, making in all 5,157,400 European Jews.

THE Primitive Methodist societies have grown very rapidly. The Conference has just closed its fifty-fifth annual assembly, and the statistics of the denomination present the following figures: Members, 161,660—increase, 4,112; ministers, 1,021; local preachers, 14,832; connectional chapels, 3,826; Sunday schools, 3,536; teachers, 49,887; Sunday school scholars, 306,333. 53,933 congregational hymn-books were sold during the year, and the large magazine has a circulation of 8,000 monthly.

"IT is to be earnestly hoped," says Dr. Wordsworth, "that the desires and intentions of some persons to introduce the practice of private confession into the English schools, public and private, may never be realized. The condition of schools in France, where such a practice prevails, is deplored by all who know them. And it is certain that the habit of going to confession would give occasion to levity among the scholars, by ministering topics for loose talking and jesting among them, and thus be a cause of irreverence and profaneness."

A GREAT Romish pilgrimage to Aix-la-Chapelle is announced, where the faithful will have the privilege of gazing on the relics in the famous Basilica of Charlemagne. They consist principally of elderly dry goods—the dress of the Virgin Mary, the napkin on which the head of John the Baptist was placed when brought on a charger to the daughter of Herodias, the swaddling clothes of our Savior, as well as the cloth which bound his loins when on the cross. Every seven years these things are exhibited, and a plenary indulgence is given to all pilgrims who go to see them.

IN HIS recent address at the Exeter Hall meeting of the London Missionary Society Sir Bartle Frere described a Sunday service at Majunga, a considerable port under Hova government, on the west coast of Madagascar. Having expressed the surprise he felt at finding two large churches in a place where no European missionaries had been for years, and where he had not expected to meet with a single convert, he thus described the service: "I found a large, attentive congregation already assembled and the church almost as full as it could hold. There on the one side sat the women, and on the other side the men. Every one coming in apparently to their accustomed place, sitting down, and covering their faces in prayer for a few minutes—some with hymn-books, some with Testaments, many with both, all printed in London, in their own language. We sat on a kind of raised dais, with five or six hundred attentive worshipers and many standing at the doors, every one of them bringing a small piece of money and dropping it into the money box at the door. The Governor's son, who acted, as it were, as the minister on the occasion, came and explained to me, through the interpreter, what were the passages that were going to be read, his text and that of his fellow-minister. The service proceeded, and I will venture to say that, even in Scotland, nowhere could you see a people who were more thoroughly alive to the business they were about. When the sermon began my young friend—not without a page of notes in his own language, which he was good enough afterward to hand to me, merely marking down the texts that he intended to quote, which I could trace and some of which he found out for me in the Testament—preached on the resurrection and the life. Afterward the sacrament was administered to us, with a decorum and a reverence which I have never seen exceeded in any church of any kind in any part of the world."

The Christian Advocate.

Organ of the Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1874.

REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D., Editor.
ROBT. J. HARP, PUBLISHER.

OFFICE—112 CAMP ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Address, on all matters of business, Rev. R. J. HARP, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

Address all communications designed for publication to Rev. LINUS PARKER, 112 Camp street New Orleans.

AGENTS—All the members of the Patronizing Conferences.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE.
REV. EDWARD WADSWORTH, D. D.
REV. A. J. BRIGGS.
REV. J. W. RUSH.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. H. WATKINS, D. D.
REV. JAMES A. GODFREY.
REV. J. G. JONES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. WILLIAM V. TUDOR, D. D.
REV. JOHN MATHEWS.
REV. LINUS PARKER, D. D.

REDUCTION.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate will be furnished to subscribers hereafter at the following rates:

One Year	$2 00
Six Months	1 25
Three Months	75

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

to all Ministers of the Gospel, traveling or local and widows of deceased traveling preachers.

FREE ONE YEAR

to any person forwarding to us four new yearly subscribers, with EIGHT DOLLARS.

Prayer Ended.

In the conclusion of that grand Messianic psalm, wherein Christ and his kingdom are portrayed with such wonderful beauty and power, the author almost startles us with the declaration that "the prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended." It may be that in his mind the sum of all had been said in this rich and devout composition, and that nothing was left to be asked for. Or possibly the aged king was consciously near the end of life, and that the time of prayer with him was over. In this last respect the end comes to all when, with all other privileges, labors and opportunities, prayer is laid aside forever. Whatever may be its benefits to ourselves, and however availing in bringing down blessings upon others, death seals the lips of supplication. The Christian, whose days and nights through many years have been marked by "praying always with all prayer and supplication," and whose earnest wrestlings with God in behalf of sinners and the church have known no abatement, is done with prayer as soon as he is done with earth. The last word uttered, the last sigh may be a prayer, but it is the last prayer of a prayerful life and of the praying soul.

Prayer is a most important part of the believer's work on earth; it belongs to his probationary duties and responsibilities, and ceases with the hour of his release from the affairs and activities of time. Praise, heightened and glorified, will go on endlessly. Death cannot break it, nor will there be any pause when the glad transition passes upon the redeemed spirit. What other employments there may be in the heavenly world, there is no warrant for the supposition that intercessions for those who remain on earth will enter the glorified state. Prayers may not be answered until long after the saint that breathed them has entered paradise. They are not forgotten before God, and his authoritative ministers and the ordering of his providence are being disposed, and are moving toward the gracious result. Gathered and garnered there is a mighty store of power and benedictions which shall be manifest some time. Like good seed scattered up and down the Christian's earthly path, the prayers of the righteous sprout, and blossom and bear fruit long after the grave closes upon those who have uttered them. No form of Christian work has so great a tenacity of life, and none continues so long to multiply and develop after the workman is dead. But whether as a seed-sowing or a reaping, the praying that we do terminates with the present life. This most wonderful gift and privilege, this most powerful means of good to the world, has an end. Every dying man can say with truth: My prayers are ended. Of this, as of other things, the admonition bears with emphasis: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest." Devout people who realize their responsibility in reference to active labor in the cause of Christ, and who are stimulated to giving and doing by the shortness of life, do not always extend the application to prayer.

Prayer, as to certain objects, is ended by other circumstances than that of our own death. The time comes when those we have prayed for are taken away. The parents we have been long accustomed to remember before God are gone, and the life-time habit, begun at the mother's knee, and cherished and strengthened by an intelligent and ripened piety, is abruptly and sadly broken by the tidings of sorrow. We know not which is more sad, the thought that they no longer live to pray for us, or the conviction which flashes upon us that they have passed absolutely beyond the emotion always heretofore given them in our secret devotions. Children have the central place in the parental prayer. They are called up by name and personal form when the believing parent is closeted with God. From earliest infancy through childhood, youth, and on through maturer years, they are kept at the mercy seat. Natural affection, deepened and ennobled, and purified into something higher and better, and the solemn sense of accountability for the eternal welfare of those whom God has given them, inspire a fervor and faith which reach their mightiest and sublimest expression in the intercessions of believing parents. The death of children, as it touches this habit and life of prayer, is most deeply felt. While living they may go beyond our sight, and they may outgrow the tender and sweet dependence of infancy and childhood, but only death separates them from our prayers.

Of all relations and friendships we might indulge the same reflections. Those for whose salvation we have been specially concerned, those in whose welfare we have become greatly enlisted, whether neighbors, associates, kindred or friends, for them our prayer is ended as they are numbered with the dead. Their names must be left off henceforth from the catalogue of those for whom our prayers have gone up. Their memory may be precious, the form and features are clear and full, love still clings to them, and they live in our daily thoughts, and appear in our nightly dreams, but they have no more place in our prayers. It ought to quicken our earnestness and diligence in prayer when we reflect that the objects of intercessions, even the most precious and best loved, are liable at any time to be removed from the reach of our supplications. Prayer may not only be ended by our own death, but it may be ended as to some of its most cherished objects by the stroke which bereaves. Those whom God has placed within the circle of our prayers are by his dispensation taken from us.

We doubt not these instances of prayer ended are among the most melancholy recollections and experiences of many. There is a shade of gloom, and perhaps an approach to remorse, growing out of the half-disguised conviction of their own unfaithfulness. If the dead could be called back to life, with what fervor and agonizing they would pray for them! There is healing balm for the wound in the consciousness that we were diligent and importunate, and especial comfort in the assurance that our prayers were answered—that when our prayer for them ended, it had been answered in placing them where prayer is not only impossible, but where it is no longer needed.

The Plan.

The venerable Dr. Lovick Pierce has begun a series of articles in the Nashville Christian Advocate on fraternity. The following extract from No 1. is clear and convincing:

We, in our place, say, if these articles of separation could be somehow annihilated, then a fig for your Supreme Court decree—its bottom would be out. The court never decreed any bottom for us on which we gained our rights. It only declared the articles of separation—on which we rested our claim—good against the resolution of nullification passed by the General Conference of 1848, four years after they had any jurisdiction in the case. This Conference had nothing to do with this case as an original right. The Conference of 1844 was a General Conference of the whole Methodist Episcopal Church—the last one that ever can be, according to the original sense of a General Conference. This Conference of 1848 was the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as it was in its then limited jurisdiction, just as our first General Conference in 1846 had met and acted for itself, strictly within the limits of its own defined jurisdiction, exercising no function of legislation within the territorial limits of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as agreed upon in the articles of separation in 1844. We had just as much right to interfere with them, by these articles, as they had to interfere with any right secured to us by them—that is, neither of us had any right to interfere with guaranteed rights manageable only by the powers within another jurisdiction. This General Conference, being assembled by themselves, not one of the legatees or beneficiaries provided for under the distributive will of the only court that could ever have constitutional jurisdiction in the case being present to object, they proceeded to the work of nullification, by resolution, in which they disfranchised every one of us, and then disinherited us by an exclusive claim to all property belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church, on the ground that we were seceders—seceders, mind you, by their decree; for if we had not been set off orderly and according to law there would have been no chance for a resolution of nullification. Hence, as all may see, the necessity forced on us to carry this matter up to the Supreme Court was, in a large degree, to determine whether the General Conference, as it was, possessed the inherent right to divide itself into two General Conferences, laying down authoritatively their jurisdictional limits, and decreeing to the new organizations equal rights in property. The court determined that this original General Conference did possess this power, and that the new organization was, in law and in equity, entitled to their proportion of all property held by them in common, as the remaining corporators of the original company. Hence the Methodist Episcopal Church had to pay to the Methodist Episcopal Church South of the capital stock of the Book Concern, not what the court figured out for us, but what fell to us upon the pro rata basis agreed upon by the General Conference of 1844.

Why, sir, this Plan of Separation, agreed upon at this General Conference, is our charter. Blot it out, and you blot out the Methodist Episcopal Church South as a legal, loyal branch of Wesleyan Methodism. The Supreme Court never assumed to give us lawful existence; it only decreed that these articles of separation gave us jurisdictional territory and property rights which were perfect and absolute. We say, then, fearlessly as to truth, although fearfully as to results, that we never can fraternize with the Methodist Episcopal Church, as we and many of them most heartily desire to do, if, in order to come into this fellowship, we must, in any substantial sense, along with them ignore, or even seem to ignore, these venerable articles of separation. Negotiations on this point had as well cease at once, and in good Christian grace let us reason together. There are both room and necessity for it. It is immaterial how unimportant these articles of separation may seem to be to the Methodist Episcopal Church. To them they never were anything but lines for the honorable; while to us they always have been and always must be the grand charter of our right to be a branch of the true Wesleyan family, and of all rights, both inhering and adhering, to a lawful church organization. To this charter of life and of rights we must and will stick. If brethren will listen with willingness to us, they will heartily join with us and say: If you are willing to ignore your interests in these articles, as the basis of a peace-treaty between us, for a forced fraternity, we decline to enter in; for such an indifference to fundamental principles is an augury of unreliableness not to be trusted. We maintain, according to sound philosophy, that if the Methodist Episcopal Church South were, in any cognizable way, to ignore these articles in order to bring us within the fellowship of the Methodist Episcopal Church, we should not only jeopard our rights, but destroy all evidence of our regular, lawful existence as a church. No, my brethren, I am glad to see you so graciously sympathize with this fraternal feeling, but I am shocked whenever I hear anybody talk about even reticence on these old subjects, saying: "Let by-gones be by-gones." This cannot be. We of the South must demand from the Methodist Episcopal Church, in her high capacity, the assurances that these articles of separation, as the basis of our rights and equality, shall never be dishonored by that Court of Appeals in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Letter from Bishop Pierce.

CHEYENNE, August 31, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: Being detained here for twelve hours, in order to relieve myself, as well as to redeem a promise to you, I send you "these few lines."

I left home in the midst of a disastrous drouth, and hoped to escape its dust and heat by travel. I have passed through Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Colorado, and now I am in Wyoming, but have not reached the western boundary of this great desolation. The only exception to this statement is a narrow strip of territory in Kentucky and Indiana, along the line of the S. E. railroad, to St. Louis. On the finest lands the corn crop is an abortion. Soon after leaving Kansas City I met the grasshopper (I should call them locusts,) hordes on hordes, emigrating eastward. In one respect the story of their ravages is exaggerated. They do not eat every green thing. The grass and the trees—save apple and peach-trees—are untouched. With voracious appetites, they are yet dainty in their taste. The gardens and the corn-fields seem to be their delectation. The apple and peach orchards are left without leaf or bud. Nothing remains but the half-grown, unripe fruit. The spectacle is curious—a sort of vegetable pauperism. The corn-fields are stripped clean as a walking-stick. They look like plantations of hoop poles. In some places the drouth has forestalled the locusts. The corn is dead from root to tassel. I have seen thousands of acres without an ear—not even a nubbin. The wheat crop along the line of my travel will sustain the people for some months; afterward, especially in Kansas, suffering must follow, without aid from the government or more favored sections of the country.

I have been across the continent once before, but never across the plains, as commonly called; so I am not without wonder and excitement. When I was a boy and studied geography this western region was put down on the maps as "the Great American Desert." Desert is a pliable word. It means more or less, according to circumstances. Very rarely, and then only on a limited scale, does it mean all it commonly implies. This country is not a sandy, barren waste. But I have traveled three hundred miles without sight of a tree, or water (a running stream, I mean,) or human habitation, except at long intervals, a lone house marking a station on the railroad. Yet nothing is wanting but people and water and enterprise to make it a land of plenty—a garden spot; climate, soil, grass, are all here. With its valleys and undulations, it is even now a land of beauty. I passed the buffalo region in the night, and missed seeing a herd of these denizens of the desert. I saw only one—a yearling—reposing about fifty feet from the road, and he barely raised his head to notice the passing train.

It is six hundred and thirty-nine miles from Kansas City to Denver. Almost the whole route is a wild, unoccupied waste, and yet human life appears now and then in several gradations. Here is a nice little railroad town, spruce and pretentious as a country belle in her Sunday attire. Now a solitary house ten by twelve, a single inhabitant, and he a telegraph operator. Here a little group of shanties, occupied by goods and human beings, and perhaps an emigrant wagon which has stopped to rest or to trade. Now, strange to say, a hole in the ground, a few sticks across the top, and the dirt piled on for a roof. A pipe peers through, indicating a stove below. The inhabitants go down dirt-steps to enter in. I was anxious to peep into these dens, but time and tide and railroads wait for no man. I learn they are comfortable—in winter. This style of architecture has its grades, like others—sometimes a skylight over the door, a single pane of glass, and sometimes four eight-by-ten panes in the gable end, two in a place. What a world this is, and how many ways to live in it.

After this long stretch of emptiness—almost an unbroken vacancy—and you come to a pause at Denver. The city greets you like a magical creation. You feel as if you had gone round the world and had brought up on the far eastern verge of civilization. Denver is a marvel, and wondrously beautiful. Think of a city fifteen years old only, with twenty thousand inhabitants, four or five railroads running to it, street cars, water works, gas works, elegant school houses, twenty churches, wide streets bordered with cotton-wood trees, rills of clear water flowing at their roots, all city appliances, every modern improvement. One must see for himself to comprehend it all. Denver is the resort of invalids from every quarter of the earth. This influx contributes no little to the thrift of the place. But I cannot pause to tell you of the Platte river and its bottom, nor of the Rocky mountains with their heights and parks and mines, and as yet untold secrets. I will just say: This is no country for agriculture. Without irrigation nothing can be done in that line. The grasshopper is here—if not a permanent dweller, certainly a frequent visitor. This is a stock region—horses, cattle and sheep. The mines are rich, but capital alone can work them to great profit. I rode early one morning on the South Park railroad to Morrison Springs, sixteen miles distant. On the way the scenery is beautiful; and when you pass the foot hills and enter the mountains it is weird and wild. On my return I saw men and women, all with brush in either hand, driving the grasshoppers, like a flock of turkeys, out of their gardens and market-fields.

The Conference was brief, pleasant, religious. Denver Conference is fairly inaugurated. Ordained two deacons, four elders; stationed twenty nine preachers, including supplies. Membership, if fully reported, about seven hundred. Sunday school scholars, four hundred and two. A fair beginning.

There is hope for Methodism in the West. Let the church pray for this young Conference, and let the preachers get ready to come as they may be called for.

G. F. PIERCE.

Southern Christian Advocate.

Beecher's Fall.

The Interior, of Chicago, a Presbyterian paper, does not believe that Beecher is innocent. Will it make any difference with his constituents whether he be innocent or guilty? Will his congregations be less? Will he not draw as well as ever, and even better? Says the Interior:

We did not share in the satisfaction with which so many of our contemporaries received Mr. Beecher's statement. We felt that his friends were altogether premature in their rejoicings over his vindication.—Though ready to pause before coming to a decision, we were far from thinking that he had successfully answered the charges, or that he had given a satisfactory explanation of his own letters. Mr. Beecher's conduct, from the beginning, has hardly been compatible with his professions of innocence. A guilty man would, in all probability, endeavor to avoid investigation, particularly if he were strong in popular favor, and could appeal to his past life and public services. This Mr. Beecher has done. Most men would consider themselves highly favored if they could have the choice of the jury by which they were to be tried. In selecting his investigating committee Mr. Beecher did what every criminal would do, if he were allowed. It would be strange if Mr. Beecher's genius should prove unequal to the task of composing a reasonable and plausible answer to Mr. Tilton's charges, and it would reflect little credit upon the legal attainments of his counsel if they could not hit upon a theory which would seem at least to explain the facts, and without sullying the reputation of Mr. Beecher. Therefore, when we read the rhetorical defense which Mr. Beecher made of himself, we were far from satisfied. There was too much evidence in it of the manufactura on his part of abnormal subjective states; there was too absurd an attempt to explain the extreme language of penitence by saying that he had given imprudent advice. Mr. Tilton's second statement has since been published. It is the most important document which has yet appeared in connection with this unhappy matter. For exquisite care in the use of words; for judicial calmness in weighing evidence; for keen insight into the fallacies of his opponents; for masterly array of facts in support of his position; for relentless logic; for keen and polished sarcasm; for calm self-control under circumstances of unusual irritation; and, above all, for affection he still has for the wife who has brought him ruin, Mr. Tilton is a marvel. His statement is a masterpiece, and Mr. Beecher is ruined.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Write upon pages of a single size,
Cross all your t's, and neatly dot your i's;
Do one side only let your lines be seen—
Both sides filled up announce a Verdant Green.
Correct—yes, recorrect—all that you write,
And let your ink be black, your paper white;
For spongy foolscap of a muddy blue
Borrows a mind of the same dismal hue.
Punctuate carefully, for on this score
Nothing proclaims the practiced writer more.
Then send it off, and, lest it merit lack,
Inclose the postage stamps to send it back;
But first pay all the postage on it too,
For editors look black on "two pence due,"
And murmur, as they run the effusion o'er:
"A shabby fellow and a wretched bore!"
Yet ere it goes take off a copy clean—
Poets should own a copying machine;
Little they know the time that's spent and care
In hunting verses vanished—who knows where?
Bear this in mind, observe it to the end,
And you shall make the editor your friend.

THE New York Methodist, in an article on the troubles in Louisiana, treats the subject with truth and fairness. In the extract which we append, our long-suffering people are condemned as insurrectionists. Bating this, we can heartily indorse nearly the entire article, and especially the following concluding paragraphs:

It appears certain that the Kellogg ticket was not lawfully elected. It is also true that the United States court, by virtue of whose decision he was installed in office, had no jurisdiction in the case. The majority of the people of Louisiana have steadily refused to acknowledge Kellogg's government in any way; they have allowed their property to be sold for taxes rather than pay them to it. They have yielded under compulsion of Federal force, steadily protesting that it was to the authority of the United States and not to their rejected Governor that they submitted. Under the complicated circumstances of the case the ultimate decision is acknowledged on all sides to rest with Congress. The action of Congress, whatever it should be, would be accepted as conclusive, and would bring immediate and lasting peace.

The key to the attitude of Congress is found in the report of the Senate committee. Its declaration would have to be in favor of McEnery. McEnery is a Democrat. It has permitted affairs to drift rather than offend its partisan instincts. Rather than take the responsibility of deciding for justice against the party, or for the party against justice—for either way of settlement would have been accepted—it has permitted the people of a whole State to remain in avoidable discontent, and finally to plunge themselves into revolution. The insurrectionists are justly condemned for their resort to force, for having undertaken a reckless conflict, and having endangered the peace of the country by measures wholly unjustifiable. What judgment do those deserve whose duty it was to secure the peace, but who, through timidity and inability to act upon fair motives, have willfully neglected to do it?

This case of Louisiana, though the worst, is not the only instance in which reconstruction has nearly failed by the prevalence of partisan spirit over patriotism in the body whose duty it is to see it perfected. Most of the Southern States are troubled with conflicts arising out of frauds in elections and corruptions in office. Attempts to settle them at home are defeated by political machinations in which the authors of the wrongs prevail. Complaints made at Washington are met by the refusal or neglect of Congress to adopt measures that will embarrass workers for the party; and so disorders go on and increase. Reconstruction can never be accomplished in this way. The peace of the Union, the good of the Southern people, the predominance of law, order and honesty are the objects to be sought, not the ascendancy of any set of political managers. Whatever stands in the way of justice and right must yield, whoever is hurt, else we shall never have peace.

A CANDID STATEMENT.—The Methodist Recorder, Pittsburg, whose able and candid editor has been in the South, says: "The late Southern news is ominous of trouble between the races. In several places violent conflict has already occurred, and the future portends peril. It is to be hoped that Christian counsels may prevail, instead of political partisanship, and that the threatened war of races may be averted. The impetuous adventurers in the South who, unacquainted with the situation, and calling only for their own personal gain, are agitating the people to riot and bloodshed, are deserving of arrest and punishment. The trouble comes of political maneuvering. If wise and patient advices prevailed there would be permanent peace. The negroes are not quarrelsome, and the native Southerners are proverbially kind toward them. Their interests are mutual, and the times will be easy enough to all who accept the situation in good faith. But the rascally speculators and would-be managers from the North are doing the mischief."

OH, what a blessing is Sunday, interposed between the waves of worldly business like the divine path of the Israelites through Jordan! There is nothing in which I would advise you to be more strictly conscientious than in keeping the Sabbath holy. I can truly declare that to me the Sabbath has been invaluable.—Wilberforce.

Good Times in Vicksburg.

Rev. J. Bancroft, pastor of the principal church in Vicksburg, Mississippi, sends us the programme of the exercises of the Missionary Society of his Sunday schools, and writes as follows of the state of his own and other charges:

VICKSBURG, MISS., Sept. 21, 1874.

MR. EDITOR: It rejoices me to tell your readers that we are having a time of refreshing in Vicksburg. We observed the week of prayer by holding morning and evening services. At the end of the appointed week we found such a religious interest that we were prompted to protract the meeting through another week and then on through the third week, the fourth week.

The result thus far is thirteen conversions, and a large proportion of the membership quickened and refreshed. Most of the conversions are among the young men of our congregation and Sabbath school. All of them have made application for membership in our church.

We meet to-night to organize a young men's weekly meeting, and are laboring for the extension of the work.

Quite a number of my brethren in these parts have written urgent letters to me, asking for help at their protracted meetings. You will please permit me to say to them all that I have found the field here so vast and so difficult that I could not answer to their kind and earnest calls. But the Lord of hosts has been with many of the preachers in these regions, and my heart leaps with joy when I think of the glorious success of the Brookhaven district camp meeting. O for a revival flame in all the Conferences! Then shall the "walls of Zion be built up, even in troublous times."

J. BANCROFT.

A WORD ABOUT OBITUARIES.—We sometimes receive lengthy obituaries of infants. Our rule in such cases is to insert only a brief notice of name and dates, and rarely nothing more. Sometimes obituaries of youths and adults are largely interspersed with poetry from the hymn-book and other sources. The poetry is usually expunged. We frequently take the liberty of condensing and shortening in other respects, but never intentionally omitting anything material. We are obliged to abbreviate often in order to keep up with the publication of this class of contributions. The death of saints is "precious in the sight of the Lord," and we value highly the records of holy living and happy dying which are sent for publication. Our space, and the general taste of our readers, however, demand brevity, except in rare instances where age and great usefulness seem to justify an extended sketch.

BISHOP ISAAC LANE, of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America, gave us a call last week. He is on his way to Texas, for the purpose of organizing and supervising the work in that State. The Bishop reports the condition of his church as prosperous and highly encouraging. Our brethren in Texas and Louisiana will, of course, give him their aid and counsels in the work. He purposed spending Sunday last at Houma, Louisiana.

THE Rev. Dr. Thomas Sargent was present at the General Conference of the United Wesleyan Methodist Church of Canada, recently in session at Toronto. We are indebted to the doctor for copies of the Daily Recorder, and are glad to know that he is in comfortable health and fine spirits.

DEATH OF AN AGED CHRISTIAN LADY.—Mr. Editor: Mrs. Ann Eliza Boone, wife of William Boone, deceased, and a sister to Dr. Lovick Pierce, of the Georgia Conference, died on the fourteenth instant, in this county. Mrs. Boone was in her seventy-seventh year, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for forty-eight years. Her obituary will be sent soon.

Yours truly,

JAMES R. FREENY.

CARTHAGE, LEAKE CO., MISS., Sept. 22, 1874.

THERE is more force than we are wont to suppose in the saying of our Savior: "Except ye become as little children ye cannot enter the kingdom of God." Childhood and youth are the periods for the easy reception of all truth, religious as well as secular. Whoever has undertaken to teach an adult the rudiments of education has experienced difficulties similar, though inferior, to those which the preacher of righteousness encounters in teaching men. It is not impossible for a man, who has passed his second or third decade, to learn his letters and make something of a scholar, but it is a herculean task compared with the effort which a child makes to attain the same end.

NO MAN is so happy as a real Christian; none so rational, so virtuous, so amiable. How little vanity does he feel, though he believes himself united to God! How far is he from abjectedness when he ranks himself with the worms of the earth?—Pascal.

EVERY parent is like a looking-glass for his children to dress themselves by. Therefore parents should take care to keep the glass bright and clear, and not dull and spotted, as their good example is a rich inheritance for the rising generation.

BISHOP WIGHTMAN has changed the time of holding the North Georgia Conference from November 25 to December 2.

Conference Items.

We quote from the St. Louis Christian Advocate concerning the Western and Missouri Conferences:

WESTERN CONFERENCE.

The fifth session of the Western Annual Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, convened in Wyandotte, Kansas, September 9–14, 1874, Bishop Keener presiding.

Twenty-three clerical and six lay members present. Three admitted on trial, two continued; one admitted into full connection; one received by transfer; one traveling and one local preacher ordained deacons; two traveling preachers ordained elders.

Number of local preachers and members, 2,588; infants baptized, 63; adults baptized, 152; number of Sunday schools, 36; number of Sunday school teachers, 225; number of Sunday school scholars, 1,644.

The usual committees were appointed, and did their work promptly and well.

The regular minute business was transacted harmoniously.

The proposed change in the General Rules was lost by 6 yeas to 23 nays.

At the close of the morning session of the fourteenth instant the Bishop announced the appointments.

MISSOURI CONFERENCE.

The Missouri Conference commenced its fifty-eighth session in the lecture-room of the St. Francis Street church, St. Joseph, Missouri, on the sixteenth instant, Bishop Keener presiding; Bishop E. M. Marvin also present. Seventy-two clerical and fifty-two lay members of the Conference were present at the first roll-call. Since many others have come in.

Examination of Character.—The characters of most of the preachers have been examined and passed. This work will be completed on Monday.

Bishop Keener pursues a course in the examination of character which is new to us, but for which we confess an admiration. He requires each preacher, when his name is called in the examination of character, to have two copies of his statistical report ready. One is handed to the statistical secretary, and from the other he reads his statistical report, which the Bishop compares with the report of last year, and comments as he deems it proper. Thus all the items in the report made to the statistical secretary are brought prominently before the Conference, and the characters of the circuits and stations are examined, as well as those of the preachers. Such a course, I think, will have a stimulating effect on the preachers in the future, and it has decidedly aided the statistical secretary in completing his work at an early period in the session, without the vexatious delays on the part of some of which he has had heretofore to complain.

The Beverage Amendment.—The amendment to the General Rules concerning the making, selling and drinking of intoxicating liquors, recommended by the General Conference, and referred to the Annual Conferences for approval, was voted on this morning without discussion. The vote stood, for the amendment 23, against it 65, on the part of the ministers; 4 for and 13 against on the part of the lay delegates. Total for, 27; against, 85.

Wyandotte Church.—Bishop Keener presented the claims of an embarrassed church at Wyandotte, Kansas, where the Western Conference held its late session. Four hundred and eighty dollars were subscribed for its relief, mostly by preachers, in expectation of obtaining it from their congregations. I will refer to this matter again when I have more time than now.

Dr. Redford, writing to the Nashville Christian Advocate, September 22, from Mount Sterling, gives some account of the Kentucky Conference:

The Conference had been in session for two days when I entered the room, and the business was progressing finely. Bishop Wightman was presiding, as he always does, like a man born to occupy the high position to which he has been elevated, and which he so usefully and so ably fills. Bishop Kavanaugh, "the old man eloquent," was sitting by his side, taking such part in the proceedings as he deemed proper.

Among the important and interesting incidents of the Conference we mark the return of Rev. B. H. McCown, D. D., to the Methodist Church. Nearly thirty years ago, after twenty years of labor and toil in the Kentucky Conference, he retired from the Methodist Church and entered the Presbyterian, in which he had been brought up. In leaving the Methodist Church, and entering another communion, he carried with him the best wishes of his brethren, as well as their earnest prayers for his continued usefulness and success. Not satisfied with the step he had taken, for several years he has contemplated returning to the communion in which he had spent his youth and early manhood, to live, to labor and to die. With nothing but feelings of kindness for the Presbyterian Church, where he is much beloved, on last Saturday he offered himself to the Kentucky Conference, and was accepted by the unanimous vote of his brethren. He is now in life's sere and yellow leaf. May he long be preserved to the church and to his family.

The Sabbath services were delightful. I had not the pleasure of hearing Bishop Wightman, but learn from many who heard him that he proved himself a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. The grand truths he delivered, and the earnest manner in which he enforced them, will always be remembered by the vast assembly that hung in breathless silence on his lips; while his address before the Conference, on female education, this morning, can never be forgotten by those who heard him.

The Kentucky Conference is composed of a noble band of Christian ministers, devoted to the church, and able defenders of its doctrines and polity.

The Kentucky Wesleyan University was ably represented by President Darby, and the Millersburg Female College by Bro. Gould. Both these institutions have a warm place in the hearts of the Conference and the church, and will be sustained. The good they are accomplishing in giving to those intrusted to their care a thorough, sound Christian education can hardly be estimated.

The Conference voted to-day on the recommendation of the General Conference in reference to a change of the General Rule on temperance. They voted to concur in the recommendation by a large majority. Thus Kentucky leads the van in the noble work of progress. The Conference expects to adjourn to-morrow.

Death of Guizot.

François Pierre Guillaume Guizot, one of the foremost of the French statesmen and authors of the last period, a man of decided religious conviction and a firm Protestant, but of very liberal feelings, died on Sunday last. He had nearly completed his eighty-seventh year, having been born at Nimes, October 4, 1787. His parents were Protestants of Huguenot descent. His father perished on the scaffold during the reign of terror, and his mother then retired to Geneva, for the education of her son, who at that time was in his seventh year. At the age of eighteen he became private tutor in a distinguished family. In 1812 he was married to Mlle. Pauline de Meulan. His first publication, apart from his contributions to periodical literature, was a "Dictionary of French Synonyms" (1809,) which was followed by a treatise on the "State of the Fine Arts in France" (1810,) "Lives of the French Poets of the Age of Louis the Fourteenth" (1813,) and several translations and annotated editions of important historical works. In the year of his marriage he received the appointment of professor of modern history in the Sorbonne. Upon the fall of Napoleon the First he became secretary to the minister of the interior. He left this office on the return of Napoleon from Elba, but after the restoration of the Bourbons was appointed secretary to the minister of justice, M. Barbé-Marbois, and became one of the recognized leaders of the party of constitutional monarchy. His work on "Representative Government and the Present State of France" (1816) was one of the first declarations of the "Doctrinaire" school. After the death of the Duke de Berri Guizot again retired from office and devoted himself entirely to literary pursuits. His principal works at this period were: "Conspiracies and Political Justice" (1821,) "Means of Government in the Present State of France" (1821,) "History of Representative Government" (lecture delivered at the Sorbonne, 1822,) "Capital Punishment for Political Offenses" (1822,) and various historical essays and memoirs.

In 1827 Guizot had the misfortune to lose his wife, who had been educated as a Catholic, but became a Protestant on her death-bed. She was the author of numerous valuable works of fiction, and of essays on education and the family. The following year he married a niece of Madame Guizot, who died about five years after the marriage. In 1828 Guizot was restored to his professorship in the Sorbonne, and, in conjunction with Cousin and Villemain, delivered the brilliant courses of lectures which were subsequently published, forming the "Course of Modern History" (1828-30,) "History of Civilization in Europe" (1815,) and "History of Civilization in France" (1815.)

Upon the revolution of 1830 Guizot drew up the protest of the deputies who still adhered to the King and his dynasty. In connection with Thiers and De Broglie he formed the cabinet of 1832, under the presidency of Soult. Upon the dissolution of this cabinet in 1836, after a few months passed in retirement, he took office in the Mail ministry, but soon became dissatisfied with the plans of his colleagues, and went over in disgust to the opposition.

In 1840 Guizot took the place of M. Sebastian as minister to England. His character was admirably suited to the English taste. His Protestant faith, his reputation as a writer, his grave manners and his social reserve gave him great personal influence, but his policy as a diplomatist was severely criticised by French statesmen. He was recalled after a few months' service, and succeeded M. Thiers in the ministry of foreign affairs in the last cabinet of Louis Philippe. For more than seven years he vigorously sustained the King in his opposition to democratic reform, until compelled to abandon his post by the breaking out of the revolution in 1848. He then fled to England, and escaped the action of the provisional government.

Besides the works, the titles of which have been already given, Guizot was the author of "The History of the English Republic" (1854) "Memoirs on the History of My Own Time" (1858-63,) "The Church and Christian Society in 1861" (1861,) "Meditations on the Essence of the Christian Religion" (1861,) "Meditations on the Present State of the Christian Religion" (1865,) "History of France for my Grandchildren" (1870 et seq.,) "History of Four Great French Christians" (1873-74,) and many others of scarcely less importance, most of which have been translated into English. Composition with him was not so much a task as a recreation, although every production of his pen was finished with scrupulous care and conscientious exactness.

Of late years Guizot was more prominent for his discourses before the Academy, and other public literary bodies, than for his political writings. Some ten or twelve years ago, at a meeting of a Protestant association in the Oratoire, he declared himself in favor of sustaining the temporal power of the Pope, which called forth severe criticisms from his fellow-Protestants.

One of his last public appearances was in 1867, when he made an earnest address at the opening of the evangelical chapel in the grounds of the great French Exposition in Paris. At that time he bore his testimony in favor of the Christian religion, and of efforts to promote Christian work among the thousands of all tongues then gathered at the World's Exhibition.—New York Observer.

Books and Periodicals.

THE SERVICE OF SONG. A treatise on singing in private devotion, in the family and in the school, and in the worshiping congregation. By Rev. A. G. Stacy, A. M. Second revised edition. A. S. Barnes & Co., New York and Chicago, 1874. Price, $1.50 sent by mail.

We noticed favorably this volume when the first edition appeared. It is a work of merit, and calculated to do great good in awakening interest and in giving an intelligent direction to the subject of singing in our families and churches. The scriptural authority, the general history and literature, and the philosophy of the subject are finely developed and amplified, and the practical questions related to it are discussed in a luminous and satisfactory manner. The book is replete with rare and valuable information, and the matter and style are not dry and prosaic, but sprightly and entertaining throughout. This edition is on tinted paper, handsomely bound, and in clear and large type. The author, Rev. A. G. Stacy, is a prominent minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and a scholar of ripe and varied attainments.

A MEMPHIAN'S TRIP TO EUROPE. By Samuel Watson. Nashville, Tennessee: Southern Methodist Publishing House. Published for the author. 1874.

The volume, besides Mr. Watson's letters, contains letters from several other travelers who were abroad at the same time, but who took different routes and explored different points of interest. Some things may have been missed by the author which other eyes did not see, and his observations and reflections have that freshness which every man's individuality gives to the sights and scenes which pass before him. Beyond this the ground passed over has already been well worn, and there is, of course, nothing not generally known in the matter of information. The personal incidents, adventures and experiences alone have any elements of novelty. The many friends and acquaintances of the author will, we doubt not, be glad to obtain the work. The book is a duodecimo of 352 pages, in the usual plain style of our Publishing House, and adorned with a very good engraved likeness of the author.

MESSIAH. By William M. Willett. Boston: Published by B. B. Russell. Philadelphia: Quaker City Publishing House, 1874.

This is another life of Christ. The title, Messiah, however, seems to have been chosen partly with the view to vindicate the claims of Jesus to be the Messiah of Jewish prophecy and hope. The author takes us through the gospel history, from the incarnation to the ascension. His style is ardent and ornate, and an affectation of fine writing appears in the relation of the most familiar and commonplace sentiments and facts. So far as our examination of the work extends there is nothing new or striking in it. The author contributes nothing in the way of critical research or improved exegesis to the great theme which he has taken in hand. Rather weak and dilute as the style generally is, there are some passages of considerable power and beauty in the descriptive line, and the work has certain popular elements which may prove the means of leading some to the knowledge of Christ.

CROWNED IN PALM-LAND. A story of African missionary life. With illustrations. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co., 1874.

This is a narrative of missionary life on the west coast of Africa, and embraces the personal memoirs of Mrs. Mary C. Nassau, who died while engaged in the work of a missionary in that region. Besides containing the records of a noble life and the portraiture of a heroic woman, the information concerning missionary life and labor in that section of heathenism is of the highest interest. We have received a copy of the work through Kuhn & Co., of New Orleans.

PECK'S COMPLETE ARITHMETIC, THEORETICAL AND PRACTICAL. A. S. Barnes & Co., New York and Chicago, 1874.

The author is the well-known professor in Columbia College, and his name and reputation are a sufficient guarantee for the excellence of the work here announced. Price, ninety cents sent by mail.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE YOUNG OF ALL AGES for September has been received. It is, as usual, filled with fine illustrations, and with articles to amuse, entertain and instruct the young. J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, are the agents for America.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY for October has: The Great South—chiefly about the Mississippi, the labor question and Arkansas. The Literary and Ethical Qualities of George Eliot's Novels, A Royal Hair-Cutting, Two Visits to Oxford, and other articles.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE for October has: The New Hyperion, A Visit to the Dolmulles, The British Peerage, Grouse Shooting in Galloway, Benjamin Constant, and other articles.

PETERS' MUSICAL MONTHLY for October has been received. It is, as usual, filled with new and excellent music.

THE only way for a man to escape being found out is to pass for what he is. The only way to maintain a good character is to deserve it. It is easier to correct our faults than to conceal them.

BOLIVAR was a druggist.

Conference Register.

Conference.	Place.	Time.	Bishop.
Tennessee	Gallatin	Oct. 7	Marvin.
Pacific	Stockton	Oct. 7	Pierce.
Holston	Asheville	Oct. 14	Doggett.
St. Louis	Caledonia	Oct. 14	Keener.
Indian Miss'n	North Fork	Oct. 22	McTyeire.
Arkansas	Fort Smith	Oct. 28	Kavanaugh.
Los Angeles	Carpentoria	Oct. 28	Pierce.
North Texas	Denton	Nov. 4	McTyeire.
N. Alabama	Huntsville	Nov. 11	Doggett.
White River	Searcy	Nov. 11	Kavanaugh.
Virginia	Elizabeth City	Nov. 18	Marvin.
N. W. Texas	Weatherford	Nov. 18	McTyeire.
Memphis	Humboldt	Nov. 18	Paine.
N. Mississippi	Aberdeen	Nov. 25	Doggett.
N. Carolina	Raleigh	Dec. 2	Marvin.
West Texas	Gonzales	Dec. 2	McTyeire.
N. Georgia	Cartersville	Dec. 2	Wightman.
Alabama	Opelika	Dec. 9	Doggett.
East Texas	Marshall	Dec. 9	McTyeire.
South Georgia	Savannah	Dec. 9	Pierce.
Little Rock	Monticello	Dec. 9	Kavanaugh.
Florida	Live Oak	Dec. 16	Wightman.
S. Carolina	Greenville	Dec. 16	Marvin.
Mississippi	Hazlehurst	Dec. 16	Paine.
Texas*	Houston	Dec. 16	Keener.
Louisiana	Alexandria	Jan. 6	Paine.
Baltimore	Washington City	Mar. 3	Marvin.

* German Mission Conference organized at same time and place. Bishop Keener has charge of the mission in Mexico.

Publisher's Department.

Acknowledgments of Letters and Funds

RECEIVED BY MAIL,

For the Week Ending Sept. 26, 1874.

A—A. F. Andre two letters, American News Company, Mrs. C. G. Andrews, T. A. S. Adams, Daniel Appleton & Co., N. W. Ayer & Son, J. O. Andrew.

B—Boorum & Pease, Mrs. Thomas W. Brown, C. Bright 35 cents, A. M. Barrington $4.75, J. Bride & Co. $6, J. H. Beard, J. Harvey Brigham, W. H. Bradley & Son $7, Bubier & Co., M. Es Butt $6.95, J. H. Barbee & Co., Barnes & Wilkinson.

C—S. M. Cherry 50 cents, Cassell & Baughn, Alexander Caldwell, James E. Cobb 50 cents, Baxter Clegg, E. M. Clark, T. Cameron, Cincinnati Industrial Exposition.

D—Joel T. Daves, Dixon Black Lead Crucible Works, Donaldson & Co. two letters, G. M. Danforth, W. D. Dominick, A. F. Driskill, E. G. Duval $5, William Deasno, Charles H. Deltyee 45 cents, H. J. Davis, Charles H. Dixon, S. A. Duke; D. D. Delaughter $2.

E—John T. Eubank, T. C. Evans, W. O. Elder.

F—Fleming Bros., M. H. Franklin & Co., J. H. Ford & Co., C. T. French $9.10, E. N. Freshman two letters, R. A. Freeman, J. L. Foster & Co.

H—S. E. Hale, J. J. Harper, D. T. Heard, G. W. Hartwell, Mrs. M. E. Hayes 50 cents, H. G. Horton, Howard & Co. $12, William Harp.

J—M. E. Johnson, R. T. Jackson, Robert B. Jones.

K—P. D. Kellogg, J. P. Keener two letters, Miss Mary Kay.

L—Lee, Shepard & Dillingham, H. P. Lewis, R. B. Long Jr. $50, A. C. Littlejohn, J. B. Lippincott & Co.

M—John G. Mitchell, P. H. Moss, F. H. Monnger, John H. Morgan, J. O. Mallory, C. K. Marshall, James W. Medlock, J. G. Meader.

P—S. M. Pettengill & Co., G. F. Pervis, Pott, Young & Co., Porter & Coates, M. S. Park two letters, B. J. Pryor, J. S. Pollock, J. M. Patton two letters $18.

R—Reed & Lothrop, Ross & Stuart, A. H. Redford agent, Fisher T. Rawson, E. E. F. Ross, Thos. Richardson $470, Mrs. M. O. Rona dson.

S—W. L. Sibley 80 cents, A. H. Stewart, George S. Schofield, W. R. D. Stockton, J. W. Sandell, B. L. Selman, C. S. Stewart $15, St. Louis Advertising and Publishing Agency.

T—Mrs. Mary D. Tate two letters $5.50, H. W. Trueheart, W. H. Tutt, Taylor & Ewell.

U—J. P. Underwood.

W—Mrs. D. H. Williams, B. F. White $1, Woods & Daniels $90, G. R. Wilson, Thomas Ward White, J. L. Williams $6.

Y—E. M. Yolverton $4.

E. E. F. ROSS, ESQ., connected for several years with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, is now making a tour through the West and North on business connected with the office. He will confer freely with our patrons and agents in the different cities in regard to our mutual interests, and we bespeak for him the courtesies which have been so liberally extended heretofore, and which we have not forgotten.

WE WOULD call special attention to the advertisement, in another column, of Cincho-Quinine. It is claimed for this medicine that it is just as effectual in the cure of fever and ague as sulphate of quinine, besides being much more pleasant to the taste and cheaper. Send for descriptive circular to the proprietors, Messrs. Billings, Clapp & Co., Boston, Massachusetts.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

BECKWITH PORTABLE SEWING MACHINE.—A Hand and Treadle Machine Combined.—The cost is small compared with other standard machines, and it is much simpler and easier to operate while its work is unsurpassed for beauty and strength. The price is $20 without the treadle, $25 with the treadle. Don't fail to send for a circular before buying any other machine. Mr. EDWARD THOMPSON, 99 Baronne street, is the agent for the Southwest. se19 4m

OBSERVATIONS ON NASAL CATARRH. An abstract from a forthcoming work on diseases of the throat and air passages, by A. N. WILLIAMSON, M. D., late Clinical Physician in the University Medical College, New York city. Mailed to any address for 10 cents. Address the author, 28 East Twelfth street, New York.

"DR. WILLIAMSON a great success in the treatment of Catarrhal and throat and lung affections. readers valuable whatever comes from his pen."—Journal of Medical Science. au29 3m

BUY WERLEIN'S PIANOS, such as the Chickering, Dunham, Hale, Pleyel, etc., which are the best in the market. Sold at low prices, and on easy terms, if desired. New Pianos at $350, $375, $400, $450, $500, $550 and $600, at $20 per month. Second hand Pianos at $80, $70, $75, $100, $125, $150, $175, $200, $225 and $250, some at $10 per month; fully warranted with renewed actions. Estey's, Needham's and Woods' Organs at low rates. Have added Blackmar's large stock of Sheet Music. Band Instruments and Strings in great variety. Band Instruments, etc., repaired. PHILIP WERLEIN'S Mammoth Music House, Nos. 78, 80, 82 and 90 Baronne street, New Orleans. de25 1y

PIERSON & HEWS, fine Clothing, Shirts and Furnishing Goods, 13 and 15 Camp street, opposite City Hotel, New Orleans, Louisiana. We invite visitors from the interior to examine our stock and prices. We claim to sell first-class goods as low as can be afforded and live. We sell the celebrated Shneider-Seam Shirts, warranted to fit, wear and give satisfaction. Liberal deduction made to Clergymen, and their trade solicited. mh5 1y

A SURE PREVENTIVE for Yellow Fever, Cholera and Smallpox. Price, $1, prepaid, with full directions. Address DR. B. BROWN, 887 Broadway, New York. se26 6t

$57 60—AGENTS' PROFITS PER WEEK.—Will prove it or forfeit $500. New article just patented. Samples sent free to all. Address W. H. CHICHESTER, 267 Broadway, New York. au27 2m

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Greensboro Female College,
ALABAMA.

EDUCATIONAL NOTICE.

MRS. PROF. STAFFORD, of Tuskaloosa, Alabama, will be connected with the above institution, as Associate Principal, during the ensuing scholastic year, opening October 5. Music and Modern Languages taught by a native professor. The institution is strictly non-denominational.

THOMAS WARD WHITE, President.
oct 1

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

FEVER AND AGUE CURED BY

CINCHO-QUININE!

which combines all the alkaloids of the Cinchona Barks, and is as effectual a remedy as the Sulphate of Quinine, while it is much cheaper and more palatable.

☞ Send for descriptive circular, with formula for using the CINCHO QUININE, and Testimonials from physicians all over the country. Prepared by

Billings, Clapp & Co., Chemists,
Successors to Jas. R. Nichols & Co.,
oct 6m BOSTON, MASS.

AGENTS WANTED.

$300 PER MONTH (will prove it or forfeit $1,000) to sell BLAKE'S SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINE. Price only $20. The best and cheapest Lock-Stitch Machine in the United States or Canadas.

A FEW GOOD REASONS.

1. A new invention, thoroughly tested.
2. It makes the Lock-Stitch alike on both sides, and cannot be raveled.
3. Runs for years without repairs.
4. Construction most careful and finished. It is manufactured by the most skilful Machinists.

For circulars and terms address
S. BURKE, SON & CO.,
oct 3m 169 Warren St., Jersey City, N. J.

SHINGLES.

400,000 FIRST-CLASS

CYPRESS

SHINGLES,

ALL HEART.

Great Economy in Labor,

ABSOLUTE SECURITY FROM LEAKING,

AND NO WASTE

IN USING THESE SHINGLES.

ROOF SMOOTH AS SLATE.

ADDRESS

LOUISIANA SHINGLE COMPANY,

Box 814, New Orleans, La.
se21 3t

Perkins' Anthem Book.

PRICE, $1.50. $13.50 PER DOZEN.

A NEW and excellent collection, by W. O. PERKINS. Will be warmly welcomed by Choirs, as the Anthems are not difficult, and are just what is needed for "Opening" and "Voluntary" pieces.

THE SONG MONARCH.

Price, 75 Cts. Per Dozen, $7.50.

The best book of the season for Singing Schools. By G. E. PACKARD, assisted by L. O. EMERSON. Music principally secular, and is of the most interesting character.

THE LEADER.

Price, $1.38. $12 Per Dozen.

The new Church Music Book, by H. R. PALMER, assisted by L. O. EMERSON, gentlemen whose previous books have been more successful than any others. Please examine.

American School Music Readers.

IN THREE BOOKS.

Price, 35 Cts., 50 Cts. and 60 Cts.

Perfectly adapted to graded classes in Primary and Grammar Schools. By L. O. EMERSON and W. S. TILDEN. Already in successful use in the schools.

☞ Sold by all dealers. Either book sent, postpaid, for retail price.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
711 Broadway, New York.
OLIVER DITSON & CO.,
Boston.
jn18 3y

EXCELSIOR PLOWS,

CAST AND HARDENED STEEL.

Adapted to Every Variety of Soils.

COTTON SCRAPERS AND SWEEPS,

DOUBLE SHOVELS, ETC.

ALL WARRANTED.

MANUFACTURED BY

Louisville Agricultural Works,

LOUISVILLE, KY.

☞ Send for catalogue. se3 2m

EXCELSIOR

CHURCH. SABBATH-SCHOOL.

FURNITURE.

EXCELSIOR FOLDING-SEAT CUSHIONED-BACK PEW is an easy sitting seat. It excels any thing yet offered to the public, in comfort, family convenience, cleanliness, health, lightness, and economy. ALL STYLES PEWS MADE TO ORDER. The best reversible SABBATH-SCHOOL SETTEES; also, Pulpits, Chairs, Sofas, Book-racks, and Bells. The EXCELSIOR SCHOOL FURNITURE the universal favorite, used by Schools of Philadelphia, Jersey City, Boston, Cincinnati, New Orleans, St. Louis, Memphis, Kansas City, Cleveland, and in most of the United States. BLACKBOARDS, for Sabbath and Day Schools, Globes, Maps, Charts and all Apparatus used in schools. SEND FOR PRICE-LIST

EXCELSIOR SCHOOL FURNITURE MFG. CO.

Cincinnati,	121 Walnut St.	Philadelphia,	1701 Arch St.
St. Louis,	701 Chestnut St.	Omaha,	Creighton Block.
New Orleans,	166 Julia St.	Atlanta,	112 Whitehall St.

ja16 3m6w

HENRY ERBEN & CO.,

ORGAN MANUFACTURERS,

235, 237 and 239 East Twenty-Third St.,

Bet. Second and Third Aves., NEW YORK.

There are seventeen Organs in this city of our make, among them the largest. se27 1y6w

EDWARD SEAHS'

WOOD ENGRAVING

ESTABLISHMENT,

Designing, Photographing and Engraving,

NO. 48 BEEKMAN ST., NEW YORK,

Velvet Labels and Show Card Printing a specialty. se20 3m6w

WANTED!—WANTED!—WANTED! AGENTS IN EVERY SECTION TO SELL MY FINE STEEL ENGRAVINGS AND CHEAP PRINTS. 64-PAGE PAMPHLET, WITH TERMS AND PARTICULARS, SENT BY MAIL FOR 10 CENTS. GEO. E. PERINE, ENGRAVER, 66 READE ST., NEW YORK. se21 3m

BUILDERS! Send for Catalogue of New Books on CARPENTRY AND BUILDING. A. J. BICKNELL & CO., 27 Warren street, New York. au15 3m

GARDEN AND FLOWER SEEDS.—Every description. Bulbs, New and Rare Plants and all Garden Requisites. Catalogues free. HOVEY & CO., 53 N. Market St., Boston, Mass. se21 3m

WANTED.—500 persons to send for pamphlet (free) explaining how enormous profits are made in Stock Privileges, costing $1 per share. RUMBLE & CO., 52 Broadway, New York. P. O. Box 4905. se21 3m

300 PER CENT. MADE by RUBBER Stamp Agents. $1 samples and catalogues, postpaid, 35 cents. INGERSOLL & CO., 265 Broadway, New York. se21 3m

MONEY made rapidly with Stencil and Key-Check Outfits. Catalogues, samples and full particulars FREE. S. M. SPENCER, 117 Hanover street, Boston. au27 1y

$5 to $20 per day at home. Terms free. Address GEORGE STINSON & CO. Portland, Maine. se4 1y

MEDICAL.

DR. TUTT'S VEGETABLE LIVER PILLS.

THE BEST ADVICE THAT CAN BE given to persons suffering from

DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUS COMPLAINTS!

CONSTIPATION, COLIC, SICK HEADACHE,

Fever and Ague, Nervous Debility,

or if any disorder of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, is to take, cleanse and regulate them by the use of

Dr. Tutt's Vegetable Liver Pills.

They act very mildly, yet thoroughly restore the functional action of the Digestive Organs and the intestines, and renovate the whole system, imparting a good appetite and healthy assimilation of food. They produce neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility, and may be taken at any time, without change of diet nor occupation.

Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Dr. Tutt's Hair Dye

possesses qualities that no other dye does. Its effect is instantaneous, and is so natural that it cannot be detected by the closest observer. Being harmless and easily applied, it is in general use among the fashionable Hair-Dressers in every large city in the United States. Price, $1 a box. Sold everywhere.

Laboratory—Nos. 43 and 50 Cortlandt street, New York. oct2 1y6t

CANCER.

IT IS WELL KNOWN that the whole medical faculty of all schools of medicine have pronounced Cancers incurable. What sublime effrontery in any person to stand up boldly in the face of all this authority and claim to be able to cure Cancer. To put forth such a claim in the teeth of the medical profession, in the city of Philadelphia, with its world-renowned scientific professors and medical colleges, would be, unless it be substantiated in the most unquestionable manner, a height of impudence rarely attained by mortal man. Dr. Thorpe boldly claims that he can cure, has cured, does cure, and will cure Cancer, as well and, further, that he cures every case taken by him. He does this by a system which no other physician in the world practices. His method of treatment invigorates the body, stirs up the dormant energies of nature, purifies and cleanses the system, and imparts tone and health to all the organs of the body. His method is the most potent ever discovered, and that it is what it is claimed to be will be established to the entire satisfaction of any one who will investigate. Address

THORPEAN INSTITUTE,
se21 3t No. 3208 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. Trade Mark. Patented.

THE Great Preserver of Health.—TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT can always be relied upon as a pleasant, mild, speedy and positive cure in all cases of Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Flatulency, Fullness of Blood, and all Inflammatory Complaints where a gentle, cooling cathartic is required. So says the chemist, so says the physician, so says the great American public of the nineteenth century. Heed ye, then, and be not without a bottle in the house, as fore life is imperiled, deal judiciously with the symptoms. Remember that the slight internal disorder of to-day may become an obstinate, incurable disease to-morrow. Sold by all druggists. se24 2t

METALLIC

ELECTRIC SHIELDS.

Fully Indorsed by the Entire Medical Profession.

HAVE CURED THOUSANDS OF

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA,

AND ALL NERVOUS DISEASES.

☞ Simply applied and worn on the parts affected. For Lame Back, Local Pain, Local Palsy, Weakness, Poor Circulation, Varicose Veins and Affections of the Eyes it is a scientific cure. Sold by all Druggists, or General Agent,

GEORGE SWEETSER,
120 Wall St., New York.

Sent by Mail or Express, C. O. D. Price, $5 per pair. au26 3m

TO THE SUFFERERS WITH RHEUMATISM.

In view of the numberless sufferers afflicted with this painful malady, I feel induced to offer to the public my "ANTI-RHEUMATIC MIXTURE," which medicine proves to be the only successful remedy to this line, for it always gives instant relief, and in most cases cures permanently.

During the last fifteen years I have cured thousands of people, in this State and city, of this dreadful disease, with this medicine; and, what astonishes most, the patient recovered by the use of a single bottle of it. This medicine cures nothing but Rheumatism, and should the patient not recover by using the first bottle of it, that patient is not affected with Rheumatism at all. This being the first time of making my discovery known to the public after fifteen years of most successful results, I hope the sufferers will take advantage of this rare remedy, and by doing so add their names to the thousands already cured by it.

For sale by W. J. TURGELEWICZ, Apothecary and Druggist, corner Magazine and Thalia streets, New Orleans, La. au30 6m

VALLEY

GEM PIANO.

This Piano is thoroughly and carefully made by experienced manufacturers, and is a good, reliable instrument in every particular. In durability in one of its important points of superiority, and, besides its other fine qualities, the low price will especially recommend it to public favor.

Send for Illustrated Catalogue, containing choice music, to

D. H. BALDWIN & CO.,
158 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.
jy23 3m

ESTABLISHED 33 YEARS.

HENRY E. SHARP & SON,

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS,

FOR CHURCHES.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS A SPECIALTY.

147 and 149 East Twenty-Second Street,

NEW YORK. au20 3m

AWARDED THE HIGHEST MEDAL AT VIENNA.

E. & H. T. ANTHONY & CO.,

591 Broadway, New York,

Opp. Metropolitan Hotel,

MANUFACTURERS, IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

CHROMOS AND FRAMES,

Stereoscopes and Views, Albums, Graphoscopes, Megalethoscopes and Table Views, Photographic Materials, Photo Enamels and Mattes a specialty. se24 3m

READ THIS TWICE!

THE PEOPLE'S LEDGER contains NO continued stories. Eight large pages (48 columns) of choice miscellaneous reading matter every week. ☞ I will send the People's Ledger on trial every week for three months on receipt of only 25 cents. HERMAN K. CURTIS, No. 12 School street, Boston, Mass. se21 3m

$1,000 a Year for Ladies.

PEERLESS PAPER PATTERNS.—Always get the best. $1,000 a year for Ladies. 300 Branches. Goods consigned. Business pleasant and respectable. No canvassing. Sample reliable everywhere for $1, and full particulars on receipt of 25 cents. Agents wanted everywhere. AVERY & CO., se21 3m 119 Chambers street, New York.

How I Made $70

the first week and am now averaging $36 in a safe business. Any man or woman can do the same. ☞ The secret free. Write at once to NOWAN & CO., au27 1y Eighth St., New York.

LEGS AND ARMS.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Pamphlet free. CHARLES M. EVANS, manufacturer, (and 1y)
78 Fourth street..... LOUISVILLE, KY.
152 West Fourth street..... CINCINNATI, O.

The Child's Corner.

WHISTLE AND HOE.

There's a boy just over the garden fence
Who is whistling all through the livelong day;
And his work is not just a mere pretense,
For you see the weeds he has cut away.
Whistle and hoe,
Sing as you go,
Shorten the row
By the songs you know.

Not a word of bemoaning his task I hear;
He has scarcely time for a growl, I know;
For his whistle sounds so merry and clear,
He must find some pleasure in every row.
Whistle and hoe,
Sing as you go,
Shorten the row
By the songs you know.

But then while you whistle be sure that you hoe,
For if you are idle the briars will spread;
And whistle alone to the end of the row
May do for the weeds, but is bad for the bread.
Whistle and hoe,
Sing as you go,
Shorten the row
By the songs you know.
Rural New Yorker.

TEARS.

Is it rainy, little flower?
Be glad of rain.
Too much sun would wither thee;
'Twill shine again.
The clouds are very black, 'tis true,
But just behind them shines the blue.

The Terrible Playfellow.

One day there came into a country town, in the south of Germany, a man leading a big dancing bear. He was very tired and hungry, so he went to one of the inns in the town, and, having tied up the bear, sat down in the tap-room to eat his dinner.

While he sat there three little children were playing merrily in one of the up-stairs rooms. They were quite alone, and very noisy, until one of them heard a curious noise on the stairs, to which they all began to listen. Tramp, tramp, tramp! clank, clank, clank! What a heavy foot! Who can it be?

Suddenly the door flew open, and in came the bear—the great shaggy bear, with its clanking chain! In a terrible fright at this unexpected visit, each of the poor little children ran into a corner to hide. But the bear found them all out, and put his cold nose quite close to them, for he was not muzzled now, snuffing at them, but did them no harm. Poor, harmless old beast! he was very altered since the days when he hid in the forest, or climbed the great trees to steal honey left there by wild bees.

"He must be a big dog," thought the eldest boy, and so he began to pat and stroke him.

Then the bear stretched himself out at full length on the floor, and all the little ones came up to him and began to play with him too, like a big puppy. The youngest sat down and nestled his curly head in the black fur, and the eldest boy began to thump away with all his might upon a little drum he had. Suddenly the bear stood up upon his hind legs and began to dance. Then what a cry of delight came from the children! You should have heard it. What glorious fun!

Each of the little boys had a toy musket with which they had been playing soldiers, and they gave one of these to the bear, and, to their intense delight, he held it tight and firm, and shouldered it just like a soldier.

So the drum was banged and they all began to march, the room shaking again with the bear's heavy feet—thump, thump, thump! bang, bang! left, right, left, right! march away!

In the midst of this noise and tramping the door suddenly opened, and there stood the poor mother. You should have seen her. Her face was white; she could not speak for fear.

But the children set up a cry of joy: "Oh, look, look, mamma! we are all playing at soldiers with this fine playfellow!"

While this was going on the poor man went into the yard to get his bear, and, finding he had broken loose, came up stairs to look for him; and so the children lost their shaggy playfellow, although I believe their mother was not at all sorry to see him taken away.—Children's Hour.

That Boy.

BY W. ALFRED GAY.

There he is again—rip, tear, slam bang! What a jumbled, tumbled, mussed up mess of humanity is That Boy. Hear the cat! That Boy is pulling its whiskers. What a cackling! That Boy is teaching the chickens to swim. Here he is! No, there he is! No, that's him scudding along under full sail after the dog.

What a boy. Everybody says he will amount to nothing in this nor in any other world.

Who placed a pin on the teacher's chair? That Boy. Who drew a map of the pond, ducks and all, on the blackboard? That Boy. Who filled the sugar-bowl with salt, hung his sister's best hat on the tallest tree, and then sat demurely in the corner with book upside down, foot on the cat's tail, and grandmother's specs above his nose? You might know that it was That Boy.

"I can't do anything with him," says mother. "A useless concomitant of humanity," says teacher. "A lad whose baneful influence is being felt in a pernicious manner by all his associates," says pastor.

But wait. Who brings the first of everything good to his mother? Who is always on hand when the schoolmaster asks a favor? Who tumbles heels over head that he may obtain a geological specimen for the minister? Oh, it is That Boy; is it? Well, then, just look down into his heart and you will find it different from what you imagined. His soul is full, and it bubbles up and over every time he moves.

Mischievous actions, lively pranks and sharp sayings are only the gateways through which escape the superfluous floods of his nature. The trouble is that his body is too small for his big soul.

Let him laugh and frolic and play. Yes, help him to do all this, and more too. Remember that our moral and intellectual giants were once just such boys helped along by love. Also bear in mind that pressure upon and abuse to such natures will make them fiends in human form.

Take them by the hand, and you can lead them up to the loftiest pinnacles of thought and action. Drive them, and they become the devil's strongest allies.

If you have one of those frolicsome lads in your home, school or neighborhood, take care of and watch over him, and the time will come when you will be proud of That Boy.

Wanting to Confess.

Not many years ago, as a lady was sitting in the veranda of her Burmese house, a jungle boy came bounding through the opening in the hedge, which served as a gateway, and, approaching her, inquired with eagerness:

"Does Jesus Christ live here?"

He was a boy about twelve years of age, his hair matted with filth, and bristling in every direction like the quills of a porcupine, and a dirty cloth of plaided cotton disposed in a most slovenly manner about his person. "Does Jesus Christ live here?" he asked, as he hastened up the steps of the veranda and crouched at the lady's feet.

"What do you want with Jesus Christ?" she asked.

"I want to see him; I want to confess to him."

"Why, what have you been doing that you want to confess?"

"Does he live here?" he continued with great emphasis. "I want to know that. Doing? Why, I tell lies, I steal, I do everything bad. I am afraid of going to hell, and I want to see Jesus Christ, for I heard one of the Loogyees say that he can save us from hell. Does he live here? O tell me where I can find Jesus Christ!"

"But he does not save people from hell if they continue to do wickedly."

"I want to stop doing wickedly," said the boy, "but I can't stop. The evil thoughts are in me, and the bad deeds come of evil thoughts. What can I do?"

"Nothing but come to Christ, poor boy, like the rest of us," the lady softly murmured; but she spoke this last in English; so the boy only raised his head with a vacant "Ha-ha-ha!"

"You cannot see Jesus Christ now," she added, and was answered by a sharp, quick cry of despair. "But I am his humble friend and follower," said the lady, at which the face of the little listener brightened, and she continued: "He has commissioned me to teach all those who wish to escape from hell how to do so."

The joyous eagerness depicted in the boy's countenance was beyond description. "Tell me, O tell me! Only ask your Master, the Lord Jesus Christ, to save me, and I will be your servant for life! I want to be saved! Save me from hell!"

The next day this little boy was introduced to her little bamboo schoolhouse in the character of the wild Karen boy; and such a greedy seeker after truth and holiness had been seldom seen. Every day he came to the white teachers to learn something more concerning the Lord Jesus, and the way of salvation, and every day his feelings enlarged, and his face gradually lost its look of indescribable stupidity. He was at length baptized, and commemorated the love of that Savior he had so earnestly sought. He lived awhile to testify his sincerity, and died in joyful hope. He had "confessed," and had found a deliverer from those sins from which he could not free himself. The lady died also, and she and the wild Karen boy have met in the presence of their common Redeemer.—Moravian.

QUEER FRIENDS.—Toby was a big ox. He had grown too old to work; so he used to stay all the time in the barn-yard, and had a stall under a shed in the warm corner.

Peep was a poor little motherless chicken, with not enough feathers on to keep the cold off. He had to hunt up his own victuals, for nobody thought of feeding him; so he used to peck meal in Toby's feed-box, and Toby never refused to let him.

Sometimes Peep sat on Toby's horn; and when it grew colder he roosted on Toby's broad, warm back. When Toby got sleepy in the daytime he would low for Peep to come and sit on his horn while he took a nap.

By and by a little brown pig, seeing how happy Toby and Peep were together, left all his kinsfolk, and went to live in the shed with them. Piggy slept in the straw close by Toby's side; and the good old ox would low, whenever he was fed, till Peep and Piggy came to eat with him.

At last the butcher came and took Toby away; and poor Peep and Piggy were left to mourn for their dear old friend. But they loved each other all the better, and slept side by side in the straw.

Whenever you saw one, you were sure to see the other. If Peep found anything to eat, he was sure to divide it with Piggy; and, though both were homely fellows, it was a pretty sight to see them together.—The Nursery.

"BRIGHTING ALL IT CAN."—The day had been dark and gloomy, when suddenly, toward night, the clouds broke, and the sun's rays streamed through, shedding a flood of golden light upon the whole country.

A sweet voice at the window cried out in joyful tones: "Look! Oh, look, papa! the sun's brighting all it can."

"Brighting all it can? so it is," answered papa; "and you can be like the sun if you choose."

"How, papa? tell me how?"

"By looking happy, and smiling on us all day, and never letting any tearful rain come into the blue of those eyes; only be happy and good; that is all."

THE remark of a little eight-year old was in accordance with the wish of many people: "Mother," he said, "I wish I was built, like a hen coop, out of laths; and then the breeze could blow right through me."

Farm, Garden and Household.

Setting Trees in the Fall.

We are frequently asked if it be best to plant trees in the autumn. We do not mean to say that it is the best season of the year for this work; certainly not for all kinds of trees; but we do say that it is a good season of the year to plant deciduous trees on certain soils. By long experience we have found that evergreen trees cannot be set in the fall to good advantage, certainly not set late in the fall. Some experienced planters say that August is the best season of the year to set evergreens. We never recommend the setting of stone fruit-trees in the fall. We should not advise the planting of shrubs or any trees that are not perfectly hardy, but we do advise the setting of such trees as the pear and apple, of maple, ash, elm and other hardy trees, on all soils that are dry, and where water does not stand, and the soil does not "heave" badly.

In fall setting we always, after planting the tree, heap up the loam about the tree to form a sort of protection, and to steady it through the winter. If we have large trees to move, we always do the work in the fall, and we have had very good success. There is another advantage in planting in the fall, and it is not a small thing either. The first come are first served, and those who buy trees in autumn are quite sure to get the best. Again, it is a better season of the year to ship them; they do not dry up and suffer as they do if shipped late in the spring. Again, there is less hurry in the fall, and the work can be done better without loss or injury in other directions. The work should be done well, at whatever season of the year it is attempted. It is little use to purchase trees, however good they may be, and set them out, unless they are to be well cared for year by year thereafter.

CONCERNING POULTRY.—Poultry-breeding has now come to be regarded as important a branch of farm industry as the raising of swine and sheep. In one sense it is of more importance, in that it is not every farmer who can keep sheep or swine with advantage, but every one who owns or rents a plot of land, if only the size of a city lot, can keep a few head of poultry with both pleasure and profit. When taken into consideration the vast number of eggs annually consumed in the United States—the city of New York alone using, during the year 1872, upward of three hundred and forty millions, costing at wholesale about $6,202,000—and when we note the immense number of tons of poultry sold in all the large cities of the Union, we cannot call the poultry interest one of minor importance. Yet it is but a few years since that the name of poultry-breeder seemed to convey an idea of insignificance. Now, however, the proprietors of large stock farms have their flocks of pure-bred fowls, which get their share of attention and study, as well as the horned cattle and horses; and the net income from a well-managed poultry-yard is no small addition to the farm receipts.—The Poultry Record.

JAPANESE FLORAL NEWS.—Mr. Thomas Hogg, who has again returned to Japan, writes to us: "While in Yeddo I took the opportunity of visiting the new experimental farm and nursery establishment, which is in some way, I believe, under the general charge of Mr. Capron. The nursery establishment is under the superintendence of Mr. Burmer. In connection with the nursery he has two greenhouses filled with a variety of plants, mostly foreign. The whole establishment was in excellent keeping, and when the season is further advanced will be quite attractive. Fuchsias and scarlet geraniums, the increase of those you formerly sent me, have become quite common. Roses derived from those imported from California by different gentlemen have also become abundant. In fact there is a notable increase in plants of different species since I left. The Early Rose potatoes do finely, and come in away ahead of the Japanese variety." American Gardener.

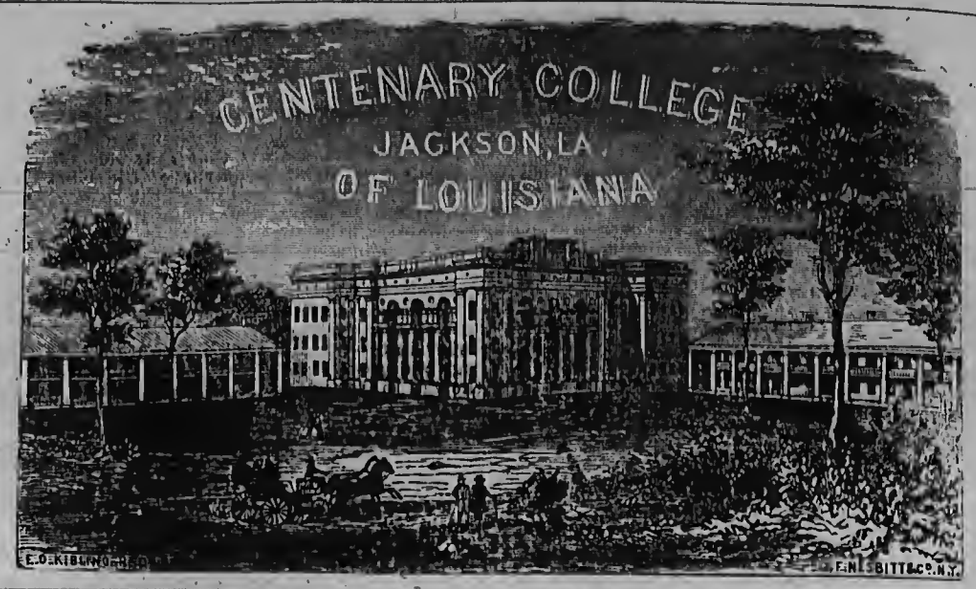
DON'T KILL YOUR BEST FOWLS.—It is the worst possible policy to kill all the best fowls, and save only the mean and scraggy ones to breed from. This is precisely the way to run out your stock; for like tends to breed like, and the result is that, by continually taking away the best birds and setting the eggs of the poorest, your flock will grow poorer every succeeding year. It would seem as though this was too plain to be insisted upon, but, in fact, "line upon line" is needed. It is the crying want of the poultry upon the farms the country through, this careful and intelligent selection of the best for breeding. Nothing is lost by a little self-denial to start with. The extra pound or two of poultry flesh that you leave on its legs, instead of sending it to the market, is as good seed, and will bring forth ten-fold and twenty-fold in your future broods. Save your best stock for breeding.

WHAT SPARROWS CAN DO.—By careful investigation it has been ascertained that a single pair of European sparrows, during the infancy of their brood, feed their little ones an average of about three thousand three hundred and sixty caterpillars a week! Now take your slate and pencils, my little friends, and see how many caterpillars in a month the sparrows, killed by that Sussex county club, would have destroyed if they had been permitted. Think what quantities of pretty leaves, how many bushels of grain, and what abundance of nice fruit must be destroyed by the taking of seventeen thousand worm-eating birds.—St. Nicholas.

SAVE your suds for the garden and plants, or to harden yards when sandy.

SAL-SODA will bleach. One spoonful is sufficient for a kettle of clothes.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.



THE NEXT TERM OF THIS VENERABLE INSTITUTION OPENS ON THE FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, 1874.

Faculty.—REV. C. G. ANDREWS, A. M., President, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Political Economy and International Law; REV. A. H. HOLCOMBE, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Adjunct Professor of Natural Science; G. H. WILEY, A. M., Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages; ——, Professor of Natural Science; THOMAS J. KERNAN, A. M., Principal of the Preparatory Department and Adjunct Professor of Modern Languages.

Charges.—Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in College, $60; Tuition, per session of forty weeks, in Preparatory Department, $30; Contingent expenses, $5. A matriculation fee of $5 must be paid on entering any regular college class. One-half the charges must be paid when the student enters; the other half on the beginning of the second term, March 1.

Board.—Board, including lodging, washing, lights and fuel, can be had in the best families for $20 per month. Day-boarding with the same families, $12 per month. Rooms provided in the dormitories free of rent. Board to be paid in advance at least one month.

Location.—This institution is located in the lovely village of Jackson, about twelve miles from Bayou Sara, in a grove of pine, magnolia, oak and beech. The location is remarkable for its beautiful woodlands, its grand and delightful atmosphere, its pure water, its unrivaled healthfulness, and its cultivated and refined society.

When Founded.—The college was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and ceded to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845.

Alumni.—Its Alumni numbers two hundred and three, and they are to be found in the most honorable and useful stations in the land.

Apparatus and Cabinet.—The college possesses a valuable set of Philosophical, Astronomical and Chemical Apparatus, and also a well-selected Mineralogical and Geological Cabinet. The apparatus includes a Theodolite, Sextant, Compass, Chronometer, Atwood's Machine, Whirling Tables, Electrical Machine, Air Pump, various combinations of the Mechanical Powers, Batteries, Chemical Tests, etc., sufficient for a thorough and extended course of observations and experiments. Steps have been taken by the Board of Trustees to put these in thorough repair.

